By WAYNE BRANDSTANT Q - A few months ago I started using ammonia to clean some woodwork. The fumes nearly made me pass out a couple of times. I would get severe pains in my chest when I'd use it. Could inhaling those fumes have damaged my heart?

A - When a person is exposed to a heavy concentration of ammonia fumes as in an industrial accident, severe poisoning can occur. This is more likely to injure the lungs, liver and kidneys than the heart. In your case, the worst that could happen would be an irritation of the throat and eyes. These effects disappear within a few minures to a few hours. Whenever you use any kind of cleaner with noxious fumes you should do so on the back porch or by an open window to minimize the concentration in the air you

DEAR POLLY - I am a room seems to need more color, I simply make a plain colored or printed valance. I bought some inexpensive plastic flowers and pinned them, at random, on the muslin curtains in my little girl's room I used small gold safety pins on the back side to hold them in place. Some bright pillows for the bed to match the flowers gave an extra boost of color. This method has worked in four different houses. For our present home, I added a pleated strip across the top to add length and to make curtains fit draw drapery roots instead of plain ones. A valance covers this added piece.

"I know I got extra mileage..."*

"With Skelly Keetene, I improved my mileage from 1 to 3 miles to a gallon," reported Mr. Eugene Gunnerson, Topeka, Kansas, "and the power was stepped up considerably."

PROVE TO YOURSELF, as these drivers did, that The Best Additives DO Make The Best Gasolines:

Here are reports from more of the 1,138 Topeka car where who tried a sample of Skelly's additive, Keotane:

Recently, when Skelly invited car owners in Topaka, Kansas, to try a sample of Skelly's patented additive, Keotane, in whatever gasoline they were using, 1,138 car owners accepted. Later, when Skelly asked, "What happened?" 297 car owners replied. Not all had gotten mileage increases, not all had continued to use Keotane, and not all had kept records. But...

Naturally, Skelly can't guarantee you the same results. But you can get the same additive, Keptane, in Skelly Keotane Gasoline. It costs no more than other major brand premium gasalines. So why try 3 tankfuls and see what results you do get?

Only Skelly has Keotane.

Goldwater Strategists Work Hard

By BRUCE BIOSSAT WASHINGTON (NEA) - The strategy forces of Arizona Sen.

Barry Goldwater are beginning to push hard to achieve new momentum which might carry him to first-ballot nomination at San Francisco in July.

Fresh signs of forward motion are needed to offset an expected defeat in the May 15 Oregon primary, recent low scores in national polls, the comparatively modest 512,000-vote total in the Illinois primary.

Spot checks around the nation indicate that the senator's efforts to force the pace may likely, but just on the "chance" bear important fruit. There are also indications that some of this pressure may generate damaging reactions.
