FESTIVAL MARKED

Claude Beauty Is Miss Irish Rose

by RAY BAXTER
He may be Mr. Patrick in Rome but he is still SAINT Patrick in Shamrock, Texas and Panhandle folk "diked" him out in western garb for the "Irish Roundup" Friday and Saturday.

The celebration that began as a one-day affair in 1938 and took a hiatus during the war years was back in stride with a crowd of 30,000 for the Irishmenegans.

Festivities got underway Friday night when Gov. Preston O' Smith addressed the pre-celebration banquet in the National Guard Armory.

Highlight of the show—as always—was the crowning of one of a bevy of colts. Miss Irish Rose of 1972. The honor went to Miss Claude Sherry Hales, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hales, is a 5'-4" blue-eyed blonde. She was sponsored by students of Claude High School.

First runner-up was Leigh Nall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Nall, Wellington. She was sponsored by Wellington High School.

Second runner-up was Julie Brantley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Royal Brantley. As Miss Canyon she was sponsored by the Canyon Study Club.

The title of "Miss Congeniality" went to Miss Wheeler. She was Melonia Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. V. Miller and sponsored by Wheeler High School.

Donagel Beard winners were all men of Shamrock. In the order they placed, they were Ray White, Bill Borth and Ray Hall.

At the Old Settlers Renuion, W. L. Teakell, 95, Shamrock, was the oldest. He will be 96

Bar Group Calls For Policy Shift On Drug Addicts

WASHINGTON (AP) — A special study committee on bigcity crime Saturday recommended the nation shift its attitude on heroin addicts from punishment to medical treatment.

Calling for a bold new policy, the American Bar Association group said all addicts picked up by police for street crimes should be channeled to newly established clinics where they would receive withdrawal, methadone or other drug treatment.

The committee, headed by Washington lawyer Edward Bennett Williams, proposed as an experiment using heroin itself as a last resort to lure addicts into therapy. But the committee report stressed that heroin should not be administered generally as a medical tool until it is proven that it poses no danger to mind or body.

School Board To Hold Meeting Monday Night

The Pampa school board has a 14-item agenda set for the regular meeting Monday night including an executive session to consider personnel recommendations by the superintendent rumored to involve sweeping changes throughout the system staff.

However, the usually accurate News barometer of phone calls indicates the most pressure will be brought on an item not on the agenda: teacher salaries.

The word is that teachers will be out in force pressing for salary changes before there is a change in the school board makeup. This has not

June 13. The longest years in residence—65—were spent by Charley Hyman, 93, Shamrock.

Floater was judged in six categories. Church and School winner was First Baptist Church, Shamrock. Shamrock Lions Club took Origination honors. Sweetwater, Okla. entered the winning community float. Commercial winner was Shamrock Gas Co. The best small attraction went to a Smith & Keelin buggy. Special attraction honor went to the Texas Panhandle Model A Club.

"Local-boy-made-good" Bill Mack came home to emcee the banquet and to bring his band for special music and the Saturday night dance. Mack is known coast-to-coast as the "Midnight Cowboy" on radio station WBAP, Fort Worth where he airs an all-night country and western show.

Gov. Wallace Tries To Win Texas Support

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Alabama Gov. George Wallace winged into Texas Friday to ignite a campaign for some of the state's 130 national Democratic convention delegate votes.

His staunchest Texas backers began laying plans at once to bring out a strong Wallace vote at the May 6 Democratic precinct conventions.

"Texas Democrats for Wallace"—with leaders handpicked by the bantam governor himself—was organized to direct the effort.

"When the time comes for our presence, we'll be back here. The governor will be stumping the state for several days," said Charles Snider, Wallace's former pilot who now heads his national campaign.

Wallace flew into Austin Friday afternoon and spent a little over three hours, including a news conference and a 30-minute speech to the "Texas Democrats for Wallace," before flying back to Montgomery, Ala.

"If you will go and inundate these precinct conventions... we can give them another shot that not only will be heard in this country, but around the world," he told his backers.

"I appeal for support in Texas from people of all races, religions and national origins," Wallace said.

Egypt, Libya, Syria Reject Hussein's Plan

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Egypt, Libya and Syria—acting as one Saturday in their new Federation of Arab Republics—rejected King Hussein's plan for the future of the Israeli-occupied west bank of Jordan.

They charged the plan was engineered by the United States.

PHIL CATES

Cates To Hold Public Hearing On School Fund

The special House Interim Committee on Financing of Public Education in Texas will hold a public hearing at 9:30 A.M. Friday, at Carver Center, 321 W. Albert with State Representative Phil Cates of Lefors will conduct the hearing.

Rep. Cates invites all persons wishing to testify before this committee to expedite proceedings, the Committee has adopted these "hearing guidelines": Cates noted.

1. All participants are urged to submit a written summary of their testimony to the chairman prior to the hearing. Parties filing such summaries will be heard first. Such written summaries are not, however, a condition for being able to testify and all parties will be heard to the extent time permits.

2. Only constructive or positive testimony expressing proposed action, recommendations, opinions or unique situations will be considered appropriate. Debate or rebuttal will not be permitted.

3. The committee is legislative and will not receive testimony relative to the merits of the court decision. The committee purpose, Cates pointed out, is to study the problems of financing public education and recommend a comprehensive legislative program designed to provide every child in Texas equal opportunity for an equitable financed, quality education; therefore is interested in obtaining every available recommendation, solution, partial solution, idea, concept, plan, and opinion relative to the financing of public education.

Its immediate objective is to determine suitable sources of revenue and equitable policies for the distribution of school funds. The committee has programmed its work into four phases: research, evaluation, formulation, and legislation. This hearing is part of the research phase which is to be completed by May.

Cates Urges City Managers To Air Views On Legislation

State Rep. Phil Cates told Panhandle city managers who met here Friday they need to speak out and voice opinions on proposed legislation affecting Texas municipalities.

Cates spoke following the luncheon of the Texas Panhandle City Manager's Association Friday in Coronado Inn.

The city managers came for the one-day quarterly meeting and preceded the business session with a tour of Pampa's new civic auditorium under the guidance of City Manager Mack Wofford, association president, and Mayor Milo Carlson.

Texas Demos To Set Up Straw Polls

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas has a new attraction for would-be Democratic presidential nominees this year.

For the first time in state Democratic history there will be straw polls at local party conventions on May 6 to determine the strength locally of the various Democratic presidential candidates.

This informal head-counting will not only affect the method of choosing delegates to the national convention at Miami Beach July 10 but it also will cause the presidential hopefuls to spend more time trying to impress Texas voters.

Alabama Gov. George Wallace, running as a Democrat this year, appeared in Austin Friday for a new conference and an organization meeting aimed at collecting his share of Texas' delegates.

Wallace made it clear he will be back during the campaign.

Texas campaign organizations have been already been set up by backers of Sens. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, and George McGovern, D-S.D., Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., was endorsed recently by the Texas AFL-CIO.

The city managers came for the one-day quarterly meeting and preceded the business session with a tour of Pampa's new civic auditorium under the guidance of City Manager Mack Wofford, association president, and Mayor Milo Carlson.

Urging the managers to become active in what he termed "practical politics," Rep. Cates said:

"It is important that city managers and other groups like yours let us know down at Austin how you feel about proposed legislation up for consideration by the State Legislature.

"We have no way of knowing unless we get your opinions."

Cates said the "most frustrating and demoralizing part of being a public official is that so small a minority of the people take part in helping to make decisions."

The state representative from Pampa pointed out that in the last session of the legislature 3,000 pieces of legislation were introduced, and about 1,000 passed.

Of that number, he said, 709 were directly related to municipal affairs. However, he added, only 147 of the municipal bills were approved.

Housecleaning In Austin Urged By News Media

By Associated Press
Newspaper editorial reaction to the conviction last week of House Speaker Gus Mutscher and two cohorts for conspiracy to accept a bribe was swift.

And the range of comment was wide.

Some angrily demanded a housecleaning in Austin. Others reacted sadly that a young man of Mutscher's political promise should be found to have feet of clay.

And virtually all of the editorials surveyed by The Associated Press demanded that reforms take place in the Capitol.

In Abilene, where the trial was held and where Mutscher, Rep. Tommy Shannon and Mutscher's aide Rush McGinty were convicted and assessed 5-year prison terms, suspended, the Reporter-News said the conspiracy damaged faith in state government.

Said the Reporter-News: "It is highly likely that the jury decision has widespread support among the rank and file citizenry of Texas.

Third Primary Will Be Held In Illinois Tuesday

CHICAGO (AP) — Illinois primary Tuesday will offer former Minnesota Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy a chance to prove himself a serious contender for the Democratic presidential nomination.

It also will be Maine Sen. Edmund S. Muskie's chance to polish a winning image tarnished in the Florida primary. Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., is the third man with a big stake in the confusing dual primary—composed of one race he calls a "glamour contest" and a second battle for delegate seats.

Muskie and McCarthy are matched in the top-of-the-ticket preferential race which has no impact on the composition of the 170-member Illinois delegation to the national convention.

Muskie and McGovern, on the other hand, are after delegate seats—as Illinois voters, for the first time, elect 160 delegates either committed to a candidate or listed as uncommitted. Ten others will be chosen at large at a later date by state party leaders. Muskie is a clear-cut favorite to win both races, but the margins of victory are questionable.

McCarthy has concentrated his campaign in Illinois, hoping that a strong showing in the top-of-the-ticket race there would enhance his national image and ensure successes in future primaries.

McGovern declined to enter the top-of-the-ticket race, saying the "real contest is for delegates."

He is spending his limited resources on getting his share of the estimated 80 delegate spots that won't be won by "uncommitted" candidates controlled by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley's organization and by electing the 104 delegates committed to him in 19 of the state's 24 congressional districts.

There are 161 Muskie delegates on the ballot, but Muskie headquarters endorsed only 105 delegates in 17 districts. The others were entered by groups trying to confuse delegate selection or by unsponsored individuals, the Muskie camp contends.

Neither McGovern nor Muskie entered slates in five Chicago districts where 56 delegates will be elected. This is the Daley domain, and one of the delegate candidates in the 5th District is Daley himself.

McCarthy has 39 delegates entered in the race, but he informally cut them adrift two weeks ago to concentrate on the "glamour contest." He appears to have spent more on television ads than either Muskie or McGovern.

Angelo Geocaris, Muskie's Illinois campaign manager, estimated early in the campaign that Muskie might win 60 delegate seats in Illinois. That figure since has been cut.

Pierre Salinger, former press aide to the late President Kennedy, is stumping for McGovern, predicting it will be a great victory for the South Dakota senator "if we get 25 delegates."

Muskie won only 9 per cent in Florida's primary, while Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace captured 43 per cent. The Maine senator is seeking a tie victory over McCarthy to replenish his dwindling campaign chest as well as boost his winning image.

The Illinois primary could cripple McCarthy's hopes for the nomination and give the former Minnesota senator the impetus to form a third party, a plan he has alluded to often during two weeks of campaigning, mostly in the Chicago area.

Geocaris once talked of a 70 per cent margin for Muskie but recently cut the figure. He contends all of Muskie's opponents for the nomination are likely to throw what support they can to McCarthy in the glamor contest to undercut the national lead presumably still held by the Maine senator.

"We're having a little blood-letting in the party," Geocaris says.

Richard Stewart, Muskie's national press secretary, says the news media imposes standards on Muskie that are not applied to other candidates.

"Muskie's last victory for senator was by 54 per cent, and that was against only one candidate in his home state. So he goes to New Hampshire and runs against five candidates and gets 47 per cent, and everyone says it's not enough," Stewart said.

Poll Shows Barnes Running 1st, Briscoe 2nd, Smith 3rd

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes and Uvalde rancher-banker Dolph Briscoe are battling one-two for the Democratic nomination for governor, according to a statewide poll of "political experts" taken by the Houston Chronicle's Austin bureau.

The copyrighted poll, published today, shows Gov. Preston Smith is running third, and Rep. Frances "Sissy" Farenthold is fourth.

The percentages are: Barnes 33, Briscoe 29, Smith 21 and Farenthold 17.

In an interpretative article based on the poll, Bo Byers, chief of the newspaper's Austin bureau, said Briscoe is "an unconvincing second," Smith a "fading third" and Farenthold a "fast-charging fourth."

Former U.S. Sen. Ralph Yarborough holds a 56-44 edge over Barefoot Sanders for the right to challenge Republican Sen. John Tower in the November general election, the poll indicates.

The Chronicle questioned local political experts—representing conservatives, moderates, liberals, Democrats, Republicans, business leaders, organized labor, blacks and chicanos.

Byers said the percentage ratings were based on an estimated voter turnout of 1,960,000 in the Democratic primary, which he said may be too high in view of the hotly contested races in the Republican primary.

The Texas stock fraud scandal has cast a cloud over Barnes "even though he has never been shown to be implicated except by innuendo or insinuation," Byers said.

"If Barnes is hurt—and many of his supporters and local campaign managers concede that he is—Smith is mortally wounded," Byers said.

The five-year suspended sentences of Speaker Gus Mutscher and two of his associates account for this, Byers said, noting that Smith and former State Democratic Chairman Elmer Baum split a $125,000 profit on the same stock involved in the Mutscher case.

Briscoe and Farenthold profit from this damage to Barnes and Smith, Byers said.

"But Mrs. Farenthold, a liberal reformist, is capitalizing on the situation much more aggressively and effectively than Briscoe—to this point," he said.

"I think Barnes' strength has certainly been slipping and is still slipping throughout the state," the pleased Briscoe added.

In Dallas, Republican gubernatorial aspirant Dave Reagan said the Democratic Party of Texas never will be able to clean its house of the filth of political corruption.

"That's why the only answer is a solid Republican reform governor," the Austin College professor said. He hailed the Mutscher conviction "the dawning of a new era" for Texas voters.

One example of a good moisture situation came from Palestine, where the Anderson County agent, Glenn Huddleston, reported no real problem yet—conditions much better than last year.

But farmers would like to see a good inch and a half of rain. Texarkana is one of the blessed areas. It rained there three times in the past week.

Farther west at Temple, the story is different, the spot check showed.

Drouth Threatens Many Texas Areas

Associated Press Writer
Loud pleas for rain are heard in Texas these days from somewhere east of Dallas all the way west to the New Mexico line.

A spot check, however, shows there is not the desperation that existed one year ago today.

And long range weather forecasts indicate help can come.

The question: Will rain fall in time to save crops.

At this same date one year ago, a survey of Texas resulted in one comment that "water is so scarce... that the cows are licking the rocks for moisture."

About this time in 1971, Gov. Preston Smith asked $5 million in aid to begin helping 60 drought-hit counties.

By the end of the year, 235 of the state's 254 counties had received $82 million in federal drought help.

A survey of the situation this weekend arouses well-based hope that nothing like the widespread 1971 drought will take place.

That is, if farmers have a little luck.

The hopeful attitude is the work of Jeter Pruett, meteorologist in charge of the National Weather Service forecast office in Fort Worth whose territory is the northern half of Texas.

Pruett notes that the best months for rain are immediately ahead. A normal March rainfall of 2.51 inches at Fort Worth, for instance, makes it a moderately damp month compared with some others.

But April normally is much better with 3.60 inches, while the May average climbs to 4.59 inches before tapering off to June's 2.96 and July's 1.75.

What is the 30-day forecast for Texas?

It is for above normal rainfall in the eastern part of the

Pampa Lions Club Presents Annual Fund-Raising Show

By GEORGE TSAI
The Pampa Lions Club presented one of its most successful annual fund-raising shows Friday and Saturday nights in the Pampa Junior High School.

The family-type entertainment featured singing, dancing, jokes, monologues, band playing and clowning that captivated the capacity audience throughout the 90-minute production.

From time to time, the tricks, puns and ludicrous acts played by the six court jesters made the audience shake their sides with laughter. In fact, they got much credit for the amusing and delightful atmosphere filling the auditorium. Equally, every number sung by the 50-member chorus and soloists appealed to both old and young and received warm applause.

The show introduced a brand new program—the "Internationally-known Whistlers." They looked like strange men from another planet.

Their performance triggered loud laughter when the trio was dancing to the tunes of "Bridge Over the River Kwai."

During the 20-minute intermission, Lions Club members came out of every direction, each carrying a box of different size containing cracker jacks with prizes.

All prizes, ranging from bicycles, utilities to Coca Cola, were contributed by members of the local Lions Club.

To some extent, the chorus and soloists could compete easily with some of today's outstanding road shows.

In a word, the show was a successful one in that it was full of local color, fun and laughter. We are fully convinced the 36th annual show will attract more people next year if it is staged in a bigger place, possibly the M. K. Brown Memorial Auditorium. It is generally agreed that living on the brink of tension, people need this wholesome entertainment of the home-talent brand.

All proceeds from admission tickets will, according to Jean Martindale, go to support the High Plains Eye Bank, furnishing eye-glasses, medical and dental care to needy children; providing college scholarships to Pampa High School students; sponsoring Boy Scout Troop No. 16; and helping support the crippled children's camp at Kerrville.

The repertoire presented during the show included: "Galway Bay," by Sheriff Rufe Jordan; "Blue Spanish Eyes" by Tome Jones; "Sentimental Journey" by June Allen, Mary Nell Phillips, Leta Flynt, Georgia Smith, Priscilla Alexander, Virginia Mitten; "Rampart Street Parade" by Anderson Sisters; "Mood Indigo-Birth of the Blues" by Band and Chorus; "Dixieland" by Henry Gruben and company; "I Believe" by Bob Sanders; "Heart of Heart" by Rosemary Burkhardt; "Way Down Yonder" by Ed Jenger; "Banjo At Its Best" by Harry Kelly; "Basin Street" by Betty Cox; "I'm Goin' Back to Where I Kum From" by Coy Palmer; "Kentucky Babe" by Richard Hill; "Rock-A-Bye My Baby" by Ken Freeman; and "Up That Lazy River" by Predetta Chambliss.

At the annual meeting of stockholders in Western Beef Packers Inc., President George Feaster predicted "an extremely good year" for 1972 estimating earnings at 65 cents per share of stock.

In business only three years, the company has yet to pay a dividend. F. Howard Simpson, vice president and treasurer, said this was because the corporation needed a cash reserve for growth.

On the subject of growth, Simpson noted that the company's total assets increased 18 per cent last year. A cut in operating costs offset sales down from 1970 to garner the firm better than a half-million dollars for a net income.

Of the 442 persons employed in 1971, 256 of them work in the general area including the local plant on East Frederic Street. Of the $2.7 million payroll, $1.7 million was earned in this area which includes the Amarillo base of the firm.

With the exception of Howard Foster and William Armstrong, Brawley, Calif., all stockholders are Texans. They include Feaster and Simpson, Amarillo; R. L. Brand Jr., Trent; J. Lloyd Hutcheson, Clifton; Jack Giles, El Paso and Howard Diedrichson, Dumas.

Judge Cain Sets Arraignment Date Of Criminal Cases
Gray County Judge Don Cain has set March 21-23 for arraignments of criminal cases beginning at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Judge has also designated 10:30 a.m. March 27 for a call-of-the-docket to set criminal and civil cases pending for trial by jury.

Such trials are scheduled to begin at 10 a.m. April 18 in Gray County Court.

The judge is hopeful of dispatching 20 cases per day during the three days of arraignments this week.

April 1 Is Deadline For License Plates

There are ten more "shopping days" before the April 1, deadline for auto license plates. An estimated 75 per cent of the tags that will be sold in Gray County before the deadline have been purchased, according to Jack Back, tax assessor-collector.

This puts Gray ahead of neighboring Potter and Randall Counties where a Friday estimate said 65 per cent remained to be sold, presaging quite a rush.

Back said remaining tag purchases here before the deadline could cause a rush if they were "bunched up" but he did not anticipate this because volume had been equal and steady almost every day.

To date, 12,165 tags have been sold in Gray County. This is 139 short of the same time last year. So, based on the estimate, there could be as many as 5,000 tags sold before the deadline.

Back noted that in past years the total license plate sales for a complete year were around 25,000. This doubling of the to-date figure is accounted for by automotive and truck transactions and newcomers to the state-county.

Price Supports Resolution On Roll Call Votes Record
Twenty-nine members of the U.S. House of Representatives joined Congressman Bob Price of Pampa Friday, in introducing a joint resolution which, if adopted and ratified by the states, would amend the Constitution by requiring Members of Congress to be recorded on at least 70 per cent of the roll call votes during a session of Congress or lose their jobs.

This measure, originally sponsored by Congressman Price on Feb. 17, gained support from these other members who feel as he does that the elected representatives of the people should be doing what they were elected by the people to do—represent their constituents by voting on legislation before the Congress.

Numbers for phone orders are 669-7996 or 665-4223.

Motorcyclist Without License Warned By Police
In response to a call from School Board Member John Gikas, in the absence of Dr. James Malone, superintendent, Lt. Bailey of the Pampa police department checked out motorcycles riders on the campus of Stephen F. Austin school.

He found no one on the grounds but intercepted one 12 year old rider en route and issued a citation for being allowed to ride a motor cycle without a license.

The school board enacted an ordinance making it unlawful to operate any motorized vehicle on any Pampa school ground other than authorized delivery or repair units.

Ward Manager Will Attend Chicago Meet

Jim Stallings, Montgomery Ward store manager in Pampa, has been invited by Ward's president to participate in a week-long management seminar with other Ward top executives in Chicago the week of March 19.

At the meeting, Ward executives will review past and present merchandising and sales programs and set objectives for the coming year. During 1972, Wards is celebrating its 100th anniversary of service to American consumers.

The conference will bring together more than 600 Ward retail and district managers from throughout the United States in the first meeting of its type ever sponsored by Wards. Ward managers will have an opportunity to review buying activities and recommend areas where closer coordination will improve product value and customer satisfaction.

The management conference will conclude Friday evening in Chicago when nine Montgomery Ward managers will receive national awards for outstanding achievement. Among the awards will be a miniaturized reproduction of an original sculpture by Clement Meadmore. The original sculpture will be presented to the Art Institute of Chicago by the company later this year.

While Stallings is in Chicago Dennis Haddon, merchandise manager, and John Sullins, operations manager of the Pampa store, will participate in a nation-wide "Beat the Manager" sales contest.

Surgeon General Warns TV Violence Affects Children

By JOHN STOWELL, Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Surgeon General Jesse L. Steinfeld says his office's recent report on televised violence and children contains enough information to warrant "remedial behavior by society both in terms of getting rid of some of the violence and some of its consequences."

In an interview with The Associated Press, Steinfeld said that corporate stockholders could play a role in reducing televised violence.

On another topic, Steinfeld said he favors removing criminal penalties for smoking marijuana, but retaining fines and jail terms for selling it.

Questions and answers: Q. The surgeon general's report on television violence concluded in general that television violence may lead to violent acts by children already prone to violence. Could you elaborate?

A. This report, for the first time based upon a significant body of scientific evidence, states categorically that there is a relationship between viewing violence on television and subsequent antisocial behavior among children who are predisposed to violence.

I would add: Viewing violence can also predispose children to violence.

The key is going to be whether or not society, in the form of the Federal Communications Commission or the Congress or parents, begins moving to do something about all of the violence, sanitized though it may be.

We should perhaps begin regulating—on a voluntary basis I would hope—the amount and kinds of violence, the times at which it occurs and so forth.

There are a whole series of actions by stockholders of a company at their annual meetings if a particular company, for example, turns out to sponsor the most violent of all programs on television.

We don't even have a continuous rating system so that parents know what it is their children are watching. I'd add that children watch children's programs only about 15 to 20 per cent of the time.

The rest of the time they watch so-called adult programs which have violence in another form than cartoons which are the most violent of all programs.

What I'd saying is that there is a range of actions available to society, as parents in determining what their children watch, as individuals who wish the television industry to act responsibly both in terms of the violent content which may produce antisocial behavior as well as content which would be conducive to prosocial behavior.

Q. The 1972 Surgeon General's report on smoking and health again shows the hazards of smoking but people continue to smoke. Can you explain why this is so?

A. People do a number of things which they know are not in their own best interests. Smoking is one of these. Drinking alcohol to excess is another. People don't eat the right foods.

Our major successes are when the American citizen is largely passive. When we purify his water supplies, when we make certain that sewage is taken care of, make certain milk is pasteurized, when we develop a vaccine and provide it to our citizens, then we're quite successful. When the citizen must take an active role we're far less successful.

Q. Perhaps you can explain why, although reports continue to show that smoking and excessive alcohol drinking are harmful to health, those escapes are favored in our society while marijuana smoking, of which the National Institute of Mental Health has found little evidence of physical threat to health, is still frowned upon by the older generation?

A. There are multiple factors actually. Western civilization, at least of the kind of North European Western civilization, has a long history of using alcohol, far longer than using tobacco.

And as you know, it was only after the tremendous increase in cigarette smoking in World War I, when millions of American men began smoking, that there were very real hazards, not only sickness but increased numbers of deaths, associated with cigarette smoking.

The use of marijuana is still quite sporadic and relatively minimal in terms of what it might be if it were legalized.

I agree with the statements that the criminal penalty should be eliminated for mere use of marijuana and one should restrict penalties to those who are perhaps pushing it into the hands and mouths and bodies of our youth.

Q. The NIMH researchers studied the marijuana smokers in Jamaica where it's been a popular product for years, and could not find any positive or negative long-term effect from its usage.

A. I don't think that they can say categorically that this experience is extrapolatable to the United States population. Marijuana has been used by individuals for many years to permit them to face what are otherwise very unpleasant life circumstances. Alcohol has been used in a similar way.

I think the way we are moving seems to me to be a very rational one for a free society as the United States, which is to accumulate evidence both in our own society and in other cultures to try to communicate both with our citizens and our legislators, the most accurate scientific evidence in order to approach more nearly a scientific basis for the actions which we have.

Q. How would you feel about regulating marijuana in the same way as alcohol, for instance, is regulated through taxation and legitimate sales of packages.

A. I wouldn't favor it at this point. We need additional scientific evidence.

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — The George Eastman House, a photographic museum, says it will expand its reproduction of early film classics threatened by age.

Currently, about 15 antique films are copied in a time-consuming frame-by-frame process each year. But two $40,000 grants from the National Endowment of the Arts and the Eastman Kodak Co. will boost reproduction to 75 films a year, the museum said Wednesday.

"We do not believe that current food levels of PCB present a hazard to public health," Edwards said.

"We do believe, however, that the sources of PCB in foods can and should be significantly reduced to prevent any potential hazard from developing."

The chemical, polychlorinated biphenyl, is used widely in industry, including some paper products such as food containers. It has caused liver and genetic damage in some laboratory animals and skin ailments among humans.

Edwards said the proposed regulations, to be officially published Saturday, will be open 60 days for public comment.

Recently, cases of PCB contamination in feed have resulted in government condemnations of chickens and other poultry products.

More than 1.25 million chickens in Maine, for example, have been destroyed in the past month because of PCB contamination. Tainted feed is suspected as the source.

Service Station Attendant Saves Dallas Woman's Life

DALLAS (AP) — It was almost midnight when Mrs. Helen Thornhill stopped for a red light on her way home after working late. Suddenly her car door flew open and the cleancut, nicely dressed man who had been standing at the nearby intersection was inside the car.

The passenger explained his plight: He'd been from Vietnam, no bus in sight but that his parents lived nearby. He begged for a ride. "Since I have a son in Vietnam, I felt sorry for him" and agreed to drive the intruder home, recalled Mrs. Thornhill.

Minutes later, the 38-year-old woman hovered near death, her body torn by six bullets, her spleen ruptured, an artery severed and a lung collapsed.

Mrs. Thornhill, who lived to tell of the nightmarish episode, credits service station attendant Leonard Knox with saving her life.

Recounting the incident, Mrs. Thornhill said her passenger directed her to where his parents supposedly lived and then flashed a gun. Six rapid shots followed.

The gunman jumped out of the car and fled. For the next few minutes Mrs. Thornhill drove by instinct until she saw a service station.

She pulled in, slumped over the steering wheel and honked the horn repeatedly. A young attendant approached the car, then stepped back, apparently frightened that the woman might be a decoy for an armed robbery.

"He ran inside and got another man," Mrs. Thornhill recalled.

The other attendant, Knox, rushed to the car, summoned police and an ambulance.

After she was rushed to the hospital, Mrs. Thornhill was told she might not live. But she did.

Today, she carries three of the six bullets in her body—two in the liver and one in the chest.

Her right arm is useless, but doctors believe she may regain the use of it.

Mrs. Thornhill said one of her primary concerns is that the man whom she credits with saving her life gets proper recognition. She was referring to Knox, the service station attendant.

BOYLE COLUMN Memory-- Lamp Of Life

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Memory is the golden lamp of life.

Its bright beams, reflected from the safe and changeless land of yesterday, light our steps along the troubled pathway of today and give us courage to dare the dangers of farther walks tomorrow.

You have a great store of recollections if you can remember when—

The average man saw no need for a two-bathroom house, a two-car garage—or a twomarrriage life.

The only people who could afford to keep bankers' hours were bankers.

Folks put more faith in opportunity than in security.

You walked more often in mud in America than you did on concrete.

If you wanted something you hadn't inherited, you had to work for it to get it. No one expected the government to give it to him.

A doctor was so busy making house calls that he often found it difficult to keep regular office hours.

You met more eccentrics then than now because people had the strength and independence to be themselves instead of acting like each other.

It wasn't unusual for a baby to be born in the same bed that its great-grandfather had died in.

Anyone who had just one loaf of bread under his arm, not two, felt he had no justifiable reason to complain about life.

You could look at a boy and a girl walking arm in arm together and feel pretty sure which was which.

There was no place in town where you could buy a bottle of aspirin tablets except the drug store.

The biggest thrill in a little boy's life was getting iceskates with modern steel rather than wooden runners.

A nickel cup of coffee had just as much coffee in it as a 15-cent cup has today.

A young girl could take her grandmother to a movie without worrying whether the scenes or the language in it would offend the old girl.

The old people who had to end their days in an old folks' home were those who had no children.

Most families bought their groceries on credit during the week, and Father went to the store on Saturday night and paid the bill in full—with cash.

If a light was seen in your house after midnight, the neighbors would call up and ask if anyone was sick.

Smith Approves Antipoverty Fund

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Preston Smith said today he has approved nearly $4 million in federal anti-poverty funds, including $2,449,965 for Dallas County.

A total of $703,978 was made available for a Head Start program for 453 children, ages 3 years to 5 years 2 months. A separate grant of $1,745,987 was approved for neighborhood centers, family planning and technical assistance for low-income persons in Dallas County.

Other grants approved by the governor included:

—$22,187 for family planning, sewing and typing classes and neighborhood programs in Cameron (Brownsville) County.

—$112,378 to the Tyler School District for a summer Head Start program for 400 children, ages 5-6.

—$100,716 for family planning, employment counseling, clothing workshops and youth councils in Center.

—$33,000 for neighborhood centers, legal services and youth development project in Midland.

—$19,661 for a summer Head Start program for 78 children, ages 5-7, at Rogers.

—$17,500 for a summer Head Start program for 100 children, ages 5-6, in Linden.

Joan McCrary's Works To Be Shown In Pampa

The Pampa Fine Arts Association will sponsor a showing of the contemporary work of Joan McCrary, Oklahoma City artist, beginning Sunday, March 26, through Friday, March 31, at the Fine Arts building on West Kingsmill.

Grand opening of the show, from 2 until 5 p.m. next Sunday, will feature demonstrations by Miss McCrary on painting, modeling and glazing. Weekdays, the building will be open from 2 until 4 p.m.

A private opening, for association members only, will be held Saturday.

A native of Oklahoma, she received a degree in fashion arts from the University of Oklahoma, where she was a Phi Beta Kappa. A recognized art instructor and judge, she has also done television commercials, been a costume advisor for a movie company and conducted a television workshop series. She lists her interests and hobbies as people, animals, and the countryside.

She is reported to have a unique style all her own that is easily recognizable. Her paintings can be found in galleries and private collections in Texas, New Mexico, Arkansas, California and Oklahoma.

When she was a judge for the Ponca City Art Association's spring exhibit in 1967, she said during her critique, "Creating a picture is like baking a cake. There is a recipe to follow with basic ingredients of design, harmony or unity, emphasis, color, balance, focus and rhythm."

TOP MAN AWARDS—Joe Cree, Pampa insurance executive, is shown here holding the Hall of Fame award he received the past week for having written in excess of $10 million life insurance. The presentation was made by Jerry Ford, Amarillo district manager for Southland Life Insurance Co., who also presented Cree with two other national and one district awards in recognition for being one of the nation's leading life insurance men.

Nixon's Antibusing Plan Called Political Rhetoric

DETROIT (AP)—Irene McCabe, a leader of the anti-busing forces in Pontiac, Mich., today called President Nixon's new plan to deal with the busing controversy a "popout" and "political rhetoric."

Nixon announced Thursday night he would ask Congress to halt further court-ordered busing to acquire racially balanced school districts and would ask for Justice Department intervention in desegregation cases where lower courts have gone beyond the requirements of the Supreme Court in ordering busing.

Mrs. McCabe, the Pontiac leader of the antibusing National Action Group, said the legislation proposed by the President would affect only new busing and wouldn't stop existing integration plans like the one in Pontiac. Mrs. McCabe supports a constitutional amendment to ban busing.

Elbert Hatchett, an NAACP attorney who helped win the Pontiac integration order, also expressed unhappiness with Nixon's message.

"It's dishonest on the part of the President and all of the politicians who have made great hay with this issue to toy with the voters until after election time and then to drop them like hot potatoes after the election is over," Hatchett said.

Pampan Wins Achievement Recognition

Joe Cree, Pampa insurance man, has been presented with four awards of achievement by Jerry Ford of Amarillo, district manager of Southland Life Insurance Co.

One award was a plaque designating Cree as 1971 Man of the Year from the General Agency Managers Association of America. This is given each year by the national association to the leading agent in each life insurance company in each area. Cree also received a plaque naming him 1971 Man of the Year for the Texas Plains Agency of his own company.

In addition to these honors, Cree was presented a Hall of Fame certificate from Southland Life Insurance Co. attesting to the fact that he has written and paid for in excess of ten million dollars of life insurance. The award of this achievement was a one carat diamond ring.

Correlation Between Cosmetics And Health Problems Being Under Study

Ninety-nine and forty-four one-hundredths percent pure? When it comes to cosmetics, scientists now believe that contamination, even a little bit, may post a potential hazard to health.

Cosmetics have been under control for many years in Texas and the nation under the authority of state and federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic laws. The Texas Health Department has an entire division devoted to enforcement of these laws as one tool to provide product safety and better public health protection for each of us.

Health authorities and research scientists are now deeply involved in studies to determine the correlation between cosmetics and health problems. One such effort has been underway for the past two years investigating the casual relation between eye makeup and eye diseases.

The study, as reported in the American Journal of Ophthalmology, concludes that microorganisms present in mascara, eyeliner, and eye shadow "constitute a potential hazard" because they can invade a scratched eyeball and cause infection or even loss of vision.

Eye injuries from microbial contamination of makeup are one of the most common complaints cosmetics manufacturers receive, along with skin reactions to bubble baths containing harsh detergents, and hair and scalp damage from shampoos and other hair preparations.

While no breakdown is available, the National Commission on Product Safety estimates that cosmetics in general injure 60,000 persons in this nation each year seriously enough that they must see a physician or be restricted in their activities for at least one day.

Cosmetics fresh from the factory were found generally pure. Contamination can come from keeping the makeup a long time, letting someone else use it, and mixing saliva or even tap water in mascara to thin it. Heat, body chemistry, and the type of preservative used in makeup are also determining factors.

Antisecrecy Law Ignored

WASHINGTON (AP)—Newsmen and government agencies alike have ignored a four-year-old antisecrecy law designed to increase public access to the bureaucracy's files, a House subcommittee chairman declared Friday.

Rep. William S. Moorhead, D-Pa., Chairman of the House government information subcommittee, released an analysis by the panel showing how federal agencies have reacted to the Freedom of Information Act.

He criticized newsmen for failing to use it more often and attacked agencies for trying to circumvent it.

Moorhead said nearly 2,200 requests for access to federal records were denied completely or in part. For each refusal, 17 requests were granted, he added.

Many government agencies "seem to be doing everything possible to ignore" the law, he asserted. But others, "and the Air Force is the worst offender, try to make their information operations look good by claiming that thousands of requests for routine government documents are actually demands for access under the Freedom of Information Act."

Some agencies, he said, "keep no records and apparently have no interest in implementing the law."

Worry Clinic

By George W. Crane, Ph. D., M. D.

Ronald is an enigma to his wife. Yet she is a smart woman with a college diploma. But many such wives fail to see the direct connection between Silas Marner and a low "cheeseecake" menu in the bedroom! Wives, wake up! It pays!

CASE T-531: Ronald J., aged 39, is a modern Silas Marner.

"Dr. Crane," his wife confessed, "Ronald used to be a generous husband.

But during the past couple of years, he has become very critical of my housekeeping.

And he now refuses to let me have any money. Instead, he does out whatever funds are needed even to buy groceries.

Yet he makes a good salary and we are fairly well off, financially.

What causes a formerly jolly, free-spending man to become such a miser?"

PLATONIC MISERS
Money misers usually get that way in the bedroom!

For when a man fears impotence and develops a sexual inferiority complex, he squeezes the dollar instead of his wife!

For $$$$$ represent power.

Since he realizes that he has lost his erotic vigor, such a husband then tightens the family purse strings in order to force his wife to come to him for handouts.

For that makes him still the financial master of the home, even if he dreads having lost the dominant sexual role therein.

"Dr. Crane," many a worried husband like Ronald has confessed, "I have been dethroned in our boudoir.

"So now I try to become King Midas and force my wife to pay attention to me because I still control the purse strings."

Yet many otherwise smart wives seem to miss this direct connection between waning erotic vigor and an increasing miserly condition.

"Generous with love; liberal with money," is its corollary.

Wives, you can easily transform a Silas Marner into a generous husband if you will merely restore his erotic ego in the boudoir.

"Only a winner can be generous," is a rule of psychology that you should memorize with reference to your bedroom.

So start concentrating on more "cheeseecake" in your

Become tactfully more seductive. Take the initiative in a revival of your honeymoon romancing.

For a husband who has become scared about his inability to function, will avoid making advances.

For he dreads the humiliation of your discovery that he is apparently impotent.

And I use that term "apparently," for most cases of platonic males are a result of psychic inhibition, due to a previously developed fear of erotic failure.

Such a platonic mate can thus be made to function quite readily by a "call" girl or prostitute, thereby showing that his inability to function with his wife is due to an emotional block.

Pampa Chapter Observes Future Homemaker Week

March 19 through 25 has been designated National FHA Week. Members of America will carry out special activities and observances designed to share their experiences and achievements with family, friends, and neighbors.

These chosen for this year's National FHA Week is "Profiles of Youth," to focus attention on what over half-a-million young men and women are doing to improve personal, family and community living.

Rhonda Jackson, chapter president, points out that several million young people have been challenged by the unlimited opportunities offered through membership in Future Homemakers of America over the 26 years since its establishment as a national organization for home economics students in the secondary schools. "They have an opportunity to grow as an individual," she stated, "to contribute to home and family living, develop leadership cooperation, open doors of service to others, prepare for a vocation or profession, make new friends, find new experiences, gain an understanding of others, make creative and constructive use of leisure time and most importantly, be a part of a national organization of teenagers concerned with people, families and communities."

The 30 members of the Pampa High School FHA chapter have scheduled a number of activities for this week, including Sunday, attend church of their choice; Monday, poster day, to advertise FHA; Tuesday, honor the aged by visiting East-Ridge Lodge; Wednesday, Teacher Appreciation Day at PHS; Thursday, FHA Color Day; Friday, after school party for Secret Sisters.

Girls of the month chosen during the year are Frankie Mitchell, September; Rhonda Jackson, October; Cindy Farnsworth, November; Darlen McCurley, December; Katie Mahaney, January; Tinker Deist, February; Karol Scheu, March.

Future Homemakers of America is a non-profit, self-supporting organization, officially sponsored by the U.

S. Office of Education through the Division of Vocational Technical Education and the American Home Economics Association. It encompasses two types of chapters; which are FHA chapters for students in homemaking, consumer and family life education and HERE-FHA chapters for students enrolled in home economics teachers serve as advisers to the 11,000 local FHA chapters throughout the country. National headquarters are located in Washington, D.C.

Officers of the Pampa High School Chapter are Rhonda Jackson, president; Cindy Farnsworth, first vice president; Sheelach Chennault, second vice president; Katie Mahaney, third vice president; Frankie Mitchell, fourth vice president; Dyanette Bowen, fifth vice president; Mona Williams, secretary-treasurer; Tinker Deist, historian-parliamentarian; and Mrs. Don Hufstetler, adult advisor.

Women's Equality Appears To Be Subject Of Campaign

By JURATE KAZICKAS Associated Press Writer

The call for equality for women has moved from the street marches onto the campaign trail. The candidates for the 1972 presidential nomination have decided that speaking out on women's rights can be good politics.

Whether it's pointing proudly to the number of influential women at campaign headquarters, or making promises about future female appointments, or just making sure that every reference to "men" is followed by "and women," the candidates are talking about the women's movement.

"All the candidates are suddenly making noises like feminists," says Betty Friedan, a pioneer feminist. "But they had better know that rhetoric isn't enough. Women are emerging as a real political force and we intend to pin down all the candidates on their talk and promises."

President Nixon's campaigners extol his record of first female appointments. Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota has called women's issues a "very, very important part of the campaign." Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota announced last June that if elected he'd appoint a woman to the Supreme Court and to the Cabinet. And Rep. Shirley Chisholm of New York is in the race herself.

Miss Stowers talked on girl scouting, its objectives, activities and results.

"Girl scouts know where they're going," she said, "what they're going to do, are happy and not like many 'mixed up' college students."

Pampa Girl Joins Honorary Society At Texas Tech U.

Good grades and a willingness to serve are the attributes credited for the special recognition.

Selection is based on leadership, character and academic achievement represented by a grade average of 3.00 on a scale where 4.00 is a perfect score.

Projects sponsored by the organization include Junior Techsan Day when members treat youngsters from children's homes in Lubbock to a Tech football game and a party.

SPE Lecturer Will Address Area Section

Forrest F. Craig Jr., chief petroleum engineer with Amoco International Oil Co. in Chicago and a distinguished lecturer for the Society of Petroleum Engineers of AIME, will be the guest speaker at the monthly dinner meeting of the Panhandle Section of SPE.

The meeting is scheduled for Thursday, at 6:30 p.m. at the Country Club.

Craig's speech, entitled "Engineering Waterfloods for Improved Oil Recovery," will cover the engineering designs needed to produce the maximum oil recovery from a waterflood project. Craig will discuss the basis for the engineering design, the methods of predicting performance from the Reservoir, the selection of flooding patterns to achieve maximum oil recovery, and comparisons of actual and predicted performance after the waterflood has begun operation.

The use of improved recovery techniques to increase both the economics of a project and the ultimate oil production will also be outlined.

Craig, who recently has been named chief petroleum engineer of Amoco International Oil Co. in Chicago, holds BS, MS and PhD degrees in chemical engineering from the U. of Pittsburgh.

He was formerly assigned to Amoco's Research Department in Tulsa, has been with the Amoco organization since 1951 when the company was named Stanolind Oil and Gas Co., and has worked in both experimental and theoretical phase of oil recovery research.

482,386 Major Crimes Reported In Texas In '71

AUSTIN—Colonel Wilson E. Speir, director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, said today that more major crimes were committed in Texas in 1971 than in 1970, but that the actual increase was the smallest noted since 1963.

Speir said the DPS Crime Report, based on information submitted by Texas sheriffs and chiefs of police, reflected 482,386 major criminal offenses during 1971. This is an increase of 13,324 crimes over the 469,062 total in 1970.

The DPS director noted these major crime figures in Texas for the preceding 10 years:

Speir observed that the 1971 crime rate per 100,000 population was 4,308.3, down 2.6 per cent from the 4,421.3 rate observed in 1970. He pointed out, however, that the rate decrease was due in part to population adjustments based on new census figures. The 1961 crime rate per 100,000 population was 2,122.0.

On a statewide basis last year, all crime categories increased in actual numbers, except thefts, which declined from 261,220 to 243,344. The rate reduction for thefts was 11.7 per cent. There were 1,687 murders, up 15.3 per cent; 3,075 rapes, up 6.6 per cent; and 14,345 robberies, up 20.1 per cent. Burglaries totaled 137,140, up 4.2 per cent; aggravated assaults were 34,472, up 14.3 per cent; with auto thefts recorded at 48,323, up 17.1 per cent.

Of the total 1971 offenses, 432,634 were committed in urban areas and 49,752 in rural regions.

There were fewer major crimes in cities of over 100,000 population, with a total of 298,033 offenses as compared to 307,149 in 1970.

"The primary trend noted in these reports is that while statewide crime continued to increase last year, the rate of increase is far below that observed during the last half of the 1960's," Speir said. "This trend first began to appear in the last six months of 1970 and, hopefully, will continue in the years ahead."

The DPS director said many factors are involved in the slowdown in the crime spiral, including improvements in law enforcement and other elements of the criminal justice system. But he said the main reason appears to be "an awakening public awareness to the menace of criminal behavior."

Cattle Health Problem Discussed

AMARILLO—The need for greater awareness of causes of disease and health problems among feeder cattle and the equally important need for early detection and treatment of cattle illnesses emerged as the most talked about subjects during early sessions of the two-day first annual Southwest Beef Industry Conference here Wednesday.

Emphasis later shifted to beef cattle nutrition and an admonition from one of the nation's leading authorities in this field that feeders face the prospect of a "whole new ballgame" in the industry.

Baylor College Sets Up Human Genetics Center

HOUSTON—Baylor College of Medicine today announced the establishment of the Robert J. Kleberg, Jr. Center for Human Genetics. The center is made possible by a gift from the Robert J. Kleberg, Jr. and Helen C. Kleberg Foundation of Kingsville, said L. F. McCollum, chairman of the college's board of trustees.

The center will encompass such programs as research directed toward correction of genetic defects of metabolism, detection of carriers of certain inherited diseases, genetic counseling as a means to approach control of inherited diseases, studies on DNA, isolation of drug-resistant animal cells, study of virus genetic function and isolation of mutant viruses.

Several of Baylor's genetic studies are centered around efforts toward a better understanding of why cancer develops in human beings.

"No single area of medicine has resisted the probing of skilled researchers more than that of genetics. Within the past decade the 'science of creation' has come to be the central and unifying theme of the biomedical sciences," said Dr. Michael E. De Baakey, Baylor Medical president.

The 23rd psalm of drugs and death

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I am enclosing something which has been published in the Congressional Record. Since many millions of people who read your column would otherwise not see it, will you please print it? It might make the difference between life and death. Thank you. ABBY FAN

DEAR FAN: Yes, I will. And here it is:

"King Heroin is my shepherd. I shall always want . . .
"These tragic words, part of a twisted rewording of the beloved 23d Psalm, were discovered recently in Reidsville, N. C., in a closed car alongside a dead heroin addict. She was 23 years old.

"Her death was ruled a suicide. A hookup with the car's exhaust had sent carbon monoxide fumes from a running motor into the vehicle. Here's the complete 'Psalm.'

"King Heroin is my shepherd. I shall always want. He maketh me to lie down in the gutters.

"He leadeth me besides the troubled waters. He destroyeth my soul.

"He leadeth me in the paths of wickedness.

"Yea, I shall walk thru the valley of poverty and will fear no evil for thou, Heroin, are with me.

"Thy Needle and Capsule comfort me. Thou strippest the table of groceries in the presence of my family. Thou robbest my head of reason.

"My cup of sorrow runneth over. Surely heroin addiction shall stalk me all the days of my life and I will dwell in the House of the Damned forever."

Also found in the car with the dead woman was this written message:

"Jail didn't cure me. Nor did hospitalization help me for long. The doctor told my family it would have been better, and indeed kinder, if the person who got me hooked on dope had taken a gun and blown my brains out. And I wish to God he had. My God, how I wish it."

DEAR ABBY: You have often stressed the fact that parents should respect the privacy of their teen-aged children with regard to letters, diaries, etc. But now that drugs have become so much a part of our lives, and some are both illegal and dangerous, I wonder if you would comment on respect to privacy in this area.

If a parent suspects that his teen-ager is taking drugs, or is involved with drugs in any way, doesn't the parent have an obligation to go to all lengths to find out? And of course when the infringement of privacy is discovered, what is the answer then?

Please comment, Abby. There are a lot of worried parents out here. ONE OF THEM

DEAR ONE: There is a vast difference between a parent invading his teen-ager's privacy in order to read his mail or diary, and in attempting to learn whether or not his child is involved with drugs.

Involvement with drugs can make the difference between life and death. Parents have a right to learn as much as they can, by whatever means possible. God will forgive them. And so will their children, eventually.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

First Baptist Ladies Give Home Missions Program

"Expect great things from God; attempt great things for God" was the theme of the Day of Prayer for Home Missions program presented at the First Baptist Church, Wednesday, under the direction of Mrs. Win Cates, activity chairman.

Mrs. George Henderson, WMU director, called for objects of special prayer, and Mrs. E.L. Anderson led the opening prayer.

The first topic, "Preparing for Missions," which outlined the work of associational superintendents of missions in securing property, enlisting pastors and other leaders, and planning programs of work in the pioneer areas, was presented by Mrs. James Kirkwood, Mrs. M.W. Horn, Mrs. Leon Ward, Mrs. Bob Mons, Mrs. Fred Epperly, and Mrs. Bill Greer, all members of the Roundtable Group.

Those present then divided into small groups for discussion of needs and for prayer.

"Ministering to Human Needs" was discussed by members of Mrs. Louis Tarpley's Bible study group. Mrs. Lee Moore discussed the chaplaincy, week-day ministries, adult education programs, student centers, and migrant ministry in Georgia, New York, and California, Mrs. Sam Waters, work of the Sellers Home and Adoption Center and the Baptist Rescue Mission in New Orleans; Mrs. D.W. Osborne, work with alcoholics and prisoners in North Carolina; Mrs. Brady Davis, community-related Christian services in Puerto Rico; and Mrs. Ed Schneider, week-day ministries in Ohio.

The Mission study group, led by Mrs. Alfred Cross, presented "Crossing Cultural Barriers." Miss Claudia Everly told of the work with Spanish-speaking people in New England and a new mission effort at King Salmon, Alaska; Mrs. L.V. Hopp of the mission work with the Japanese in California and the Italians in Pennsylvania; Mrs. A.N. King, the day camp programs and youth revivals among the Choctaw Indians; Mrs. Ed Railsback, and educational program for the Navajo Indians in Utah; Mrs. E.L. Anderson, the Panama Baptist Theological

ESA International Plans Benefit Dance Saturday

Kappa Alpha Chapter of Epsilon Sigma International helps sponsor three special events during the year to finance research and patient service for Muscular Dystrophy patients. The third annual event, the Benefit Dance will start at 9 p.m. Saturday, at the St. Vincent School.

This is the fourth year the chapter has sponsored a dance, with all proceeds being used for MD. Last year's dance profits contributed to MD were $710.

Irv Arsk will provide music for the dance, according to Mrs. Bob Yost, dance chairman. Tickets are being sold in advance by ESA members, Mmes. Maxine Dunham, Ray Floyd, Charles Browder, Alvin Bicknell, Floyd Vaughn, Ed Bailey, Jerry Woodridge, Jerry Thompson Norman Sublett, Tommy Sells, Joel Plunk, Joe Miller, Milton Jones, Irvin Hungerford, Horace Henley, Jerry Dennis, Hunter Chisum, Ira Bewley and Fern Berry.

Members collected $1,500 on the annual MDAA Drive and $1,800 from Pampa on the Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon. Pampa is a member of the Greater Plains Chapter of MDAA, which has 12 Texas counties including Carson, Collinsworth, Donley, Gray, Hansford, Hemphill, Hutchinson, Lipscomb, Ochiltree, Roberts, Wheeler, and Armstrong, and two Oklahoma counties, which are Texas and Beaver counties.

Patients in the Greater Plains Chapter live in Pampa, Spearman, Gruver, Stinnett, Memphis, Darrouzett, Hooker, Okla, Guyman, Okla. and Clarendon.

All MD patients are offered the flu shots given annually by their physicians and are provided with braces, wheel chairs, lifts, and other aids prescribed by physicians of MD patients.

Of the money collected for MD, 75 per cent is sent to New York City to the national headquarters for research and 25 per cent is retained for the local chapter.

The Greater Plains Chapter is also assisted by area young people, who in Pampa, handle the annual "Shamrocks for Dystrophy." Chairman is Miss Marianne Green, assisted by Miss Brenda Scott. These girls, along with many other Pampa and area young people, helped with the summer camps provided for MD patients.

This year the summer Camp will be held at Camp Wigwam near Amarillo, and will provide such activities as swimming, fishing, boating, rifle range, arts and crafts, horseback riding, archery, and ball games. Each patient has an attendant, chosen thru personal interview by the area district director, Mrs. Joyce White of Lubbock. Many MD chapters support a clinical facility. There are currently 100 clinics throughout the United States. The Greater Plains Chapter helps to support and sponsor one in Lubbock, where the MD patient receives a six-months checkup on the progress of the disease. The Pampa MD chapter pays travel expenses and the cost of the visit to the clinic.

American History Outlined For Club

"Famous Personalities of American History" was the program presented by Mrs. Dudley Steele at the recent meeting of the Preceptor chapter of Beta Sigma Phi, in the home of Mrs. Cletus Mitchell, 526 N. Gray.

Mrs. Steele emphasized patriotism, and gave "thumbnail sketches" of famous Americans. One sketch was on Paul Revere, which she ended by reading parts of Longfellow's poem on Revere's famous ride, taken from "Tales of a Wayside Inn."

Others Mrs. Steele mentioned were Lighthorse Harry Lee, the father of Robert E. Lee; James Madison, Dolly Madison, James Monroe, Thomas Jefferson, George Washington and Andrew Jackson.

Mrs. Steele traced the troubled times of the young United States from the Revolutionary War through the War of 1812, emphasizing the debt owed to all of our soldiers and patriots who fought then and those serving our country today.

Officials Discuss Education

"An Assortment of Views and Ideas in Public Education" was the program presented by Warren Hasse, school board president, and Dr. James Malone, school superintendent, at the recent meeting of El Progreso Club in the home of Mrs. Quentin Williams, 2011 Christine.

Hasse stated there are many problems presented to a school board, but its main job is to give the best education for the least amount of money.

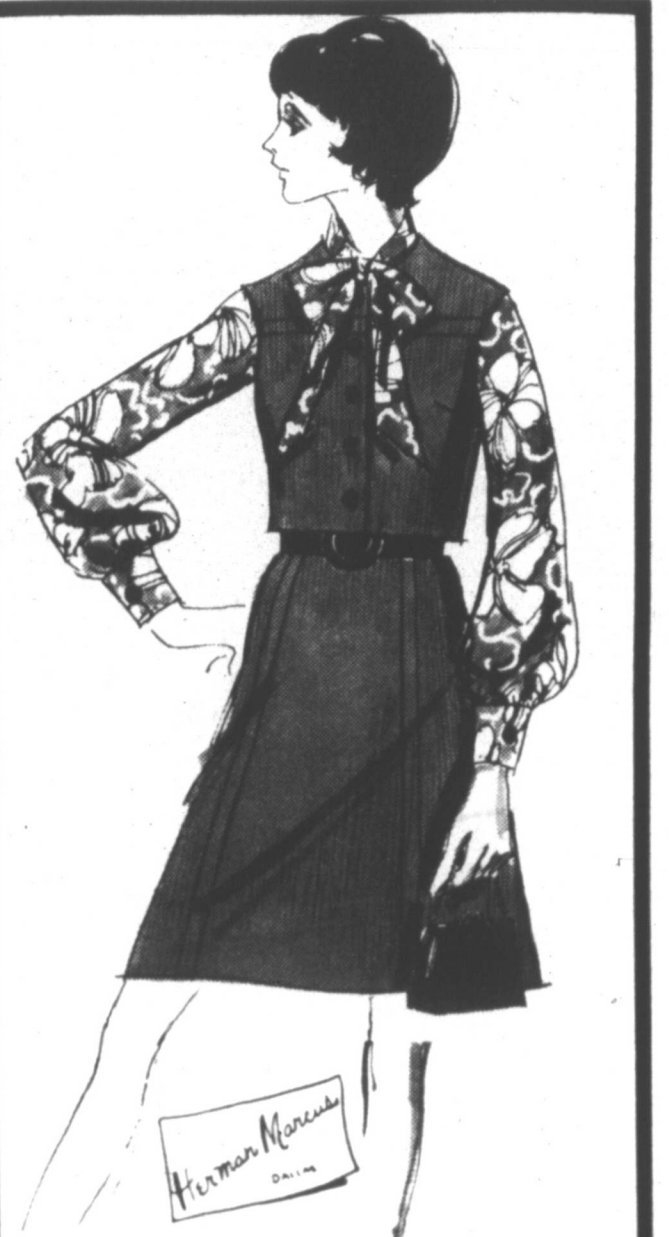

He explained there will be 5,000 less pupils in Pampa schools next year.

Dr. Malone said education must, can and will be improved, with effective curriculum programs as an important factor. He discussed cafeterias, transportation, maintenance, middle schools and vocational schools.

The program was introduced by Mrs. Roy McMillen. Next meeting will be at 2 p.m. March 28, with Mrs. D. V. Burton, 811 N. Russell.

Present were Mmes. J. F. Curtis, Glenn Dawkins, O. K. Gaylor, R. A. Keagy, Charles Lanehart, J. F. Malone, Roy McMillen, J. G. Morrison, Tom Perkins, Glenn Radcliff and Quentin Williams.

Quotes Quotable

By Associated Press

Some quotable quotes from women during the week:

"If somebody did something silly, or if some world leader told her something personal or private, she never repeats it. That's why she always makes friends. You have to respect her for it. She could write a book about all the unbelievable things that have happened." —Julie Eisenhower, speaking of her mother, Pat Nixon, who celebrated her 60th birthday.

"It's true that my husband and I are not renewing our option this year by mutual consent." —Wilma Scott Heide, president of the National Organization for Women, getting a divorce from her husband after 20 years of marriage.

"No opera singer is a great actress, let's face it." —Opera star Joan Sutherland, in an interview.

BRAZIL--The Girl Scout 60th anniversary celebration in the form of an International Festival, held recently in the Borger Dome by the Quivira Council, included five to 10 minutes skits by various troops on songs, dances and games of different countries. Shown doing a Brazilian dance are, left to right, Vicki Luke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E.D. Luke, Pampa; Janis Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H.J. Johnson of Pampa; and Phyllis Reynolds, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Reynolds of Pampa.

Girl Scouts Celebrate Sixtieth Anniversary

Girl Scouts of the USA celebrated its 60th anniversary last week and the 10-county Quivira Council commemorated the event with an International Festival in the Borger Dome. More than 1,600 people attended the all-day event.

Each troop that participated in the festival represented a different country and set up displays depicting their country. Demonstrations of crafts of various countries was part of the festival activities, and each troop participated in the festival program, giving a skit on the songs, games, dances, customs or history of the country.

Quivira Girl Scout Council's International Festival was planned to allow the girls to learn about the customs, crafts and Girl Scouting around the world," explained Miss Celia Fowler of Pampa, executive director. "The Festival gave the girls the opportunity to share their new knowledge and skills with their families, friends and other Girl Scouts. International friendship is a basic concept of Girl Scouting and was very appropriate for this celebration."

Festival coordinator was Mrs. Larry Nash of Borger.

Troops from Pampa who participated, and their leaders, were Troop 2, Mrs. Richard Stowers; Troop 3, Mrs. Jerry Carter; Troop 4, Mrs. T. M. Whiteley; Troop 8, Mrs. J. T. Rogers; Troop 17, Mrs. Lee Foxworthy; Troop 24, Mrs. Dale Largent; Troop 30, Mrs. Eugene Turner; Troop 41, Mrs. Eschol Jackson; Troop 60, Mrs. Wiley Reynolds Jr.; Troop 75-87, Mrs. Jerry Thompson; Troop 77, Mrs. J. W. Gist; Troop 83, Mrs. Walter Hill; Troop 89, Mrs. Donald Gandy; Troop 90, Mrs. Jack Scott; Troop 92, Mrs. Wesley Brock; Troop 91, Mrs. James Moses; Troop 107, Mrs. Robert Craig; Troop 108, Mrs. J. D. Ray; Troop 119, Mrs. Frank Stolfa Jr.; Troop 144, Mrs. Charles Albus; Troop 170, Mrs. Kenneth Mumford; Troop 206, Mrs. Leo Rhoten; Troop 20, Miss Cathie Deist; Troop 61, Mrs. Wayne Jones; Troop 69, Mrs. W. R. Cates; and Troop 115, Mrs. Alvin Alexander.

The Quivira Council is a United Fund Agency.

ANNIVERSARY CAKE--Senior Scouts Nia White, left, and Patrice White admire the replica of an anniversary cake their troop prepared for the 60th anniversary of Girl Scouting, celebrated with an International Festival in Borger recently. Members of Troop 2, the girls are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Frank White of Pampa.

History Of First Ladies Told To DAR Members

Mrs. W.S. Dixon, regent, presided at the recent meeting of Las Pampas chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

The invocation, given by Mrs. Twila Daugherty, chaplain, stressed the need for peace, and Mrs. Dixon led the pledge to the flag, and the "American's Creed."

Mrs. L.A. Barns gave the defense committee reports from the national society, telling of the increasing pressures upon our government to relinquish our interest in the Panama Canal Zone.

"The United States bought the Canal Zone and built the canal," she pointed out. "It has a perpetual legal right to the Zone. There is no sound logic in the proposition that it be given up unless it is logic of interests contrary to those of the United States."

Mrs. J.B. White, vice regent, assisted Mrs. Daugherty in presenting the program of slides on the dresses of America's first ladies, as displayed in the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, D.C.

During her narration, Mrs. Daugherty told of the history in the progress of a nation and the part the first ladies played in that history.

"Some of the wives were overwhelmed by their timidity, while others used this chance to prove their greatness," she explained.

She traced the life of each first lady and how she rose to the occasion of entertaining heads of state, kings and queens, in the famous mansion which has come to be known as the "White House" and which is the official home of the President and his family.

The program was concluded with a picture of the present first lady, Mrs. Pat Nixon.

Mrs. Katie Windsor was welcomed as a guest.

Members present were Mrs. Doyle Osborne, Gerald Harris Jr., J.B. White, Twila Daugherty, W.S. Dixon, L.A. Barns, J.V. Young Sr., Walter C. Whatley, Turner Kirby, E.L. Norman, John Skelly Jr., John McKeeney, A.D. Hills, all of Pampa; and Lou Ella Patterson of Canyon.

Betty Canary

By BETTY CANARY

You know now it goes. You meet your husband and some friends for lunch. He opens the door of the restaurant for you and the conversation is, from that point on, about women's liberation.

As you walk through the door your friend Ellen says in an amused voice, "And I thought you were for women's lib!"

You can't deny it, of course. You're the one who always comes on with the monologues about equal pay and equal fringe benefits. And, you certainly can't deny that your husband opened the door for you. You can't pretend you couldn't have opened that door all by your healthy, energetic self-your arms aren't in slings and you're not burdened down with packages. So you're left with your only excuse--he likes doing it and you like having it done for you.

It always happens to me when I go out in the wintertime and shovel the snow off our walk. A neighbor always turns up in order to tell me, "That's where women's lib gets you!"

Personally, I don't feel that by shoveling snow I'm demonstrating liberation from the housewife's "demeaning, shuffling subservient role." I don't think it makes me equal with anybody. And I can never equate being liberated with taking on hard work.

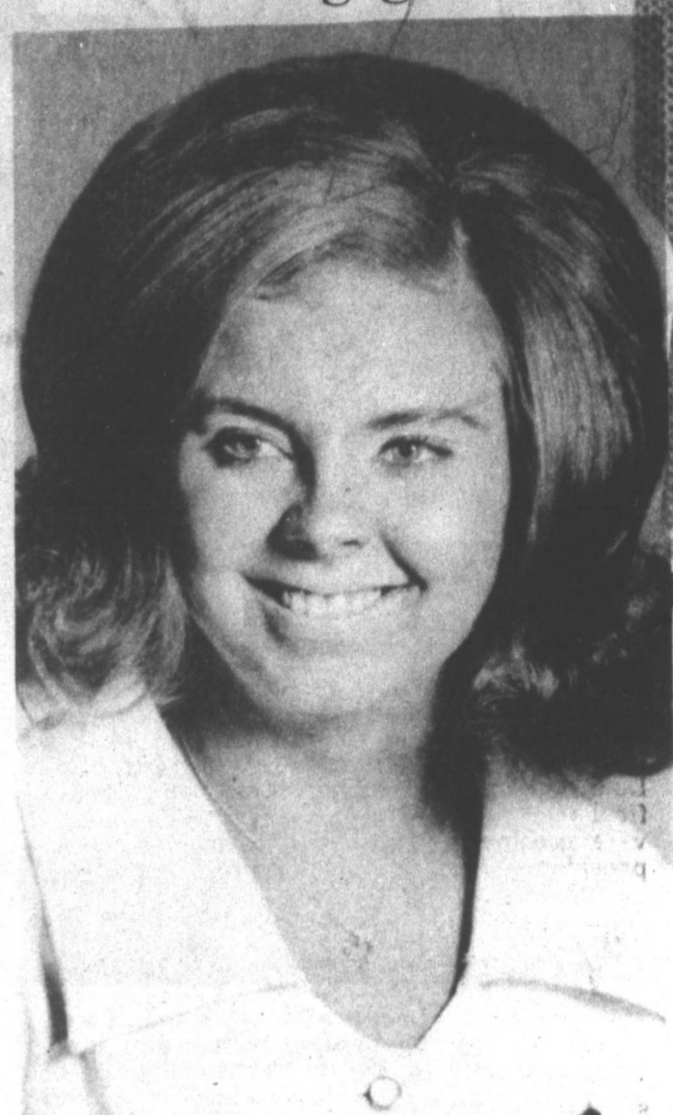

I shovel snow because (gasp!) I really like to shovel snow. My husband happens to be liberated from shoveling it because one thing he loathes in life is shoveling snow. He doesn't have a bad back or a tricky heart. He simply and quite openly hates the job. And, if it came to that, I'd take on this typical "man's job" just for that reason alone.

At our house it would all even out. Because, he happens to be a gourmet cook and probably prepares more dinners than I.

Getting out from behind that traditional block of so-called women's work and men's work is perhaps difficult when you're over 30, but, once you've struggled out of the cocoon, you can enjoy flapping your wings.

A woman can even fix her husband coffee and carry it to him without having an attack of the grovels.

Your Horoscope

SUNDAY, MARCH 19
Your birthday today: Brings subtle challenges in which you see something to do if you are sensitive enough, or may not notice if you don't aim to become a more spiritual being. You can't miss the message this year of strivings, adventures, occasional dramatic turns. Today's natives see more than they talk about, are interested in a wide range of unrelated specialized subjects.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Almost anything you do results in some minor inconvenience. Your share in the community expression of faith counts this weekend.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: You can put together a unique pattern of potential value. A gentlemen's agreement near the surface could be very interesting.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Creative enterprises flourish. Many personal secrets are out and no longer bring stress. Bring out the best in people with your lively curiosity.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Prayer opens special doors for transcending limitations of the moment. True friends accept your quiet mood, and you can safely neglect those who don't.

MONDAY, MARCH 20
Your birthday today: There is less excuse for self-indulgence, egoism as the year wears on; much more is gained by efforts to mature. Personal relationships become clearer, bring hard choices—people must be accepted or rejected because of what they are rather than for qualities you happen to prefer. Today's natives tend to be visionary.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Today is a kaleidoscope of short spurts of action in diverse directions for differing reasons, stories from all sides, no two alike, but all true.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: See where you can save time and effort. Business and selling tend to hit pay-dirt. Early diligence and persistence bring results.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Go ahead with creative ventures, anything that puts yourself in a brighter light. Gather friends for a happy event.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Go on with yesterday's activities with as little change as possible; there is yet much to do along the same lines.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Make it a quiet day. Share a tale of bygone days. Catch up on small promises, return borrowed books, etc.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Revise business affairs to ress of projects involving your interests.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Review your plans and budgets. You might find an imbalance that needs correcting. Stay out of the social limelight if you can.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Self-improvement is accessible with little stress, promises lasting gains. Later hours are livelier, filled with people.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Take a good look at what you're trying to do. Give your unconscious the serenity in which to redevelop an approach to life.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Begin with all available resources, make it a good-humored, expansive sort of day. Spend a quiet evening at home with a few friends.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: If you will only attend to what is at hand, thoroughly, the rest of the questions and issues fall into place without stress.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: The lesser pursuits, hobbies, are there for your pleasure. Younger people need your opinions, expression of your true feelings for them.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Try to include everybody in your plans, with particular attention to older people. They may come up with minor surprises, last minute changes of mind.

shorten work procedures. Housecleaning produces space for new equipment, an interesting gift, or breathing space for its own sake.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: News from distant people offers fascination. You may have to cope with two sorts of demands at once, postpone what you'd hoped to work out.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Money and papers about its disposition come to attention. Keep adequate records of whatever you transfer or receive, as further rearrangements are indicated.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Listen rather than talk. You not only save yourself embarrassment, but can watch others reveal themselves unconsciously.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Start campaigning for efficiency, economy of means as well as money, two-birds-with-the-same-stone approach. Link diverse interests in a group effort.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Encourage intrigue or romantic appeal wherever you find it. Compliments cost nothing, are constructive far beyond your own concerns if true and modestly stated.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: A bright idea may be difficult to promote but is worth the effort. Round up endorsement from older family, social connections.

Mr. and Mrs. William D. McKendree, 612 Lefors, announce the engagement of their daughter, Deborah Ann, to James D. Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie T. Moore of Miami. Vows will be exchanged May 26, in the First United Methodist Church of Pampa. The bride-elect is a senior student at West Texas State University, majoring in elementary education. She is a member of Gamma Sigma Sigma, service sorority. The Prospective bridegroom is a senior student at WTSU, majoring in management science.

Kadingo Lingo By Jane Kadingo

IT'S HARD TO BELIEVE this spring-like weather I mean. I keep expecting a prediction of snow every evening, but the warm weather remains. What I am afraid of is that winter will return in April!

Speaking of snow and the like I read an article recently that revealed that "every winter" Michigan Technological University at Houghton flew pre-packaged snow balls to San Marcos, Texas, so the students at Southwest Texas State University can have a snowball fight.

Houghton, which is on the tip of a peninsula that extends out into Lake Superior, has an annual snowfall of 200 to 250 inches, which is about 21 feet. The article caught my eye because that is the part of Michigan from which I migrated to Pampa 18 years ago, although I lived further South. My brother graduated from Michigan Tech I can remember him telling me how the snow would get so deep the trees would brush off your hat. I always thought they were something like the Paul Bunyan tales. He may have been right!

Although I still miss the trees and lakes of Michigan, I'll think of all that snow while I'm basking in Pampa's sunshine. NO ONE HAS come forth with an answer to my question on how horseradish got its name...in other words, why is horseradish called horseradish?

This week the Kadingo family is struggling with another weighty question—do ducks have ears? or with what do ducks hear? This all came about when we acquired two ducklings, named Blondie and Blossom. We purchased Blondie first...or, I should say, Mother succumbed to John's pleadings for a duck, but mother could not stand poor Blondie's miserable chirp (there is a difference in the sounds they make)...so we made another trip to the variety store to purchase a companion. Now Blondie, and Blossom, chirp cheerfully. My advice to would-be-duck-owners, based upon experience, is "buy two."

I thought the second duck ought to be named Dagwood, but the children decided, since it is smaller and of a lighter color, it must be a girl, so they hit upon "Blossom."

Sideline: Nicita, as she gaily skipped past me, "Blondie is a boy and Blossom is a girl. I can hardly wait until we have ducklings!" Her mother muttered something about not sharing her enthusiasm.

Kadingo and I tried to carry on a conversation above the chirping, or cheeping, of the ducklings, he muttered, "I wonder when they begin to quack."

So, we have two questions this week. How does a duck hear—and when does a duckling begin to quack?

I would ask my mentors at the Pampa News, but I lost confidence in them when I asked if they knew the names of the Danish royal family. Their reply, "Sure, cinnamon, blueberry, cherry..." Left a lot to be desired!

NO ONE STAYS SLEEPY very long if they eat breakfast at a local doughnut shop. Owner Dan Michael, with a bright, cheery smile, gets "the wheels turning" in everyone's head by greeting people with a "topic of the day" or a "question of the day." Earlier this year, he had us going on "what is a google?" I was delighted when he told me the answer—it's the numeral 1, with 100 zeros behind it, which Mr. Michael thought, for a while, was the largest number there is. However, another customer enlightened him to the fact there is a larger number, a "zillion", which is the numeral 6, with 100 zeros.

This week, he had the mathematically-inclined diligently working on this problem. "How many seconds would it take you to go one mile at 90 miles an hour?" When I find out the answer, I'll let you know. One of my Pampa News mentors insists the answer is 40. Not being very expert at math myself, I'll have to seek an expert opinion somewhere.

WHY DON'T THEY have a student rate at the movie theater? At the magic age of twelve, a child must then pay more than double the price of a ticket to see a movie. The high school has a student rate for everything; the Community Concert Association has a student rate for its tickets; and so do many other groups.

A student rate would make it easier for a junior high and high school boy to take a date to the movie...parents would let their over-twelve offspring attend more often...and perhaps there would be greater attendance at the movies!

This is purely a personal opinion, but I think there should be a 75 cent or 85 cent student rate for those between 12 and 16 years of age. Again, like the question of the panty hose, if enough people would demand it, we might get this service.

It's all a matter of caring enough to do something about it.

Canadian Man To Head McMurry College Board

JIM WATERFIELD

ABILENE—James B. (Jim) Waterfield of Canadian was elected new board chairman by McMurry College Trustees in their spring meeting here Friday (March 17).

The Canadian rancher will succeed W. B. (Dub) Rushing of Lubbock who has held the chairmanship since 1968. Waterfield has been on the McMurry Board of Trustees the past two years.

Waterfield, 37, is a native of Canadian and graduated from high school there. He added a bachelor of science degree in business from Oklahoma State University in 1956.

He and his wife, the former Sandra Wilkinson, have a son, Rick, 14, and two daughters, Tracey, 12, and Cindy, 10.

Waterfield is an active Methodist, according to the Rev. Howard D. Quitt, pastor of Canadian's First United Methodist Church.

At present Waterfield is serving the local church as finance committee chairman, Council of Ministries chairman, and assistant Sunday School teacher for the adult class.

He is past chairman of the church Administrative Board, past Charge Lay Reader and past teacher and counselor of the Youth Department.

Elsewhere Waterfield is a member of the Conference of Social Concerns Commission, a district commissioner for the Methodist Home in Waco and a member of the Board of Directors of the Ed Robb Evangelistic Assn.

In civic affairs he is a member of the Hemphill County School Board and a member of the Roberts County Soil Conservation Board.

Waterfield is a member and past president of the Canadian Rotary Club as well as member and past vice president of the Chamber of Commerce there.

He is president of the board of the Canadian Grain Cooperative and is on the board of directors of the First State Bank of Canadian.

As new McMurry Board chairman Waterfield will take office June 1.

McMurry College is owned by the United Methodist Conferences of North West Texas and New Mexico.

State Education Board OK's 3 Special Projects

AUSTIN—Three projects designed to speed total statewide adoption of the Texas Comprehensive Special Education Program by 1976 were approved Saturday (March 11) by the State of Education.

The projects, funded by $228,191 in federal funds allocated by the U. S. Office of Education, will focus on detailed briefing sessions for teachers and other professionals, new ways of teaching students with learning disabilities, and physical education for the handicapped.

All are part of the new State Plan for Special Education enacted by the 61st Texas Legislature in 1969.

The six-month statewide inservice series of workshops will give some 870 teachers, administrators, and others an in-depth look at the plan, what it does for children, how it has worked in the 63 pilot program schools during past two years, and how it can be expanded into another 111 school districts beginning September 1, 1972.

When the 1972-73 school year begins in September, we'll have more than 64,000 special education students involved in some part of the new comprehensive effort.

Don Weston, Texas Education Agency special education director of program planning, points out.

"We need to know how the program has worked during the last two years in the pilot schools, what we need to change, and how we can do more to help all school professionals understand this new approach to teaching the special education student."

The workshops, scheduled to start in late March and continue through mid-May, will be supported by a $163,417 grant to include the cost of travel, materials, and special consultants.

The second project, a cooperative effort by the Texas Education Agency, Education Service Center Region XII in Waco, and the Corsicana Independent School District, will develop programs designed specifically to aid 15-year-olds with language and/or learning disabilities.

Specialists from the three agencies will work with 125 Corsicana students who may vary considerably in intelligence—yet be unable to read, write, spell, or solve mathematical problems.

"Many of these youngsters are bright," Weston points out. "Yet, they simply cannot understand a simple paragraph of words on paper. There is a blockage of some sort in their makeup. And if we can't correct it, we have to find a way around it and teach them in some other way."

This $59,774 project will continue from March through August, 1972. Specialists from Austin, Waco, and Corsicana will make a close study of the needs and abilities of about 125 students, then develop some 15 different learning programs designed specifically to cope with their problems.

The third project, design and development of model programs for physically handicapped elementary and secondary students, have been approved earlier for the Richardson, Jasper, and Harlandale (San Antonio) school districts. Board action Saturday added $5,000 to the original $30,000 grant.

Notre Dame Concert Band To Visit Area

AMARILLO — When the University of Notre Dame Concert Band appears in Amarillo, at the Civic Center Auditorium at 8 p.m. Tuesday, April 4, the audience will hear the musical form that most critics and educators alike agree is the fastest rising medium of instrumental expression.

Many experts feel concert bands have already reached an equal footing with symphony orchestras in degree of popularity, and that the concert band is now in the process of originating a form of musical expression all its own.

Concert bands, in the not too distant past, attempted to imitate symphony orchestras in the style of music presented. Today, however, more and more serious compositions are being written for the band alone. Composers of band literature have recognized that the range of musical expression of the concert band is potentially as great as that of the orchestra.

With the variety of brasses, woodwind and percussion instruments in the concert band, new and interesting effects are possible. Many of them will be presented in the Notre Dame Band concert here on April 4.

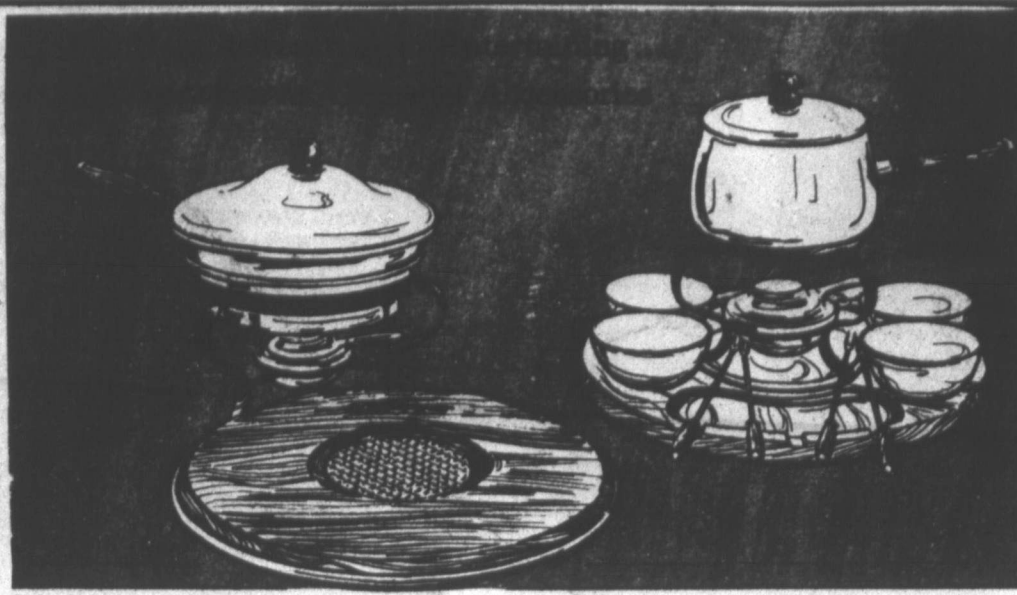

The Notre Dame Concert Band is composed of students selected by audition at the end of the football season. Most of the successful candidates were soloists in high school.

For the concert to be presented by the Notre Dame Band, tickets are priced at $2., $1.50 and $1. All seats are reserved. They may be purchased at Alamo High School, Chamber of Commerce, Hastings, or Sears

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Former U.N. Secretary-General U Thant is the first recipient of the Ralph J. Bunche Award, presented to "the world citizen who best exemplifies the spirit and ideals" of the late diplomat.

Thant said he was "deeply touched" by the award presented Thursday by the University of California at Los Angeles Alumni Association. Bunche, who won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1950, graduated from UCLA in 1927 and died last Dec. 9. He had served as undersecretary general of the United Nations.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department says Jordan's King Hussein plans a visit to Washington soon, but that dates and arrangements have not been completed.

Hussein will meet with President Nixon and other members of the administration informally during his visit, the department said Thursday.

Among the topics may be Hussein's recent proposal to transform his kingdom into a federated state which would include an autonomous region of Palestinian living on the Israeli-occupied West Bank of the Jordan River.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor John Drew Barrymore faces a preliminary hearing March 24 following arraignment on a charge of possessing marijuana.

Barrymore, 37, appeared before Municipal Court Judge Noel B. Cannon on Thursday with codefendant Stewart Rice, 31.

They were arrested March 10 by police answering a silent alarm at the Producers Studio in Hollywood. Officers found Barrymore and Rice inside an office where a "green leafy" substance tentatively identified as marijuana also was discovered.

NEW YORK (AP) — Gregg Morris, "Mission: Impossible's" electronics wizard since its beginnings six years ago, returned to the East Coast the other day for a short visit before returning to his screw drivers and wire snippers for a seventh year of trapping villains.

Gregg has found his role of Barney Vollier opening all sorts of show business doors which are closed to newcomers. He has played more than 30 roles in films and guest shots on other TV series and even turned out a record album.

"But I seem to be turned on by kids," he said. "The thing I really enjoy is working with them and for them."

Married and with three youngsters of his own ranging from 10 to 15, Morris is forever cutting out of Hollywood for cerebral palsy telethons, hospital visits or trips to schools—preferably in deprived sections, to sit down for rap sessions with students.

Some of his concern for young people probably stems from his own peripatetic upbringing. Born in Cleveland, he lost his father when he was young, and traveled around the country as his mother's jobs changed. He lived in New York's Harlem, Poughkeepsie, went back to Cleveland. He says that as a lonely 15-year-old he was introspective and even then beginning to live by a code of what he calls "introspective egoism"—belief in himself.

mett Fox say "God is within me and therefore I am." Morris explained. "It was one of those things that instantly made complete sense and it changed everything for me. After that I always believed that somewhere there would be success for me."

A handsome, tall man, Morris also knows that luck has played a part in his success as a performer. After working his way through Ohio State and the University of Iowa, he got a part in a West Coast company of "A Raisin in the Sun." He hit Hollywood in 1961 and never left. Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1920, the U.S. Senate rejected the Versailles Treaty providing for a League of Nations. The action set the tone for a decade of U.S. isolationist policy.

On this date:
In 1628, the English founded the Massachusetts Colony.
In 1808, King Charles IV of Spain abdicated.
In 1913, the first territorial legislature of Alaska granted suffrage to women.
In 1917, the U.S. Supreme Court upheld a law reducing the working day of all railroad workers to eight hours.

Five years ago: North Vietnam said it would not agree to peace talks unless the United States gave up what Hanoi called the U.S. policy of aggression in Vietnam.
One year ago: At least 160 persons were killed in landslides north of Sao Paulo, Brazil.

Definition Lacking

As can be expected in an election year, the term "unemployment" will be tossed around wildly during the next several months, with the Democrats exaggerating it and the Republicans minimizing it—both for political purposes.

At the same time other politicians will be howling about either the abuses or deficiencies of the welfare system.

One could quickly get the notion that at least some of these people do not have the foggiest understanding of the subjects about which they are talking. Indeed, "unemployment" may be among the most misunderstood words in the language.

Although there is considerable question about the accuracy of the government's figures, latest reports show total unemployment in the United States to be hovering at or slightly below 6 per cent of the nation's work force.

At the same time, however, more Americans than ever before have jobs. The number of persons holding jobs has climbed above 80.5 million for the first time in history, meaning that in the past five years the U.S. economy has produced almost eight million new jobs.

Why this paradox? How can there be high unemployment and record employment at the same time?

A recent analysis by the Wall Street Journal provides at least a partial answer. It was found that only 40 to 50 per cent of those listed as "unemployed" were jobless because they have been laid off.

Also included are, "in addition to many who have quit their jobs, many more who either have never worked before or have decided to look for a job again after having been out of the labor force for some time. In this group are many teen-agers and housewives."

The classic pattern was found to be that when a man was laid off his wife and often teen-age sons or daughters also went looking for work so that three or more persons would wind up listed as "unemployed" as the result of only one person losing his job.

This and similar circumstances have prompted many within the Nixon administration to suggest that the country actually is in a lot better shape than it might seem from merely looking at unemployment figures. They could be right.

While the official figure may be between 5.9 and 6 per cent, the actual total of prime wage earners out of work apparently falls somewhere between 2 and 3 per cent of the work force. And that's far short of the national crisis some chose to find in the American economy.

'Ms' Mean A Lot

"Ms" has been called an abbreviation in search of a word. Denigrators of women's liberation have pointed out that the letters are just a manufactured designation for a female person of unspecified marital status and don't really stand for anything.

That's not true, as quick dip into any dictionary will show, claims Don Oakley of Newspaper Enterprise Association.

MS or ms, variously capitalized or uncapitalized, stands for manuscript, for one thing. It also denotes a Master of Science. It's a millisecond. A machinery survey. Mail steamer. Main switch. Left hand (mano sinistra). Margin of safety. Master sergeant. Maximum stress. Mean square. Medium shot. Medium steel. Mild steel. Sacred to the memory (memoriae sacrum). Meters per second. Metric system. Minesweeper. Mint state. Morphine sulfate. Motor ship. Multiple sclerosis. It's also the plural of "M."

"Some of the above words have a definite women's liberation ring to them, like maximum stress and mild steel. And since little "ms" already carries such a heavy freight of meanings, only a mean square would object to one more—"Militant she" (with, definitely a capital M).

Byrd Amendment to Limit Term of Federal Judges to 8 Years

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — A wholly new concept is being projected into the intensifying nationwide fight against forced school busing.

The new proposal strikes directly at the crux of this complex and inflamed issue—the virtually unlimited power of Federal judges to issue sweeping busing edicts solely to "achieve a racial balance."

To curb that dictatorial power, Sen. Harry Byrd, Ind.-Va., would, in effect, put a limit on the terms of Federal judges by requiring them to be reconfirmed by the U.S. Senate every eight years. If denied such approval, they would be retired with full pay.

Citing the fact that every state in the union, except Massachusetts, requires the periodic reconfirmation of state judges, Byrd explains his Constitutional amendment and its urgent need as follows: "In recent years the Federal courts have assumed more and more power, power which under the Constitution was reserved to the executive, the legislature, the states and the people themselves. This misuse of power was not envisioned by the founders of this republic.

"It is time that we restored the balance in the government by making Federal judges more responsible to the people. It is time the judiciary be made, once more, a co-equal branch of the government, rather than the self-appointed supervisor of every aspect of our country's existence.

"The present system of lifetime appointment, whereby a judge is removable only by impeachment, is not in the best interest of the country. The process of removal by impeachment does not answer the problems presented by a judiciary which has established itself as a super legislature. Under my amendment, judges could serve for a term of eight years, at the end of which they would be automatically nominated for reconfirmation by the Senate. If reconfirmed by the Senate, they would continue to serve for another eight years.

"To maintain the financial independence of the judiciary, if a judge is not confirmed he would be retired at full pay."

Judicial Dictators

While the immediate impact of Sen. Byrd's far-reaching proposal centers on the stormy forced-busing controversy, it actually applies to the Federal judiciary's vastly encompassing role in the whole gamut of the nation's affairs.

This immeasurably increases the importance of and justification for the measure.

The Virginia lawmaker intends to seek early consideration of his amendment which he deems critically essential for the following reasons:

The Federal judiciary has perpetrated a "revolution" by regard for the other co-equal branches of the government.

Federal judges are substituting their own ideas of justice for rules of law, and "too often the hallmark of the modern court has been the voice of power, not the voice of reason."

In many instances, Federal judges have arrogantly assumed the "prerogatives of lords of the Middle Ages; nothing in our system exists to control these judges; their passions of the moment are totally unrestrained, even by the collective wisdom of fellow judges."

Such high-handed, willfulness is eroding respect for the law. Where once Federal courts acted with careful restraint and moderation, that era appears over. As a consequence, we now have a judiciary, which accountable to no one, has run amok in asserting its authority over the daily lives of all Americans.

The late famed Supreme Court Justices Holmes, Brandeis, Stone, Cordoza, Hughes and Frankfurter are cited by Byrd as foremost advocates of the policy of judicial self-restraint. Under their wise and far-sighted opinions and principles the Supreme Court enunciates several basic operating rules, as follows:

The court refused to pass on political questions; it deferred to state common law principles; it refused to enunciate Constitutional rulings, unless absolutely necessary; it refused to rule upon moot questions; it deferred to a state's interpretation of its own constitution and statutes; and it strictly interpreted the rules concerning "standing" to bring a law suit.

"But in recent years," says Byrd, "the Federal courts have ignored or discarded each of these wise doctrines. Now the courts, acting under the premise that the Constitution is whatever judges say it is, have plunged into what admirers like to call a 'revolution.' But as Justice Cordoza so wisely held, 'Justices are not commissioned to make and unmake rules at pleasure, in accordance with changing views of expediency or wisdom.'"

Judicial Busybodies

Indignantly, Sen. Byrd cites a number of glaring instances of autocratic meddling by Federal judges in local affairs.

"They have interfered with the operation of schools and universities," he asserts. "They have set forth detailed regulations for the administration of state penal facilities; they have dictated to local school boards, and in some areas have gone so far as to suggest that local government bodies make appropriations of money for projects which the judges feel are necessary.

Your Health

Reader Questions On Sedimentation

Dear Dr. Lamb—After a week of hospital tests for possible arthritis or rheumatism (negative) my doctor said my blood had a high sedimentation rate. What effect does this have on one's health and what can be done to lower it?

Dear Reader—The sedimentation rate is a very nonspecific test. If you put something in the blood to keep it from clotting, the red blood cells will gradually settle to the bottom of the tube. Hence, the term sedimentation rate. As the cells begin to settle, the clear fluid or plasma is left at the top of the tube. The reading on the sedimentation rate is read by the height of the column of clear fluid above the red cells that forms in one hour.

The cells fall or form a sediment more rapidly in the presence of infections. This can be anything from pneumonia to a prostate infection. The sedimentation rate is also increased in the presence of a recent heart attack, rheumatoid arthritis, rheumatic fever, and even in the presence of cancer.

The rate will actually change during the course of an illness and these changes are sometimes used in guiding the therapy. The test has been used to tell how soon patients could be gotten out of bed when they had rheumatic fever. As the rheumatic activity subsides, the sedimentation rate returns to normal and the patient can be allowed to get out of bed to resume more normal activity.

Treatment depends on the cause. If there is no evidence of disease or disability anywhere it might be ignored. Incidentally, sedimentation rates tend to be higher in women than in men.

Dear Dr. Lamb—Is there such a thing as a heart cough? I am recovering from open surgery for atrial septal defect. Some days are good and some aren't. My big problem is the cough. My doctor tells me I am no longer a cardiac patient.

Dear Reader—For the benefit of other readers, the atrial septal defect is a hole between the two upper chambers (atria) of the heart and it allows mixing of oxygenated (red) and unoxygenated (blue) blood. This is a birth defect of the heart. Surgeons correct this by closing the hole. Then circulation proceeds normally.

Yes, there is such a thing as a heart cough, but with successful surgery behind you it is unlikely that you have that problem. A person who has fluid in the lungs often has a cough.

You may have some irritation or inflammation of your lungs left over from the anesthetic and surgery plus the care you received after surgery. If this is the case it should gradually disappear.

THE PAMPA Community Concert Association's annual membership campaign was a bang-up success this year and wound up with a sell-out on Wednesday, two days ahead of schedule.

Nearly two-thirds of last season's members renewed and when the drive was opened to the public on the second week the remaining memberships went like hot cakes.

The concert association now has the largest membership in its 30-year history. The entire seating capacity of the new M.K. Brown Memorial Civic Auditorium was sold out. That gives the association approximately 400 more seats than were available in the Pampa Junior High School auditorium where the concerts have been held in the past. And, of course, that means 400 more members.

The overwhelming success of this year's drive was attributed to several factors. The new auditorium, of course, was one of the big reasons. Add to that the calibre of attractions booked for the 1972-73 season and the dedicated work of the 150 volunteer membership solicitors in Pampa and area towns.

Mrs. Marguerite Maddox, New York representative of Columbia Artists, Inc., who is booking agent for the concert, said the newspaper publicity didn't hurt any, either. Thank you, ma'am.

This year's membership campaign was directed by Dick Stowers and Mrs. Rex Rose.

electric power. "Naturally, the sirens would be out of commission if a tornado hit and knocked out the power," Wofford said.

"However," he added "sirens would not be very effective after a tornado has hit."

The alert sirens he said are designed to give Pampans advance warning of any tornadoes that might be hopping around the Texas Panhandle and would depend greatly on the alert bulletins and tornado watches issued by the U.S. Weather Bureau at Amarillo, and word from local tornado watchers and Citizens Band radio operators.

Sounding of the sirens, the city manager explained, would not necessarily mean that Pampa definitely was going to be blasted by a tornado.

Purpose of the alerts, he said, is to put people on notice there is the possibility of a tornado and to enable them to make preparations for safety.

AN UNUSUAL but worthy request arrived in the weekend mail. It's signed by Mrs. John Barlet, 704 Garden Ch. Rd., New Castle, Pa. 16101. It reads as follows:

"I am searching for persons who are afflicted with a rare disease called Scleroderma. I am one and would be most happy to hear from others. Please write to me. I am trying to reach a goal of contact with 1,000 victims.

"I want to do something for the Scleroderma cause. Through our letters we give each other a ray of hope and comfort.

"Scleroderma is a hidebound, crippling, painful disease which often affects the vital organs. The cause and cure are unknown." So, if you are a scleroderma victim, Mrs. Barlet would like to hear from you.

LET'S WIND it up with a little of this and that:

Statistical analysis gives a national average of 85 per cent accuracy for weather bureau forecasts—so how come so many of us live in an area covered by the 20 per cent possibility factor?...Back in 1899, the average worker received about 15.1 cents an hour, and right now as they make out their income tax, take, other taxes and bills, most figure they still don't make much more than that...We haven't exactly figured out what the man who came into the office last Thursday meant when he said Pampa is gradually turning into a Peyton Place...When we asked him point-blank what he meant, all he would say is that he had it on good authority that there were a lot of busy telephone lines in Pampa last week.

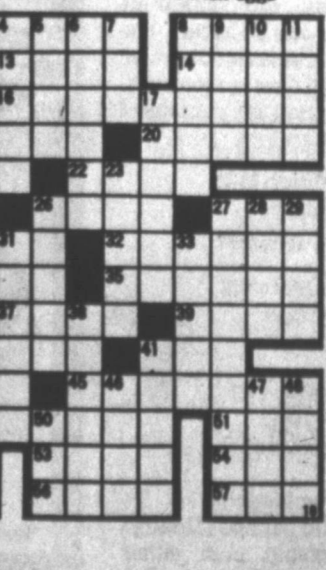

And I Quote

We have declared the first five years of a child's life to be a period of special and specific federal concern. — President Richard M. Nixon

Answer to Previous Puzzle

BERRY'S WORLD

As far as the success of Nixon's China trip is concerned—I guess I'm somewhere in between Bill Buckley and the zoo people!

Astronauts Get 'Living Bible'

The entire complement of 43 astronauts stationed at NASA in Houston have presented personalized, autographed copies of the recently published "Living Bible."

Translator of "The Living Bible," Kenneth N. Taylor, was invited to the Base to make the presentations by Apollo XV Lunar Module pilot, Colonel James B. Irwin. Colonel Irwin was the moon-man who during his lunar explorations in August of last year, carried his Bible with him to read while on the moon.

Taylor, the 54-year-old theologian who spent the last 16 years of his life translating (he calls it paraphrasing) the entire Bible into a contemporary, readable style, spent a day at the Astronaut Office Building in conversation with various astronauts as he made individual presentations of "The Living Bible." Taylor explained to several astronauts who asked, that he did his paraphrase of "The Living Bible" on a "thought-for-thought" basis, rather than on a "word-for-word" basis like other Bibles have been prepared. Taylor explains that the paraphrase style flows better, conveys the meaning clearer, and eliminates Greek and Hebrew grammar styles which are difficult for Americans to read.

Sales figures seem to bear Taylor out, as 1 3/4-million copies of "The Living Bible" have been sold since the book hit the market in September of last year. Another 1/2-million copies have been sold in England, the home of the popular King James translation.

Irwin became impressed with "The Living Bible" after being introduced to the Book by his minister, Dr. Bill Rittenhouse, pastor of the Nassau Bay Baptist Church, located just off the NASA Base. Rittenhouse suggested that "The Living Bible" would be ideal for the Irwin family's evening devotions at home. The astronaut's four children responded favorably to "The Living Bible", prompting Irwin to invite Taylor to give copies of the new publication to his 42 contemporaries in the space program.

Although Irwin will be ground bound during the upcoming Apollo XVI space shot, he will play a most important role in the program. He has been designated CAPCOM (capsule communicator) for the flight, and all communications from ground to capsule, and from capsule to ground, will be routed through Colonel Irwin. It will be Colonel Irwin's voice that television and radio listeners will hear when communications between the capsule and ground are broadcast to the public.

It was appropriate that Irwin instigate the Bible presentations, as he is a sincere and dedicated student of the Bible.

Lutheran Series To Continue

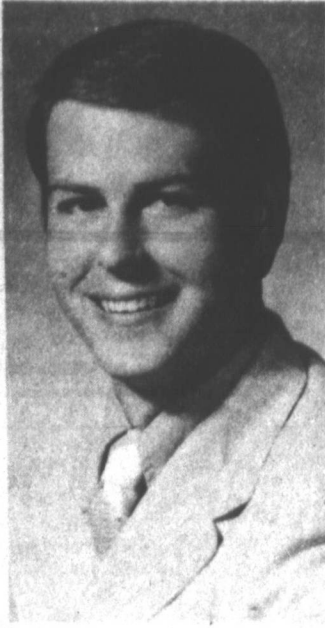

Continuing with the series of sermons on Bible personalities, the Rev. M. G. Herring, Zion Lutheran Church, will discuss Barabbas in his sermon Sunday at 11 a.m. under the theme, "The People's Choice."

The organist will be Mrs. Harris Brinson. Sunday School and Bible classes for all ages begins at 9:45 a.m.

The second year junior confirmation class meets Tuesday at 4:15 p.m. with the first year class meeting Thursday at 4 p.m.

Rev. Herring will continue with the series of Lenten meditations Wednesday at 7 p.m., as he presents a sermon on the theme, "Behold the Lamb of God and the Pure in Heart."

Visitors and guests are always welcome at the Worship Services at Zion Lutheran Church.

Royce Thornal

Hobart St. Continues Services

revival services are continuing this week at Hobart Street Baptist Church with the Rev. Ronald Mooney, pastor and Royce Thornal, singing evangelist.

Thornal will be in these services through Sunday night and the congregation invites everyone to hear him.

Several activities have been planned for the weekend including a youth night set for Friday evening. There will be a fellowship period after church for the young people.

Saturday night has been designated "old-fashioned" night. A catered barbeque will be served beginning at 6 p.m. There will be a charge. Old-fashioned clothes are to be the order of the evening, too.

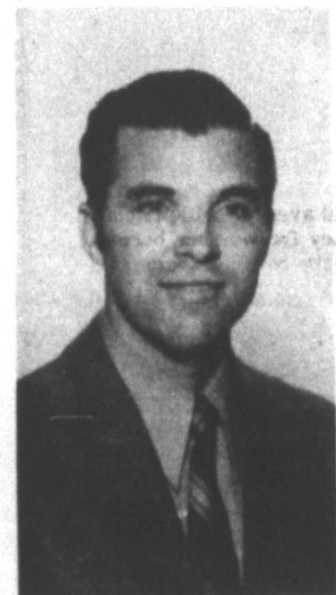

Following the meal, Thornal will bring a sermon in song. Services start each evening at 7:30. Sunday school will be at 9:45 a.m. with worship services at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Christian Science Lesson

What are the demands of God-given freedom? This question will be considered Sunday at Christian Science church services in a Lesson-Sermon entitled "Matter."

"All nature teaches God's love to man, but man cannot love God supremely and set his whole affections on spiritual things, while loving the material or trusting in it more than in the spiritual," a citation to be read from Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy states.

Texts to be read from the Bible include this one from Galatians: "Brethren, ye have been called into liberty; only use not liberty for an occasion to the flesh, but by love serve one another."

Ralph Hagemeyer

Missionary To Speak At Church

Missionary Ralph Hagemeyer will be at the Lamar Full Gospel Assembly at 7 p.m. Wednesday. Hagemeyer with his wife, Shirley and daughters, Stephanie (9) and Melody (7), have returned from Tanzania, East Africa, where they served as missionaries four years. They plan to go for another four-year term this year (1972).

In Tanzania, Hagemeyer served as assistant superintendent of the National church organization as well as chairman of the missionary fellowship of the Assemblies of God. The Hagemeyers were engaged in a variety of work while in Tanzania: he taught in two Bible Schools in the north and south as well as having monthly Bible Courses for one week in the central plains of Tanzania where they lived. Also there were youth camps, church building, establishing a church in Dodoma, assisting the local presbytery and committeemen in their work, and building a classroom for more training. Mrs. Hagemeyer prepared Sunday School quarterlies, tracts, and Bible School notes on the Vari-typer.

Hagemeyer will be showing slides of their work in Tanzania as well as others of the country, animals, and others.

Rev. and Mrs. Hagemeyer are both graduates of Southwestern Assemblies of God College in Waxahachi, Texas. After graduating in 1962 they entered into pastoral ministry for four years in West Columbia and Anton, Texas, before preparing to leave for ministry in Africa.

Church Investments Are Questioned By Members

NEW YORK (AP)—Church officials, hit by a tide of questions from members about denominational investments in so-called war industries, say the issue has been misunderstood and it is not as simple as it looks on the surface.

For one thing, they say it is impossible to function at all in a fallible world without sharing to some degree its faults.

They also point out that the churches are working to refine their investment policies so as best to uphold their ethical principles.

"We're not perfect, but feel we stand somewhat unjustly accused," says the Rev. James A. Christison Jr., head of the American Baptist Home Mission Societies. "We can't avoid risks in this world if we are going to be involved."

Other church leaders also have issued explanations and clarifications in the wake of a study by the newly formed Church Corporate Information Center reporting 10 major Protestant denominations have investments totaling $203 million in firms handling military contracts.

The officials noted, among other things, that only a fraction of the companies' operations involved military items—less than 5 per cent for about half of the firms.

In any case, the religious leaders say it is questionable whether the churches actually would be shoring up their principles merely by getting rid of such investments.

As the United Methodist treasurer, R. Bryan Brawner of Chicago, puts it: "Do you discharge your moral responsibility by selling your holdings and washing your hands of the whole business, or do you remain in a particular investment and attempt to influence company policies from inside the structure?"

In most cases, so far, the churches have chosen to work from inside—as stockholders—in their expanding efforts to use their industrial holdings in behalf of racial equity in employment, antipollution measures and fair dealings with consumers.

Selling out generally is considered a last resort, if other efforts fail. Over-all the religious institutional wealth in this country is estimated to amount to at least $160 billion, with large sums invested in corporate stocks.

Church spokesmen emphasized that the churches are working to develop clearer guidelines on investments so as to uphold their moral concerns most effectively. Special committees have been set up for the task.

In the past, about the only extensively applied church rule was simply not to buy shares in tobacco or liquor companies.

NEW YORK (AP)—Former Beatle John Lennon says he and his wife Yoko Ono plan to fight deportation from the United States on the grounds their visas have expired.

A special immigration hearing scheduled Thursday on the deportation of the British musician and his wife was postponed until April 18 to give them the opportunity to apply for permanent residence in the United States.

The Weekly Message of Inspiration

By REV. W.O. RUCKER JR.
 Pastor Harrah Methodist Church

YOU ARE SIMON—YE SHALL BE PETER
 "Jesus looked at him, and said, 'So you are Simon the Son of John? You shall be called Cephas (which means Peter).'" John 1:42.

In the opening chapter of the Fourth Gospel Jesus meets with Simon Peter and says, "You are Simon—but you shall be Peter." "You are"—what? If Jesus had gone into detail, he might have said, "You are Simon, a crude, unlettered fisherman. You are impulsive, arrogant, self-centered, and fickle. You are weak, unfaithful, cowardly, and an untrue friend." Completing the details he might have said, "but you shall be Peter, a rock-like character, you shall be a mighty preacher upon whom I shall build my church; you shall be a tower of strength, a martyr, a true witness."

To chance the actual "you are" into the ideal "you shall be"—is the high function of Jesus Christ. He did it for Simon Peter, and has been doing it for men ever since. Here is the life of John Bunyan, a man who claimed to have been the ringleader in all sorts of vice and ungodliness and one who had few equals for cursing and swearing. This is the man who was changed by the power of Jesus into the author of "Pilgrim's Progress," which has been spiritual food for countless thousands.

Dear God, as it happened in men of old, let it happen in us today.

Tracksters Trek To Another Win

The fleet-footed Harvesters track and field squad hit the "Irish pot of gold" yesterday at the Perryton Sports Festival. Pampa took first place with 159 total team points.

Following closely behind was Borger with 151 total points. Amarillo High scored 98 and Perryton fell at their own meet with 28 points.

Woodward, Okla., fell prey to Pampa with 26 1/2 points. Guyton, Okla., was also at the meet and laying low with 20 points. Liberal, Kan., brought up the tail end of the meet with 11 1/2 points.

Pampa managed to set another meet record with the 440-yard relay team with a time of 42.4. The relay team consists of speedsters Chuck Reeves, Garvin McCarrel, Rick McGuire and Richard McCampbell.

Tommy Montgomery took second in the 120 high hurdles with a time of 16 flat. Randy Stevens was third with his time being 16.1. Teddy Riddell placed with a time of 16.1.

Richard McCampbell took first place in the 100-yard dash with a time of 9.9. Pampa's Chuck Reeves finished just behind McCampbell at 10 flat. Rick McGuire also brought in points for Pampa in the 100 with fifth place and a time of 10.1.

The 440-yard dash showed three more Pampans on the card with Bobby Owen taking second with a time of 51 flat. Larry Marlar placed third with a time of 51.4 and Steve Mathis came in fifth with a time of 52.4.

Tommy Montgomery represented Pampa for fifth place in the 330 intermediate hurdles with a time of 44.3.

Rich McGuire, Richard McCampbell and Garvin McCarrel showed well for Pampa in the 220-yard dash. McGuire sprinted away with first place from a time of 22.1. McCampbell took third place ribbon with a time of 22.6. Garvin McCarrel was sixth with a time of 22.8.

Steve Weatherly and Leon Garza placed for Pampa in the mile run with Weatherly taking fifth place with a time of 4:58.7. Garza moved to sixth place with a time of 5:03.3.

The mile relay showed the speedy team of Larry Marlar, Terry Riddell, Dennis Stowers and Bobby Owen taking first with a time of 3:28.1.

Ed Townsend shoved forward for a third place rank in the shot put with a mark of 46.7. Mark Warren was close behind with a put of 45.7 1/2.

Astros Ace Los Angeles

COCOA, Fla. (AP) — Jimmy Stewart's long single to right in the 11th inning broke an 8-8 deadlock and brought the Houston Astros a 9-8 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Saturday.

Tom Paciorek tried to make a one-handed stab at Stewart's hit over his head, but the ball hit his glove and rolled away.

Cesar Cedeño, whose grand slam homer had climaxed a seven-run second against Al Downing, scored for Houston from second base to end the three hour, 22 minute contest. Cedeño had singled his way aboard.

Freddy Wilbon took second with a lead of 5'10". Damon DeWitt was third, clearing 5'9" and Johnny Davis tied for fourth at 5'8".

Tommy Downs took the blue ribbon in the broad jump after hurling his body 20'9". Rick McGuire took fifth with a 19'8" leap.

Kim Lindsey placed sixth in the pole vault with a pull of 11'6".

"I was a little disappointed with the slow times we got," said track head coach and Athletic Director Ed Lehnick. "However, I was pleased with the time of the spring relay as they ran one of the better recorded times this year of 42.4 on a cinder track."

Coach Lehnick went on to explain how a cinder track has the character of slowing speeds down.

The next meet the Harvesters will attend will be the Dumas Relays next Saturday.

"Not all the other attending teams are known yet," commented Lehnick, "but Amarillo High, Caprock, Dumas and Borger are to attend and from that, we know we have our work cut out for us."

When asked how he thought Pampa would come out in district play, he commented, "It is too early to tell. We are yet to see Caprock and Palo Duro, but district is still far away and we have a lot of work to do for next Saturday's meet."

Baseball Roundup

By Associated Press

The New York Mets finally found the power hitting they've been seeking. Only trouble is... they lost him last season.

His name is Donn Clendenon, whose 37-year-old bat and estimated $70,000 salary got the pink slip from the Mets following an 11-homer, 37-RBI 1971 season. That was a drastic drop from 1969, when Clendenon was named the outstanding player in the Mets' World Series miracle, and 1970, when he set a club record by driving in 97 runs.

"Despite what Mr. Hodges (Gil Hodges, Mets manager) thinks, I can still swing the bat," Clendenon disclosed prior to Friday's exhibition baseball slugfest between the Mets and St. Louis Cardinals, who signed the veteran first baseman as a free agent.

Then he went out and proved his point with three-run homers off Jon Matlack in the third and fourth innings as the Cards surged to a 9-2 lead and held on to win 11-7.

Joe Torre, the National League's Most Valuable Player in 1971 who finally signed his contract last week, made his spring debut for the Cards with a single, double and home run.

One of Clendenon's home runs traveled an estimated 450 feet but that was not as far as a shot by Atlanta's Earl Williams in the Braves' 6-3 loss to Montreal. Williams' blast was measured by the Braves' publicity director at 475 feet in the air. It stopped rolling 540 feet from home plate.

But rookie Terry Humphrey and Gary Sutherland homered in a five-run seventh-inning rally that gave the Expos the victory. Orlando Cepeda, who signed his contract earlier in the day along with Rico Carty, also homered for Atlanta.

In Maracaibo, Venezuela, 22,500 fans turned out to see the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates blank the Cincinnati Reds 4-0 despite three hits by Dave Concepcion, the Reds' Venezuelan shortstop. Bob Moose and Bruce Kison collaborated on a three-hitter as the teams opened a three-game series in the South American country.

The New York Yankees made it three straight victories over American League champion Baltimore with a 5-4 triumph on Roy White's 10th-inning homer.

The California Angels did the lushest hitting of all, rapping out 19 hits in an 11-1 rout of the Chicago Cubs. They also pulled off a triple play.

The San Francisco Giants erupted for five runs in the eighth inning, three on Chris Arnold's triple, but needed Bernie Williams' run-scoring triple in the ninth to beat Oakland 9-8. The A's, held hitless for three innings by Juan Marichal, jumped on the Giants' ace in the fourth for four runs on six hits.

Harmon Killebrew drove in his first run of the spring with a single and George Mitterwald slugged a three-run homer in Minnesota's 7-3 victory over Houston. The Boston Red Sox tagged Dick Bosman for six runs in the first inning and swamped the Texas Rangers 8-1.

Dick Drago, Jim Rooker and Roger Nelson combined for a three-hitter and Ed Kirkpatrick belted a two-run homer as the Kansas City Royals blanked the Chicago White Sox 4-0.

Rookie Paul Jata drove in three runs with a pair of singles, leading the Detroit Tigers over Philadelphia 5-3, and Del Unser's pinch single in the eighth inning snapped a tie and triggered Cleveland's 7-4 victory over Milwaukee.

and the Israeli Army veteran of the Six-Day War. Melamad was a two-time Israeli Olympic swimmer, specializing in the butterfly, and he wanted to come to the United States to study.

Arrangements were made for Melamad to come to West Liberty and the "underground railroad" was born.

Last year, when West Liberty showed up at the NAIAs nationals, Melamad won two championships and anchored the relay teams, figuring in more than half of his team's points.

Now Grall is no dummy, so he asked Melamad if there were any other Israelis who might be interested in coming to the U.S. to study—and swim.

Presto! The "railroad" was back in operation. This time it carried three Israeli swimmers to West Liberty—Moshe Gertel, a freestyler and veteran of the Asian Games; Yoel Kende, an Olympic breaststroker; and Danny Stern, an individual medalist.

"With the talent I have, there is a good chance we can win the NAIAs championship this month," Grall says. "These boys have terrorized our conference foes, establishing records at a frantic pace."

As was the case with the original "underground railroad" established more than a century ago, the Israeli foursome needed lots of outside help.

When the new batch of Israelis joined Melamad this past September, they all slept in his room, since their scholarships were only for tuition. The school President, Dr. James Chapman, contacted the U.S. Committee Sports for Israel, which, in turn, granted $1,500 to the swimmers for board.

Baseball Reserve System Facing Hearing At Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — On Christmas Eve, 1969, twelve weeks after the St. Louis Cardinals traded him to the Philadelphia Phillies, outfielder Curt Flood wrote a letter to Bowie Kuhn, the commissioner of baseball.

"After 12 years in the major leagues, I do not feel that I am a piece of property to be bought and sold irrespective of my wishes," the suddenly dislodged Cardinal co-captain said.

Kuhn, a lawyer and longtime baseball fan, replied: "As a human being you are not a piece of property to be bought and sold."

However, the commissioner went on to say, he could not "see its application to the situation at hand."

Flood's cause was picked up by the ballplayers' union. One of the nation's most distinguished lawyers, former Justice Arthur J. Goldberg, agreed to represent him, and a suit was filed in federal court in New York City attacking baseball's reserve system.

Monday, the moment of truth will arrive: a one-hour Supreme Court hearing that could begin to change the course of baseball.

When Flood rebelled at transferring his talents to the Phillies the 32-year-old athlete had to hang up his spikes; he had no other place to go. The reason was the standard contract Flood had signed with the Cincinnati Reds when he was an 18-year-old prospect.

Once a player signs with a team, he can play only for that team. That is, unless his contract is sold or traded to another team. And then he can play only for that club.

Flood's only option was to quit. It's very doubtful that even a Japanese team would have signed him since only players declared free agents here have a chance to play in Japan.

Back in 1922, in a ruling put together by Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, the Supreme Court held that baseball was a sport and not a business because the "personal efforts" of ballplayers were "not related to production."

For baseball, this has meant a 49-year exemption from antitrust laws that prohibits business arrangements to stifle competition.

In the meantime, however, courts including the Supreme Court have compelled professional football, basketball and other sports to adjust player

Hairpiece Intrigues Cowboys

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Cowboy veterans reported for preseason conditioning drills Saturday and all talk centered on cornerback Mel Renfro's new hairpiece and not on Duane Thomas' absence.

The meeting of the veterans was not a required formation and numerous other stars such as defensive tackle Bob Lilly and quarterback Craig Morton were not on hand to run a mile and a half and lift weights.

Renfro, who has been bald since he was in college at Oregon, fooled most members of the team and coach Tom Landry with his new look.

"I saw the back of the guy but I had no idea it was Mel," said a flabbergasted Landry, who is bald himself.

Asked if Renfro's younger look made Landry envious, the coach of the world champions said, "If I could make mine look like his, I just might get one. Only I'm not sure how I would look in the Afro-Asian style."

Renfro said, "I've been thinking about getting a hairpiece for four or five years."

"When I was 27, people used to say to me, 'You're not a day over 35.' Now they say to me, 'You're not a day over 28.'" Renfro said, "I figure it takes about seven years off my life in my appearance. I'm tearing up all of the pictures of me when I was bald and throwing them away."

Renfro said he even had fooled roommate Herb Atterley.

Renfro said, "He talked to me for several minutes before he realized who I was. Although he wasn't sure it was me, he said he had good vibrations."

On hand for the 90-minute workout were new defensive secondary coach Gene Stallings, formerly of Texas A&M, and Sid Gillman, former coach at San Diego, who now will be involved in research and development for the National Football League champions.

Landry did not seem perturbed that the mysterious Thomas had not appeared for the workout.

Landry flew to the NFL meeting in Hawaii immediately after the contracts to provide at least a little freedom of action for the athlete who wants to play elsewhere.

Goldberg contends the time has come for baseball to do as much. The 1922 decision, he says, is an anachronism, particularly as franchises are switched from city to city and the last "remaining player freedom" was readicated in 1965 when amateurs were bound to the team that chose to sign them.

Mindful, perhaps, that the high court often is unwilling to upset precedents, Goldberg offers a way around the 1922 decision: subject baseball to state antitrust laws.

Back in 1922, when it won its exemption from federal controls, baseball argued that any abuse in operation of the reserve clause could be corrected by state and local regulation, Goldberg recalls.

He adds that baseball made the same argument in 1953 when its contract system again was protected by the high court.

Only one state, Wisconsin, has tried this approach—in a futile effort in 1966 to keep the Braves from shifting to Atlanta from Milwaukee. The Supreme Court declined to give Wisconsin a hearing.

Baseball's case will be made by Paul A. Porter, a prominent Washington attorney, former chairman of the Federal Communications Commission and an enthusiastic fan, and by Louis L. Hoynes Jr., a New York lawyer.

The heart of their argument is that the reserve system is the cornerstone of the game's structure and essential to competition and stability. Without it, they warn, the top-flight stars would flock to the wealthiest clubs in the largest cities.

The lawyers acknowledge in their brief that modification of the reserve system is likely. But the changes, they say, should come from within the "fabric of baseball"—through negotiations between the club-owners and the players' union.

Defending champion Texas opened its 1972 Southwest Conference baseball campaign as expected Friday with a doubleheader sweep over Baylor, but it was Texas Christian which produced the big surprise.

TCU Knocks A&M Aggies

By Associated Press

The Horned Frogs crushed favored Texas A&M 6-3 and 10-1 in their opener at College Station as TCU displayed power at the plate and excellent pitching.

The Longhorns bumped Baylor at Austin 4-1 and 6-5 behind the clutch pitching of Ron Roznovsky.

In the other SWC doubleheader, Rice swept Southern Methodist with 1-0 and 8-4 victories.

Harvesters Make It 7

By RICKEY WRIGHT

The Harvester diamond-rovers made their pre-district record 7-2 with seven straight wins after high-stepping the Woodward, Okla., slugger squad in double-header action Friday.

Jody Johnson and Dale Ammons led the Harvs to a 1-0 victory over the Okies in the first game. Sophomore Johnson pitched a four hit, two walk and six strike-out game.

Out of the four Woodward hits, the alert Harvies allowed only one double.

Leading hitter for the Harvesters was Marsh Gambin, who ended two for two. Rick Musgrave and Dale Ammons also scored one hit each for the Harvesters in their one-hit victory.

Gambin came up with the only score of the game. He singled and was sacrificed to second by Jody Johnson on a bunted ball. With two men on base, Rick Musgrave stepped up to the plate to knock Gambin's run in with a single.

One of the most outstanding plays of the game brought about a double play. It began with Roy Hendricks snagging a line drive to center field. The caught ball was then relayed to Bill Simon at first base to trap a player for the second out call.

Another outstanding play occurred in the latter part of the seventh inning as a Woodward player tried to make a double out of a single. Musgrave relayed the caught ball to Mike Edgar, at shortstop, who tagged out the runner at second base.

The victory made Johnson's record 3-0.

The second game went to the Harvesters by an 8-1 margin.

The winning battery was a Larry Knutson and Dale Ammons combo with Harvey Watson later in the game.

The victory made south-paw senior Knutson's season record 3-0.

Knutson pitched 12 hits, three walks and struck out eight.

The Harvesters finished the game with six hits and eight runs.

Leading hitters were Mike Edgar and Roy Don Hendricks. Edgar stood 3-4 and Hendricks stood 2-4 with one double.

The most outstanding play of the second game was a double play in the seventh inning as the retrieved ball came from Knutson to Jeff Hogan, at first base, to Harvey Watson behind the mound.

The next game for the hustling Harvesters will be a double header Tuesday in Liberal, Kan., at 1:00 p.m.

After that will come Altus, Okla., next Friday in a triple header at Altus and then Liberal again at home on March 30.

District will open with Caprock on April 4.

Yesterday diamond head coach Deck Woldt reported scouting the Altus vs. Borger game, which ended in a split double header, 11-5 Borger, 11-10 Altus.

"Both teams seem very strong," commented Woldt. "Borger showed to be a team of good hitters."

Irish Luck Passes By Linksters

Irish Luck was not with the Harvesters this St. Patrick's Day as the third round of District 3-AAAA conference golf play was completed in Borger Friday.

Tasocsa took first place with Borger coming in second. Amarillo High taking third place and the Tasocsa B squad moving from last week's second ranking to fourth.

Pampa remained in eighth place in district play with a team total of 325. The B squad brought up the rear with 355 total team points.

Doug White and Mike Coulter led the A team linksters with 82 strokes each. Next was Dick Bailey with 78 strokes and Steve Hopkins with 83. Leslie Harris shot 86, which was dropped.

For the B team Greg Williams was low man with 87 strokes. Close behind were Randy Juenger and Keith Stowers with 88 strokes each. Jim Grady was next with 92 strokes. Kim Sness had his score of 99 dropped from the card.

The next round of district play will be held at Amarillo Southwestern Golf Course. The same teams will be entered in competition for district.

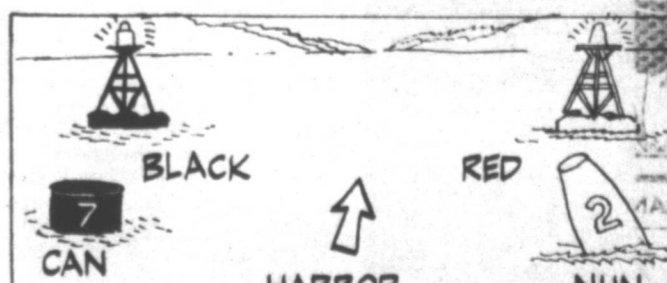

The week after the Harvester and Shocker linksters will attend the Amarillo relays held April 7-8.

The last round of district competition will be held at the Pampa Country Club on April 14.

10. Avoiding Collisions

When one boat overtakes another, the boat coming from astern is responsible for avoiding collisions. It must turn well to the right or left (whichever is safer). When two boats are meeting head on, BOTH should turn to the right so they pass port side to port side. It is permissible to pass starboard to starboard only if the boats are so far apart that they will pass safely with NO course changes. When the courses of two boats will cross and result in a collision, the boat on the other's RIGHT has the right of way. In all cases, the boat with the right of way must maintain course and speed so as to not confuse the other boat.

New Attitude Aids Angels

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Attitude goes as the added ingredient this spring as the California Angels battle to forget the ignominy of 1971. Tabbed as pennant contenders a year ago, the Angels ended in fourth place in the American League West during a season when internal battles were greater than those on the field.

Fired were General Manager Dick Walsh and field manager Lefty Phillips. The Angels lured Harry Dalton from Baltimore to become general manager and executive vice-president. Veteran Del Rice, the first player signed by the expansion club in 1960, took over as field manager. Controversial outfielder Alex Johnson was traded. So was long-time star shortstop Jim Fregosi and the retirement of Tony Conigliaro seems permanent as he continues to suffer from an eye impairment. The stars are gone. The Angels appear more cohesive. Dalton says his first job was to create as much balance as possible on offense and

Bucks, Lakers Excite Fans

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Almost nobody expected the final regular season meeting between the Milwaukee Bucks and Los Angeles Lakers to elicit much emotion from either players or fans. "I didn't expect it to be heated," said Laker forward Jim McMilliam.

"I don't think this game has tremendous significance," said Laker Coach Bill Sharman. "It should have been a lot easier." Offered Wilt Chamberlain after the Lakers overcame a slow start and fourth-period lethargy to beat the Bucks 123-107 in one of the greatest spectator games ever played at the Forum.

"Yes, it was a great game for the fans," said Sharman, whose team won the season series with Milwaukee four games to one and inched within three games of the all-time record for victories in a National Basketball Association season.

At 65-12, Los Angeles needs four triumphs in the last five games to crack Philadelphia's mark of 68 victories in 1966-67.

Milwaukee's Kareem Jabbar, scored 50 points but said the loss of the Bucks' top guard Oscar Robertson, hurt. Jerry West's 10 straight points midway through the fourth period helped the Lakers overcome a 24-8 Buck spurt which had closed an 18-point deficit to just 104-102. West wound up with 26 points and 10 assists and McMilliam scored 27 points. The Lakers, led by Chamberlain with 24 rebounds and Happy Hairston with 18, out-boarded the Bucks 59-44. In other NBA action, Boston clinched the Atlantic Division title with a 127-111 shelling of Philadelphia. Phoenix topped New York 111-106, Baltimore beat Seattle 112-107, Chicago bombed Buffalo 126-103, Detroit defeated Atlanta 121-112 and Portland tripped Golden State 114-109.

John Havlicek, Boston's all-time leading scorer, pumped in 35 points to lead the Celtics to their first divisional title since the 1964-65 season.

They all but put the game away by halftime, taking a 59-50 lead and keeping the 76ers well out of reach the rest of the way. Dave Cowens added 20 points for Boston while Billy Cunningham led Philadelphia with 24.

The Knicks officially protested the appearance of the Suns' Charlie Scott, who jumped from Virginia of the ABA last week, and played the game under protest. But they couldn't stop Scott from playing—or scoring 23 points to top Phoenix.

Earlier, a restraining order sought by the Squires to bar Scott from playing was denied by a federal judge.

Neal Walk added 22 points for the Suns while Walt Frazier scored 25 to top the Knicks, who slashed Phoenix' 18-point lead to two in the final minutes before falling short.

Dave Stallworth came off the bench to score a season-high 27 points in the Bullets' triumph that widened their Central Division lead over Atlanta to six games.

Baltimore never trailed after the opening minutes, then held off a Seattle rally that had cut the margin to four points. Archie Clark backed Stallworth's performance with 26 points for the Bullets. Lee Winfield's 29 and Len Wilkens' 25 topped the SuperSonics.

Seven Chicago players scored in double figures, with Chet Walker's 24 leading the list, as the Bulls took advantage of 22 Buffalo turnovers and 27 fouls in the runaway. Randy Smith scored 19 for the hapless Braves.

Detroit all but blew Atlanta off the court in the third quarter, outscoring the Hawks 23-9 in one stretch to take a 91-84 lead into the final period and build the edge up to as many as 13 points. Bob Lanier had 32 points and Dave Bing 28 for the Pistons, who ended a ninegame tailspin. Walt Bellamy had 30 for Atlanta. Geoff Petrie slammed in 39 points, 22 of them in a wild third quarter that enabled the Trail Blazers to overcome a 17point Golden State lead and down the Warriors, led by Nate Thurmond's 39 points.

They are Buster Brannon, Athens High School star of the 1920's; Whitey Baccus, who starred at Estelline High School in 1929 and 1930; Mike Izquierdo, a standout for the El Paso High School team that won the state championship in 1941; Bobby Moers, Houston Reagan star of 1935 and 1936, and Max Williams, the basketball sensation at Avoca High School in the 1950's.

HARLEM GLOBETROTTERS:

'Uncle Toms' or Inspirations?

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Perhaps the Harlem Globetrotters' neatest trick is the one today in which they do it once transcend time and yet are a part of the times.

They still run loud and eye-catching circles around cooperative opponents, as they have since their inception 45 years ago, and packed houses throughout the world still squeal and laugh, as they have all these years.

But the times are changing, even for the Globetrotters. In November, the players went on strike for 27 days for better working conditions and more money. And the Trotters have felt the pinch of recent black history. They have gone through a period of introspection about their "rears" their practiced routines. But the sharpest criticism of the Trotters may come from the recently published biography of Connie Hawkins. "Foul!" by David Wolf.

"Tomming for Abe" is one chapter in the book. Hawkins, now a star for the Phoenix Suns, played for the Trotters and the late owner-coach-founder Abe Saperstein for four years in the mid-1960s. "What we were doing out there," said Hawkins, "was actin' like Uncle Tom's Ginnin' and smilin' and dancin' around..." Author Wolf called the Trotters "Steppin Fetchitts in jock straps."

The charge has come as a jolt to current president and general manager George Gillett, player-coach Tex Harrison and to comedian Bill Cosby, a long-time fan and sometime player. Cosby has a lifetime, no-cut, dollar-a-year contract and "plays" with the Trotters whenever he and they find themselves in the same town.

"I can't understand how anyone could say that when blacks demonstrate a superior athletic skill and showmanship that that's Uncle Tomism," said the blond, stocky, forthright 32-year-old Gillett. "But we have thought about it before. We've sat down, the players and me, and gone over the routines. And, yes, in the last couple of years, we have taken out some seemingly Uncle Tom reams. Some that did seem demeaning, like jiving around and holding hands, much of that is gone. But we've never told the players to do anything that they couldn't take pride in. I mean, they set their show, basically."

Harrison, in his 18th season with the Trotters (though he was away for the last four years for "personal reasons"), agrees. "I think we've done more to improve the image of blacks as skilled athletes than almost anyone else," said Harrison. "We don't look like fools. We make our opponents look like fools. We're bafflin' our opponents. Steppin Fetchit was being baffled. That's a big difference."

it ready by the time we leave town."

Now, there are three uniform changes and the team provides for cleaning once overszid beds for overszid basketball players. Now, all Trotters have separate rooms with double beds so that they can at least sleep diagonally on regular-sized beds. "And in the last four years," he said, "we've been staying at the best hotels."

They now also go first-class on most plane trips. Money has been resolved in this way: Salaries have improved to where the average is $20-25,000 a year. A pension plan equal to the NBA's has been instituted. There is now a Globetrotter Players' Association. And the Trotter players have been given the option of buying Trotter stock.

(The team went public in December. Shares originally sold for $13 each. They were up to $19 in mid-February. One million shares at $1 a share have been set aside for any speculating Trotter player for the next five years.)

"There was a time when the Trotters were the only decent outlet for a black man to make money playing basketball," said Harrison. Abe (Saperstein, late owner-coach-founder) struggled with the team in the early years. And you know, he never did make much money out of it. There were times when he would do things to embarrass you. Like when he'd be talking to someone about how a movie actress wanted to meet him. 'Isn't that right, Tex?' he'd say.

The team Greyhound bus has recently undergone a $25,000 remodeling—complete with swivel chairs and soft-drink bar. "This was even before the strike," said Gillett. "You wonder, 'Killing the world with kindness.'" Hotels: Few anywhere have every three days. "Sometimes," said Gillett, "players wore their uniforms into the shower and washed them right there. It also kept them warm. I mean, some of the locker rooms we go into are cold."

"And a lot of our ball-handling tricks, well, they were once considered show-boating. But in the NBA and ABA, that kind of ball is becoming the style of play."

Cosby recalled his boyhood in the Philadelphia ghetto. He said he saw Globetrotter games whenever he could. "Remember," he said, "that the Trotters were beating white guys. Yeah, I'd get my jollies off when I'd see that."

"But now, you have to look at the Trotters as a vaudeville act, an act with great finesse."

Bill Cosby

And I'd say, 'Sho' nuff, Skip. Maybe that's what Connie thought was Uncle Tommin'. Maybe it was. I did it out of gratitude for what Abe had done for us all."

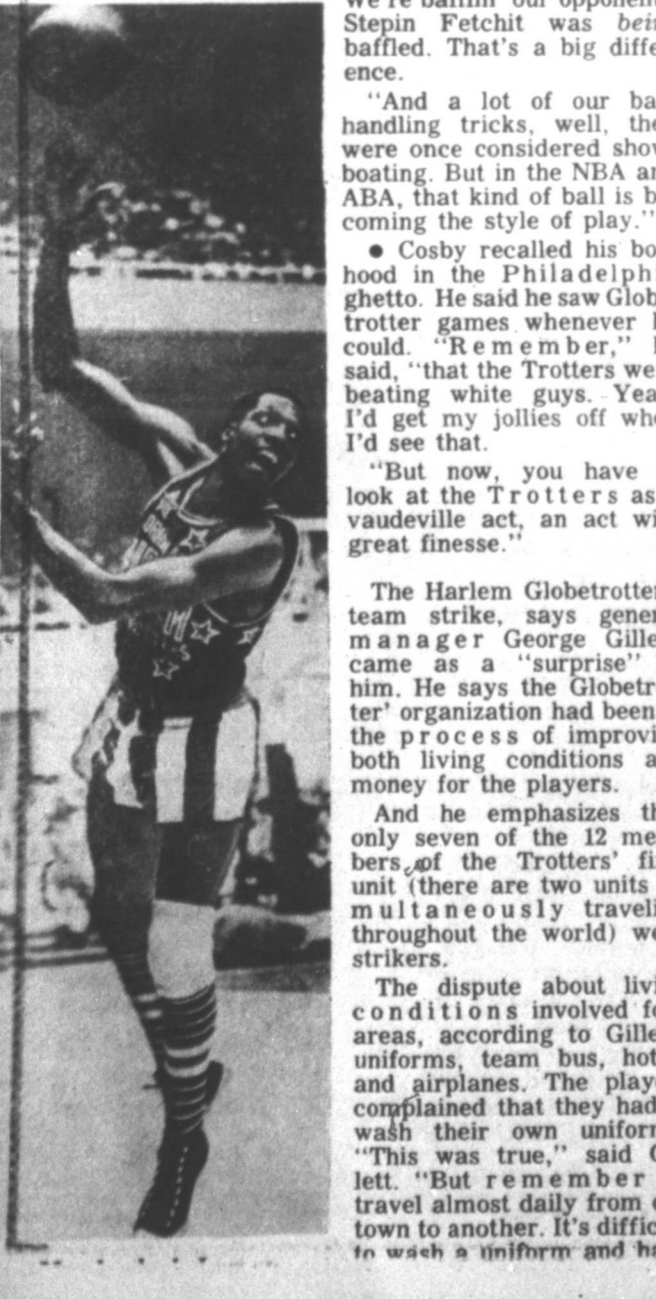

None of this seems to concern fans, white or black, who still fill ball rings in Spain, who still fill frozen high school gyms in Saskatchewan, who still fill gaudy Madison Square Garden, the home, it is said, "of the most sophisticated basketball fans in the world."

And these fans still roar with delight at the time-honored antics such as the football drop-kick play, still thrill at the undeniable skill of a curly Neal dribbling routine, and still marvel at the eternal, irrefutable logic of this routine by "clown-prince" center Meadowlark Lemon.

Lemon calls a time-out. Then snatches the ball from the "unsuspecting" referee, calls "Time-in," and tosses the ball to a teammate under the basket. The collaborating ref blows a furious whistle. "Why not?" asks Lemon. "If I can call time out, how come I can't call time in, too?"

Ex-Champ Remembers Enjoyable Boxing Times

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

SAN FRANCISCO—(NEA)—Bobo Olson, (NEA) reported with authority, is alive and well in Santa Rosa. And drinking Calso water.

The sign in the Mission district, on the corner of 18th street, above the neon, was startling. "Meet Bobo Olson tonight." At a place called Harris' Town Pump.

Outside on the sidewalk a couple of rummies. Inside a neighborhood crowd, no ties, a washed-out blonde, a picture of a bull high on the wall.

Big John behind the bar won't tell you he owns the joint because he's afraid you might be serving him a subpoena from his ex-wife. Big John's an old buddy of Bobo, which is why Olson came down to The City with an old one-hour documentary of film clips—Louis and Baer and Joey Maxim and Bobo himself.

He does this a lot. Public relations, he calls it. And now Bobo comes quietly through the door to meet the public. The crowd so far is thin. Hardly anybody notices him.

Bobo, after all these years, looks great. And your mind wanders back to the mid-1950s and the Friday night

What would he look like now, coming into this two-bit bar with a can of old film?

Almost the same. No smashed nose, no scarred eyes, no puffiness, no balding than he was because Bobo was already losing his hair those 20 years ago. And there is no slur to his speech. Bobo's got himself 100 per cent collected.

What a gentle man he was. And still is. The soft dark eyes are clear. The shy smile persists. A punchy old guy comes up and shakes his hand and Bobo is friendly. A young kid with long hair and two front teeth missing leads a procession of working stiffs who manage to come by, not pushing, just acknowledging the old champ.

"You was great, Bobo."

"Tanks." That's the way Bobo always talked—the dropped "h" from his early life as a dock wallop. He remembers fighting Wayne "Tornton" and he talks about the guys he knew—Maxim, Pastrano, Marciano.

A guy named Joe complains to Bobo, "I seen them all and today there ain't no fighters."

You mention Joe Frazier and Cassius Clay (here, Muhammad Ali is a tongue twister), even Jerry Quarry. Joe is adamant. But nice.

There is no bitterness in Bobo. No looking back, even though his first manager lost all the money he made through bad investments. "I'm doing fine," says Bobo. "Boxing was good to me."

While he was still fighting for championships. Confidental or some other sensation-monger exposed Bobo as a man with two families—a wife with four kids in Hawaii, a wife with four kids in San Francisco. "It's all settled," says Bobo. His first wife remains in Hawaii. He lives with the second wife in Santa Rosa, and three children are still at home. He has five boys who weigh over 200 pounds each.

"Some horses," says Bobo. "Weight lifters. My 23-year-old, he's got a 23-inch neck. My kids all turned out good."

One day in 1967, when Bobo was getting close to 40 years old, he quit the ring for good.

He's genuinely glad someone who saw him in the big days in Madison Square Garden took the trouble to look him up again. "You make me remember," he says, as I walk away from the bar, "the enjoyable times."

Oh, yes, there is one noticeable change in Bobo Olson. He has a black mustache now.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

"Don't get mad," he jabs at your chest. Bobo smiles, enjoying the fight talk.

He weighs around 200 now, but he runs two miles every morning and has his garage in Santa Rosa fixed up like a gym. He picks up a buck at banquets. He tells about this big kid in the gym getting his nose bloody and Bobo telling him, "Look, I been around the fights since I was 9. It's tough. Why don't you try some other sport, like football or baseball?"

Five years later the kid taps Bobo on the shoulder and introduces himself. He's Daryle Lamonica of the Oakland Raiders.

Barber Takes Rest From Golf Games

SHERMAN, Tex., (AP)—Miller Barber has taken a brief rest from the Professional Golf Association Tour to rejuvenate his sagging spirits.

"I'm coming home to play some of the fellows here at the club and get my confidence back," said the winner of this year's Tucson Open.

"I'm hitting my woods and irons as well as I ever did," he declared. "But the results are something else. When you won on the tour, you get a lot of good bounces and a lot of breaks."

"Take the recent Doral tourney. I was 148 after two rounds and barely made the cut. I shot a 68 in the third round but it was cancelled when rain washed out play before all of the golfers were in. Then the PGA committee decided to take all of the 147s and 148s and give them the minimum $400 and try to get in 36 holes on Sunday."

"My 68 had pulled me to within three shots of the lead and I would have been in a position to challenge the leaders. But there isn't a thing you can do about rain," said Barber.

who recalled winning the Kaiser a few years ago when it was washed out after two rounds with him in front.

While Barber may be a mite sour on his game right now, some of the nation's top golf experts are picking him high in the U.S. Open.

Barber is 13th on the all-time money list and 31st among PGA title winners with seven.

Last year he had the best finish of any golfer in winning a tournament with a final round 65 at Phoenix. And Barber's 129, 13 under par, at Phoenix was the lowest 36 hole total last year and his 261, which was 23 under par, also was a tour mark in 1971.

Last year Barber ranked sixth among the "performance chart" based on the order of finishes. He averaged 71.27 strokes a round and $3,911 per tournament in picking up $117,609. He was directly behind Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino, Arnold Palmer, George Archer and Gary Player in the performance chart, which left him in some pretty fast company.

Seals Hold On To Lead

OAKLAND (AP)—The St. Louis Blues held the California Golden Seals to a 2-2 tie Friday night and clung to a one-point lead in the tight race for the West Division playoff in the National Hockey league.

One point behind St. Louis for third place, the Seals play the Pittsburgh Penguins here Sunday night. Idle Philadelphia is two points behind St. Louis and Pittsburgh is four back.

The Seals led twice during the game, watched by 12,089. The first time was when rookie defenseman Bob Stewart scored his first NHL goal at 14:35, only to have it evened at 10:31 in the second period by Phil Roberto for St. Louis.

Four minutes later Gary Croteau made it 2-1 for the Seals, but at 4:38 in the third the Blues' center Frank St. Marseille tied it 2-2 with his 15th goal of the season.

Ties were a sore subject in the Seals dressing room. Coach Vic Stasiuk, who piloted the Philadelphia Flyers last year to a league record of 24 ties, had no comment on the fact that this was the Seals' 17th tie of the season, 12 of them on home ice.

BOBO OLSON, right, demolished Gene Hairston at Madison Square Garden in this 1952 bout and went on to win the world middleweight championship a year later.

Graziano Honored For Boxing

NEW YORK (AP)—Rocky Graziano, the middleweight champion who couldn't win against the law or the U.S. Army but proved himself a winner in the ring, has been named to the Boxing Hall of Fame.

Graziano came off the streets of New York after a prison term and a dishonorable discharge from the Army to compile a 67-10-6 record. Fifty-two victories were by knockouts.

Sandy Saddler, a skinny fighter who effectively used a big punch and retired as featherweight champion, also was named Friday to the Hall by sports writers and broadcasters in an election conducted by Ring Magazine.

Elected by the Old-Timers Committee were former lightweight champion Paul Berlenbach and former middleweight king Tiger Flowers. Hall directors named William "Nobby" Clark, an English featherweight who fought in the United States in the 1860s.

Graziano's best known fights were for the crown against Tony Zale. He was knocked out in six rounds in a title bid at Yankee Stadium in 1946, but came back in Chicago Stadium in July 1947 to knock out Zale in the sixth.

He didn't insure his car through an independent insurance agent. Then, with inadequate coverage, he had an accident—his fault. To satisfy the judgment, he had to sell everything he owned. Protect yourself. Call Joe Fischer Insurance today!

Agriculturally Speaking

by Foster Whaley
I have heard numerous comments, both pro and con, concerning an AP release by Farm Writer Don Kendall with a Washington, D.C. date line in the Pampa News on March 14, concerning "Who Gets the Beef Dollar?"

My personal opinion was that Kendall did an excellent job of answering his topic question. Fact is, I thought the article was very favorable to the farmer and rancher.

I have been asked to comment on the article. So here are my thoughts. I'd like to start with Kendall's last paragraph where he says, "According to the breakdown and allowing for the $20.65 received by the meat packer for by products, there was a mark-up of $161.26 from the time the steer left the feedlot until it ended up in shopping carts as red meat."

How long does this take? About three weeks.

How long does it take a farmer to produce a 1,000 pound steer from the date a cow conceives? Well it takes nine months before the calf hits the ground.

There are fifteen chances out of a hundred the calf will not live to be six months old. If the calf lives through weaning to about four hundred pounds of weight, this takes another six months. During the next five months, if everything goes good, the calf will gain two hundred pounds. This will bring his weight to six hundred pounds. There are three chances out of one hundred he will die during the stocker phase.

Now we place him in the feedlot. The steer spends another five months in the feedlot and he comes out weighing one thousand pounds. There are two chances out of one hundred he will die in the feedlot.

So, it takes the farmer or rancher over two years to produce his one thousand pound steer for which he received $327.79. The marketing system grossed $161.26 in about three weeks while it took the farmer-rancher over two years to gross $327.79.

I'd say the rancher would be lucky if he netted $20.00 for his labor income on the steer. I'd say it would be a very safe bet to assume that over half of the $161.26 that went to the marketing system was for labor - all net to the worker.

If these assumptions are correct, labor gets over four times as much net out of the steers in three weeks as the farmer-rancher received for two years.

If I were the housewife, I'd let a sleeping dog lie.

Panhandle Water

By Felix W. Ryals
On Feb. 27, United Press International released a story out of St. Louis that an area engineer had apparently solved the water shortage problem by developing a machine or plant that turns sewage into odorless, drinkable water. The UPI release noted that a pilot plant using the method perfected by engineer Sterling R. Kennedy is already in operation in St. Louis County, Missouri producing 200,000 gallons per day of drinkable water. The water being produced by the pilot plant is being sold to customers of the Fee Fee Trunk Sewer Inc., a privately owned sewage treatment firm that Kennedy heads.

According to the release, Kennedy conceded that the process is new and has not yet received official sanction from health authorities. Kennedy stated that a number of water interested people had visited the pilot plant and voiced favorable impressions. The pilot plant, according to Kennedy, is of revolutionary design. He began designing the plant in June of 1971 and began operation early in 1972.

In explaining the design and operation, he stated that his plant uses an automatically controlled chemical process of a process with open sump to questions operation of the revealed that it is higher than that of the traditional sewage plant. He also feels that smaller models can be built to take care of a single home or larger models can be constructed to serve an entire city.

In discussing the people psychology, Kennedy felt that it would take time to sell the public on the idea that you can produce potable drinking water from raw sewage. He was quick to point out that the people in St. Louis are getting their drinking water from the heavily polluted Mississippi River.

Last year this columnist told of a trip he made in a motorboat past the city of Memphis, Tenn. as a boy. The city of Memphis was dumping its raw sewage into the Mississippi River. Missouri no longer does this. Most cities along the Missouri, Ohio and Mississippi for many years have dumped their sewage into these rivers, but state and federal regulations have become so stringent in recent years that the treated sewage is released in good condition.

Kennedy pointed out that the greatest benefit of his system was in the reuse of our water. He strongly believes that water taken from a natural watershed should be returned to that watershed. If we keep taking water out of a stream and then pipe it away for treatment, the original source of that water becomes depleted. The streams dry up and the water table falls.

According to Kennedy, about 40 percent of the sewage in the United States either is dumped raw or sent through a primary treatment plant or septic tank. The effluent is then drained into lakes, streams, or rivers or piped into the ocean. The remaining 60 percent receives secondary treatment, which involves the use of bacteria to decompose the organic matter in sewage, in effect accelerating natural decomposition. A successful secondary treatment will usually remove about 85 percent of the organic matter in sewage.

On good range, male deer will weigh from 225 to 300 pounds, with a few going as high as 375 pounds.

Feedlot Cow Health Research Underway

AMARILLO—Sweat period, stress period, whatever you want to call it; it is the first days after cattle arrive at a feedlot. This is the hardest time of the feeding cycle, and cutting weight and death losses here can be a real boon to the cattle industry.

West Texas State University is cooperating with Texas A&M University in a feedlot health research project at the W. T. Nance Ranch near Canyon. The supervisors are Dr. Charles Smallwood, dean of the WTSU School of Agriculture and Dr. John Coleman, veterinarian at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, Feedlot Cattle Disease Research Laboratory at Bushland.

The program calls for cattle to be fed for 60 days at the ranch's feeding facilities. During this time, they are carefully observed for health problems, and are treated with different combinations of practices to find the best overall health program.

The first cattle arrived the last of February by truck from Louisiana. The 100 steers were divided into several experimental groups.

"Among these was a grouping to compare the effectiveness of various antibacterial treatments," reports Dr. Coleman. He explains that the cattle were divided into three groups to compare treatments of injectable penicillin-streptomycin, oxytetracycline and oral sulfas.

"The sick calves of each group will be closely watched throughout the experimental period to see if any treatment might do a better job than another treatment," Dr. Coleman adds.

Texas Horseowners Urged To Vaccinate

Horseowners throughout Texas are urged to "get the jump" on VEE, Venezuelan equine encephalomyelitis, that deadly sleeping sickness of horses. All horses that were not vaccinated last year should be vaccinated as soon as possible, especially before mosquito season gets here.

It was less than a year ago that the disease swept into the state from Mexico, killing hundreds of horses in its path.

The 1972 campaign against VEE calls for vaccination of all equidae (horses, mules and donkeys) not vaccinated last year. In addition to Texas the vaccination campaign will include the Gulf Coast states and states adjoining Mexico.

This year the vaccination program will be conducted at the horse owner's expense. Commercial vaccine is available and must be administered by a veterinarian.

Vaccination will provide immunity for more than a year and possibly longer. However, if there is any doubt as to whether horses were vaccinated last year, it is best to vaccinate again.

Texas is still under federal quarantine for VEE. Thus horses must have been vaccinated for VEE at least 14 days before being allowed to leave the state for other areas. Horses for interstate shipment must be accompanied by a vaccination certificate with individual animals identified by tag, tattoo or other means.

About 92 percent of Texas' estimated horse population of 625,000 head were vaccinated in 1971. Almost 800 Texas veterinarians participated in the vaccination campaign. More than 2.8 million horses were vaccinated in 19 states and the District of Columbia last year.

By appearance, VEE is not distinguishable from Eastern and Western forms of encephalitis. Symptoms range from fever, loss of appetite and depression to stupor, weakness, staggering, blindness and death. More than 60 percent of infected horses die.

All horse owners should be encouraged to report any sickness in horses suspected of being encephalitis to their local veterinarian.

designated "high risk" states by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The four categories of horses that should be vaccinated now are: (1) unvaccinated horses that have recently moved into the state; (2) foals born since last year's vaccination drive; (3) foals vaccinated under six months of age; (4) horses that were overlooked and never vaccinated.

Officials of the USDA's Animal and Plant Health Service believe that VEE will break out again even though the disease was confined to 25 Texas counties in 1971. So, it's important to vaccinate now before mosquitoes which transmit the disease emerge in the warm months ahead.

This year the vaccination program will be conducted at the horse owner's expense. Commercial vaccine is available and must be administered by a veterinarian.

Sorghum Rules Relaxed

Grain Sorghum Producers Executive Director Elbert Harp was notified this week by U. S. Dept. of Agriculture officials that the set-aside regulations have been relaxed for farmers who produce both wheat and summer row-crops.

Under the new regulation, a farmer who has wheat set-aside will be asked to designate his intended set-aside for cotton and grain sorghum at the time of wheat certification. However, if for any reason he wishes to change his set-aside later, he may do so by notifying the county ASCS office at the time of certifying his grain sorghum and cotton.

Prior to this adjustment, a change could have been made only with the approval of the county ASCS office, which unduly complicated the farming operation at the time of starting crops in the spring.

The Grain Sorghum Producers Association and the Plains Cotton Growers Association have been working on this problem with the USDA for over a month.
