

P-T-A PRESENTS PICTURE AT ONE OF YEAR-END PROGRAMS

HORACE MANN PICTURE GIVEN FOR BUILDING

Officers Installed, Committees Named For Year

The ward school named for Horace Mann, noted American educator, received a picture of him yesterday, presented with an appropriate program at a meeting of the Parent-Teacher association. This year is being observed as the centennial of education in Massachusetts where he earned the title, "father of public schools."

A handsome picture of the educator was purchased by the association from funds given for that purpose by the late T. D. Hobart and his family. Miss Josephine Thomas, principal, made the presentation.

She quoted two remarks of Horace Mann: "The common school is the greatest discovery ever made by man," and "No man is truly educated who does not practice according to the laws of God."

"He taught that we must educate the souls of children and teach them to think that we must open books to them, give them beauty and music, teach them to love their group and duty to the world. After a hundred years, this concept of education has emerged as the true one, and it is the goal of modern schools," she said.

Mrs. T. D. Hobart was introduced as a special guest, and spoke briefly on character development through overcoming obstacles.

Supt. R. B. Fisher was the principal speaker, discussing the needs of Pampa schools and prospects for their future. "We have good schools because we have good people here," he said. "Continued support of good homes is necessary to keep good schools, good churches, and good citizenship."

Officers for next year were installed by Mrs. J. M. Turner, Parent-Teacher council president, and standing committee chairmen were named by the executive board at this the last meeting of the term.

Mrs. George Alden took office again as president. Mrs. C. L. Lockhart is the vice-president. Mrs. T. A. Cox secretary. Mrs. Emory Noblitt, treasurer. Mrs. Farris Vaughn, historian.

Committee chairmen are: Membership, Mrs. C. B. Adams; publications, Mrs. F. H. Sifton; finance, Mrs. E. L. Husband; study club, Mrs. Jack Starkey; welfare, Mrs. Ralph Paul; hospitality, Mrs. H. E. Stevens; program, Mrs. E. G. Garry; summer health roundup, Mrs. Burt Graham; publicity, Mrs. A. D. Robinson.

Program entertainment was a Spanish fiesta scene by fifth grade pupils of Mrs. M. K. Griffith. Miss Frances McCue gave the devotional reading. Mrs. K. W. Bunch was program leader.

After the meeting, members were invited to see an art display of work done by pupils in Carroll Killebrew's classes.

The attendance award went to Miss Margaret Baldwin's room.

Many folks get such refreshing relief by taking Black-Draught for constipation that they prefer it to other laxatives and urge their friends to try it. Black-Draught is made of the leaves and roots of plants. It does not disturb digestion but stimulates the lower bowel so that constipation is relieved.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Little Bertha came downstairs dragging her suitcase behind her, and Aunt Jean met her just as she was putting on her hat and coat.

"Why, darling, what's happened? Where on earth are you going?"

"Home," said Bertha calmly. "I think I'll go back and stay with Tilda."

"Aren't you having a good time here?" wondered her aunt. Daddy and mother won't be home till Sunday and this is only Wednesday. Tilda won't be there tomorrow and you can't stay in the house alone."

"Then I'll go to Clara's next door," said Bertha. "I guess I can't stay here."

Aunt Jean stooped and took the small figure in her arms. "Tell Jean what's wrong, dear. I though you were having a nice time. And there's the party I'm having for you tomorrow and everything. We're all going to the Zoo on Friday and on Saturday Uncle Jim will be home. What is it? Don't you like the children next door? If that's it, I won't let Anna and Dick come over any more. Maybe you're just homesick."

Just a Matter of Dresses
But Bertha wouldn't tell what the trouble was. Indeed she couldn't because the matter that troubled her and caused her such unhappiness was not quite clear to herself.

However she reluctantly took off her hat and let her aunt slide her coat down. It was an hour before Jean had the slightest inkling of anything.

"Mother said my green sweater was to go with my green plaid dress, and my red coat with the striped dress," Bertha announced. "If I wear my striped dress today, do I have to wear the green sweater?"

A light suddenly dawned. Jean had a habit of experimenting with her niece. Moreover she remembered now that she had said something the day before last about the dress she thought the child out of ear shot, about thinking that her sister could dress her in better taste. Bertha was proud of a little silk her mother had made, and was all set to wear it to her party, but her aunt had taken her downtown and bought a white linen, very plain.

Straightening Matters Out
The child felt that she was being criticized, and her mother also. She was only seven, but she had her pride.

Suddenly Jean said, "Come here, sweetheart," and took Bertha on her lap.

"I want to tell you something," she said. "I think I made a terrible mistake about that sweater. Your mother was right all the time. It looks best with the plaid. And the red certainly belongs with the striped one. Then I've been thinking too about your new dress, dear. It really is too plain for a party and your blue silk is just too beautiful, anyway. Your mother gets you lovely things, and I just don't know anything."

Bertha was instantly happy. "I do like it here, aunty," she sighed. "Why, you know, I didn't want to go home at all."

We must be, oh, so careful, not to wound a little child in its loyalties.

Family Night To Be Observed at Church Service

Family night will be observed tonight at the First Methodist church revival. Special recognition will be given to largest family present. The couples who have been married the longest time and the shortest time will also come in for special recognition. Mrs. R. Flowers will speak on Home, the last message she will deliver during her stay in Pampa.

The following rules for a happy marriage were given this morning at the women's meeting by Mrs. Flowers: Learn to keep love. Love means loyalty. Maintain your mutual reserve. Use common sense about sex. Express your affection. Do not express your disapproval. Do not demand. Avoid the intimate friend. Manage to play together. Be equals. Have faith. Live by yourselves if possible. Do not take things too seriously. Have an understanding about money matters. Don't both get mad at the same time. Establish a church home. Have family religion.

Church loyalty night was observed last night when Evangelist R. J. Flowers gave some rules for killing a church: "Do not come, if you do come, come late. Always take the preacher's faults to everybody. If there is a stranger in the audience stare at him. Do not shake hands with him. Do not bring anyone to church, you might fill it up. If everybody is working harmoniously start a fight. To do the opposite from the above rules will help to keep alive your church."

The First Methodist revival will close Sunday night. The Flowers will conduct a revival meeting in the Tyler Street Methodist church, Dallas, immediately after the one here closes. A special program is planned for Sunday.

SCHOOL HEALTH PROBLEMS ARE TALK SUBJECTS

Sam Houston Group Hears Doctor And Nurse

Health of pupils and pre-school children was the subject of Sam Houston Parent-Teacher association's last program of the term yesterday afternoon. Miss Llewellyn Shelby, school health director, and Dr. Malcolm Brown conducted a panel discussion.

Dr. Brown spoke of contagious and infectious diseases common among school children, saying that whooping cough, smallpox, diphtheria, and typhoid could be completely wiped out if everyone would cooperate by taking preventive serums and vaccines. He answered questions concerning health asked by parents.

Miss Shelby urged parents whose children will start to school next year to have them examined by a competent physician and have defects remedied so the children can start to school without health handicaps. She listed the three things required of pupils entering school here the first time: birth certificate, smallpox vaccination, and summer roundup-blank filled out.

Mrs. Marvin Lewis was in charge of the program. Entertainment numbers were a reading by Louise Eritt of Kelton school in Wheeler county, and two songs by a sextet from Treble Clef club: Mmes. Bob McCoy, W. A. Bratton, Harry Hoare, Sam Irwin, Farris Oden, and H. O. Roberts, accompanied by Mrs. Walter F. G. Stein.

The devotional was by Mrs. Frank Shotwell of Woodrow Wilson P-TA, who spoke on the responsibility of mothers as examples for children.

A past-president's pin was presented to Mrs. F. M. Culbertson, who has headed the organization the past two years. The attendance award went to Mrs. Irwin's room.

FOR CONFERS WITH LEADERS ON COURT BILL

WASHINGTON, May 14 (AP)—Democratic officials in Congress took to the White House today a report on the confused legislative situation in the hope President Roosevelt would make or accept suggestions to clarify it.

The president, returning from a southern fishing trip, reaffirmed objectives on which he based his reelection campaign.

Vice-President Garner, Speaker Bankhead, Senator Robinson (D-Ark) and Representative Rayburn (D-Tex) were invited to confer with him after a morning cabinet meeting.

Much of the basic administration program has jammed behind the court bill or is yet to be submitted. Whether Congress might wind up its work and adjourn by July or stay in session until fall appeared to depend on the President's attitude toward six principal issues.

These were court reorganization, economy, flood control and power development, wage and hour regulation, stabilization of farm prices, and government reorganization.

On the judiciary issue, some administration leaders were reported favoring compromise but were skeptical whether the President would agree.

The outcome of economy proposals was almost as uncertain. The consensus was that the House would grant the $1,500,000,000 requested by the President for next year's relief fund. The Senate—where some of his own counselors demand a reduction—was expected to be less willing.

A presidential message on flood control, conservation and power projects has been ready for days. Senator Norris (Ind-Neb) has drafted a bill proposing seven regional authorities like TVA.

House democratic leaders indicated differences over procedure were delaying the measure.

Baptists Agree 16 Young Enough for Girl to Marry

NEW ORLEANS, May 14 (AP)—The Southern Baptist convention agreed today that "surely 16 is young enough" for a girl to marry. The suggestion of 16 as the minimum marriage age came from the social service commission in its report submitted by A. J. Barton, Wilmington, N. C., to the 4,000 persons attending the convention.

The commission deplored "recent child marriages and saw a need for laws 'more wisely safeguarding and restricting the rite of marriage.' The 'great number' of child marriages was viewed by the commission as revealing 'in a startling way the lack of intelligent moral concern on the part of state legislatures in enacting laws governing the rite of marriage.'

Other national and world problems were touched upon in the report, among them a criticism of "a centralization of power in government, both state and national" that has resulted in the people "rapidly having their rights and liberties abridged and in some instances spurned and trampled under foot."

A section of the report assailed huge military expenditures. The commission admitted "frankly" that "great reverses" have been met in the matter of legal suppression of the manufacture, distribution and sale of intoxicating liquor but was in no way "daunted" in "devotion to total abstinence."

STORIES IN STAMPS

CASTLE BUILT BY ENEMIES

A SHREWD feudal baron of Japan, it is said, forced his enemies to build a great castle for him at their own expense.

The structure today is the chief pride of Nagoya, great modern metropolis of central Japan. So magnificent was the work that it impoverished the baron's enemies, and they had no money left to equip an army against him.

Its royal apartments are decorated with rare woods, carvings, and painted panels. One painting of a tiger was considered so lifelike that its eyes were omitted, lest it seem to pounce upon those who view it.

Topping the castle are two giant dolphins shingled with ancient gold coins. One day, legend recalls, a daring Japanese suspended himself from a kite, sailed over the dolphins and tried to snatch some of the precious scales.

He was discovered, disgraced, and forced to commit hara-kiri. Now the dolphins are shrouded in steel nets.

A view of this castle appears on a Japanese stamp issued in 1926. (Copyright, 1937, NEA Service, Inc.)

ATTACK ON VENEREAL DISEASE IS OUTLINED

PORT WORTH, May 14 (AP)—Dr. Thomas J. Farran, surgeon general of the United States public health service, today left with leading Texas medical men a broad outline of a three-fold plan for attacking venereal disease.

At its closing session yesterday Dr. Farran, spearhead of a nationwide drive against syphilis, told the State Medical Association convention state and community leaders planned to do their part by ascertaining extent of the disease in their own territories.

A three-sided attack, he said, should encompass education of the public, intelligent administration of curative efforts by doctors, and cooperation of public health units.

YOUTH IN NEW YORK ADMITS KILLING MAN IN FORT WORTH AND 2 OTHERS ON CRIME TOUR

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., May 14 (AP)—Lester Brockelhurst, 23-year-old paroled convict and former Sunday school teacher, sat moodily in a Dutchess county cell today, three men dead from his gun in what Lieutenant H. A. Gay of the state police called a six-weeks' crime tour.

His victims, named by Gay from reports received from police, were: Albin Theander, 47, Rockford, Ill., tailor.

Jack Griffith, Fort Worth, Texas, tavern owner.

Victor Gates, of Little Rock, Ark. Locked up in another cell of the county jail was Bernice Felton, of Rockford, who had accompanied Brockelhurst on the six weeks trip through the middle west, the south and the east. Brockelhurst also is from Rockford.

But she had nothing to do with the slayings, Brockelhurst was quoted as saying by Lieut. Gay.

The ex-convict, who had served a short term in Joliet penitentiary, Illinois, for an armed robbery in Chicago in 1935, was arrested late yesterday near Brewster when a state trooper happened to notice that a license plate was missing from his car.

CONVICT CUTS OFF FOOT FOR FIVE DOLLARS

HUNTSVILLE, May 14 (AP)—Prison officials today contemplated the grim admission of a 19-year-old convict that he paid $5 to have a fellow inmate chop off his foot above the ankle.

William H. Shoemaker, serving two years for theft from Tarrant county, was quoted by prison manager O. J. S. Ellingson as stating he calmly stretched out on the ground, placed his foot on a brick and let another convict swing a razor-edged axe through his leg.

Shoemaker remained in a serious condition.

The convict's reason for allowing the mutilation, Ellingson said, was that he was tired of working in the Harlem prison farm gardens. He had been placed with a hot squad three days previously to be "toughened up."

Ellingson said Orville Watson, Coryell county prisoner, and Eugene Wynn, from Tarrant county, related other grisly details. The prison manager reconstructed the facts thus:

Shoemaker remarked to Watson at lunch time Wednesday he would give him "$5 to chop off my leg." Watson replied: "Fine."

After lunch the three convicts went between two buildings where Watson placed a brick in position. They discussed whether one blow would suffice to sever the foot cleanly, finally deciding it would.

"Shoemaker stretched out on the ground and placed his foot on the brick," Ellingson said. "Wynn swung the axe and ran. Watson dragged the bleeding Shoemaker from between the sheds and shouted for help."

GIVEN LIFE SENTENCE. ANSON, May 14 (AP)—Mrs. L. Damsby today was working life sentence for the poison death of Mrs. J. T. King, her 81-year-old landlady. A jury yesterday found her guilty of murder after studying the case four hours. Testimony had been introduced to show the aged woman died April 2 after drinking poisoned lemonade. Other testimony was that Mrs. Damsby had borrowed $380 from Mrs. King and obtained $500 additionally by filling in checks unwittingly signed by the victim.

When the trooper saw a loaded revolver in the car he took the pair to the Fishkill barracks of the state police.

Brockelhurst, blond and freckled, was calm.

Admits Crimes. "I looked him over," Lieut. Gay said, "and just on a chance, said: 'You've been pulling stickups all over the country, haven't you?'"

"He said, 'Yes, and I pulled a couple of murders, too.'"

Then, Gay said, the story came out. Brockelhurst, formerly of Galesburg, Ill., was released from the penitentiary on parole, went to Rockford. There he met the Felton girl. They became friendly. On March 31, they disappeared from town.

On the same day, Gay said, Theander disappeared with his car. Sometime later the tailor was found outside the town, a bullet in his head. Lieut. Gay said Brockelhurst admitted he robbed and killed Theander.

Went to Texas. From Rockford the couple went to Salt Lake City, Gay said. Then their course turned southeast to Dallas and Fort Worth, Texas. On April 28, Griffith, the tavern proprietor, tried to stop a holdup. A bullet was Brockelhurst's answer, Gay said.

With the girl the young desperado next moved on to Little Rock, and on May 6, they started for Memphis on foot. Gates, the third victim, gave them a lift. Brockelhurst shot him dead, Gay said, robbed him and tossed his body into a ditch.

Inspector Harold Nugent of the state police also said Brockelhurst had admitted the three killings.

In their wanderings, Nugent and Gay said, Brockelhurst committed a number of robberies, including one in Nashville, Tenn., and one in Pittsburgh, Pa.

After a Pittsburgh holdup, Gay said, Brockelhurst held up a bakery in Philadelphia, and then began "just riding around the country," eventually reaching Dutchess county. He had planned a holdup in Pittsfield, Mass., Gay said.

Brockelhurst's arrest, Lieut. Gay recalled, was similar in circumstances to the seizure of Merle Vandebush, middle west desperado, only a few miles away at Katonah, N. Y., by a local officer who stopped his car for a minor traffic violation.

Had Less Than Dollar. Brockelhurst and Miss Felton, who had less than a dollar between them, were held as fugitives from justice, and for illegal possession of a revolver.

Lieut. Gay said he understood the chief of police of Rockford was flying to New York to seek extradition of Brockelhurst.

Assistant District Attorney Eli Gellert of Dutchess county, said the first state to send a representative here to claim the alleged killer would get him.

JAYCEES WILL PLAY BORGER CLUB SUNDAY

The Pampa Junior chamber of commerce softball team, with a well-rounded ten in uniform, will invade Borger Sunday afternoon for a game with the Borger Jaycees. The local "gang" will meet in front of the City Barber shop on North Cuyler street at 1 o'clock.

Game time will be 3 o'clock on the diamond south of the Huber Carbon and Continental Oil company offices. Business Manager Harvey Downs of the Pampa Jaycees wants every member of his team ready to leave on time. Any player who can not make the trip should contact him at the barber shop by noon tomorrow.

Borger's Jaycees are said to have a crack club lined up this season. They will play a return engagement here. The Pampa clubmen swapped the Christians on Tuesday evening and on Wednesday won a 7 to 5 game from the Texas Company.

Sports Roundup

By EDDIE BRITZ

NEW YORK, May 14 (AP)—Hunch players went down in a body on Prince Turley, son of Prince of Wales and trained by Mr. Simpson at Pimlico the other day. . . The hoss ran second to Heartease. . . Believe it or not one of the victims was a woman named Warfield, Glenn Cunningham, the great miler, expects an heir in a week or so. . . By the way, is there any truth to the rumor Glenn plans to hang up the spikes?

Only five games separate the first and last teams in the American league this morning. What we want to know is how well Minnesota ever let that red-headed Italian—Reginald Coladagelli from Evelyn, Minn.—who may be a whiz in the Marquette backfield this fall, get away from it. . . Trade winds are blowing around the majors. . . New story has Brooklyn sending pitcher Baker, infielder Butcher and outfielder Wilson to the Phillies for pitcher Passau and catcher Atwood. . . Another has the Cards trying to trade Leo Durocher to Cincinnati for Billy Myers and $15,000. . . The $55,000 is the rub there.

En route east from California to join the Phillies, Dolph Camilli had two blowouts in Wyoming, burned out his bearings in Nebraska, broke a piston rod in Illinois and wound up buying a new car in Ohio. . . New York printers will be distressed to learn that Alex Wopchewicz remains on the job with the Fordham football team and that such good ones as Holovak, Fortunato and Petroskas will be along this fall.

NO HIT GAME
LAFAYETTE, La., May 14 (AP)—Trust E. Richardson's "honey-moon" hurling for Lafayette in the Evangeline league pitched him today in baseball's hall of fame. Richardson and Miss Dorthea Mahan of Wichita Falls, Tex., were married Wednesday night at home plate in the ball park here. Last night Richardson pitched a no-hit game against Lake Charles as Lafayette won 5-0. He struck out nine batters and gave no walks. Two Lake Charles batters reached first base on errors.

SAFETY EMPHASIZED IN TALKS BY KIWANIS

The safety theme was emphasized at the regular weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis club Friday in line with the civic club's Annual Safety Week now under way in Pampa.

James M. Collins, president of the Board of City Development, addressed the club on the topic, "Safety." J. B. Massa, chairman of the safety committee, gave a report of committee activities for the year.

The club voted to enter a float in the Top of Texas Fiesta next month. It was also announced that the club will observe Golden Rule week as the program feature next week.

Harry Miner, musical director of the First Baptist Church, entertained with a vocal solo.

Chris Martin, president of the club, announced that there will be a meeting of presidents of the Lions, Rotary, Jaycees, and Kiwanis club with the City commission at 7:45 o'clock in City Hall Monday night.

At that time arrangements will be made to build a grandstand for the "knot-hole gang" at Pampa baseball games in Road Runner park.

'CABBAGES' WILL BE PRESENTED FOR LIONS

CAPITOL JIGSAW

By HOWARD C. MARSHALL

AUSTIN, May 14 (AP)—There has been talk that the day might come when proceedings of the legislature would be broadcast, but it has never been considered seriously.

Recently the Senate adopted a resolution, at the request of Senator Houghton Brownlee of Austin, urging the Federal Communications Commission to transfer a radio license now held by the Agricultural and Mechanical college to a group of Austin men, A. & M., and the University of Texas would be given time on the air for education purposes.

Senator E. M. Davis of Brownwood loudly inquiring whether microphones would be "placed on the desk of each senator."

Said Brownlee: "I think most of the senators don't need mikes."

Gov. James V. Allred, in a message vetoing the rule of the legislature, criticized what he said was a minority in the senate for "thwarting the will of the people and the legislature."

His shafts were aimed chiefly at the group which had opposed action on the bill to repeal the law which four years ago legalized the certificate system of wagering on horse racing.

A peculiar lineup was observed, and occasioned much merriment in the senate, after the governor later vetoed a bill exempting merchant-owned trucks from contract-carrier regulations.

The champion of the forces opposing repeal of the race betting statute, Senator Frank Rawlings of Fort Worth, was found leading the fight to prevent overriding of the veto of the truck bill.

One story was that the governor had good-naturedly told Rawlings, who had bitterly opposed the bill even before it reached the executive desk, he was depending on that "willful minority" to prevent passage over the veto.

One of the chief indictments against the 120-day session of the legislature, Gov. Allred says, is that too much detail on procedure was written into the constitution. The first of the 120-day sessions was in 1921. For several years previously they ran 60 days, and according to veteran members who served in both types, about as much was achieved in the shorter as in the longer sessions.

The constitution says the first 30 days of the 120-day session shall be devoted to production of bills, the next 30 to committee hearings and the final 60 to floor action. The legislature never has followed this procedure wholly because, for various reasons, it is impracticable.

The governor's view is that it was a serious mistake to write into the constitution the 30-30-60 order of business.

"It has gotten to where we use the regular sessions to pass local and uncontested bills," he said, "and have special sessions to settle the more important controversial matters."

Oratory, some good and some bad, may be heard at almost any time in either the Senate or the House. It ebbs and flows as legislators voice their likes and dislikes, their hopes, disappointments, and grievances, in fact, their views on anything.

Occasionally there is an abrupt pause, however. A speaker may be in full flight of eloquence when a gavel will bang and the dry voice of the presiding officer will announce the appointment of a conference committee, the signing of a bill, or some other piece of routine business.

Then, the business concluded, the gavel will bang again, the voice will say "all right, go on," and the speaker will resume. The speakers seem not to mind the interruptions. They can turn on or cut off their oratory at will.

They know that the business of the legislature has to be right-of-way over the speeches if anything is achieved.

show is worked out with great authenticity, Goodwin said. The big volcano used in the first scene will be made to erupt in all the splendor the ingenuity of the world's best authorities can fashion.

For the roles requiring lines spoken in the Aztec language, Jose Villardell, Fort Worth artist and probably the only person in the United States who knows the tongue, has been assigned to translate the dialogue and coach the actors in the correct pronunciation.

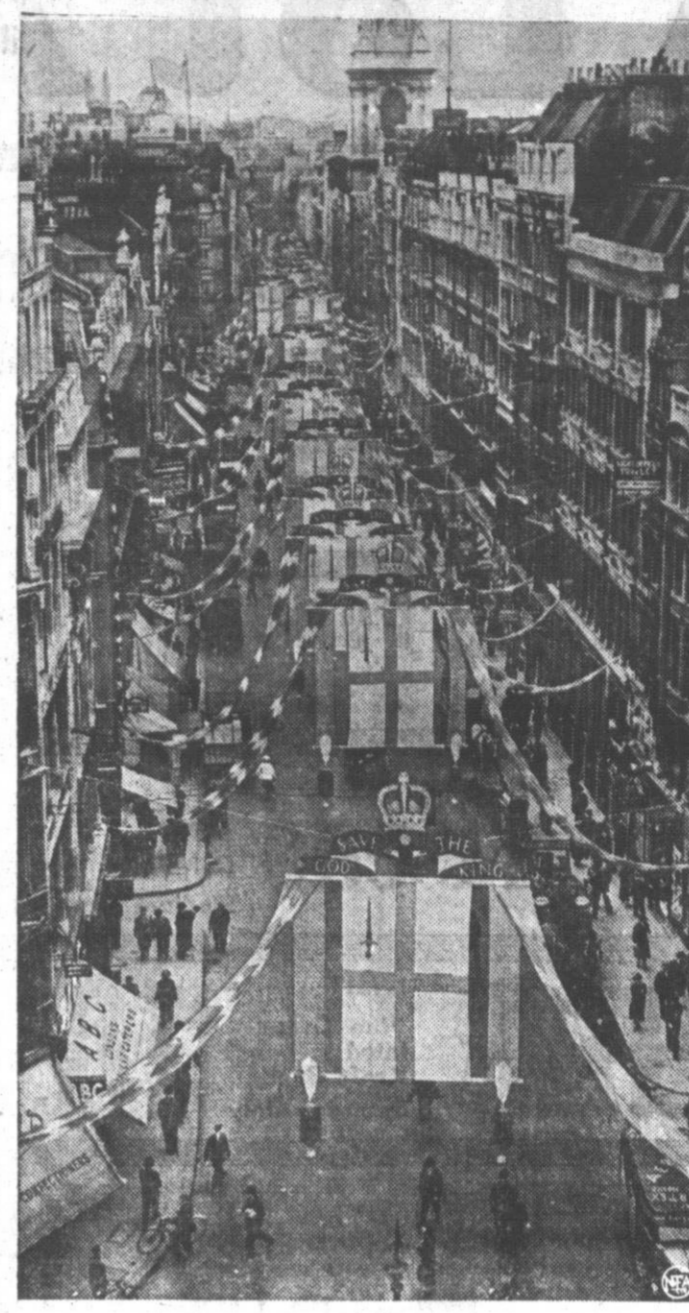

300 Actors in Cast
Although the cast will number 300 actors, each and every one must be unusually versatile to portray properly the hundreds of roles the story calls for. A speaking cast will interpret the dialogue of some 2,500 characters during each performance of the production.

an ambulance for a man had been hurt."

Quinn's statement to newspaper men was substantially the same as he made to officers who were summoned by the hotel and who placed him under arrest.

Detectives said they found Hicks lying about 15 feet down the hall from Quinn's door. Quinn readily admitted them when they knocked at his door and turned over a .25 caliber pistol.

At a hospital to which he was rushed by ambulance Hicks was pronounced dead. There was a bullet wound in his neck and a shell was found lodged in his shirt collar.

City Detective N. M. Morris filed the murder charge in the court of Justice of the Peace Paul T. Holt.

Going To Beaumont

Quinn said he planned to go to his home in Beaumont during the day and see his wife and 17-year old son. He talked to Mrs. Quinn by telephone.

A tall, gray-haired man, Quinn is one of the oldest members of the legislature in point of service. He was first elected in 1920 and has served intermittently in four legislatures. He has been engaged in the real estate business at Beaumont for many years.

W. L. Stark, manager of the hotel, accompanied Quinn and several other of the representative's friends to the courtroom of Justice Holt. Bondsmen included Senator Allan Shivers of Fort Arthur and Rep. Alf Roark of Saratoga.

F. L. Kuykendall, Quinn's attorney, who accompanied him from the court house to the hotel where they ate breakfast, said the Beaumont man would waive examining trial on the murder complaint.

"The grand jury, which recessed recently, was to resume its investigations May 24."

Witness Depicts Shooting

The man who was with Hicks at the time of the shooting, John R. Starrett, is chief physicist for an Austin oil company.

"Sterret, a slight man of about 60, claimed Hicks did not strike at Quinn or threaten him.

"Two glasses and a bottle had been thrown against the hall door of my room," Sterret told newspapermen.

"When the last one was thrown, I got scared and decided to do something about it."

"I told Hicks: 'I'll just go see that gentleman.' He replied: 'I'll go along and watch the sport.'"

"When I reached Quinn's door, I knocked and he asked who was there."

"I inquired: 'Are you the man who has been complaining and causing all this disturbance?' and he replied, 'I may be.'"

"I said, 'Come on out then, you dirty rat, and let's see what you look like.'"

"He came out throwing his arms and waving a pistol like a crazy man and I yelled to Hicks: 'Look out, that fellow's got a gun.'"

"He hit me with the pistol and kicked at me. The next I heard was that little cap pistol shooting."

"Hicks was leaning against the door jamb eating a sandwich. He started to fall and I caught him."

"I was responsible for Hicks being killed. He just went along with me and stood there eating a sandwich. We had had sandwiches and beer brought to the room just a few minutes before."

"That boy (Hicks) had 16 shrapnel holes which he got in the world war and to think he was killed with that 'pop gun.'"

Helen Poolos Takes First in Violin

Helen Poolos of Pampa won a first-place rating as a violin soloist in the national school band and orchestra contests at Oklahoma City today, high school officials learned in a telegram from Winslow Savage, Harvester band director who accompanied the soloists from here.

Other Pampa high school students who are entering solo contests are Arvo Godard, who plays the bass horn, and Robert Kilgore, in baton twirling. The three won first rank in North Texas contests here last month. The Junior High band, which took similar rank is enroute to Oklahoma City today to play tomorrow.

Principal A. C. Cox, Principal R. A. Selby, several teachers and parents accompany them.

Helen is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Poolos, is 15 years old and a junior in high school. Her solo was Meditation from Massenet's "Thais." Her sister, Myrene, accompanied her to Oklahoma City.

Hubbell Wins 21st Straight Game As Pirates Go Down

BY SID FEDER.
Associated Press Sports Writer.

The only man in baseball who wasn't all steamed up today over Carl Hubbell's all-time winning streak was (you guessed it) Carl Owen Hubbell, himself.

Naturally, "squarepants" took pride in his string of 21-in-a-row over a two-season stretch, an achievement never before accomplished in all baseball history. But he realizes that one of these days, the law of averages is going to catch up with his good left arm—and then the Hubbell bubble will be "busted."

"You know," he repeated what he has said time and again, "a streak like that is largely a matter of luck. One of these days a pitcher is going to be hot against us and is going to shut us out."

"Every time I go out there to pitch, I'm not thinking so much of the streak. It's the immediate game on hand that I'm working on. Of course, I want to continue the streak, but largely because I'm paid to win ball games. I'll go on winning them until some club catches up with us."

Until then, however, he's still the New York Giants' "meal ticket" who comes through with that win when it's needed; still the screwball specialist whose 5-2 win over the Pirates yesterday topped off a performance that outclasses the streaks of the Madison, the Johnson or the Marquard.

The queer part about the whole business is that the National League doesn't recognize the streak as a record. The only distance flinging feat given official sanction are the 19 straight by Tim Lincecum in 1888 and Rube Marquard in 1912. The Rube also had won his last start in 1911, for a run of 20 straight.

Yesterday's was "Hubb's" fifth straight this year and hooked into his unfinished run of 16 last season. But the streak is going to get for the job is special notation in the books, that he won 21 in a row in league competition for a two-year stretch.

Since last July he has whipped every outfit in the league at least once, and every team except Boston at least three times.

Joining him in breaking into the record books yesterday was Joe Kuhel, Washington's first baseman, who belted three triples to tie a modern major league mark and lead the way to a 10-2 win over the White Sox, ending the Senators' three-game losing streak.

A revamped batting order paid dividends for the New York Yankees as they nosed out the St. Louis Browns 4-2 and moved up to a third place tie in the American league. Joe DiMaggio, batting in the clean-up spot in Lou Gehrig's slot, clubbed out a triple and two singles.

Brooklyn's upsetting Dodgers turned in their fourth straight win, topping the Cincinnati Reds 6-4, while the Chicago Cubs went 12 innings before downing Boston's Bees 8-6 and the St. Louis Cardinals continued their Baker bowl belting with a 5-4 conquest of the Phillies.

Making his major league starting debut, George Gill pitched a five-hit shutout as the Tigers topped the Red Sox 4-0. For the second straight day, the Athletics and Cleveland were rained out.

Smith Opposes Don Schumacher In Golf Match

BY LEWIS T. NORDYKE.
HOUSTON, May 14 (AP)—Defending Champion Don Schumacher and Reynolds Smith, two of the leading golfers in Texas, opposed each other in a quarter-final match in the thirty-first annual state amateur tournament on the River Oaks course today.

The two Dallas aces, paired in the same bracket and without a chance to meet in the finals, had little trouble in eliminating opponents in the first and second round. However, in about equal competition, Schumacher had been shooting considerably better golf than the black-headed Walker Cup player.

Although today's chief interest in the quarter- and semi-finals was centered on the Schumacher-Smith match, six other shotmakers were shaking sticks at par.

The pairings: Morris Norton, Wichita Falls, vs. Dick Nault, Houston. Billy Bob Coffey, Fort Worth, vs. Collins Gaines, Texarkana. Harry Todd, Dallas, vs. David L. Davis, Tyler. Reynolds Smith, Dallas, vs. Don Schumacher.

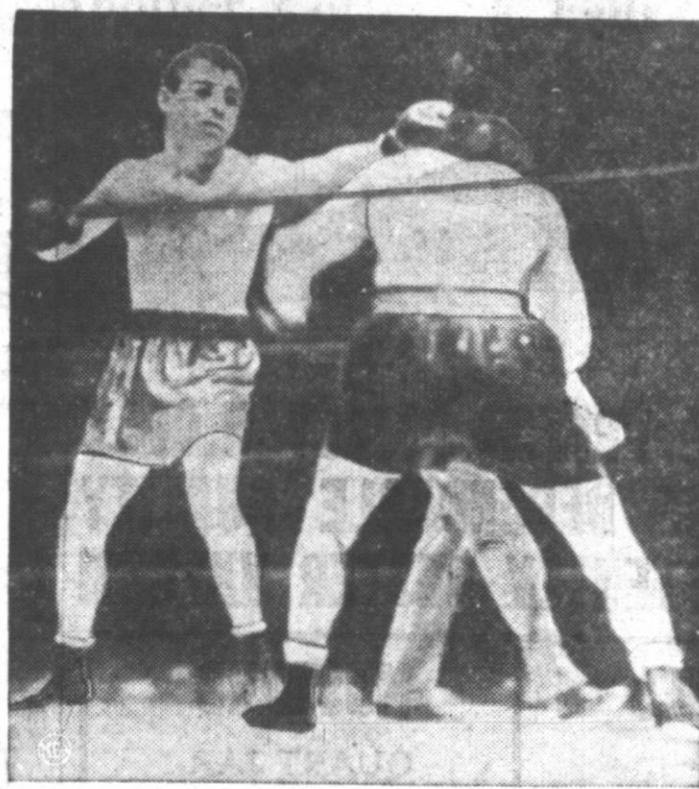

The 36-hole finals will be played tomorrow.

The Texas Amateur Golf association will hold its annual meeting this evening and select the course for next year's tournament. The Colonial course in Fort Worth and the Texarkana Country club, scene of the recent Texas Women's tournament, were bidding for the 1937 meet.

Grand Finale

AUSTIN, May 14 (AP)—The grand finale to the collegiate track and field season in Texas started here today with athletes participating in preliminaries to the Southwest conference meet. Qualifying heats in the 100, 220 and 440-yard dashes and high and low hurdles dug up the chinders in Memorial Stadium this afternoon with finals scheduled tomorrow afternoon.

Another Comeback Fails

HOUSTON AND DALLAS DEFEAT GALVESTON AND FORT WORTH

WHERE THEY PLAY TODAY.
San Antonio at Tulsa.
Beaumont at Oklahoma City.
Galveston at Fort Worth.
Houston at Dallas.
(All night games.)

Like the oft-mentioned worm, Steers and Buffaloes can turn too. To prove it, one could cite the rebellious last night of Dallas and Houston Texas league clubs against long losing streaks that have plunged them deep into the second division.

The Steers, cellar tenants, finally came to life against Galveston, riling timely hits off Jack Jakucki for a 7-3 victory after four straight losses. The game was the first this season the Steers took from the Buccaneers and prevented the South Texans from moving into the league lead.

Alex Gaston, Dallas' manager, attributed some share of the long-awaited victory to a lineup shift which sent Paschal to second and Les Mallon to third.

Houston likewise got its sights correct to bombard Fort Worth into a 10-to-7 defeat, after losing two straight games to the Cats. Smoll, LeBlanc and Gravin were rushed to the hill successively but could not prevent Houston getting 17 hits. Fisher allowed Fort Worth 12.

San Antonio's Padres slipped past Fort Worth into the first division in hanging another defeat on the

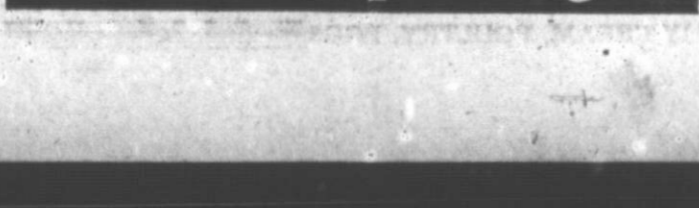

Paul Jarboe, who for 28 years has had charge of storing Glenmore whiskey, says:

"Corrugated iron warehouses is the old-fashioned way—but the difference sure does tell in the taste"

"Warehousing whiskey on open racks, so the air can circulate all 'round the barrels, costs more—but we couldn't produce that wonderful taste any other way."

Mint Springs Kentucky Straight Bourbon Whiskey is made from the same high quality American grains—by the same processes—as Glenmore's finest, most expensive brands.

BELL DEPENDS ON MORRISON AND STIDGER

DALLAS, May 14 (AP)—Skipper Madison Bell is reasonably certain his Southern Methodist Mustangs will be a "good, rugged team by fall," but he's a trifle afraid some of the other Southwest conference clubs will be better.

"Oh, I'm going to have a good club all right," mused Bell in looking back over his spring drill, "not too strong, understand, but a good, rugged bunch. I'm slow on ball carriers."

He admitted, however, that he had a lot of confidence in Bob Bellville, a strapping junior who was kept out of competition last fall. In fact, he always seemed to get back to Bellville in his conversation. He may be groomed for the fullback slot.

Jack Morrison, son of Coach Ray Morrison, out most of last season with a broken ankle, will be back and in fine fettle. He will be depended upon for most of the passing and a great deal of the kicking.

"Bill Dewell, my big end; Matthews, a guard; Charlie Sprague, who went great after I shifted him from center to tackle, and Johnny Harlow, a fine running back, are the veterans who looked good in the spring," commented Bell. "Johnny Stidger may come through as a fine ball carrier and passer this season."

He liked the way Nolen Jackson and Wally Bearden, a couple of juniors for college transfers, handled themselves in the backfield and was also impressed with Curk, a sophomore tackle, and Beeseeley, another tackle.

Guynes, Goodson, Busacker, Everheart and Ewing, the latter two newcomers to the squad, will do the kicking in the absence of Bob Finley, one of the loop's greatest booters of all times.

Bell, however, qualified his statement that his Mustangs should be better than last year's squad, by predicting the same thing for nearly every other club in the circuit.

The Mustangs, after a great start last year, floundered in mid-season and fell before Texas A. & M., Arkansas and Baylor before winding up by whipping Rice and holding T. C. U. to a scoreless tie.

Hawaiian All Stars Play Here

We have pictured here William "Buck" Lai, manager of the famous Hawaiian baseball team, and some of his "grass skirt dancers" who will be featured in games with the Pampa Oilers at Road Runner park on Monday and Wednesday nights of next week. The Hawaiians will play a portion of the game in their grass skirts and will then put on a dance. Game time will be 8:30 p. m., but fans, especially the women who want to see some of the island styles, will be on hand long before that hour. The Hawaiians boast one of the strongest teams ever to leave the land of pineapples. Last year Pampa's crack team had difficulty nosing out the visitors. A few of last year's players will be with the team.

CHAMP SPEAR HURLER BEGINS SUMMER TOUR

ABILENE, May 14 (AP)—Freckled Alton Terry, currently the United States' top javelin chucker, claims it's all just a big accident.

Now en route to the Fresno, Calif., relays, where Saturday he will seek another relay carnival record, Terry, willowy Hardin-Simmons university senior, is starting a summer jaunt that will carry him to Japan.

Six feet tall but weighing only 165 pounds, Terry blazes when he tells how his spear tossing career started.

"I was a student at Brady high school and a very rotten sprinter. One day, at a county championship meet after the javelin throwers had set a new county record, I picked up a stick and chucked it. The thing went far beyond the other marks."

That time Terry's heave didn't count in the scoring but from then on he was the team's javelin representative.

The likeable youngster who finished sixth in the Olympic javelin throw and first among the American entries, is improving steadily. He holds such marks as 219.6 feet set at the Texas relays, 222.6 feet, Drake relays, 229.2 at Kansas relays and 229.6 for his national intercollegiate title.

He plans to really bear down and go after a new record during the national intercollegiate meet at Berkeley, Calif., on June 19. Later he will leave for a tour of Japan under auspices of the national A. U.

The raw-boned West Texan, who could win almost any Irckle contest hands down, carries an old broom for a companion. He works his fingers over the handle constantly to keep his right hand toughened and in constant shape.

"Good javelin throwers," said 24-year-old Terry, "utilize their back muscles and shoulders to get distance. Too many Americans use their arms. You should always carry the stick close to the body—and a slow takeoff is a lot less likely to throw the chucker off balance."

Incidentally, the king of America's stick throwers has but one javelin. It cost less than $5 and is a trifle shoptown.

John Henry Lewis To Fight Perroni

NEW YORK, May 14 (AP)—John Henry Lewis, master of the light heavyweight situation, will enter heavyweight class tonight in Madison Square Garden, against Patsy Perroni, who hangs his fame on the dubious peg of having gone ten rounds with Joe Louis.

John Henry, a 3 to 1 favorite, has cast sheep eyes at the top weight ever since he established himself as the light heavy champion. He fights Bob Olin in St. Louis next month, and if he wins will vacate the title and campaign as a heavy.

INDIANAPOLIS LOSES TO ST. PAUL 6 TO 5

CHICAGO, May 14 (AP)—Sergeant Gabby Street's St. Paul men blew a two-run lead yesterday, then tied the score twice before going on to defeat Indianapolis, 6 to 5, in 10 innings, for their third straight victory in the American association.

Whitey Wilshere was credited with the victory.

Kansas City remained in a fifth place tie by shoving over a run in the ninth to defeat Toledo 3 to 2.

EIGHT BRITONS DIE IN BLAST ON DESTROYER

LONDON, May 14 (AP)—The British admiralty officially announced today that eight men were killed aboard the destroyer Bluntler yesterday when it was rocked by an explosion just off the government-held city of Almeria in the southern Spanish coast.

Despite the insistence of Spanish government sources at Valencia and Almeria that the blast was caused by an attack from a German submarine, a floating mine and during the months of Spanish civil war was understood to have been definitely established as the cause of the disaster.

The official announcement came as the admiralty launched an investigation at Almeria to determine who and the mine and the responsibility for what observers believed would be a stern probe.

Twenty other members of the crew of the Bluntler were injured, some of them seriously by the shattering explosion which ripped open the destroyer's bow in mid-afternoon.

Dispatches from Gibraltar said the destroyer was on duty as a unit of the international "hands off Spain" patrol when the shock the floating mine about four miles off the southeastern corner of Spain where it juts out into the Mediterranean.

GERALTA, May 14 (AP)—The insurgent Spanish command at Sanmarcos charged today the explosion which crippled the British destroyer Bluntler and killed eight of her crew was "a standardly red masterpiece."

Blaming the Spanish government was to blame an official insurgent communiqué based its "red masterpiece" promise on the "cruelty and immediate assistance rendered by red vessels." By that it meant the Spanish government warships which removed survivors from the Bluntler off Almeria.

The British hospital ship Mainz was sent to Almeria from Gibraltar to bring back the dead and wounded.

Bedouen was expert at playing the violin, organ, piano and guitar.

There are 10,000 miles of railways in Sweden.

SENATE AGAIN FAILS TO ACT ON RACE BILL

WASHINGTON, May 14 (AP)—It was up to the Senate today to bring the overdue general session of the legislature to a close on May 22.

Refusal to act some time during the day on the House's resolution to that effect would void the offer. A similar proposition of its own has just introduced on the upper legislative chamber's table. The lawmakers have been on half-pay since Tuesday.

Probability of sale by the drink of hard liquor was killed for good this session when the Senate yesterday voted it down as an amendment to the general liquor legislation bill under consideration. The House rejected the same amendment prior to approving the bill.

The House sent to the governor a bill requiring examinations for drivers licenses and continued work on the departmental appropriation budget. By approving a $5,000,000 per year mural school aid appropriation the Senate cleared the stage of major "money" bills. Administration would remain with the superintendent of public instruction by terms of the proposal.

The upper chamber witnessed another futile attempt to bring the House more bustling repeal issue to a head. A motion to set it for special consideration was ruled out of order.

Governor James V. Alfred has stuck to his guns in saying he would call a special session immediately upon adjournment of the present one if the upper chamber failed to vote directly upon the House-approved waiving repeal proposal.

Don't Be Bashful--Step Up And Meet Dale Carnegie!

Nobody (except possibly his publisher) is more pleasantly surprised than Dale Carnegie that his red-covered book, "How to Win Friends and Influence People," soon will have sold over 300,000 copies and is at the top of best-seller lists throughout the country. Carnegie himself prefers a book he wrote about Abraham Lincoln. . . But nobody is LESS surprised than Dale Carnegie by the monster throngs that attend his classes in New York and his lectures in other cities. Carnegie always explains that they are not there to see him, but to solve their own problems. . . Who is this new leader of popular thought, this High Priest of the post-depression Go-Getters who "has something" that increasing millions of people want to read and hear about? The article below - an interview with him and a background picture of his life - is a revealing word-view of America's Fundit of Popularity.

A woman well known in Manhattan's upper society busily records the aphorisms of Dale Carnegie at the opening of "Get Acquainted" session of the new term.

Unaccustomed as she is to even semi-public speaking, the young pupil, above, succumbed to a violent attack of the giggles when required to address the class and felt obligated to call for Mr. Carnegie himself.

But the soothing influence of America's Number One prophet of personality had an almost mesmerizing effect when he came to her rescue. In his presence, the nervous student calmed down and was able to face the mike.

By MORRIS GILBERT
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK, May 14 - "Be a good listener. Encourage others to talk about themselves," says Rule 4 in Chapter Four, Part Two, of Dale Carnegie's famous handbook on charm, "How to Win Friends and Influence People," which its author was amazed the other day to learn had sold over 269,000 copies.
That put it up to Mr. Carnegie. Should Mr. Carnegie encourage the interviewer to talk about himself? This would be guaranteed to make wrong. I was always criticizing, arguing, talking too much."
"I," said the interviewer, "like New York. I don't care much about baseball any more. The best kind of beer is."
"Nobody," said Mr. Carnegie, "was more amazed than I was when the book began to sell up in those figures. I wrote the book for two reasons. First, to correct the mistakes I used to make myself. Years ago I did practically everything wrong. I was always criticizing, arguing, talking too much."
"Now, Mr. Carnegie," said the interviewer, "I want to tell you about the time."
"The second reason I wrote the book," Carnegie continued, "was to have a textbook for the classes in my Institute of Effective Speaking and Human Relations, here in New York. I thought at the most it would sell around fifteen or twenty thousand copies."
"Now, I think," said the interviewer.
"I," said Mr. Carnegie, "have written six books. One of them is much better written than this latest one. It is called 'Lincoln the Unknown.' That is the book I like best among those I've written. It sold less than 10,000 copies."
As I was saying, Mr. Carnegie, the interviewer began.
"The reason," Mr. Carnegie said, "it didn't sell like 'How to Make Friends' was because the thing that interests people most in this world is their own human problems. Come right down to it, isn't the human relation practically YOUR only problem?"
"Yes, Mr. Carnegie," said the interviewer.

Dale Carnegie has the congenial, evangelized expression of a pedagogue untroubled by worry or guile. His greying hair, side-parted, curls in a lavish roll high above the brow. He has discarded those oblong nose glasses of his pictures and replaced them by silver-rimmed spectacles. He talks rapidly and easily.
It's hard for him to keep from quoting himself because his book is peppered with epigrams, and an epigram once knocked together isn't easy to improve on. "Remember that a man's name is to him the sweetest and most important sound in the English language." That's a sample of the Carnegie line. "Make the other fellow feel important - and do it sincerely." Again: "You can't win an argument," he declares with earthy shrewdness. "You can't because if you lose it, you lose it; and if you win it, you lose it." A rule for making home life happier: "Why wait until your wife goes to the hospital to give her a few flowers?"
Carnegie was born in '38, "the year of the Great Blizzard," on a farm near Mayville, Mo. The family was mighty poor, but Dale Carnegie's father sent Dale and his brother to school and college. "If I leave you money," Dale's father said, "somebody's liable to come along and beat you out of it. They can't take away an education."
Hard luck dogged the Carnegies on their Mayville farm, and pretty soon they trekked to Warrensburg, Mo. His parents' ambition kept Dale in State Teachers' College there. The farm was three miles out of town. Dale was too poor to spend the dollar a day it cost to live at the college, so he rode in on horseback every day.
"My clothes were awful," he said. "Hand-me-downs. I developed a terrible inferiority complex. That's the reason for the work I'm doing now. If I had good clothes and lots of money, I don't suppose I'd be interested in it. It's compensation."
He went in for debating at college. He was a flop at first, then he began to win. He was so good in local debates that he started a correspondence school. It failed. He became a salesman. A hard grinding period set in for him when he sold and traded and played poker and rode the range all up and down the West.
Jan. 11, 1917, found him arriving in New York. He went on to street, touring in "Polly of the Circus." He wasn't a good actor. Pretty soon he was trying to sell the idea of courses in public speaking in New York college extension courses for adults. The authorities wouldn't hire him, but agreed to let Carnegie start such a course on a percentage basis. He did well. "I had to be practical," he says, "and had to give them something they could use in their daily lives and business."

His "little institute," as he recalls it, "run privately, with no reputation, no endorsement," became a success.
Mr. Thomas H. Nelson is now dean of the school. Its offices are in east 42nd Street, but the classrooms are hotel banquet halls, and classes are limited to 40. There are ten regular teachers, who work evenings, and a few extra ones from time to time. Courses last sixteen weeks. Under the impetus of the famous book, the school is rapidly expanding.
"The classes at the beginning of each term are as funny as a Broadway show," Carnegie says. "Everybody has to make a speech. They're so nervous the first night we let them sit on a table. Later they get better."
He listed his commuters, other than the famous one who came from Havana to prepare to make one three-minute speech down there, after which he was labeled one of Cuba's most sterling orators. A Colgate has been a student. A Colgate has been a student, president of Dun & Brad-

OUT OF BED 9 TIMES A NIGHT

Sluggish Kidneys, Stomach Distress Relieved For Man, 74, by Van-Tage.

Mr. H. J. Shupe, of 308 W. California St., Oklahoma City, Okla., is publicly endorsing Van-Tage, which is the "Amazing Mixture of Nature's Roots and Herbs and Other Splendid Ingredients," now being introduced in this city at the Cretney Drug Store, next to LaNora Theatre.
"I am 74, and if this medicine could do what it did for me at my age, it should help others," said Mr. Shupe. "My stomach would get full of gas so that I had horrible pains all through my stomach. I had sluggish kidneys and I had to get up 9 times a night. I read about Van-Tage and got it, and I want to say to all that Van-Tage was what I needed. It cleared so much gas and bloat from my stomach that I don't have pains now. Can go to bed and sleep all night and am not disturbed by rising with sluggish kidneys. I get up in the mornings feeling fine. So, if Van-Tage could do all this for me it should help others who suffer like I did."
VAN-TAGE contains 21 Great Herbs and nearly a dozen other Splendid Ingredients, which help cleanse bowels, bring forth gas from stomach and invigorate kidney action so that people say they feel different in GENERAL. Van-Tage is reasonable in price, so don't hesitate. Get it - TODAY - at the Cretney Drug Store, next to LaNora Theatre.

Crumpled handkerchief nervously clutched in hand, this girl sits on the table (secret for calming jittery beginners) and awaits the ordeal of her first speech.

PIG HAS WHOPPER OF A NERVOUS BREAKDOWN OVER ELUSIVE APPLE

CAPITOL JIGSAW

By HOWARD C. MARSHALL

AUSTIN, May 14 (AP)—On the surface, the controversy between the senate and Gov. James V. Allred over joint rules for the general session of the legislature that developed when the session was nearing an end, appears to be waning.
The governor vetoed the rules on grounds they gave too much power to a minority in the senate.
The reason for the action was that the governor was seeking a vote, even at the last minute, on the bill to repeal the horse race wagering law and the rules stood in the way. He also feared the rules, if allowed to stand, would enable what he termed "a minority" to continue to block a vote in a special session.
Some senators apparently have been impressed by the talk about the condition of the capitol.
In the midst of debate on joint rules, Senator Weaver Moore of Houston arose to call attention to the manner in which a ceiling fan was "wiggling."
"Just look at it," he said. "Senator Gordon Burns of Huntsville and I are about to go crazy. We demand an inspection of that fan."
The fan hung just over the seats of Moore and Burns.
Senator J. Franklin Spears of San Antonio arose. He has urged a thorough examination and extensive repairs the capitol requires.
"For the information of the senators," said Spears, "I have already inspected that fan and it is in a dangerous condition."
Then the subject was dropped.
Endorsed by the state democratic executive committee, a new history of the party in Texas has been released to subscribers.
Frank Carter Adams of Austin is editor of the four-volume work and various historians and writers are contributors.
In addition to a history of the party from colonial days, life sketches and portraits of persons prominent in Texas democracy at this time are included.
Among those on the advisory board are John N. Garner, Jesse H. Jones, Senators Morris Sheppard and Tom Connally, Albert Sidney Burleson, and others.

County commissioners who frequently come to the capitol seeking highway improvements and any others with business in the highway building might bring along their roller skates or canes, or both.
The suggestion is made by a magazine editor who walked out of an elevator in the building and skidded to a stop flat on his back.
The floors are the slickest of any in the capitol, excepting dance floors. The building, erected about five years ago at a cost of $300,000, is one of the handsomest in the city.

Alimony Sitdowner Unseated But She Reaps Revenge

LONGMONT, Colo., May 14 (AP)—The last laugh had not been laughed today in Longmont's alimony sitdown strike.
True, Mrs. Genevieve Johnson, who had rocked away through 15 days and nights on the front yard of her estranged husband's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Johnson, was unseated before winning her demand for $6.70 a week separate maintenance money.
Mrs. Guy Johnson enjoyed a broad smile when she looked out yesterday and saw Police Chief Orval Barr serve a "nuisance and obstructing traffic" complaint on her daughter-in-law.

MOTHERS ARE RESPONSIBLE

The family looks to you to aid your doctor in keeping them well. You can help prevent much illness and poor health by guarding them from common constipation.
Most constipation comes from faulty diet - meals low in "bulk." This condition can be corrected so easily and pleasantly.
Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides the safe way to prevent constipation by putting "bulk" back in the diet. Within the body, ALL-BRAN absorbs twice its weight in water, forming a soft mass which gently sponges out the system.
Kellogg's ALL-BRAN also furnishes vitamin B and iron. It is so much better for your family than constant dosing with artificial pills and drugs.
Two tablespoons daily as a cereal with milk or cream, or in recipes, are enough for the average person. Three times daily in severe cases.

Parked beside his favorite trout stream, the trailer becomes a completely equipped home in the Northwoods. With a trailer the fisher can go farther and penetrate into more remote country—and not have to worry about getting back to a lodge of camp at night.

International Sunday School Lesson

THE FORBEARANCE OF ISAAC.
Text: Genesis 26:12-25.
BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D.,
Editor of Advance.

As men and women have read the Bible in former days, the tendency has been to think of it as a book of the past. A lesson such as this one about Isaac was considered simply a story about a man who lived long ago and at some place in the early life of the Jewish people. But the records of such lives originally were written by holy men, who intended them for instruction and guidance, and we derive the teachings of a lesson of this kind only as we apply it in some way to our own times.

Isaac was a farmer who had good crops, great flocks and herds. He was what we would call a man of great prosperity, and a man who had a large household and following of people. The neighboring Philistines envied him, and they wished him to go away because they feared his strength and his competition. Isaac showed a rather sensible and forbearing spirit, a spirit that might well be manifested more frequently by people of wealth and power. He accepted the suggestion of the Philistines that he leave, and he established himself in another valley. Here, we are told, he dug again the wells of water which had been dug in the days of Abraham, his father.

There is here an instructive and suggestive statement that throws considerable light upon the narrative. We are told that the Philistines had stopped these wells; just why, it is not stated. Possibly they had done so as a hostile act against the Jewish immigrants. One might think that if the Philistines had been more concerned about opening wells than about stopping them up, they might have had more of the prosperity that they envied and feared in Isaac.

Isaac's removal to the valley of Gerar, however, did not bring him peace. When the wells were opened, the herdsmen of Gerar claimed them, and there was strife about a well which Isaac's servants had found. Isaac still was resourceful, and apparently peacefully disposed. He dug another well, and there was a fight about that also.

But the next well that he dug caused no strife, and he called it "Rehoboth." His justification of the name is interesting. "Jehovah hath made room for us, and we shall be fruitful in the land."
After all, in spite of all the strife about pastures and wells, and the conflict of groups throughout the ages, one may well consider how much room there really is in the universe, and how much the earth can produce for all, if men would really attempt to realize how much room God has made, and how bountifully he has established the fruitfulness of nature.

If men everywhere and at every time had been more concerned with digging wells and keeping them open, than about fighting for control of them and stopping them up, what a different world this would be! And "wells" in this connection applies to more than just springs of water.

Young Democrats Plan Meeting in Dalhart Saturday

DALHART, May 14 — Following a meeting of the executive committee in Dalhart, President Curtis Cobble and Secretary G. L. (Gus) Stanley today announced that the annual convention of the West Texas Young Democrats would be held in Dalhart Saturday, May 29, that date being followed by two holidays.

Among discussion topics will be the U. S. Supreme Court issue, the organized labor situation and its possible sequel, and soil and water conservation. The question will be raised: "Have the true problems of the Dust Bowl been met? If not, what are they and how can they be solved?"

Hon. Reese Tatum, Dalhart, district judge in seven Panhandle counties and recognized as one of the best district jurists in Texas says, "The Young Democrats are now an important part of the Democratic party. Challenges and decisions facing the U. S. are as momentous as any in the nation's history, and Young Democrats following the tried and proven Democratic principles are doubly important to American welfare."

Rosicrucians in America Will Build Pyramid

An Egyptian Pyramid, housing ultra-modern scientific apparatus and all the conveniences of a 20th century tower of business will be erected in America by the Rosicrucians during 1937. Emulating the great pyramid of Cheops built 5,000 years ago, the Rosicrucians pyramid will also be a temple of learning. Its stone chambers will be numbered to correspond to the degrees of advancement of the students who will occupy it.

Arvis Talle, of Pampa, local AMORC Rosicrucian representative, said he was informed by the secretary of the philosophical order in San Jose, Calif., that, like the pyramid of Gizeh, the one to be erected in America will be windowless and the entrance to it will be subterranean. The interior will reflect the skill of modern engineering. Indirect lighting will illuminate the passageways and all lighting fixtures will be concealed. The temperature will be kept at 68 degrees Fahrenheit, which is the constant temperature of the interior of the Great Pyramid.

Neophytes who attend the order's annual convention sessions will receive preparatory initiatory rites in sub-surface anterooms, corresponding to the Hall of Darkness of the Cheops Pyramid. As they acquire a knowledge of the basic sciences and the Rosicrucian tenets they will be advanced, level by level, until they attain the highest chamber located in the apex of the pyramid. This chamber will be named the Hall of Illumination after the original, in which rests the empty sarcophagus of the Pharaoh.

The ancient pyramid, it is believed, was erected as a monument of learning embodying all the fundamentals of the sciences then known to mankind. To commemorate the ideal of the ancient pyramid builders, the Hall of Illumination of this Rosicrucian structure will contain models, photographs and schematic diagrams of modern science's latest contributions to the world, creating an atmosphere, it is hoped, which will inspire Rosicrucian members to add to the advancement of learning. The AMORC pyramid will scale in size, proportionately, to the magnificent ancient edifice of which it will be a reproduction. The actual date of construction, it is said will be announced upon the return to America of Dr. H. Spencer Lewis, Imperator of the Order, from a visit to the organization's Egyptian Grand Lodge in Cairo.

NOT A SPEEDWAY
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—Police yesterday stopped an automobile running right down the middle of Atlantic City's famous boardwalk. The driver, who said he was Robert D. Bakerfield, banker, of Richmond, Va., asserted: "It's permitted down in Virginia." Here it meant $5 ball and a hearing Monday.

SAFE AND SANE DRIVING

BACKING INTO TROUBLE

You cannot be too careful when backing your automobile. Many serious accidents are caused through failure to make sure the way is clear before backing up.

Look on both sides to the rear and sound your horn before you back from the garage or out of a driveway and then back slowly. A child may dash behind you at any moment. If you must back over the sidewalk, do this only with the utmost caution.

In the open street, many motorists have a habit of backing around corners to avoid the trouble of turning, or of backing up out in the street when it would take very little time—and be much safer—to go around the block.

Backing in and out of parking spaces is always a ticklish business. Besides the safety of pedestrians, you must look out carefully for passing traffic. You are responsible, too, for damage to other parked cars, smashed fenders and broken lamps.

It really takes more skill to handle your car in reverse than in third speed ahead. The good driver, however, seldom has accidents.

Edward Can't Win, Observers Believe

LONDON, May 14. (AP)—Unofficial but usually well informed sources said today the British government appeared to have won its quarrel with the Duke of Windsor to keep Wallis Warfield from styling herself "her royal highness" after they are married.

British society and persons to whom the distinction between "duchess of Windsor" and "her royal highness the duchess of Windsor" are vital matters cited the highly authoritative "Debrett's" as conclusive proof that the former King Edward VIII could not win. They referred also to the status of Queen Elizabeth herself at the time she married the then duke of York and contended that only an act of the king could confer a royal title on Mrs. Warfield.

Queen Elizabeth, who was the commoner's-born Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, was raised to royal rank by King George V, her father-in-law, by a special announcement after her marriage in 1923.

Today's sources maintained there was no indication that King George VI was contemplating such a step, especially in view of strong governmental opposition.

A 'PEEP' INTO LAW
TUSCON, Ariz. (AP)—The Tucson Humane society complained a merchant was unlawfully displaying baby chicks in a store window. Delving into the law books, officials caught up with an ordinance providing that "no person, firm or association or corporation can possess at any time more than 24 fowls."

Gainsborough, the famous artist, often worked with his paint brushes fastened to sticks six feet long.

JAP FLIERS HOP OFF

CROYDON, England, May 14. (AP)—The Japanese fliers, Masaharu Imamura and Heiju Takasashi, hopped off today at 8:10 a. m. (2:10 a. m. E. S. T.) in their monoplane "Divine Wind" for a return flight to Tokyo, carrying coronation pictures. The fliers landed at Croydon April 9, after a record breaking flight from Japan of 94 hours, 18 minutes.

GOOD POLK

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. — Laurence N. Polk's three companions in a golf foursome agreed to pay each other $50 for any hole-in-one scored during their match. Polk declined to join the wager. Polk held his tee shot in the 143-yard ninth.

Warnings to Mothers

These symptoms should warn mothers to look out for Stomach Worms, perhaps the true cause of signs that are easily mistaken for Simple Anemia, Constipation, Nervous Stomach or Excitability. This "Forgotten Menace" of Grandmother's day still troubles both city and country children of all ages, because the infection is so easily caught from flies, dogs, fresh salads, fruit, water, etc.

FAST WORKERS

Possibly the Chamber of Commerce "convention-getters" ought to sign up Sheriff Earl Talley, of Pampa, and his associates who returned from Hollis, Okla., yesterday with the next convention of North Texas and South Oklahoma Peace Officers stowed away for Pampa.

It is a remarkable piece of work the Sheriff and his three aides performed. They grabbed off the two-day conference on the spur of the moment and took it away from Wichita Falls from where delegates had come armed to the teeth with a convention bid.

Wichita Falls, organized to the hit, had Chamber of Commerce telegrams, newspaper invitations and an official delegation on hand at Hollis in an effort to swing the deal.

Strangest thing of all—the four delegates from Gray county had thought nothing about bringing the convention here until the final business session was about to open.

The idea hit Sheriff Talley all of a sudden. He called a hurried meeting of the four-man Gray county delegation. They went to work and within an hour had enough votes corralled to swing the deal for Pampa.

Result: Pampa will entertain approximately 300 sheriffs, sheriffs' deputies and other peace officers from Oklahoma and Texas cities for two days next fall.

POLITICAL FAMILY'S EXIT

By the middle of this month a long and eventful chapter in American politics will have closed. For the first time in some 40 years, there will not be a Bryan in public office or campaigning for office.

William Jennings Bryan began the family's activities, back in the '90s. A little later his brother, Charles W. Bryan took up the torch, serving three terms as governor of Nebraska and two as mayor of Nebraska's capital city, Lincoln, besides running for the United States Senate and serving as Democratic vice presidential candidate. Still later, the Great Commoner's daughter, Ruth Bryan Owen Rhode, entered public life.

The elder Bryan is dead now, Mrs. Rhode is back in private life—and in mid-May Charles W. Bryan finishes his term as mayor of Lincoln. A historic chapter in American political life is coming to a close.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—There are so many whisperings of revolt on Capitol hill they cannot be disregarded.

They arise both in house and senate from members who in times past have almost buried their own personalities in loyalty to the administration. The situation, while delightful to some of the President's critics, is dismay to many others who abhor the disorder of a leaderless congress.

Much of the unrest traces to the court issue. The demand for the court reorganization was applied with heat, and some members wholly sympathetic with the idea of bringing the court into harmony nevertheless bristled at the manner of the demand.

Then the possibility arose that the court plan might be defeated or drastically compromised.

This condition began to raise doubt as to the invincibility of the man in the White House. He was threatened with defeat. And if defeated on an issue upon which he had based so much, could he retain his leadership?

On top of that came the disclosure in the President's budget message that the administration had made a mistake in calculating revenue.

Now while millions of voters hold President Roosevelt in almost defied reverence, it is not surprising that this view is not fully shared by men who deal with him on a day-to-day basis.

To a degree the law of the wolf pack is bound to govern, and if the leader fails to make the kill his leadership may be spurned, even by those who have shared handsomely in previous kills.

The time hasn't arrived for letting surmises stand as facts, for President Roosevelt has not yet missed his kill and certainly he has not lost his leadership.

But there are signs that long-submerged independence is cropping out here and there. A senate group decided to go ahead with hearing on a bill to cooperate with the states in suppressing child labor, notwithstanding an indication from the President that similar legislation with regard to price fixing should be held off until after the court matter was settled.

And some of the President's most loyal supporters are working toward a budget cut, although Mr. Roosevelt told them flatly he wanted such cutting to be left in his hands.

Weather-conditioned homes may be fine for mother, but they leave father without anything to do around the house.

Bathing costumes this summer, as usual, will consist mostly of a coat of tan.

TEX'S TOPICS

Wonder if you read in last night's paper about the $50 prize being offered to the member of the Junior Chamber of Commerce who has nerve enough to attempt to ride the first steer out of the pens at the opening rodeo performance during the Top O' Texas Fiesta on June 3 and 4? Well, we've been thinking a lot about accepting that offer. . . . After all didn't we ride a Texas bronc through the Main streets a couple of months ago to satisfy a wager made with Kenny Blackledge, the darling young man from Wellington?

This steer-riding business now is being taken seriously by us. . . . After all, 50 bucks is 50 bucks, and a steer is just a steer, whether it is a bum one or not. . . . One thing is certain, there should be no trouble rounding up bull-throwers from the Jaycees (that information comes to us from one high in officialdom in the civic club), so why not get right up there in the front ranks and ride a steer or two, when 50 bucks are involved? . . . After all, steer-riding is an old vocation with us. . . . We have in our scrap book a picture taken the last time we rode a steer. . . . The result was this:

You will see, with another glance at the picture, that the camera clicked just as we were about to dismount a second or so after we had mounted. . . . Had it not been for the handlebars, you can readily see what a pickle we would have been in. . . . In fact if the camera had clicked one second later you could have seen what a pickle we WERE in. . . . That's the only disadvantage in steer riding—when you get on, you never can tell just how soon or where you are going to get off. . . . But for 50 bucks, who cares?

We are also informed that some of the world's meanest steers are born in Texas. . . . And, it is understood, at least three of them will be out here at the Fiesta rodeo to play with the ropers, bull-doggers and riders. . . . Some fun, eh, kid? . . . Further worry comes from the statement that of the three meanest steers coming to Pampa, the meanest one will be picked for the $50 prize ride of the Junior Chamber of Commerce. . . . If we accept that offer, by the time we get through with the world's toughest steer No. 1, the other two will be willing to talk turkey, and if you don't believe it you can come up to the hospital and we'll prove it to you. . . . But, more about this steer-riding business later.

We've been trying to locate a good ten-gallon hat at a bargain price. . . . So far, the best we can do is to find only an 8-gallon one, which is two gallons too small. . . . There's a lot of difficulties to be met up with in making arrangements for a Fiesta and rodeo. . . . For instance, we tip over backwards in cowboy boots. . . . That fellow you see now and then on the streets is not a member of the Black Legion. . . . He is KPDD's mystery pianist.

A heckler says we mispronounced "tiara" via radio the other night. . . . But we didn't. . . . It is pronounced TI-A-RA, the first "I" and the first "A" both having the long sound, with the accent on the first "A." . . . Really. . . . Webster says so. . . . It's silly that we should have to put up a defense like this for a thing like that, isn't it? . . . The heckler says it should be pronounced "Tee-AH-ra." . . . Oh, well.

In 1935, Canada exported shingles worth $7,692,000 to dealers and worth more than a million to schoolboys. . . . When Nazis can't eat all they order at the cafe, they are ordered to keep the leftovers in their pockets to eat later. Even the lemon meringue?

Increasing iron exports may be bad news to the peace leagues, but never for our young spinach eaters. . . . Eighty per cent of tornadoes occur between noon and 6 p. m., excluding senatorial filibusters. . . . Bats avoid obstructions through a sixth sense, which explains your favorite baseball star's hitting slump.

Yesteryear In Pampa

TEN YEARS AGO TODAY

The story of first oil development in Pampa, its agricultural progress, and its early history was sketched in a special 32-page edition of the Daily News, of which copies were sent with the city's delegation to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention at Wichita Falls.

Twenty high school seniors heard the baccalaureate address at the Rex theater, delivered by R. E. L. Morgan, president of Clarendon college.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

Laying of steel on the Fort Worth and Denver railroad started in Gray county, and ground was broken for the depot here.

The Rev. A. A. Hyde, Presbyterian pastor, delivered the high school baccalaureate sermon at the First Christian church.

A sociologist complains because people nowadays build homes without nurseries in them. But look how much people are interested in garden nurseries.

Boy Meets Girl—Boy Loses Crown—Boy Gets Girl

Man About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Broadway show girls and chorus girls, the fetching ones who seriously pursue their careers behind the footlights, are not pleased when there bursts on the front pages of the nation news episodes in the serial of "Broadway Butterfly Murders," such as happened in the reporting of the mysterious death of Veronica Gedeon, voluptuous model.

Their complaint (being practical as well as beautiful) is that most of the principals in these "butterfly murders" have been play-actors, and a perusal of the records indicates that very few indeed were stunningly prominent in stage careers. Louise Lawson, Dorothy King and Vivian Gordon were show girls—but not stars.

Marion "Kiki" Roberts, sometimes a brunette but often a redhead, was a chorus girl in the Ziegfeld Follies until she held a rendezvous with the gangster, "Legs" Diamond, a few hours before he was shot to death.

It was not long after this that the real Mrs. "Legs" Diamond appeared in a sketch at the Times Square Burlesque theater, and the following week she was succeeded by "Kiki" herself with her cute bob. The employer of both was William Minnsky, burlesque producer, who was, curiously, the 12th man chosen on the jury that convicted "Legs" Diamond when he was sentenced to four years for conspiracy to violate the prohibition amendment.

There was, however, in the luxury lanes of Butterfly Row one girl who was very close to stardom when death mysteriously cut short her career. She was Bobbie Storey, a blond-haired, blue-eyed barmaid from Lon'on halls. As a barmaid she served royalty and nobility, and she was happy in her hobby, friendly life among the Haymarket stubs.

It was Charlot, the French musical revue producer, who saw her there one night drawing steins of beer and decided that she should be a star in his new show. She accepted the sum he offered, of course, and forgot her ambitions to remain London's prettiest barmaid.

"Understand, though," she warned him, "it is a mistake for me to do this. Show business is not for me. It will kill me." Having made this prophetic utterance, she became a featured artist in his show and then came on to New York for leads in "Vantiles" and the "Follies."

But New York, with its champagne and gay parties, never gave her the lust for life that she knew when she was only a girl who served beer to the trade in the London pubs. She found it not to her liking, and the fragile-framed girl who had so charming Charlot slipped into a melancholy state of mind that deserted her only at rare intervals.

You know, of course, what happened. They found her one night in the apartment of a friend, dead. It was a strange ending for one who had come so far. Her body was clad in a black lace nightgown, and clasped in her hand was a nickel.

The U. S. Forestry Service planted more than 3,000,000 trees on 4,418 acres of land in Oregon and Washington during 1936.

In point of endowments, Yale is the second richest university in the United States; its endowments total nearly $95,000,000.

An old English rhyme is the source of the prevalent superstition as the proper days on which a person should cut his nails.

People You Know

By ARCHER FULLINGEM

Today came two letters, each on a different subject. Wrote Nellie Hardin Mundy, former Pampa, from Houston: "I saw the president! . . . As I stood near the rear platform of that special car and saw him come forward with his eyes twinkling and lips smiling in his sun-banned face, his hand held up in greeting, I knew that my ideas of his sincerity and honesty were well-founded. He stood smiling and waving, his eyes blinking while the photographers took innumerable pictures. Mr. Roosevelt is by no means a god, nor does he wish to be worshipped. He stood on that observation platform, not as a king or dictator surveying his subjects, but simply as a friendly, average American who hopes for wisdom and strength to be a good leader. . . ."

And the other letter: "I'm enjoying one of those undercurrents of happiness today. . . . Every year I say that Spring is ineffable, but it did not say it every year, how sad it would be! Sometimes I am so happy that when I think of death and youth I am horrified, but then I know there are those who at the age of 15 took in their young lives. There are those who were born with the yearning, the wisdom, the knowledge of beauty—before they are 15 they are aware, and after that the years only add to that beginning. We could have heard in "The Woman I Love" that today I am living the moments. . . ."

AROUND HOLLYWOOD

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Paul Muni is extremely beard-conscious. Pasteur had to wear one. So now does Zola. But Muni's beard in "The Woman I Love" was his own idea.

He said it would emphasize the difference in ages between himself and Louis Hayward, the other corner of the triangle, and would also make his character appropriately less attractive to Miriam Hopkins.

This apparently was carrying realism and art too far for the exploitation department. The ads on "The Woman I Love" show Muni clean-shaven. Beards still are regarded as unromantic. . . .

Miss Hopkins, mentioned more than any other actress for the Scarlett O'Hara role, thinks it is all very lovely except that—"I wish someone would get around to asking me to play it," she laughs. "That's what I'm waiting for."

When I told her she was my choice because I read in "The Scarlet Letter" that "You and my mother, bless you both!"

Kidding aside, she isn't counting on getting the role, believes it really will go to an unknown actress. Reminded that she'd probably have the vote of the Solid South, she laughed appreciatively: "But there have been years in which the Solid South couldn't carry the election. Maybe this will be one of them. . . ."

With open season on commencement oratory around the corner, it's time of Marjorie Main to come out with this encouraging thought: "The high school orator of today may be the movie star of tomorrow. Miss Main, here from the Broad-

This, That and Everything

BY WILLIAM HUSLEY CLARK

We love to boast of the power man has under his command in this modern age. True we do have greater control of natural forces today than ever before. But let those who minimize the importance of the great work churches are doing today realize that benefit can come from such unprecedented power in material matters only when such powers are exercised in a moral and spiritual consciousness. Our spiritual life must keep pace with our physical and mental development. A highly specialized and technical mind that is not dominated by a moral purpose is a dangerous thing. This is one reason I am convinced that today of all days the world needs to possess a spirit of universal brotherhood. Our scientists have conceived of such destructive agencies that we dare not apply the old methods now to the settlement of international disputes. The only justification our scientists can have for discovering new powers and their control is in the belief that they will be used by their fellows in a righteous way.

BOOK A DAY

By BRUCE CATTON

Probably, if all the rules were observed, Robert Collis would find he had no right to turn out an autobiography. He still is in his thirties, and although he has lived a useful life and been amused by doing so, he has done nothing very important, as important things go, nowadays. But the book he has made is close to perfect in its way. It is the record of a young Yale, being formed by circumstances and a certain amount of pressure from his Irish background. The book is remarkable, too. This quality is produced by the fact that Dr. Collis is not a professional Irishman, such as Oliver St. John Gogarty, but just a nice young man willing to take the English, the Americans, or even the Irish as people and not as incarnate whimsy, venom or whatever the label may read.

The beginning is more or less in a lovely garden at Kilmey. The course of his life is traced to Rugby—the life of a boy at Rugby has been described, probably a thousand times, but Dr. Collis' version is worth scanning. After Rugby, Cambridge, and after Cambridge Yale. Dr. Collis had a bad experience while in the United States, but when he had an opportunity to return to America for research, he returned without hesitation; to Johns Hopkins, incidentally. Still later he practiced in London and after a short time there returned to Ireland, where he is today.

That's really all the physical movement in the book. But there is a good deal of mental adjustment; for example, the section on Frank Buchman. Collis managed Buchman's first "house party," and his description of Buchman's methods and personality is the best this department has read. Collis is no longer a Group member, and disapproves much of the Buchman method and manner. But he is not contemptuous. Next most interesting, to this reader, were the sections on America. Dr. Collis contrived to keep his individuality while among us, but also he contrived to meet Americans as people, not merely as creatures with an annoying habit of doing things in an un-British way. This sympathetic understanding is perhaps the book's distinguishing feature.

When they rig themselves out in funny hats. Just look at any woman you meet on the street and see if you can keep a straight face. —MRS. HELEN WASHBURN, noted authoress.

This thing we call recovery is in a jittery, shaky condition. —U. S. Senator W. E. Borah, Idaho.

My work is just a job to me—I just want to get the act over. —Marge Hart, New York burlesque queen.

HOW THE SYPHILIS GERM SPREADS TOLD IN ANOTHER ARTICLE BY DR. FISHBEIN

This is the fourth of six articles on so-called "venereal" diseases, deals with the spread of syphilis and some of the things the disease does NOT do. The series is presented by Pampa Daily News in the nationwide drive on the disease.

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN, M. D., Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association.

There are some records of syphilis infection by accident when a person with a sore on his finger has come in contact with syphilitic material on the body of another person.

There are records of infection from kissing, and babies have been infected from wet nurses. These secondary types are, however, so unusual in comparison with the ordinary methods of spread of infection that this fact should not frighten any one into a constant fear of this disease.

In the vast majority of cases syphilis is transmitted from one human to another during sex relationship.

Hotel beds, public lavatories, bath tubs, door knobs, books, dishes used in restaurants, and similar materials are not easily infected. It is necessary for the germ to get into the body through a sore or through an easily infected spot if it is to invade the body generally.

Usual Symptoms. As has already been said, the organism that causes syphilis is killed by drying and is susceptible to soap and water. Thorough washing is an important factor in preventing the spread of the infection.

The first sign of the disease usually is a sore at the point where the germ entered the tissue. The doctor who finds this sore will make his diagnosis by studying the material from the sore under the microscope, either fresh or after staining.

He also takes some blood from the veins and tests this blood with what is known as the Wassermann test or by the Kahn test. These tests determine usually at a fairly early stage whether or not a person has been infected with syphilis.

If the disease is not promptly treated, it will spread to the interior of the body, ultimately causing eruption on the skin, and all of the other serious conditions that have been mentioned.

May Be Other Causes. There are a few simple facts that every one ought to know about syphilis:

This disease does not cause pimples. It does not cause itching conditions of the skin.

It may cause ulcers of the legs, but more frequently these are due to varicose veins.

It may be responsible for failure to produce children, but there are also other conditions which may produce such failures.

It is not a form of blood poisoning. Testing of the blood will show whether or not the patient has syphilis.

It is not responsible for the vast majority of cases of baldness, but some cases of loss of hair, not of the head but of the entire body may be due to syphilis.

It has not been established in any way that syphilis is the cause of cancer or that these two conditions are in any way related.

Basic Rules. There are a few simple instructions which were widely circulated during the World war to all soldiers who were found to be infected with this disease:

If you have any sore on your genitals, no matter how small, or if you think you have syphilis, consult your physician.

Do not under any conditions rely on the "blood medicines" that promise to eradicate syphilis, and do not be caught by advertising doctors—quacks—who try to get your money by promising to cure you quickly.

Do not let druggists prescribe for you; they are not qualified to treat syphilis.

Do not hesitate to tell your doctor or dentist of your disease. Later in life you get sick at any time, you should tell your doctor that you have had syphilis, since this fact may furnish a clue to treatment on which your cure depends.

Live temperately and sensibly. Do not go to extreme in any direction in your habits of life.

Try to get a reasonable amount of sleep—eight hours is the amount needed by the average person. And as a safeguard to others, sleep alone.

Take good care of your teeth. Brush them two or three times a day. If they are not in good condition, have them attended to by a dentist, tell him that you have syphilis.

Do not have sexual intercourse until you are told by your physician that you are no longer contagious. It will interfere with the cure of the disease, and it is criminal, for it is likely to give the disease to your wife.

You must not marry until you have the doctor's consent, which cannot be properly given until at least two years have passed after cure seems complete. If you do, you run the risk of infecting your wife and your children with syphilis.

Early in the course of syphilis, while it is contagious, the greatest danger of infecting other people is by the mouth. Because of this danger, do not kiss anybody. Particularly, do not endanger children by kissing them.

Do not allow anything that has come in contact with your lips or that has been in your mouth to be left around so that anybody can use it before it has been cleaned. This applies to cups, glasses, knives, forks, spoons, pipes, cigars, toothpicks, and all such things. It is better to use your own towels, brushes, comb, razor, soap, etc., though these are much less likely to be contaminated than objects that go in your mouth.

If you have any open sores—you will not have any after the first week or two, if you are treated—everything that comes in contact with them should be destroyed or disinfected.

SCIENTIFIC SABRE TOOTH

Here's the sabre toothed tiger which will roar, leap and plunge at the Pan American Exposition which opens in Dallas June 12. This tremendous prehistoric beast is a feature of "The World a Million Years Ago," a spectacle which shows what Texas looked like before the dawn of history. Reptiles and animals, operated by electrical remote control, are of life size. Some are thirty feet long. Sabre tooth's companion is (left), the cave man, who is eight feet tall.

WYDE WOULD FORCE DODD TO NAME 'BILLIONAIRE' BRITISH HOSTILITY TO FASCISM CALLED DANGEROUS TO PEACE

WASHINGTON, May 14 (AP)—Senator Nye (R., N. D.) drafted a resolution today designed to force Ambassador William E. Dodd to name the near "billionaire" whom the envoy to Germany described as ready to back an American dictatorship.

The North Dakotan was supported in his demand for the name by Senator Borah (R., Idaho) and Rep. Fish (R., N. Y.).

Regardless of the outcome of his resolution, Nye said, he would ask a Senate inquiry into "all alien subversive influence whose scope most emphatically would include this dictatorship warning."

This investigation, he explained, would be an outgrowth of charges which he made in the Senate Monday that a Spanish Fascist "spy ring" was operating in the United States.

He sought an initial $25,000 appropriation to finance the inquiry.

some day to turn back to the brighter and more graceful task of true peace and honest international collaboration." Italy recently recalled all correspondents in London and banned all but three English newspapers in retaliation for taunts in the British press at the prowess of Italian fighters in the Spanish civil war.

The U. S. Treasury's "conscience fund" now totals more than $800,000; it consists of money sent in by anonymous persons who repented having cheated the government.

The Colorado river basin covers about one-thirteenth of the area of the United States, yet has a population within its limits only as large as the state of Rhode Island.

War Is a Dog's Life

Somewhere down that bomb-riddled street in Guernica, Basque "Holy City," lies this mongrel's home, maybe his master. While destruction roars inexplicably out of the skies, the forlorn pup waits, lonely, bewildered, desolate white buildings tumble about him. Basques charge that the remorseless air raid over Guernica, with its death toll of hundreds of civilians including women and children, was the work of German bombers aiding Spanish rebels.

On Capitol Hill

BY HARRELL E. LEE.

AUSTIN, May 13 (AP)—Friends of Earle B. Mayfield Jr. of Tyler are boosting him for the national presidency of the organization of Young Democrats.

Mayfield was a charter member of the Texas organization and has been on its executive committee from the start. He now is the Texas representative on the body's national committee.

The national convention will be held at Indianapolis in the late summer. Mayfield's friends say he is certain to receive the support of the entire south if he makes the race and should have a good chance of being elected.

Mayfield is a son of the former United States Senator.

Alfred Petch, veteran representative from Fredericksburg, is a firm believer in legislative investigations and often speaks in favor of proposed inquiries.

He said recently on the House floor that operations of various investigating committees had saved the state millions of dollars. Even though the committee apparently achieved very little in its existence as a restraining influence, he contends.

Rep. Ross Hardin of Prairie Hill is one of the strongest "anti-investigators" in the House. Hardin says he never has known one of these "smelling committees," as he terms them, to do any good.

The general opinion is that one reason the lawmakers authorize so many inquiries is that voting against the proposals might leave the impression with their constituents that they are endeavoring to help in covering up something.

R. C. Lanning, Representative from Jacksboro, attempts to see to it that the inquirers don't spend a large amount of the state's money. He always introduces an amendment to keep a committee's expenditures within $500.

Lanning is of that school which believes the usual inquiry achieves very little.

He served on two investigating committees. One, he says, really did some good but spent only $100 doing it, and the other spent $200 and didn't find out anything "because there was nothing to find out."

Rep. George Morfett of Chillicothe, whose district is dry, believes the wets would do well to assist in strict enforcement of liquor control regulations.

NOT THE SWEETHEART OF, ETC. HAMILTON, N. Y.—The worst fears of Sigma Chi were well founded. Mitzi and her mate, Jimmy, are the pet skunks of the Sigma Chi chapter at Colgate university. Mitzi and Jimmy are scentless. But there are no guarantees attached to the young ones.

Brother R. Richard Dollison has been commissioned to return the whole outfit to Fairmont, W. Va., where he acquired the original pair.

Lucifer's Fate for 'Rebel Angel'

She was Faithful Mary to Father Divine, colored Harlem evangelist, and his "angels" until she called him just an old man; then like a female Lucifer, she was kicked out of "heaven." The big colored woman, who refuses to give up possession of the cult's 275-room summer resort, assures Jack Goldstein, court officer at Kingston, N. Y., that she's going to go to California for a rest just as soon as the grand jury investigating Divine's affairs releases her from the subpoena he examines.

AFRAID to Love

Chapter XXI And now it was almost twelve o'clock and Dorothy and Joan were home together. Bob had departed with Mr. Norton on the eleven-thirty train from Green Hills.

Only one wild, frantic thought dominated Joan. She must get away! She must put herself out of Bob's life before he found out.

Dorothy sat on the bed, watching her pack her things. She made no move to help. For half an hour she had been arguing, pleading, threatening, all in vain. Joan appeared not to hear her. She worked hysterically. Occasionally a sob would catch in her throat, and she would stop a minute to wipe away a tear.

"Joan," Dorothy begged, "if you'd only reason this out, you're not solving anything this way..." "It's the only way," Joan insisted. "I can't have him know about me and marry me in pity..."

"It wouldn't be that at all," Dorothy interrupted. "In the long run, he'd hate me. I know it. It's something I can't escape."

"But why should he hate you? I can't understand why you keep on insisting on that..." "I don't know. But he would me..."

"I don't hate you, Joan," Dorothy said earnestly. "I love you. I'm happy with you. I don't care what people say because I believe in you. Don't you think Bob feels the same?"

"It would be different..." "Why?" "Because we'd be married. He'd be tied to me forever..."

Dorothy sighed. "That's what he wants. He loves you, Joan. Can't you realize that? What does the past matter to him?"

"I can't keep this in the past. You see that. Ten years ago it happened, but tonight I must face it again. It's always been like this. Dorothy. Ten years ago in California. Seven years ago in Seattle. In Denver. In Chicago. Now here in New York. Where-ever I go, it will follow me. And whoever goes with me will be caught in it..."

"My children will have to face it. Bob's children. If I married him, he'd never know a moment's peace..." "You think he'll find peace this way?"

"Joan finished. 'Perhaps,' she answered. 'With Sybil Hendry?' Dorothy demanded brutally. 'Joan finished. 'Perhaps,' she answered quietly."

Dorothy jumped from the bed and there was fire in her eye. "Joan," she said fiercely, "you're being a fool. The only way Sybil Hendry could ever marry him is on the rebound-and you're providing just the opportunity. Do you think he'd ever be happy with her?"

Joan stopped in her tracks. "Do you?" Dorothy persisted. "Sybil could do a lot for him..." "Fiddlesticks! She'd make him miserable, and you know it!"

"Sybil has been very good to him. He told me so. She's helped him socially, and in business, too." Joan's voice lacked conviction. "You're saying that only to persuade yourself that you're taking the right step. You won't let yourself see the other side of it. Would you like to live with Sybil Hendry?"

"No!" "Of course not. And neither would Bob. He's not her type. If he married her, he'd regret it every day of his life. Believe me, he'd be much happier sharing your cross with you..."

For a moment, Dorothy almost hoped that her argument might prevail. Joan hesitated in her packing and considered it thoughtfully. Eventually, however, she shook her head. "I can't let him do it," she said dully.

She resumed her packing. Dorothy paced up and down the room fretfully. There were no other arguments that she could put up. Yet she felt determined not to let Joan throw this last chance of happiness away. Not if she had to lock her in a closet until Bob should return and have a chance to plead his own case.

Suppose Sybil Hendry did start a few tongues wagging. What did Sybil Hendry's opinion amount to in a community of people like Millie Sanders and old Mr. Hendry and the Downs family? Joan could live the past down right here in Green Hills. If she could see that it was the same thing to do...

Suddenly she spun around, a new thought in her mind. There was fiery determination in her expression and she walked back and sat down on the bed emphatically. "Joan," she said severely, "I didn't want to say this to you, but I'm going to..."

"What, Dorothy?" "You're a coward!" Joan gasped. "Coward?" she echoed. "Yes. You're running away because you're afraid to stay here and face it. You're afraid of Sybil Hendry!"

Joan's mouth trembled. "Please don't say that, Dorothy. Why should I be afraid of her, knowing that Bob is on my side? It's because of him that I'm running away. Don't you see? I can't drag him into it with me..."

Dorothy's eyes snapped. "Forget Bob for the moment. Think of your father. Are you ashamed of him?" "Dorothy!" "You are. Must be. If a thing like that happened to my father, I'd stay and fight it out with anybody who dared to doubt me. That is, if I believed in him..."

believe me, because the man was his friend. "You don't know whether he will or not, until you find out."

For the first time in ten long years, Joan seemed to see a break in the clouds. "If he would believe me--" she murmured, almost to herself.

"I believed you," Dorothy said simply. "And you believed your father, didn't you?" "I would stake everything on my father's innocence. There never had been a doubt in my mind. Mr. Hendry would have believed him, too, if he had known him. I'm positive of that."

"Then he will believe you, Joan," Dorothy assured. "If the truth ever shone in a girl's face, it's in yours."

"Oh, Dorothy!" Joan's eyes filled with a glad new hope. "Forgive me for not understanding you a moment ago! You make me see a new light, in spite of myself. If Mr. Hendry believed me, then Bob might, too..."

"Of course. And if Bob believed your father was innocent, as you believe, and as I believe, then what does it matter what the world believes?"

"Not a bit, Dorothy. Nothing would matter. Not if Bob could believe me... What time is it, Dorothy? I think I'll go over to see Mr. Hendry now--this very minute!" (To Be Continued)

STORIES IN STAMPS

BY I. S. KLEIN SET CORNER STONE OF EINSTEIN THEORY

THE world-stirring theory of relativity that Albert Einstein evolved years ago was founded, in part, on work of the great Dutch scientist, Hendrik Antoon Lorentz.

This was what scientists refer to as the "Lorentz transformation," in which Lorentz pointed to the effect of motion on all kinds of objects and phenomena.

Yet this great discovery was a minor part of the Dutch scientist's work. With his pupil, Pieter Zeeman, he worked out an explanation of the widening of the spectral lines in sunspots, on the basis of a magnetic field in the sun.

And his most notable achievement was his standardization of the knowledge and theory about electrons.

Lorentz, born in 1853, studied and then became professor of physics at the University of Leiden. He received the Nobel Prize in physics in 1902 and later won other scientific awards. He knew several languages, and became a leader in international affairs.

After the World War he was made president of the Committee on Intellectual Co-operation of the League of Nations. He died in 1928.

The Netherlands in 1928 issued a stamp portraying the famous scientist.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD By William Ferguson

A NATION-WIDE CENSUS OF NESTING BIRDS IS TO BE TAKEN SOON BY THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF AUDUBON SOCIETIES.

"SHOOTING STARS" (METEORITES) ARE NO LARGER THAN GRAINS OF SAND OR GRAVEL.

IN the forthcoming nesting-bird census, each census taker will be assigned an area of from 15 to 100 acres, in which he will be expected to locate every nest and record the kind of bird, as well as other details. The workers will consist of volunteer nature lovers.
