Dr. Sam Due to Be Free on Bond Today

BULLETIN
COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—A $10,000 bond was posted shortly before noon EST today for Dr. Sam Sheppard, ordered released from Ohio Penitentiary after serving nearly 10 years for the 1954 murder of his wife, Marilyn.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—Dr. Sam Sheppard was expected to be freed on bond today from the Ohio Penitentiary under a federal court order, but the convicted wife-slayer's long legal battle for freedom appeared far from over.

U.S. District Court Judge Carl A. Weinman Wednesday in Dayton ruled that Sheppard's 1954 trial for the murder of his pregnant wife, Marilyn, was "a mockery of justice" and granted the Bay Village osteopath a writ of habeas corpus calling for his immediate release.

Sheppard's attorney, F. Lee Bailey of Boston, was to post $10,000 bond in federal court here, clearing the way for the prison doors to open for Dr. Sam for the first time since July 30, 1964, the day of his arrest.

But a battle against the federal court order was promised by Cuyahoga County Prosecutor John T. Corrigan, who said in Cleveland Wednesday night he would try "everything" to keep Sheppard behind bars.

Seeks Execution Stay
Corrigan said he would seek a stay of execution of Weinman's order, contending Sheppard was indicted on a first-degree murder charge which, under Ohio law, was not bailable. He added it was his opinion a federal court had no jurisdiction to set bond in a first-degree murder case.

Sheppard was sentenced to life in prison following his jury conviction on second-degree murder. The trial was one of the most controversial in American legal history.

Sheppard would have been eligible for parole in October, and the pardon and parole commission was expected to grant him parole at that time.

Under Weinman's ruling, four future legal developments were possible. State and Cuyahoga County authorities could seek a stay of execution of the order, appeal the order or set a date for a new trial. This action would have to be taken within 60 days.

If such action was not taken, Sheppard's release would be unconditional and bond would be cancelled.

In San Francisco at the Republican National Convention, where Weinman's order became a major topic of conversation among delegates, Ohio Atty. Gen. William Saxbe said a decision for a new trial for Sheppard would have to be made by Corrigan.

Confident of Backing
Corrigan said he was "reasonably confident that Saxbe will back us in this effort," referring to strategy he planned to keep Sheppard in custody.

While Corrigan charged that Weinman had "absolutely no basis for granting the writ" of habeas corpus, the judge made it clear in his 86-page opinion why he felt he had no other alternative.

Weinman was critical of the three newspapers that were in operation in Cleveland at the time of the trial, the Press, the News and the Plain Dealer, and was particularly harsh with the Press, which has since taken over the defunct News.

The judge also criticized news commentators Bob Considine and Walter Winchell, and the trial judge, the late Edward Blythin, for being prejudicial against Sheppard.

THE WINNER — Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater last night won a decisive first-ballot victory for the 1964 Republican presidential nomination. Photograph was taken at the 1960 convention when Goldwater was nosed out by former Vice President Richard Nixon.

Schedule Set for Final Session of GOP Convention

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Here is a capsule version of schedule for today's final session of the Republican National Convention:

Roll call of the states for nominations for vice president of the United States, 5 p.m. CST.

Nominations for vice president.

Roll call of the states for selection of a nominee for vice president.

Speech by former Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

Acceptance speech by nominee for vice president.

Acceptance speech by nominee for president.

Adjournment.

Loser Urges Fight Against Democrats

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Gov. William W. Scranton, as Sen. Barry Goldwater did four years ago, turned today from a crushing defeat within his own party to do battle against the Democrats.

True to his promise, the Pennsylvanian put aside the bitterness of his ill-starred campaign against Goldwater and pledged "whatever campaigning talent I may have to the job of winning Republican victories on every level this fall."

He did so in dramatic fashion, standing under the klieg lights and before a stilled Republican National Convention just as Goldwater had faced and acknowledged a foredoomed defeat at the convention in Chicago in 1960.

Scranton made it plain at the outset that he was thinking of the moment when Goldwater called on his followers to forget their disappointment and heartache and unite behind the victor of that year, Richard M. Nixon.

Appeals for Unity

"Four years ago another Republican stood where I stand now and I think I know what was in his heart," Scranton said in beginning. And in concluding, he told his followers: "Come, let us work within the Republican party, not from outside it. That is the way we can best serve our principles. . . . This is the way that we can be faithful to the Republican mission as we understand it, and as we treasure it, and that, truly, is the best way possible to serve our conscience and to serve our country."

It wasn't until two hours later that Scranton made his pledge to Goldwater in person. Together with his wife, Mary, and their four children, he walked down a back stairway from his suite on the 16th floor of the Mark Hopkins Hotel to Goldwater's rooms on the 15th floor. The two men were closeted for 10 minutes. Then Scranton and his family returned without talking to newsmen.

The governor was expected to expound on his plans for the future and the campaign at a news conference today.

Had Speech Ready
Scranton's appearance before the convention was a good performance, but it was not an unrehearsed one. He had prepared his speech as he sat through the afternoon watching the convention proceedings on television. If he did not know absolutely what was coming, he was prepared for the worst.

The governor hurried up his trip to the Cow Palace because his wife needed him.

As the time for the roll call approached, Scranton received word from his wife at the convention hall that she wanted him close by. Together with his aides, the governor was driven to the Cow Palace and slipped into the double trailer which had served as his communications headquarters. His trip was detected and raised unfounded rumors that Scranton would withdraw his name.

As the Goldwater vote mounted, Mary Scranton left her box seat as quietly as she could. They were together when South Carolina's vote put Goldwater over the top. Immediately, they set out with three of their children for the speaker's platform.

Scranton was poised, smiling, but weary as he made his sudden appearance in the convention hall. He went to the platform and everyone in the hall knew what he was about to do.

Optimists From North Texas to Meet in Pampa

Optimists from over the northern half of Texas will converge on Pampa tomorrow for a three-day board meeting.

Approximately 350 - 400 Optimists and their wives are expected to register at 4 p.m. tomorrow in the Coronado Inn.

Highlight of the affair will be an old-fashioned chuck wagon barbecue to be held at 7 p.m. Saturday.

Business sessions are scheduled Saturday and Sunday mornings.

Dist. Gov. Joe Devaney of Dallas will preside at the business session and a district officers conference at 8 a.m. Saturday.

This will be the first official meeting of the new officers of the North Texas District since they were elected at the annual convention last May.

Also attending the convention will be W. Arnold Chambers of Chattanooga, Tenn., a member of Optimist International.

They parley will end at 1 p.m. Sunday following a business session.

Soviet Appointment Ends Nikita's Search

By RICHARD H. GROWALD
MOSCOW (UPI) — The rise of Leonid I. Brezhnev in the Communist party marks the apparent end of Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's second search for a successor, diplomatic observers said today.

Brezhnev, once in semi-disgrace, resigned the Soviet presidency Wednesday to devote his full time to serving as Khrushchev's chief deputy in running the all-powerful party.

Observers said the move meant the 57-year-old son of a steel worker has clinched the crown prince role that puts him in line to assume Khrushchev's political supremacy when the premier decides to step down or dies.

Khrushchev has shown no signs of slowing down, but he has reached the age of 70 and obviously is anxious to prepare a smooth succession that would avert a power struggle.

In the Soviet Union the power is held by the Communist party which controls all facets of Soviet life, including the government headed by the premier. The presidency is largely a ceremonial and protocol post with little real power.

Brezhnev is second to Khrushchev in the party hierarchy. By assuming more of Khrushchev's party chores, he will acquire more political stature.

Witness Admits Perjury in Trial Of Ex-Sheriff

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (UPI)—A tearful tale of perjury and adultery emerged Wednesday in a bitter session of the trial to remove Sheriff Hammett Vance from office.

Mrs. Marie Cavet, 28, of Arlington, a plump brunette with two daughters, admitted on the witness stand she had lied the day before. She told of her love affair with the suspended sheriff, sobbing and at times crying uncontrollably.

She first met him two years ago when she was jailed for killing her husband. She received a five year probated sentence, which was later dropped.

Summations by prosecution and defense attorneys and the judge's charge to the jury were scheduled today.

EARLY FLIGHT IS CURE

Epidemic Hits Parley Delegates

By HARRY FERGUSON
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — An epidemic broke out today among the delegates to the Republican National Convention. In scientific circles it is known as "metatarsal tension and tibia fatigued." The layman calls it "convention feet."

A few cases developed Wednesday, but the main outbreak occurred early today after delegates were stepped on, tripped and buffeted in a series of demonstrations up and down the aisles of the Cow Palace.

The symptoms are sharp, shooting pains in the arches, a dull ache in the lower shinbone and a desire to get out of town as soon as possible. Long lines of sufferers from convention feet were at the airline ticket offices today trying to cure themselves by catching an earlier flight home. Sufferers from convention feet tend to become indifferent about who gets the nomination for vice president.

Causes Two Problems
The ailment is seldom chronic and never fatal. But occasionally it is complicated by two other occupational ailments of political delegates — orator's ear and disjointed elbow.

Orator's ear, caused by listening to too many speeches that sound exactly alike, induces a buzzing in the brain and reflex action in the vocal chords that produces the sound

"shut up, shut up, sit down and shut up."
Disjointed elbow comes from having your arm twisted repeatedly by the chairman of your state delegation and from lifting too many glasses heavy with amber fluid.

A physician who has been taking care of the delegates consented to discuss convention feet provided he was guaranteed anonymity.

"You'd be surprised how many delegates buy a new pair of shoes before the come to a convention. The women especially. I don't know whether they buy them too tight to start with or whether it's just because the shoes haven't been broken

"All I know is that the delegates who come to see me complain about swollen feet and sore muscles in the back of the leg."
"Most of the sore muscles are caused by too much walking up and down hills while sight seeing. There are about 40 hills in San Francisco and several of them are quite high and steep. Walking up and down them brings into play muscles that ordinarily are not used."

"Delegates don't get enough sleep, and most of them drink too much. They eat their meals irregularly because of the schedule of the convention. They are under tension and many of them are just plain homesick."

Miller to Receive Second Slot Nod

By RAYMOND LAHR

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Barry Goldwater, winner of the 1964 Republican presidential nomination, pointed the GOP along a conservative road today and prepared to ask for Rep. William E. Miller of New York as his running mate.

Goldwater, 55-year-old senator from Arizona, won the nomination on the national convention's first ballot, as expected, after routing his disorganized and inept opposition at every turn.

He immediately pledged himself to wage "a vigorous campaign" against President Johnson before the November election and promised to conduct it on issues, not personalities. He said he expected Johnson to conduct the same kind of a campaign.

"I just hope I'm a better salesman than he is," said Goldwater.

Takes Defeat Gracefully

Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania, Goldwater's only active competitor, was waiting outside the Cow Palace Wednesday night for the inevitable. He took his defeat graciously, went inside to give the delegates a unity speech and pledged his support of the ticket.

The convention ends tonight with acceptance speeches from the presidential and vice presidential nominees. Well-informed Republicans reported that Goldwater already had tapped Miller for second place on the ticket.

Will Start Campaign

Their speeches in effect will kick off the 1964 Republican political campaign and set the tone for a true conservative vs. liberal battle in the months ahead.

Goldwater was planning to meet with GOP state chairmen and other party leaders today at 11 a.m., PDT (2 p.m., EDT).

Miller, 50-year-old congressman from upstate New York and retiring GOP national chairman, is cut from the same conservative cloth as Goldwater. He is known as a "gut fighter" and is expected by fellow Republicans to perform in that role during the campaign.

Goldwater's victory statement came shortly before midnight and less than an hour after he had been acclaimed winner of the nomination for which he fought doggedly since last Jan. 3 when he said the GOP would offer the voters "a choice, not an echo" in the contest against President Johnson this year.

Nine Hour Session

His nomination was a foregone conclusion, but his real and token opponents went through the motions of letting their names be placed before the convention during a session that lasted almost nine hours.

Besides Goldwater, seven candidates were placed in nomination but only Scranton was trying. Before the customary switching at the end of the first ballot, the vote stood:

Goldwater 833
Scranton 214
Scattered votes went to six other candidates.

Scranton, waiting outside, then entered the Cow Palace and made his way to the front of the rostrum to offer a motion to make the nomination unanimous. He offered it as part of a unity speech.

"The Republican party must now emphasize its unity, not its differences," he said. "We must now be about the business of defeating the Democrats. As I have always pledged to do, I shall work for and fully support the ticket chosen by this convention."

Broad Enough For All
"Though many of us felt that the platform could be improved, all of us can find it acceptable. It is broad enough for all of us to stand upon and it is strong enough that we can build upon it wherever there is a campaign to be won this year."

The Scranton speech was the Pennsylvanian at his best. It contrasted with the somewhat intemperate letter dispatched to Goldwater Sunday night, referring to Goldwater's political beliefs as "Goldwaterism" and calling for a debate between the two candidates in advance of the balloting.

"Let the Democratic party find no comfort in the spirited campaign we have waged within our own party," Scranton told the convention. "Let me remind our Democratic friends that we have hardly begun to give them the full attention that is coming to them."

"We shall demonstrate to all Americans that the Johnson administration is pursuing no policy abroad and a bad policy at home."

Rockefeller Gives Support
Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, who fought a lonely

WILLIAM MILLER
...running mate

campaign against Goldwater in the presidential primaries before giving up, also promised to support the ticket and went to Goldwater's headquarters to congratulate the nominee. Scranton arrived later to add his congratulations.

The convention adjourned until 5 p.m. CST today after adopting Scranton's motion. But not all delegates took advantage of the opportunity to switch their votes before the Scranton motion was approved.

The long session Wednesday was short on drama because the delegates knew what the outcome would be before they took their seats.

When the roll of the states was called, Alabama yielded to Illinois so Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen could place Goldwater's name before the convention. Not only was a convention majority for the Arizona senator but the galleries were loaded with his supporters.

Dirksen referred repeatedly to Goldwater as the grandson of an immigrant peddler and drew cheers when he likened his fellow senator to the late Sen. Robert A. Taft, Goldwater's predecessor as the hero of Republican conservatives.

Cites Menacing Specter
"For 20 years," Dirksen said, "the controversy on the conservative position has hovered over our party like a menacing specter. . . . Why is it that this man, who so certainly has sounded the call to conservatism, should be subjected to the abuse which has been heaped upon him . . ."

"Delegates to this convention, believe me, the tide is turning and let's give that philosophy of the peddler's grandson a chance."

Whisky Reported Missing in Theft

Two fifths of whisky were reported missing today to the Gray County Sheriff's office following a burglary sometime early this morning.

John Clark, owner of John's Liquor Store, 2401 Alcock, reported the theft at 9 a.m.

Deputy Sheriff Dwight Day, who investigated the incident, said the burglar smashed a plate glass window and apparently reached inside and took the whisky.

The incident occurred sometime after midnight last night, he said.

The whisky was valued at $12.50.

New Phone Books Due Next Week

Copies of the 1964 Pampa, Skellytown, Lefors telephone directories will be mailed to customers here Tuesday, George Newberry, manager for the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. said.

The cover will be of white stock, overprinted in black ink. There will be 66 "white" or alphabetical pages and 132 classified or Yellow Pages.

Newberry said that almost 19,320 copies of the new directory have been printed but that not all of them will be mailed to customers at this time. He explained that additional copies are always prepared to have on hand for new customers moving to this area and as replacements for books in heavily used locations like public telephone booths.

Customers should throw their old directories away when the new ones are received. Newberry cautioned customers to check them carefully for address and out-of-town number lists as well as other valuable papers and even pictures between the pages of the telephone directory. People often throw the old ones away without checking them and things that they wanted to keep are lost forever.

Burglars Hit at Three Locations

Pampa police were plagued by burglars last night at three different locations.

The Western Tire Co., 901 S. Barnes reported approximately $1.50 in change and several packs of cigarettes taken from a cigarette machine. Entry was gained by smashing and unlocking a rear window.

An attempted burglary was reported by James Hill, owner of Mitchell's Grocery, 638 S. Cuyler. Police Sgt. George Wallace said someone broke out a side window but couldn't get it open and was foiled in an attempt to get inside the store.

The third place to be hit was McWilliams and Moore Service Station at 424 S. Cuyler where losses were limited to a box of Band-Aids.

An estimated 562,000 private dwellings in the U.S. were hit by fires during 1962.

Yards Contest Postponed Due To Dry Weather

Political Expert Gives Opinion on Goldwater's Rise to Power

EDITORS NOTE: In the following dispatch, a veteran UPI political writer tells how Sen. Barry Goldwater prevailed over the long odds of a few months back to capture the Republican presidential nomination.

(How Goldwater Did It)
By RAYMOND LAHR
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Sen. Barry Goldwater won the Republican presidential nomination in the face of unfavorable public opinion polls and substantial opposition within his own party.

How did he do it?
With the 20-20 vision of hindsight, his bewildered and disorganized opponents can now see three big factors which contributed significantly to Goldwater's "impossible" victory.

First, he was a good "organization man." In 10 years of wheelhorse labor for the party organization, he built close personal ties with the state and local Republican leaders who control delegations to national nominating conventions. These seasoned political pros helped him conduct a pre-convention campaign that compared in efficiency to the one waged by the late John F. Kennedy for the Democratic nomination in 1960.

Second, he skillfully outmaneuvered his opponents by pursuing a delegate-collecting strategy that sewed up the nomination before his divided opponents were sufficiently aware of what was happening to join forces in a stop-Goldwater effort.

Third, he capitalized on a deep sense of frustration which has long existed among conservative Republicans, who are much more heavily represented in positions of power in the party organization than in the party at large. These conservative Republicans were tired of having "eastern kingmakers" snatch the presidential nomination away from their favorite at the last minute, and bestow it on a candidate with a more liberal image.

Ever since 1940, when conservative hero Robert A. Taft was pushed aside in favor of political unknown Wendell L. Willkie, the conservatives have been waiting to have their own way at a national convention, instead of being told that they "must" nominate someone with a higher rating in public opinion polls.

Looking back, it is now clear that Goldwater started up the trail leading to the nomination almost 10 years ago when Senate GOP leaders tapped him to head the party's senatorial campaign committee.

Travelled Constantly
That assignment is viewed by many politicians as tiresome and unrewarding. It involves almost constant travel to speak at fund-raising events throughout the country.

Goldwater held it for six years — in 1955-56 and 1959-62. He criss-crossed the country, making friends with state Republican leaders, county chairmen and other party regulars, including the big donors. He became a much-sought speaker, because of his conspicuous success at fund raising. In his attacks on big government, big spending and big labor, he talked the language that many businessmen and other conservative Republicans like to hear. His appeal was particularly strong in the South.

Some of his southern backers tried to push him for the 1960 nomination, which already had been wrapped up for delivery to Richard M. Nixon. When his name was placed in nomination, Goldwater withdrew it and told the convention:

Looked To Future
"Let's grow up, conservatives. If we want to take the party back — and I think we can some day — let's go to work." In December, 1962, about 30 Goldwater partisans attended a secret huddle in a Chicago hotel. The meeting led to the formation of a draft-Goldwater-for-president committee. When the committee was formed, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York was heavily favored to win the presidential nomination. But a month later, the divorced Rockefeller married the divorced mother of four small children. Most Republican professionals wrote Rockefeller off as a real possibility for the nomination. The Goldwater movement boomed in the resulting vacuum.

On Nov. 22, 1963, all political blueprints were torn up after John F. Kennedy.

Part of Goldwater's strength had previously lain in his presumed ability to carry a number of southern states against Kennedy. When Kennedy was succeeded by President Johnson, a Texan much stronger in the South, Goldwater's stock went down.

Started Back Again
But his campaign started moving again after he became an announced candidate Jan. 3.

Goldwater's pre-convention strategy gave attention to the presidential primaries but with equal or greater emphasis on enlisting support in states choosing national convention delegates in congressional district and state conventions.

Less than half the national convention delegates are chosen in primaries. Victory in other states meant turning out Goldwater partisans for precinct meetings to elect delegates to county conventions, which elect delegates to district and state conventions.

The Goldwater organization was successful in these states. In some cases, governors or other party leaders who wanted to keep their delegations uncommitted were overridden or forced to compromise. Gov. John Anderson was refused a seat on the Kansas delegation; Gov. John Love was given a seat but surrounded by Goldwater delegates from Colorado.

Forgot Convention States
Rockefeller, the only other major candidate with a well-financed organization, paid little attention to the convention states, perhaps because he knew he was weak in most of them.

Goldwater compiled an unimpressive record in the early primaries. Favored to win New Hampshire's bellweather primary March 10, he was beaten by a write-in campaign for Henry Cabot Lodge.

He won over feeble opposition from Sen. Margaret Chase Smith in Illinois and from Harold E. Stassen in Indiana. Authorized Goldwater slates were defeated in primaries in Florida and South Dakota by rival slates of delegates, who were officially unpledged but included a number of Goldwater supporters.

Goldwater wrote off Oregon to concentrate on California. Rockefeller won an upset victory in Oregon and rolled down into California in the unfamiliar role of the favorite. But to the consternation of his opponents, Goldwater won California's fat bloc of 86 delegates by polling 51 per cent of the vote.

Scranton Moves In
By the time Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania became a declared candidate June 12, it was too late to stop Goldwater.

Through the winter and spring, Republicans opposed to Goldwater had taken comfort from the polls and reassured one another that something was bound to happen to stop Goldwater. But they had no alternative candidates except Rockefeller who were willing to get out and fight for the nomination in a year when Republican outlook seemed bleak.

Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, who was considered cool toward both Goldwater and Rockefeller, stayed publicly neutral. Nixon wanted a "third force" to compete for the nomination but succeeded only in convincing many Republicans that he wanted a convention deadlock which would result in his own nomination.

With his late start and poor prospects of success, Scranton could offer no strong appeal to the uncommitted delegates. Long before the convention formally convened Monday, delegates were scrambling to climb aboard the Goldwater bandwagon.

Origin of Goldwater Campaign Recalled

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A 40-year-old Dallas businessman was recognized today as one of the key figures in the four-year drive that seemed destined to end in the selection of Sen. Barry Goldwater as the Republican presidential nominee.

He is Peter O'Donnell Jr., state GOP chairman in the Lone Star state. In the genesis of Goldwater success, O'Donnell looms as a major mover. He said his reward would be the election of the Arizona in the fall and victory for Republican candidates in Texas. In an interview, O'Donnell recalled the birth of the original Draft-Goldwater movement, and how it almost never got off the ground. He recalled he even threatened at one point to pull out "unless we get an organization going now."

Personable and handsome, O'Donnell had the charm as well as the political savvy to knit together divergent elements in the Republican party behind a candidate that many said could not win. "We knew he could. We sensed the rank and file support, the grass roots support," O'Donnell said.

Hollywood

Young Actress Not 'Panting' for Career

HOLLYWOOD
By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Tippy Walker inexpertly lighted a cigarette, coughed and burned her fingers on the match.

Tippy, 17, was trying to be sophisticated, but it wasn't quite coming off. Her attempts amused her mother, Mrs. Gordon Walker, who was chaperoning the youngster on her first trip to Hollywood.

Tippy is the gamine who, with 15-year-old Merrie Spaeth, made a surprise hit of "The World of Henry Orient." She was brought to tinsel town to beat the publicity drums for the picture, but as a drum-beating press agent Tippy is as inept as she is at smoking.

Schoolgirl Back Home
She sat in the Brown Derby for lunch looking for all the world like a schoolgirl—which she is back in Dobbs Ferry, N.Y.

Tippy, her long blonde hair falling to her shoulders, is unimpressed with her acting debut and not especially interested in pursuing a career in movies.

Nor does she think it wise to team with Miss Spaeth again, nipping in the bud any rumors that the pair might become another Patsy Kelly-Thelma Todd combination. Neither will they ever achieve a juvenile version of Marie Dressler and Polly Moran.

"There's no chance of us becoming a team," Tippy said. "It would be too limiting."

"Besides, I'm not even sure I want to become an actress. I've still got to go to school. I'm not panting for a career, although like every girl I have had my dreams about becoming a movie star."

No Acting Lessons
"That's just the trouble. You have your dreams, and when you get there it isn't as great as you thought it would be."

Tippy nodded her head wisely and added, "maybe I'll become a poet or do illustrations instead of becoming an actress. One thing I'm sure of, I won't ever go to an acting school."

According to critics Tippy doesn't need acting lessons. She's as natural and unspooled on-screen as she is in person.

After lunch Tippy lighted another cigarette with about the same success. Perhaps by the time the fall semester starts back in Dobbs Ferry she will have mastered the art of smoking. That, at least, should impress her girlfriends.

New Steps Taken On Redistricting

By VERN SANFORD
Texas Press Association

AUSTIN (Spl) — New preliminary steps, inching Texas toward the inevitable realignment of congressional and legislative districts, were taken last week.

Attorney Gen. Waggoner Carr asked that the federal district court at Houston allow time for the Legislature to redraw the districts in its session next year as the court had done earlier with congressional apportionment.

In view of U.S. Supreme Court decisions that both houses of the state legislature must be selected on the basis of population alone, Carr concluded that there is little doubt that Texas districts would be declared unconstitutional.

Meanwhile, in Fort Worth and Dallas a committee of the Texas Legislative Council held its first public hearing seeking advice on how congressional districts should be redrawn.

A parade of witnesses was heard before the committee recessed briefly. It will move to Houston for its third hearing on July 17. A fourth hearing will be held in San Antonio. Committee spokesmen have indicated they may go to West Texas, then perhaps return to South Texas for further testimony.

A session of the full Legislative Council, research arm of the Legislature, is scheduled for July 27 in Austin. At that time, the Council is expected to decide whether to broaden its own study to include the explosive, close-to-home problems of rearing the state's House and Senate districts.

Work has begun on a $30,000 mural in the new Texas Archives and Library Building. It will portray state history from the days of the Spanish explorers to the present.

and English artist Peter Rogers, who is Hurd's son-in-law, will work together on the 45 by 13 foot mural. Texans will recognize among the figures Stephen F. Austin, the Father of Texas; Sam Houston, general, governor, senator and president of the Republic of Texas; Anson Jones, last president of the Republic; and Jim Bowie, Davy Crockett and William B. Travis, heroes of the Alamo.

Work is scheduled to be finished by September.

State Board of Education raised the per student apportionment of state available school fund money to local districts from $78.50 to $81.50.

ing school year at $218,300,000. Board allocated $10,500,000 to finance the cost of purchasing and handling text books. This left $207,700,000 to be distributed on a per capita basis.

This increase means no increase in overall state aid. Allocations to all but the few prosperous "budget balance" districts for salaries and operations will be decreased by an amount equivalent to the available fund boost.

Dr. L. S. Richardson, Brazosport Public Schools superintendent, was appointed to the 1964 state textbook committee to study books offered for school adoption.

This $3 per capita hike represents an overall $7,600,000 raise in available fund aid to the districts for 1964-65, based on a current estimate of more than 2,500,000 students.

Comptroller Robert S. Calvert estimated the fund for the com-

SASSY STEAK sandwiches are quick and delicious.
Sassy Steaks For Quick Barbecues

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Sassy steak sandwiches are tailored for quick and easy outdoor cooking. The cubed steaks are marinated in a simple sauce. Then, when ready to be cooked, brush them with bottled brown bouquet sauce to give a rich brown look despite quick grilling. Grill onion slices at the same time.

Macaroni salad, whole tomatoes, frozen lemonade and watermelon round out the barbecue menu. To keep clean-up work to a minimum, use paper plates and cups.

SASSY STEAK SANDWICHES
(6 sandwiches)
1/4 cup salad oil
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon seasoned salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper

6 cubed steaks (4 to 6 ounces each)
Bottled brown bouquet sauce
6 large hamburger buns
Mix oil with salt, seasoned salt, and pepper. Marinate steaks in oil mixture in refrigerator for several hours.

When ready to cook over charcoal, brush marinated steaks with bottled brown bouquet sauce. Cook quickly over hot coals, turning to brown both sides. While steaks are cooking, toast buns. Serve steaks in buns with grilled onion slices.

Maple whipped topping adds a touch of genius to the pancakes and waffles so popular for breakfast, brunch and supper.

Store Hot Foods In Refrigerator

Q—My mother warns me never to put hot foods in the refrigerator. Do you agree?

A—Your mother is probably thinking of the old-fashioned refrigerators. With the modern ones, however, it is perfectly safe to put hot foods into the refrigerator. Provided, of course, the cooling unit is not overloaded at the time.

Q—Sometimes my grocer piles a lot of cans of food that are only slightly dented in a basket and sells them very much reduced. Is it okay to buy them for my family?

A—Experts at the College of Agriculture at Rutgers University warn, "Don't use or buy canned foods if any of these signs are present: Bulging of the top or bottom of the can; dents along the side seams of the can, or any sign of seepage; off-odor or foaming when can is opened; any unusual milky quality to liquid."

TANGY

For a tangy salad, slice red onions paper thin. Separate the rings and cover them with ice cubes. Let the ice rings stand for half an hour. Drain off the excess water and unmelted cubes. Dry the rings with a paper towel. Add chunks of iceberg lettuce, garbanzo beans and slices of ripe olives. Toss with a vinegar and oil dressing. Try this combination for a snack or for the hors d'oeuvres tray. Combine Edam cheese and sweet pickle relish.

Emphasis on thirsty skin is more than an advertising ploy to sell products. A woman's skin normally loses moisture after her 25th birthday. Many women counter-balance this natural experience with oils and moisturizers. One moisturizer (left) comes out of a bottle as a foam and liquefies for less messy applications. For additional comfort (right) during hot weather, splash on a cooling cologne.

Skin Is Not Wash and Wear

By ALICIA HART
Beauty Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Use of soaps, moisturizing oils, creams, and lotions in this country is similar to a dog chasing its tail. It's just one merry, confusing circle.

As you know we use more soap than any other country. But a woman over 25 faces the problem of natural loss of skin moisture. This presents a dilemma. What do you do if you continue your regular bathing habits and soap facials? You use moisturizing creams and facial cleansing creams. And then you get back into the tub and wash the day's accumulation of grime off. But you also add a bath oil to doubly protect you against dry, itchy skin.

Despite this merry-go-round, "water can become a friend to the skin rather than an enemy," according to Martin F. Emory, president of a firm producing a moisturizing bath oil and soap. Because of a dry skin problem in his family, Emory looked around for a product that would ease it. That was in 1956.

"The fragrances of bath oils on the market then," he says, "were terrible. And many bath products were just detergents with a smell and you can get a burn from detergents as a baby knows."

With $15,000, a knowledge of the business and help with the formulation, Emory launched a therapeutic moisturizing oil. Its early use was by podiatrists in whirlpool treatment and other doctors recommended it for patients who suffered skin irritations because of high blood pressure and diabetes. Eventually the break into the consumer field came.

This is a brief version of a success story in the beauty field. It reflects, though, the increased interest in and use of bath oils with pleasing fragrances here in the last few years.

Cabbage is grown in 34 states, the Western Growers Association reports.

Dear Abby... Families Can Be Broken For Less

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: We (four sisters) were quite young when our grandmother passed away, leaving us all her lovely cut glass. I married first, so I stored the box of cut glass in my attic. When the next sister married she had a china closet, so she asked me if she could keep the cut glass in her home. I agreed. Then the other two girls married. It has been twelve years, and now the other sisters (and I, too) could use our share. When I asked the sister who has it displayed in her china closet for my share, she told me I had GIVEN it all to her. She can keep mine, but the other sisters feel that I GAVE theirs to her, too. How can I right this without creating hard feelings?

A SISTER
DEAR SISTER: Tell your sisters that you did not GIVE the cut glass away — you agreed only to let your sister keep it until the others had use for it. Then it will be up to the sisters to claim what is rightfully theirs. But tell them not to be disappointed if they don't get it. Families have been shattered over less than a few pieces of cut glass.

DEAR ABBY: Whenever I need new clothes, my mother takes me shopping. I am 13 and think I should be able to go in the stores alone first and pick out what I like, and then bring my mother in to make the final decision. Lots of my friends do that, but I am afraid to suggest it to my mother because it might hurt her feelings. Should I?

TEEN-AGER
DEAR TEEN-AGER: You are sweet to be so considerate of your mother's feelings. Honey, I should think she would welcome a plan that would save her the time and wear and tear of shopping.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were invited to this couple's home for the evening. We sat in the living room talking. The men were watching television and I was trying to carry on a conversation with the hostess. She picked up her knitting, and every time I spoke to her she said, "Sh... I'm counting." So the rest of the evening was spent in quiet while she knit. What do you think of a hostess like that? Would you go back there again if you were invited?

SHUSHED
DEAR SHUSHED: Your hostess was a knitter. And I would not go back there again unless I expected to be needed.

DEAR ABBY: My sister and I are identical twins, and we are not the only set of twins with this complaint, so we would appreciate it if you would print this letter to educate people on the likes and dislikes of twins. First, we hate it when people come up to us and ask, "Are you twins?" They know perfectly well we are. Next, we don't mind being referred to as "the twins," when someone is talking about both of us. But when someone calls one of us "Twin" or "Twinnie," we don't like it.

We don't like to be treated as though we were one person with two heads, and four arms and four legs and so forth. We like being twins — it is fun — but we want to be treated as individuals.

Mrs. Coleman Is Birthday Honoree
SKELLYTOWN (Sp) — Mrs. Ross Coleman of Skellytown was honored with a birthday supper Monday evening in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cleady Steward at White Deer.

Guests attending were Mr. and Mrs. Bill Smith and two sons, Stevie and Terry of Pampa, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Coleman and Mr. and Mrs. Ross Coleman and son Cavin of Skellytown and Carolyn and Kenneth Steward of White Deer.

VARIETY
NEW YORK (UPI)—For extra flavor and variety, try Louisiana yams with a variety of toppings: season mashed yams fresh or canned, with melted butter or margarine, instant onion, salt, pepper and aromatic bitters to taste. Top with a choice of crushed corn chips, toasted coconut, chopped nuts or crumbled crisp bacon.

The Mature Parent Mother Asks 'Why Doesn't He Obey?'

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Dear Mrs. Lawrence: When I tell my 5-year-old boy not to do something, he spites me by doing something worse. He waits until I am feeding or dressing his baby sister to climb up on our staircase baluster. When I tell him to get down, he runs out the front door into the street though he has been told never to do this because of cars. He prefers his father to me. He behaves better after a spanking by his father but behaves worse after I hit him.

Answer: Next time he insists on disobeying you, stop whatever it is you're doing. If you are feeding the baby, stop and put her in her crib. Attend to your son. If he has run away, chase him until you catch him. Don't give up until you catch him. If you have to, sit on him until he stops kicking and flailing. Don't hurt him. Use your greater strength to end the disobedient action and to immobilize him. When the fight goes out of him, let him go. Say, "All right. I can run as fast as you can. Don't disobey me again."

He is trying to force you to take this controlling action. You've told him that it's dangerous to climb up on the staircase baluster. You've told him that if he runs out into the street, he may get hit by a car. Yet you have not used your physical strength to stop these perilous performances. You've just "told" him to stop them. What's he to make of your talk that you haven't reinforced by action? Not much.

He is trying to force you to put an end to his perilous performances by action. He wants to find out whether you are willing to risk hurt by his kicks and struggles to protect him against the hurts you have told him he'll get if he falls off the baluster or is hit by a car.

He disobeys you in the hope that his dangerous actions will galvanize you into taking the protective control that will assure him that his safety is more important to you than hurt by his kicking arms and legs.

IT'S THE LAW in Texas

THE PIRACY PRINCIPLE
The colorful pirate of old captured your imagination but not that of the shipowners or the governments that lost their cargoes and treasures.

Pirates were "enemies of mankind." Their acts became crimes against that government as well as against the "law of nations." A government would try to catch and to punish them no matter how and where the piracy took place.

From these early days, a rule of international law called "the piracy principle" came into being, as to crimes against mankind. Any nation might seize and punish such a person. He did not need to be one of its citizens. The crimes could be committed inside or outside its territory. Jurisdiction is worldwide.

Nations often punish their own people for crimes beyond their borders. Nations can punish aliens for crimes within their borders. They can punish aliens for crimes committed against that country when they later come into that country. A nation can also punish an alien for piracy under international law.

What about war crimes done on orders of superiors? The World War II allies have declared that certain Nazi leaders committed punishable crimes against nations.

Now and then some nations may allow a court to try a person "in absentia." Such trials without the accused present were once popular, but little comes from such trials, and they are not as highly regarded as trials in which a person has a fair chance to defend himself.

(This newsfeature, prepared by the State Bar of Texas, is written to inform — not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is fully advised concerning the facts involved, because a slight variance in facts may change the application of the law.)

Quotes From The News

SAN FRANCISCO — Republican presidential nominee Barry Goldwater, looking ahead to a "vigorous" campaign against President Johnson:
"I just hope I'm a better salesman than he is."

SAN FRANCISCO — Gov. William W. Scranton, who lost the nomination to Goldwater, pledging to support the ticket:
"Though many of us felt that the platform could be improved all of us can find it acceptable."

WASHINGTON — Democratic National Chairman John M. Bailey, saying the nomination of Goldwater will give the voters a choice between President Johnson's "great society" and "the radical right":
"I'm sorry a major political party has been captured by a radical minority so completely divorced from the heritage and principles of our nation."

By LYLE WILSON
United Press International
Republicans now assembled in their 28th national convention are setting up a big, tough job for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. The old warrior is marked for the role of peacemaker among the battling Republican factions.

More accurately, he has been marked for that job for some time, having assigned himself to it early in this presidential year.

Peace making after this convention is likely to be a bigger job than like foresaw when he chose it. These Republicans are acting more like Democrats in their bitterness toward each other. Frustration seems to be the word for the stop-Goldwater campaign headed by Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania.

Goldwater officials and Goldwater delegates are comfortably in control of the convention and of its committees. In a platform committee test vote, for example, the Scranton faction came up with only 16 of 100 votes. That is the way it has been in San Francisco.

Just Showing Up
Under the circumstances, Scranton deserves a high mark merely for showing up. That was what the sports writers used to say of the foredoomed fighters who got up enough nerve to crawl into the ring with Joe Louis.

If Scranton's nerves are jumpy, that can be understood. The contending forces are building up a dislike for each other so that this Republican convention may be the angriest and most sharply divided since 1940 when the late Wendell L. Willkie kidnapped the Republican presidential nomination to the stupefaction of some conservative politicians who had considered themselves to be party leaders.

The eastern Republicans who master-minded Willkie's 1940 coup have since dictated Republican nominees and policies. They and Willkie in 1940 put the GOP on the liberal or moderate or me-too path which has led over the years — always to

State of Shock

The eastern Republican leaders appear now to be in a state of shock induced by the evidence that Sen. Barry M. Goldwater will be the party's presidential nominee. Their shocked anxiety could not be greater if they suddenly had been confronted in San Francisco by a Martian invasion. Many of them no doubt, would prefer a Martian to Goldwater. They seem to regard the senator as a trigger-happy cow poke right out of a television shoot-em-up.

It is in this atmosphere of anger and suspicion that the Republicans are assembled to organize for their presidential year joust with the Democrats and President Johnson. Ike-the-peacemaker will need special skills to persuade Goldwater, Scranton and their partisans to kiss and make up.

But Ike will be in a strong position when the nominations finally are made. He may feel strong enough to propose — or to insist — that the peacemaking begin with the presidential ticket itself by naming Scranton to run with Goldwater.

There would be strong conservative opposition to that. Chairman William E. Miller of the Republican National Committee is being touted as Goldwater's personal choice for second place. Convention conservatives are enthusiastic about Miller. They would give a real fight on that issue unless Goldwater forbade it.

Hardin-Roth edged out Lone Star 2-1 and One Bull beat Radcliff 9-2 in last night's action.

Ross Hembree broke up a 1-1 pitcher's duel with a home run that sank Lone Star.

Dalton gave up two hits and struck out 11 in taking the decision. Brewer, one of three Lone Star hurlers, gave up all three of Hardin-Roth's hits and was tagged with the loss.

One Bull scored three times in the fifth and four times in the sixth to unknit a 2-2 ball game with Radcliff.

Jerome Bradshaw and Don Wilborn combined efforts to shut out Radcliff except for the fourth inning. Wilborn was given the decision.

Dale Hood was the loser. Jim Reader hit three times in three tries to pace One Bull's attack.

Farm League Pioneer Natural Gas beat Team No. 4 by 17-8 to tie Team No. 6 for first place in the Farm League.

The two teams finished the season with 8-1 records.

Yanks Regain First, Beat Birds

By United Press International

The New York Yankees occupy first place in the American League because in a critical moment Yogi Berra called the tune. Whitey Ford played it and Boog Powell danced to it.

The moment of crisis came in the ninth inning of the Yankees' 2-0 victory over the Baltimore Orioles Wednesday when Powell stepped to the plate with Jackie Brandt on base and two out. A homer would have tied the score and Ford feared that he might feed the gopher pitch to Powell because an aching right hip was preventing him from throwing his sharp-breaking curve.

The 35-year-old Ford asked Berra to choose between letting him pitch sliders or calling in Steve Hamilton to pitch to Powell. Berra chose to let Ford handle the job with sliders and Whitey responded by getting Powell to hit into a game-ending infield out.

Passes Shutout Mark

The victory raised Ford's season record to 12-2 and his seventh shutout tied his own club record for one season. Also, the 41st shutout of his career surpassed the mark he previously shared with Red Ruffing.

Joe Pepitone drove in both New York runs with a single in the second inning as the Yankees rolled to their sixth straight victory since the All-Star break and dealt the Orioles their fourth straight setback.

The Boston Red Sox routed the Chicago White Sox, 11-2, the Minnesota Twins downed the Washington Senators 6-0, the Kansas City Athletics beat the Cleveland Indians 5-3 and 3-2 and the Los Angeles Angels swept a doubleheader from the Detroit Tigers 5-4 and 1-0.

Stuart Hits Pair

Dick Stuart hit his 19th and 20th homers of the season and lifted his RBI total to 73 with six runs batted in to pave the way for Boston's Arnold Earley to win his first game of the season. Carl Yastrzemski weighed in with three hits in the 14-hit Boston attack.

Medalist Defeated In Publinx Tourney

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI)—Only one "name" player, defending champion Bobby Lunn, 19, survived today into the third round of match play in the National Public Links golf championship, but a bunch of other youngsters were showing the ability to develop into "name" stars themselves.

A 19-year-old from Hopkins, Minn., Jim Carlson, who will be a sophomore at the University of Minnesota this fall, proved to be the giant killer, eliminating medalist Steve Oppermann in the first round and then ousting the top player of Hawaii's potent team, Greg Diklato in the second 18-hole test.

But other potential threats also were defeated while two youngsters Bill McDonald, 20, Topeka, Kan., and 23-year-old Dennis Murphy, of Fort Richardson, Alaska, indicated they would be hard to beat.

Along with Oppermann, George Welsh, Dayton, Ohio, the runner-up for medalist honors, and two of the four who tied with McDonald and Murphy for third medalist honors were eliminated.

Welsh won his first round match but was eliminated by Bob Hawkins, Tacoma Park, Md., in the afternoon.

Houston In Training

By KENNETH CARR
HOUSTON (UPI)—The Houston Oilers of the American Football League officially opened their season training today and for the first time since 1961 they don't have to worry about defending their Eastern division title.

The pressure was taken off the 1964 team by last year's squad which failed to win the title for the first time since the league began in 1960. They finished third.

Oiler Coach Sammy Baugh makes no bones about his feelings on the team—improve or else.

The new coach, who replaced (Pop) Ivy, puts it like this: "All I know about anybody on this team is what they show me from here on out. Everybody is starting out in this training camp even."

Many of the Oilers' critics charged last year that the team's veterans were complacent. They lost their "hungry" attitude.

Fifteen of the team's first year squad were still around and a poor 1963 rookie crop made them so many fat cats, the critics claimed.

That's changed this year. The Oilers are claiming their best rookie crop since the league was formed. They grabbed seven of their first 11 draft choices and these include such "names" as Scott Appleton of Texas, Ode Burrell of Mississippi State and Don Trull of Baylor.

Colts Win Doubleheader

By KARL O'QUINN
Daily News Sports Editor

The Pampa Colts won a double-header from Stinnett in just 10 innings last night.

The first game, scheduled for seven innings, was called in the fifth when Pampa went 10 runs ahead, 15-5. The second was slated for five innings by mutual agreement and went to the Colts 4-2.

Both teams scored in bunches in the first game.

Pampa took a four-run lead in the second inning. Mike Stewart walked to open the frame. Royce Harnsberger was safe on the second baseman's error and Don Hickman was safe on a fielder's choice to send Stewart home. Left fielder Bobby Price singled to score Harnsberger. When Price stole second the catcher tried to throw him out, allowing Hickman to come in. Larry Gregory singled to score Price.

The Colts added eight more in the third as 11 batters went to the plate.

Jerry Glover tripled and scored on Stewart's double. Harnsberger homered and left fielder Bill Gholson bounced his chin off the fence chasing the disappearing ball. A doctor took nine stitches in his chin and he returned to action in the second game.

DeWayne Glover was safe on an error, stole second and scored on Price's single. Gregory singled to plate Price and Kenney Hebert walked. Jerry Glover drove both of them in with his second triple of the inning. Glover scored on Danny Slater's balk.

The Roadrunners threatened to climb back into the ball game with five runs in the fourth on four singles and three errors.

The inning was highlighted by the doings of Price in left field. He ran in from his deep position to make a brilliant stabbing catch of Bobby Dodd's short fly, then dropped one he hardly had to move for. He made a leaping catch of Bill Gholson's line drive fly and then let a ball get through him before ending the inning with his third putout.

Three Pampa runs in the bottom of the fifth ended it.

Ray Dean and Merle Terrell singled. Gregory walked and Jerry Glover scored Dean with a single. Terrell came in on a fielder's choice and Gregory scored the decisive run on an error by the shortstop.

Don Hickman picked up his first decision of the year as he went all the way on the mound. Danny Slater was the loser.

Jerry Glover was three for four at the plate, including two triples, and batted in three runs. Price was two for two with two RBIs.

The Colts picked up where they left off and scored two runs in the first inning of the second game.

An error by the shortstop and two by the first baseman scored Terrell and put Gregory in position for Jerry Glover to drive him in with a single.

Stinnett got one back in the second but Roy Don Stephens scored on two errors and a sacrifice in the bottom of the frame.

The Colts ended their scoring in the fourth when Price walked and moved around on singles by Dean and Gregory.

Stinnett took advantage of a throwing error by Price, now pitching, and three singles to close the gap to 4-2, but Price struck out his fifth batter in two innings to end the game.

DeWayne Glover started for the Colts and gave up one run in three innings to receive credit for the win.

Lefthander Bill Wade allowed Pampa just three hits but lost. It was a low-hit, high-error game. Stinnett had four hits and six errors. Pampa committed five errors.

There were just two walks in the game, compared to 12 in the first one.

Borger, Nazareth Open Legion District Tourney

By KARL O'QUINN
Daily News Sports Editor

Borger bopped Dumas 17-7 Tuesday night in a one-game play-off for the runnerup spot in the north zone of American Legion District 18 and the last open berth in the district tournament, which opens today at 5 p.m. in Optimist Park.

Dumas beat Pampa Monday night in Dumas to force the playoff with Borger.

The champions of the two zones, Pampa and Hereford, meet in the second game tonight at 8. Borger plays Nazareth in the opener.

Hereford ran up a 9-1 record in the south zone, identical to Pampa's, and is composed largely of members of Hereford

High School's state AAA semi-finalists.

The double elimination tournament continues through Saturday. Winners and losers of first round games play tomorrow. Saturday the two remaining teams in the losers bracket play the semi-finals and the winner will meet the undefeated team for the championship.

The tournament winner will meet the District 19 champion, which will probably be the Lubbock Bell Cheks (Monterey High School).

Rebel manager Harold Gregory said yesterday he would start either Carl Harnsberger (0-2) or Jerry Garrison (3-1).

This will leave him with Buddy Hammons (3-0), Ronnie Curlee (1-1), Jim Arthur (1-0) and Roy Harper (0-0) in reserve.

Since each hurler is allowed to pitch just 12 innings in a season-day period, this depth in pitchers may decide the tournament in Pampa's favor.

A Watchful Newspaper

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities. We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is thus consistent with the Human Relations Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

GOP Must Win Election—or Else

One question has been answered in San Francisco; two emergent ones now intrude themselves upon the American consciousness. The answered question—"Who will win the Republican nomination?"—was largely academic during the last weeks preceding the convention, though there was always the outside chance that the Goldwater offensive could be blunted.

Like John F. Kennedy in 1960, whose methods he frankly copied, Barry Goldwater captured his party's standard by way of competing in the primaries and wooing the party professionals. The technique gave him a smashing first-ballot victory at the convention.

Now that history has repeated itself to that extent, future presidential aspirants will ignore this dual approach only at their peril. The tactics of Goldwater's nomination drive, however, particularly in its latter days, are involved in the two new questions:

— "What, really, does Goldwater propose for the United States?"

— "Whither now the GOP?" Between the all-important California primary and the convention, Goldwater, by his impassivity, presented more the aspect of one of the Indians he knows so well in his native state than that of a crusading politician.

Although this frustrated the too-late efforts of the Republican liberals to trap him into possibly talking his way out of the nomination, it is a stratagem that must be abandoned in the race for the presidency.

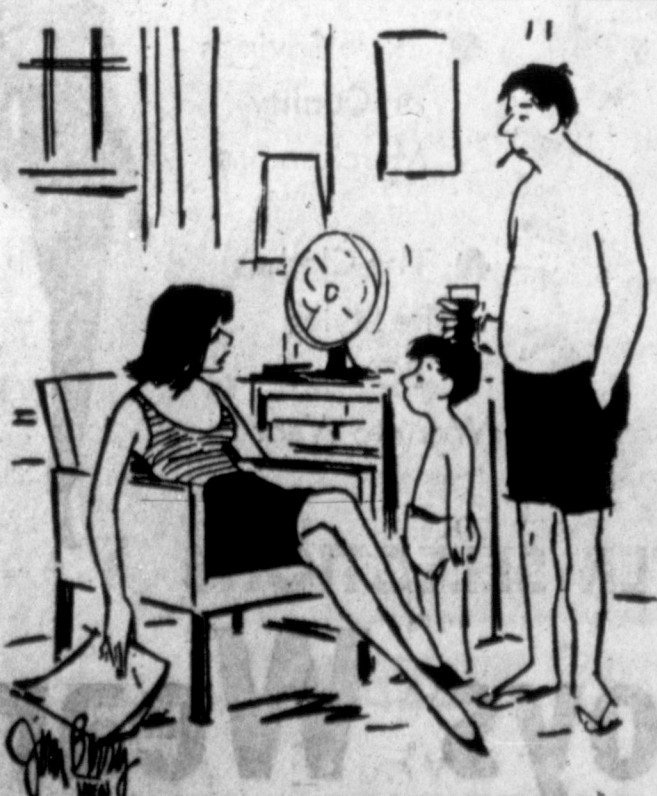

Barry Goldwater can be depended upon to speak out now, and with great force. Yet his task of arousing the electorate may not be an easy one. On the domestic side, the steady upward trend of the economy shows no sign of faltering. The challenger, always at a disadvantage against an incumbent, is even more so in times of general prosperity.

Will the peripheral issues—federal government growth and waste, Medicare, antipollution legislation, aid to education, states' rights, the Supreme Court—engage the emotions of the majority of the people in

All Work: Dull Jack

A good case against overspecialization in science has been made by two University of Michigan researchers. After a five-year study involving 1,311 scientists and engineers they found that people who spent full time in technical work were less effective and creative than those who spent part of their time on entirely different tasks (but still within their fields), such as administration or teaching.

"There was a hint," they concluded, "that excessive dedication was not healthy and that all work and no diversity was making Jack a dull scientist." There may be meat for thought here for more than just scientists or employers of scientists. It will be no news to successful company presidents, most of whom are Jacks of all the trades within their particular trade. What it amounts to is that an occasional vacation AT work, in the form of a new challenge, can be as important as the annual one away from it. Smart is the boss who presents these challenges to his workers. On the way up is the man who creates them for himself.

"I don't care if the pioneer women didn't have it... I want air-conditioning!"

WASHINGTON:

UAW Out For More Power

BY RAY CROMLEY
DETROIT (NEA) — The feeling one gets from talking to negotiators in the big automobile industry-United Auto Workers contract talks is that the auto workers are going to come out of the protracted negotiations this fall with sizable wage increases, direct and indirect. But the big fight is going to be over how much say the unions shall have in determining the rules under which union men work.

Management men grow nervous and tense even when they talk privately on this problem. Union men are giving evidence of a determination to have an increase say on work rules—determination of an intensity that hasn't been evident in recent years.

THUS THE SIGNS ARE that fighting on this front will be long and bitter. Management men think they can handle wage increases and still manage to beat foreign competition and sell a record number of cars in the current boom market. (They don't say how far they can go in raising wages without raising prices.)

But because they don't know at the beginning of an automobile year exactly what models the public is going to buy (witness the unexpected boom in Ford's Mustang and the failure of Ford's Edsel a few years back), the only way auto management men see to meet market changes is to make quick shifts in the mix of cars going through their production lines.

These shifts require changes in the work assigned to individual men (or in the amount of work done by individual men).

Management men say that a cutback in management's ability to freely make these changes without negotiating with the union in each case would destroy management's ability to make the quick shifts they must make to keep costs down and compete in an erratic and fluctuating market.

(Even when over-all demand is high, the demand for a particular model or type may vary up or down rapidly in an unpredictable way.)

These management men say, therefore, that they can take high wages a lot easier than they can accept tying their hands on how they shall assign labor.

UNION MEN SAY they're finding that while increased automation is relieving workers of much backbreaking effort, it is bringing more boredom. A worker feels psychologically better off if he can work rapidly for awhile, then coast, then speed up again, on a schedule of his own choosing.

With today's automation, the worker can't do this. He can leave his machine now and again when a relief worker steps in to spell him. But he can't just drop his work when he gets tense and walk out in the hall to unwind for a minute as an office worker or many other production workers can. He must wait for someone to relieve him. So he feels tied to the machine.

AUTO MEN REPORT a rising pressure from workmen for the right to leave machines when they want, providing they do an agreed-on amount of work in a day. Management men say that because the modern auto production line is a continuous process, if one man leaves his job, the whole line may grind to a halt. A top management man in one of the major automobile companies says, "I see the problem. I recognize what these men are saying. But I don't know how to change it.

"If we're going to make cars, we can't be stopping the line all the time. We can't negotiate either every time we want someone to do something different from what he's been doing."

The final settlement of these problems is expected to have wide repercussions. Some government economists thank any auto worker wage and work-rule gains will be reflected in wage-sizeable number of other industry agreements made in a sizable number of other industries during the next 24 months.

The vacuum cleaner salesman who had an appointment found the lady of the house unable to keep it. He suggested tomorrow.

Woman — That's my busy day. If you call then, you will find me in a whirligig. Agent — That won't worry me, madam. My last customer was in a kimono.

Switch to Non-Compulsive Government Easy Matter

By SAM CAMPBELL

After a person sees that government by compulsion leads to National Socialism, he looks around for a principle of government other than compulsion.

If he searches the history of the American Revolution closely, he will discover the embryo of a government based on voluntary cooperation. Enlarging on that experience with knowledge gained from limited forms of voluntary cooperation (the marketplace, for instance), he comes to discern that while defensive force is an essential ingredient of law and order, compulsive or initiated force is not essential.

How To Get There? The next thing the searcher wishes to know is how to depart from the old system of government and progress to the new system.

As a constructive individual, he abhors even the thought of violence. Further, the very principle of violence runs directly contrary to the principle of voluntary co-operation. So how can a non-compulsive system be established on the ground already occupied by the opposite theory and structure?

The answer that some give to this problem is "evolution." But that is only a word and means nothing except that the changeover will require time and patience.

After long consideration of the matter, this writer is persuaded that the problem of changeover is purely hypothetical and doesn't really exist from a practical standpoint.

Reasons Offered That sounds like a big statement, so you are entitled to hear the reasons for it.

Look at it this way. Do you remember the Volstead Act and the Prohibition Amendment? Those laws were given a fair try, and quite a few persons went to jail because of them. But ultimately, in spite of the emotional element involved, good men and moral men came to the opinion that such laws are wrong. When this alteration of opinion occurred, juries simply refused to convict the accused.

As a consequence, the Volstead Act and the Prohibition Amendment died on the vine and later were repealed.

This consequence came to pass not as a result of political action, but rather as the effect of a change in minds.

Income Tax To Atrophy Similarly, you can envision what would happen if good men and moral men by the process of enlightenment arrived at a conclusion that the income tax is unduly burdensome, unfair and unnecessary. When this alteration of opinion occurs—and it is occurring daily—the federal prosecutors will find it harder and harder to get convictions before juries.

It can be expected, therefore, that the income tax will atrophy somewhat in advance of the time it actually is repealed. In other words a mere change in the minds of men is sufficient to bring about a change in the government structure.

And this is not strange for government structure is a product of mental habits.

Too Late, Again The Socialists sense this already and are trying to shore up their outworn system by substituting trial by commission in place of trial by jury. The California FEPC and the Rumford Housing Act are examples of this effort.

But as in other instances recently, the Socialists are appearing to be too late with too little.

The way of paradoxes is the way of truth. To test reality we must see it on the tight-rope. When the vertiges become acrobats we can judge them.

Pull Up A Chair

By Frank J. Markey

It probably doesn't matter to you, but that one-dollar bill in your wallet is no longer good for a silver dollar at any bank.

Since last March silver dollar certificates are redeemable in silver bullion only, but to get it you'll have to travel to the New York or San Francisco assay offices. If you're really interested in the exchange you can get a little more than an ounce of pure silver for your buck, and silver is now worth about $1.30 an ounce. Figure it out for yourself: exchange five silver certificates, which represent $5, at the assay office and they'll give you five ounces of silver worth $6.50, which is the equivalent of five times $1.30. Engage in a transaction and you'll get a more valuable amount of silver. The only catch to all this is that when you have the silver, no one will accept it as legal tender, so you're still behind the eight ball. Hang onto your dollar bills.

Today's smile: A minister friend tells us about a nice old lady who shook his hand one Sunday morning as she was leaving the church and said: "That was a wonderful sermon, Reverend. Everything you said applied to someone I know."

Sneet shooting is an American invention. circa 1910. The name is taken from an archaic Scandinavian word for "shoot." The average "sneet" squad consists of five persons, each of whom shoots a round of 25 shots from various positions around a semi-circle called stations. It's highly competitive and a national association is the regulating body that serves as arbiter for the rules. It's now gaining great popularity throughout the world.

Thoughts while shaving: A psychiatrist says the way a person dresses is closely connected with the impression that person unconsciously wishes to convey. He says research has shown that clothing is a symbol which plays an important part in shaping personal relationships and permits strangers to determine one's social position immediately. So be careful about your attire. . . To date more than 50 manufacturers of Smokey Bear commercial items, including dolls, uniforms, badges, etc. Royalties from product sales made possible the formation of Smokey Bear Junior Forest Rangers, which now number upwards of 3 million youngsters in all 50 states, all of whom are engaged in forest fire prevention activities. . . Just read a prediction that the U. S. population in the year 2010, less than 50 years away, will be 425 million people. And we think we have problems now. . . The largest commercial office building in the world is the Pan American Building above Grand Central Terminal, New York City. It contains 2,400,000 square feet of rentable floor space and rises 59 stories to a height of 830 feet above street level. But the largest commercial building in the world is Chicago's Merchandise Mart, owned by Joseph P. Kennedy, with 92 acres of floor space for an average daily working population of 20,000 per-

Question Box

(We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

QUESTION: "Wouldn't it improve the well-being of mankind on earth if we had more laws prohibiting the production and distribution of pornographic and salacious literature and films? Our children would not then be exposed to such objectionable items. Surely you agree with that!"

ANSWER: No. Sorry, but "mankind on earth" is made up of individuals. Each one has a free will. We know of no practical way of forcing an individual to read, view or purchase lewd materials if he doesn't want to.

The law has not been able to stem an increasing tide of salacious matter — some of which comes from the U.S., some from foreign sources. Despite laws (some of which we already have) such magazines, films and pictures will continue to find a ready market.

As long as a market for that type of thing exists, someone will find a way to serve the customers. Recall the Prohibition days.

The answer begins within each home when parents train their children to become responsible, morally healthy adults. When enough parents have taught enough children, and have practiced what they themselves have preached, the problem will dwindle.

QUESTION: "Should the amount of salary drawn by the head of a corporation influence the demands for higher wages?"

ANSWER: This question has come up because Walter Reuther is implying that because Henry Ford II is drawing over $500,000 a year that the wages of the workers should be increased.

What the manager draws has nothing to do with what the worker should receive. Each worker should get all he produces as measured by the free market where all people are permitted to help establish values.

The stockholders are the ones who might object to the high salary but the workers have nothing to do with it. The stockholders evidently believe that the man is earning his money, or they would employ someone who would do the same job for less money.

This is an erroneous idea that the amount of salary that executives draw has anything to do with what the workers should receive for carrying out the plans of the executives. The executives are trying to please the customers, and if there is any way that the customers can be given more for their dollar, without reducing earnings, the stockholders are interested because by so doing they will make more sales and thus have more net gains.

But Walter Reuther seems to think that the part the workers produce has nothing to do with what wages should be. If it wasn't for the tools furnished to the workers they wouldn't be getting nearly $3.50 an hour for semi-skilled labor. The public is paying more for cars because the labor unions have got control of the automobile business.

If the workers are entitled to share in profits as Reuther contends would he also concede they should share in the loss? If they could get more from any other employer, would they take the better job?

We notice that the Rambler of American Motors who instigated a profit sharing plan years ago is not doing too well. The stock is dropping. There is a cause for this, so the investors think.

The Little Rock (Arkansas) GAZETTE reported "All-A pupils have been named. . . The list covers the fourth sex-weeks' grading period." That's the time to grade 'em.

Country Editor speaking: "Children never misquote you; they repeat what you shouldn't have said word for word."

A woman went into a butcher shop one evening to buy some meat. A strange man followed her into the store and stood about while she was at the counter. Suddenly she screamed, and the man turned and ran out of the store, and right into the arms of a passing patrolman. On searching him he was found to be armed. Later he was identified as a notorious hold-up man.

Butcher — Mrs. Jones, if you hadn't screamed I would certainly have been robbed. But how did you know he was a bandit?

Mrs. Jones — I didn't know. I screamed when you told me what the roast was going to cost me.

Cannel At Bay

Our Own Political Analyst Bridges the Polish Problem NEW YORK — We could not understand Attorney General Robert Kennedy's opening campaign for vice presidential nomination because Poland hardly ever sends delegates to the Democratic convention. So we have been reappraising recent Polish strategy, as the news analysts usually put it, in order to interpret this event in the light of world affairs.

And we are now able to report that Mr. Kennedy's Polish car-tour was, in reality, only a smoke screen for turning the spotlight on the most alarming threat to U. S. foreign policy in a half-century.

While the free world was distracted by Moscow-Peking fighting over Marxist ideology, Poland had made a surreptitious bid for Communist leadership by becoming the first Red bloc nation to enter the World Bridge Championships games held recently in New York.

And while they did not actually win, it is childishly simple for anyone who reads with the bridge or foreign news analysis to understand what Poland's tactics mean to already unbalanced international understanding.

Actually, the Polish move is no surprise to regular readers of "U. S. Bid and World Response," which predicted precisely this maneuver some time ago (See USB&WR, March 3, 1911) although not in so many words, expecting it to come instead as an armed attack on Copenhagen.

It is, however, a bit premature to call the 1964 Olympiad "Communism's Strongest Weapon" and "New Crack in the Kremlin Wall" as "Bridge-week," with its balanced reporting, titles two recent articles on the subject. While it may be true that FDR was a known bridge player, there is only the slimmest evidence that the Slimwood Convention laid any lasting groundwork for the Yalta Conference.

As a matter of fact, that so little was known of Poland's bidding system at the Olympiad is another indelible mark against the CIA. That the free world beat Poland at all is amazing, as close students of diplomatic history know if they will recall that fateful encounter at the Chelm Piczlot Club on October 16, 1921, which the U. S. lost through incomplete intelligence reports.

The U. S. was represented on that dire occasion by the ardent but clumsy Ruth Snyder and Judd Gray, inventors of the strong club response. They were accompanied by their strategist, Gen. John "Black Jack" Pershing. The Poles were represented by Zbigniew and Wladyslaw Brenner, who were accompanied by the wily J. A. Padarewsky on the piano.

The bidding: West North East South Pacz Pass Pacz 1 club Pacz Pass Pacz Damn Pacz Pass Pacz Opening lead: Queen of hearts. One is immediately struck by the similarity between this situation and the classic "Ver-sailles Contract" bid by Col. House and Mme. Clemenceau on June 26, 1919, and reviewed relentlessly by the "Saturday Evening Deal" ever since. In both instances, the U. S. was relying heavily on a void in diamonds and the moral right to open the bidding.

Zbigniew Brenner's original pass, or the Brenner Pacz as it has come to be known in bridge circles, was a dead giveaway of a weak heart suit. But South, who should have had the ace, dropped it on the floor during a fierce Chopin Etude following the first round of bidding. The rest of the hand fell accordingly.

One can only hope that the State Department bridge desk has been more careful in studying Poland's play in the 1964 Olympiad. In the words of the immortal Wellington known intimately in bridge circles today as the Iron Duke: "The team that does not know history is forced to go down at least two tricks. You have to come to the table with clean hands, long hearts and always keep the bidding on a very low level without actually using obscenity."
