

You, Your Child and School

By DAVID NYDICK
UPI Education Specialist

Spare the rod and spoil the child or use the rod and lose control of the child. Which is correct? Educators and other experts argue on both sides of the question. Perhaps there is no single answer. A separate judgement is needed for each situation.

What is the situation in a public school? Teachers generally are not permitted to use physical force as a punishment. They are usually allowed to use force to protect other children, adults, or themselves.

The laws do vary in different states and often within local communities of a state. The variation goes from the extremes of allowing corporal punishment to permitting no force whatsoever. The best way to find out about local laws is to ask the school administrator or examine the school board policies.

The courts have had a major role in this issue. They have decided on various occasions that the teacher is the local parent. This means that the teacher has the same rights and responsibilities as parents. This would imply that reasonable physical force is allowed but the force should not involve unreasonable physical harm.

Let's look at this problem without relation to the law. What is proper educational procedure?

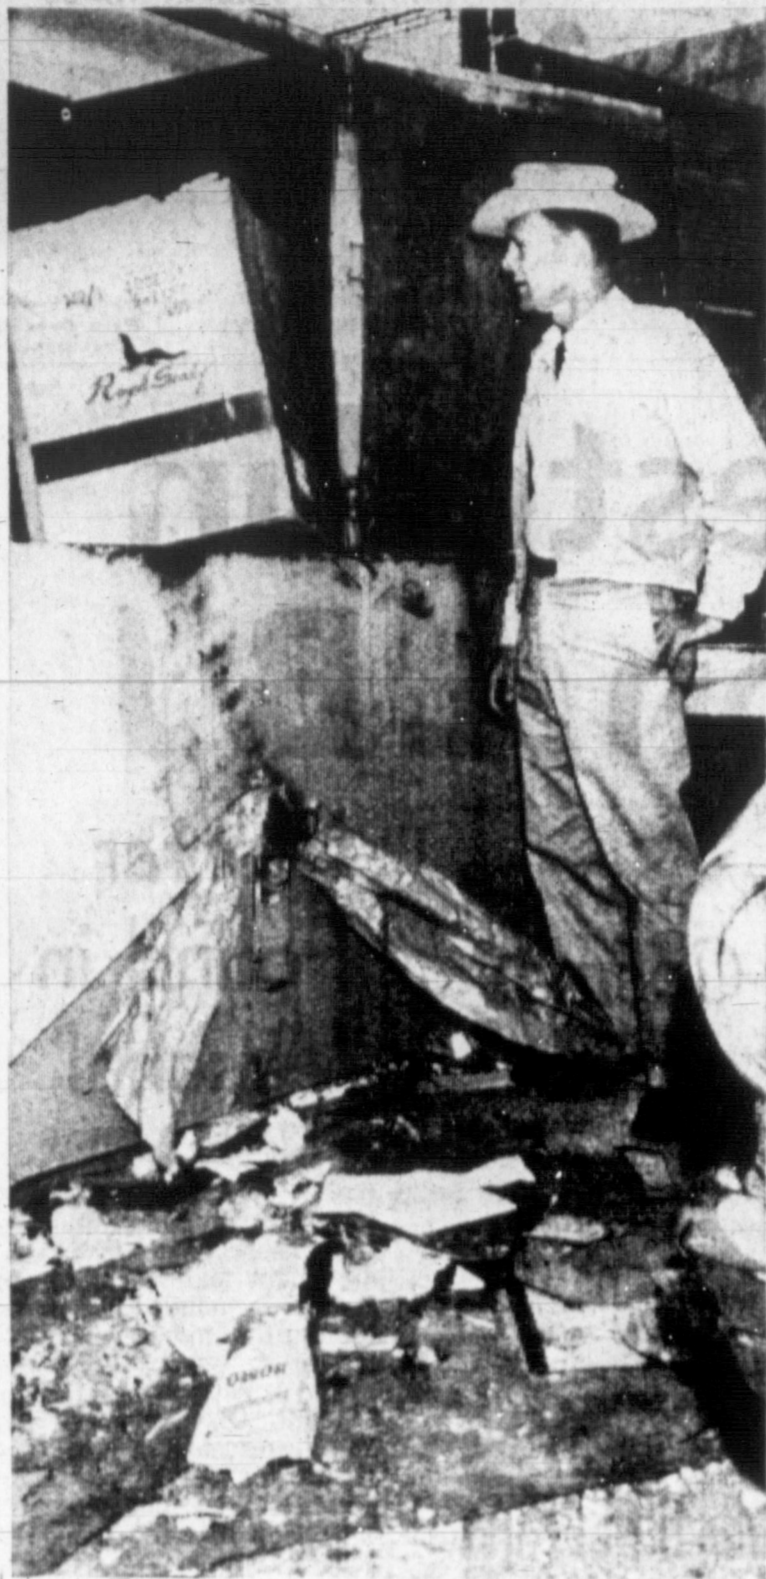

Physical force is usually necessary unless it is to protect another individual. Parents generally resort to spanking in order to relieve their own anger. This probably satisfies their temper. The child is rarely as upset by the pain as by the understanding that their parents are upset.

There are certainly more effective and appropriate punishments. Adults should consider the nature of the child's misbehavior and then design a punishment which has a relation to the wrong action. This approach will usually bring better results than unrelated punishment. A child who refuses to go to sleep at the proper time might be punished by having him miss a desired activity so he might rest. This is more effective than a spanking or taking away his allowance.

Children tend to copy adults when they respect. If a parent uses physical force as a punishment, it is not unusual for the child to use force with his friends. He will find it difficult to understand that fighting is wrong. After all, if his parents can hit, why can't he!

Teachers are in the same position as parents. They have the advantage of being trained to handle children. A teacher who resorts to physical force probably lacks patience and the ability to work with the particular child.

This is not meant to imply that physical force is always wrong. Force is necessary in some situations in order to protect individuals and property from injury. It is sometimes STREET SCENE — Allan Vickery, Pampa sanitation superintendent, surveys a scene becoming very common lately in Pampa's city streets and alleyways. The property-owner here has allowed refuse intended for Dumpster to become scattered over the surrounding area — a clear violation of city statutes. Police Chief Jim Conner has announced a crackdown on violators of the ordinance in an effort to keep the city clean.

Walter Rogers to Talk on Water At Dallas Parley

WASHINGTON (Sp1) — Congressman Walter Rogers of Pampa, a longtime advocate of the development of America's natural resources and a leader in Congress in the full development of water resources, Friday will address the governor's conference at Hotel Adolphus in Dallas.

Rogers will stress the need for cooperation between federal, state and local government and private initiative in developing programs to "assure future generations of an adequate supply of usable water."

Rogers has long contended that "since there is no substitute for water in the life of man the full development of water resources will determine the future of many areas of the country."

Rogers will tell the conference, "The economies of both Texas and the nation will flourish or falter, depending on how we handle the approaching water crisis."

WASHINGTON: The question of industry-wide labor contracts versus the anti-trust laws at last is to be reviewed again by the Supreme Court. The court agreed to review a lower court decision that a butchers' union and a grocers' trade group violated anti-trust laws by agreeing to work a limited number of hours each day.

PHILADELPHIA: The regional office of the National Labor Relations Board has charged six Teamsters Union locals with unfair labor practices for refusing to honor their contracts with five trucking concerns. The Philadelphia contracts were based on the national contract negotiated by Teamster President James Hoffa, but the Philadelphia locals rejected them after New York City truckers won higher wages in independent negotiations.

NEW YORK: McGraw-Hill, Inc., has conceded defeat in its effort to buy control of G. & C. Merriam Co., of Springfield, Mass., publisher of the Webster dictionary. McGraw-Hill said the rival bidder, Encyclopedia Britannica, Inc., apparently now has acquired 70 per cent or more of Merriam's outstanding shares.

NEW YORK—Ford Motor Co. intends to seek first place in the free world tractor business, Chairman Henry Ford II told a conference of 6,000 dealers. Ford already produces one-sixth of all the tractors made in the free world—111,000 last year.

WASHINGTON—The National Association of Security Dealers has warned over-the-counters against "churning" or persuading customers to overtrade in order to generate commissions. The NASD also warned against trading in mutual fund shares, recommending speculative low stocks, establishing fictitious accounts and overtrading discretionary accounts.

WASHINGTON — The New York Stock Exchange presents its case against the so-called "third market" to the Securities and Exchange Commission today. The exchange will ask the SEC to put sharp curbs on trading in listed securities in the over-the-counter market.

Workers at Arlington GM Plant Spend 19th Day Without Work

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — the father of two small children. Some 2,900 hourly workers at the General Motors plant here, represented by local 276 of the United Auto Workers, spent their 19th day without work yesterday.

Part of a national strike, the local dispute that began Sept. 25 is a "bread and butter issue" in Arlington—and those who did not pick up their accustomed paycheck on Friday said they are slicing the bread thinner and using less butter.

There is no indication from local union president V. G. (Doc) Moore or company spokesmen that the strike is anywhere near settlement. Workers who normally earn an average of $165 a week in the Arlington assembly plant—during peak periods—are drawing about $30 from UAW strike funds.

Some Hardships

Results of a survey by the Arlington News-Texan indicated that some workers are beginning to experience hardship. Some typical comments:

"Rent payments go on...we still have to eat...workers like us can't hold out long," by a young married student at Arlington State College on the GM night shift.

"My wife works so we have been luckier than most. Yet, a prolonged strike will hurt," said

Temporary Work

Another worker on strike found temporary work—"a day here, and a day there"—when not walking the picket lines. Strikers are not entitled to unemployment compensation.

Also affected by the strike have been 200 employees at Woods Industry—transporters of new cars. With no new cars coming off the assembly lines, these men have been idle since soon after the UAW went on strike.

Arlington's economy is versatile enough that no widespread adverse affect is likely to result from the strike, according to local leaders. However, business throughout the area is bound to suffer some setbacks.

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — Now it's the instant space house: Engineers at General Dynamics - Astronautics disclosed Monday they have developed a mechanism which can be landed back into a house and be folded back into a small package when no longer needed.

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Robert M. Hunt, 27, may be first in the ranks of St. Louis Cardinal fans but he is last in the heart of his former wife.

Hunt, who stood first in line to buy bleacher tickets for the sixth game of the World Series, was hauled off to jail Monday on non-support charges filed by his ex-wife. She recognized his photograph in a newspaper.

Amarilloan Named To Gas Unit Board

ATLANTIC CITY (Sp) — C. I. Wall, president, Pioneer Natural Gas Co., Amarillo, has been elected to the board of the American Gas Association.

Wall was named Tuesday to a two-year term at the 46th annual convention of the gas industry's national trade association. Some 5,000 gas industry executives, representing nearly every state in the nation, Canada, Mexico and a number of foreign countries, are attending the five-day convention here.

The new AGA director has been president of Pioneer Natural Gas since 1955, having moved up from executive vice president. He began his utility career in 1927 with the West Texas Gas Co., predecessor firm of Pioneer Natural Gas. While with West Texas he served as vice president and general manager, vice president in charge of operations and, in 1951, as president. In 1954, when

C. I. WALL named to board

Pioneer Natural Gas was organized, he was vice president of distribution and, later, executive vice president.

Wall is a director of the First National Bank of Amarillo, the Quannah, Acme & Pacific Railway and Amarillo Oil Company and Pioneer Production Corp. He is president and director of Pinaga, Inc., and the Amarillo Area Foundation, a trustee of the Institute of Gas Technology, a director of the High Plains Research Foundation, and the Texas Technological College Foundation, and a member of the State Affairs Committee of Texas Manufacturing Association, and the International Oil and Gas Educational Center of the Southeastern Legal Foundation.

Lawmaker Points Up Value of Newspaper

You will be reading this newsletter during National Newspaper Week, the week set aside each year for Americans to honor the great service they are rendered by our free press. Our newspapers do indeed serve us well; they inform, they entertain, they stimulate thought. They make an essential contribution to the democratic processes of our Republic. They help shape the development of their communities and generally do their best to stand firmly on the side of progress, justice and morality, accepting responsibility the obligations freedom imposes.

Freedom of the press is one of the most basic of American rights guaranteed by the Constitution. The First Amendment states: Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press. . . . From the early days of American history, the press has been attacked and criticized for alleged shortcomings, but the fact remains it is a great bulwark of freedom.

The foundations of press freedom were laid early. One of the significant events was the trial for libel, in 1735, of a New York printer, John Peter Zenger, who was accused of vilifying the tyrannical royal governor, William Cosby. Zenger's lawyer was the elder Alexander Hamilton who summed up the printer's case for the jury in these words: "The question before the court and you gentlemen of the jury is not of small or private concern; it is not the cause of the poor printer, nor of New York, alone; No! It may, in its consequence, affect every freeman that lives under a British government on the main of America. It is the best cause. It is the cause of liberty. . . the liberty both of exposing and opposing arbitrary power by speaking and writing Truth. . . . In a great triumph for liberty, the jury acquitted Zenger. The Zenger trial through the years to follow was to have major influence on the feeling of the colonists as to the importance of press freedom and the general concept of liberty.

What is the right of the Press? More than two centuries ago, the immortal English jurist Sir William Blackstone defined press freedom as "in laying no previous restraints upon publication, and not in freedom from censure for criminal matter when published. Every freeman has an undoubted right to lay what sentiments he pleases before the public. . . but if he publishes what is improper, mischievous, or illegal, he must take the consequences of his own temerity." These thoughts generally apply today.

Virtually all American presidents have been subjected to scornful and bitter criticism from some segments of the press. Stung by a succession of biting personal attacks, Thomas Jefferson said of the press of his day: "I deplore the putrid state into which our newspapers have passed, and the malignity, and the mendacious spirit of those who write them. . . these ordures are rapidly depraving the public taste." But then, in the next breath, Jefferson said:

"It is, however, an evil for which there is no remedy, our liberty depends on the freedom of the press and that cannot be limited without being lost." A century later, Theodore Roosevelt was to say: "We have all of us suffered from the liberty of the press, but we have to take the good with the bad."

Based on my own experience, I would certainly concur with this observation by a noted Washington correspondent whose expression recently appeared in a national business magazine: "Not every reporter in the land can be portrayed as a pillar of detachment. The objective truth is an elusive quarry and one man's set of facts is another man's list of prejudices. Still, it can be maintained with assurance that the standards of integrity among men who communicate the news are as high as they are in more exalted professions."

In the Texas Panhandle, we are fortunate to have an excellent selection of daily and weekly newspapers doing their best to serve their readers and their communities. On this occasion of National Newspaper Week, I

"STRANGE SITUATION" WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. officials Wednesday called Congolese Premier Moise Tshombe's detention by the United Arab Republic a "strange situation." They refused further comment. U.S. officials privately also were puzzled by the "big question" of why Congo President Joseph V. Kasavubu did not go to the conference of non-aligned nations in Cairo instead of Tshombe.

salute the men and women—the reporters and editors in the newsroom, the advertising people, the printers and the pressmen, and the carrier boys—who are doing their best in the service of the Nation's newspapers and our free press.

Price Campaigns Today in Borger

BORGER (Sp) — Pushing his campaign into its final weeks, Bob Price, Republican candidate for Congress, campaigned here today with a series of coffeees with independents and conservative Democrats.

He told his audiences: "There are too many Democrat congressmen, and Republican congressmen, and not enough United States congressman in Washington."

"Loyalty to a political party is commendable and essential," Price said, "but never at the expense of the nation and its welfare. The Congressman from this district has bowed to the demands of his party in matters strongly opposed in the district he represents."

Governors to Study Wallace's Proposal

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)—The Southern Governors' Conference today takes up Alabama Gov. George Wallace's proposed constitutional amendment exempting public schools from federal rulings.

There was virtually no hope the conference would approve it, and Wallace was among the first to say so.

Only one vote is needed to scuttle the measure, and Kentucky's Gov. Edward T. Breathitt had already said he is against it. Other governors may join him.

Mississippi Gov. Paul Johnson submitted two proposals that may meet a warmer reception. He suggested the conference go on record against the recent Supreme Court ruling requiring both Houses of state legislatures to be apportioned on the population-only "one man-one vote" principle, and urge more federal money for scientific research go to Southern universities. A survey sponsored by the governors showed very little research grant money now goes to Southern schools.

Civil rights pickets, 11 Negroes and one white man, paraded before the conference Monday, carrying signs that read "Moral Evil Invades San Antonio" and "Welcome KKK." Their leader said he was a field representative for the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) and the picketing would continue off and on through the conference, which ends Wednesday.

Official Memorandum
By
JOHN CONNALLY
Governor of Texas

AUSTIN, TEXAS

GREETINGS:

October 17, 1964, has been designated as "National Newspaperboy Day" in tribute to the thousands of loyal, efficient American youths who serve the public early and late in the day delivering the newspapers upon which all of us depend.

The experience gained in serving customers on newspaper routes is beneficial to the boys of America who have the privilege of engaging in this work.

It was while serving in these honorable roles that thousands of our business, civic, professional and religious leaders received their first training in our American principles of free enterprise.

It is fitting that the citizens of Texas express their deep appreciation of the day-by-day service rendered by their friendly newspaper carrier salesmen and for the training these boys are receiving.

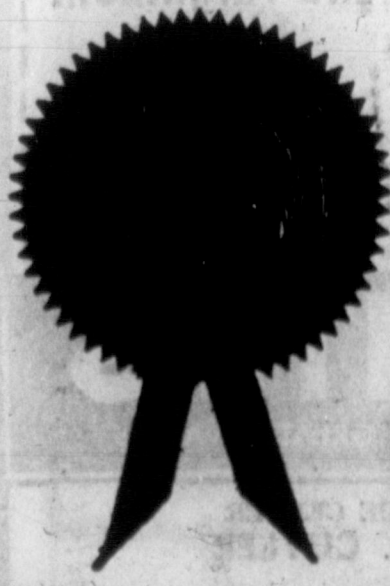

THEREFORE, I, as Governor of Texas, do hereby designate October 17, 1964, as in Texas, and urge all the people they represent and the customers they serve so diligently to express their appreciation for these unfailing services.

In official recognition whereof, I hereby affix my signature this 13th day of Sept., 1964.

John Connally
Governor of Texas

Conservatives in Britain Slipping In Opinion Polls

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's ruling Conservative party lost more ground this week in public opinion polls. But the opposition Labor party's chances in Thursday's parliamentary election were hurt by a wildcat subway strike in London.

The Conservatives, seeking to avoid defeat after 13 years in power, drafted 38 cabinet ministers to campaign full-time up and down the country in the final two days of the campaign.

Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home was scheduled to make a personal appeal for support to the nation tonight in television and radio broadcasts.

The London Daily Express popularity poll published this morning gave the Conservatives a slim 0.9 per cent edge over Labor, compared to 3.2 per cent a week ago. The Daily Mail's popularity poll Monday put the margin at 0.1 per cent. The Sunday Telegraph last Sunday gave Labor a 6 per cent lead.

Publication of the findings of the various popularity polls, however, did not take into account the wildcat subway strike. The strike, political observers believe, could reverse or halt the downward trend of the Conservative party edge.

THE LAETRIE STORY

Jr., who explained that Laetrile is a natural substance, amygdalin, found in many fruits, vegetables and grasses, but most easily obtainable from apricot pits.

Krebs did discover a method of making a synthetic Laetrile, and in some of the early work this synthetic Laetrile was used.

The Laetrile now produced in Canada is made from apricot pits because, Foundation president Andrew R. L. McNaughton says, the supply is plentiful and the process is simple.

Throughout the investigation, Laetrile proponents urged caution and thoroughness on the part of Freedom Newspapers.

"We prefer to wage the battle in the scientific arena," is a statement almost universally echoed by the proponents. They said premature news stories would be a disservice to cancer victims.

While Freedom investigators received open and full cooperation from Laetrile's proponents, they were met by evasive condescension, antagonism or silence in the camp of the opposition.

An exhaustive exchange of letters with officials of the California Division of the American Cancer Society was begun in March, 1964, in an effort to understand the puzzle.

Inquiries also were directed to the National Cancer Institute, to the Food and Drug Administration, to individual scientists and physicians over the country.

The American Cancer Society's replies began with a form letter which stated that the Society has found "no acceptable evidence that treatment with Laetrile results in any objective benefit in the treatment of cancer in human beings." It cited the 1963 report of the California Medical Association.

Because Freedom Newspapers' investigators had read other medical papers issued after the 1963 report which reported positive results with Laetrile treatment, the American Cancer Society was again questioned.

Did the Society's evaluation include study of these papers? Charles Dahle, public information officer for the California Division wrote that the society had evaluated "ALL available literature and medical reports."

Dr. Eugene G. Miller, medical and scientific director for the California Division of the American Cancer Society, was asked to respond to the question: "Has the Unitarian or Trophoblastic Thesis of Cancer ever been investigated by the American Cancer Society?"

In his reply, Dr. Miller stated:

"Many people assume that knowledge of the cause is necessary for the cure of cancer, but this may not turn out to be true. In many diseases, the cause is known and not the cure, and vice versa."

"Secondly, in the acquisition of new knowledge, the use of the scientific method has been most effective, and all new ideas and methods are tested . . ."

Dr. Miller further wrote that the decisions of the American Cancer Society were not made by one person or a committee.

"As evidence of the caution and care given by the American Cancer Society in this type of work, no report on a worthless drug has ever had to be retracted," he wrote.

By return letter, Dr. Miller was again asked if, since "all new ideas and methods are tested," has the Unitarian Thesis been tested? He was also asked to identify some of the committee members who had evaluated Laetrile.

After one month without a reply, he again was asked if he would respond to the question. His terse reply was that he could no longer "assist in your activities."

The National Cancer Institute was asked to reply to the question: "Has the National Cancer Institute ever studied the Unitarian or Trophoblastic Thesis of Cancer?"

This brought the statement that there was no record of such an investigation. Laetrile had been tested at the institute on mice with transplanted tumors with negative results, and that because Laetrile is based on the trophoblastic thesis, "it follows logically that the theory on which it is based is not true."

This statement was in a letter from Robert J. Avery Jr., head of the information and education section of the institute.

A return letter to the Insti-

... challenged the logic of such a statement, and Avery was asked if this was the official viewpoint of the institute.

Avery replied: "The statement was taken from a file copy of a reply to a previous correspondent. I have not found any institute scientists who will comment on that aspect, so the statement should not be attributed to them."

Because Laetrile proponents had stated that transplanted tumors are not as reliable for testing anti-cancer activity as are spontaneous tumors, the question was put to a number of sources.

Avery replied for the NCI: "I have been advised by scientists of the Institute that we have no reason to believe spontaneous tumors in animals are better predictors of anti-cancer activity than transplanted tumors."

In an unsigned portion of the Cancer Advisory Council's Laetrile report of 1963 is this statement:

"Mr. Krebs is in error in stating that induced tumors in animals are very low in definitely malignant cells . . ."

The question was also put to Prof. Oscar Creech Jr., M. D., of the Tulane University school of medicine.

He replied: "I think it is true that transplanted tumors are not as reliable as spontaneous for testing cancer activity."

George E. Boxer replied for Merck, Sharp and Dohme Research Laboratories of New Jersey:

"There is no simple, straightforward answer to the question. Spontaneous tumors and tumors transplanted within highly inbred strains are probably equally good."

"The question of whether rodent tumors, spontaneous or transplanted are really capable of predicting efficacy of a drug against human cancer is moot."

And from the American Cancer Society in New York, Dr. R. P. Mason, vice president for research, replied:

"It is my opinion that transplanted tumors are not as reliable for the testing of anti-cancer activity as are spontaneous tumors."

Freedom Newspaper investigation of the Food and Drug Administration's handling of the Laetrile question was perhaps the most simple.

The FDA requires that the FDA be satisfied with the evidence of safety and efficacy of any new drug before approval is given. "Sufficient evidence" is whatever evidence the FDA rules is sufficient. The FDA reported, it makes no independent tests of drugs, but evaluates material furnished by proponents.

The conclusion of the six-month long probe is that rejection of Laetrile by orthodox medicine in the United States is based solely on the 1963 report of the Cancer Commission of the California Medical Association.

But the investigation also revealed that despite the closed door of orthodox medicine, the army of the Laetrile revolution continues to grow.

Individual physicians around the world are beginning to use the drug on cancer patients. It is being used secretly in the United States by some physicians.

And, like Mrs. DeGris, hundreds of patients identified as cancer victims treated with Laetrile are walking testimonials to the safety and effectiveness of the drug.

The investigation also revealed that Laetrile proponents constantly bombarded the bastions of orthodox medicine with their claims of new clinical results. File cabinets in Krebs' office in San Francisco are filled with carbon copies of letters pleading for investigation, offering to debate and challenging the negative reports.

After 16 years of experience, battling cancer in scattered clinical studies and medical politics through correspondence, Laetrile supporters believe victory is in sight.

After 16 years, the revolutionaries say, Laetrile will get an unbiased hearing.

McNaughton said "The Minister of Health of the province Quebec has undertaken to set up an independent committee to thoroughly evaluate the safety and efficacy of Laetrile in the treatment of human cancer."

For the one in four Americans destined to become cancer victims, the decision could be monumental.

TOKYO (UPI) — A Russian seaman from a Soviet Olympic tourist ship defected to the West here Tuesday. He said he wanted "to spend my life in a free country."

Victor Ivanovich Schcheyarkin, 28, was the third Russian citizen to defect in Tokyo in less than two months. In each case the American Embassy has been directly or indirectly involved.

In mid-August, two Russian jazz musicians with a touring troupe defected to the United States by walking into the U.S. Embassy in Tokyo.

NO HELP

CINCINNATI, Ohio (UPI) — A burly bystander watched at a downtown corner Wednesday night when three Negro youths kicked a crippled man and robbed him of $19.

The victim, Andrew Young, 39, told police that the three attacked him as he waited for a bus. Two kicked him as he lay on the ground and the third grabbed his wallet and they fled.

"I didn't want to get involved," the bystander told police when asked why he did not help Young.

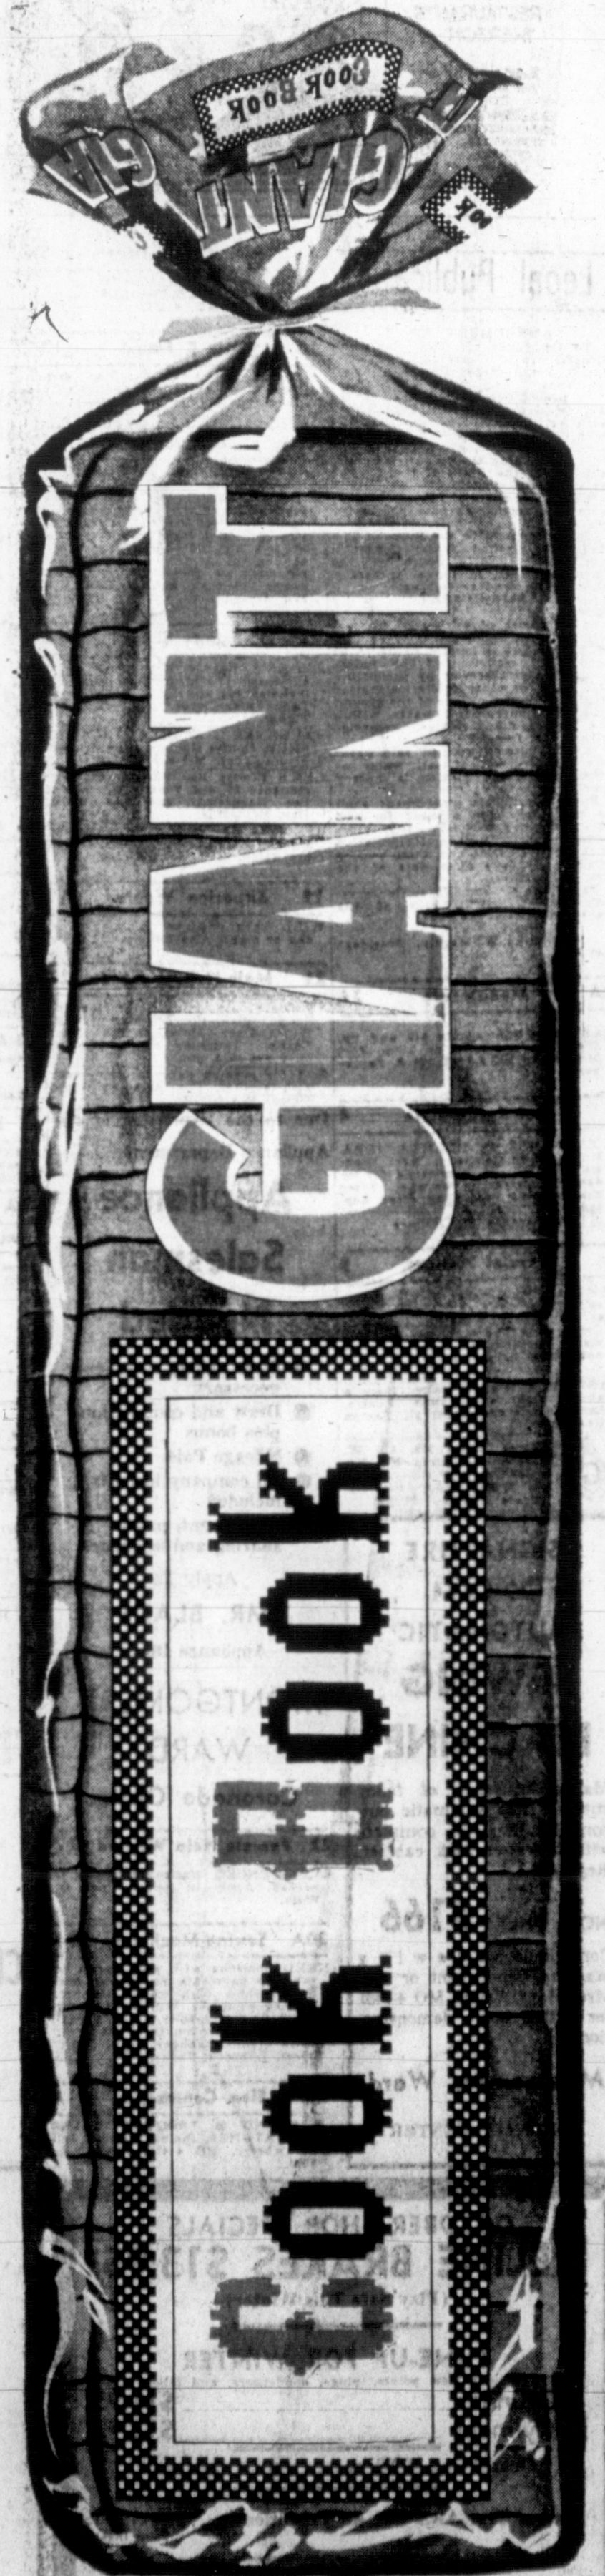

UNUSUAL MEETING

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Love blooms in the strangest places. Take Alizia Gur, 22, a former Miss Israel, and Seymour Schulman, 37, for example. They met four years ago when the actress toured Cedars of Lebanon Hospital and Schulman was her guide.

Miss Gur has announced that she and Schulman, who until recently was administrative director of Cedars of Lebanon and Mt. Sinai Hospitals here, will be married Saturday in London's hapstead register office.
