

Humble Holds Out Against Crude Price Hike

Let us hope that if the Humble Oil & Refining company continues in its policy of refusing to join other major companies in advancing prices of crude oil, the result will be complete and final overthrow of the Humble as the 'fixer' of prices in Texas.

The Standard of Indiana met the recent advances, according to a Saturday dispatch.

It is passing strange that the great Humble is in all its power and with all its brilliant leadership, alone of the major purchasers, unable to meet the high quotations.

President W. S. Farish continues in this contention that prices for refined products are too low and supply of crude too great to allow him wisely and safely to hike crude prices.

Who is right? Are they 'all out of step but Johnnie'? Or is Mr. Farish intent upon reaping for Humble at the expense of the public as well as competing companies even greater profit than the comfortable margin the Humble has enjoyed all of the depressed business era?

One may wonder, why we ask whether Humble, by holding down the price of crude, might be seeking to reap profits at the expense of competing companies. It would appear, of course, that the purchaser paying a lower price would be able to buy less crude than other purchasers.

The reason we ask that question is that under existing procedure, which has come to be fairly well supported in the major pools of Texas, oil does not go into the market on an unbridled basis by which each purchaser seeks to buy crude from various producers on a competitive basis.

The manner in which crude is bought is by "nomination" each purchaser agreeing to take so many barrels per day per month.

The public impression is—and this is no doubt correct in some instances—that fixing of the total daily allowable output of each field has no connection with the amount of oil each purchaser wishes to take per day.

Whether the wishes of the major purchasers or a predetermined rule for setting allowable decides the allowable is a matter that has not been made clear to the public.

As proration is being operated in this and other fields whether a company pays more or less for crude than others taking oil from the same field does not determine whether that company will buy more or less crude.

Where purchasers in a field differ on prices paid the recourse to the producer is not whether he will sell to the pipe line operator paying the higher price.

His only recourse is to sell or shut his well down or run to storage and bear that cost.

On top of refusing to join in the movement for higher prices, which would go more toward bringing business generally back to normal than anything that has happened in three years, the Humble now is also seeking to reduce its nominations in at least two fields—the Howard-Glasscock and the Ector county fields.

Humble wishes to cut 1,000 barrels daily from its take in the Howard and Glasscock and is also seeking to reduce its purchases in the Penn pool in Ector.

Proration originally was devised according to its "inventors"—to maintain crude prices at a profitable level to all sides of the industry. Of course, in the absence of state laws that permitted such "prevention of economic waste" proration was advanced ostensibly to prevent "actual waste," a definitely legal objective.

The fact was, however, that proration was presented to producers of crude petroleum as their only salvation. It was the most equitable thing any major industry had ever been offered. It presented the greatest spectacle of the leaders of a great industry in the roles of the world's champion sportsmen.

But, what happened? Prices continued declining. And today proration has been shaped into the most impracticable coat of mail the majors could have wished for their operations.

Proration today is not primarily in truth an agency for prevention of actual waste. Prevention or cure of such waste is but a by-product, a side-line of proration.

The real truth is that by use of the nominations system and through sheer force of major companies proration has jockeyed large companies, especially the Humble, into a position from which they may dictate what is

TRENTON (AP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh Saturday night authorized the payment of $50,000 to the kidnappers of his son, properly identified as such upon their agreement to notify him as to the exact whereabouts of the baby, but the baby was not found at the point designated. The kidnappers, however, failed to deliver the baby as agreed. Announcement of payment of the sum had been withheld several days to give the kidnappers ample time in which to carry out their part of the agreement. In view of their failure to do this, authorities, as well as Colonel Lindbergh, decided that all possible means should be employed, including assistants of the federal government, in tracing the currency paid the purported kidnappers. It was learned that circulars (Continued on Page 9)

Bishop Takes Major Honors In Net Meet

Wins Singles, Pairs With Babney To Capture Doubles Crown

SAN ANGELO—Curtis Bishop, Big Spring youth, dominated the Knights of Zocah invitational tennis tournament here Friday and Saturday, eliminating Howard Houser of San Angelo in the single-finals 6-2, 1-6, 6-2, 6-2 and pairing with George Dabney, also of Big Spring, to defeat Gardner and Wojack of Robert Lee 6-4, 6-1, 6-1. In the college division Tom Williams of San Angelo came out triumphant over Blackie Blackburn of San Angelo, in straight sets 6-1, 6-2 to win singles honors while Ransour, Milton won the doubles title over H. E. Dunagan and Bill McCarty, Big Spring, 6-4, 5-6, 7-5. Bishop, favorite to win the tournament, lived up to expectations by breezing through four rounds of preliminary play Friday, defeating Albert McGinty of Eldorado 6-0, 6-1, winning over Burney Hart of Brownwood 6-2, 6-3, eliminating Fred Bedford, Winters, 6-2, 6-4, and smashing out a 6-0, 6-0 decision over Milton Evans of Brownwood in the semi-finals. Houser experienced more difficulty in advancing to the final round, defeating E. Prugall of Eden 6-2, 6-0, winning from W. S. Ezzel, Frederickburg 6-4, 6-4, eliminating Bill Bradley of Brady in a hard-fought match 7-5, 6-2, and defeating Elton Williams of Miles 6-4, 6-3 in the semi-finals. Williams defeated George Dabney, other Big Spring entry, in the quarter-finals in straight sets 7-5, 6-3. The two schoolboy finalists, around whom the interest of the tournament was for the part centered, battled to a draw Friday afternoon with Bishop winning the first set 6-2 and Houser countering with a 6-1 decision. Saturday morning, however, the Big Spring youth lost only three games in two sets as swept to the championship over the defending titleholder. The Big Spring High doubles team experienced no little difficulty in breezing to the title won last year by Houser and Wolfe of San Angelo after a 4-6, 6-2, 6-2 win over Hart and Harris of Brownwood in the second round. Bishop and Dabney smashed out a third round decision over Babcock and Shirley of Sonora 6-1, 6-1, took Williams and Woodson, Ballinger, into camp, 6-2, 6-1, and smashed out a straight set win over Gardner and Wojack Robert Lee, the dark horses of the tournament, 6-4, 6-1 in the final round. Seeks To Cut Amount Of Oil Bought Here

Howard-Glasscock Operators Name Committee To Study Water

Although the Standard of Indiana Saturday posted advances in crude oil prices for the mid-continent fields, and Magnolia, the Texas company and other purchasers have been paying higher prices since April 1, the Humble Oil and Refining company continued through Saturday to refuse to meet the advances. Magnolia, which runs only its own production from the Howard-Glasscock field, hiked the price for West Texas crude from 59 to 63 cents per barrel. Reports of several days ago that the Col-Tex company, taking about 5,000 barrels daily from the local field, had met the advance were unfounded. It was learned Saturday. In addition to refusing to join the ranks of companies leading the way to better prices for crude petroleum Humble also is seeking to reduce its purchases from Ector, Howard and Glasscock counties. It was learned here Saturday following a meeting at the Settles hotel of Howard-Glasscock operators. Humble wishes to cut its nomination for the local field 1,000 barrels per day. It was learned. The American-Marcacibo company would receive the brunt of this cut, it was declared. The Howard-Glasscock operating committee named a special committee to study water encroachment in the western extension of the field and to report on methods of combating it. J. Ballenfonte of The California company was made chairman of the committee. Other members are C. L. Patterson, Sun Oil company; C. A. Murdoch, Shell Petroleum company; Pat Tatum, Kirby Petroleum company; H. B. Hurley, Continental Oil company; W. A. Schaeffer, Shell Petroleum company; Bob Schermerhorn, Schermerhorn-Winton company. Twenty-two representatives of producers with W. R. Bowden, district deputy oil and gas supervisor and Slim O'Neil, his aide, attended the meeting. Humble already has cut its nomination in Ector county 1,000 barrels per day. The Ector county daily allowable output has been reduced from 6,500 to 4,700 barrels per day, according to revised proration sheets issued by W. R. Bowden, deputy supervisor.

It was learned from semi-official sources Saturday night that Humble's move to reduce its nomination for Howard and Glasscock counties was being held off pending outcome of negotiations designed to have other purchasers take the 1,000 Humble would cease purchasing.

Sterling Has Oil Lease Play

Reports of a major play in oil leases in Sterling county reached here Saturday. Several thousand acres have been taken in the past few days along a northwest-southeast trend beginning near the southeast corner of the county and continuing past Sterling City, which is near the northeast edge of the play. Gulf Production company and Humble Oil and Refining company are among the majors that have obtained new leases, while a large number of independent are taking part in the movement.

Representative Women Asked To Gather At Fair Book Here For Signatures

At the Postal Telegraph office of this city has been placed a book for the signatures of the National Council of Women, who desire to use this means as an expression of their desire to be represented at the International Congress of Women which will convene in July during the Chicago World's Fair in 1933.

Lena Madson Phillips, president of the National Council of Women in a message to members, referred as follows to the International Congress of Women in 1933:

"We sought the necessary funds for the International Congress from foundations and individuals but found them not, but we could not be discouraged.

"At last we found a friend in the Postal Telegraph-Cable company. It desired women to become better acquainted with its services. It desired our friendly interest and co-operation. It believed in us—to the extent of giving its financial support to our project.

"A million women will petition foreign governments to send their most representative women to the International Congress in 1933. These petitions will be ready for the signatures of you and your co-workers in every Postal Telegraph office. We ask your full co-operation in having them signed adequately and promptly.

Postal Telegraph believes that if you are interested in the International Congress, you will sign the petition. The leaders of the council and all your own national organizations know what your answer will be. If we had not known you and what you would do, never would we have undertaken this. In a sense the most pretentious and spectacular program which any organized group of women has ever attempted."

Panhandle Dairy Show Scheduled For Next Monday

PLAINVIEW—A special invitation is extended to farmers, business men, students and all others interested in dairying in the 54 counties of Texas and 14 counties of eastern New Mexico to the Panhandle Dairy Show which opens in Plainview Monday, April 11, continuing through the 14th.

A number of towns have already signified that they will have organized delegations among them being Tulla, Anton, Silverton and Quitaque. More than 100 exhibitors are expected to enter in excess of 300 dairy animals in competition for the $5,500 in premium awards, according to Grady Shipp, secretary-manager of the show. Fifty-eight exhibitors have already notified Mr. Shipp they will enter cattle this year.

The show will include in addition to three departments of dairy cattle a production contest, 4-H Club dairy judging contest, vocational agricultural students' cattle judging contest; a dairy calf club show and dairy dairy club show.

Jack Shelton, of the Luling Foundation, Luling, Texas, has been selected as official judge for the dairy cattle departments. H. S. Wilson, assistant dairy manufacturing specialist of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, with K. M. Renner, dairy products specialist at Texas Technological College, will judge dairy products.

Accommodations for 500 animals are provided in the dairy show barns at Plainview which were erected after the first show when Plainview was made the permanent site, and to which additional barns since been made. The show barns contain adequate facilities for exhibits of dairy products, machinery, farm home conveniences, feed and other farm accessories which are annually displayed.

All animals on exhibit are tested for tuberculosis and plans were worked out this year by the association whereby entire herds in this section are now being tested with the show animals getting the test free of charge.

On the opening day, Monday, April 11, the program will include official tests in the production contests and the 4-H vocational agricultural dairy cattle judging contests. Guernsey cattle and dairy calves will be judged Tuesday morning, with the Jersey division in the afternoon. Holstein judging will be judged Wednesday morning and the Jersey classes completed in the afternoon.

Special features of the show include a Texas A. & M. College 7:30 p. m. banquet, Monday at 7:30 p. m.; a pageant which includes the crowning of the dairy queen and is followed by the Queen's ball Tuesday night; the annual banquet of dairy cattle exhibitors and the annual meeting of the association Wednesday night; a parade of blue ribbon winners in the dairy departments at 10 o'clock Thursday morning; and the annual sale of live stock Thursday afternoon.

The officers of the Panhandle Plains Dairy Show are P. C. Bennett, Plainview, president; J. E. Rigler, Amarillo, president; D. F. Eaton, Lubbock, Oscar Stansell, Pecos, and S. J. Payne, Tulla, vice-presidents; Gray Shipp, Plainview, secretary-treasurer.

LARGE OIL DEAL

Million-Dollar Transaction Is Reported In Upshur County, GLADEWATER, Texas (UP)—One of the largest oil deals in East Texas in recent years was reported here today in the announcement that Simms Oil Company of Dallas had purchased the west 800 acres of a 1,000-acre tract in Upshur county, from W. R. Nicholson for $1,000,000.

The land is located in the southeast corner of the Marshall-Mann survey and joins the thousand acre Simms tract already owned by Simms.

Part of the purchase price was paid in cash, the remainder to be paid in oil, but Simms officials said Nicholson declined to state the exact terms.

"Of course you will say, 'Well they were well paid, why didn't they save? Did you ever try working six months, then lay off six and seeing how much you could save? If they were thrifty they naturally bought them a home. Well they certainly passed over the hill of oblivion at the decrepit old age of perhaps 35. Why what was where under the leading auspices of Historic Company.

To those here, who have never heard of this choir, it might be mentioned that it is one of the oldest choral organizations in the world. It was first organized almost a century ago, in Russia, and has visited practically every country in the world, under the very able direction of Prince Dmitry Slavyansky, founder of the choir, and his daughter, Princess Margarita Agreva Slavyansky, present conductor.

It has been said of them that they are the "Undisputed Peers of Choral Harmony," and one of the slogans given them by a famous critic on the Pacific Coast is, "In all the world no singers like these."

World-Famous Royal Russian Chorus

Music and dance lovers will be exceedingly interested in the announcement made by Walter Lowe, who is advancing managing the Royal Russian Chorus for their second trans-continental tour of the United States, that they will give a concert here on April 21 at the High School Auditorium under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce Glee Club.

The Royal Russian Choir is now making its second trans-continental tour, after a series of triumphs in New York, last year, where they were engaged as a special feature for Morris Test's Productions of the Pasyon Play, and Miracle Play, after having given fifteen capacity concerts in Carnegie Hall, New York City.

During the past season they have given over two hundred successful concerts, playing everywhere under the leading auspices of Historic Company.

It has been said of them that they are the "Undisputed Peers of Choral Harmony," and one of the slogans given them by a famous critic on the Pacific Coast is, "In all the world no singers like these."

Their programs are extremely versatile, including brilliant solo, duet, trio, and quartet and choral singing, also fiery and characteristic Russian, Hungarian, Gypsy and Spanish dancing, all performed in gorgeous costumes.

With special lighting effects, their programs are extremely colorful and fast moving, with an unusual eye and ear appeal to people of every class, from the highly educated concert patron, to those who know nothing of music.

This community is indeed fortunate in being included in the itinerary of this celebrated company, and no doubt a large audience will be on hand to greet them at the High School Auditorium next Wednesday at both matinee and evening performances.

The concert here is under the auspices of the Glee Club of the Chamber of Commerce who are to be congratulated in sponsoring this famous organization.

Football is great. It's a great thrill, it's a fine recreation, but for a pastime and physical conditioner while our fine young men are in colleges. But baseball is a profession, its an art that you don't learn in any four years just from September to December. We will never get things righted in our country till every line of sport, industry, profession or trade have some system of everyone contributing while working to the welfare of the old and unemployed in his own line. I don't mean to put all ball players home, I mean a system of help where those who do not retain their respect and courage and self esteem. Outsiders don't have to know they are being aided at all.

All the sporting writers from the east that are covering the Giants and Detroit teams training were there, along with our local boys. All a fine bunch of fellows. Tillie Shaffer the old Giant who the world has of course been good to, Fred Snodgrass, Buckly Harris, a very smart manager and high class capable young fellow, Eozeman Bulger, the old sports writer, was the toastmaster. Eddie Meyer, our local fine fellow. There was a host of em. Among the new was Bill Terry, the king of first basemen today, Freddie Lindstrom, all around player. A mixture of the old and new, all giving or had given their lives to entertainment of the public, paying respects to McGraw who after all these years is still at the top of the heap, the fairy godfather to more old time ball player than any man living. All these have contributed to what made our country proud of its sports. Good luck to em. Long may they live, and the empire good fortune give em an even break.

WHY CROP SMALLER

Oklahoma Board Estimates Crop Half Of Last Year's Production OKLAHOMA CITY (UP)—Oklahoma's 1932 wheat crop will be little more than half that of last year, the state board of agriculture estimated today.

The official state forecast was for 43,956,000 bushels this year. Last year's yield was 70,188,000 bushels and the state's nine-year average production is 49,966,000 bushels.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS FOR COMING WEEK

'The Man Who Played God,' Outstanding Picture, To Be Shown At Ritz This Week

Two Shows Daily Scheduled; Ministers Endorse Picture

George Arliss, star of five of the talking screen's great pictures, arrives at the Ritz Theatre Tuesday for two days, in his latest dramatic production "The Man Who Played God," a Warner Bros. picture adapted from the stage play inspired by Governor Morris' short story of the same title.

"The Man Who Played God," is a story of a musician of international fame, an essentially human being whose life and happiness revolves around his music and the pleasure he brings to countless thousands via the Heaven-sent gift he possesses. Fate played strange tricks on him, giving and taking love, presenting the world for a plaything and then taking everything away. Arliss portrays every step in the drama with nuances and shadings rarely seen on the screen. He is loved by two women, adored by thousands more. He was in love with one, a widow, played by Violet Heming, before she married another. She loves him but keeps her own council because she believes him to be in love with a young and beautiful girl, played by lovely Bettie Davis, a newcomer to the screen whose work has been rewarded with a long term contract.

"The Man Who Played God" was directed by John G. Adolfi also responsible for the direction of Mr. Arliss' last two successes, "The Millionaire" and "Alexander Hamilton." The large cast includes Ivan Simpson, Louise Closser Hale, Oscar Apfel, Donald Cook, Raymond Milland, Murray Kinnell and many others. The production has been heralded as one of the year's best.

The "Man Who Played God" is such an outstanding picture that the Ritz theater has decided to suspend the regular routine showings of pictures and to show only two shows daily. The afternoon show will start at 3 p. m. and the evening show at 8:15 p. m.

At a special preview of the picture held some time ago, many of the ministers and leading citizens of Big Spring heartily gave their endorsement of this outstanding picture.

LEGION AUXILIARY TO MEET
There will be the regular meeting of the Auxiliary to the American Legion at the Settles Hotel, mezzanine floor, room No. 1, Monday evening at 8 o'clock. This will be an important business session.

Rickard Dix In Civil War Play At Queen Soon

Recreating the romantic aura of the Civil War in a stirring spy film of unusual dramatic strength, Rickard Dix opens at the Queen Theatre Wednesday in RKO-Radio Pictures "Secret Service," based on the famous play by William Gillette.

The film is a decidedly different characterization for the star of "Clarron" who already has established himself as a leading portrayer of virile roles. He is seen as a masterly man who rules his own destiny in the face of danger, and about whom revolves a sharply contrasting note of romance.

Called As Powerful
From an entertainment point of view, "Secret Service" is said to rank at the forefront of current productions. This is because it weaves into a stern setting of war and a constant prementiment of danger a stirring crisis in the lives of a Union spy and a Southern belle.

There have been many spy stories but this latest Dix vehicle shows an unusual understanding and sympathy for the "shadowed man" who stands ready to sacrifice their lives and their sense of honor in the espionage service.

Besides Dix who portrays the Union spy, Shirley Grey is cast in the Southern belle. The cast includes Gavin Gordon, William Post Jr., Clarence Muse, Carl Gerard, Nance O'Neil, Eugene Jackson, Frederick Burton and Florence Lake.

The film was directed by J. Walter Ruben from a screen play by William Gillette, a celebrated stage triumph which all American theatergoers will remember.

Jungle Tale Comes To Ritz Screen 3 Days

Johnny Weissmuller Plays Title Role In 'Tarzan, The Ape Man'

"Tarzan, The Ape Man," based on the hair-raising story of jungle adventures by Edgar Rice Burroughs will be the attraction at the Ritz Theatre Thursday, for three days. Johnny Weissmuller, world's champion swimmer and considered to have one of the finest physiques of any man living, plays the title role of the strange white man who lives in the jungle like the apes. Prominent roles are also played by Nel Hamilton, Maureen O'Sullivan, C. Aubrey Smith, Doris Lloyd, Forrester Harvey and Ivory Williams. The picture was directed by W. S. Van Dyke who achieved such sensational results with "Trader Horn."

PRIMITIVE?

Johnny Weissmuller and Maureen O'Sullivan in "Tarzan, The Ape Man" at Ritz Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Seek Burial Ground

The story, laid for the most part in the best-infested Lake Albert region of Africa, concerns the attempt of a handful of English adventurers to find the mysterious "Elephant Burial Ground" where they hope to secure a fortune in ivory. The daughter of the leader of the safari is abducted by Tarzan, the Ape Man, who lifts her bodily from the ground and carries her away beyond reach of human hands by swinging through the tops of trees at dizzying heights. Their continually exciting and oftentimes thrilling adventures with wild beasts, pygmies and other jungle horrors make this a picture which is said to contain even more hair-raising episodes than the celebrated "Trader Horn."

Among these are numbered the attack upon the safari night camp by starved lions; a fight between Tarzan and a bull ape; the rescue of an elephant trapped in a pit; the charge of elephants through a pygmy village and the escape of the safari from death in a man-eating gorilla pit.

Entirely different in theme from the usual western, this RKO Pathé production offers double conflict without resorting to wild chase and gun play. A young rodeo rider is pitted against twin enemies, a man-killing horse and his own fear with a rival cowboy adding further complications.

The rodeo atmosphere, with all of its thrills, has been admirably captured. Swift moving entertainment is the result.

The story concerns the efforts of a young rider, Montana, to conquer Black Peril, a man-killing outlaw horse. Thrown by the terror, as the result of a trick perpetrated by his jealous rival, he fights a spectacular battle to win back his nerve and the girl he loves.

Keene's performance is outstanding and strengthens his rapidly attained position as the screen's foremost western star. He receives excellent support from a notable cast which includes Helen Foster, Mari Quillian, Robert Frazer, Richard Carlyle, Fred Burns, Charles Quigley, Harry Bowen, Charles Whitaker and Ben Corbett, while Fred Allen has given the film expert direction. Cherry Wilson's story is absorbingly interesting and Oliver Drake has used a natural, dialogue expertly.

The Saddle Buster With Tom Keene, Is Billed At Queen

Daring riders and wild horse, provide the maximum of action and thrills, while a gripping story holds tense interest in "The Saddle Buster," the latest Tom Keene western feature which comes to the Queen Theatre Friday and Saturday.

"DISORDERLY CONDUCT," RITZ PRODUCTION FOR TWO DAYS LAUDED AS GRIPPING DRAMA

Sally Eilers And Spencer Tracy In Leading Roles

With a realism that makes its story at once vivid and dramatic "Disorderly Conduct" is unquestionably one of the most gripping screen offerings of recent months.

The picture which has its debut at the Ritz Theatre today, tells fearfully and convincingly the tale of a police officer who double-crossed himself—who found his refusal to touch tainted money led only to disgrace, and who consequently decided to "go wrong" with unexpected results.

After turning down handsome bribes in performing his duty, Motorcycle Sergeant Dick Fay has the ill-fortune to arrest the daughter of the city's biggest politician and run-runner. As a result he is demoted to a patrolman's status and sent out on a beat. With the justice of this ranking in his soul he decides that honesty doesn't pay and begins to accept protection money that formerly he would have scorned.

This involves him with his commanding officer and with the girl who brought about his downfall and swiftly leads to a series of dramatic events that provide plenty of thrills and excitement for the spectator.

Sally Eilers, who rose to stardom in "Bad Girl" and "Dance Team," is said to give a dramatic performance that is second to nothing she has done so far, while Spencer Tracy, in the role of "Fay," the policeman reaches the heights promised by his earlier work in "Up The River" and "Quick Millions."

El Brendel is the third featured player and the splendid supporting cast includes Ralph Bellamy, Ralph Morgan, Allan Dinehart, Claire Maynard and Nora Lane in important roles. The subtly effective direction of John W. Considine, Jr. and the grimly vivid story by William Anthony McGuire, together with Del Andrew's adaptation, all contribute toward making "Disorderly Conduct" a genuine event in local screen circles.

'Our Gang' Comedy 'Dogs Is Dogs,' On Ritz Bill Monday

Leading a "dog's life" isn't so tough if the dog happens to be a movie star.

Take for example Pete and Pup, popular canine member of the famous "Our Gang" comedies, who appears in the latest Hay Roach M-G-M picture "Dogs Is Dogs" now playing at the Ritz theater. He lives the life of Riley in dogdom.

In rare instances does Pete ever arrive at the studio for work before nine o'clock in the morning. He has his own private automobile and chauffeur and swings in thru the studio gates with all the appearance and dignity of a prince.

His car is almost an institution in Hollywood, for it is painted milk white with a huge picture of himself painted on the rear tire cover. His valet gets him in readiness for the day's work and then he retreats to his own special room, where he "rests" until called upon for a scene.

He dines with other stars at the studio cafeteria and commands the respect of everyone on the lot. He gets special food at home and has a specially built bed in which he sleeps at night. He is perhaps the only star in pictures who really enjoys personal appearances and never complains about making "gas" pictures.

Robert McGowan directed "Dogs Is Dogs."

Mickey Mouse Club Holds Election

Official election was held by The Herald-Ritz Mickey Mouse club Saturday morning at its regular weekly meeting, with a large attendance. Following is a list of officers chosen:

- Chief Mickey Mouse—Warren Buxley.
- Chief Minnie Mouse—Annie Sue Foster.
- Song Leader—Eddie Ray Lee.
- Cheer Leader—Pauline Davis.
- Sergeants at Arms—Johnnie Burns and Jim Nummy.
- Color Bearer—Dee Foster.
- Courier—Marie Grey.

The regular stage show was given and a merry time was had by all the kiddies attending.

If you are a regular subscriber to The Herald and do not get good carrier service please call 728 or 729 and report your trouble to the circulation department. We will correct whatever trouble there may be. If you bought this paper on the street please remember that you could have had it for about 1-2c if you had been a regular subscriber.

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. In Play 'It's Tough To Be Famous'

The sinking of a submarine with all on board, and the subsequent rescue of the crew, one of the most exciting and novel episodes ever photographed for the movies, is shown in detail in Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.'s latest starring film for First National Pictures, "It's Tough To Be Famous," which comes to the Queen Theatre Friday for two days.

Fairbanks, portraying the young commanding officer of the submarine, is trapped with his men after the undersea boat has been rammed and sunk by an excursion vessel. Because the submarine was sunk in only eighty feet of water, Douglas is able to save his men by shooting them to the surface through the torpedo tubes. The men are shown as they shoot to the surface of the water, where rescue ships and divers are waiting. With no one left to release him through the torpedo tube, Doug prepares for the lingering death which follows exhaustion of oxygen in the submarine. His rescue by divers when he has slipped into unconsciousness provides further thrills for "It's Tough To Be Famous."

After the rescue the star is hailed as a national hero, even before he regains consciousness on the fleet flagship. His trials and tribulations continue from that point on through his marriage and subsequent loss to all rights to privacy. His life becomes a series of banquets and parties in his honor, all of which arouse his desire to "get away from it all."

Supporting Fairbanks, Jr. in this story of a young national hero is a large cast including Mary Brian, Lillian Bond, Oscar Apfel, Walter Catlett, Emma Dunn and David Landau. Alfred E. Green, of "Disraeli" and "Union Depot" fame, directed "It's Tough To Be Famous."

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Edward have returned to the city.

Visitors Are Scheduled To Fill Local Pulpits Sunday

Marches To Hear Sermons By Visitors

Ollie B. Webb To Speak Morning And Evening At Presbyterian

Several distinguished out-of-town visitors will occupy pulpits of the city's churches today. Ollie B. Webb, assistant to President J. L. Lancaster of the T. & P. railway, will speak at the Presbyterian church both morning and evening. The Rev. O. P. Clark, of Sweetwater, presiding elder of the district for the Methodist church, will speak this morning at the First Baptist church. The Rev. Ben Hardy, of the First Baptist church, will speak this evening at the First Baptist church. The Rev. W. B. B. family, will speak to the topic, "Sovereignty of God."

There will be special music at both services. Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Keaton will sing a duet in the morning and Mrs. Victor Flewelling a solo in the evening. At the First Christian church the pastor, the Rev. D. R. Lindley will speak this morning on "What Christ Means To Me," and this evening on "Beginning With Jesus." Mrs. Omar Pittman, choir director, announces that special music has been prepared for both services. The Rev. Jim E. Black, of Putnam, will preach at the East Fourth Baptist church at both services and a cordial invitation is extended to the public to attend.

At St. Mary's Episcopal church the vicar, the Rev. W. H. Martin, will take as his theme, "Social Service in the World Today." The Rev. L. M. Neel of El Paso will be the speaker at the Tabernacle church, while the pastor is away. He will speak at both services.

How To Grow A Lawn

Practical And Seasonable Suggestions For This Part Of West Texas—Article No. 4, Part B

By E. B. RIBBLE
The soil with which we have to begin in making a lawn usually consists of two strata or layers, which differ from each other decidedly. The first of these is top soil, which contains more or less plant food and humus, derived either from decay of organic plants grown upon its surface. Below this is the raw soil or sub-soil, too poor in its natural condition to grow much of anything. The top soil varies from two to three inches to a foot or more in depth.

Both top soil and sub-soil vary in character in different locations. It is not feasible to attempt to alter much the kind of sub-soil; but with the top soil, however, at least as much of it as we need to take into account, a great deal may be done. In fact there is no type of top soil which, by the proper treatment, may not be made possible suitable for growing a lawn.

Types Of Sub-Soil.
The ideal sub-soil is a compact, sandy or gravelly loam which, while permitting surplus water slowly to percolate through it, tends to hold it back. This, to me, is very important in this section because it is a watering saving help. A loose sandy or gravel sub-soil is like a sieve through which the surplus water passes immediately, taking with it in solution, the expensive plant food. Hard clay subsoils, with in eight to fifteen inches of the surface may be broken up with a plow in large areas, but it is not often necessary for growing grass as for planting shrubs or fruit trees.

Types Of Top Soil.
The ideal top soil is a deep loam. Loam is a combination of sand and clay, the two extremes in soil types. It contains also decaying vegetable matter or humus. Very sandy soils are objectionable because they do not retain either moisture or plant food, the particles being so coarse and loosely combined that the water escapes almost immediately. Clay soils are objectionable because the soil particles are so fine that they cement together when wet, making a substance through which water can pass very slowly, and when dry they bake hard.

The most direct way of improving either sand or clay soils, is to add soils of the opposite type. An inch of ordinary sand, worked into the upper four or five inches of a stiff clay soil, will work wonders in correcting it. Clay or heavy loams, which is clay to incorporate, will greatly improve a sandy soil. Both are greatly benefited by addition of humus; it absorbs and holds the moisture that would otherwise escape too rapidly through the sandy soil, and opens up and makes more friable a clay soil.

It is not always possible to obtain either sand or clay to modify a soil of the opposite type. Other materials which may be used to improve a sandy soil or good garden loam are Peat moss, commercial humus (I might add here this has wonderful working power in correcting the water for best plant growth) and decayed hay or straw or grass clippings. To a clay soil one may add wood ashes, sifted cinders, sand, or gypsum, and also any humus forming materials the latter being beneficial to clay as well as sandy soils.

Acid And Alkaline Soils.
So far we have considered only the mechanical or physical properties of the soil, irrespective of its chemical character. Before we get to the latter, however there is another important thing to mention; that is, the chemical reaction of different soils. This is to be kept in mind in most kinds of gardening, but especially in lawn making.

Some soils are acid reacting and others are alkaline reacting; they are sometimes spoken of as being either "sour" or "sweet". These descriptions do not exactly fit. Any of the types of soils described above may be either acid or alkaline reacting.

The reason why this point is especially important in lawn making is that the majority of lawn weeds grow most vigorously in alkaline soils. In fact, in our city are many alkaline (in most cases) on the other hand many of the best lawn grasses, such as bent and fescues prefer an acid soil. The most important exception is Kentucky blue grass but fortunately this will do well in a neutral soil, that is, one not extremely alkaline. It is possible, therefore, by adding to a soil which is neutral or slightly acid, to both encourage the growth of the grasses and discourage the growth of the weeds, thus actually killing two birds with one stone.

The degree of acidity of the soil can be controlled. The first step is to determine the existing condition of the soil as we have told in previous articles.

Lime
I will not spend very much time on lime as in this part of our country, this is one thing we want. Our soil and water have more lime than we care to handle. However, where a strong acid soil exists, it may be made neutral by adding two to four pounds to the hundred square feet. No lime should be applied at any time of the year to the surface of an established lawn; it is not essential to the growth of the grasses, encourages weed growth and depletes humus.

Soil which has been heavily limed, or like out here is naturally decidedly alkaline in reaction, may be neutral or slightly acid by the application of aluminum sulphate (a form of alum) which has exactly the opposite effect from lime. It may be applied in the same way as the lime about two to four pounds to the 100 square feet of soil surface. Peat moss left mold from heavy forage trees other than pine and cedars will be found good and slightly acid reacting. The latter will be found doubly good due to its acid reacting and, too, it makes a good humus. It holds moisture as we stated heretofore. All this good for our soil here as it is decidedly "sweet."

Manures And Fertilizers
It should be realized that lawn turf is made up of an infinite number of individual grass plants, crowded closely together, each of which must be supplied with sufficient nourishment or plant food to maintain it in good condition. Also that the growth and removal of the tops by cutting, makes a constant and heavy drain upon the supply of plant food in the soil—as much as any crop of vegetables or farm products. Not only should the soil for a lawn be well supplied with plant food before it is planted, but this supply must be constantly replaced for best results. A lawn properly fed, does not need to get its necessary chemicals out of the water given it from day to day. It will take less than half the water to keep it green and flourishing, compare the two costs; results tell us to feed our lawn every 90 days lightly.

The difference between manures and fertilizers is important in gardening of any kind, but especially so in lawn culture. Our first object in adding either manure or fertilizer to the lawn is to increase the amount of plant food, especially the elements of nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash, which are the three likely to be deficient, and which are required for the maintenance of maximum growth. Manures, however, serve a secondary purpose in that they supply humus in addition to plant foods. The organic fertilizers which are derived from animal or vegetable sources, such as dried blood, which contains a high percentage of nitrogen; bone which contains both nitrogen and phosphoric acid, and tobacco fertilizer or wood ashes, containing potash, do, on the other hand add some humus to the soil, and improve its mechanical conditions. Moreover, they are much safer to use than manure, as they will not burn the foliage or the delicate feeding roots of the plants.

Humus.
Humus or decayed vegetable matter in the soil, is essential to good growth not merely because it acts as a moisture reservoir, but also because its presence is necessary to the development of certain soil bacteria which help break down and make available for root use the plant food elements in the soil. For this purpose, granulated peat moss, which comes in bales containing 18 bushels or so, is ideal. Rotted leaves from oak bushes, such as shiner brush, mixed with straw is good, although the former is better for most cases. The reaction of the peat moss, being slightly acid will tend to break down the lime in the soil and water of our section.

Preparing The Lawn For Planting
A number of things have been said about the things we must and must not do in the foundation of a lawn making, so let us take up the actual carrying out the work step by step.

When to prepare the soil? As will be shown later, the best time for planting a lawn is in the early autumn. It is, however, advantageous to do all the work of preparing the soil, except the final finishing off of seed beds, some weeks, or even several months, before sowing the seed. Where the lawn must be planted in the spring, the chances of success will be greatly increased if the soil can be prepared the preceding fall. If not, it is of the greatest importance to do the work at the earliest possible moment in the spring.

Sub-Soil And Drainage
These are the first things to tackle in starting work on a new lawn. Work of this sort may be done immediately when the lawn has been definitely planned, even if it is not to be completed for a season or two. Get this out of the way, if possible, while the place is still torn up for building operations.

Grading
This comes next. As it is another preliminary task, it may be done at any time, though for practical reasons it is usually delayed until building is completed. Where there is much filling to do, it is well to allow time for settling of the soil between the rough grading and the application of the top-soil, which is to be brought to a final or true grade.

The Top Soil.
As distinguished for our purposes here, from the surface soil, (as referred in the previous article part A), the layer cake, we are now dealing with the chocolate layer, the top soil has as its chief function the absorption and storage of soil moisture. It should therefore, have added to it all the humus which is possible to obtain by any or all of the methods, suggested previously. Preferably it should have a minimum depth of three to five inches; if a layer of surface soil is to be added later, and more if not, the more porous the sub-soil, the more important the depth of the top-soil.

It is not only a waste of labor and material to add fertilizer elements to the top soil (as distinguished from the surface, or chocolate layer, for this layer cake) but actually a disadvantage, for deep rooted weeds will rot in this store of plant food that is out of reach of the lawn grasses.

The Surface Soil.
This is the top layer, two or three inches deep, in which the grass plants make their start and find their future sustenance, and in which all the plant food, plus an adequate supply of humus, should be concentrated. This surface layer may be prepared one or two ways.

Director Of Woman's Work For Episcopalians To Arrive Here Monday

Miss Helen Whitehouse who is sent out by the National Council in New York as a director of woman's work in the Episcopal Church will arrive in Big Spring Monday morning.

There will be a luncheon in the Settles Hotel at 12:30 Monday in a private dining room; followed by a talk to the church women by Miss Whitehouse.

Reservations for the luncheon may be made by phoning Mrs. Shine Phillips.

Monday night at 8 o'clock there will be a service at the Episcopal Church and an address to all church people, men and women, by Miss Whitehouse.

Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock Reverend and Mrs. W. H. Martin will entertain informally with a tea at the rectory, to which all women of the church are invited.

Girl Scout Official Expected Here Soon To Give Instruction

Mrs. Mary L. White, a member of the National Camp Advisory Board of the Girl Scouts of America, and Miss Mulvey, a state officer, will be in the city Thursday, Friday and Saturday for a school of instruction for the local Girl Scouts.

The classes will be held on the mezzanine of the Settles hotel at the following hours: 9:30 to 11:30 a. m. and 1:30 to 3:30 p. m.

There will be a barbecue Thursday evening and on Friday a showing of slides relating to the work, which the leaders are bringing with them.

Full details of the program will be announced later. An invitation is extended to people throughout the city who are interested in this organization to attend these meetings and get more acquainted with the beneficial work of the Girl Scouts.

Mr. Mount made high score for the evening. Delicious refreshments were served to the following: Mr. and Mrs. Ray Kinkaid, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Crockett, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Dolvin, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Houtz, Messrs. Paul Alexander, Don Heath, Sam Keilberg.

Mr. and Mrs. Mount will be the next to entertain.

Ruth Class Hold Clever Gypsy Feast

Third Birthday Honored By Unique Assembly At The Church

The third birthday of the Ruth Class of the First Baptist Sunday School was celebrated at the church Friday night with a unique gypsy party.

The custom of the class has been to give a banquet. On this occasion the members voted to donate the money the banquet would cost to the church fund and to have very simple refreshments. The party was therefore called a gypsy feast and the members came in house dresses.

Billy Frances Grant and Louise Wright met the guests at the doors of the church parlors where they assembled and where the birthday cake, mounted by three candles in the class colors of green and gold, was the chief ornament of the dining table. Program were distributed to the guests.

They then were summoned to the gypsy camp, each entering with her group through the respective door. The assembly room was decorated with cedar to represent an outdoors scene, and lighted only with the fire from a campfire glowing under a tripod. In the room was a tent and on the floor were four large rugs on which the four different groups seated themselves as Mrs. R. C. Eysatt, social chairman, and the chieftain, called them by name to enter.

When they were seated around the campfire, after an invocation by Mrs. B. Reagan, the class teacher, each outgoing group captain was summoned to give an account of her activities and to construct the new captain as to her duties. The outgoing ones were Mmes. Tom Cantrell, Jay Johnson, Harry Diltz, and P. W. Malone. The new captains were Mmes. J. V. Bush, L. R. Kuykendall, E. L. Gibson and Clarence Hahn. The guests were served a gypsy feast between reports.

Mrs. Reagan was then seated in a chair before the tent and dubbed gypsy queen and presented with a chest, containing directions for the new officers, by the outgoing president, Mrs. Horace Reagan. She announced the selection of the new chieftain, Mrs. R. C. Eysatt. Assisting Mrs. Eysatt will be Mmes. H. L. Fulton, W. W. Pendleton, a vice president; J. S. King as treasurer, Robt E. Lee as secretary.

Home Town

And when they determine actual demand they consider first how much crude they are producing themselves, how little they can buy from other producers and meet demands for their own refined products, how heavy they may charge for transporting oil without leading to actual destruction of their physical properties by an enraged public, how high they may boost prices of gasoline while doing all in their power to hold crude prices too low for producers to earn a profit.

every price, every change in the oil business. But, someone may ask, do you not know that if the major purchasers did not take crude rates, why they would be violating state law? Or, they may ask, do you know that many producers would be unable to sell as much crude as they now sell if the "nominations" system were not used?

That is true. But the fact that it is true means not that the majors, especially the Humble, are doing producers a great favor.

It is true. But it should not be true. If the ethics of the majors were as they should be independent producers would be able to sell whether majors nominated a given volume per day or not.

Since we have gotten so far into the proration business we apparently can not get out without wrecking the industry. But, it already has been all but wrecked for three years.

You can't retrieve spilled milk, but if proration had never been invented and the fundamental law of supply and demand allowed to operate unhampered, the industry would have been on its feet long ago.

What would have been the result provided the states and the federal government had maintained proper legal basis for effective regulation of major concerns—and enforced such laws.

Mr. Farish, seeing that his playhouse, in which he has so long been able to dictate whether tens of thousands of men might have employment, whether thousands of independent oil men might prosper or be bankrupted, and whether gasoline should sell at 10 or 20 cents per gallon, apparently is attempting to act like a stubborn child, who, having so long been humored by his daddy and mother, finds on growing a little older, that he may have to learn to mind after all.

Let us hope that he is so thoroughly chastised that the name of his company may well describe Mr. Farish, not to speak of his company.

All of this leads us to say once more that we believe any business concern has the right to grow "big" and stay "big" so long as it is willing to follow humane, ethical policies. But, we must always have upon our statute books laws that, when energetically enforced, will effectively stop unethical, inhumane, unjust tactics.

"You are judged by the company you keep," applies to large corporations as well as individuals. So, it is because of tactics such as the "big" now uses that the people have so generally lost confidence in all corporations that are "big" simply because they are "big". Large companies whose policies are not so selfish and unjust are made to suffer for the misdeeds of an associate.

NEW YORK (AP)—Word from an authoritative source that the household of Colonel Lindbergh would neither confirm nor deny the payment of a ransom for the kidnaped baby, sent interest in the mystery to a new high peak Saturday.

Not a single additional word could be obtained with any authority regarding the situation. Conjecture immediately sprang from this latest circumstance, but it is clear that any interpretation must be regarded as speculation.

The New Jersey police reiterated that the baby has not been located or returned. Their position, however, is that the colonel's private efforts are separate from theirs.

ACREAGE REDUCED

Dallas News' Survey Cotton Acreage Will Be Reduced 8.8 Pct. This Year

DALLAS (UP)—Cotton acreage will be reduced 8.8 per cent in Texas from that of last year, if farmers carry out planting intentions reported today in the Dallas News' survey, covering estimates received by the newspaper from its representatives in 221 counties of the state.

"Greatest reduction appears to be in the irrigated districts of West Texas," The News says, "where production costs have been greatly out of line with prices."

"Least reduction is in Northwest Texas, where many counties will increase acreage owing to substitute crops offering no better returns."

"For the nine geographic divisions the percentage of decrease is shown as follows: Northwest 4.4, north 9.5, northeast 10.7, west 15.7, west central 11.1, central 10.6, east 11.9, south 13.3, southeast 11.4."

Spending to Save ... through ADVERTISING Not many of us, these days, are troubled with so much money that we cannot spend it. But we are interested in spending the money we have, to get the most out of it. One way—and not a new way, either—is to make a budget. Put down, week by week, the money that comes in. Put down beside it, week by week, the money that goes out. So much for food, so much for clothing, so much for rent. So much for giving, and for luxuries. It won't always be easy, of course, to stay within the budget. That's where advertising helps you. Advertisements in this newspaper tell you how much rugs, butter, breakfast foods, dishes, homes, automobiles will cost, before you go shopping! They point out ways to save money. They show you how to cut a little here, a little there. And each day, they tell about new inventions, new products, new ways of doing things, that help make this life of ours very much worth living!

Texas Topics

By RAYMOND BROOKS
A liking for public service is alone the reason why several people are working for the state. In most instances they are either independent in means and in all instances they would be earning far more money in their private occupations than in the drudgery of public service.

First of course is the example of Governor Ross B. Sterling, whose sincere desire to contribute his efforts to the state's welfare led him into a race for office, after four years' practically unpaid service as chairman of the highway commission.

Another good example is Lee Simmons, general manager of the prison system. Mr. Simmons took this job at a decided financial sacrifice. He took on arduous duties, though he is a man accustomed to work hard, and he assumed responsibilities, and got in a place to be the target of a fault-finding legislature. But his presence their silenced the fault-finding and gave stronger assurance to the state that important improvements were to be made that will cut the heavy drain of the prison upon the treasury.

At home, he was a farmer; and at the prison system Mr. Simmons is the state's largest farmer, producing up to 14,000 bales of cotton a year, and growing thousands of acres of feed and food crops.

Mark Marshall, head of the motor transportation division of the railroad commission is another. Mr. Marshall financially is so well set up that he could retire and enjoy idleness for the rest of his days if he chose. Or he could piddle with hobbies or go fishing. Instead, it is doubtful if any man in Austin works harder than he does and for his services he draws $416.66 a month.

It has been nothing new for wealthy men to hold office in the legislature. Mike Hogg, son of the late Gov. James S. Hogg, John Henry Kirby and Lynch Davidson in recent years. Mr. Davidson went over and served in the senate, then held office as lieutenant governor—at $5 a day during sessions—then offered his business success and leadership to the state's service in the capacity of governor—at $333.33 a month.

John T. Scott, eminent Houston banker and M. F. Yount, Beaumont capitalist and oil man, now are serving the University of Texas as regents, as did H. J. Latcher, Stark, Orange millionaire for years.

Ira Yates, one of Texas' wealthiest men, is also one of the plainest, in dress, in tastes and interests. He visits Austin often and except for the battery of attorneys, engineers and assistants in his oil and land interests who go with him, would appear just an average man, devoid of all appearances of wealth, wholly unostentatious.

Mayor J. Malcom Crim of Kilgore, another oil millionaire, visits the statehouse at intervals and is another who carries none of the outward show of wealth.

Mayor Crim boasts he is the only Texan who goes out of the state without posing as a cowboy.

Texas, as long as it develops suddenly great new oil fields, or discloses great deposits of mineral wealth for the taking, will continue to produce sudden riches; but the state has been conspicuous in that the golden shower of fortune's gifts usually has fallen to those capable of bearing the burden of wealth and of using wealth as a means of serving and benefiting the commonwealth.

Broadway Of America Motorcade Will Stop In Big Spring May 9

EL PASO—Details for the Broadway of America motorcade from Broadway, New York, to Broadway, San Diego, are working out rapidly. F. O. Mackey, president of the Broadway, said here today. The motorcade will leave New York early the morning of May 3, reaching San Diego the night of May 12. The convention will be held in San Diego May 13 and 14.

Several hundred cars will be in line when the motorcade rolls into San Diego, Mr. Mackey said. San Diego, through the chamber of commerce, San Diego California Club and the Automobile Club of Southern California, is arranging an elaborate program of entertainment for the delegates.

J. H. Greene, secretary of the Colorado, Texas, Chamber of Commerce, has announced that the famous Gold Medal Boys' Band of Colorado, the official Broadway band, will join the motorcade at Colorado and will be available for band concerts at stopping points en route to San Diego. The band will play for the convention.

A miniature motorcade, headed by President Mackey, will leave El Paso April 25 for New York, to form the nucleus for the motorcade leaving the metropolis. Mr. Mackey and his associates will visit every city on the route and make arrangements for the returning motorcade. Several cars from the Pacific Coast will make the trip eastward, distributing literature on the Broadway and the convention itself.

The motorcade, bound for San Diego will arrive at Big Spring at 7:50 a. m. on Monday, May 9, and will remain 15 minutes.

"This motorcade will not be a speed race but will afford plenty of time to see the interesting places along the route," Mr. Mackey said. "We plan a safe, sane motorcade, at reasonable speedy pace, but we are not out to set any records. It will be a vacation trip, without the petty annoyances usually found on a cross-country journey."

TO ADDRESS WTCC
James Carson, Power Company Head, To Address Meet SWEETWATER—James S. Carson, New York, vice president of the American and Foreign Power Company, will address the fourteenth annual convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce in Sweetwater, May 13.

President Houston Harte of the West Texas Chamber has just received his acceptance. Carson is a member of the foreign commerce committee of the chamber of commerce of the United States, and will be one of the speakers at the San Francisco convention of that organization after the Sweetwater meeting.

He will address the general convention at Sweetwater, and is being asked to also address the group conference on public expenditures and taxation.

BABY ELEPHANT DIES
Given Pint of Whiskey To Relieve Case Of Colic AT ANTIC CITY, N. J. (UP)—Zoo-bu, 350-pound, 10-month-old baby elephant is the first elephant on record in America to suffer a broken leg, and all, some are so prejudiced as to suggest, because she was given a pint of whiskey for the colic.

Her trainer, Karl (Dutch) Aeaquin, who confessed he gave the ailing charge a quart of mineral oil mixed with the pint of whiskey, denied the broken leg was due to the whiskey.

"Zoo-bu never got drunk before," he said, "and she wasn't drunk this time. She was just weak from colic," which should be a good enough story in any man's court.
