When Walter P. Reuther sat down with the automotive moguls to discuss contract terms he had good reason to believe the Johnson administration would not object if he broke through the administratien's wage guidelines. So Rauther broke through in a big way. From Chrysler, Ford and General Motors Reuther's Unitted Automobile Workers obtained their biggest money deals ever.

President Johnson did not commit himself to any of the specifics involved in the automotive labor contracts signed and still pending. But he didn't object to any of them either. On balance LBJ appeared to be well pleased with the labor news from Detroit until the industry peace blew up in a UAW-GM explosion. There is Democratic anxiety now that the General Motors strike may slow the forward stride of the national economy just before a presidential election.

What the Johnson administration really wanted from Detroit was price reductions. Johnson said last January that he would watch all wage and price developments for any trend toward inflationary increases. The President's Council of Economic Advisers was more specific in a January report to LBJ. The council report urged certain unnamed industries to cut prices in advance of labor negotiations.

Cites Specific Industries It specifically cited those industries with above average productivity gains and high profits. Council President Walter W. Heller told reporters at a briefing that the auto industry was in that category.

Administration officials also were expressing privately their fears that Reuther would go for broke with unusually large money demands in this year's contract talks. The council said companies enjoying substantial increases in productivity beyond the national level of increase would tend to accumulate very large profits if wages were tied to the slower national productivity pace.

"Such profits become highly visible to the public and constitute a lure for strongly intensified wage demands," the council reported in language that could have been aimed dictly at Detroit.

"Extra increases in wages or fringe benefits might tend to spread to other industries, creating a general cost-push from the wage side. There is no justification, on either economic or equity grounds, for distribution of above average gains in productivity exclusively through the profits channel.

Reduce Prices

"The real way out of this dilemma is for the firms involved to remove its cause by reduc-

Other unions may seek to follow Reuther's rich contract trell. It is assumed that the automotive industry can absorb its new labor costs without a nrice hike, Tess productive and less profitable industries probable could not. Maior strikes could cripole the economy and hamstring the another shot if inflation, the Johnson administration. Given another shot if inflation, the II.S. dollar might slip into a further skid.

Fither way, the common man, beloved by the politicians, would get it in the neck.

For those of you who are undecided between the comfort of a full-size car and the savings of a compact, congratulations. You've done it again. Talked Dodge into a brand-new car that's just your meat. Coronet. As much stretch-out room inside as a lot of cars that cost a lot more. Easy to drive, easy to park, and easier to own than any full-size Dodge in years. If you buy a car on style, take a look. If you buy a car on value, take a list. Coronet gives you a choice of 7 engines, bench or bucket seats, console, four-on-the-floor, sedans, wagons, convertibles, and hardtops. Any one will give you more than enough room and plenty of action. Unlimited taste? Limited budget? Dodge that problem with Coronet. The hot new Dodge at a new lower price.

Johnson-Khrushchev Meeting: The city of Strauss waltzes and gemuetlichkeit on the Danco-Vienna-'s being discussed os the site for an anticipated ce ing next year between President Johnson and Soviet er Nikita Khrushchev, Of ocurse, any such session rests n mether or no Johnson is re elected. If he is, European dir omats anticipate the wo men will get together early in the new year, probably in the spring of 1961. The atmosphere pince where the late President Kennedy met Khrushchev in the spring of 1961. The atmospher turned ugly when the Soviet leader attempted to bully the newly - elected American Chief Executive. Khrus chev failed then to browbeat Kennedy, and he is expected to fail again if he tries any such tactic on . Johnson - who has been in the political wars a much longer time than his predecessor. However, Johnson may have prob-lems of a different sort if he goes to Paris later this year to address the NATO council and tries to squeeze in a meeting with French President Charles De Gaulle. French officials say De Gaulle won't stand still for any such play. If Johnson makes a meeting with De Gaulle the main purpose of a visit to aris, the French president will gladly play host. But if the American President seeks a meeting with De Gaulle on the sidelines of a NATO appearance, it will be a major political blooper from the French viewpoint. Malaysian Confrontation:

Indonesia's "confrontation" policy against Malaysia seems to have passed the high point of belligerency for the time be ing. It reached its high water mark with last month's air drop of 100 paratroopers on the Malayan peninsula. Malaysian officials in Kuala Lumpur believe Indonesia's President Sukarno was all set then to announce the establishment of a guerrilla base and the recognition of a puppet revolutionary government. But radio communication between the paratroopers and Jakarta failed, and most of them were killed or captured by Malaysian security forces. This crushed Indonesian hopes for the time being. Since then, Sukarno and other leaders have gone abroad, Indonesian propaganda against Malaysia has been toned down, and the military confrontation gambit has eased off - at least temporarily. It is expected to remain quiet while Sukarno remains abroad-where he is attending the second summit meeting of unaligned nations which began today in Cairo.

By ALVIN B. WEBB JR. NEW ORLEANS (UPI) - A monster hurricane is something that breathes in a 120-mile-anhour snarl and crushes the life out of a young radio operator trying to shout a warning.

A monster is something that reaches out with black tentacles and scratches a mile-long scar on the face of earth, leaving a blood-splattered man to stir the ashes with a long pole in search of his father and brother.

A monster is something with a single eve 35 miles wide to see the gallant 14 men fighting its anger at sea, the thousands of acres of sugar cane it leveled on harvest eve, the taped and boarded towns darkened in

The New Orleans Weather Bureau was expecting the fierce winds from Hilda, It was not expecting the savage tornadoes that spawned in the hurricane's leading edge, that dipped down to snatch away Trooper Bernard's car, scores of houses and 21 lives.

United Press International photographer Pete Fischer counted body after body in the twisted debris of what had been a happy and contented fishing village. He watched one man, unmindful of the blood that drenched his shirt, probing the wreckage for his relatives.

The memory was vivid with Andrew Lefort. His family was huddled in their home at the south end of Larose when "all of a sudden my nephew heard a roaring sound. When he looked out the window, we saw the tornado."

He thought a moment. "I believe it was the brick house And all around, there was

In New Iberia, Mrs. Wilman Picard was nervously saying her rosary when the lights in the courthouse went out. Thinking quickly, she asked the 400 other evacuees to join her. Panic ebbed in the prayer.

Outside, as UPI correspondent Edward Cocke described it. things were "a mess. People are stranded everywhere. And Hilda marched relent-

Snap Unheard Inside, no one could see the town's 70-foot water tower swaying like a metallic lily in the wind. No one would hear the snap of tortured metal.

Eight men died and 6 others were injured in the tower's plunge through the city hall. Among the broken bodies was that of young Scotty Bernard. Tragically, the radio link with Erath was silenced.

OLUNTARY RISKS

When does a person act against his will? Hazel Hotcha was in an automobile crash while iding in Fred Fast's car. Hazel met Fred at a club dance. Both had several drinks. Fred bought a bottle of whiskey, and Hazel with two other couples piled into Fred's car to go to another

'As they drove away Fred didn't seem drunk. But when Fred drove faster and faster, Hazel asked him to slow down; in alarm she asked him to stop and let her out.

Fred said, "Don't worry, Hazel, all is safe." Soon afterward Fred struck a parked car injuring all his passengers, Hazel badly.

Hazel sued Fred. Since she was riding with Fred as a guest for her own pleasure, she could not recover damages from Fred unless she could show that Fred was drunk, and that she did not know it. Otherwise she would have "assumed the risk" of riding with him, and would have no claim to damages.

Hazel did show that she was not in Fred's car willingly, and that, therefore, she had not legally assumed the risk of his speed and drunken driving. A person can be an unwilling ocrupant, and as such, neither a guest nor a paying passenger.

How does a person show that he is riding against his will? By protesting and doing what he asonably can do to get out. This Hazel had done.

Nobouy expects a person to ump out of the moving car, nor to get lost in the middle of the road. So what is reasonable? That depends-on the time, the place, the driver, the choices open to the occupant and other such things.

The rider has no claim if he knows the risks he assumes, and that the driver is drunk.

But sometimes a person takes risks though he knows nothing about them: He may accept a which even the driver knows nothing about. The driver and he may take the same chances.

Everyone is expected to know a little bit about some activities, such as common sporting events, which involve a certain element of risk. For example a spectator at a baseball game is expected to be aware of the danger of being hit by a ball and to take precautions.

To assume a risk legally, the person has to have a free choice. Thus if the way to a town is over a defective dangerous highway, the driver has no free choice. In one case a driver caused a crash. In it the husband, thrown free of the wreckage, saw the car burning. He ran into the fire to save his wife. Though he was hurt by the entry into the fire the court found the husband had no other real choice, since he could not let his wife burn, there is no assumption of risk there.

McLean Out of Frying UT Holds Pan, Into Gruver Fire

"We haven't got any breathers from here on in. We're going to have to work for anything we get, and we're going up against one of the hardesthitting teams in the Panhandle." McLean coach Fred Hedgecoke warned his Tigers as they prepared for Friday night's game at Gruver.

The Tigers are literally jumping out of the frying pan into the fire as they will be unable to draw even a single breath following last week's 26 - 8 loss to mighty Wheeler, as Gruver boasts a rugged team indeed. Led by breakaway halfback Frank Silva, the Greyhounds have rolled over strong Stinnett and rugged Clarenden, lost one game to powerful White Deer and a 6 - 0 tussle to undefeated

Spearman. "As far as last week's game. there isn't much I'd care to say for publication," morosely admitted Hedgecoke. "We're still making fundamental mistakes and they're killing us. We have to overcome them. We've just you can see the fundamental this year.
