He warned that if the strike is prolonged it will "have serious consequences for our employes, and their families, for our plant communities and for, the public and the economy at large."

Seaton said that in the last 16 years "our differences have been composed at the bargaining table in five successive negotiations." He said it was "difficult to understand" why the union broke off negotiations and went on strike "because substantial progress towards resolution of our difference has been made at the bargaining table."

The GM vice president noted that the union had admitted the firm's economic offer "was satisfactory and equivalent to those upon which agreements with our competitors were based."

He said GM "made every effort" to settle the non-economic issues. But he accused the union of making demands which would have restricted GM's management responsibility and therefore "we are not prepared to accede to such unsound demands ..."

Reuther said that there were "at least a half-dozen of these non-economic issues which still had to be solved including the matter of union committeemen paid by the company to handle worker grievances at

Altend The Church Of Your Choice

Dr. Douglas Carver, Pastor First Baptist Church

"WHY I GO TO CHURCH"

It is my privilege to share an article with you written by Mr. Henry L. Bowden, attorney for the City of Atlanta and president of the board of trustees of Emory University:

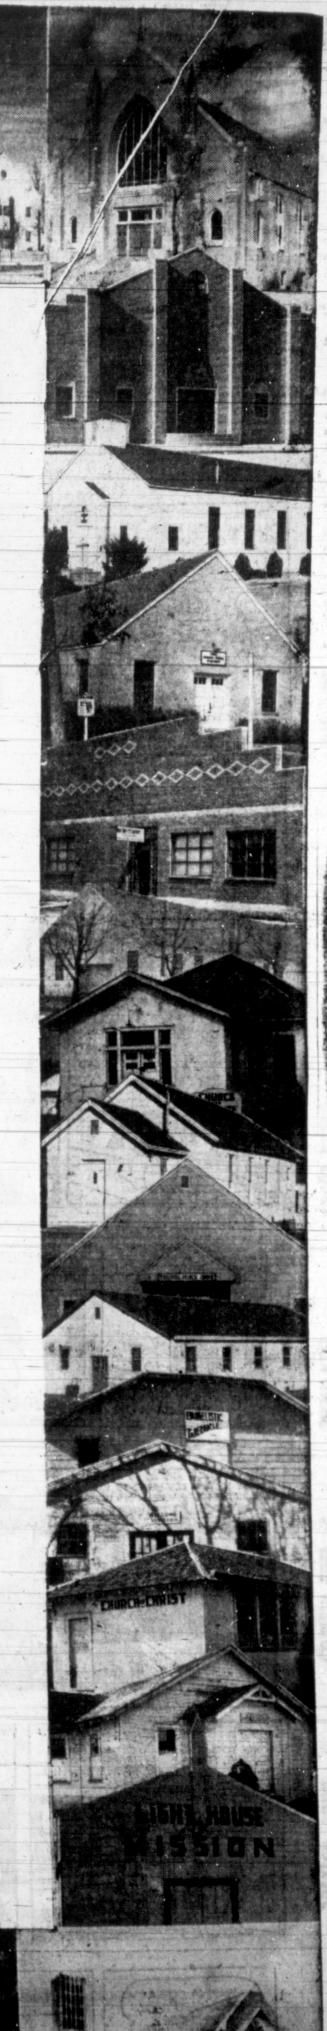

"There are many reasons why I go that are really incapable of expression by me, because of my own limitations, but I am pleased to write you some of the reasons I am able to express.

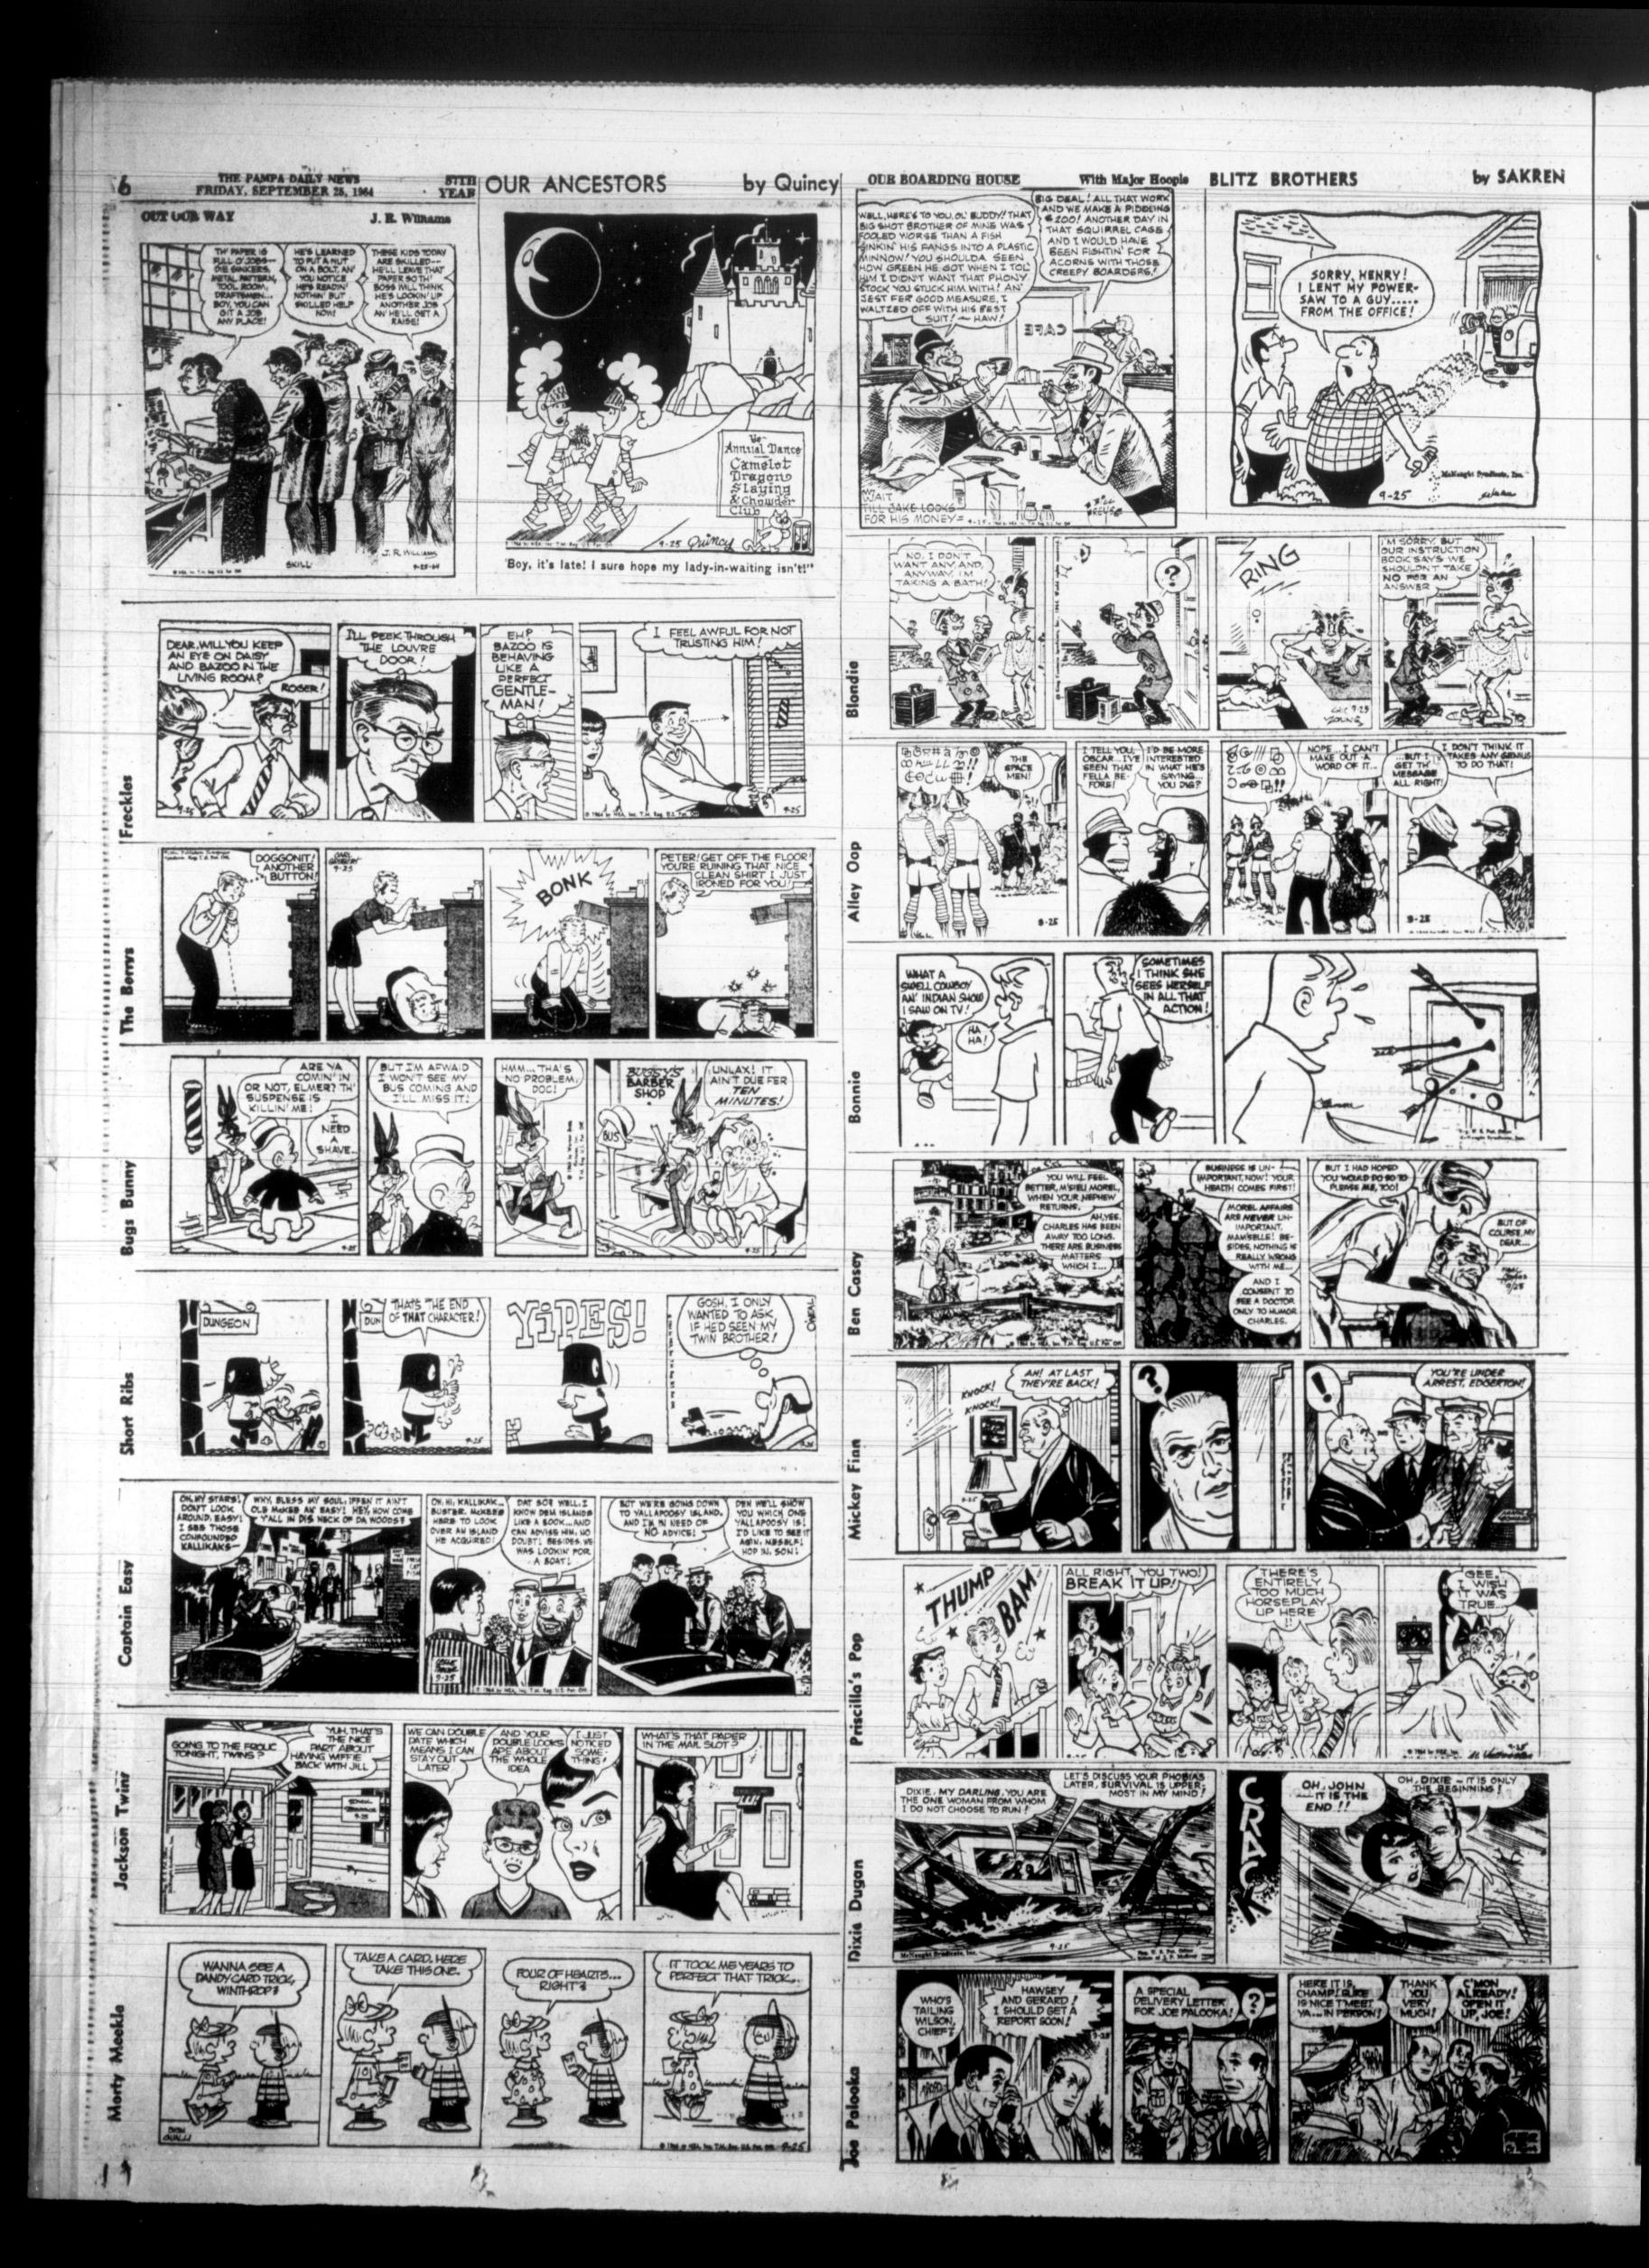

First, I am a Christian. Christ referred to the church in the Bible as "My church." Therefore, being a Christian and the church being the church of Jesus Christ it is my duty not to try to relate Christ to my own church but to relate my self to His church. The most direct way of doing this is to attend regularly His church.

Second, the church affords a place where more than in any other place I can feel the "presence" of Christ. Though I know Christ is present everywhere, nevertheless, in His house there is to me more of a feeling that He is present. This means to me that in His presence I can talk to Him more intimately in prayer and that I can worship Him more directly in song and fellowship with others of like mind.

Third, just as the battery of a flashlight or a transistor radio will gradually become exhausted through constant hammering and use, so it is with a person's "spiritual" battery. The knocking I get in the market-place, the drain on me through secular exposure tends to exhaust my spiritual battery because so much of what is there is not Christian and is not spiritual. Thus attendance at church where in quiet reflection I can re-examine myself, the world around me and my relation to it affords me an opportunity to recharge, as it were, my own spiritual battery and be reinvigorated for the hard days that lie ahead.

Finally, I go to church because I recognize in the Church the agency that protects and makes permanent the great truths of life, the agency that preserves from generation to generation the age-old verities of the Spirit. I want to be identified with such an agency and to help support it so that to my own children and grandchildren it may continue to exist as a protector and preserver of these things which I want them to share with me and those who have preserved them for me."
