fundamental principle of democracy—majority rule—is applied, and majority rule dictated the party's legislative policy. Such differences as may arise are eliminated in committee or in conference, and when the majority view has been ascertained it becomes the party's guide on the floor.

Leadership Democrats and republicans alike admit frankly that the remarkable record of the house for constructive legislation during the two months it has been in session is due to Speaker Garner's qualifications for leadership, his courage, vision, experience and wise generalship.

There is no argument as to what that $200,000 a year means to that county. It is a certainty that there is no other tax-paying interests as large as those railroads.

Over these fine highways there pass daily at least twenty-five motor freight trucks, doing business in all of these towns.

In this particular county, in addition to the taxes paid by the railroads, the employees of the railroads spend about ten thousand dollars a month with local merchants and business men.

Personally Speaking

Delegates and members of the two missionary societies of the First Methodist Church are planning to attend the West Zone meeting at Colorado Thursday.

T. M. Wiley spent Sunday in Bronte.

Mrs. Una Covert was reported to be better this morning.

George Lynn Brown, Jr. returned to Dallas Sunday night in order to give his blood for another transfusion to his mother.

Miss Marie Johnson is spending the week-end in El Paso, where she has gone to meet relatives.

Rome Lusk has been called to Elton by the serious illness of his brother, Oscar Lusk, who had a heart attack.

R. T. Piner and Ira Thurman of the West Texas National Bank, T. S. Currie and Ben Carpenter, of the State National, are in Fort Worth attending the 7th district of State Bankers Association.

Mrs. George Mclear has returned from Sterling City, where she visited relatives.

Mabel Robinson of the county tax collector's office, visited in Abilene the past week-end.

Paul T. Vickers, manager of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, visited here Saturday with C. T. Watson of the local chamber.

Mrs. R. L. Minter and children, R. L. Jr. and Ruth, left Monday at noon for their home in Fort Worth, after spending the week-end with Mrs. Minter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Prichard.

Cactus Members Enjoy Patriotic Bridge Luncheon

Mrs. E. J. Heywood entertained the members of the Cactus Bridge Club with a lovely bridge luncheon Saturday afternoon at her home.

A George Washington color scheme was cleverly carried out in the floral decorations, the nut baskets, many of the dishes served, the tallies and scorecards.

Four guests attended. They were Mrs. Ned Beaudreau, Horace Reagan, P. W. Malone and L. R. Kuykendall. Mrs. Reagan won high score and received a lovely hand-made luncheon set.

Mrs. Parks made high score for club members and was given also a hand-made luncheon cloth and napkins.

The members present were Mrs. M.

THEIR LAUNDRYMAN CAUGHT Daud, Abbas Hussein, chief of a marauding band of Bedouin Arabs, is back again in prison at Beyrouth, Syria, and Syrian authorities are resting peacefully once more while the famous horseman and marksman starts again to serve a sentence of 20 years.

He was captured by a desert patrol and sentenced to 20 years in Beyrouth prison. He escaped and made his way to Alexandria, Egypt, where he opened a laundry. Business grew and Hussein prospered and registered happiness. But Syria had appealed to the Palestine and Egyptian authorities to watch for the Sheik, and an Egyptian policeman made the arrest, thus stamping the laundryman's disguise as a complete "wash-out."

Tom F. Hunter, Wichita Falls candidate for governor, this week paid his first visit to the statehouse since he entered the political race for hand-shaking tour among state officials and a survey of the office he has offered to occupy for the next term.

Mrs. Ferguson's race for the office doesn't look formidable to him, he commented. "I have expected that all the time," he said.

Her vote this year will be less than she received in either of her last two races against Dan Moody and Gov. Sterling, in his opinion, Mr. Hunter said.

BAR U. S. BOOKS. AUTHORS URGE Members of the fellowship of Australian Writers may ask the Australian government to bar American books because, they claim, the United States is unfair to Australian writers.

The campaign is led by Fred Davidson, who addressed the organization in Sydney, N. S. W., recently. If an Australian book was copyrighted in the United States, and it was not printed within eight months, he said, any United States publishing house was at liberty to print it. If the same principle was adopted in Australia work would be found for many hundreds of men in the printing trade.

THE OLYMPICS' THRILL EVENT

The bobsled run at Lake Placid, N. Y., regarded as the world's most dangerous course, has provided plenty of thrills for participants and spectators at the winter Olympic games. Several competitors have been seriously injured while practicing for the event. Here is the American two-man bob taking the dangerous "white face" curve at nearly 70 miles an hour.

SUNSET PASS

by Zane Grey

SYNOPSIS: After his killing of Ash Preston in a gun fight, Trueman Rock believes that Ash's sister, Thiry, can no longer love him.
But he does not regret the act, because now Thiry is safe from disgrace and her father, Gage Preston, is relieved of Ash's influence and its dangers.

Chapter 40
MARRIED MAN

Whereupon Alice Preston entered, gayly gowned, and far brighter of eye than Rock would have expected to see her that day.

"Allie, you—well, I almost said, darlin', replied Rock, suddenly warned by surprise and gratitude.
"Trueman, you're just a day late," she said, regally. "I became engaged yesterday."

Rock, "Who's the lucky boy?"

"Charlie Farrell."

"Allie dear, I don't know that I ought to allow this," said Rock, gravely, "but seem' I'm crippled an' can't very well stop it, I'll say bliss to you, my child."

She sat down on the bed and took his hand in both hers.

"Trueman, I think you'd make a good dad at that. . . Does my news cheer you up?"

"Sure does, Allie—for you. . . I can never cheer up again for myself."

"Booh!" she exclaimed, in sweet derision.

But a squeak of the door and a deep expulson of breath from some one entering checked her. Rock gave such a start that his stiff injured leg actually reminded him of its condition. Thiry had entered.
She leaned against the wall. She was hunched, and her soft hat dropped from nervous hands.

Alice gave Rock's hand a thrilling squeeze and jumped up. "Reckon this is no place for sister Allie!" and she beat a precipitous retreat with Winter, closing the door behind her.

"Thiry—how good—of you!"

Hastily she approached, as if the impelling force that drew her was only slightly stronger than something which held her back.

"Trueman, are you—all right?" she asked, apparently awed at the helpless length of him there on the bed. She, too, sat down beside him, and her eyes, black with thought and pain, followed her reaching hand, to rest on the covert over his knee.

"Reckon I'm 'most all right—now," he replied, sensitive to her touch.

"Mr. Winter told me everything," she went on, "but seeing you is so strange. . . Can you move?"

"Sure, Allie, but my left leg."

"Was that broken?"

"No, I'm glad to tell you."
"Then you can ride again?"

"Some day."

"And the other hurt—was that here?" she asked, pale, almost reverent, as she laid a soft hand high upon his left shoulder.

"Lower down—Thiry."

Fascinated she gently slipped her hand down over the bandage.

"Here?"

"Still lower."

Then she felt the throbbing of his heart. "But Trueman—it couldn't be there."

"You bet it is."

"What?"

"The hurt asked about."

"I was speaking of your latest wounds," she replied. Then she looked him squarely in the face which she had failed to do before.
How tragic, deep with sorrow, yet soul-searching that gaze! It changed. "I had to fight myself to come," she said. "There was a cold dead, terrible something inside me.
. . . But it's leaving!"

"Trueman, you're so white and thin. So helpless lying there!—I want to nurse you. I should have come. . . Have you suffered?"

"A little—I reckon," he replied unsteadily. "But it's gone now."

"Has Amy Dabb been here?" she asked, jealously.

"Yes, today. She was very nice."
"Nice! . . . Because she wheeled John Dabb to offer you the running of Sunset Pass Ranch?"

"Oh, no—I mean, just kind," returned Rock, uncertainly. He was of half a mind to believe this delusion.

"Trueman, you will accept that

SPORTS ON PARADE

By CURTIS BISHOP

Today we have a couple of "I told you so's" to make public. One is for the benefit of Walter Adams of A.C.C. who predicted while sitting in the district tournament here that the Eagles would take the Steers into camp by a clear margin, and who referred the final game of the series in which the locals outplayed Abilene by a score of 27 to 20. The other is for a gentleman named Bobby Campbell over Breckenridge way, who this week will have the pleasure of seeing the Breckenridge Buckaroos champions of District 8, meet the Steers in bi-district eliminations.
Bobby predicted earlier in the year that the championship Steers of 1931 were no more, that without Hutto and Pardue they had no chance to repeat their bi-district win of last season, and furthermore Oble Bristow and George Brown put together couldn't be as good in the Steers' hands as was Bill Stevens.
Which was a mighty bad prediction. Sir Bobby made, as he no doubt will discover when he casts his eyes upon the squad of Bovines that will take the floor against his team this week.

More than a hundred calls came in between 9 and 9:30 Saturday evening as Big Spring fans requested news of the third and final game in Abilene. Interest in basketball here is at its highest pitch. For one thing there is a winning team and nothing in the world loves a winning team more than a fan, unless it is the poker player cuddling a pair of aces backed to back. And another thing is a "comeback team." Only a few conceded the Steers a chance to retain their district laurels after the Eagles had invaded the Big Spring gym last Tuesday night and so rudely shattered an undefeated tradition that had been in existence for almost two years. Incidentally Harry Taylor, coach of the San Angelo Bobcats, was one of those.

The split in District 8 prevents an accurate selection of an all-district club, but an all-star five gleaned from the Abilene and Big Spring rosters, who after all had the pick of the cage products in this portion of the state, can be done worse by than this:

Forward: Street (Abilene).
Guard: Hopper (Big Spring).
Center: Coppinger (Abilene).
Guard: Forrester (Big Spring).
Guard: Flowers (Big Spring).

Hopper, Coppinger and Forrester stood heads and shoulders above any other players in the playoff series, and in the entire district for all that matter, and were cinches for such a place. Flowers, an all-district guard in 1931, has played all sorts of basketball this year and not all of it has been good, but his exhibition of guarding in the Abilene-Big Spring games was above par. Chapman, Abilene guard, played an excellent game here last

East Fourth Takes Two of Three Games

Incidentally the Steers' chances in the state classic are better than this time last season. Athens, Denton, the two stalwarts who have divided every state championship for the last four years between them, will both be conspicuous by their absence this year. San Jacinto High of Houston ranks as favorite over the field, but out of the other twelve entries in the Austin tournament appears no club who seem any stronger than Big Spring.

Speaking for the section of District 8 represented in the tournament here we would say that a selection of the five outstanding players in the playoff series might well be considered the official all-district club. Stagner of Colorado
district club, Stagner of Colorado might crowd in at a forward's berth, but Flowers, the writer's selection for Forrester's running mate, is heads and shoulders above
"Popeye" Gary of Dunn as a guard, even on the evenings when he has tendencies to become erratic.

We look for a full house, and not one of the kind where there is but three of one kind and another pair, when the Buckaroos invade the Big Spring gym in the bi-district playoff. There is no use of putting up the plea that support from the fans is necessary for a Bovine triumph, they proved that they can win without enthusiastic supporters to cheer them on. But if they sweep through Breckenridge there is the matter of a trip to Austin for ten men, a coach, and a student manager to consider, and that twelve will drain the local athletic association to the bottom. A good crowd for the one or possibly two games here will go a long way towards its active and successful campaign Friday and Saturday by defeating Ben Daniels' Devils 22 to 20, the Lo-

The Devils, who previously had nosed out the Baptists 20 to 22, were taken under here Friday evening.
The Baptists went to Lomax Saturgames there. E. Wilson was high scorer for the Baptists and Fred

Wisconsin's Experiment

IT WILL BE interesting to see how Wisconsin's unemployment insurance bill, recently enacted works out.

The bill is apparently a compromise. On the one hand it has a re-dical tinge, in that all the cost is to be borne by employers, who must set up funds guaranteeing the payment of premiums. On the other hand, it surely goes less far than most workers would want, in that it limits each worker's share to not more than ten weeks of unemployment pay in one year—this pay to be not more than 50 per cent of his average pay.

Nevertheless, the measure represents a good deal more than any other state has been willing to do.
Wisconsin's experience with the new law will be well worth watching.

The note of a bell depends upon its weight.

Radford Contracts For Building At Abilene

ABILENE — Contracts for erection of a new unit in Abilene's business district — a modern, three-story fireproof structure at Pine and North Third streets — have been awarded by J. M. Radford, and construction work is to be started immediately. It was announced Saturday by George F. Campbell of Nichols & Campbell, architectural firm which designed the building.

The general award went to the Suggs Construction Company of Abilene, wiring contract to the Sun Electric company, plumbing and heating to R. G. Cogdell, and elevator installation to the American Elevator company. It was understood the awards totaled around $60,000.

Completed July 1 Plans call for completion by July 1, at which time the W. T. Grant company, one of the nation's strongest merchandisers, will assume occupancy of the first two floors and a part of the basement. The Grant company has completed a deal with Mr. Radford for a 20-year lease on the building. The Grant company, a newcomer in West Texas, operates general merchandise stores, with prices prevailing from 24 cents to 85.

ARNOLD CLUB CHANGE

The members of the Arnold Club will meet on Friday of this week instead of Wednesday, as announced the business, Mrs. O. L. Thomas.

FAVORITES IN LEGION HORNE TOAD DERBY

The big race for 'dashing derby' is going to be a close one. It is being sponsored by the American Legion, and is expected to draw a large crowd to the race. The toad will be the star attraction, and the race is expected to be a close one. The toad will be the star attraction, and the race is expected to be a close one. The toad will be the star attraction, and the race is expected to be a close one.

Clyde E. Thomas has entered "Senator" in the race. According to Clyde's story "Senator" has been in the racing game for a long time. Years ago he was hailed as the fastest toad on the turf, forty years ago to be exact. In fact he was up setting the racing dope around Kansas so often that some of the courtship politicians tried to abduct him and entomb him in the courthouse corner stone. "Senator's" backers upon learning of the plot spirited him away and put another in his place. All of these years he has been racing in various parts of the world under an assumed name. Now he is back in his own state and is going to run for the blue ribbon "Senator" is worthy of your consideration as a title contender as is his master.

Friday night, February 26, is the night the toads will display their ability to make speed and here are some of them that may become world's champions. Stew "Stew" is the popular entry of the T. & P. N. Cafe, 118 Main Street. Training quarters for "Stew" aren't reached it and the gleam of a lamp shone through the small window of Flores' adobe house as they closed in on it. The Mexican guide was ordered to hail the house. He did so, and in answer, the lamp was extinguished. Drawing their revolvers, the patrolmen prodded the Mexican ahead of them into the house.

Death Always On Trail For Guardians Of Last Frontier

Two thousand miles of sun-scathed borderland — starting where the waves of the blue Pacific sweep against the golden beaches of California and extending along the southern edge of the deserts of Arizona and New Mexico, then following the outline of Texas along the sinuous course of the Rio Grande, until it reaches the Gulf of Mexico. This is the boundary line between the United States and Old Mexico.

A picturesque, colorful strip of country, drowsing under the rays of a semitropical sun. On this, our Last Frontier, anything can happen — and it does. That is why the United States border patrol is stationed along that boundary line. There one will see the men of the patrol on the streets of the border towns, trim in their natty uniforms. They are all hand-picked, fighting men, and the record of their work reads like a romantic story of adventure.

Ex-soldiers, Texas Rangers, cowboys, flying men and hard-bitten adventurers who know all the far-flung outposts of the earth, are in their ranks. On horseback they can ride like demons, and they can drive or fly anything on wheels or wings that will carry a man.

All of them are expert marksmen. They have to be, for they live with their guns in hand's reach night and day. Many of them are considered to be as fast with their 6-shooters as any of the storied gunmen of the old West. Besides revolvers, they have 12-gauge riot guns and rifles. Wherever they go, in uniform or in "civvie's" on duty or off, the patrol inspectors' arms go with them.

Their duties are to watch the border, prevent the illegal entry of aliens from Mexico into the United States, stop American filibusters from running guns and cartridges over to revolutionaries, and deal with smuggling on both sides of the line. As the Mexican frontier is more than 2,000 miles in length, and as there are only 500 men to guard it, one may surmise that they are kept very busy. As one of the ex-cowboy members of the patrol put it, "A fella can throw away his blankets an' buy a lantern when he signs up with this outfit."

It is no exaggeration to say that the men of the border patrol along the Texas-New Mexico-Arizona sector are under fire every night in the week. The Mexican smugglers and the American outlaws who work in partnership with them are desperate men and will fight like trapped rats when cornered. Up in the Triangle, only five miles or so from the business center of El Paso, where New Mexico, Old Mexico and Texas meet, is stationed one of the mounted outposts of the border patrol. Here, at Pelea, N. M., the inspectors are located. Of course, they have cars, but all their traveling in connection with their work is done in the saddle, for "gas buggies" cannot travel up and down hills, across arroyos, and over mesquite flats as nimbly as a horse. In wild country like this, the "bronc" is still superior to the motor car as a means of locomotion.

Inspector Douglas Pysatt, an ex-cowboy, when stationed at Pelea, was watching out for a certain contrabandist, one Victor Arriola, an ex-captain of Pancho Villa's Dragoons and a notorious gun-fighting smuggler who had already shot two mounted customs inspectors. One afternoon, a Mexican informer furtively stole across the line with a whispered message for Pysatt. Following up that "information received," Pysatt and his partner, Ted Pippin, looked up a certain Mexican in the saddle, in an attempt to show them the way to the case of an Antonio Flores.

It was dark by the time they reached it and the gleam of a lamp shone through the small window of Flores' adobe house as they closed in on it. The Mexican guide was ordered to hail the house. He did so, and in answer, the lamp was extinguished. Drawing their revolvers, the patrolmen prodded the Mexican ahead of them into the house.

Pop Warner, 'Phog' Allen, To Head Staff Of Tech Coaches' School

LUBBOCK — An "all American" teaching staff has been secured for the second annual Texas Tech coaching school to be held here July 11 to 22. Pop Warner, head coach at the college, has announced. Members of this "all American" staff include Glenn S. "Pop" Warner, head coach and Tiny Thornhill, line coach of Stanford University; Hank Anderson, head coach, and American Marchie Schwartz, backfield coach of Notre Dame; Dr. Forrest "Phog" Allen, head coach of Kansas University; Clyde D. Loeffel, Texas University; and Jack Meagher, Rice Institute.

Warner, Thornhill, Anderson, Schwartz, and Meagher, will handle football. Allen will handle basketball and track in the atmosphere here for the eleven days, July 11 to 22, that Coach Cawthon expects it will be extremely difficult for the ordinary coach to get the full benefit, unless he is here at the time taking in all the work and concentrating. With this staff, Cawthon expects the 1932 enrollment to far surpass the 1931 enrollment of 323 which broke all enrollment records of the year. Wallace Wade, Jimmy Phelan, S. D. Burton and Jimmy Kitt, made up the teaching staff last year.
