National Outlook

By GEORGE HAGEDORN

Although the great majority of the American labor force consists of full-time workers, a substantial, and apparently growing, proportion is made up of those who choose to work part-time. In May, 1964, the part-time workers accounted for 14 percent of the total labor force, as compared with 11 percent in May, 1957.

This is a fact of some interest in itself, since it illustrates the adaptability of the economy to the special circumstances of individual workers on the one
