Russian Cosmonauts Make Safe Landing

Spacemen 'Feel Well' After Trip

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union announced its two-man spaceship landed safely today after an epochal flight in which a cosmonaut left his vehicle and returned for the first time.

The official Tass news agency said Col. Pavel Belyayev, 39, commander of Voskhod (Sunrise) II, and Lt. Col. Alexei A. Leonov, 30, who braved the hazards of absolute zero to walk in space, landed safely at 12:03 p.m. (3:02 a.m. CST) after a flight of 26 hours and two minutes.

The announcement ended hours of silence by the Kremlin and growing feeling of uneasiness. The Russians had not given any progress reports on the flight of the space bus since 5:30 a.m. (9:30 p.m. EST Thursday) after Voskhod II had completed its 13th orbit.

The official text of the Tass announcement said, "Voskhod II landed at 12 hours, 02 minutes Moscow time in the area of Perm, west of the Ural." Perm, once called Molotov, is about 700 miles northeast of Moscow.

Tass said Col. Belyayev used manual controls to land the space craft. It said both he and Leonov "feel well" and that the scientific program which gave the Soviet Union a giant lead in the space race had been "fully accomplished."

The two cosmonauts were blasted into orbit—the highest yet achieved by man—at 10 a.m. (1 a.m. CST) Thursday from the Bakhkonr cosmodrome in Kazakhstan, about 800 miles southeast of Moscow in Central Asia.

The spaceship soared to an altitude of 307 miles above the earth and then moved in an elliptical, or egg-shaped, orbit, down to 107.9 miles.

Uneasy Speculation
The official announcement came 4 hours and 9 minutes after unofficial sources informed UPI of the safe landing. But the lack of an official announcement had prompted uneasiness and brought speculation something might have happened.

The time of the landing indicated the Russians had orbited the earth 16 or 17 times. Soviet cosmonauts had done this before but this flight made history when Leonov crawled through an air chamber to the outside of the craft and returned safely.

He clung to a handrail for about 10 minutes, testing the effects of the 459 degree temperature and the effect of weightlessness on his well-being. Then, dangling at the end of a 16-foot lifeline, he performed somersaults and other maneuvers to demonstrate his control.

Russians hailed the move as demonstration of greater things to come—the building of a platform in space, the repair of spacecraft damaged by meteorites, and the linking up of two spacecraft while orbiting the earth. All would be preliminaries to a landing on the moon.

The flight was considered a tremendous leap forward by the Soviet Union in the space race with the United States which plans to send a two-man Gemini spacecraft on a four-orbit flight next Tuesday.

U.S. Planes Bomb North Viet Nam Supply Depots

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (UPI)—A force of 130 American jet fighters and bombers blasted supply depots in Communist North Viet Nam today. The commander of the U.S. Air Force in South Viet Nam estimated destruction at "80 to 90 per cent."

Maj. Gen. Joseph Moore told a news conference that approximately 60 U.S. Air Force planes and between 60 and 70 Navy aircraft participated in strikes against Bien Son supply depot and an ammunition depot about 35 miles north of Vinh in North Viet Nam.

The Air Force commander said all American planes returned safely and that the only damage was "one small hole" in the wing of one aircraft.

Land-Based Planes
Moore said the jets blasted the Communist targets with bombs, rockets and cannon-fire to destroy the complex of about 15 or 20 buildings in the ammunition and supply depots. The Air Force planes were land-based, he said.

The U.S. Navy threw "on the order of 60 to 70" planes into the raid, the general said.

The targets are located 125-130 miles southwest of Hanoi, the capital of North Viet Nam. Today's was the seventh bombing raid against North Viet Nam since last August.

Moore called Communist anti-aircraft fire over today's targets "light and inaccurate."

All Returned
"It is my understanding all (Navy planes) returned to the aircraft carrier," he told newsmen.

A U.S. military spokesman said an Air Force officer was mistaken when he said American planes did not drop napalm fire bombs during another raid on North Viet Nam last Monday. Moore was asked whether napalm was used today.

"Napalm is used whenever it is suitable to destroy the target," he answered grimly.

Alabama March Slated Sunday

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI)—National Guard units of the famed 31st (Dixie) Division apparently will provide the bulk of protection for civil rights demonstrators on a five-day march through Alabama farm country.

President Johnson advised Gov. George Wallace Thursday night that he would federalize the Alabama Guard, which makes up the Dixie Division along with the Mississippi Guard, if Wallace is "unable or unwilling" to call out the guardsmen.

Wallace's office said the governor went to bed before receiving the President's statement Thursday night.

The fiery governor, ordered by federal Judge Frank M. Johnson to allow and protect a civil rights march from Selma to Montgomery, earlier Thursday night had asked the President to furnish federal help for such protection.

Asked For Help
Wallace, in an address to a joint session of the legislature carried on statewide television, said it would take 6,171 officers, working eight-hour shifts, to guard the 40-mile march beginning Sunday. He said the state only had 600 state troopers and he asked President Johnson to "provide sufficient federal civil authorities or officers to provide for the safety and welfare" of the marchers, who will be led by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Wallace said the federal government has helped create this matter and they "can help protect the same," Wallace told the legislators. He said the order by federal district Judge Frank M. Johnson would be obeyed and he urged citizens to show "restraint."

Wallace has appealed Johnson's order to the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans. The court told Wallace to appeal to Judge Johnson before going to a higher court. Wallace's attorneys then asked Johnson to reconsider his order.

Delayed Trip
The President delayed flying to his Texas ranch to answer Wallace's request Thursday night. He said the government did not have enough civilian law officers to provide the protection requested by Wallace, but that the governor had more than 10,000 Alabama Guardsmen at his disposal.

"If he is unable or unwilling to call up the guard and maintain order in Alabama, I will call the guard up and give them all the support required," the President said.

King said Thursday the march would begin at noon Sunday at Brown's Chapel Am church in Selma and end at the Capitol Thursday with a delegation attempting to present racial grievances to Wallace. Hosea Williams, a King aide, said as many as 3,000 persons were expected to participate.

U.S. Prepares For 'Simple' Space Flight

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — Two U.S. astronauts and a moon probe, badly upstaged by a Russian who does somersaults in space, will try to save a little national face in a cosmic doubleheader starting Sunday.

The astronauts, John W. Young and Virgil I. Grissom, planned to take part today in a workout of the worldwide, 15-station network that will follow their three-orbit course through the sky next Tuesday.

The probe, a package of cameras named Ranger-9, was due today for a final "simulated" countdown in preparation for its scheduled 240,000-mile picture-taking voyage to the moon.

Ranger-9 is expected to blast off aboard a silver Atlas-Agena rocket Sunday afternoon. If technical, medical and weather experts give a go-ahead, Grissom and Young will depart aboard a Titan-2 rocket on a five-hour orbital flight at 8 a.m. CST Tuesday.

But the limelight belonged to Russian cosmonaut Alexei Leonov, who rode an 11,000-pound Voskhod-2 ship into orbit Thursday and proceeded to regale television viewers on the ground with a spectacular demonstration of floating and turning somersaults in space outside his capsule.

The United States plans no opening of hatches, no floating, no somersaults and no television pictures for Grissom and Young. The astronauts are to sit still, manipulate some controls and get down at the end of three orbits.

This is the same distance U.S. space capsules were flying three years ago. The record is 81 orbits held by Russia.

MORE FIGHTING PROMISED

Police Guard Cleveland School

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UPI)—School authorities planned to reopen massive Collinwood High School under heavy police guard today despite threats from some white students that they would attack Negro pupils again.

Dozens of isolated fist-fights between white and Negro students flared at the racially tense school Thursday before classes were canceled. Thursday night, some white youths and adults beat a Negro couple at a parents' meeting and a white audience hooted at faculty members who appealed for calm.

The fighting capped a week of sporadic incidents between whites and Negro youths in the predominantly white working class Collinwood area. Street fighting broke out following a YMCA dance attended mainly by Negroes last weekend and a number of minor incidents were reported at the 3,200-student high school during the week.

After Thursday's clashes around the building, school Supt. Paul W. Briggs held an emergency meeting with community leaders and told them, "we need complete calm, and maturity, on the part of every adult and every child."

Only hours later, however, a white youth struck Rufus Pierce, 40, when he and his wife, Demetrel, 42, entered a meeting of the all-white Collinwood Improvement Association at the school auditorium. Other whites, both teen-agers and adults, then began beating the Pierces before police intervened.

Neither Pierce nor his wife was seriously hurt. Pierce said he attended the meeting because it had been advertised as being open.

About 400 white students and parents at the meeting reacted derisively to appeals for calm.

They jeered faculty members who pleaded for a restoration of peaceful race relations. Some youths threatened a newsman and ripped apart his notebook before adults ushered him outside. Other white students threatened to renew the fighting with Negroes today.

In announcing his decision to reopen the school today, Briggs said "the safety of every child in our schools is guaranteed." Police placed the Collinwood school under "maximum security" and said a police detail would remain there around the clock until the trouble subsided.

Collinwood High School draws the majority of its students from the surrounding white neighborhood but about 20 per cent come from adjacent Negro areas. Tensions between working class whites, many of foreign extraction, and Negroes has run high in Cleveland in recent years, especially in areas where racially separated neighborhoods abut.

CHEMISTRY AWARD — Mrs. Elaine Ledbetter, Pampa High School chemistry teacher, was honored as the outstanding chemistry teacher in Texas this morning during an assembly at Pampa High School. Shown presenting Mrs. Ledbetter with a plaque is John Fricke, member of the board of directors of the Texas Chemical Society, sponsors of the award. She received a standing ovation from the student body.

Pampa Science Teacher Wins Chemistry Award

Mrs. Elaine Ledbetter, Pampa High School Science Teacher, was presented a citation and cash award of $200 this morning after being honored as the outstanding chemistry teacher in Texas.

Mrs. Ledbetter was honored during an assembly at the high school this morning.

The chemistry teacher won the honor over 43 of the state's top high school chemistry teachers nominated for the award, which is jointly sponsored by the Texas Chemical Council and Manufacturing Chemists' Association.

The judging committee included top leaders in the educational and industrial chemical fields.

"In making the decision," Cameron Marsh, high school principal said, "the committee considered such factors as classroom enthusiasm and initiative; ability to interest students in chemical careers; development of new ideas or new devices for teaching; extra-curricular activities in the school and community to awaken an interest in chemistry; and continuing effort to keep abreast of latest developments in chemistry, both academically and professionally."

In nominating Mrs. Ledbetter for the honor, earlier this year, Marsh said, "This teacher has brought our department in a few years from fewer than 50 students to one including an annual enrollment of 125.

Many have majored in and are teaching chemistry now. She has produced six finalists to compete in the National Science Fair and has served as secretary of the National Science (See TEACHER, Page 3)

Gromyko Bows Out of Viet Peace Efforts

LONDON (UPI)—Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko bowed out of any Viet Nam peace efforts today and said the United States must negotiate directly with Communist North Viet Nam—a step ending "its aggression."

Gromyko, ending four days of policy talks with Prime Minister Harold Wilson and Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart, told a news conference the ceasing of American "aggression" must be the first step towards possible peace developments.

His statement came after a force of 130 U.S. jet fighters and bombers hit military targets in North Viet Nam today while the Communist nation and Red China were observing their annual "state America" days.

Gromyko castigated the United States as "invaders" who have no business to be in South Viet Nam. He said that in the light of the present "dangerous situation" there cannot be talk even of the possibility of convening a conference on Viet Nam.

He insisted at the conference held at the Soviet embassy that cessation of American attacks is "the first of all first steps" toward a settlement in South-east Asia. And any future moves after the end of American "aggression" must be between Washington and Hanoi, he said.

Estes Figure Buys Interest in Motel

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (UPI)—Jerry R. Holleman, a figure in the Billie Sol Estes scandal, owns an interest in a new motel to be built in President Johnson's home town, it was learned today.

The new motel will be built on land sold to Holleman and two other men by M. C. Winters of Johnson City, a close friend of the President.

Winters said A. W. Moursund of Johnson City, Johnson's financial trustee, could answer questions about the new motel, but Holleman said Moursund had no interest in the venture. Moursund could not be reached for comment.

Holleman resigned as assistant U.S. Labor Secretary after it was disclosed he accepted a $1,000 gift from Estes Jan. 8, 1962. In March of that year, the Pecos, Tex., multi-millionaire farm empire collapsed amid fraud and swindling charges.

Holleman, now living in San Antonio, said the Johnson City Motor Hotel Corp. plans to begin construction of the new motel within two weeks.

The other stockholders in the corporation are Fort Worth real estate developer Martin Gray and Irving Cerk, part owner of the Corsicana (Tex.) Sun. Holleman said.

Holleman said the new motel will have 75 to 100 units and a restaurant. That would make it by far the biggest facility in the area of the LBJ Ranch.

Holleman said he and the other men hope to have the new motel open before the end of the summer season. He said they are negotiating with several large motel chains for a franchise.

The late President Kennedy appointed Holleman to his $20,000 a year Labor Department post. Holleman was president of the Texas AFL-CIO in 1968.

When he resigned, Holleman said he had accepted the $1,000 check from Estes "to help defray living expenses." He said he had been a close friend of Estes for 10 years.

In his Labor Department post, Holleman had control of the now-defunct bracero program, a Mexican labor source which many Texas cotton farmers like Estes considered vital. Holleman denied any wrongdoings and pointed out his position on the bracero program was in opposition to that of Estes.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Goodbody & Co. says the 906 mark in the Dow-Jones industrial average is an important pivotal point, which, if not penetrated, could prompt a large number of traders to begin operating on the premise that a double top has been formed.

However, the firm says, if buying strength succeeds in penetrating this level, this would be an indication of a sharp price advance in the making.

Thomson & McKinnon believes that although investors have relegated the Viet Nam situation to a somewhat subordinate position, a more conservative investment approach is the most prudent course for the present.

Standard & Poor's believes market risks are increasing and prudence dictates somewhat more emphasis on establishment of reserves.

Georgia Senator Preparing for Final Battle

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott
WASHINGTON (Sp1) — A significant hint of a last-ditch Southern fight against a key provision of President Johnson's voting rights bill is coming from Senator Herman Talmadge, D-Ga.

In a statement prepared for home state circulation, the former Georgia governor calls for an all-out battle against federal voter registrars.

"I can think of nothing more abhorrent to our representative form of government," declares Talmadge, "than the thought of politically-inspired federal agents going into our states and local communities and deciding who may or may not vote for public officials, without regard to qualifications or the responsibility that goes with the right of franchise."

It is Talmadge's contention, "No constitutional doctrine is more clearly stated or legally documented than that providing that the authority for fixing the qualifications of voters rests in the individual states, not to usurp this authority should be resisted by Congress with every resource at its command."

At White House strategy sessions, Democratic congressional leaders decided to open the fight for the President's legislation in the House.

This was agreed on at the urging of Speaker John McCormack, Mass. He counseled this procedure on the ground the Senate will prove the biggest obstacle to speedy enactment. Also that early House approval by a big vote would aid the administration in the Senate.

The 17-degree minimum at Wichita Falls was the lowest ever recorded this late in the winter and the same generally was true at many other reporting stations.

Lubbock recorded a low of 20 degrees. Midland 21, Alpine 16, Abilene 22, San Angelo 23, Dallas 25, Fort Worth and El Paso 26, Texarkana and Waco 27, Austin 28, San Antonio and Del Rio 30.

It was freezing at the LBJ Ranch, where President Johnson arrived at 1:30 a.m. to spend a weekend.

Strong northerly winds added to the discomfort in most sections as high clouds screened out some heat from the sun.

Borger C-C Hears Governor Connally

In one of his rare trips to the Panhandle since election, Gov. John Connally addressed the annual banquet of the Borger Chamber of Commerce last night and planned a busy day in Amarillo and Canyon today.

Approximately 750 persons turned out in Borger's Aluminum Dome Coliseum last night to hear the state's chief executive.

This morning Connally toured the Amarillo Air Force Base and conferred with Gen. Lloyd Hopwood, base commander.

At noon, the governor spoke to some 600 Amarillo civic leaders in a live television broadcast.

At 2:15 p.m. today, Connally toured the hospital facilities in Amarillo and the Amarillo Medical Center.

Other stops today will include a tour of the Panhandle Plains Historical Museum in Canyon at 5:30 p.m. and an address to the Panhandle Plains Historical Society at 7 p.m.

Saturday Connally, Lt. Gov. Preston Smith and Speaker Ben Barnes and a number of legislators tour the Graduate Research Center of the Southwest and Texas Instruments in Dallas.

Connally's office said the governor will attend, at President Johnson's invitation, a conference of state governors at the White House Monday. Mrs. Connally will accompany the governor to Washington.

Piano Team Scores Hit With Concert Audience

(See Picture Page 1) By JERRY WHITTEN Members of the Pampa Community Concert Association last night were treated to an exceptionally tantalizing musical bill of fare. The noted piano team of Ferrante and Teicher made their local debut at the Pampa Junior High School Auditorium before a capacity audience.

The program which this celebrated team presents is almost entirely drawn from the musical scores of Broadway and Hollywood. No literature for the piano from the classical is represented. The artists are, however, eminently qualified pianistically and academically to perform any music they might choose.

Both have studied and taught at the Juillard School of Music in New York City. To this reviewer, the pianists are equals in terms of technical facility and musicianship — to say nothing of their clowning abilities. Their arrangements seem to make identical demands on each of them.

The red-jacketed artists opened the program in a jocular mood, telling stories on each other primarily. The first musical selections were taken from the Broadway musical "Kismet". They included "Stranger in Paradise" and "Baubles, Bangles and Beads".

Dear Abby...

Unhelped Shoppers Give Opposite Views

DEAR ABBY: I just read "No Sale" letter in the Philadelphia Bulletin and I almost died laughing. She complains because all the salespeople in Baltimore "pounce" on her and offer to help her the minute she enters a store. But she doesn't want to be helped. So what is she doing in the store anyway?

If she really wants to be ignored, tell her to come to Philadelphia. She will have to hunt up the item she wants to buy, then go looking for a salesperson to sell it to her. And if she's lucky, she will find one whom she must beg to take her money and wrap up her purchase. IGNORED IN PHILADELPHIA

DEAR ABBY: Where has "No Sale in Baltimore" been shopping? I live in Baltimore, too, and believe me, I have never been bombarded with clerks offering to help me when I shop in town.

That's the reason I now do most of my shopping on the telephone.

PREFERS THE PHONE

DEAR ABBY: Please tell "No Sale" in Baltimore that I would appreciate one of its aggressive sales clerks for a change. Most of the stores here in Huntsville, Alabama need to have their clerks trained by the Baltimore department store people. When you get a clerk to wait on you in Huntsville, she acts like she is doing you a big favor.

If Huntsville and Baltimore traded clerks for just one week, I'll bet "No Sale" would never again complain about those eager-to-serve clerks who pounce on her and ask if they may help her. Please sign me—

WILLING TO TRADE

DEAR ABBY: Please tell "No Sale" of Baltimore to go to Los Angeles if she wants her problem solved permanently. There she could stand around a store all day and not one clerk would approach her and offer to help her. It seems to me that all the major department stores in Los Angeles are short of help and crowded with customers. More than once I have gone into a store to buy something, and became so disgusted because no one seemed interested in waiting on me that I have walked out without buying anything.

NO SALE IN L.A.

DEAR ABBY: I know what "No Sale" means when she says she doesn't like to have salespeople "pounce" on her and ask to help her the minute she walks into a store. I do not care for it, either.

That's the reason I now shop at the discount stores. All the merchandise is out where you can see it. You can take all the time you want looking it over and nobody bothers you. And when you finally make a decision, you just put it in a basket and wheel it over to the counter where the cashier takes your money and wraps it for you. That's for me!

NO PROBLEM IN SAN MATEO

DEAR ABBY: I have been a saleslady in a large department store in Chicago for over 40 years, and I think I know what "No Sale in Baltimore" means. Some salespeople approach customers in a very arrogant manner and the way they say, "May I assist you?" makes the shopper feel that if she doesn't make up her mind to buy something within the next sixty seconds she had better move along. I always let the customer browse around for a while first, and then if she appears to want a salesperson's help, I approach her in a friendly way and let her ask me to assist her.

National Window

By LYLE WILSON The Rev. Martin Luther King has given President Johnson a rough, tough lesson in power politics. One of those man-bites-dog affairs.

The preacher challenged the President to a test of will. Two tests:

King licked the President in one. That was whether LBJ would propose immediately or some time later legislation to guarantee voting rights. King lost in his effort to compel Johnson to send federal guns to Selma, Ala. any guns, U.S. marshals, the FBI or the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines.

Johnson alerted the troops but that was all.

The foregoing is what the marching and brutality and murder in Selma were all about. The Johnson administration began a week ago to mount a crash voting rights program.

King's dissatisfaction with the pace of events was not concealed. Neither was King's displeasure because Johnson had not come out early, loud and angry with words and actions against Alabama authorities. Many Negroes were annoyed.

Richard T. Brown was spokesman for the civil rights trespassers who invaded the White House last week and sat down. Brown said the sit-in was a protest because there had been no federal action in Selma. All of this was embarrassing to LBJ. It was shockingly arrogant but triumphantly effective.

The administration's respect for Negro political muscle never was in doubt, which may explain the President's worried indecision when civil rights invaders parked themselves on the floor of his official home. What to do? After seven hours, the last of the trespassers was escorted out.

King persisted in Selma despite Johnson's pleas, despite a federal court injunction and despite the administration's evident anxiety to do Negro bidding on voting rights. It could be argued that Johnson has accomplished more for American Negroes than has any other president since Lincoln. LBJ must be wondering why he has King on his back.

Some human cells are a hundred times as sensitive to radiation damage as bacteria are.

BREAK UP DEMONSTRATION — Montgomery, Ala., County Mounted Posse members and an Alabama state trooper use canes to break up a civil rights demonstration in Montgomery. More than 20 horsemen galloped into a group of 600 demonstrators when a part of the group crossed a street against orders and urged others to do the same. The man who gave the order said there was a mixup in signals and apologized. Fourteen persons were injured.

Foreign Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM UPI Foreign News Analyst As a new era dawns for relations between West Germany and Israel, Western diplomacy seeks to assess the effect on the man who started it all.

When President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic successfully used his blackjack tactics to force suspension of West German arms shipments to Israel, an end result he could not have wished for would be establishment of formal diplomatic relations between West Germany and Israel, his greatest enemy.

Yet that is close to becoming reality. It also brought about a not wholly successful test of his claim to leadership of the Arab world.

At an Arab League meeting summoned in Cairo by Nasser, 10 of 13 members agreed to withdraw their ambassadors from Bonn in the event West Germany went ahead with plans to establish its formal link with Israel.

Al Ahran, an authoritative Cairo newspaper, predicted that Yemen, Iraq, Algeria, Kuwait and Sudan would go along with Nasser a step further. This would be a formal break with Bonn and recognition of Communist East Germany.

But there were dissenters. Expressing doubts were Tunisia, Morocco and Libya.

Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba especially counseled caution against an act that would hurt the Arab states more than it would West Germany.

Reason For Caution There was good reason for the caution and it appeared that Nasser soon might learn, as has the United States in its efforts to isolate Red China and Cuba, that even friends disappear when the dollar is involved.

Tunisia has close economic ties to West Germany.

A West German training and equipment program is contributing $20 million to Sudan's frontier forces.

A West German veto in the European Common Market seriously could damage the Western aid program for Algeria.

Egypt itself could be seriously damaged. West German trade with Egypt accounts for less than one half of one percent of the West German total but West Germany accounts for nearly 10 per cent of Egyptian foreign trade.

More than any other Western nation, West Germany is involved in Egypt's economic development planning.

Second Thoughts So it appeared that despite Nasser's early boasts and threats, there would be serious second thoughts.

But regardless of the ultimate effect upon Nasser and the Arab states, ripples of the affair were extending beyond the Middle East.

For Communist East Germany's strongman, Walter Ulbricht, whose visit to Cairo touched off the affair, there was a chance for respectability that would come through diplomatic recognition of his puppet regime.

For the West Germans there was growing doubt about the effectiveness of the Hallstein policy which for 15 years has dictated a diplomatic break with any capital except Moscow that recognized the East Germans. If Cairo could blackmail them with a threat of recognition of the Ulbricht regime, so could others.

Slattery, Rawhide To Return in Fall

By RICK DU BROW HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — In a sudden switch, CBS-TV Thursday announced that the critically admired series "Slattery's People," which deals with a state legislator, will return next season.

The series had been considered washed up after finishing its weekly efforts this season, so the CBS-TV decision is good news to viewers because the show was one of the few reasonably attractive offerings to bow in last fall.

A number of changes in CBS-TV programming plans for next season have been effected, since the recent replacement of James T. Aubrey as the network's president and sole entertainment boss.

"Rawhide," for instance, will return too, though it also had

Theory of 'Disposalism' Fails To Attract a Vast Following

By DICK WEST WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite a rather relentless recruiting campaign on my part, the economic theory of "disposalism" thus far has failed to attract a vast following.

This couldn't be because the concept lacks merit. We disposalists believe that the time has arrived when the economic system must be geared to getting rid of things, rather than acquiring them.

We are trying to prepare the world for the day when you can't throw things away because there won't be any place left to throw them.

A calm, reasoned and dispassionate analysis should convince anyone that the basic premise is sound. Wherein, then, lies the fault? After looking back over my previous lectures on this subject I have concluded that the presentation has been too negative to gain wide support.

I have tended to stress the problems that make the adoption of disposalism necessary—getting rid of gift wrappings after Christmas, for example. And in some cases, getting rid of the gifts themselves.

When confronted with a problem, most people will go out to a movie, or something. Therefore, I felt it might make the concept more appealing if I "fatolator," a machine that briefly reviewed some of the accomplishments already achieved, and some of the achievements already accomplished, by pioneer disposalists.

Perhaps the best known work in this field was turned in a few years ago by Jim Moran, a noted publicist, who told me worrying about what was happening to all of the fat that people were losing when they went on diets.

Moran decided that the fat must be floating around up in the air, where it posed a potential menace to aerial navigation. Eventually, he reasoned, there would be accumulations of fat clouds, and the fat would start floating back to earth in the form of fallout.

Consequently, he invented the "fatolator," a machine that extracts excess fat from the air.

A government news agency release said because of "repeated violations of the Khartoum agreement and consistent disregard of obligations" by the Somali government, relations between the two countries have "deteriorated."

At midseason, "Slattery's People," had been switched from Monday to Friday nights, away from the competition of "Ben Casey" and "Alfred Hitchcock." It is reported that the "Slattery" ratings have gone up appreciably in recent weeks.

The Channel Swim: Movie theatre owners, who financed the propaganda and maneuvering that killed pay-TV at the California polls, now have set their sights on the hopeful nationwide pay-TV plans of the Zenith Corp. . . . same principle: Pay-TV is okay in theatres (boxing events, etc.) so long as the money goes into the exhibitors' pockets.

It has often been said that the only logical substitute for a new Cadillac is one that has seen previous service. Whatever you plan to invest in your next car, above all consider Cadillac.

If you are like most people, you hope someday to own a new Cadillac motor car. For Cadillac's continuing greatness in design and engineering has made it one of the world's most desirable and sought-after possessions. But if a new Cadillac is not presently feasible, you should consider the pleasure and satisfaction that would be yours with a late model, previously-owned Cadillac. Your dealer currently offers an unusually wide selection of fine used Cadillacs at a cost in line with that of many new cars of far less stature and quality. These fine Cadillacs are all in superb condition, and many offer features not yet available on other makes. And from a standpoint of investment, remember that a Cadillac traditionally returns more of its cost at resale than any other car at or near its price. So visit your authorized Cadillac dealer, and let him show you a Cadillac—new or used—that will fit your budget. Your visit will be the wisest motoring move you have ever made. Why not make it this week?

Negro Church at Front Of Struggle for Rights

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International
An institution "born in slavery, weaned in segregation and reared in discrimination" is at the forefront of the Negro's struggle for racial justice in America. The institution is the Negro church. It came into being before the Civil War in response to the special conditions under which Negroes lived. In the South it was a clandestine expression of the slaves' distrust of white evangelists who preached docility along with the Gospel. In the North, it was an open protest against white churches which permitted Negro freedmen to worship only in segregated balconies.

Today the United States has six major denominations composed almost entirely of Negroes. They are the National Baptist Convention U.S.A., Inc. with 5,500,000 members; National Baptist Convention of America, 2,700,000; Progressive National Baptist Convention, 500,000; African Methodist Episcopal Church, 1,200,000; African Methodist Episcopal Zion, 800,000; and Christian Methodist Episcopal, 500,000.

Be Involved with Life

By DAVID HEAD
The prophet must not only know his world—but live as part of it—and the city saint will not try to understand the community but rub shoulders with others in it. This means being involved, even immersed. We find a strong reluctance within the church in many parts of the world to accept this. Why is this?

So the fear of compromise may keep a Christian at arm's length from life. He will pay his taxes, though he may not agree with all government expenditure. He will not fully agree. He may not realize how much compromise is necessary to remain in the world of organized society at all. But he must try to keep "doubtful" contacts to the minimum.

Rev. Upshaw to Continue Series

The pastor of Central Baptist Church, T. O. Upshaw, is currently preaching a series of sermons on the Apostles Sunday evening. His message for Sunday evening will be entitled "Andrew—Plays Second Fiddle." Evening services begin with the Training program at 6 p.m. with the worship service at 7 o'clock.

A second reason for keeping separate is the danger of bad influence. This seems to be very much behind the stringent rules that developed in Judaism; those pagans were always leading God's people up blind and blasphemous alleys. So we have to advise children and tender Christians to choose their friends carefully. A hard-grained bad-un at a boys' home (he was sixteen) told me that he had been sent there in the hope that some of the older boys would improve him. "It works the other way," he grinned. "I make them worse." Jesus knows what is in man, so he prays that His disciples may be kept from evil—but not that they may be taken out of the world.

Topic Set for Sunday Sermon

The sermon topic at the Sunday Morning Worship Service at the First Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) will be, "Do you—Tell Others" and will be given by Rev. J. W. Dike. The scripture will be Luke 13:37 and John 1:35-42.

Then there is the matter of reunion. We do not want ourselves or our cause to get a bad name. Birds of a feather, you know. St. Paul puts forward strong views against the marriage of Christian and pagan, and we see the point of that, especially in the kind of society for which he wrote. But apparently he was misunderstood. In I Corinthians he mentions a previous letter in which he said that his readers must have nothing to do with "loose-livers." Now he is at pains to insist that when he wrote that he was not thinking of pagans who are "grabbers and swindlers or idolators." He dilly comments, "To avoid them you would have to get right-out of the world." It is loose-living Christians who are to be avoided—not people who give the Church a bad reputation.

Service Topic Set

The temporal and illusory nature of all material objects will be explained in a Bible Lesson on "Matter" at Christian Science churches this Sunday.

It Was All Blarney In the Bottle

WEST COVINA, Calif. (UPI)—Jeffrey Farnio, 12, La Puente, Calif., complained to his parents of "nausea" Wednesday and told them he was "dead on my feet."

The youngster also said he had picked a weed from the Alvarado school yard as St. Patrick's Day decoration for his shirt pocket and nibbled at the roots.

The alarmed parents took the boy to Queen of the Valley Hospital in nearby West Covina where attendants pumped his stomach and kept him overnight for observation.

Later, feeling somewhat better, Jeffrey confessed all. He said his original story was all blarney — he'd been nipping at the bottle with other boys celebrating the wearing of the green.

Prizes were awarded to the two best ones. First prize was awarded to Sherline Romines and second prize to Becky Thompson. These hats were judged by Mrs. Don Riddle, Mrs. David Green and Mrs. Robert Henderson.

BONN, Germany (UPI) — The West German government announced Thursday it will consider credit terms of up to eight years in trade deals with Communist countries. The Germans had been one of the staunchest supporters of refusing long-term credits to the Communists in the past.

The Weekly Message Of Inspiration

REV. L. B. DAVIS
PROGRESSIVE BAPTIST CHURCH

CHRIST'S PEACE FOR BELIEVERS

Peace I leave with you, my peace I give you. Scripture. John 14:27.

This is one of the sweetest promises Christ gives to his followers. He promises a special kind of peace. The emphasis is upon the word "my". He gives what is his own, what he might have kept, what has cost him a life of suffering and a cruel death on the cross to bestow. The world give for selfish motives, expecting to receive in return; gives to friends and withhold from enemies; gives what costs nothing; and offers to give what it does not have. Christ gives to believers his own deep, abiding, and blessed peace. This would include the following:

I. Christ Gives Peace Of Conscience.

"My peace I give." Sin is war and strife. Sin puts discord in life. Sin hurt the innocent, just like it hurt the guilty one. Sin hurts God. Christ had the peace of sinlessness. He was always at one with the Father and pleased him at all times. Christ offers the peace of pardon, the peace of justification to all who will accept him. When one accepts the righteousness of Christ, he will receive the peace of sinlessness. Christ can free the soul from sin and give it grace to enjoy the deep and abiding peace of one who is just before God. We can have the peace of Christ in our lives.

II. Christ Gives Peace Of Character.

Christ had the peace of character. His character was sound, stable, and righteous, and there was no discord or struggle. His character had unity, harmony of purpose, firmness of intent, uniformity in action, and generosity to all. Many people approve the right but do the wrong. They are dual characters, torn by conflict within. Such character cannot be at peace. Christ offers his serene and abiding peace to all who will accept it. What a gracious gift!

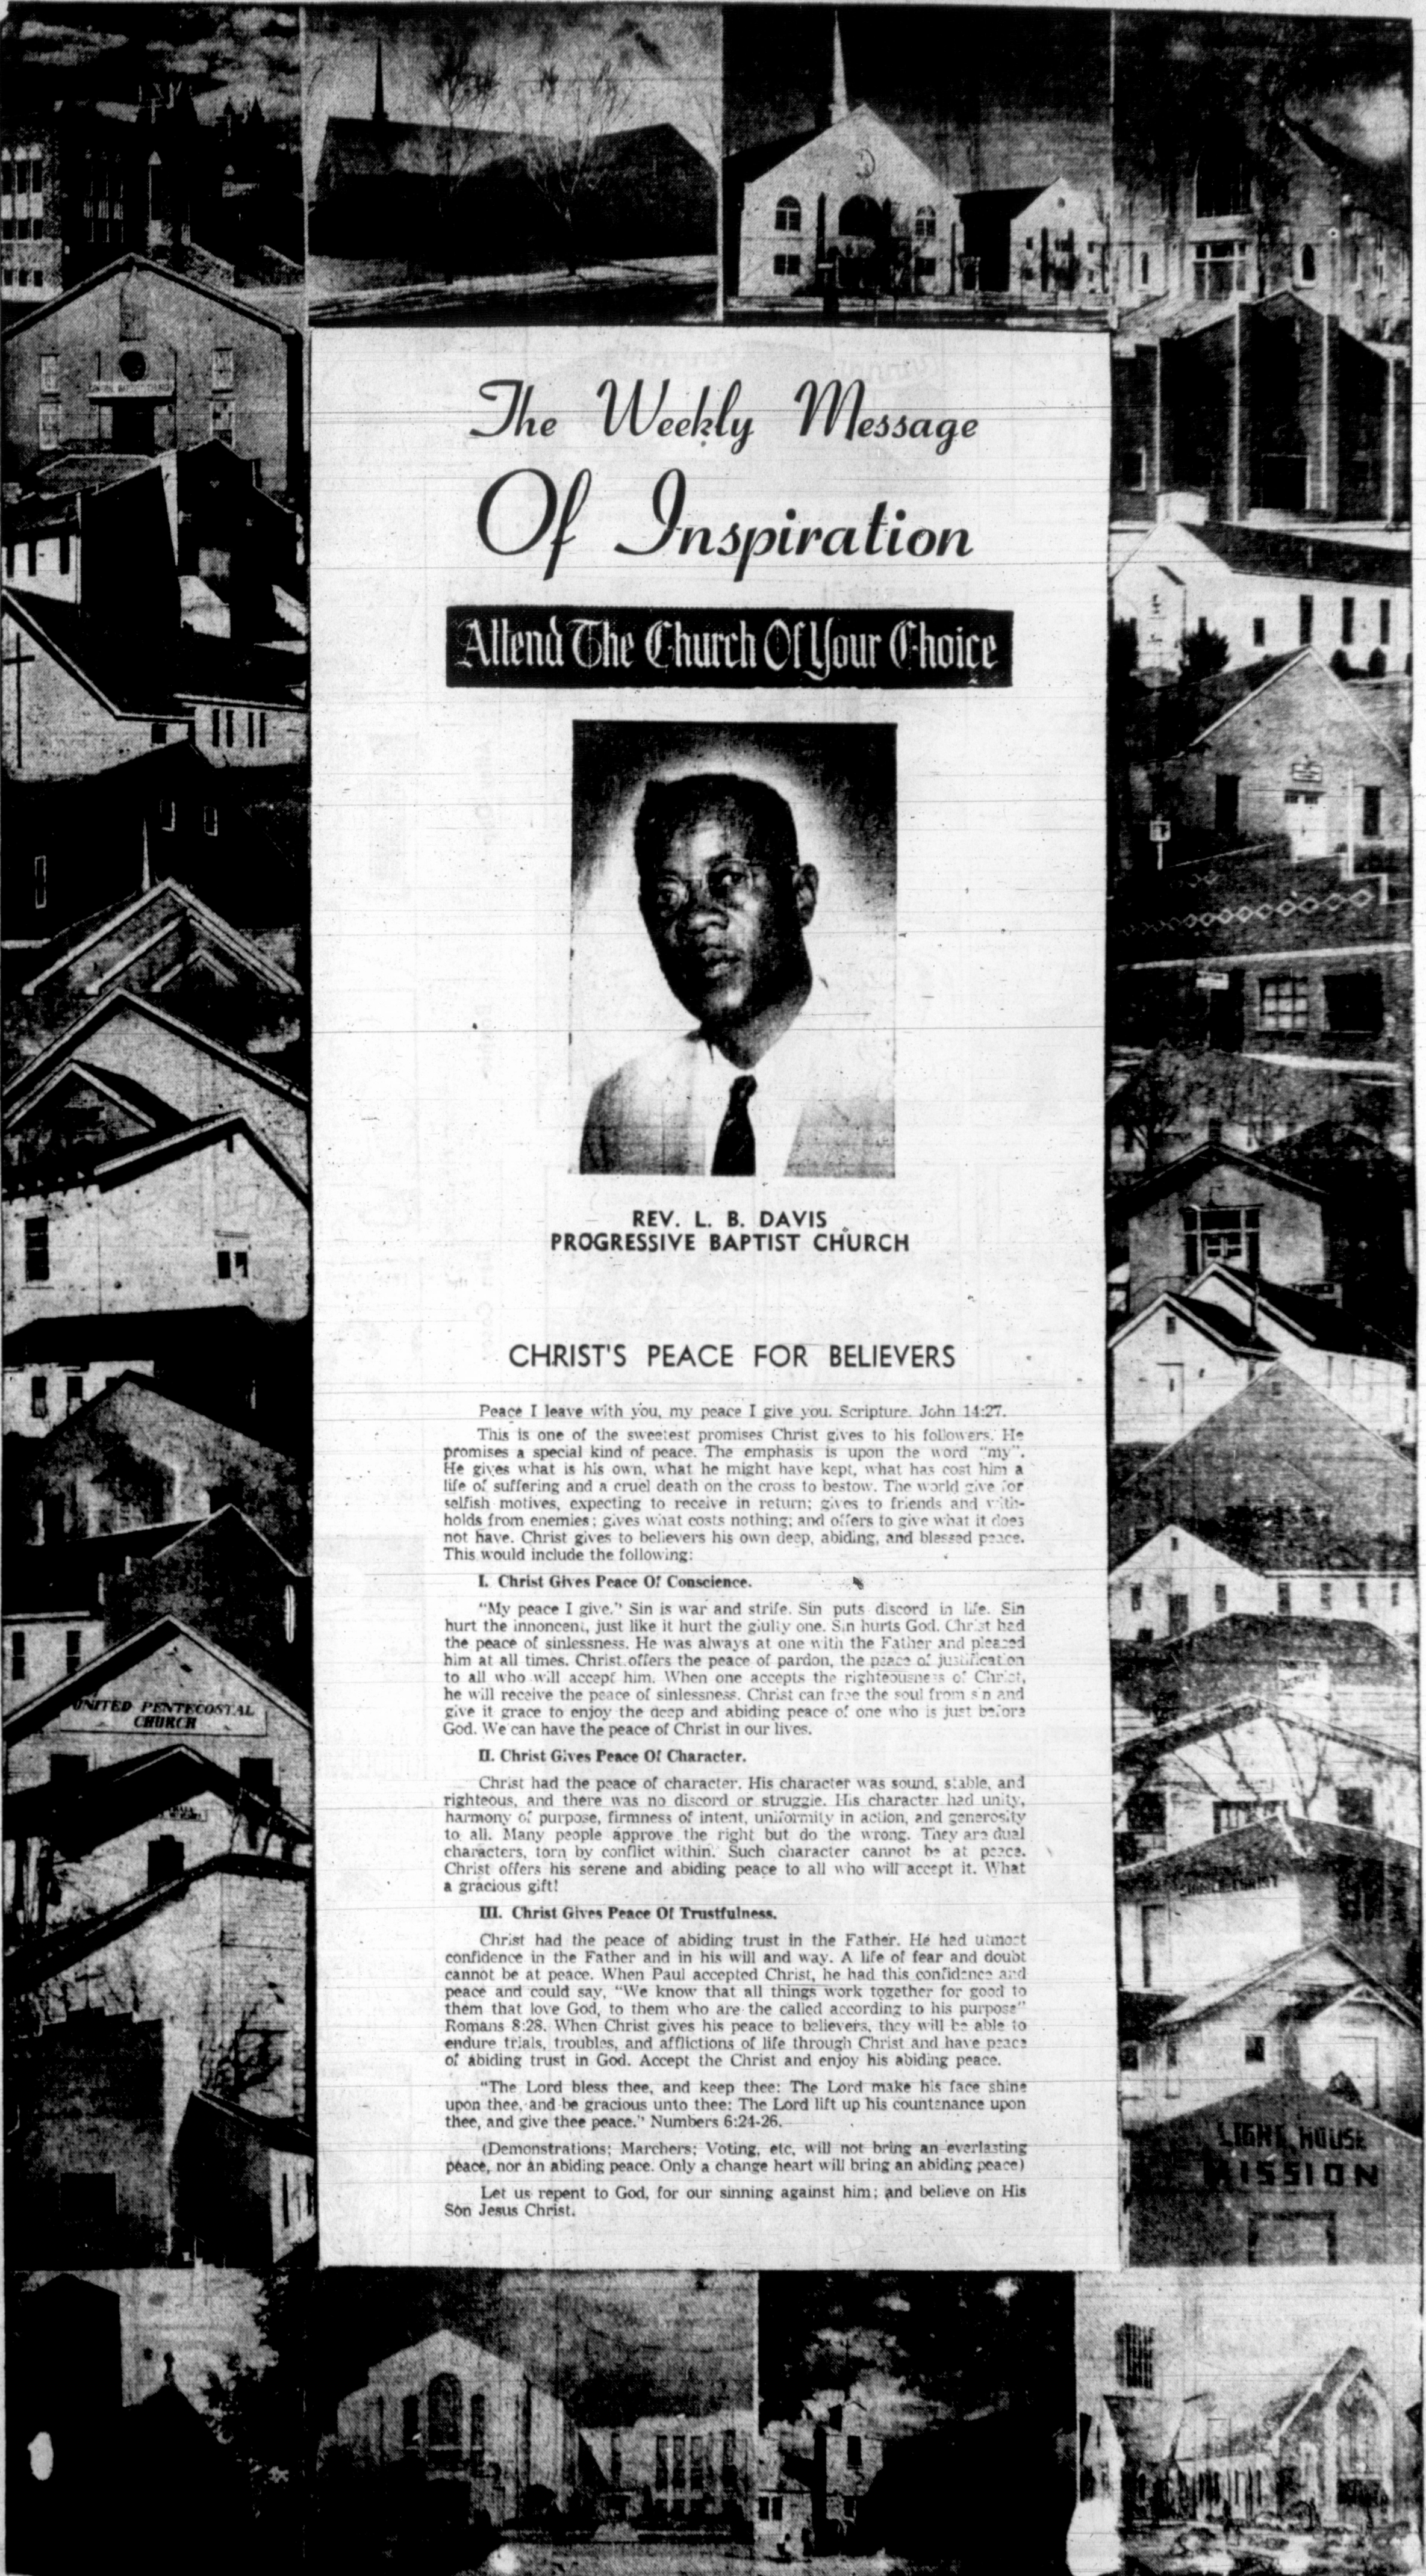

III. Christ Gives Peace Of Trustfulness.

Christ had the peace of abiding trust in the Father. He had utmost confidence in the Father and in his will and way. A life of fear and doubt cannot be at peace. When Paul accepted Christ, he had this confidence and peace and could say, "We know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose" Romans 8:28. When Christ gives his peace to believers, they will be able to endure trials, troubles, and afflictions of life through Christ and have peace of abiding trust in God. Accept the Christ and enjoy his abiding peace.

"The Lord bless thee, and keep thee: The Lord make his face shine upon thee, and be gracious unto thee: The Lord lift up his countenance upon thee, and give thee peace." Numbers 6:24-26.

(Demonstrations; Marchers; Voting, etc. will not bring an everlasting peace, nor an abiding peace. Only a change heart will bring an abiding peace)

Let us repent to God, for our sinning against him; and believe on His Son Jesus Christ.

West Texas Relays On Today

ODESSA (UPI)—The 21st annual West Texas Relays open today with Abilene Christian, East Texas State and Amarillo Tascosa high favored to walk off with the honors.

Preliminaries and some high school finals are scheduled today, but the bulk of the action will be unreel Saturday.

Those who keep a watch on this sort of thing have made ACC the slim favorite over Baylor and Houston in the University division to dethrone defending champion Texas.

The Longhorns will be on the scene along with North Texas, Southern Methodist, Texas Christian and Texas Tech.

East Texas State heads the list of college division participants which includes Texas Western, Arlington State, Hardin-Simmons, McMurry, Sul Ross, Howard Payne and Southwest Texas.

Meet officials claim at least 10 records are in jeopardy. New records in the university division are expected in the discus, mile run, mile relay and pole vault.

The discus record is almost sure to fall at the hands of ACC's Roger Orrell. Russ Polhemus of East Texas State could wipe out the college discus and shot put marks as well.

The three-year-old distance medley relay mark is in jeopardy at the hands of Howard Payne and Texas Western might cross out the mile relay record.

Breezy and chilly weather is expected today, but the weatherman promised somewhat milder weather for the big show tomorrow.

Major League Roundup

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer
Dick Stuart's new Philadelphia Philly teammates are beginning to think the big slugger is almost as good as he says he is. It's a goodnatured relationship Stuart has with his teammates—he talks with a lot of bravado and they listen with polite laughs.

But underneath the easy familiarity of spring training is the mutual understanding that the Phillies are expecting the 6-foot, 3-inch, 220-pound slugger to hit between 30 and 40 homers and drive in 100 runs this year. Stuart was acquired from the Boston Red Sox to rectify the lack of righthanded power hitting that was a principal cause of the Phillies' 1964 National League pennant defeat. And so there was good news, indeed, at the Phillies' Clearwater, Fla., camp Thursday when Stuart made some noise with his bat as well as his larynx, in a 6-5 victory over the Detroit Tigers. Stuart hit a three-run homer off Glen Hobbie in the sixth inning to help the Phillies tie the score and then hit his second homer of the game in the 12th to give Philadelphia its third straight victory.

Stuart's first homer was a king-sized shot that sailed over the 35-foot-high center field wall. It was only the seventh ball hit over that barrier in 11 years. Three key pitchers—Bob Veale, Bob Friend and Elroy Face—starred for the Pittsburgh Pirates, who downed the Kansas City Athletics 7-1 for their fifth win in six exhibition games. Jerry Lynch and Orlando McFarlane drove in two runs each for the Pirates.

The Red Sox beat the Cleveland Indians 7-3, the Chicago White Sox topped the New York Yankees 6-5, the Los Angeles Angels nipped the San Francisco Giants 8-7, the Los Angeles Dodgers routed the Washington Senators 13-6, the Houston Astros defeated the New York Mets 7-4, the Cincinnati Reds beat the St. Louis Cardinals 4-1, and the Minnesota Twins scored a 9-8 10-inning victory over the Milwaukee Braves in other games.

McCool cooled 'em off as he hit six quick points to start a second half, delayed while Cousin George counted his money, with Lewis continuing the fast break tactics in his turn while Roper Roper hit from inside to give the Newsboys a 55-45 margin going into the final frame.

"Cousin George" finally got his contacts on and occasionally blew the whistle as the game degenerated into a slugfest, with Pampa's big boys, Gary Sikes, Roper and Danny Heil, making the buckets and the free throws as Lewis stole everything from the Cats but their socks, backed by Charlie Snuggs to widen the margin despite the 12-point shooting of Brown, who couldn't miss the baskets or the charities.

Five Newsboys scored in double figures; Gary Sikes and Heil with 15 each, Lewis with 14, Roper 13 and McCool 10. Brown hit 34 tallies, Griffin canned 20.

"Birdog's Bruisers" showed surprising agility and ability to hit the bucket in the first half as they took a 22-9 halftime lead. Cooling off rapidly in the second half, as age caught up with them, they still pulled it out as the Mistakes couldn't find the bucket either.

Otto Mangold, using everything but a butcher knife to clear his way, scored eight points on impossible shots to lead the Bruisers.

Birdog Trice, who also found knees, elbows and head handy offensive tools, canned six, as did Don Myers, while Eural Ramsey hit four. Chico Ramirez led the Mistakes with 11 markers, Ronnie Oler had seven.

Both sides slowed down in the second quarter, with Brown matching the entire Newsboy crew, hitting a hook shot just before the buzzer to keep the margin at 32-31.

Don McCool and Lanny Lewis led fast breaks in the second half to overcome the tremendous rebounding of Gary Griffin and the fantastic shooting of Gene "Traitor" Brown, who scored exactly half of the "Cool Cats" points. The game was close throughout the first half, with the biggest lead an opening 4-0 bulge by the Cats, but the Newsboys literally ran their elders to death in the second half of the tilt.

Although the disappointingly small crowd was split in their loyalties, everyone took McCool, the chunky ex-Lefors guard, to their hearts under the new nickname of "Hatchet" as he hit the opening points in the second half to put the Newsboys ahead for good.

Griffin showed his successors how as he literally ate the boards in the first quarter, hitting from all over the court, to offset steady shooting by Gary Sikes, Ronnie Chase and Lanny Lewis, with Brown hitting a long one at the buzzer to give the Cats a 19-18 quarter lead.

3 Texans In Finals Of Gloves

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—Three Texas fighters battle for Golden Gloves glory tonight in the final evening of action at the 38th annual tournament of champions. Eddie Gonzales of Houston, Gene Guess of San Antonio and Lynn Farr of Fort Worth are left from a squad of eight Texans which started in the tournament.

They will all fight in the semifinals early in the evening and the winners will reappear later tonight in the finals. Fort Worth, the city which the Texans represent, has 15 points in the race for the team title. Los Angeles leads with 17 points and has five fighters left going into tonight's action.

Gonzales and Farr meet Los Angeles fighters in the semifinals and two Texas wins in those matches could make the team title a down to the wire chase.

The fighters took the day off Thursday, after two hectic days of preliminary action. Gonzales runs into Al Robins of Los Angeles in the 118-pound class semifinals. The 6-foot-6 Farr squares off against knockout artist Jerry Quarry, also of Los Angeles, in the heavyweight class.

Quarry has three knockouts to his credit. At 185 pounds, he will be giving away a 40-pound weight advantage to Farr, the biggest man in the tournament. Guess, fighting in the 160-pound division, will meet Dave Matthews of Buffalo, N.Y.

YCC Basketball

Red-hot Cock O' Walk cooled off First National Bank, 63-41 last night as Gene Brown scored 24 points, following which he scored 34 in another game at Harvester Fieldhouse. Lloyd Stevens had 10 for the Bankers.

Hi-Land Pharmacy took a 50-43 win over Mobeetie, as Gene Rogers hit 15 for the winners. LaWayne Hogan 23 in defeat. W-B Pump crushed the Jaycees, 71-39 behind 22 points by Bill Williams. Nathan Lancaster had 12 for the JC.

Stinnett opened up in the second half for a 51-36 win over Celanex as Leon Willingham scored 16 points.

Harvesterettes Lose

PHILLIPS — Phillips defeated the Pampa Harvesterettes in girls volleyball yesterday, 15-8, 15-6. The two teams play again at Pampa next Thursday.

HC Jayhawks Win Contest

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (UPI)—Two Texas teams advanced Thursday night in the consolation round of the National Junior College basketball tournament. Kilgore defeated Beebe, Ark., 112-59 and Howard County Junior College of Big Spring downed Willmar, Minn., 73-64. Burlington, Iowa and Price, Utah clash tonight in the featured semifinals. Vincennes, Ind., and Joliet, Ill., play in the other semifinal game. Winners meet for the title Saturday night.

Westbrook Villanova Vs. St. John's Facing Challenge Is NIT Finals Offering

"Mark Westbrook should have a much stronger test this week," predicted Pampa track coach Norm Phillips on the eve of the Dallas Kimbell Relays Saturday. "Although Westbrook has defeated Abilene Cooper's top miler, Bob Caffey at Snyder, last week in the mud Caffey ran a 4:26.7; also Dallas Jefferson will be in the meet, and their top miler, Sid Sheffer, whom Mark has never run against, ran a 4:23.7 two weeks ago at Fort Worth. I don't know what other milers and what other top schools will be there, but with the times these three have run so far, it should be an exciting race."

Phillips was not positive exactly how many boys he would take to the meet, between 12 and 14, but probable entries, in addition to Westbrook, will be hurdlers Randy Johnston and Bones Bullard, who share the fastest clocking in the high hurdles among Panhandle area runners; "Little Butch" Crossland who finished fourth in the broadjump at Graham last week with a 20'10 1/2" leap; S. W. E. Johnson in the discus; Ringo Spears in the shotput; sprinter Gary McCarrell, who has racked up points in both the 100 and 220-yard dashes this season; half-miler Jimmy Jamison (who will run in the sprint medley relay since there is no 880 in the meet); Bull Heiskell in the sprint medley relay and mile relay; Lonnie Richards in the mile relay; David Martindale and possibly, San Williams in the highjump and Doc Cor-nutt and Big Matt Matney in the weights. Villanova crushed New York University 91-69 and St. John's overcame scrappy Army 67-60 in Thursday night's semifinals. "With the whole city of New York cheering for Joe and everything else considered, I have no doubt this will be the toughest game of the season," Kraft concluded. Ken McIntyre, the leading scorer in the tournament with 83 points in three games, tallied 21 Thursday night against Army and guard Jerry Houston added 18 for the Redmen, but Lapchick fingered substitute forward Ken Wirell as the reason St. John's emerged victorious. Wirell came off the bench with the Redmen trailing 30-14 midway in the first half and grabbed eight rebounds, made three assists, scored four points and blocked at least four shots. Burly Mike Silliman (6-foot-2, 215) were outmuscled St. John's under the boards for Army until Wirell entered the game. Silliman finished with 17 points to lead the Cadets while Wirell added 15. Villanova, top-seeded and un-beat in 11 games on the road this season, had little trouble disposing of NYU. The 11th-ranked Wildcats put together scoring streaks of seven and 11 points in the first half and reeled off nine consecutive points early in the final half to put the contest out of reach.

BASEBALL CANCELLED
HEREFORD — The scheduled baseball game today between Pampa and Hereford was called off because of snow. PHS athletic director Weldon Trice said that Hereford reported three to four inches of snow this morning, with more expected. The game has not been rescheduled due to weather and other scheduled games conflicting.

Trice added that it appeared doubtful that the Harvesters would be able to play a scheduled doubleheader at Dumas tomorrow, but that officials would wait until tomorrow morning to make a decision.

Dickinson, Hunt Tie for Golf Lead

ATLANTIC BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—Gardner Dickinson and Bernard Hunt headed the field today going into the second round of the Greater Jacksonville Open golf tournament. Dickinson, of Jupiter, Fla. and Hunt, a husky blond from Bushey Heath, England, shot 66 Thursday on the windy and rainswept Selva Marina course to tie for the opening round lead.

Four golfers, Bob Charles, Jim Ferree, Dick Ryan, and Bruce Devlin, fired 66s and Charles Sifford, Billy Farrell and Mason Rudolph were one stroke behind them.

But some of the biggest names in the tournament had trouble with the elements and the long, 6,906-yard, par 72 course in the initial going. Jack Nicklaus was four strokes back with an even-par 72, deadlocked with Doug Sanders, winner of the Doral and Pensacola tourneys. Arnold Palmer was two over par at 74.

Ken Venturi, the U.S. Open champion, had a 42 on the first nine holes and withdrew, complaining of continued trouble with his hand.

Newsboys Down Cats, Bruisers Win Prelim

The Pampa Newsboys broke open a tight ball game in the second half to take an 83-68 win over the Pampa basketball coaches last night, while the Pampa football coaches held off a second-half rally by the Pampa Mistakes for a 28-24 victory in the preliminary game at Harvester Fieldhouse.

Both games were more akin to football than basketball however, as "referee" George Smith, too busy counting the proceeds to blow the whistle, let the clashes get completely out of hand, with blood flowing freely in the first game and the second one enlivened by several fistfights and sincere, if misguided attempts to break opponents' heads by players on both squads.

Don McCool and Lanny Lewis led fast breaks in the second half to overcome the tremendous rebounding of Gary Griffin and the fantastic shooting of Gene "Traitor" Brown, who scored exactly half of the "Cool Cats" points. The game was close throughout the first half, with the biggest lead an opening 4-0 bulge by the Cats, but the Newsboys literally ran their elders to death in the second half of the tilt.

Although the disappointingly small crowd was split in their loyalties, everyone took McCool, the chunky ex-Lefors guard, to their hearts under the new nickname of "Hatchet" as he hit the opening points in the second half to put the Newsboys ahead for good.

Griffin showed his successors how as he literally ate the boards in the first quarter, hitting from all over the court, to offset steady shooting by Gary Sikes, Ronnie Chase and Lanny Lewis, with Brown hitting a long one at the buzzer to give the Cats a 19-18 quarter lead.

The Pampa Daily News

A Watchful Newspaper
EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself no more, no less. It is thus consistent with the Human Relations Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Authority and Freedom

Authority is a necessity. Correct and proper authority arises from the ownership of property. The authority over any property is the owner.

The socialist challenge to this idea is embodied in the thought that authority exists outside of the property relationship and that it can be brought to play to limit or to eliminate the authority the owner extends over what is his.

This is the constant position of any and all governments and their agencies. Having no rightful property of their own, they exercise an assumed or usurped authority over the property of others.

Since it is characteristic of all property that it must have a boundary, true authority is limited to the boundaries properly always has. A usurpation of authority, as with government, invariably trespasses the boundaries of property belonging to another and imposes an assumed or forceful authority where it cannot rightfully exist.

This concept of authority has a specific application in understanding freedom. There are many definitions for freedom or liberty. Some definitions actually assume the elimination of all authority. Such an assumption would lead to the elimination of all property ownership.

Some people contend that freedom is equivalent to a right and must exist for all men. We share this view. But others contend that freedom means that they can do as they please with the property of others, riding roughshod over their boundaries and imposing external authority when and where they please. When such as these think of freedom, they think of it as an unwarranted privilege to steal, to control others and to impose authority where it should not be imposed. Indeed, so firmly do they support these privileges that when anyone proposes that freedom is a right and should be equally enjoyed by all, they cry out that their freedom is being restrained.

The fact is that freedom is never a license to impose on another. Freedom exists only in a situation where the individual's authority over himself and his own property is unquestioned. When attempts are made to extend authority across boundaries to deny any individual's right to do as he pleases with himself and his own property, then a violation of freedom has occurred.

Socialists of whatever stripe deny the authority of the individual over himself and what he owns. Rather, they fancy that authority arises from some kind of social "whole" wherein the "will of the mass" can be transformed into a license to trespass upon any individual's property. To fulfill his objectives, the socialist must rely upon one of two things. He must rely upon the voluntary surrender of any individual to this concept. Or he must rely upon the force of the state to compel compliance.

Various socialist groups that have existed at various times and which still exist, depend upon voluntary subservience. These socialist groups are most frequently of a religious character and obedience is obtained, not by force, but by the practice of equating obedience to social authority with obedience to God. The devotion of a member of such a group presumes that by meek surrender of his personal decisions to the "will of the group" as stated by the social leader, he is fulfilling a divine injunction.

Non-religious groups which practice socialism always employ the power of the state or find it necessary to abandon their programs. Although many socialists are well-intentioned and honestly fancy that individual authority over property is an evil in itself, the fact is that human nature and the laws of economics are squarely arrayed against them.

A free world is not a socialist world. In a free world it is believed that each man owns and controls himself. He exercises complete authority over himself and what he owns. He is fully and individually responsible for all that he does. His well-being depends upon himself and the ability he displays in providing for himself and those for whom he assumes responsibility.

In a socialist world, the authority of the individual over himself is vetoed by the power of the state. Only the state has authority. No individual has any. And the force of the state is invoked to compel compliance in each and every instance. It is assumed that the state owns the property, and it follows that the state owns and controls that which the people have and use.

Freedom exists only in a situation where the individual's authority over himself and his own property is unquestioned. When attempts are made to extend authority across boundaries to deny any individual's right to do as he pleases with himself and his own property, then a violation of freedom has occurred.

Korea Truce No Basis for Peace in Viet

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The raging public debate over South Viet Nam is being muddled now and then by decidedly inaccurate references to the 1953 settlement of the Korean war.

To begin with, most of the public figures here and abroad who talk of negotiating the Vietnamese situation make it plain they want a settlement that is both military and political — affording South Viet Nam some sort of guarantees of neutrality.

The arrangement in Korea, now nearly 12 years old, is strictly a military truce. A Geneva conference aimed at a political settlement, with a unified Korea the goal, broke up in total failure.

Secondly, the battlefield circumstances in Korea at the time truce talks were initiated do not bear even the crudest resemblance to the present guerrilla combat in South Viet Nam.

After a bloody year of sharply shifting military fortunes, United Nations forces led by nine American and 14 South Korean divisions had thrust crack Chinese ground troops back across the 38th parallel and were punching into the North Korean bastion called the Iron Triangle. We even temporarily captured the North Korean capital, Pyongyang, for the second time.

At this stage, U.N. armies held a waggling line that dipped below the borderline (the 38th) on the western side of the peninsula but angled well above that line on its north-easterly course to the other coast. Our position, therefore, represented a modest gain in real estate after 12 months of fighting.

Though activity was relatively light in that June of 1951, we held whatever small initiative there was. And it was we, not the Communists, who had made the last major forward drives. The Reds' field position was shaky.

It was the Communists, too, who made the first overt official moves toward a truce. Russia's U.N. representative on the Security Council, Jacob Malik, put forth peace feelers.

Admittedly, we had a few weeks earlier said publicly that we might approve a cease-fire somewhere in the area of the 38th parallel.

We could say that with good face because by then we had, in incontrovertible fact, redeemed the only public pledge we ever made regarding Korea: to re-establish peace and order in the territory of the free South Korean government.

A truce line that would approximate the battle line would, as we have seen, slightly favor South Korea.

Neither the United States nor the United Nations ever undertook to unify the whole of Korea by force. Gen. Douglas MacArthur's northward sweep toward the Chinese border in late 1950 was under presidential order only to seek out and destroy the North Korean armed forces.

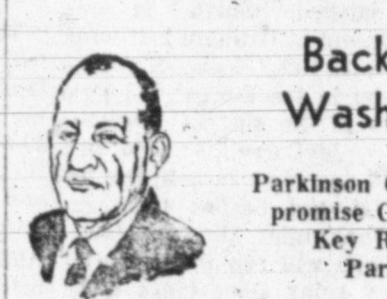

Outs, then, was a strong bargaining position when we sat down with the Communists in 1951, first at Kaesong and then at Panmunjom. In the field, we had achieved what we came to Korea to do.

In the protracted negotiations which followed, agreement was reached on all truly major armistice terms except those affecting prisoner exchange. We would not turn over prisoners who did not wish to be repatriated.

Not surprisingly, the Reds used these long months to dig in deeply on the battle line, and bring up heavy reinforcements which gave them an edge. Battalion scale fighting for hills and ridges went on at much cost.

Talks were broken off. Presumably the Reds thought we finally would yield on the prisoner issue rather than resume full-scale fighting under far less advantageous conditions than prevailed for us in mid-1951.

But in the spring of 1953, with Stalin dead in Moscow and the new President Eisenhower passing clear threat he might use atomic weapons in an enlarged war, the armistice conversations suddenly were resumed and the roadblock-prisoner issue settled largely to our satisfaction.

Parkinson Gains As Compromise Candidate For Key Republican Party Post

Wit and Whimsy
Gal — Do you know that brother of yours is liable to get himself into trouble?
Hal — What has he been doing?
Gal — He's going around telling lies about me.

California State Republican Chairman Gaylor Parkinson is forging to the fore as "compromise" choice for next head of the Republican State Chairman Advisory Committee.

Another proposed "compromise" is Minnesota State Chairman Robert Forsythe.

Of the two, Parkinson is drawing the most significant support. GOP insiders are crediting Ohio Chairman Ray Bliss as privately favoring Parkinson — while outwardly keeping hands off the potentially explosive backstage scramble for this key party post.

Bliss is relinquishing the Advisory Committee chairmanship when he becomes National Chairman next month.

Two prominent state chairmen actively campaigning to succeed him are Pennsylvania's Craig Truax and Mississippi's Wirt Yerger. Both are being vigorously backed by regional colleagues — Yerger by the Southern Republican State Chairman's Conference; Truax by the Northeastern Republican State Chairman's Conference.

Crux of their candidacies is the still-rumbling feud between Goldwater and opposition factions.

Yerger forces are zealously pushing him on the ground that with Bliss—a Midwesterner, taking over the national chairmanship, the South, with five of the six states that went Republican in the 1964 presidential contest, is entitled to the top place of the State Chairman Advisory Committee.

Truax's partisans argue such recognition would continue the "same narrow regional concepts" that led to last year's disastrous election results.

"STOP 'EM' STRATEGY — To intensify the drive against Yerger, the 12 members of the Northeastern State Chairman's Conference, at an unannounced meeting in Boston last week, agreed on three courses of action:

—To personally canvass all western and midwestern state chairmen in behalf of Truax, particularly assuring them the Pennsylvania is not committed to the presidential aspirations of Governor William Scranton. This charge is proving a major obstacle to Truax, and a determined effort is to be made to offset it.

Gal — As long as he lies, what do you care? But if he begins to tell the truth break his jaw.
Hal — About seven or eight weeks.
Doctor (surprised) — Why didn't you come to me earlier?
Boy — To tell you the truth, I didn't need the money before.

It seems the gate broke down between Heaven and Hell. St. Peter appeared at the broken part of the gate and called out to the devil.
St. Peter — Hey Satan. It's your chance to fix it this time.
The Devil — Sorry. My men are too busy to worry about fixing a mere gate.
St. Peter — Well, then, I'll have to sue you for breaking our agreement.
The Devil — Oh, yeah, where are you going to get a lawyer?

Business Man — One who talks golf all morning at the office and business all afternoon on the links.

tion of this unusual complaint, but that's what she says.
—The new Ambassador's wife thinks it would be just fine if the White House made available a number of Chippendale chairs and other antiques in storage. Quality Chippendale chairs sell at around $2,400.
—Also on her long list of demands is more and better bedroom furniture for her seven-member family. Mrs. Duke deems this necessary on the ground present furnishings are "not appropriate."
Finally, Mrs. Duke feels strongly that the U.S. Information Agency, which occupies a small portion of the embassy, should find other quarters. She thinks the USIA is crowding the embassy; in fact, she hints strongly it might be a good idea to enlarge the embassy.

Indicated cost to taxpayers of all these improvements and changes — $90,000 to $100,000. A State Department official, who understandably wants to remain anonymous, shook his head disapprovingly and observed, "The trouble with 'Robin' is that she wants to live like a princess. But whether she gets away with that remains to be seen."
So far, she has made a good start.

From another source it was learned that a decorator is now in Cairo, Egypt, of all places, "assisting Mrs. Duke in redoing the Madrid embassy."

The new Madrid ambassador was formerly White House protocol chief under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson. Duke is a wealthy socialite, and was named ambassador by Johnson last month.

—Special workmen to be brought from London to lay this ornate carpeting. This is necessary because the embassy has terrazzo flooring.

—Special wallpaper to be obtained in France. The fact that this cost would add its bit to this country's difficult balance-of-payments deficit problem apparently is of no moment to Mrs. Duke.

—She also doesn't like the light fixtures on the ground they are "not representative" and "look like something from a hardware store."

Who Finds Work for Idle Hands?

NEW YORK (NEA) — It has occurred to us many times in the past that there is a great deal to be said for having a piano. But we have never said it out loud as the feeling will usually pass if you lie down for a while or take a cool hip bath. But ever since filing our income tax return, we have been getting up each morning with an overwhelming yen to play the piano. And even bathing twice a day has done nothing to relieve the condition.

Not that we know how to play the piano. Or any other instrument for that matter (although we did take the Remedial Guitar course at the New School For Social Research some years ago).

But you can go just so far with the guitar, we discovered, whereas a person who plays the piano is expected everywhere. Besides, we did not see how it could be too expensive as we expected a tax refund in the amount of $19.

So, after two or three days of discussion with the wife on this matter, we followed up an ad in the newspaper one morning last week. And thus we acquired a piano for $90 which was easily worth $300, according to the fellow who sold it, having been played only by his maiden aunt — a school teacher — and then just on Sunday evenings for a few hymns and anthems.

All in all, we felt it was a very worth-while investment. And we said so at lunch that day to a friend of ours whose name is Legion.

"A piano?" he said. "Without you don't even know how to play it?" That is the most misconception thing I ever heard."
"Misconstrued?" we said, trying another spelling to see whether that affected the meaning.
"Certainly," he said. "Do you know how long it takes to learn that the white notes? And then, what can you get for it? Be reasonable. How many people do you figure would actually come to hear you play. Even if you only charged 60 cents a ticket."
"Charge 60 cents?" we replied a bit stupidly.

"Nonsense," he said. "You would have to charge at least 65 cents just to pay off the interest, never mind to amortize the principal."
"What interest?" we said.
"What principal?"

"Oh no," he sighed. "Don't tell me you paid your own money for the thing. And it's not even deductible."
"Of course it's not deductible," we said. "It's just a piano to play music on."
"Well," he said, "don't blame me if you lose the whole investment."

"How much can you lose on a piano?" we asked.
"It doesn't matter," he said. "You're not supposed to even ask the question. Its un-American. You're only supposed to ask how much you can deduct."
"Fiddlesticks," we said. "Some things simply cannot be deducted."
"Yeah?" he said. "Name one."
"Music," we snapped.
"Listen," he said, "take my advice. If you're so crazy for music, buy RCA at 33." And with that he got up from the lunch table, leaving a tip and writing down the amount in a small notebook.

Well, the piano arrived the other night. And so did the piano tuner, who said it was a nice little piano and would give us $175 for it on the spot. Taking into account his fee, the cost of the piano and delivering it and our tax refund, that would have given us a $34 profit.

"All right," we said. "It's yours."
"What?" the wife said while the man wrote out a check.
"Certainly," we said. "Don't sell America short."

Financial Gossip

By JESSE BOGUE,
UPI Financial Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Among the most consistent shoppers in today's industrial markets are railroad men constantly seeking new and more efficient equipment to let them increase their share of the nation's freight haulage.

Railroads last year upped their ton miles of freight by 6.7 percent over the preceding year, bringing smiles to the faces of equipment builders and of steel makers who furnished the bulk of the material which went into the growing fleet of special-purpose and high-efficiency freight cars.

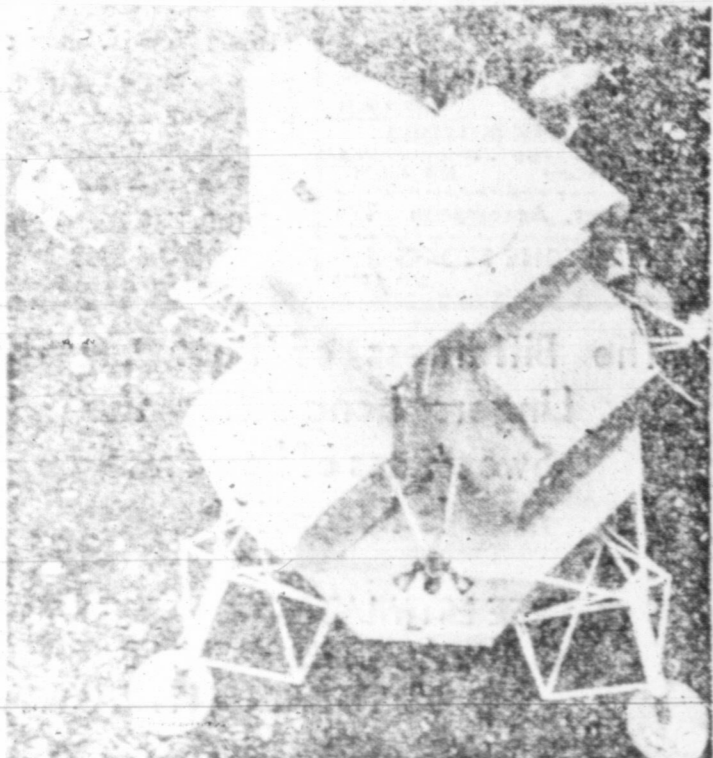

The broadening of the types of cars available to railroads, the "special" varieties has been a feature of the past few years of car buying. Some railroads reported a shortage of heavy-duty and other special cars last year, a condition that not enough attention has been paid to keeping a sufficient supply on hand.

of the railroad workhorse, the box car.

A good share of the rails' ability to keep pace with the growth of the nation's economy has stemmed from their development of special-purpose or tailored-to-the-commodity cars. Those made to haul new automobiles, highway trailers, logs, pulpwood, chemicals, and varieties of steel. The New York Central has 58 varieties of freight cars, including 24 kinds of box cars for shipment of auto and truck parts to assembly plants. The Norfolk & Western offers 36 varieties of cars.

John W. Scallan, president of Pullman-Standard, a major car builder, said that 90 per cent of the new varieties of cars did not exist as recently as five years ago. Steelmakers note with satisfaction that Walter A. Rens, president of the American Railway Car Institute, said more than 99 per cent of all freight cars are made of steel.

IT'S THE LAW in Texas

Circumstantial Evidence
Like spinach, puns, and women drivers, circumstantial evidence has a worse reputation than it deserves. Many people, reading that a defendant was "convicted on circumstantial evidence," jump to the conclusion that the case against him was flimsy.

Yet, all of us rely constantly on circumstantial evidence in our everyday routine.

Suppose you see steam billowing out of your morning cup of coffee. You don't seek direct evidence of its heat by dipping your finger into it. Instead you rely on circumstantial evidence — fact plus logic — to decide that the coffee is very hot.

Nor would many readers doubt Robinson Crusoe's conclusion, from the circumstantial evidence of a strange footprint in the sand, that another human being had come to his island.

Of course, circumstantial evidence can be weak. One court gave this example: a country doctor, upon seeing a saddle under his patient's bed, deduced that the patient had eaten a horse.

But circumstantial evidence, when strong, is what sends most criminals to jail. How many burglars have been caught by tell-tale fingerprints, how many hit-run drivers by dented fenders, how many embezzlers by sudden and unexplained wealth?

For crime is usually committed under the mask of darkness or the shelter of solitude. The murderer, the forger, and the thief seldom acts in the presence of an audience.

In one celebrated case, a woman seeking a divorce was trying to prove her husband guilty of adultery. She could offer no witness who had seen him commit such a sin. But she did have evidence that he and a girl friend had spent the night together in a hotel bedroom, after signing in as husband and wife.

Circumstantial? Yes, but the court found it convincing anyhow.

Puerto Ricans Protest Literacy Tests

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A group of Puerto Ricans from New York visited the Justice Department to protest state literacy tests given in the English language.

Deputy U.S. Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark told the Puerto Rican delegation that President Johnson's voting rights bill would prohibit the use of literacy tests as a means of discriminating against any group.

He said the bill was primarily designed to cope with voting rights problems in the South, but that a total of 17 states require literacy tests. He was quoted as saying that literacy tests are incompatible with democracy.

The Puerto Rican group plans to testify before congressional service.

JAKARTA, Indonesia (UPI) — Nationalist and Communist labor unions Thursday cut power and gas services to several American homes and offices in retaliation for U.S. support of Malaysia.

The action did not include the American Embassy or Agency for International Development (AID) offices, according to the official news agency Antara.
