He feels that the experience gained in actual operation of the office will enable him to give even better service and on this basis asks the earnest consideration of the voters of this county.

I Heard . . .

Much admiration for Dr. V. von Brunow's fur coat as he walks about the city last night. He said the coat was more than 30 years old and that he killed the 12 coyotes and two wolves out of which it was made. In those days, Pampano considered their Number One sport wolf and coyote hunting and he had some of the finest dogs in the country.

Joe Mitchell telling about playing football in the line with a 270-pounder on one side of him and a 180-pounder on the other side. He weighed only 140 pounds. Bud D. Cattle Brands To Be Collected By History Head

LUBBOCK, Feb. 1.—A display of 500 cattle brands for the Texas Centennial will be in charge of Gus L. Ford, head of the history department at Texas Technological college, who has been granted a leave of absence during the spring semester in order to gather data and materials for the exhibit. Ford was named history supervisor of the cattle brand exhibit last July by the Centennial commission. The display will consist of plaques with lettered brand designs in burnt color against a contrasting background, several branded cowhides, maps and charts showing the development of the cattle industry in Texas from colonial days to the present, and portraits of cattle barons famous during the last 100 years. A protective rail for the exhibit will be made of branding irons. The survey to be made by Ford in the next few months will include research in libraries of the state to obtain unpublished material dealing with cattle brands, their origin, ownership, and extent of use, and examination of several private collections of cattle brands in various parts of the state, particularly San Angelo, San Antonio, El Paso, Abilene, and Plainview. He plans to send 500 letters to persons throughout the state asking them to nominate brands for the display. "Successful preparation of such a display necessarily will depend on the assistance of numerous individuals throughout the state who are familiar with the cattle industry and with cattle brands," Ford said. He added that many have written him already offering assistance. Ford will resume his teaching duties during the summer session.

Gooch was at that moment bleeding from lacerations of the scalp and hands and he had his wounds today to prove his story. Gooch was resting serenely when an automobile wheel hurtled through a window and came to rest in a rocking chair, scattering bits of glass about. A man with his wife and five children who were going to Dallas came in to retrieve the wheel, which had been thrown from a speeding car 200 feet from the house. Raymond Harrah was taken to his home from Pampa-Jarratt hospital yesterday afternoon following a major operation.

Cunningham Is Conquered by Vermont Miler

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, NEW YORK, Feb. 1. (AP)—With a blazing stretch finish, Joe Mangan of the New York A. C. former Cornell university track captain, came from behind tonight to whip the great Glenn Cunningham, world's record holder, in the Wanamaker mile, feature event of the annual Millrose A. A. indoor carnival.

Mangan as well as Gene Venzke, Pennsylvania, pulled off a victory in the last few strides as the winner was clocked in 4 minutes, 11 seconds.

Mangan ran 'the greatest and fastest race of his life to beat the king of the milers in a thrilling finish. The slim boy from Rutland, Vt., wearing the colors of the New York A. C. stuck to Cunningham's heels for ten of the 11 laps and outprinted the Kansan as they raced off the last turn for a 20 yard dash to the tape.

OPINION ON TVA FROM COURT IS DUE TOMORROW

Power Program Will Be Subject of Ruling

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1. (AP)—The Supreme Court will enter the second half of its term Monday with a decision on the constitutionality of the new deal's power program one of its first likely pronouncements.

This verdict, in a case challenging the Tennessee valley authority's right to compete with private utilities in the sale of surplus power generally had been expected January 20.

When it was not forthcoming, there was immediate speculation whether the breach in viewpoint among the nine justices which was emphasized in invalidation of the Roosevelt farm program had not widened.

The justices held their usual Saturday afternoon conference today but there was nothing to indicate outwardly whether the TVA issue had been settled—or even discussed at the meeting.

Since January 20—the last "decision day"—the members of the high tribunal have had two weeks of recess in which to ponder cases and prepare opinions.

The TVA ruling may have potential far-reaching consequences to both the power industry and consumers. Its reverberations also may influence—in one direction or another—the drive of some members of congress for constitutional amendment or limiting the court's powers.

In the New Orleans circuit court the government won the TVA case which was brought by some stockholders of the Alabama Power company. A district court had held part of the TVA legislation unconstitutional, but was reversed.

$1,500,000 Now Is Available for Relief in Texas

AUSTIN, Feb. 1. (AP)—The Texas relief commission entered the final two months of its program today with an unencumbered balance of $1,500,000 to aid unemployables through the winter.

Adam R. Johnson, director, said the fund would be sufficient to provide subsistence for the last half of 36,000 cases, of 180,000 individuals, through March. Relief was restricted to unemployables in the close out program.

"I believe we have every one who is eligible on the rolls," he said. The final program was started Jan. 1 with elimination of all employables.

Johnson estimated there were 45,000 to 50,000 cases of workables out of employment who were not being aided by the federal government. Despite repeated statements that the state could not aid that group, Johnson said counties and cities continued to appeal for help.

1,500 Ice-Bound On Virginia Isle

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1. (AP)—Food for 1,500 ice-bound persons on Tanager Island, Va. was dangerously near emergency ration levels tonight as the army air corps sought a spot on the frozen Chesapeake Bay for landing a rescue ship.

A privately-owned dirigible sent to the island today by Representative Bland (D-Va.) brought back reports of distress which sent the air corps into action under orders from General Malin Craig, chief of staff.

A specially equipped airplane chartered by Col. Albanus Phillips, Baltimore packer, and piloted by Capt. Forrest Kenyon, former British army aviator, left Camden, N. J. this afternoon to try to land and learn needs of the islanders. He was expected to fly on to Easton, Md. and obtain supplies for them.

BCD Directors to Meet Tomorrow

Membership will be the chief topic of discussion when the directors of the Board of City Development meet tomorrow night in the board room in the city hall. President Gilmore Nunn will be absent because of illness.

The meeting of directors will be the first since the enthusiastic banquet last week when 350 local men and women pledged their support of a new program to be directed by five members of the board of directors of the B. C. D. and five citizens at large.

NEVER MIND THE LADY

by David Garth

Chapter 44

Corrigan had lanterns lighting the way from the storehouses to the dam. They were shielded by steel guards at that their light was uncertain. That dam!

Willett plowed through to the edge of the river. The dam was going, all right. He went into action on the spot.

"Sandbags!" he shouted. "And matting! On the run! Come on Bucky, chase 'em along. The women too."

He was in six places at once, directing, ordering, slinging the heavy sandbags around as though they were filled with cotton, and the gang got into it as though they were fighting for their lives.

The women joined the fight too. There was a worse fury than the storm abroad tonight—it was the fury of that tall figure who snapped back viciously at the wildly surging river.

How they fought! Sandbags butressing the dam at vital points to withstand the tremendous pressure of an unchecked river. Water was spilling over the top. That was all right, the half-finished construction work below could stand anything but the sudden wild break of the whole river.

Willett was out on the dam, the water swirling all around him, splashing over the top. That was all right, he knelt and gripped the edge.

And as Willett fought, he thought of the girl back in the hut with only Rosa, saw her hand groping for his, felt a deeper courage somehow. But she didn't make it—

"Look down, look down that lonely road!"

He knew how his father had felt. Life had gone out of his father too, left him staggering, stunned. He'd never been able to love anybody else but Vic, and Terry knew from the moment he'd seen Allaire she was the only girl he could ever love either.

Fight, you quaking wretches! Your boss has to be strong no matter what happens. He has to look down that lonely road and he has to travel it alone, gallant and strong.

And so they strained through the hours, Corrigan a wild man with the Chalks hopping before his blasts, and Willett keeping the rescue work traveling surely and swiftly. Governor, you're going to be served this job in Valhalla, and you can thank a girl for it.

But he dared that surging river's force once too often out there on that quivering dam. His grip was torn loose as he tried to get a sandbag into place.

So he felt himself spun around in the wild water and an instant later his head was driven against the dam with stunning force. Lights flashed before his eyes as a terrible dizziness overcame him.

He gasped for breath and the water poured into his throat. He was going down, exhausted, stunned, half dead.

The water seemed very soft suddenly, soft with the heavy muffling feeling of a woolen quilt thrown over the head. And the bottom of the river was soft too, oozy, shifty, soft muck that had been stirred into a putrid cloud that blinded and strangled and obscured his senses. Terry Willett could find no breath, no strength.

His strength was ebbing fast. You'll have to look down, Allaire, look down a lonely road—the guy you married is through.

Allaire! He seemed to see her hand as it had reached out for his in those shadows caused by the flickering lamp. A girl who had followed him to Pluto's Playground and was standing between life and death herself now.

Allaire!

Willett stopped right on the threshold of unconsciousness. With a terrible effort of will he roused himself to battle, to find some more strength from somewhere. He couldn't leave her alone, he couldn't. Allaire was fighting for her life too. From somewhere his dispersed forces rallied. He snapped the mind-paralyzing spell of the water that whirled him around and blinded and deafened him; he fought for the surface, holding grimly to the skin of his ebbing strength, straining for what seemed to him a white hand stealing toward him out of the stormy shadows.

It was closer, that hand, closer—beckoning him out of the Dark Places, showing the way. He reached out for it and held on.

His fingers were gripping the edge of the dam, and as he hung there, his body was flayed against its surface as though caught between the Immovable Object and the Irresistible Force.

Let go, let go, something whispered. Let go, and Nature will take care of her own.

But Willett wasn't holding desperately to the edge of a groaning shaking dam that was rearing to break up. He was holding to the white hand of a girl, and he came out of the Shadows to fight again, get a foothold and shove.

He pulled himself slowly, laboriously out, struggling to get free of that sucking, swirling water. He got up halfway and then as a hand gripped his shoulder and pulled him the rest of the way, he lost consciousness.

He came to lying on the ground with the rain pelting into his face and the thick slimy silt of the river oozing up under his clothes.

Bucky Corrigan was leaning over him, Bucky, with his face white and his hand shaking as he held up Willett's head and stuck a flask at him.

"It almost got you, fella," he said hoarsely. "When you were knocked loose I thought you were finished."

Corrigan's square fighting Irish mug was twisted with the agony of his memory. A man had lost his grip in that black water, sure death, and yet a man had fought his way back again.

The Chalks were huddled all around him, staring, their black hair in drenched mops over their brown faces. Willett took a deep breath. He waved the flask aside; too much liquor inside of him already.

He started to get up.

"Take it easy," ordered Corrigan. "You can't strain yourself, fello—"

Willett flung off his restraining hands. He stood up and eyed the paralyzed construction gang all around him. Work had ceased! And the river was still threatening to break through at any minute. What the hell live they standing around for?

"Come on, Bucky, let's go!"

"Hey!" yelled Corrigan, "you can't go back there. That thing's ready to break up. By God, if you try it, I'll slug you, Terry, so help me, I will!"

He drew back his great brawny fist and his face was wild. Terry Willett wasn't going back to flirt with death again, job or no job.

"Come on you Irish lump," he shouted. "Chase these guys along. Let's go!"

And he grabbed up a sandbag and went back on the dam, stumbling a little on his precarious path, but back in the battle again, and the trembling Chalks looked after him with eyes popping out of their heads. "The man wasn't human, por' Dose!"

And hope grew stronger with the passing hours. They staggered through with that creaking, patched structure to do what Corrigan wouldn't have thought possible—bulwarked it against the adverse decision of the river.

But then Corrigan hadn't foreseen the possibility of Terry Willett stick with it right on the brink of eternity, holding on the job by the skin of his teeth, with the law of averages and the odds of Nature against him.

He had fought, and he had made them fight, as the Crusaders must have fought before Jerusalem, inspired, with the inspiration that ignores the law of averages.

With the light of dawn they knew they were coming through. The river would be held back. The storm had

Conference for Education Will Be March 6-7

CANYON, Feb. 1.—Supt. W. B. Irvin of Perryton, president of the Northwest Texas Conference for Education, and F. E. Savage of Canyon, secretary, have completed the plans for the program of the annual meeting which will be held March 6 and 7 at the West Texas State Teachers college. Beatty, superintendent of schools, Bronxville, New York, and Dr. Frank W. Hart of the University of California. Beatty's address at the opening session will be "Will Teachers Give spent itself, its fury gone, and in its place was only the stolid rain.

Willett's hands were torn and bleeding, he was drenched and muddy and bruised from head to foot and he stumbled with exhaustion as he stepped on shore. He rubbed a hand across his face and took a deep breath.

"We'll beat it now, fella," Corrigan was saying at his shoulder. "Over the wire, and a hip, hip, hooray!"

Willett nodded mechanically.

"Bucky, my thanks to you—and to all." He put out his hand. Corrigan gripped it briefly, and then saw him turn toward the hut, and it was the longest, hardest, most agonizing (Copyright, 1935, by David Garth)

Recent Visit of Hoffman Agents Told by Nurse

AMARILLO, Feb. 1.—A former nurse, Mrs. Roy Hallman, Pampa, told local newspaper men today that she was convinced that agents of Governor Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey uncovered enough evidence in Pampa recently to warrant a new trial for Bruno Richard Hauptmann, condemned slayer of the Lindbergh baby...

The nurse said the patient was known as Richard Monroe. She said "he had lots of money and received large sums regularly in $5, $10, and $20 bills. He knew so much about the case I became suspicious. He told me he knew Betty Gow, Lindbergh's nurse, Violet Sharpe, the maid who committed suicide, and others connected with the case. I learned that he received letters from Betty Gow."

She declared family pictures shown her by her patient were the same as those shown by the agents as coming from the Fisch family in Germany.

(This story in detail was printed in the Pampa Daily NEWS about a year ago, and summarized last month.—Ed.)

Came forward and demanded the office. The situation placed the machine leaders in a tough spot. They considered selecting Mrs. O. K. Allen as a compromise, and it was said she would accept it. But some of the leaders, believing that it would be a good gesture and that she would turn down the appointment, pressed for the selection of Mrs. Long. They thought that in turning down the appointment, Mrs. Long might endorse one of them.

But she fooled them. She accepted the appointment and has let it be known that she will accept nomination by the state central committee. She likes the idea of being a senator and the lady is determined to go to Washington and show the world that Huey Long's widow knows her politics.

TEXAS IN FINALS

CHICAGO, Feb. 1. (AP)—Paul Hanna of Los Angeles, and Russell Ball of El Paso, Tex., will meet tomorrow for the Western indoor men's singles tennis championship. Hanna, darkhorse of the tournament, reached the final round today by an easy 6-1, 6-1 victory over Andy Bickert of Chicago. Ball, however, advanced only after one of the toughest battles in the history of the event. The Texas youngster, brother Gooch was resting serenely when and in the days of Huey himself.

When Long died several politicians clamored for his place, which fell to Allen. When Allen died before he could reach the senate, many primarily at the administration's present fiscal policy as leading to the equivalent of currency inflation. Despite the claims of democratic chieftains that the latest campaign would fall, a considerable sentiment appeared in the house ways and means committee for using new currency backed by treasury gold and silver to meet the cost of the bonus. Several members said privately they regarded such a course as preferable to new taxes.

Coincidentally, Senator Bankhead (D-Ala.) and some of his colleagues asserted 35-40 senators wanted the president to use his powers to increase currency in circulation. With the backing of the treasury's gold and silver stocks. There was general agreement that use of currency inflation to wipe out the bonus debt would sidetrack effectively the administration opposed Frazier-Lemke bill to re-refinance farm mortgages by issuing $3,000,000,000 of new currency. A petition to force a house vote on that measure was 215 signatures, only three short of the number needed to whisk it onto the floor.

Congressional leaders still were awaiting a more definite expression of an administration desire for additional taxes before making any move. They noted with interest that reports from which official sources indicated consideration was being given to a tax bill that might raise $730,000,000—$500,000,000 for the farm program and $230,000,000 as a start toward amortizing the bonus over a period of years.

Called together by Representative Patman (D-Tex.), perennial sponsor of legislation to pay the bonus in new currency, the house currency inflationists went on record as opposing any effort that might delay or block the bonus appropriation.

Representative Lee (D-Okla.) said

pering our opinion of the AAA decision, but should speak right out about it." Frank Briggs, editor of Farm and Ranch, expressed the opinion industrial opinion was changing. He recently interviewed a number of business leaders in the east. "Industrial leaders I talked with are not nearly so happy over the decision as they were on the day it was handed down by the Supreme Court," he said.

They called the Supreme Court decision "political," saying it was made for the purpose of embarrassing the president.

WACO, Feb. 1. (AP)—Two thousand Texas farmers voted unanimously today for a constitutional amendment to "equalize agricultural benefits with those received by industry under the tariff."

Gathered from 150 counties, they endorsed the seven-point program agreed upon at the farm conference in Washington Jan. 10 as part of a seven-point program of their own, urged its speedy enactment and asserted their "continued faith in the president and his administration."

"We assert our continued faith in the president and his administration," read one paragraph, "and un-American attacks being made on the administration, especially in view of the fact that its constructive leadership has given agriculture for the first time in the history of the country the recognition it deserves, that of equal opportunity with other basic industries."

"We urge legislators in congress and the state legislature to support a constitutional amendment expressly authorizing congress to enact laws to equalize agricultural benefits with those received by industry under the tariff."

Treaty Credited With Lowering Drug Smuggling

NEW YORK, Feb. 1. (AP)—The quantity of narcotics smuggled into the United States from European sources in the last year was "but a drop in the bucket" compared with former years, Frank L. Igoe, federal narcotic superintendent for the New York district, said today.

"Of course we cannot know the amount of illegal narcotics that get by us," he said, "but from seizures made by the customs agents at the port of New York and from the amounts in possession of peddlers we have arrested we can say that the supply today is inadequate to feed the powerful 'rings' of other years."

Igoe pointed out that where a few years ago it was not uncommon for government agents to comb across narcotic shipments as high as a ton in one lot, today "if there are 100 ounces in a lot that's a big haul."

The reason, he said, was the apparently successful operation of the narcotic treaty of the United States with 25 European nations to manufacture only enough narcotics for the average medicinal needs in each country.

WHEELER CALF EVENT DUE TO BE ON FEB. 8

CENTENNIAL PLAY TO BE PRODUCED AT CHILDRESS

A list of premiums to be awarded in the first annual Wheeler baby beef show to be held at Wheeler on Saturday, February 8, has been announced.

A cash award of $20.00 will be given the grand champion of the show and $15.00 will award the reserve champion.

The next two places, regardless of class, will win $3.00 each and the next five calves, regardless of class will be awarded $2.00 each.

Reserve and grand champion, and winners of first three places in each class, will receive ribbons in addition to the cash prizes.

The Donley County Baby Beef Show, to be held in Clarendon March 7, will be staged in the Harry Blair horse barns.

Because a salary basis would increase allowances for a large number of officers, the fee system will be continued.

A feature of the Groom Fat Stock Show to be held on March 6 and 7, will be a free barbecue in addition to the other entertainment.

A meeting of Groom business men and interested citizens was held last Friday afternoon in the lobby of Hotel 66 at which time the finance committee made a very favorable report and a unanimous vote was cast favoring the free barbecue.

It was announced that sufficient premium money would be available to double the amount of last year's list.

The following premiums are being offered for the 1936 show:

Heavy Class—1st $8.00; 2nd $7.00; 3rd $6.00; 4th $5.00; 5th $4.00; 6th $3.00; 7th $2.00; 8th $1.00; 9th $1.00; 10th $1.00.

Light Class—1st $8.00; 2nd $7.00; 3rd $6.00; 4th $5.00; 5th $4.00; 6th $3.00; 7th $2.00; 8th $1.00; 9th $1.00; 10th $1.00.

Group of Five—1st $10.00; 2nd $8.00; 3rd $6.00; 4th $4.00; 5th $2.00

Grand Champion—$8.00, and the prize donated by the Hereford Breeders Association.

The above premium list totals as much if not more than any of the other local shows in this area and the business men of Groom are to be congratulated in putting on the excellent work which has made this show possible.

The dates for the Groom Show have been set for March 6 and 7 which will permit the calves to be shown in Groom and then taken to Amarillo in time for the Amarillo Fat Stock Show. Much more interest is being taken in the Groom show than last year and at least fifty entries are expected.

One of the outstanding cattle judges in the state have been secured to place the various classes.

RA Loans Made The Resettlement Administration made loans to 13 farm families in Hemphill County the month of December. It was reported by A. R. Turner, county supervisor.

Loans for the month averaged $500.16 per family. The money was usually for the purchase of teams tools and supplies.

Centennial Play Rehearsed The outstanding feature of the show, "The Big Bugcast" to be given by the Childress High School P. T. A. will be the presentation of the Federated Club Centennial play "The Last Page" written by a Memphis woman and based on people of this vicinity.

Adding to the interest in the play will be the portrayal of one of the characters, Bill Rowell, a ranchman near Newlin, by the man himself, who came to Childress last night for the first rehearsal.

Last night's rehearsal was on the play, and the next rehearsal will be based on some other act. At last night's rehearsal of play written by Mrs. Greene, Memphis, Mr. Rowell's picturesque remarks and old time observations made the rehearsal a jolly affair.

Cast for the play is: Mrs. Mary Copeland, who runs the old Copeland at Calisbary—Mrs. George Barry.

Lizzie Copeland, her daughter—Jessie Whitman, Mrs. Copeland's baby daughter—Nancy Price.

Mrs. Ellis, a hotel guest, from Massachusetts—Mrs. H. A. Gilbert, Bill Rowell—the original Bill Rowell.

Walter Shaw, a cowpuncher on the 96 ranch—Bob Davenport. Scott Montgomery, Memphis banker—Roy Allmond.

Will Mason, school teacher—Arch Fitzsimmons.

Bart, cook and only colored person in Hall county—Charley Lovett.

Then music for the square dance will be furnished by the following with the square dancers headed by Martin Crew: Fred Hilliard, H. W. Henderson, Bob Montas, Pat Steed, J. E. Shackelford, Gene McCain, Dave McCain, and Edwin Caldwell.

The play will be presented at the

Dairy Stock Will Be Sold in Plainview Show

PLAINVIEW, Feb. 1.—At least 50 of the finest blooded dairy animals in this section will be offered for sale on the closing day of the ninth annual Panhandle-Plains Dairy show to be held here April 8-9.

Arrangements for the sale are now being completed by the committee and selection of the animals to be offered will be made within a few weeks.

Several of the territory's best known herds will be represented in the sale. The famous Stansell Jersey herd at Tulla, Dr. S. J. Vaughn Jerseys at Tulla, Dr. S. J. Underwood, Hale Center, McSpadden Bros. of Amarillo, and Robert Smith of Lockney have consigned some of their best stock to the sale.

C. C. Stewart, Canyon, well known Jersey breeder, will likely sell a large number of his herd at the sale.

But the Jerseys will not dominate this section have already selected 15 head of their best herds and will offer them at the sale. It is possible that the H. B. Hales Holstein herd will also be represented and the Guernsey herd at Panhandle belonging to Dr. Geo. P. Groat.

Following the sale will be a meeting and the Pampa Credit association.

"Better retail selling is more necessary today than ever before," said Mr. Buisch. "Greater attention should be given to selecting salespeople and training them in the art of serving and pleasing customers."

Mr. Buisch contended that in place of price appeal, merchants will now have even more serious competition, centering around four things:

- 1. Superior salesmanship. 2. Bigger, finer stores. 3. Improved services—credit, delivery, telephone service, quality merchandise. 4. More accurate records and accounting will be the basis of better management.

As a setting for better selling, better stores and improved services were recommended, both of which are vitally important in holding old customers and attracting more people into stores.

Better use of advertising in newspapers to inform the public about merchandise values, uses, styles, etc., was advocated by Mr. Buisch. Too much space has been given to advertising cut prices. What people want is good value in merchandise. People generally realize that quality is more important than price; so are suitability and service.
