

Voting Rights Act Put Right to Work

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The vast machinery of the federal government, empowered by the day-old Voting Rights Act, swung into action Saturday to banish the last vestiges of discrimination against Negro voters.

The Justice Department filed suit asking that Mississippi's $2 poll tax be abolished as a discriminatory device. It put the finishing touches on similar suits to be brought Tuesday against the three other states that levy poll taxes — Alabama, Texas and Virginia.

The Census Bureau suspended literacy tests in seven Southern states — Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina, Virginia and 26 counties in North Carolina.

The Civil Service Commission instructed prospective federal examiners, who will be appointed where needed in areas of discrimination, to register all qualified voting applicants even if they cannot read or write or even sign their names.

Seventy-five regular employees of the commission, a few of them Negroes and more than half from the South, returned home after three days of training to serve as examiners, subject to the call of the attorney general.

Scores of Justice Department employes, some wearing Bermuda shorts and other casual summer dress, worked through the weekend under orders from President Johnson to implement as quickly as possible the law he signed Friday.

"Utmost Energy"

Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach pledged to prosecute the Mississippi suit "with the utmost energy to insure a speedy resolution."

He expressed confidence that court challenges demanded by the new law would result in each of the remaining state poll taxes being declared unconstitutional.

Student Charged In Murder of Two Coeds

Suspect Gives Oral Statement to Police

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — A handsome, smooth-talking university man confessed he invited two pretty coeds to his apartment and strangled them in "sexual desire," a justice of the peace disclosed Saturday.

The University man, James C. Cross Jr., was charged Friday night with murdering University of Texas coeds Shirle Ann Stark and Susan Rigby, both 21, July 18. Authorities said Cross gave himself up and confessed.

Justice of the Peace Frank McBee, who took a longhand statement from Cross, said Cross confessed he choked one of the girls to death in a rage and strangled the other to keep her from "spreading the alarm."

Other sources said the girls, just arrived in Austin from Dallas, took showers in Cross' apartment and he admitted killing one while the other was under the shower.

University Sophomore
Cross, who will be 23 in September, is an ex-soldier and a sophomore at the university. He is five feet, nine inches tall and weighs 145 pounds. His father is advertising manager at Monnig's, a big Fort Worth department store.

According to police, Cross said he met Miss Stark in biology class and went out with her seven or eight times in the regular 1964-1965 university session. Until his confession, he claimed he had not seen her since last May.

McBee refused to give many details. He, his secretary and many other Texas peace officers and prosecutors, are concerned about a new Texas law that forbids investigators and prosecutors to disclose details of crimes before trial.

The law is designed to prevent such comment as that which surrounded the trial of Jack Ruby on a charge of murdering presidential assassin Lee Harvey Oswald. Officers and prosecutors contend other features of the law will help criminals escape justice.

McBee did not know which girl was killed first. Austin Police Lt. George Phifer said Cross admitted killing the other about mid-afternoon July 18.

Dumps Bodies
He allegedly waited until about 3 a.m. the next day and hauled the bodies to a North Austin field, where he dumped them in the grass. The bodies were discovered July 30, in such advanced states of deterioration that pathologists could not determine how one girl was killed or whether either was raped.

Cross, under suspicion since the disappearance of the girls, telephoned police late Friday and said he wanted to come in and confess. He was charged with the murders and investigators announced the solution of the case late Friday night.

Col. Homer Garrison Jr., director of the state Department of Public Safety, said Cross had no help. "The case is completely clear. It is wrapped up," Garrison said.

Dist. Atty. Tom Blackwell said he will ask Cross to be sent to the electric chair, "if and when an indictment is returned." A jury is expected to consider the case next week of the following week.

US Versus State Of Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — United States of America, plaintiff, vs. the state of Mississippi, civil action No. 3791.

That was the simple title given Saturday to the first suit filed under the historic Voting Rights Act of 1965, signed just 24 hours earlier by President Johnson.

The 11-page document was hand-carried from Washington Saturday by Justice Department attorney John Rosenberg and routinely processed in the U.S. District Court clerk's office on the fourth floor of the Federal Building—just across the street from the home of Mississippi Gov. Paul B. Johnson.

The suit charges Mississippi's $2 poll tax discriminates against Negro voters and should be abolished. The Justice Department, acting under the new law, plans to file similar suits next week against three other states with the tax.

Rosenberg, with a bulging brown leather briefcase, walked briskly down the marbled corridor to the clerk's office shortly before 11 a.m. CST. A knock on the door, normally closed on Saturday, gained him admittance along with U.S. Attorney Robert Hauberg.

A few minutes later, the door was opened to a small group of newsmen as Rosenberg and Hauberg signed the documents and a clerk busily stamped "filed," the date and the case number on the suit.

No Officials Present
No state officials were on hand for the brief, informal proceedings. Post office patrons on the first floor of the Federal Building went about their business unaware of the historic scene taking place above them.

Gov. Johnson, reported out of town for the weekend, said earlier this week Mississippi would challenge the constitutionality of the new Voting Rights Act. The state legislature recently adopted a series of new voter requirement laws in a special session which was hoped would put the state in a better position for the challenge.

The old laws had been repeatedly attacked as discriminatory against Negroes.

State Department Too's Are Not All Diplomatic

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The tools of the trade in the State Department are not all diplomatic.

They include a high-speed drill, a pharyngoscope, and a fouled-up wiretap.

The lesser-known facets of the State Department operation were revealed in the latest installment of the Otepa series furnished by the Senate internal security subcommittee.

The subcommittee released Saturday the second part of closed-door hearings in its investigation into the case of Otto Otepa, the former top-level security officer in the State Department who was dismissed.

Awaiting Hearing
Otepa is now awaiting a department hearing — presumably scheduled for October — on an appeal of his dismissal. He is charged with "conduct unbecoming a State Department officer" because he gave information to the subcommittee.

The Otepa case is part of a broad subcommittee study of State Department security. The latest volume of testimony does not reveal any new facts on the Otepa case. It deals with already-known information that State Department security officers tapped Otepa's phone and broke into his safe.

Stanley E. Holden, chief of the technical security branch, provided the information on how the State Department obtains the combination of a safe.

Cracks Safe
Holden testified he ordered one of his men, Russell Waller, to crack Otepa's office safe. Waller used a high-speed drill "to permit use of a pharyngoscope, a medical instrument," his superior said.

Holden explained that a pharyngoscope is used by doctors to look down a throat but in the art of safecracking — in the words of subcommittee counsel Jay Sourwine—KIT "is used to see how tumblers are falling so that you can line up the tumblers and open up the safe."

After Waller cracked the safe, the combination was passed on to John F. Reilly, the chief security officer, who had requested it.

U.S. Strategy in Viet To Be Make 'Em Run

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gen. Earle G. Wheeler said Saturday night the United States and South Viet Nam now had adopted a strategy which "gives the best assurance of military victory over the Communist in the Vietnamese war."

The chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, who recently returned from strategy conferences in Honolulu, spelled out some details of the set up in the war in a speech to the 2nd Armored Division Association at its annual reunion.

The aim is to keep the combat tempo at such a rate the enemy will be on the run, unable to recuperate or regain balance, he said.

"And one thing we have learned about guerrilla warfare," Wheeler said, "is that once you have the guerrillas on the run, they run downhill to eventual defeat or a least impotency."

Washington and Saigon intend to gain a "preponderance of military power over the Viet Cong-North Vietnamese forces," Wheeler asserted.

With greater mobility and improved intelligence, he said, the forces of the two countries will be able "to find the enemy more often and defeat him when we fight him."

The strategy of keeping the guerrillas on the run with superior military power and blasting military targets in the north to restrict supplies and men, the general said, "in my opinion gives the best assurance of military victory in South Viet Nam."

Announces Buildup
The United States has announced an interim plan to build up to 125,000 men in Viet Nam. Wheeler said this country would do whatever required to convince the Communists "that we cannot be defeated by force of arms."

The sooner that is realized, he said, and the sooner North Vietnamese agree to negotiate the better off the world will be.

Over $8,000 Ready For Top Cowboys

(See Rodeo Section)

With some $8,000 prize money up for grabs, Pampa's annual Top O' Texas Rodeo kicks off four nights of arena action Wednesday. Each night performance starts at 8 p.m.

Last year rodeo competition here saw an overall 156 cowboys on the entry roster with event winners dividing $8,000. Biggest shares went to hometown entry Lee Cockrell, 33, and David Glover, 25, Durant, Okla.

Cockrell collected $650 for winning calf roping competition and Glover pocketed $610 in the bull riding contest.

Other event winners included Tater Decker, Clayton, Okla., in steer wrestling; Dave Reidhead, Scottsdale, Ariz., in bareback bronc riding; and George Williams, Boulder, Colo., in saddle bronc riding.

Janete Dudley, wife of calf roper Eldon Dudley, Perryton, won the girls barrel racing competition.

As one of nearly 600 rodeos approved each year by the professional Rodeo Cowboys Association, competition in the Top O' Texas Rodeo is conducted under nationally recognized rules with prize money won by contestants credited to the sport's annual championship standings.

Eight Are Killed In Beechcraft Crash

LAKEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — A luxurious twin-engine private plane crashed Saturday into a fog shrouded cemetery located in a heavily populated residential area, killing all eight persons aboard.

No one on the ground was injured. But had the plane come down 200 yards further, it would have plunged into homes of sleeping residents in a housing development.

The plane's passengers were two sisters, their husbands and children bound for a vacation at Niagara Falls, N.Y.

The Beechcraft C45H plummeted into the cemetery in this Los Angeles suburb shortly after taking off from the airport in nearby Long Beach.

There was no immediate indication of what caused the crash.

The pilot, James Whitmarsh of Lakewood, gave no report of trouble to the airport tower before the plane disappeared from the radar scope.

Wreckage and parts of bodies were strewn amid the grave-stones, along an adjacent railroad track and in the yards of nearby homes.

The body of one of the victims was hurled through the living room window of the Joe Rhodes' home. The Rhodes and their two daughters were asleep in the house, and escaped injury.

One of the plane's engines damaged the Rhodes' garage and started a small fire in the backyard which Rhodes quickly extinguished.

Other small fires started in yards by burning debris were quickly put out by residents with garden hoses.

Victims Identified
The victims, in addition to Whitmarsh, were his wife, Mildred, their two children, Terry, 16, and Mary Margaret, 14; and Mrs. Whitmarsh's sister, Rebecca Dent, her husband James Dent, and the Dent's two children, Richard, 16, and Peggy, 15, of Whittier, Calif.

One resident in the area, Mrs. Sue Janzen, said "parts of the plane flew against fences and walls that separate the houses from the railroad tracks."

"I saw the body of a man which was thrown against a wall," she added. "The first we heard was a muffled sound; then a big thud. The sky was orange."

Air Force Sleuths Search Texas Wilds for Missile

WHITE SANDS, N. M. (UPI) — Air Force sleuths poked over a desolate semi-desert in west Texas Saturday for pieces of an Athena missile that missed its White Sands target Friday.

They expected to find very little.

The missile was one of two fired from Green River, Utah, to test re-entry systems. The second missile, which landed on target at White Sands, was termed a complete success.

Investigators said the errant Athena did not injure anyone or damage any property when it landed in the arid wilds near El Paso. They said it hit an open private property 18 miles southwest of Fabens.

The investigators said they expected to find only bits and pieces of the missile because much of it burned up during its plunge through the atmosphere.

"We don't know what happened," a White Sands test official said.

"We hope pieces which may be recovered will give us a clue as to the cause of the malfunction."

Eight Athena missiles have been fired since the re-entry vehicle testing program resumed this year. Five were termed "fully successful" and the others were partial successes.

Death of Stockbroker To End Dreams of Millions

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — A helicopter crash which killed an Indianapolis stockbroker a month ago has shattered dreams of financial security for hundreds of Hoosiers who had invested millions in life insurance stock.

to a luxurious suite within a year's time. He loved to fly about the state in his own helicopter, sometimes landing on his clients' lawns.

bich Friday produced a list of more than 550 persons who are believed to have lost $2.9 million by investing through Dobich in stock in the Midwestern United Life Insurance Co., Fort Wayne, Ind. They never received the stock certificates, investigators said.

AT CAMP DAVID
THURMONT, Md. (UPI) — President Johnson relaxed today at Camp David in Maryland's Catoctin Mountains.

Dobich was giving his young secretary a ride when the helicopter crashed into a field. She was injured and he was killed. Authorities are still investigating the cause and circumstances of the crash.

Donald Buttrely, an attorney named receiver in bankruptcy for Dobich, has estimated Dobich and more than two dozen agents took orders for more than $6 million worth of stock in Midwestern United in recent months. Evidence indicates nearly half the stock sold was never delivered to the buyers, Buttrely said.

Mystery Dots Air Force Strike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Results of last week's Air Force strike on two anti-aircraft missile sites northwest of Hanoi were surrounded Friday by mystery which may never be solved.

down an Air Force F4C Fighter July 24. The Pentagon, announcing the mission on the day it occurred, said pilots involved had "reported destruction of one SAM site and damage to the other." It said photographic evaluation of the mission had not been completed.

While the Air Force is persuaded its pilots reported accurately on damage done to the SAM (surface-to-air missile) sites, it develops there is no clear photographic evidence to prove their case.

Three of the 46 fighter-bombers were shot down by ground fire during the low-level attack. One of eight armed reconnaissance planes also was downed, and two F105s collided while returning from the mission.

Friday the Pentagon said officially only that "We have nothing to add at this time to the results announced on July 27... evaluation of the reconnaissance photographs is continuing."

Solon's Son Goes Free In Death of Policeman

WEST POINT, Miss. (UPI)—Manslaughter charges against the young son of a Wisconsin congressman were dropped Saturday following an investigation into a scuffle with a highway patrolman who fell dead of a heart attack.

Michael Reuss, 18, still faced trial on misdemeanor charges of resisting arrest and refusing to be searched in connection with his arrest in a civil rights demonstration Friday.

Dist. Atty. Harvey S. Buck told reporters he did not believe "the elements of manslaughter" were involved in the death of highway patrolman B. Cowart, 53, a cattle theft investigator who had been assigned to help West Point authorities handle racial demonstrations.

Cowart had a history of heart trouble.

Reuss, son of Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., allegedly scuffled with Cowart as the patrolman searched him Friday and Cowart fell dead of a heart attack.

"Although this might have triggered the attack, it is my opinion that officer Cowart died of a heart attack and not

Mia, Sinatra Visit Kennedys

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (UPI)—Crooner Frank Sinatra, 49, and his teen-age sweetheart Mia Farrow anchored their yacht off the Kennedy compound Saturday and went ashore to visit members of the late President's family.

Mrs. Lawford, the late President's sister, is married to actor Peter Lawford, one of the members of Hollywood's "rat pack" which also includes Sinatra. The "rat pack" visited the compound after the 1960 presidential election.

Mia, looking younger than her 19 years in shorts and a blouse, went ashore in a motor launch with two burly bodyguards shortly after the yacht Sinatra chartered for a romantic Eastern Seaboard cruise dropped anchor.

Mrs. Lawford met them at the Kennedy pier and escorted them to the compound.

Chaperoning the twice-divorced singer and the freckle-faced young lady who may be his next bride are actresses Rosalind Russell and Claudette Colbert and their husbands.

The yacht Southern Breeze which Sinatra reportedly rented for $2,000 a day, anchored inside the breakwater about 150 yards from the compound. Town officials apparently had advance notice of the arrival. Extra police were assigned to the port area.

Randy Agrees That Soviet Gals Aren't Much in Looks

According to wire reports Pampa shotputter Randy Matson agreed with other members of the U. S. track and field teams that Russian girls are nothing to write home about in the beauty sweepstakes.

The observance was made by the U. S. tracksters while in Russia for competition recently. Speaking of the Russian girls, Matson is quoted as saying: "Most of them still look like weightlifter, although they show some improvement over the 1963 crop."

Most U. S. track team members seemed to think Russian girls are beginning to improve their appearances due to the impact of contraband American glamour magazines now gaining circulation in Russia.

In addition to this, the American athletes say, girls of the Soviet Union are beginning to take to things like lipstick, rouge and perfume which now are sold in small booths on the streets, but not in the stores.

Business Highlights

By ROBERT J. REGAN
New York Press International

New York (UPI)—More corporate reports of higher first half earnings, additional dividend boosts, and a generous helping of other mostly favorable business reports served to punctuate President Johnson's belief that the economy continues to grow.

A White House spokesman described the President's feelings after the chief executive received reports on business conditions this week from the Council of Economic Advisers and Treasury Secretary Henry H. Fowler. The CEA reportedly said Johnson the third quarter outlook is good and that expansion continued through July.

Prominent in the more favorable side of the business news was the rise in employment last month to a new peak of 74.9 million and a drop in unemployment to 4.5 per cent, lowest since 1957. A particular feature was the business community's ability to absorb a record amount of teen-age employment, with 1.1 million more teenagers on the payroll at mid-July than at the same point the month before and 2.4 million more than at the same point last year.

Detroit contributed a report of record auto sales last month—708,600 for a gain of 18 per cent over the respectable 603,000 sold in July, 1964. Sales through the first seven months ran 14 per cent ahead of 1964's record-breaking clip.

The Census Bureau came through with a rise in retail sales last week to $5.506 billion, up five per cent from the week before and eight per cent over the same week of 1964.

Not all the news was good. The nation's monetary gold stock last week didn't budge from its 37-year low of $13.859 billion.

LONDON—The Bank of England again moved in the foreign exchange market to protect the pound against speculators. The price of gold inched upward again in dealings here.

classes. Center members will be enrolled free of charge while non-members must pay an instructional fee of $3. Enrollment for these Sept. 9 classes will be on Sept. 1 on a first come first serve basis for everyone.

Other series of lessons that you might look forward to is an Adv. Beginner course for Adults in Sept. Polywog and Adv. Beginner on Sept. 27 thru Oct. 13, and Beginners and Intermediates on Oct. 18-Nov. 3.

All you volleyball players notice that the deadline for entry into the fall leagues is slowly drawing near. The fall league will offer a men's, women's and a mixed league. Entry fee will be $12 per team per league and will be due by Aug. 31. At 8 p.m. on Aug. 31 there will be an organizational meeting for the leagues where schedules and times will be drawn. Leagues are scheduled to kick-off during the week of Sept. 7-11. All teams interested should bring their entry fee by or contact the Center.

As most of you know the Center's schedule changes with the opening of school. The Center opens Monday, Wednesday, Thursdays and Fridays at 4 p.m. and closes at 10. On Saturdays the Center opens at 9-12 and 1-5. On Sundays we are open 2-5 p.m. and closed on Tuesdays. Swim lessons are taught from 4-6 p.m. and most other swimming activities are from 7-9:30. The gym is open for games in the afternoons while league play is at night.

There is always plenty of time to enjoy a membership purchased at the Center. Your membership always runs from the date of purchase until a year hence so that you always get a full year of participation. The Center has a year around program for the family not just a summer drive. Center memberships for families are only $20 per year or $12 for six months while individual memberships are $8 for a year and $5 for six months.

As you drive up North Hobart street look for the Center's new sign across from the Coca-Cola Company. Soon to be erected, will be a bulletin board advertising the various activities currently going on or coming to the Center.

FARM HELP
WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson signed legislation to help farmers whose price-supported crops were flooded or otherwise destroyed by natural disasters.

Under the new law, a farmer who signed up for acreage reduction and price supports on 1965 crops of feed grains, wheat or cotton, and who subsequently loses his crop, still may collect part of the federal support money he otherwise would have been expected to draw.

SENATE APPROVES
WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate approved by voice vote the nomination of Harold Brown as Air Force secretary succeeding Eugene Zuckert.

At the same time, the Senate Finance Committee approved the nomination of Republican John W. Gardner, president of the Carnegie Corp., to succeed Anthony J. Celebrezze as secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

FIND SNAKE
FARNBOROUGH, England (UPI)—Iwal Jenkins was walking past the house of his neighbor, Mrs. Norma Filson, when he saw the tail of a creature disappearing into the vehicle's innards. He and Mrs. Filson banged on the hood to eject the intruder, without success. Mrs. Filson drove her automobile to a garage. Attendants found behind the heater, and removed a 28-inch snake.

Communist Sink Two U.S.-Made Submarines

TAIPEI, Formosa (UPI)—Two American-made submarine chasers of the Nationalist Chinese navy were attacked and apparently sunk Friday by Communist Chinese warships off the island of Quemoy.

Nationalist Chinese naval headquarters said the vessels were "attacked on all sides" by the Red gunboats. A broadcast from Peking said flatly the Nationalist vessels were sunk.

Communist China said the two submarine chasers were attacked when they intruded into fishing grounds near Nansha Island of Kwangtung Province and Tungshan Island of Fukien Province. The Peking Reds charged the Nationalist ships were on a sabotage mission.

The Nationalist announcement said: "Two gunboats of ours were attacked by Communist Chinese gunboats on all sides while patrolling out of Quemoy this morning and since then we have lost contact."

Radio Peking said the two ships were hit and sank in the sea. It charged the Nationalist ships have repeatedly been carrying out "harassing activities along the southeast coast of China recently."

Later, the Chinese Communists said the crews of the Red warships were praised by Lin Biao, vice premier and minister of defense.

The Nationalist announcement did not give the size of the ships but gunboats usually weigh from 300 to 600 tons.

The Peking broadcast said, "Since the intruding vessels of the Chiang Kai-shek gang ignored repeated warning, the PLA (Chinese Peoples Liberation Army) fishing boat escort fleet, having reached the end of its forbearance, launched assaults on them."

Income Tax Questions, Answers

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q—My son opened a bank account with the money he makes from his summer job. The bank wants his tax account number. What is that? A—For your son, it is his Social Security number. The bank is required by law to have the tax account number and to report interest payments on all accounts earning $10 or more to the Revenue Service.

Q—I bought an air conditioner recently. How do I go about getting a refund on the excise tax I paid on it? A—To find out whether you will receive a refund, check with the dealer from whom you bought the air conditioner.

Q—When is the next quarterly payment due on the Social Security I owe for my maid? A—This quarterly payment, for the months of April, May and June, is due on or before Aug. 2.

Q—I filed an amended return after I found I forgot to include some interest and dividend payments my wife received. I just got a bill for interest on the additional amount of tax I paid. On what basis am I liable for this interest? A—The federal tax laws require that interest at the rate of one-half percent a month be charged on taxes not paid when they are due, regardless of the reason for late payment.

Q—My return is being audited and I'm supposed to bring in my records on the business entertaining and travel I did. What do I need to substantiate these items? A—Generally speaking you must be able to produce records to establish each of the following: 1) the amount of the expense; 2) the time and place; 3) the business purpose; and 4) the business relationship of those entertained.

Q—I have just turned 65. How does this change my tax status? A—For one thing, you are entitled to an additional $600 exemption because of age. It will also mean that, if you itemize your deductions, your medical and drug expenses will be fully deductible and not subject to the 3 per cent and 1 per cent floors. These and other provisions will apply to your whole tax year. A complete description of these and other tax benefits for those 65 and over is given in the publication, "Tax Benefits for Older Americans," IRS Document No. 5569. This booklet may be obtained without charge at any Internal Revenue Service office.

New Books on Shelves At Public Library

New books on the shelves of Lovett Memorial Library this week (Aug. 8) are:

"Report From A Chinese Village" by Jan Myrdal — this portrait of a Chinese village is the story not of ideas or theories, but of China's people, the peasant base of the world's largest country.

"The Book of Diamonds" by Joan Dickinson — the complete story of diamonds, beginning with the first diamonds ever discovered, the author tells the story of how they are mined, cut and faceted, the roles in history played by the most famous and infamous diamonds of all times.

"Journey of a Soul" by Pope John XXIII — the journal and various writings of Angelo Giuseppe Roncalli, Pope John XXIII, which record and reveal his personal spiritual life from 1895 to 1963.

"The Founding Father" by Richard J. Whalen — this major biography, in preparation for more than two years, tells the almost incredible story of Joseph P. Kennedy, grandson of a poor Irish immigrant and father of the thirty-fifth President of the United States.

"House Out of Order" by Richard Bolling — a Congressman offers a stimulating program of reform for the House of Representatives to bring back true representative government to the American people.

"Guns at the Forks" by Walter O'Meara — the story of Fort Duquesne and Fort Pitt in the war between France and England for the ownership of a continent combines first-rate scholarship with the excitement of a great historical novel.

"Houseplants for City Dwellers" by Alys Sutcliffe — here is a practical and easy-to-follow handbook for the city dweller who is just starting to cope with plants in a city home, as well as for the person who has tried and failed before.

"Why We Can't Wait" by Martin Luther King Jr. — presents the logic of the Negro's dissatisfaction with well-meaning but futile "due process" step-at-a-time plans for achieving a condition that is one hundred years overdue.

"The Sheepskin Psychosis" by John Keats — attacks the idea that more students must be admitted into universities and discusses the real values and shortcomings of the college experience.

"American Men at Arms" by F. van Wyck Mason — the three great holocausts of this century—World War I, World War II, the Korean conflict — bred death and destruction. Yet out of the utter desolation came some of the finest American literature as exemplified in this book.

"You and Architecture" by Alfred B. Parker — the major portion of this book is devoted to a skillful presentation of yardsticks for the general public to use in measuring the architectural value of buildings, and the final chapter provides a tantalizing glimpse into the house of the future.

"Thirteen Ways to Kill A Man" by Basil Davenport — these 13 stories illustrate 13 forms of murder and include "Lamb to the Slaughter" by Roald Dahl; "The Turn of the Tide" by C. S. Forester; and "Hop-Frog" by Edgar Allan Poe.

New Yorker Is Appearing in Palo Duro Play

CANYON (Spl) — Glenn Dowlen, Jr. of New York City now is appearing in the production "Thundering Sounds of the West" in the Palo Duro Canyon Amphitheater. Dowlen has been singing professionally for the last ten years and has appeared extensively in opera and oratorio in the East. For the last seven years he has appeared as soloist with the New York City Center Opera and has traveled with them when they made their annual tours.

Dowlen is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Dowlen of Happy and is visiting with them for a few weeks. He is joining other gifted young people of the Panhandle to give his support to a development which he considers important for the area in which he grew up. He will play the part of the resident preacher in the little western town.

Dowlen attended WTSU and the University of Texas where he received his BA degree. He obtained his masters degree from Louisiana State University at Baton Rouge. In New York City he continued his work with John Williams, Alexander Kipnis and Menotti. Among his accomplishments are appearances with orchestras under Bernstein and Stokowski.

TO TOUR U.S.
MOSCOW (UPI) — David Oistrakh, one of the world's great violinists, will tour the United States and Canada this fall with the Moscow Philharmonic Orchestra, it was announced Saturday.

NATIVE BEAUTY — Marcella Sharron Ahtone is Miss Indian America of 1963. A Kiowa, and formerly of Muskogee, Okla., she now lives at Billings, Mont.

By LYLE WILSON

The Republican leadership of the U.S. Senate has an opportunity to score on the great society in the forthcoming debate of compulsory unionism.

Up for action will be repeal of section 14-B of the Taft-Hartley Act. Section 14-B provides that the states shall not be deprived of their right to outlaw compulsory unionism if they are so minded. This right was not conferred on the states by Taft-Hartley, which was enacted in 1947. The right of each state to forbid compulsory unionism within its borders is implicit in the U.S. Constitution.

Labor Demands Repeal

The House voted last week to repeal 14-B in response to demands of organized labor. The Democratic leadership of the House surrendered unconditionally to the labor demand. Labor bosses insisted that repeal be accomplished without trimmings of any kind, such as amendments to protect workers against outrageous violations of minority rights. And that is how it was done.

Chairman Adam Clayton Powell (D-N.Y.) of the House Labor Committee brought the repeal to the House floor under what became known as the Powell gag rule. This meant the repealer was not subject to amendment of any kind. There lies the opportunity for the Senate Republican leadership to get up off the floor and make a fight of it. The Democratic majority in Powell's committee rejected six amendments offered by the Republicans to protect minority rights of members of compulsory unionism. The nature of these amendments is not generally known. They were as follows:

—Forbid a union to deny or limit membership or apprenticeship on account of race, color, religion or national origin.

—Prohibit the use of union dues or assessments for political purposes not directly connected with the union's statutory function as a bargaining agent.

—Forbid a union to fine or otherwise to penalize a member for exercising any right guaranteed to all citizens by the U.S. Constitution or by federal law. (This would include freedom of speech.)

—Exempt from compulsory union membership persons whose religious beliefs or scruples forbid them to join a union but who are willing to contribute to the U.S. Treasury or to an appropriate charity a sum equal to their union dues.

—Require a secret ballot election to determine that a majority in a union shop favored the union which was to bargain for them.

—Require union officers in a union shop to submit non-Communist affidavits to the National Labor Relations Board.

Democratic leadership would not permit these amendments to be offered in the House of Representatives. Labor objected it will be difficult for Senators in the bright spotlight of Senate debate to vote against such amendments, with the possible exception of the provision for a non-Communist oath. No public notice was focused on the House Labor Committee when Democrats rejected those six Republican amendments.

The opportunity of the Senate Republican leadership now is to compel the Great Society senators to vote those amendments up or down on the Senate floor where the public can observe and assess the process.

Talking About Daniel Boone And His Colorful Cast

By JOAN CROSBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
NEW YORK (NEA) — Fess Parker has discovered a hitherto unknown breed of actor—the color star.

It seems just about the entire cast of his NBC-TV series, Daniel Boone, reacts favorably to a color camera. Viewers will be able to judge for themselves next season when the series turns to tint.

"I don't know who a black-and-white actor would be, unless someone like Bogart," he said.

"but I do know when we made our color test a few weeks ago, the cast came alive as people. The crew was very enthusiastic about the results."

Fess began ticking off the color assets headed by Patricia Blair's red hair and green eyes.

Darby Hinton's white hair, Ed Ames' Indian outfit and Veronica Cartwright's "wicked blue eyes."

"I've got a costume that has Indian beading on it, and Darby's outfit is practically a copy of mine. The girls, who weren't too happy last year with their drab clothes, will be more colorful this year. The colors may not be as historically accurate, but they'll be better to see."

The cast is also shooting several shows on location, near Kanab, Utah. "I think five week on location is some kind of record for a television show," Fess said.

Next season the series will be seen in 170 markets, more than this year. This should help over 200 Daniel Boone products which are tied in with the show. In some areas, where Fess has made personal appearances, he has discovered the reception he got from fans was "nearly like the Crockett days."

The entire Parker clan, which includes wife Marcie, Eli, 4, and daughter Ashley, 8 months, will live in Kanab during the location stint. Eli, the image of his father, will probably behave himself. But if he does require disciplining, he will take it like the philosopher he is.

"The other day he sassed his mother," Fess said. "She warned him not to try that again, and he repeated it. She told him once more and he would get a spanking. He still sassed her, so she spanked him. I was in another room and heard this. I went in and asked him what he had done to deserve a spanking. He shrugged. 'You mean you don't know why you were spanked?'"

"Well, maybe if I spank you, you'll remember."

"So I gave him a good spanking. A few minutes later he came into the room where I was sitting with Marcie. I said, 'Now do you have any idea why you got two spankings?' He spread his hands wide and said, 'Because that's the way life is.'"

Samuel Goldwyn, the pink-cheeked, 81-year-old Hollywood legend, says television moguls will soon be hurting for movies to show on Early, Mid, and Late shows if Hollywood's trend to dirty, sexy pictures continues.

"Fifty per cent of the pictures being made today can't be shown to a family. If the pictures continue this way, we are going to have censorship. I am bitterly opposed to censorship, but I am also bitterly opposed to the pictures being shown. I proved, in 'Wuthering Heights' that it is possible to do a great love story without having your lovers go to bed on the screen."

Goldwyn was one of the last holdouts in the matter of selling his films to television. But he gave in early this year and sold his films to the CBS owned and operated stations. Among them are several Danny Kaye films and the award-winning "Best Years of Our Lives."

Goldwyn was persuaded to release his films to television as the result of a conversation he had with the manufacturer in the barber shop of the hotel he patronizes when in New York.

"She told me that she worked until 7 o'clock one night, and went home tired. She cooked dinner, made herself comfortable in front of the television set and watched two old movies, one with Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers and the other 'For Whom the Bells Tolls' with Ingrid Bergman and Gary Cooper. 'Those films were like a breath of air,' she told me. 'I haven't seen such pictures in a long time.' I said to myself, 'That's where my pictures come in' and I decided to release them to television."

Among those who will "voice" the animated television special of "Alice in Wonderland" for ABC's use late this year are Sammy Davis, Zsa Zsa Gabor, Howard Morris and Bill Dana. Davis will speak for the Cheshire Cat; Dana will use his Jose Jimenez character dialect for the White Knight. Young Janet will be the voice of the White Rabbit.

"I had every sports gadget in the book as a kid," Paul says. "Every other boy in town envied me. But I'm an actor and his father had. Newman, now Scott's friends don't have that same envy. I'm sure he wishes says his father, when Paul was a boy in Cleveland, owned a sports store.

Paul Newman is worried that his son won't have as happy a childhood as he had — even though he has more money than his father had. Newman, now Scott's friends don't have that same envy. I'm sure he wishes says his father, when Paul was a boy in Cleveland, owned a sports store.

Victor Mature reminisced about his Broadway days, and the lesson he learned from Gertrude Lawrence in "Lady in the Dark."

In one scene in the musical, he had to light her cigarette. The first time he tried it, he held the match so she had to bend down to get the light.

"Victor, dear," Miss Lawrence said, "never hold a match low for a lady over 27. It makes her neck look frightful."

Ever since, when Mature holds a match for a lady over 27, he holds it high so she can stretch her neck to reach it.

Monopoly With Real Money

By DICK KLEINER
HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Footloose and Fancy Freeway—Sir Alec Guinness says his ambition is to make "a totally silent film." He says a movie without words would have universal appeal. . . Pamela Tiffin, working in "The Moving Target" at Warner Brothers, always sprays herself with perfume before she does a scene. (Anticipating smell movies, maybe?). . . Red-hot producer Martin Ransohoff ("The Sandpiper," etc.) wants to try directing next. . . In "Lt. Robin Crusoe, USN," Akim Tamiroff plays a South Pacific native and he speaks a kind of Polynesian doubletalk.

The problem of what to call "Those Magnificent Men in Their Flying Machines" overseas was a big one. The producers wanted it translated literally, but several countries resisted.

So here is how it came out in some countries: France — "Those Wonderful Crazy Guys in Their Funny Machines."

Germany — "The Foolhardy Men in Their Flying Boxes."

Spain — "Those Wacky Guys in Their Crazy Jalopies."

Talking about Hollywood's wild parties (practically a fling of the past), Robert Q. Lewis told me about the wildest party he ever attended — and it was in New York.

"Billy Rose called me one day," Robert Q. says, "and asked me if I could afford to lose $3,000 in cash. I checked with my accountant who said that I couldn't afford to lose it, but I had it if I wanted to use it."

Well, Robert Q. decided to risk it, and went to Rose's apartment where they played Monopoly — for real money. Lewis came out a bit ahead; he says the big loser was Bill Zeckendorf, the real estate man.

Tuesday Weld is one of Hollywood's happiest young actresses. She wears big, broad-brimmed jobs in the summer and fur ones in the winter and others in between.

Right now, she has closets full of them. And she says that when she marries, she doesn't know where her husband will find room for his things.

She may be in for a few surprises.

Germany — "The Foolhardy Men in Their Flying Boxes."

Spain — "Those Wacky Guys in Their Crazy Jalopies."

Television in Review

By ROBERT MUSEL
United Press International
NEW YORK (UPI) — The last time I saw Frank De Felitta of the NBC-TV news department he was hoping his infra-red cameras had picked up the glow of a ghost in one of the stately homes of England.

There was a luminous spot on the film but being an honest fellow he had to concede it was probably a manufacturer's flaw rather than the wraith of a former ancestor of the Marquis of Bath—even though the latter interpretation might have helped the viewing figures.

From this documentary on the shades of the past De Felitta has now plunged with equal realism into an hour-long special on a problem of the immediate present—teen-agers. He is producing, writing and directing it in Lexington, Mass., which he considers an "ideal town" for such a study—since it, he says, representative of several hundred other suburban communities on the outskirts of large cities.

NBC is not alone in inquiring into what youth is doing and why. David Wolper productions in association with ABC-TV news is working on the same general theme also for a one-hour program. This will be narrated by Van Heflin and will profile six or seven youngsters from a brilliant student to a school dropout to a typical teenage girl.

Both NBC and ABC have tentatively titled their productions, "Teen-age Revolution." One or the other will probably come up with a different label to avoid a confusion of identity.

The Channel Swim: Part of Red Skelton's production team is in Britain filming musical acts in color for use in "The Red Skelton Hour" which makes its bow, for the 15th consecutive season, on CBS-TV Sept. 14.

"The Ed Sullivan Show" kicks off two days earlier on the same network for its 18th season with an array of stars which includes Britain's unshorn Beatles, Soupy Sales and another British Liverpool singing star, Cilla Black.

NEW YORK (UPI) — ABC will handle the Beatles next fall. The network has set aside the 10:30-11 a. m. slot Saturdays for an animated (in color) series beginning Sept. 25. The famous four will be depicted in cartoon style each week in two adventure segments and in a sing-along bit. Naturally, the series will be entitled "The Beatles."

House Appropriations Group Delays Construction Request

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Appropriations Committee scorned the Defense Department Friday for duplicating medical training facilities while denying a request for $8.3 million worth of construction at Brooke Army Medical Center, San Antonio.

Both the Navy and Air Force engage in similar training for their medical technicians and other personnel including certain medical service officers.

"The committee does not feel that the Department of Defense has given adequate attention or study to the feasibility of combining training of this type on an inter-service basis rather than carrying out separate programs in each of the military services," a report accompanying the military construction appropriation bill said.

The committee noted that special construction features for such as laboratories at Brooke were only 3 per cent complete when the money request was made.

Request Denied

"The request is denied and the committee will expect the department of defense to make more adequate studies in the areas outlined," the report said.

The committee also denied a $1.3 million request for medical laboratory construction at Fort Sam Houston. It questioned whether an increase in almost 60 per cent of the size of the laboratory was necessary.

Overall, however, Texas fared second best in the nation in receiving committee approval for funds requested by the department. The committee approved $46,963,000 worth of construction for the fiscal year which started July 1. This figure was exceeded only by California where a total of $93,992,000 was approved.

Here are other sums approved by the committee for various construction projects: "It was with wrath and indignation that the Soviet people learned about the new move of the government of the United States of America directed against the Vietnamese people," the statement said.

It said the decision to send 50,000 more troops "is another provocation of American imperialism which is trying to break the will of the people of Viet Nam in their heroic struggle for freedom and independence."

The statement quoted an Aug. 2 North Viet Nam statement accusing the United States of sharpening still more the situation in Indochina and Southeast Asia to cover up defeats in the south.

"The Soviet Union ... firmly sides with the Vietnamese people in their struggle," the statement said. "The Soviet people support the statement of the government of the Democratic Republic of (North) Viet Nam and emphatically denounce the new act of aggression."

It spoke of U.S. offers of peace negotiations and said "words must be backed by concrete deeds and the aggression against the Vietnamese people ended at once." But, it said, the U.S. ruling circles only aggravate the conflict.

The Soviet statement, quoting "leading U.S.S.R. circles," also condemned Johnson's request for $1.7 billion dollars as another continuation of aggressive policy.

It said the solution of the Vietnamese problem can be found only by strict observance of the 1954 Geneva agreements on Indochina — an end of bombing, withdrawal of U. S. forces and settlements by the Vietnamese people themselves.

West Hopes To Halt Spread of Nuclear Arms

GENEVA (UPI) — The West hopes to present its plan for halting the spread of nuclear weapons at next Thursday's meeting of the 17-nation disarmament conference, it was disclosed.

The plan, now being drawn up by negotiators for the United States, Britain, Canada and Italy, will consist of two main points: Nuclear nations will not give atomic weapons or information to non-nuclear countries and non-nuclear nations will renounce such weapons.

The disarmament conference meets only on Tuesdays and Thursdays. It is hoped the plan can be ready by next Thursday but officials said there could be a slight delay.

CONSIDER BREAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Birch E. Bayh, D-Ind., thinks the United States should "seriously consider" severing diplomatic relations with Indonesia.

Byan said his suggestion was prompted by "a new series of insults and government-inspired threats from mobs" aimed at U. S. Ambassador Marshall Green.

The senator said Green should be recalled and relations severed until the present Indonesian government is replaced or "until Mr. Sukarno begins behaving more like a chief of state than a spoiled and dangerously mischievous little boy."

AEC CONDUCTS TEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Atomic Energy Commission exploded another low-yield underground nuclear device at its Nevada test site.

It was the 16th U.S. weapons-development nuclear test of 1965. A low-yield explosion is equivalent to less than 20,000 tons of TNT.

Actor Everett Sloane Found Dead In His Home

WEST LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Actor Everett Sloane, a member of Orson Welles Mercury Theater group and featured in "Citizen Kane," was found dead Friday at his home. Police said his death was an apparent suicide.

Sloane, 55, apparently died from an overdose of pills, according to Sgt. Frank Gravante. Gravante said there were two notes found at the scene.

The veteran of hundreds of movie and television parts had been starred or featured in "The Men," "Patterns," "Prince of Foxes," and other films. Police said a member of the family had called Thursday to express fear Sloane planned to take his life because he had bought some pills.

His wife, Lillian, said Sloane was in the bedroom of their Brentwood home when she found him. The coroner's office was called on to confirm cause of death.

A long-time radio actor on "The Goldbergs," who made his stage debut with the Cherry Lane Theatre group in New York, the slender, husky-voiced Sloane was one of the busiest actors in television and the movies.

His association with Welles also included a featured role in "Lady From Shanghai."

The New York native had just finished work on a television show, "Honey West," of which only one episode had been completed.

Jerome, Arizona, is the newest "ghost town" in America since its last mine closed in 1953.

By FOSTER WHALEY
We were very sorry to learn of the severe economic loss that T. C. Jackson, White Deer suffered when he recently lost 49 head of large, young, short horn cows. These cattle broke into an old building and got into a can of sodium chlorate that had rusted out. Sodium chlorate has been used for years to kill bindweed. It is a soil sterilant that kills by dehydrating any organic substance with which it comes in contact. In this case the intestinal walls of valuable cattle.

Sometimes sodium chlorate cans are used to store seed, salt and other items about the farm. If you have a portion of a can of chlorate left, lay a cardboard on the top of the chlorate warning any person that might open it up and plan to put the chemical out.

In the 1950's another farmer in the Groom vicinity put some of this out thinking it was salt and killed 12 head of good steers.

Labels get dim and weathered so their warnings cannot be read.

This brings up a good point about reading labels. Never take anyone's word about how to apply certain chemical. Read the label.

In the average farm store you can easily find two hundred different products. It is impossible for any dealer to be familiar with all the labels. NEVER store a chemical in anything except its original container. Destroy small portions of insecticides in containers by burning or other suitable means.

The Texas Farm Bureau recently mailed me a legislative report on the 59th Regular Session of the State Legislature. Here is a summary of the result.

Farm Bureau supported 20 bills that passed. Farm Bureau supported 10 bills that failed to pass. Farm Bureau opposed 7 bills that failed to pass. Farm Bureau opposed 2 bills that passed.

Many farmers will be glad to know that the speed limit of pickup trucks (one ton or less in size) was raised to the same speed limits as passenger cars. This will become effective Aug. 31, 1965. Senator Grady Hazlewood co-authored this bill in the Senate.

Another bill H.J.R. 79 would place a Constitutional Amendment before the voters in Texas.

ONLY A DUMMY
NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — A "torpedo" dredged up by a fishing trawler from 36 fathoms Thursday has turned out to be a harmless dummy mine filled with plaster, officials said.

Fishermen, the Navy and the Coast Guard had treated the long, metallic object as the real thing because of the loss of eight lives late last month on a scollup trawler which had dredged up a torpedo in its net. It exploded on deck.

Divers said the dummy mine was of the type fished from submarine torpedo tubes in mine-laying exercises.

MORE CAUGHT
TOKYO (UPI) — Police arrested three persons today to bring to 47 the total number of arrests made in an 18-month-old international gold smuggling case.

Police said the three men, a Briton, a Swede and a Lebanese, belonged to a ring believed to have smuggled 10 tons of gold bars into Japan.

in November 1966. This amendment, if adopted by the voters, would require tax assessor-collectors to assess land used for agricultural purposes on only the consideration of its use as a agricultural land and would prevent the taxation of farm an dranch land on speculative values, or on the basis of its proximity to cities.

In New Jersey the voters of that State passed a similar amendment a few years back. Farmers were being taxed off the land.

We noticed a number of farm bills that Representative Granger McIlhaney authored that got a favorable nod by the legislature. I have a summary and a brief explanation on all these bills in my office if you are interested.

My good friend Flip Breedlove, former County Agent of Donley County, advises me the date for the Rolling Plains Registered Beef Cattle Association's barbecue will be Aug. 19th; the time 6:30 p.m. It will be held at the Clarendon Country Club.

Dairy Projects Popular Features With 4-H Girls

Just about every 4-H girl at some time decides to try her hand at a dairy foods project. This is proved by the large enrollment in the National 4-H Dairy Foods program since its introduction 18 years ago. Peak enrollment was well over three-quarter million in a single year. The Carnation Company has given continuous sponsorship to the program.

The dairy foods project fits in well with other cooking and meal planning programs offered in 4-H, and at the same time develops for the youngsters an appreciation of adequate nutrition and the importance of milk in the daily diet. Girls and boys from 9 to 19 years of age are enrolled in this project.

A new publication entitled "Exploring Dairy Food Science" gives interesting facts about food science and suggests experiments, demonstrations and individual projects to undertake.

The authoritative booklet is one of the most modern approaches to learning about science of food and how it affects health, growth and vitality.

Hay Testing Is Getting More Sample Response

With summer here, more and more Farm Bureau members are taking advantage of the Texas Farm Bureau hay-testing service and sending in samples to the state office, according to Walter Meyer, TFB commodity director who is coordinating the program.

County Farm Bureaus have "hay-mailer" envelopes for the convenience of farmers in sending in their hay samples for protein testing. The special envelopes contain all necessary information on the back for obtaining a representative hay sample. Adequate space is allotted for listing such information as is needed for the hay test and for offering the particular lot of hay for sale in the Farm Bureau Hay Report that is sent out for posting in county offices.

Reeves, Atwood Are Gold Star Winners

Phyllis Atwood, 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Atwood, 409 Magnolia, was selected as Gold Star girl for Gray County 4-H for 1965.

The 4-H Gold Star Award is awarded to one girl and one boy each year. This is the highest award the extension service awards a 4-H member. A 4-H member may receive the award only one time.

Phyllis has been an active 4-H member for five years, having been a member of the Blue Bonnet 4-H Club and then Top O' Texas.

She has been very successful in 4-H contest work. She has represented Gray County in district eliminations in Canyon, in favorite food show 2 years, and in District Dress Revue for two years. This summer Phyllis was selected as first alternate at district dress revue for state revue. In June she served on a team of four to represent District 1, in 4-H Roundup at College Station, in plant identification. She will represent Gray County in Better Bake show at Tri State Fair in September at Amarillo.

Referring to crop residues, he makes this statement as harvest is beginning — on what appears to be a bumper grain sorghum yield in the Blackland region.

In order to derive the most benefit from residue, (primarily stubble) it should be shredded and mixed into the top six or eight inches of soil promptly after harvest. The moist leaves and stalk will provide a good source of food and energy for soil organisms and will be converted into soil organic matter prior to the 1966 growing season.

If the land is to be fallow until mid-April, there is little advantage to adding chemical nitrogen fertilizer when residue is turned under. Decomposition processes are normally very rapid in most Blackland soils, and nitrogen added to "speed-up" rate of decomposition will be of more value if applied later to feed the following crop. Box explains.

However, if a crop such as small grain is to follow within 60 to 75 days after harvest, added nitrogen will likely be a paying proposition.

Stalks that are left standing until late in the year (November-December) may require additional nitrogen to aid in natural rotting processes when they are turned under. About 15 to 30 pounds of nitrogen per ton of air dry residue is usually sufficient for this situation.

Farmers who are tempted to graze, bale or burn sorghum residues should think carefully before using them for anything other than a source of raw materials for conversion into soil organic material. Box concludes.

Need for Quality, Quantity in Hay Is Emphasized

With approximately 80 percent of all hay produced in Texas being fed on farms where it is raised, farmers and ranchers should begin placing more emphasis on producing maximum amounts of high quality hay, says Dr. J. Neal Pratt, Extension agronomist, Texas A&M University.

"Producers can readily improve quality and yield of hay by adequate at the time," he adds.

A soil test is the best way to determine fertilizer needs. Pratt emphasizes. Too often farmers think of nitrogen as being the only nutrient required for maximum production. However, a deficiency of phosphorus, potassium or other nutrients can greatly reduce the quantity and quality of hay.

Correct cutting time is vitally important. Young plants contain high levels of protein, but as the plant matures, fiber increases and protein and other quality factors decrease. Therefore, an optimum growth stage must be selected for harvesting.

To gain good balance between quantity and quality, hay crops should be cut just prior to seed head formation, with exception of Coastal Bermuda which should be cut at about four week intervals.

Pratt explains that curing procedures also affect protein content and overall hay quality. It is important to properly cure and bale hay as quickly as possible to retain leaves, color and nutrients.

Panhandle Water Conservation News

By FELIX W. RYALS
District Manager

This precious commodity we call water has become one of the top news items of our time. As a news item, it ranks right along with war, peace, population explosion and economic survival.

Did you ever hear of Salmonella? If you have maybe you thought it was some relation of the salmon. Out in sunny California, that state with the largest population in the U.S., they are rapidly getting acquainted with Salmonella. Riverside, California, a community of some June and July of this year. The city of Riverside gets its water from two sources. The city owns 30 deep water wells located approximately 15 miles from the city. Some of these wells are over 1,000 feet deep and have been traditionally regarded by the city water department and State Health Department as pure water producers. Because of this the water produced from the wells has not been chlorinated. The other source is the Colorado River Aqueduct.

During June and July of this year, Riverside has had one of the worst water-borne epidemics in its history. Some 18,000 people were affected with three deaths reported. During the middle portion of May a sharp increase in cases of gastroenteritis, an intestinal disease accompanied by nausea, vomiting and abdominal cramps, fever, headache and diarrhea. The bacteria that caused this was Salmonella typhimurium. By the last week of May, approximately 3,000 people were being treated for gastroenteritis. The County Health Dept. already at work trying to locate the source of the bacteria, cleared the city water supply system as the cause of the outbreak. The Health Department was using the standard test used to detect the presence of harmful bacteria. Microbiologists were flown into Riverside. These microbiologists again checked the water system, using more technical standards. By June 4, the harmful bacteria Salmonella was found in six samples of water taken from six different areas.

The big question was — how had the Salmonella evaded detection by standard tests. The presence of potentially dangerous bacteria in water had been based on a count of coliform organisms present. Coliform organisms themselves do not cause disease and are commonly present in the gastro-intestinal tract of humans and animals. Should the coliform count be high this indicates the presence of potentially dangerous human and animal excreta in the water supply.

The Riverside, California situation not solved as yet and has caused water and health experts all over the nation to take a new look at the standard coliform index which has been used world wide for 50 years or more.

Agriculture Is Big Business

The often sleepy atmosphere of the Texas countryside is an economic paradox. Behind this traditional rural facade is one of the state's largest industries, one which reaches from the remotest cotton patch to the city's fine cafes and fashion centers.

They call it agribusiness, and each year it pumps about $6.3 billion worth of prosperity into the economy. What's more, that figure is on the increase.

Agribusiness is defined as the sum total of farming and ranching, manufacture and distribution of farm goods to farmers and ranchers, and the processing and distribution of agricultural commodities to consumers.

The business of raising raw products from farming and ranching amounts to about $2.4 billion per year and is the state's second largest industry. Only one product—oil at $3 billion a year—tops agriculture.

The picture is even more imposing on a national scale. Although the United States is becoming less and less a farming society, agribusiness is still the Number 1 industry by a considerable margin.

R. B. Tootell, governor of the Farm Credit Administration, says the steadily declining number of farm workers has not hindered agricultural growth. Agribusiness still employs more people than, for example, the steel, automobile, transportation and public utilities industries combined.

Back in Texas, statistics are proportionally similar to those of the entire nation. John G. McIlhaney, Extension Service economist at Texas A&M University, says about 40 percent of the state citizenry is engaged in some phase of agribusiness. A mere 8 percent is in actual farming and ranching, but the commodities are being produced in larger quantities and of better quality than ever before.

ULZIO, Italy (UPI)—Santina and Giuseppina Foglia, the six year old Siamese twins separated by surgery May 10, will soon have a baby brother or sister.

Mrs. Elide Foglia is expecting a child in seven months. Dr. Luigi Solerio, the surgeon who separated the twins, has assured her that in all likelihood the baby will be normal.

Root Rot Is A Plant Killer

Homeowners who find shrubs and ornamentals dying during the warm season may discover a fungal disease at the "root" of their problem.

A disease, cotton root rot which is common to all areas of Texas except the Panhandle and High Plains, is often the cause of these plant deaths, says Wendell Horne, Extension plant pathologist, Texas A&M University.

Horne explains that the fungus, Phymatotrichum omnivorum, is known to infect 2,000 species of wild and cultivated plants. Infected plants die suddenly after the first symptoms of wilting. The roots decay and when pulled from the soil, the bark of the root slips easily and has woolly strands of the fungus clinging to the surface.

The disease causing organism is capable of slow movement through the soil and can be transmitted to new areas by infected transplants. If a home is built in an area where cotton has been raised, it doesn't necessarily mean that the plants grown there will have the disease. The fungus must be in the soil and must have conditions suitable for development.

Despite claims to the contrary, there is no satisfactory chemical control for cotton root rot. If the disease has invaded the plants there is no control—chemical or otherwise.

Research on the fungus disease dates back to 1886 when L. H. Pammel from Washington University in St. Louis began experiments on this problem in Texas. He discovered that the disease was caused by a fungus but had little luck in controlling it. Research has been carried on in the Rio Grande Valley for 30 years, employing latest scientific agricultural techniques, but no cure has been found.

An accident which occurred in North Central Texas near Iowa Park was thought to have solved the problem that had faced researchers for decades. An oil pipeline ruptured and flooded a nearby cotton field with an abundance of crude oil. When the field was finally cleared of oil and again planted, the root rot fungus did not appear.

Continued research on this possibility proved that too much oil was required to be practical. Similar results were gained from tests on other chemicals and fungicides thought to be valuable in root rot control.

It is not, however, a lost cause for the homeowners. There are a host of ornamentals — from 30 ft. high trees to small flowers — that are immune to the disease. Since the disease is more prevalent in alkaline soils, it sometimes helps to acidify the soil with materials such as sulphur. These may correct certain situations but none are satisfactory in every job. The safest and most practical way to avoid the disease is to plant resistant species. A list of these can be found in Extension Service publication L-390, "Cotton Root Rot."

A DATE WITH GEMINI—This 76-pound hunk of equipment will be carried into orbit along with Gemini 5, the next two-man space capsule. After it is ejected from the capsule and goes into its own orbit around the earth, the astronauts will track it and attempt to catch up with it. The satellite—called a Rendezvous Evaluation Pod—is equipped with batteries and flashing lights and a radar to reply to signals from the Gemini radar. Projection in front is an antenna.

Known Seismograph Director in Tulsa Retires

TULSA, Okla. — E. J. P. van der Linden, resident director of Seismograph Service Limited and widely known in international oil exploration circles, has retired as resident director of Seismograph Service Corporation's English subsidiary after 29 years with SSC.

In announcing van der Linden's retirement, G. H. Westby, president of SSC, said Jack K. Smith, former manager of SSL's geophysical division, has been named resident director of the company, which has headquarters at Holwood, Kent, England.

Westby said van der Linden will remain as a consultant to the parent company. A native of Belgium, van der Linden became a naturalized citizen of Canada in 1932. During the 1930's he was a geophysicist for several oil companies in the U. S. and Canada.

Fireflies are a valuable source of rare chemicals known to Research Scientists and Chemists as the substrate, "Luciferin", and the enzyme, "Luciferase". These chemicals are used in Medical Research with the aim of diagnosing and curing human ailments, including cancer. They are also being used to detect the presence of life on other planets. Experiments are being conducted not only in the United States, but all over the world. Sigma is the chief source of supply for these chemicals.

The demand for fireflies is so great that they are now extending their program out of state. Sigma is paying for the fireflies caught, plus shipping costs. So, for anyone from 6 to 60 who wants to have fun and earn money at the same time, Sigma offers the opportunity.

Any organization such as church groups, boy scouts, 4-H clubs etc., or any individual who wishes to participate in the program should contact the Sigma Chemical Company, 3500 DeKalb, St. Louis, Missouri, 63118 for details.

He joined SSC in 1963, and for the next five years headed SSC operations in Trinidad and Venezuela. In 1941 he returned to SSC's Tulsa headquarters as advisor to the president.

Van der Linden went to England to establish the English subsidiary in 1946. Smith was one of his first employees, and was a member of the first SSL seismic crew sent to Trinidad in 1946.

Under van der Linden's direction SSL has conducted widespread seismic exploration activities in the Lowlands of Europe, the British empire, the Middle East and Africa.

Presently SSL is conducting seismic exploration work in the United Kingdom, North Sea, Holland, Denmark, Libya, Nigeria, Kuwait, Abu Dhabi, Oman, Assam, Indonesia and Australia.

Texaco Shows Gain For 6-Month Period

NEW YORK — Consolidated net income for Texaco Inc. for the first six months of 1965 increased 11.4 percent to reach a record $306,817,495, or $2.27 a share, it was disclosed today by J. Howard Ramin Jr., chairman of the Board and Chief Executive Officer. This compares with $275,119,654, or $2.04 a share, for the same period of 1964.

"The increase in earnings is due entirely to improvement in operations," Ramin added. Texaco continues to maintain a balanced position in its overall operations, Texaco's Chairman reported. Including equity in affiliates, gross production of crude oil and natural gas liquids during the first half of 1965 averaged 1,974,000 barrels a day up 10.1 percent over the first half of 1964. Refinery runs amounted to 1,806,000 barrels a day, an increase of 9.4 percent, and product sales totaled 1,916,000 barrels a day, a boost of 10.5 percent.

Ramin also reported an upward revision in capital and exploratory expenditures which are now expected to approach $700 million for the year.

Net income for the first half includes dividends from domestic and foreign affiliates totaling $98,228,000 before income taxes. Such dividends for the comparable period of 1964 were $102,414,361.

Consolidated net income for the three months ending June 30 amounted to $143,875,714, or $1.07 a share, compared with $128,758,285, or 96 cents a share, for the second quarter of 1964.

New Agricultural Chemical Division Formed in Atlanta

NEW YORK, N. Y. — Tennessee Corporation, a subsidiary of Cities Service Company, has formed a new agricultural chemicals division with headquarters in Atlanta. It was announced today by R. R. Burns, president of Tennessee.

E. M. Shelton has been appointed president of the new division which represents a consolidation of the agricultural chemicals marketing and agricultural operations divisions. Shelton, who will transfer from New York to Atlanta, will continue as executive vice president for marketing of Tennessee.

The consolidation step is designed to accelerate Tennessee's expansion in the retail fertilizer field, particularly in establishing and servicing of additional bulk blending plants located in the major fertilizer consuming areas, Burns stated. Tennessee's bulk blender plants provide fertilizers blended to meet the needs of local soil conditions.

The functions of the agricultural chemicals marketing and agricultural operations divisions will continue as separate but closely coordinated departments with C. E. Workman as general manager of marketing, and W. H. Funk as general manager of operations.

Firefly Catching May Be Worth More Than Ever

The Sigma Chemical Company of St. Louis, Missouri explains that it may be worth more than you think. The reason - Sigma is engaged in their annual firefly catching campaign to collect fireflies for medical and space research.

Fireflies are a valuable source of rare chemicals known to Research Scientists and Chemists as the substrate, "Luciferin", and the enzyme, "Luciferase". These chemicals are used in Medical Research with the aim of diagnosing and curing human ailments, including cancer. They are also being used to detect the presence of life on other planets. Experiments are being conducted not only in the United States, but all over the world. Sigma is the chief source of supply for these chemicals.

The demand for fireflies is so great that they are now extending their program out of state. Sigma is paying for the fireflies caught, plus shipping costs. So, for anyone from 6 to 60 who wants to have fun and earn money at the same time, Sigma offers the opportunity.

Magnetic Tape Protection from Fire Problem Solved by Sinclair Oil and Gas

TULSA, Okla. — Electronic computing solves many problems for industry, but also creates some. For example, how do you protect valuable magnetic tapes from fire? Some companies have used underground storage caverns, costly concrete vaults, and separate storage buildings. Sinclair Oil & Gas Company has come up with a new solution. The Tulsa-based company coated a room in its headquarters office building with a two-inch thickness of a lightweight, fire-resistant, plaster-like material which will protect the tapes from intense heat for as long as two hours. The cost was negligible and the protection is equivalent to that of a masonry wall eight inches thick. Temperature at the moon's equator, when the sun is overhead, reaches 30 to 60 degrees above boiling point.

The Soviet Instrument

By ROSALIE M. GORDON
Editor, America's Future

It was difficult for those who are aware of the realities of our world to join in the apparent pleasure expressed by our government that the Soviet bosses are willing to resume the 17-nation disarmament talks at Geneva. This subject of disarmament and arms control gets cluttered up with the natural hopes of unthinking people who have a vision of a world minus nuclear weapons, plus relief from burdensome taxes for defense. It is further cluttered up by numerous groups — some idealistic, some left-wing and some communist — infiltrated who work for world disarmament and even, in the case of some groups, for the United States to disarm all alone.

Then there is the average citizen who is frightened by both the complicated nature of modern weapons and the scare stories about their destructive potentials. He thinks he better leave the whole subject to the experts. But such a citizen is taking an awful chance with his own freedom and the security of his country because, first, the advocates of disarmament have friends in powerful places and they and their friends ignore the most pressing fact of our world — the presence therein of an international communist conspiracy which uses the lure of disarmament for its own aim to dominate the world, and which is held in check only by the superior power of the United States. Second, not all the so-called experts — the famous Whis Kids in the Defense Department, for example — can always be depended upon to lead us on a wise course, particularly if they have ideological axes to grind, or insist on their own "know-it-all" attitude. However, there are true experts in this field to whom we should listen attentively. One is General Arthur G. Trudeau, who was the Army's Chief of Research and Development. He is now retired, so he is an expert who has no axe to grind. General Trudeau also is a man with a wide understanding of the communist menace — so much so that he was one of the victims of the infamous "muzzling of the military" on this subject of several years ago. Now he can talk freely, and not long ago delivered an address on this whole subject of disarmament and arms control which is so specific and so clear in pointing out that the Soviets use disarmament "as an effective instrument to further their aim of world domination" that it should be read by every American who values his life and his liberty. America's Future, Inc., as a public service, has reprinted this address in an attractive folder and will send up to 10 copies without cost on request. DEPOSIT DOUBLED

LONDON (UPI)—The traditional "threepence (3 1/2 U.S. cents) on the bottle" deposit on soft drink bottles will be doubled to sixpence by Cantrell and Cochrane, a local drink firm, because it loses two million bottles a year at a cost of $70,000.

Pull Up A Chair

By Frank Markey

A displaced Vermonter wrote us for the recipe of an old New England summer drink called "Switchel." He says it was the greatest thirst-quencher of his boyhood when he gathered hay in his uncle's fields in the green Mountain State. We found a variety of ways to concoct this libation, but the easiest one we believe is this way: take a quart of ice water, add a cup of brown sugar, half a cup of molasses, a tablespoonful of ginger, and a cup of vinegar. Makes a tasty drink, and if you're interested in adding anything else, a jigger or two of rum won't spoil it. We'll bet those Vermont farmers discovered that, too!

Today's smile: An exasperated husband, ready to leave for a social engagement, called to his wife upstairs: "For the last time, Alice, are you coming with me?" His better half, still pre-tying herself, said: "Don't be so impatient. Haven't I been telling you for the last hour that I'll be down in a minute!"

While away on vacation you can foil burglars by giving your home a "lived-in look." Now on the market, there's an automatic timer that will turn on the lights at sunset. The gadget can also be rigged to turn on the lights upstairs when those downstairs go off. It's nice to have money and put it to good use. The Rockefeller family has spent upwards of $61 million restoring colonial Williamsburg from 1926 to the present. The 130-acre tract now boasts 500 colonial buildings and 85 acres of gardens. Crossword puzzles are still popular after all these years. The first one appeared in the old New York WORLD in 1913 when Joseph Pulitzer, the publisher, tried it as a circulation builder.

Thoughts while shaving: The thought occurs that many of the paperback novels and books we see on newsstand racks have more lurid contents and covers than those of our youth. The Nick Carter, Jessie James, Buffalo Bill, and Frank Merriwell yarns were a taboo with our teachers and parents, but in retrospect they were tame and harmless. "Freeze-drying" will be the next big thing in the food industry. It consists of removing moisture from frozen foods while retaining shape, color and taste. The product can then be stored for long periods of time without refrigeration. Packaging will be smaller and cheaper. A Chicago firm sold $500,000 worth of dogs last year via mail order catalog. There are no skyscrapers in Washington, D. C. because Congress once enacted a law that prohibits anything over 12 stories so that the Washington Monument will always be the tallest structure in the nation's capital. We read recently that the George Bernard Shaw estate will get twice as much in royalties from "My Fair Lady," which is based on the playwright's "Pygmalion" than the famed dramatist ever received for all of his other work. How he'd love to be around to count the money. The Boston Mass. TRAVELER headlined a story: "Warm Bottoms With Cool Tops." Someone will invent a way to reverse em.

Country Editor speaking: "To day's individualists are getting harder and harder to tell apart."

In every flock of hens a pecking order is established as a form of social order. Every hen, except the lowest one in the peck order, can peck certain hens, and every one except the one at the top can be pecked by others. The highest hen in the order has the best chance for the most food and a good roost. Each hen, even among 23 or more individuals, remembers the same social reaction to each of the others.

Bonfire of Draft Cards Debated by Leaders of 'Washington Action Project'; Plans for Weekend

ROBERT ALLEN

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — Leaders of the "Washington Action Project" — four days of anti-Viet Nam demonstrations in the capital this weekend — are at odds over staging a bonfire of draft cards in front of the White House or Pentagon.

Militant leftists and some pacifists favor such a stunt. Other participants are against it. At a strategy discussion in the Washington office of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee (SNCC), one dissenter warned: "This may lead to serious consequences for the individuals involved. I have heard that Defense Secretary McNamara has threatened that anyone who burns his draft card will be immediately inducted."

"Idle talk, idle talk," retorted a representative of the W.E.B. DuBois Clubs — branded by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover as a "Marxist group spawned by the Communist Party." "There is no law against burning draft cards."

"But there is a law against not carrying them," it was pointed out. "The law specifically requires that draft cards must be carried by those to whom they are issued."

"Yes, but there is no penalty for disregarding that," argued the DuBois leader. "Draft cards were burned in a demonstration before the Army induction centers in New York last week, and on the Berkeley campus of the University of California. Nothing happened in either instance, and won't in Washington. McNamara's bark is worse than his bite."

The Washington office of SNCC — in the forefront of the civil rights movement — is the headquarters of the August 6-9 "Washington Action Project."

Robert Parris Moses, young New York Negro and militant SNCC leader, is active in organizing the anti-Viet Nam demonstrations. Another key figure is Russell Nixon, laborite expelled from the CIO in 1949. In April of this year, with two leaders of the "Women's Strike for Peace," Nixon was found guilty in a District of Columbia court of contempt of Congress for refusing to answer questions at a hearing of the House Committee on Un-American Activities. This conviction is being appealed.

In a special bulletin, Glenn Smiley, acting executive secretary of F.O.R., calls for a large turnout in Washington this weekend, as follows: "August 6 and 9 mark the 29th anniversary of the bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki; memorial days to 'draw together the voices of nonviolent protest in America.' August 7 was devoted to workshops of ministers, lay people and other concerned groups. Several of the religious leaders who recently returned from Viet Nam as part of the F.O.R.-sponsored 'reconciliation team' are expected to participate."

"Once again we are being urged to make abundantly clear to the American people the concern of the religious community over the serious injustices that continue to be visited upon the poor, the voiceless, the unrepresented people of the world."

THEIR PLANS — For publication, "Project" leaders are claiming that "10,000 to 15,000" will take part in a scheduled series of anti-Viet Nam demonstrations. They are counting on busloads of students, teachers, women pacifists, clergymen and civil rights sympathizers.

Privately, they will be satisfied if they muster several thousand. While final details are still being hammered out by a 30-member coordinating committee, with headquarters in the SNCC office, the overall plan called for the following:

August 6 — Personal interviews were held with President Johnson to present a so-called "Declaration of Conscience." This was a favorite left-wing publicity tactic. The declaration, reportedly with 6,000 signatures, assails the fighting in the Viet Nam as without moral or legal basis, and demands immediate U.S. withdrawal.

August 7-8 — Series of so-called workshops were on the Mall, extended from the Washington Monument to the Capitol. Most of this activity took place in the vicinity of the famed monument. A major aim was to tie the civil rights movement to the anti-Viet Nam agitation.

August 9 — Stage a march on Congress. The law bars unauthorized assemblies on Capitol Hill, and it will be vigorously enforced. Legislative leaders have taken comprehensive measures to ensure that. Any attempt to storm the House of Representatives will be sternly repressed. A printed flyer issued by the coordinating committee states that participants in the march are prepared to "face possible arrest... to deny that Congress has the right to declare war in our names." "If stopped along the way," continues the defiant circular, "we will sit down and declare the assembly of unrepresented

Modern Arms Won't Whip Guerrillas

By RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)—There's an old frontier story about a famous Indian medicine man. When a white scout with an incurable sore on his hip asked the Indian if he could heal him, the redskin doctor said yes. Whereupon he tied the white man to a tree, ordered a poker heated red hot in a campfire and thrust into the man's side. When the victim regained consciousness, he was weakly but angrily asked what the Indian thought he was doing.

"It's simple," said the medicine man. "I didn't know how to cure that sore. But I do know how to cure a burn. Now your sore is gone and you have a burn. I can handle that."

The question is whether the United States with a red hot poker (a massive influx of modern arms) can convert an old-fashioned guerrilla war (which we don't know how to fight) into a conventional conflict (at which we are adept).

HISTORY GIVES A MIXED ANSWER. The Japanese failed in China, the French in Indochina and Algeria. The United States succeeded in Greece and the British in Malaya. The Philippine government put down the Huk. Long years ago, after a long struggle, the U. S. Army defeated the American Indians.

There are critical points to note about each successful anti-guerrilla campaign. Modern weapons were very useful. They were not the deciding factor. None of the antiguerrilla wars, in fact, were won by directly defeating the guerrilla forces. No war against guerrillas was won until five major objectives were achieved:

1. The guerrillas were cut off from their major foreign and domestic supplies of weapons, ammunition and food. The plans Indians were finally defeated—not in battle—but when the whites killed off the buffalo. The Greek guerrillas were defeated when the borders were sealed. The Malayan guerrillas were controlled when the non-Communist farmers and their food supplies were sealed off from the underground fighters.

2. SOME SUCCESSFUL PROGRAM was initiated to give the enemy guerrilla a chance to surrender and live with his family and children in a better world than he was living in as a guerrilla. In the Philippines, the Huk were offered farming land. The Indians were given reservations, however meager.

3. Some way was found to separate the guerrillas from the loyal or neutral country and city folk. The guerrillas were rooted out of the safe areas, not left to build underground as they did in Algeria, Indochina and China.

Kennedy Men Are Leaving, But Not Running From LBJ

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Four or five more changes in President Johnson's White House staff are likely to occur by the end of the year. They do not, however, signify any "running from Johnson."

What is at work is the normal attrition which affects any major executive staff over the years, and would have taken place in some degree even if the late President Kennedy had lived.

Lawrence O'Brien, head of White House congressional liaison, will probably depart as soon as Congress quits for the year. His plans to leave have been widely advertised, of course, since late 1964.

Names of other prospective "departees" are known to this reporter. One or two have been hinted at briefly in public accounts. But to come down hard on the mat this moment could alter the timing and other factors involved in departure.

As the President moves toward the end of his second full year in the White House, the remarkable thing, anyway, is not how many have left the fold. It is how smooth and effective have been the blend of Kennedy men and Johnson men.

Most of the Kennedy men on Johnson's staff today are still a little astonished at the way the transaction worked out. When the President took over and brought his originally small corps of aides, there was none of the "we're in charge here now" which so often accompanies key executive changeovers.

The President told the Kennedy men, "I have no staff," and in a very literal sense he meant it. His helpers then were few and were without White House experience. His frequently stated dependence on the holdovers was real.

Whatever their private thoughts, the original Johnson crew was a model of deference in virtually all dealings with the Kennedy men. Sometimes, when a telephone call would do, they went out of their way to traipse down the hall for a respectful face-to-face meeting.

In their turn, most of the Kennedy group stuck with Johnson through the critical early stages of his regime. Loyalty to the late president and his programs was perhaps the chief motivating factor, but some were quite happy to help Johnson in his own right.

Now that the White House is States succeeded in Greece and the British in Malaya. The Philippine government put down the Huk. Long years ago, after a long struggle, the U. S. Army defeated the American Indians.

There are critical points to note about each successful anti-guerrilla campaign. Modern weapons were very useful. They were not the deciding factor. None of the antiguerrilla wars, in fact, were won by directly defeating the guerrilla forces.

No war against guerrillas was won until five major objectives were achieved:

1. The guerrillas were cut off from their major foreign and domestic supplies of weapons, ammunition and food. The plans Indians were finally defeated—not in battle—but when the whites killed off the buffalo. The Greek guerrillas were defeated when the borders were sealed. The Malayan guerrillas were controlled when the non-Communist farmers and their food supplies were sealed off from the underground fighters.

2. SOME SUCCESSFUL PROGRAM was initiated to give the enemy guerrilla a chance to surrender and live with his family and children in a better world than he was living in as a guerrilla. In the Philippines, the Huk were offered farming land. The Indians were given reservations, however meager.

3. Some way was found to separate the guerrillas from the loyal or neutral country and city folk. The guerrillas were rooted out of the safe areas, not left to build underground as they did in Algeria, Indochina and China.

4. Some form of orderly government and police protection was offered in the hamlets, villages and cities to those who remained on the government anti-guerrilla side.

5. The ordinary people on the government side (and the neutrals) saw an opportunity for gradually bettering their lot. The lesson of history would seem to indicate that modern weapons will not win the Vietnamese war unless these five criteria are followed with strong determination.

heavily populated with efficiently operating Johnson men, the deep earlier concern over the transition may seem to some observers to have been exaggerated. But the look of ease is misleading.

The continuing presence of so many experienced Kennedy men was a vital stabilizing factor. Without demeaning their successors, it is fitting to say that the holdovers provided important on-the-job-training for those Johnson men who walked out the White House totally green in the days after the assassination.

Today Bill D. Moyers, White House press secretary and still a key policy maker, is locked upon—despite his youth—as a seasoned performer of consummate skill. But he had the benefit of some very knowledgeable associates from Nov. 22, 1963 on.

The President fought from the outset to prevent the mass exodus of Kennedy men. He succeeded. He knew his need for them, and he wanted also to avoid any appearance that whole clusters of Kennedy aides were deserting his ship.

On both sides, the motivations were clearly mixed. What counts, however, is the fact that an effective blend was achieved and a solid White House establishment kept in being at all times.

Partly by accident and partly by design, the Kennedy departures have been staggered over many months. At no time have they had shocking impact. Nor are the impending new switches likely to have this effect.

History may well set the Kennedy-to-Johnson transition down as one of the most amazing executive change-overs ever accomplished.

IS TRADE AID?

During this debacle of the United States' relations in international affairs, the question will be asked incessantly, "Why should we not trade with the communist nations?" Communism is a society which throughout the centuries has been unable to feed its people. This tremendous handicap was never more dramatically evident than in the record of the earliest days of the Protestant settlements in America, when the Jamestown colonists functioned as a collectivist group. They failed so dismally in food production that 90 percent of the colony died during their second winter, which became infamous as the famine winter.

Twelve years later the Pilgrims set up a collectivist colony and likewise were starving until Governor Bradock issued an edict that "those who will not work shall not eat," and converted the province into a profit motive and personal enterprise society.

Soviet Russia knows we are not going to attack them, and Red China does not now endanger them. Unless they foolishly plan an attack, their need is a workable economy.

Whenever a Communist country condenses to trade with us its purchases are primarily the commodity most needed, which is food.

We may confine our trade with communist countries to material not essential to warfare, but we will be kidding ourselves not them. Everything the dedicated communists get will be devoted to fulfilling their open boast, "We will bury you." And besides, in Communist life and regimes food is the most critical of all war material.

Trade is for profit and there can be no profit for us in any transactions which will soon lead to our destruction.

Mays Hits Two Homers, Twins Take Bosox, 9-4

Grant Takes 14th Triumph

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI)—Jim Grant picked up his 14th victory Saturday as the Minnesota Twins defeated the Boston Red Sox 9-4.

While 14 was the number for Grant, 15 was important for other players in the game. Zoilo Versalles and Don Mincher hit their 15th homers of the season for the Twins, while Carl Yastrzemski and Felix Mantilla each had number 15 for Boston.

It was 1-1 through the first three innings. Then the Twins went ahead to stay when Mincher capped a three-run inning with a 435-foot homer to the bullpen.

Giants Pace To 10-4 Win

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Willie Mays hit his 28th and 29th home runs of the season Saturday in pacing the San Francisco Giants to a 10-4 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Mays accounted for five RBI's, his single in the first inning putting the Giants in the lead. He walked the second time at bat and scored on Willie McCovey's 25th home run in the third inning.

Mays delivered his first homer after Dick Schofield reached base on an error, and made it three-for-three with his second homer in the seventh after Jay Alou singled.

Astros Shut Out Braves

MILWAUKEE (UPI)—Houston righthander Dick Farrell, backed by a 12-hit Astro attack, fired a five-hitter Saturday to beat the Milwaukee Braves, 4-0, for his third shut-out of the year.

Joe Morgan had three singles and drove home a run with a sacrifice fly and Bob Aspromonte hit his fifth homer of the year in the eighth to lead Houston.

In was the first time in nearly a month that a team other than Los Angeles or San Francisco had beaten the fast-rising Braves, who had won 18 of their last 25 games.

Champagne Tony Seeking Bubbly

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Tony Lema fired a five-under-par 67 Saturday to take a one-stroke lead at 207 after the third round of the $125,000 Philadelphia Golf Classic.

Champagne Tony's nine-under-par total for 54 holes on the par-72 Whitmarsh Valley Country Club led R. H. Sikes, the Arkansas who paced the field for the first two rounds, and Doug Sanders. Sikes slipped to a 73 Saturday and Sanders matched Lema's 67 to knot at 208.

Burly Jack Nicklaus, who started the round one stroke back of Sikes at 136, made a bid for the lead when he eagled the par-five, 495-yard fifth hole with a 15-foot putt from the fringe, but he slipped with a bogey on the seventh and a double bogey on the 11th after his second shot hit a tree and the third went into a trap.

Nicklaus finished with a 73 and a 209 aggregate, seven under.

Randy Glover of Florence, S. C., also had a 67 to tie at third with Joe Campbell, stocky Florida pro, who had a 72. They were at 210 for the 54 holes.

Seven others were tied at 212. They were Dave Hill, George Knudson, Gary Player, Tommy Aaron, Bob Goalby, Tom Shaw and Johnny Pott. Bantam Ben Hogan, making one of his rare tournament appearances, improved with a 69 after a 75 Friday and was bunched back at 215 with six others. Sam Snead, his longtime rival, had a 72 and was at 214 with seven fellow pros.

Lema, whose round included six birdies and one bogey, joked that the day "Started uneventfully" with his six-foot birdie putt on the first hole.

He continued with a birdie on the second, thanks to a 12-foot putt, added another on the fifth and made the turn in 34 after the bogie on the eighth.

He had another birdie with a 10-foot putt on the 10th and then a scrambling par on 11th. "The sloppiest hole I've played in the whole tournament," Lema continued to charge in with a bird on the 16th and 17th, after an 18-foot eagle putt rimmed the cup and came out.

Randy May Retire Until Feud Over

By BILL HART (Courtesy Lubbock Avalanche-Journal)

DALLAS — If the feud between the NCAA and the AAU doesn't end soon, track coach Charlie Thomas of Texas A&M says his world record-holder, Randy Matson, may retire from the sport until it is over.

But Thomas hopes it will be over soon and it could come this month when he and other coaches meet with Sen. Magnuson in Washington for a committee hearing.

him sleep and he just hasn't been at his best," Thomas said and Randy's performance bears this out because he has not come close to his 70-7 record which he set back in May.

"Something has to be done because it's hurting the kids. Right now, there are a lot of them who are not great, but as long as this fuss continues, chances are small for them to develop against the top performers who are out of school," he said.

He used the discus as an example. "There's only two or three good discus throwers in the country and Randy didn't get to throw against them all year...We thought they might be at the Coliseum Relays but the AAU wouldn't sanction it, so the non-collegians stayed home," he said.

"This is one of the reasons he wanted to make the trip to Russia. Over there in the other meets, he could throw against some of the best and he'd get beat, but learn from them at the same time," Thomas explained.

He thinks Matson eventually will throw the discus around 210-215 feet, and he thinks he will get the shot put up to 72 feet before he calls it quits—unless the fuss forces him to quit before his time.

Thomas was surprised at Matson's performance this year, considering the bad knee. He thought his star would get 70 feet before he got out of school, but he never dreamed it would happen so soon.

"I hoped he might break the world record this year, but I never thought he'd do better than 68 feet," he smiled.

Randy would like to compete in two more Olympics before he steps out of the ring for the last time, but every now and then he talks about pro basketball, so Thomas isn't sure just how long Matson will be creating headlines.

Thomas was disappointed that Matson passed up the NCAA meet because injured he's still the best in the country and he had a chance to be the first NCAA triple winner in the shot put and discus.

"It's a good thing he didn't go, I guess, because he could have made his injury worse and could have bothered him more in the future, but still, it was a funny feeling sitting up in the stands and not having a winner out there," he said.

Matson's not sure when he first hurt his knee, but it may have been back before the season started when he was in Abilene and not in school.

He stepped off a curb and twisted his knee. It became sore for awhile, but then it went away. However, the pain came back just before the conference meet. A trainer worked with him on it when Matson was working in Houston just prior to leaving for Russia and now they feel the knee is as good as new.

But right now, the main thing that is on Thomas' mind is helping end the feud so his star can compete anywhere and against the best so he can go on to greater things.

Chisox 4, Tribe 3

CHICAGO (UPI)—Aided by a freak single, the Chicago White Sox scored two runs in the 10th inning Saturday to defeat the Cleveland Indians 4-3.

The White Sox were trailing 3-2 when Ron Hansen led off the 10th with a walk off loser Luis Tiant. Al Weis ran for Hansen, and after one out, J. C. Martin hit a pop fly to Max Alvis at third base.

While circling under the ball, Alvis tripped on the bag and the ball fell for a single. Don Buford singled Weis home with the tying run and Floyd Robinson drove Martin in with another single.

Marlene Takes Seven-Stroke Milwaukee Lead

MILWAUKEE (UPI)—Marlene Hagge, the trim and attractive veteran from Pensacola, Fla., took a seven-stroke lead with an even par 72 Saturday in the third round of the $12,500 Milwaukee Open Jaycee Golf Tournament.

Only a disaster could keep Mrs. Hagge, 31, from winning the top prize of $1,875 at the end of Sunday's final round of the 72 hole event, third richest on the LPGA tour.

Mrs. Hagge, who already has won one tournament and more than $10,300 this year, had a 54-hole total of 214 with two previous rounds of 71 each at the North Shore Country Club course.

Clifford Ann Creed, who had been just one stroke behind Mrs. Hagge for the second-round lead, tied for second place with Marilyn Smith, both at 221. Miss Creed shot up to 78 on the third round while Miss Smith missed par with 73 after a bogey five on the 18th.

Andy Cohn was next with an even par 72 in the third round that gave her a total of 222.

Australian Margie Masters, a rookie professional, was one stroke back of Miss Cohn at 223 as were Kathy Whitworth and Sandra Spuzich. Miss Masters turned in a 78 while Miss Whitworth and Miss Spuzich both matched par with 72.

Judy Torluemke, continuing to play despite a bad back, was next with 224, after a third round 77, her worst in three days of play.

Big Game Hunting Dream Comes True

NEW YORK (UPI)—When Bob Reece was a youngster at tending grade school in Atchison, Kan., he used to dream about big game hunting in Africa and deep sea fishing in the blue Pacific.

Lots of kids in Kansas or Iowa or Connecticut have the same dreams.

Reece, though, has made these youthful "Walter Mitty" reveries come true.

He has hunted lions and leopards in Kenya and he knows the thrill of hooking a billfish in Hawaiian waters.

Reece and the Duke of Manchester joined hands—and fishing tackle—in representing Kenya in the recent Hawaiian international billfish tournament at Kailua-Kona on the "big island" of Hawaii.

The pair traveled 24,978 miles round trip from Kenya for the annual big game fishing "world series." Reece boated a 140-pound Pacific blue marlin on the opening day of the five-day tournament and admitted it was one of the biggest thrills of his life.

Track Stars To Testify

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Two American track stars will fly here from Europe to open testimony Aug. 16 in a Congressional investigation into the squabble between the NCAA and the AAU, it was announced Saturday.

Sen. Warren D. Magnuson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, said that Gerry Lindgren and Tom Farrell would be on hand for the opening hearings. He said Randy Matson, world champion shotputter, would fly here to testify after he competes in a track meet in Budapest, Hungary, Aug. 25.

All three athletes competed with the American track and field contingent that narrowly lost to the Soviet Union team recently at Kiev.

Magnuson said, "the committee will be anxious to hear of the effect that this squabble has on the athletes themselves, their morale, their performance, their plans for the future."

"We want these young men and women to go back to school without fears that they will be banned from competition or that they might in some other way be penalized. As representatives of this nation, they deserve nothing less."

Californian Soap Box Ace

AKRON, Ohio (UPI)—Photofinishes in his first and last rounds gave Robert Ellis Logan, 12, of Santa Ana, Calif., the All-American Soap Box Derby crown Saturday.

Young Logan, in his orange and white racer, squeaked to victory over William Wetzell, 11, of Zanesville, Ohio. The official time was 27:67 seconds.

His chance of winning, however, seemed lost before he scarcely had begun. Logan's first run, during the eighth heat of the second round, ended wheel-and-wheel with John McDaniels 11, of Lynchburg, Va. Officials ruled in favor of McDaniels and Logan glumly trudged back to the grandstands.

After checking a photograph of the finals, officials announced Logan had won.

Cubs 7, Mets 1

NEW YORK (UPI)—Outfielder Billy Williams drove in five runs with his 18th homer and a double to power the Chicago Cubs to a 7-1 victory over the New York Mets Saturday.

It was the sixth straight defeat for the Mets, who are 3-12 since Wes Westrum was named interim manager two weeks ago.

Pirates 4, Phils 3

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—The Pittsburgh Pirates used home runs by Bob Bailey and Roberto Clemente and the clutch relief hurling of lanky Al McBean Saturday to defeat the Philadelphia Phillies 4-3.

McBean replaced Frank Carpin with the bases loaded and none out in the fifth inning and prevented the Phillies from scoring. McBean, 4-5, then took control allowing only a pinch single by Adolfo Phillips the rest of the way.

A total of 31 players saw action, 19 by the Phillies, who used five of the game's eight pitchers.

High School Coach to SMU

DALLAS (UPI)—Jerry Moore, the first assistant football coach at Corsicana high school the past four years Saturday was named to the Southern Methodist University athletic staff.

SMU Athletic Director Hayden Fry announced Moore's hiring and said the former Baylor star will be an assistant football coach and athletic equipment manager at SMU.

Moore will be in charge of the scout team, a unit which runs plays used by next SMU opponents against the starting units.

Moore was an all-state end at Bonham in 1956. He was co-captain of the 1957 Baylor freshman team and the 1960 Baylor varsity.

Sports Parade

(Reg. U.S. Pat. Off.)
By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Don't write off Yogi Berra yet. Many did last week when he apparently was passed over and Wes Westrum was named instead to fill in as manager of the Mets in place of Casey Stengel.

Baseball's bird watchers promptly jumped to the conclusion that Berra doesn't fit into the Mets' plans. Not as a future manager, anyway. That conclusion, obvious as it may be, could turn out to be dead wrong. Not that Yogi is a cinch to be appointed manager of the Mets next year, but there are some indications which say he possibly may be given a chance.

At the moment, the Mets' brass has no more idea who will manage the club next season than you have. What happens in the next two months will be the principle determining factor. First off, there is the indomitable Stengel, a truly incredible 75-year-old who is amazing all the doctors and nurses at Roosevelt Hospital with his Spartan-like efforts to walk more and more each day following surgery for a fractured hip.

Swamped With Mail
Casey is being swamped with mail and wires from well-wishers. Nothing in this world is stronger than public opinion, and if the public clamors to have Stengel back as soon as he's up and around, you can bet the Mets will listen. Casey is determined he's going to make it back, and isn't one to be denied ordinarily. In

Auerbach Has Five-Year Pact
BOSTON (UPI)—Boston Celtics Coach Arnold (Red) Auerbach was on a "long honeymoon" today with a new five-year contract tucked in his pocket. Auerbach formally signed a five-year pact Friday as executive vice president and general manager of the Celtics and announced that he would coach the world champion club for at least another year. Marvin Kratter, chairman of the board of Ruppert-Knickerbucker Brewing Co. which recently purchased the Celtics, said Auerbach would "run the show on a practically autonomous basis."

the long run, however, he's still a mere mortal like everyone else and if he finds he can no longer cope with the rigors of a gruelling 162-game schedule, the Mets will have to make a move. If he is to receive any consideration to continue at his present post in 1966, the ball club will have to perform like world beaters in the next eight weeks.

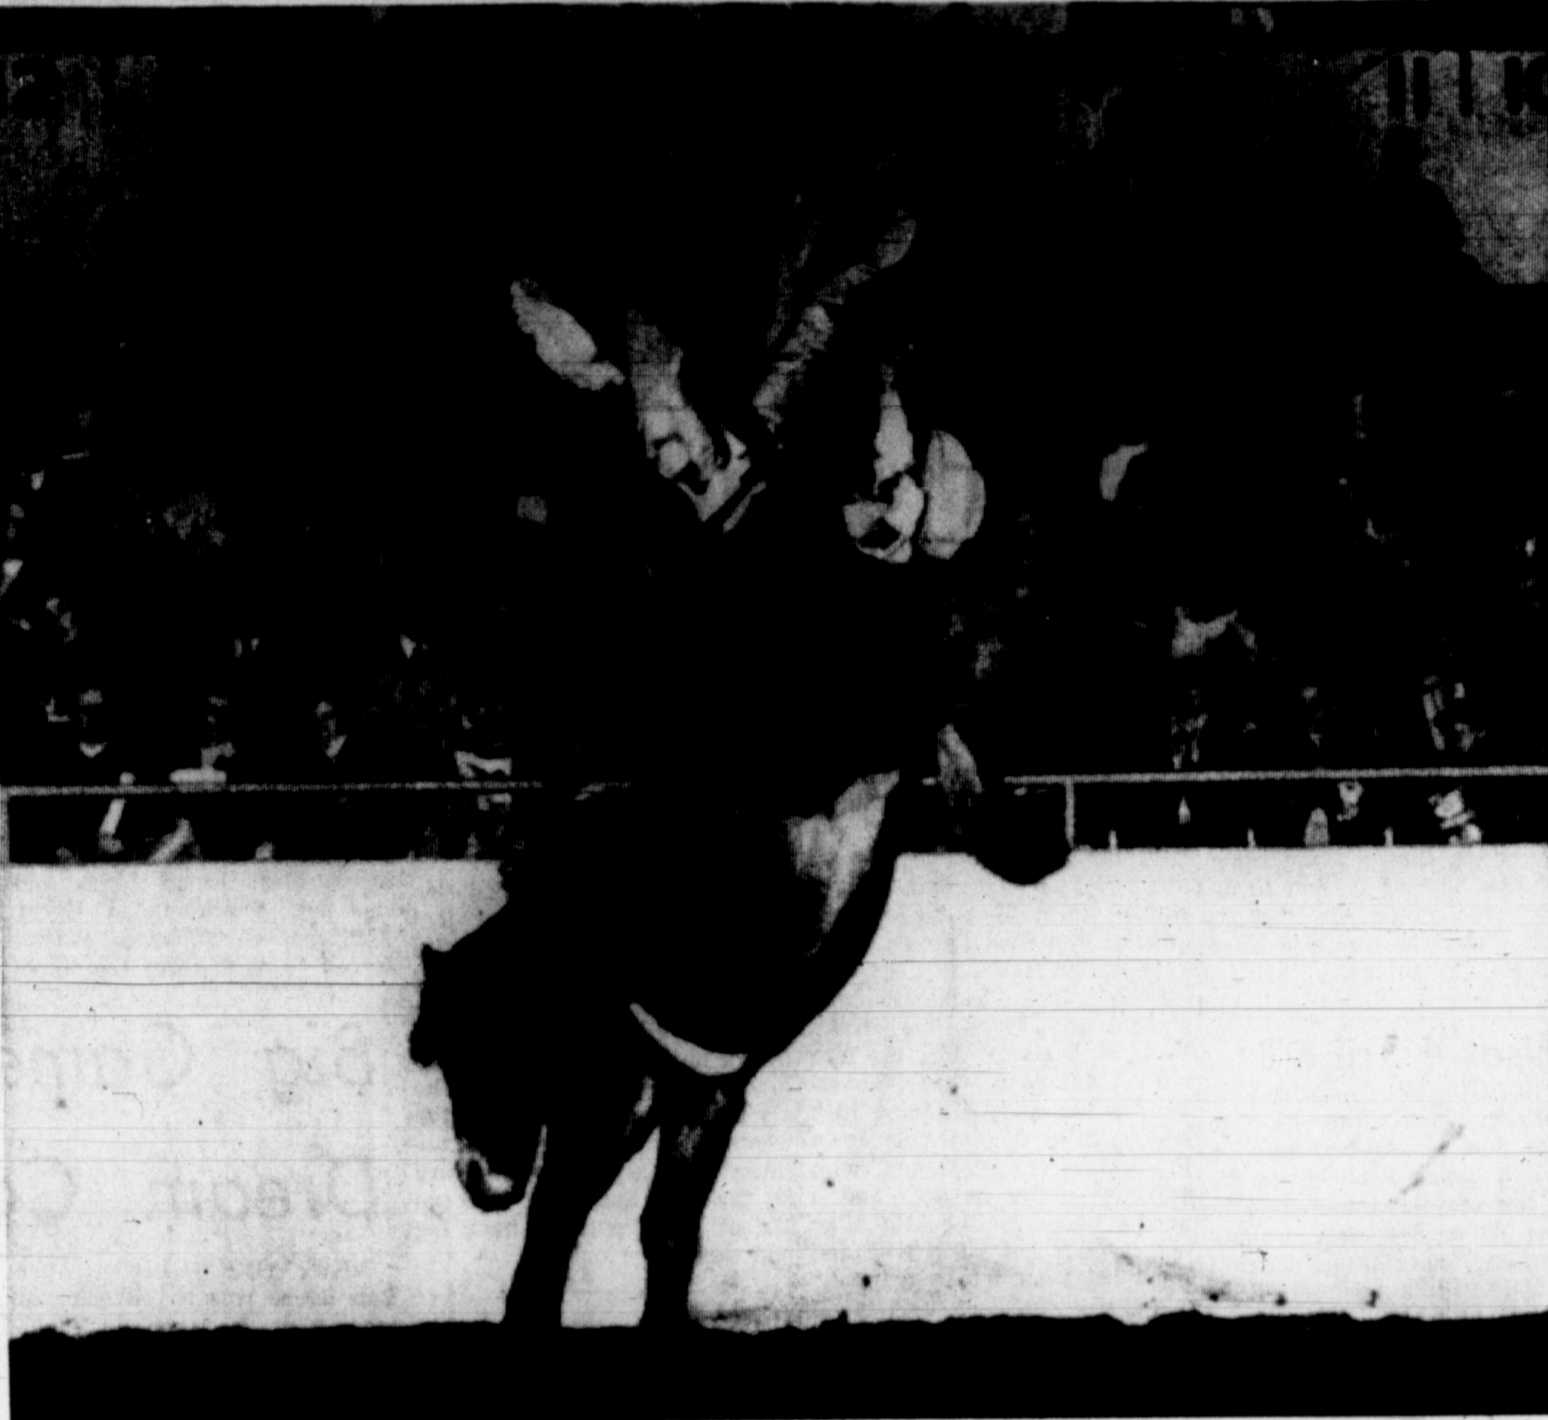

There's little chance the Mets will, and it certainly won't be Westrum's fault. But he will have had his chance, such as it was, and now the time will come to consider a manager for next year. That could be Berra's cue. There's a theory making the rounds that the Mets are "saving" Yogi for the proper moment.

They could have talked with Casey, who actually named Westrum as his replacement, and persuaded him to delegate Berra instead, but what would be the point. If Yogi took over after Stengel's mishap and the club showed little or no improvement, that wouldn't help Berra's chances when it came time to pick Casey's eventual successor.

Waiting In Wings
This way, Yogi still is in the wings and can be called on at the right time. Still another straw in the wind is the fact that Berra and his wife, Carmen, were the personal guests of the Mets at the recent All-Star game in Minnesota. They were given a private suite at the hotel and since when does just any coach rate treatment like that? Even Minnesota manager Sam Mele was surprised to see Yogi turn up at All-Star headquarters.

"What are you doing here," he asked him. "What ya mean what am I doing here?" Berra replied, grinning. "I was invited here by Mr. Weiss."

That would be George Weiss, who is president of the Mets, who works twice as hard as most of his employees and who does one helluva job, no matter what anyone says. At any rate, Berra has not really been passed over even if it looks that way right now. He's still very much in the running. Yogi's immediate future, it would seem, hinges a great deal on that of Casey Stengel's, a man, by the way, tied in quite closely with his past.

COMING UP — Pampans will be watching scenes similar to this all next week when the 21st Top O' Texas Rodeo kicks into action.

From Jobless to Manager Year—Mele

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI)—There was talk about Sam Mele losing his job a year ago, but he didn't. Now there's talk about him winding up Manager of the Year and he might. Calvin Griffith, the president of the Minnesota Twins, claims "Sam never was in any danger."

That's open to debate, especially in light of the fact Griffith saw fit to call Mele into his office a year ago and have one of those heart-to-heart talks with him about the stories which kept cropping up. "That's true," admitted Griffith. "I did call him in so we could go over a number of things. I told him he had nothing to worry about. Nothing at all."

Mele's sudden popularity was obvious enough to understand. It wasn't so much that he was the unofficial host for All-Star visitors in his capacity as Minnesota manager as it was that his Twins had a fat five-game lead and could well be the American League representative in the World Series this October. Sam handled himself perfectly in his new role. Whenever anyone asked him about the Twins' pennant chances, he said: "I think we have as good a chance as anyone else."

This happens to be one of the oldest and safest platitudes in the book and no one knows it any better than Mele. "What I mean," he said, after some gentle prodding, "is that I'm not crowing. There's still a long way to go." Precisely at that moment, Yogi Berra happened by. Yogi is a coach with the Mets now but he also has managed and he knows the perils connected with a one-year contract. "You're smiling," he kidded Mele. "For a change," Sam replied. Mele has a smile coming. He has done a commendable job with the Twins, who finished in the second division last year, and the first one to admit it is Griffith.

"He deserves all the credit," said the Minnesota prexy. "It's common knowledge that the ballplayers make the manager, and not the other way around, but when you consider we have essentially the same club we had last year, the answer for our success has to be rather obvious. Mele."

Thinkin' Man's Miracle
That amounts to a resounding pat on the back for Sam, but the next obvious question is how did he accomplish this minor miracle?

"Well, I did a whole lot of thinking over the winter," he said. "I came to the conclusion you can't win on power alone because we had plenty of it last year and it didn't do us much good. The only thing I could figure was that we weren't running enough. So I decided to make some changes during spring training. We began to run and gamble more. I've always been a great believer in hitting and running. Last year I left it to my players; this year I did it myself. Now I give them the hit-and-run sign. Not only do they do it, but they're finding it a whole lot of fun. It's always fun when you're in first place, but Mele insists the Twins are even a better ball club than they've shown so far. "We actually haven't been playing our best ball," he said. "We have a lot of injuries. . . fellows like Camilo Pascual and Bob Allison. . . and we've been leaving too many men on third base with none out and one out. But I find the other clubs are doing it, too."

If they continue, the other clubs, that is, Mele may find himself in a World Series for the first time three months from now. "See this?" he asked. Glancing down below his right-hand trouser pocket, it was noticed that his fingers were crossed.

Giants 'So Sorry' Murakami Winner

By United Press International
The San Francisco Giants aren't the least bit embarrassed when rivals say there's "something Oriental" about their National League pennant drive. They just say, "We told you so."

There's something "Oriental," all right, and he's Masanori Murakami, the 21-year-old left-handed pitcher from Yamana-shi Prefecture, Japan, who has developed into quite an effective relief pitcher in his sophomore season. "Oriental" is one of those old baseball terms that means "fishy" or not quite up to snuff. But Murakami is rewriting that lexicon with top-grade pitching that has helped the Giants move to within two games and 15 percentage points of the Dodgers.

Murakami, who has pitched effectively in four of the Giants' last seven victories, struck out the dangerous Bill White with the tying run on base and two out in the ninth inning Friday night to preserve San Francisco's 3-2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals. The six-foot, 180-pound Murakami has a 3-1 record in 24 appearances for the Giants this season.

The Cincinnati Reds shaded the Dodgers 5-4 in 11 innings, the Milwaukee Braves downed the Houston Astros 8-4, the Philadelphia Phillies blanked the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-0 and the Chicago Cubs nipped the New York Mets 4-3 in other NL action. Murakami's close-out relief rewarded Gaylor Perry with his eighth victory as Ray Sadecki, a 20-game winner for the Cardinals in 1964, suffered his 10th defeat against two wins. Hal Lanier doubled home two runs and scored himself on Dick Groat's wild relay to provide the Giants with all their runs in the fourth inning. Lou Brock had a triple and three singles for St. Louis.

Win In 11th
The Reds edged the Dodgers when Jim Coker singled home pinch-runner Marty Keough in the 11th inning. The Reds had scored their four earlier runs on solo homers by Tommy Harper, Don Pavletich, Deron Johnson and Pete Rose. Ron Per-ranoski suffered his fifth loss against three victories. Tony Cloninger pitched a seven-hitter and struck out nine to win his 15th game for the Braves behind a 12-hit attack that included a two-run double and a homer by Gene Oliver. Hank Aaron had three hits and Mack Jones a homer for the Braves while Bob Aspromonte had three hits for the Astros. Jim Bunning yielded only five hits and struck out 12, raising his record to 13-7 behind the Phillies' nine-hit attack. Johnny Callison hit his 25th homer and Cookie Rojas drove in two runs for the Phillies while Bob Bailey had two hits for the Pirates. Bunning had clear sailing after he pitched out of a bases-filled, none-out jam in the first inning.

Larry Jackson survived a three-run ninth-inning homer by Gary Kolb to beat the Mets for the 13th straight time and raise his 1965 record to 10 wins and 14 losses. Don Landrum hit a two-run homer and Billy Williams had a double and a single to lead the Cubs' nine-hit attack.

All Lefors Coaches Out

LEFORS—Dean King, head football coach at Lefors High School, resigned Friday to become athletic director and head football coach at Class AAA Pecos, Lefors superintendent of schools Gerald Julian announced yesterday.

King will replace former Pampa High School coach Babe Curtman. In addition to King, Eddie Clemmens, assistant football coach and head track coach, has handed in his resignation to go to Spearman as assistant football coach and physical education director.

Julian announced that applications are being taken for both head and assistant coaching positions. Lefors is now without any coaches in the high school, with football practice beginning Aug. 16. Bobby Golphee, head basketball coach, resigned early this summer to go back to the state of Washington. Junior high coach Harley Sewell is presently the only coach in Lefors.

By STARKEY WHITEHORN
Panhandle Fishing

To say that the hundreds of thousands of planted fish in Lake Meredith are growing rapidly is an understatement. They are actually growing at a fantastic rate. Last week, Jack Roberts, with the cooperation of Park Ranger Jim Anderson, was on hand to observe the operations of Aquatic Biologist Lonnie Peters and his crew as they test-seined the lake. The operation resulted in several hundred bass and eight walleye brought to land for firsthand observation. The eight walleyes measured from six to seven inches in length, while the bass were slightly larger.

One fisherman was checked for license and creel numbers. Mr. W. P. Bryan, of 701 Lee in Borger, had a stringer almost full. One bass was measured at twelve inches total length, and the others seven and a half inches and smaller.

Incidentally, the one a foot long wasn't one stocked by the Parks and Wildlife Department but the others were. Some bass, as well as other species, have come down the river, washed out of tanks and ponds above the watershed a while back during the heavy rainfall period. As far as I know, Mr. Bryan is the only fisherman to catch one.

If the bass and walleye continue to grow at the rate they already have, it would be a lead pipe cinch to say they will weigh a pound by Aug. of 1966. If some of them are keepers now, one can imagine what they will weigh a few months hence, especially considering they were about the size of a shingle nail two months ago.

Until last week there had been but three walleyes recovered. It began to appear that the survival rate was indeed low. After Peters and his Parks and Wildlife Department crew made their last test of the waters, prospects for good walleye fishing look much better. In fact, I wouldn't be surprised if there aren't more than 40,000 walleyes swimming and eating and growing in the lake at this time.

It was May 10 when Leo Lewis, Chief Aquatic Biologist for the western part of the state, accompanied these youngsters via plane from the state hatcheries of Iowa to the Borger airport and then on to the waters of the lake. On that date Wes Barfield, Fisheries Technician, mentioned there were 75,000 in each small, plastic, water and oxygen filled bag.

The season isn't open on walleyes at this time and it might be many months before it is. Time will tell. It is known that walleyes reproduce in Lake Conchas. They probably will in Lake Meredith. They will be given every opportunity by the Parks and Wildlife Department. My guess is that when a sufficient number of this species reach the reproduction stage and have had a chance to spawn in the lake and there is a new crop on the way, the season will be opened.

Jack Roberts, during the mentioned seining survey, neatly picked up one seven-inch walleye and asked Jim Anderson to look at it toward the sun. "Almost transparent," Roberts remarked.

When pan-sized walleyes are caught in Texas they will be first caught in Lake Meredith. When that happens it will mark another FIRST for the Panhandle.

Lake Meredith will contain a very representative amount of undesirable fish species. There will be carp and shad, as well as bullhead catfish, on the unwanted list. Eliminating them would be about as simple as making a round trip to the moon. There is an open season on carp, and if anyone can come up with an idea that will control these suckers, aquatic authorities will appreciate it.

There are several kinds of sunfish found in this part of the country. The most common one found is what is commonly called blue gill. The green sunfish is almost as numerous, however, followed by long ear, red ear and pumpkin seed. Most of these fish are usually so small they seem to be a nuisance to the angler. Even so, they act as food supply for the larger fish.

It would seem that of the mentioned species, the red ear is the most desirable. That is what I would stock in a pond in preference to other species of sunfish. The reason is very simple. Red ears grow to be whoppers. The other evening Lonnie Peters mentioned that a group from Pampa went to Old Lake Childress a month ago and caught 52 that weighed 37 lbs.

Sunfish have a very superior flavor. They are easily caught on spinners, minnows, and earth worms. Much like their cousins, the black bass, they are usually found in shallow water. Of course, not all red ears are large but they do seem to outgrow the others of their kindred. The world record on blue gill is something over three pounds. This fish wasn't caught in the Panhandle, but in Alabama.

Clark Reagan of Canadian mentioned recently that he stocked several hundred red ears in a lake east of Gageby one summer. The next year they weighed nearly a pound each.

Many of the sunfish in this part of the country are hybrids. From what I have been led to believe, the hybrids will not reproduce. If one wanted to get the practical way would be to stock a few score or hundred adults and let them get started in reproducing. Probably in the score or hundred that were stocked there would be a few hybrids. This wouldn't matter because the new crop would be purebred red ears.

P. D. "Dude" Moseley, retired veteran game warden at Canadian, knows every farm and ranch pond in Hemphill County. He knows where to find green sunfish, blue gill and also red ears, and also knows the size of them in each pond. If interested in getting the red ears established in your pond, then contact Mr. Moseley. He supplied the first truckload of pan-sized "perch" for the Lake Meredith fishing festival.

Just a couple of months ago the Parks and Wildlife Department placed about a half million black bass in Lake Meredith. They were about the size of a spent gopher match at the time. Since then they have grown to over six and one-half inches in length. The rate of growth is phenomenal. It is fantastic.

Many authorities might raise their eyebrows. The proof of the pudding is in the taste. All one needs to do in order to ascertain the facts is grab up a bucketful of small minnows and go to the shore with a small hook. They can soon find out. I tried it and I know. Some of the very small black bass didn't have the capacity to swallow a large minnow. They readily took to the smaller gambusia species. Those that chose the larger bait did their best to consume it but didn't have the capacity to do so.

The small bass in Lake Meredith might remind one of a story about the boy that entered a pie-eating contest. When the youngster quit someone asked him if he was full. An emphatic "no" was the answer. He wasn't full but he just could not swallow any more.

Kingnecked Pheasants
Last week Rec Cole and I were prowling the country southwest of Stratford. After a casual visit with Kenneth Borth, it was revealed there were more young pheasants in that area than in many years. In fact, Borth mentioned that a lake just a few miles south of his place and in the late part of the evening one could see several coveys of young birds.

'Little' Dale Messer In 5th Pro Grid Year

MORAGA, Calif. (UPI) — Even the number "29" on his back looks too big for Dale Messer, a rugged 180-pounder who stands dwarfed among the giants of pro football, but he intends to play his fifth season with the San Francisco Forty Niners.

"This is a crucial year for me," the dark-haired streak from Fresno State said during a training camp lull at St. Mary's. "If I can get in my fifth season, I'll qualify for a National League pension. And it's always been a real opportunity for a guy my size to stay up with the pros."

In Dale's own words, "the players get bigger and faster every year." And there's the usual speculation that he might be squeezed off the roster this year by sheer size. Yet he's managed to hang in there ever since the Forty Niners drafted him as a hot star at Fresno State.

"You always like to think that your chances of staying are pretty good but you never know," said Messer, who is big enough in an ordinary crowd at five feet, 10 inches. Once he's out there scrambling, though, it looks as if the guy they call "Muff" had wandered over from a grammar school game. Messer currently is paired with Bernie Casey, a six-foot-four, 215-pounder, for the flanker spot. But name any position outside the line and Messer probably has played it with the Forty Niners. He's been a split end, halfback, safety man and functioned in the kickoff receiving platoon.

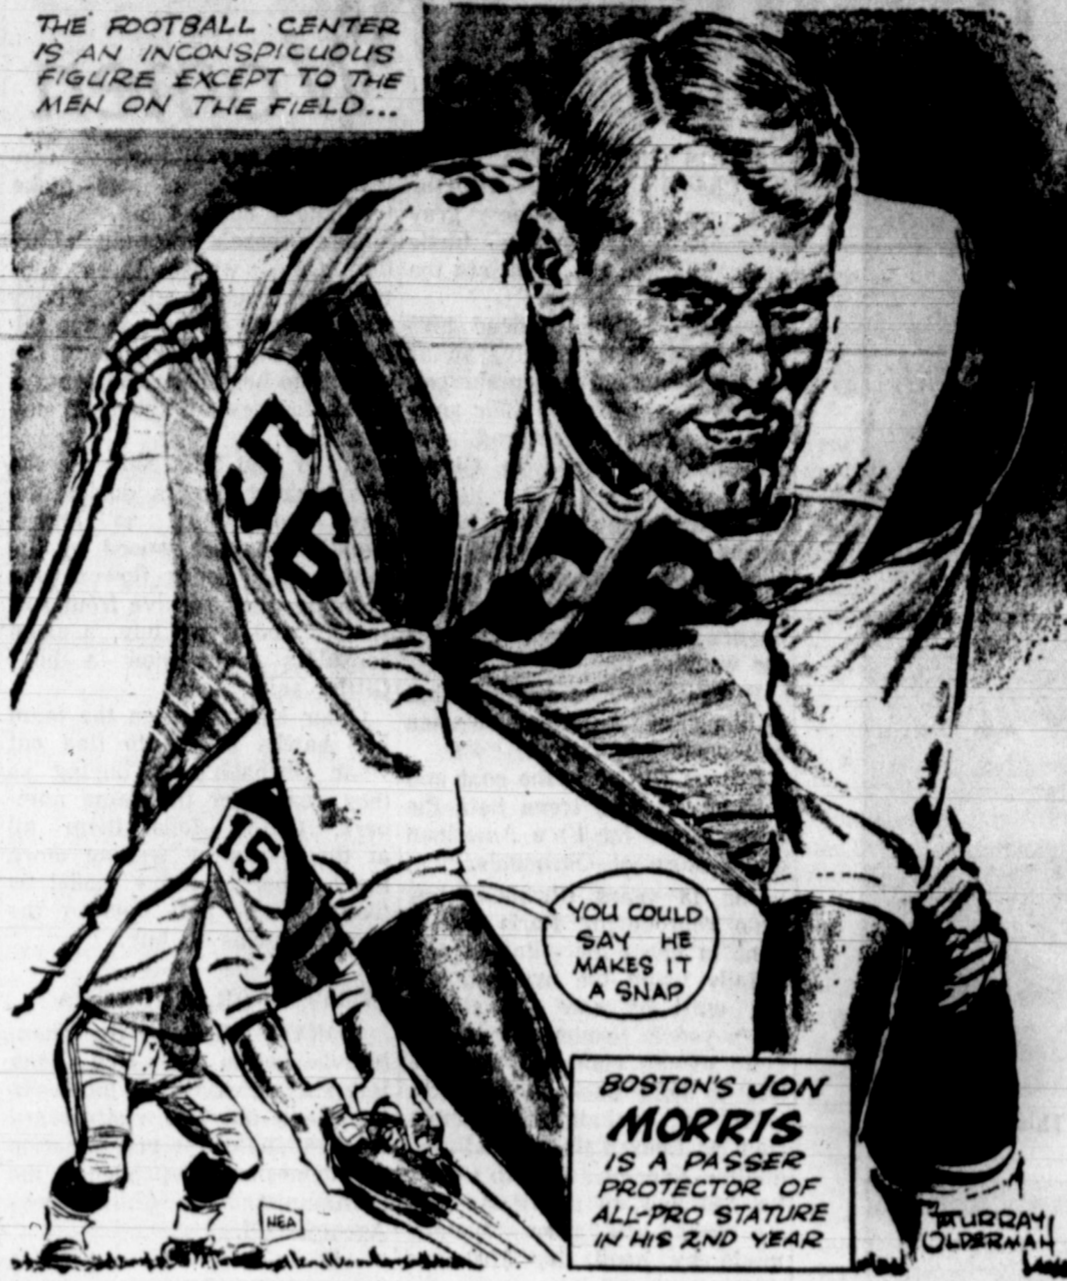

Messer was sidelined last year by knee surgery after undergoing an operation in 1961 for a broken ankle. He sustained the latter after a collision with Bill Jobko, then a 220-pound linebacker for the Los Angeles Rams.

Yet, he doesn't think that any of the NFL beef trust has intentionally roughed him up to make him remember he is a little guy.

"Sure, you'll get into a couple of arguments during a game," he said. "But most players around the league are friends and take the jolts as the part of making a living."

Which Cuban Will Win Honors?

By United Press International
The Angeles are bickering among themselves. The squabble is over which 21-year-old Cuban native will be rookie of the year in the American League this season. Marcelino Pons Lopez or Jose Dommeo Cardenal.

Lopez, known as "Leity" to his teammates, presented a strong argument on his own behalf Friday night, hurling hitless ball for 5-1-3 innings en route to his 11th victory, 6-1 over the Washington Senators.

The 6-foot-2 southpaw, whom the Philadelphia Phillies "threw in" to complete a deal for Vic Power last October, is setting a faster pace in his freshman year than Cy Young Award-winner Dean Chance did as a rookie and is on the threshold of breaking all sorts of Los Angeles first-year pitching records.

In other American League games, Minnesota increased its league lead to 6½ games by drubbing Boston 9-3 while second-place Baltimore dropped a 9-4 decision to Kansas City. Chicago trounced Cleveland 11-5, and Detroit nipped New York 5-4 to complete AL action. Lopez allowed the Senators only five hits and no earned runs to increase his record at Los Angeles' Chavez Ravine to nine wins and only two losses and 1.71 earned run average in his home park. His 11 victories give him more triumphs than any other rookie hurler and matches the Angels' club record for wins in one season by a lefthander.

Lopez has already equaled Chance's mark of six complete games in his rookie year and stands a good chance to surpass Dean's team mark of 14 victories in his first year. Floyd Weaver (2-2) was the loser and Joe Horlen (10-9) and contributed a hit to the Angels' victory, is second in the league in stolen bases with 34 and owns a .267 batting average.

Jim Fregosi drove in two runs, collected a pair of singles and Ranev matched his effort to lead the Angels' attack against loser Phil Ortega (11-11) and three relievers.

Six In Six
The Twins exploded for six runs in the sixth inning to break a 2-2 tie. The big blow was a two-run homer by Bob Allison which snapped the deadlock. Zoilo Versalles followed with a three-run blast, his 14th, to ice the triumph for rookie Jim Merritt, his first major league decision.

Merritt worked the first six innings, allowing four hits and Dwight Siebler and Bill Pleis finished up. Bill Monbouquette (8-12) took the loss. Felix Mantilla hit his 14th homer to account for one of the Boston runs.

Norm Cash singled home the winning run in the seventh inning after the Yankees had tied it 4-4 in the top of the seventh with three runs. Willie Horton drove in two runs for the Tigers in the first with a bases loaded single and Mickey Mantle poked his 14th homer in the fourth for New York. Orlando Pena (3-6) was the winner and Pedro Ramos (4-2) was the loser.

Don Buford and J. C. Martin each drove in four runs for the White Sox, who raked five Cleveland pitchers for 15 hits. The outburst came after Chicago Manager Al Lopez had put his team through an hour of batting practice after Thursday's 3-0 loss to New York. Floyd Weaver (2-2) was the loser and Joe Horlen (10-9) worked the first five innings to gain the victory.

The Kansas City Athletics pounded out 16 hits and Wayne Causey, Ken Harrelson and Jim Landis each drove in two runs against Baltimore loser Milt Pappas (10-5) and two relievers. Rollie Sheldon hurled the first five innings to pick up his fifth triumph in 11 decisions. Wes Stock finished up for the A's.

Bowling

By GIL BURGUND

Dennis Duesterhaus, secretary of the Classic Doubles, was sweating out a three way tie for high game in his league, three fellows had a respectable 247 and then Dennis Huntley relieved the suspense by rolling a 254 game on the next to last nite of bowling.

Pauline Stone, one of our most efficient secretaries is keeping all of us in suspense till she decides if she will be moving or not.

Bruce Murchison, our little star fixed his light for a while by breaking his arm and they tell me it wasn't from patting himself on the back either.

The Wishfuls just wished themselves to the top of the heap and are a cinch for first place. They came through with high game and high series and one of their team members, John Carson had individual high game and series. That's what's called a clean sweep, I guess.

The Poor Girls pulled the same stunt, high game and high series and team member Brinell Copenhaver had high game and series.

Competition between the boys and girls in the Junior Doubles was close last week. Boys hit game Roy Milliron 190 Girls hit game Janet Morgan 180 Series Boys Roy Milliron 537 and Janet Morgan a 522, how's that. You can't believe it but Red Payne missed a night of bowling. I'm sure he had a good excuse because he had to be in Austin to attend a meeting.

Ted Givens and Ken Weaver had terrific first games in the Classic, they didn't scare the opponents with their 124 and 127. They probably didn't want anyone to hear about it.

Ivo Denson also wants it known that she just came out to practice last Tuesday morning. Frances Grove is taking to herself too a near triplicate 114-114-115 but I don't think she is pleased with the series.

Vacations are taking a heavy toll of our summer leaguers these last few weeks. There has been almost as many dummy scores as bowlers. Every one is traveling on vacations I guess.

An Amarillo paper named a Dave Cox of Moses Lake Washington as holding down second place in the Tom Hawley Classic at Amarillo. That's better than 1500 miles away and to think I taught Dave Cox to bowl many years ago at Pasco Washington, small world sometimes.

Many people traveling now a-days make the local bowling lanes one of their first stops. They are always anxious to see if they can do as well as at home, and of course everyone is bowling now.

Even Penny Pinley was bowling the other night, she decided she really wanted a first place trophy for Penny's Lounge so she and the team proceeded to take all four points and won by 1½ games. That was really a tight league.

Well it has been an interesting summer session this season so now for a bigger and better fall season. Let's see you all bowling.

Fashions Made For the Women

PARIS (UPI) — "We're buying Chanel's navy suit with the red trim, and the gray Dior with the white turtle neck," barked the man into the telephone.

Quick-talking, indeed hectic, the andhiss martly nmar dressed, attractive female colleague paced around their smoky hotel room, answered the telephone and sped to Givenchy's and back.

During these last two hectic weeks of Paris winter fashions shows, these two persons possibly were the most powerful of buyers attending from all over the world.

It was they who decided what millions of American women will wear this fall.

Sydney Gittler is the coat and suit buyer, and Irene Satz the dress buyer for the American chain store of Ohrbach's.

For 18 years Ohrbach's has been reproducing Paris collections in line-for-line copies, usually using the original fabric, until by now the store's twice yearly fashion shows are news events complete with police to hold back the crowds.

Women, including celebrities such as Lauren Bacall and Jacqueline Kennedy, line up to buy for $50 and up the Paris copies that sell here, custom-made by hand, for $700 and more.

"I'm buying a lot at Balenciaga this year, including his new tent coat and the coat that's fitted in front with back fullness jutting from the half-belt in back," reported Gittler. "We have one New York customer who buys any Balenciaga copies we make. If we make ten, she'll buy all ten."

"Then there's a woman in Canton, Ohio, whose three sons married French girls. They want French clothes, so she telephones and I describe all the clothes to her. Then she sends a check for several thousand dollars."

Gittler and Miss Satz are the two biggest buyers during the Paris collections, so understandably they are wooed by the salons. Dior sends flowers and perfume, they receive front row seats, "and if we buy, a salon considers their show a hit," Gittler said.

Other buyers watch the team like hawks to try to find out what Ohrbach's is buying so they can order the same numbers. Gittler foils them all at the shows by writing down the number of every model he likes. But he puts dots by the ones he plans to buy.

This Week In Business

By United Press International
WASHINGTON — The Census Bureau estimated construction spending in July reached a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $69,198,000,000, a new high, up from $69,024,000,000 in June.

The Commerce Department meanwhile said U.S. exports dropped 4 per cent in June from the May figures on a seasonally adjusted basis.

PITTSBURGH, Pa. — The Department of Justice filed a civil anti-trust suit to block the proposed merger of Pennzoil and Kendall Refining Co., charging it would eliminate competition between the largest and the third-ranking producer of Penn grade crude oil, source of high grade lubricants.

LONDON — The pound held steady in foreign exchange dealings. Meanwhile, Prime Minister Harold Wilson was quoted in an exclusive interview in a London newspaper, the Guardian, as reaffirming his government is determined to maintain the strength of sterling. New Conservative party leader Edward Heath said he did not believe devaluation could be justified.

WASHINGTON — Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., in its employe publication, denied it put pressure on Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. to cancel plans to build two synthetic rubber plants for Communist Romania. Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., has charged Firestone called off negotiations to build the plant because of "unusual competitive pressures."

Vote Rights Bill Strongest in Years

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The voting rights bill President Johnson signed into law Friday is the strongest Congress has approved since the post-Civil War period to guarantee Negroes the right to the ballot.

For the first time, Congress has bypassed the courts for direct and automatic federal action in areas where the government has found a tradition of voter discrimination.

Briefly, the new law: —Strikes down, without prior court approval, literacy and other voter qualification tests used throughout Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina and Virginia and in 34 counties of North Carolina.

—Authorizes the government to appoint "examiners" to register eligible Negroes, as well as poll watchers and judges to make sure they actually are permitted to vote and have their votes counted.

—Emplovers federal judges in other areas to suspend literacy and other tests and to order appointment of examiners if the government can prove Negroes are being denied the right to vote.

—Imposes imprisonment up to five years or $10,000 fines or both for any effort to intimidate prospective Negro voters or civil rights workers trying to help them.

—Declares poll taxes to be unconstitutional and directs the Justice Department to seek prompt court action outlawing their payment as a condition for voting in state or local elections in Alabama, Mississippi, Texas and Virginia, the only states where they still exist.

Congress' automatic formula for federal action applies to any area with literacy or other tests where less than half the voting-age population was registered or actually voted last November.

The law is based on the 15th Amendment to the Constitution, which says:

"The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude."

"The congress shall have the power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation."

RUSSIAN TOWNS FLOODED
MOSCOW (UPI)—Torrential rains unleashed by "Typhoon Jenny" have flooded seaports and farmland in the Soviet Far East, Tass said Saturday.

Part of the port city of Nakhodka is under water, the Soviet news agency said. Rivers emptying into the sea of Japan have overflowed their banks and telephone communications have been damaged.

ATTEMPTS THWARTED
CORDOBA, Spain (UPI) — Jose Garcia, 34, twice was thwarted in attempts to take his life Wednesday. He threw himself before a speeding bus. The driver stopped it in time. Garcia got up, walked to a nearby bridge, and leaped into the water. A passing youth dived in and rescued him.

The Clark Brothers, and the 4-H and FFA boys Beef Calf Scramble Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights. A $300 purse, plus all entry fees, will attract top cowboy barrel racers from the Girls' Rodeo Association. This event will be a part of each night's performance.

W. D. Price, Jr., president of the Top O' Texas Rodeo Association, anticipates one of the best shows in the history of the organization, which was started in 1945.

Some of the top cowboys in the nation will be attracted by the $3,800 in prize money, plus entry fees. Beutler Brothers of Elk City, Okla., will again furnish the stock and direct the arena, while popular Cy Tailion will return as announcer.

Although final entries are not yet in, a number of cowpokes rated among the best in the country last year are expected to compete, as well as most of the defending champions.

A steer roper currently listed as first in the Rodeo Cowboys Association (RCA) national standings is expected, Jim Praetner of Claremont, Tex., as well as the currently ranked third and fourth saddle bronc riders, Shawn Davis of Whitehall, Mont., and Marty Wood of Alberta, Canada.

Saddle bronc riding appears to have the standout competition here, as three other riders beside Davis and Wood who were listed in the top fifteen last year are scheduled to compete; George Williams of Greeley, Colo., Dennis Reiners of Clara City, Minn., and Larry Mahan of Brooks, Ore. Davis is currently rated ninth in the all-round national standings.

Tex Martin of Meridian is expected to go for the honors in bareback riding, where he was rated one of the tops last year; Bill Cornell of Palm Springs, Calif., and Carl Natzger of Olton and Hank Abbie of Alberta are all rated in bull riding.

Barry Burk of Wagoner, Okla., Sonny Davis of Kenna, N. M., and Sonny Worrell of Altoona, Kans., all rated in calf roping, will be meeting another top-rated roper, and a favorite son, defending champion Lee Cockrell, of Pampa and Panhandle.

Don Huddleston of Talihina, Okla., and Nathan Haley of Hanna, Okla., are two of the highly-ranked steer wrestlers who will be present, and Davis will head the steer roping field. Team roping is the only nationally-rated RCA event not on the program.

Barring injury of accident, all the defending champions from last year's TOT rodeo will be back. Besides Cockrell, they include saddle bronc champ George Williams of Boulder, Colo., Dave Reidhead of Scottsdale, Ariz., in bareback bronc riding, Dave Glover of Durant, Okla., in bull riding; and Tater Decker of Clayton, Okla., in steer wrestling. Decker recently won the honors at the Cheyenne Rodeo.

A number of well-known area riders who have made their mark nationally will be out to keep the prize money at home, including Buddy Cockrell of Pampa, Leonard McCravey of Memphis and Elton Dudley of Perryton.

KID PONY SHOW ENTRANT — Denice Roach, 10-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Roach, Price Rd., leaves the shoot on her horse Star to ride in the barrel race event in the Kid Pony Show. Bill McIntire, left, and Teenie Reynolds, right on the announcer's platform, are directors of the Kid Pony Show and Miniature Rodeo which will have its first performance at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Rodeo Arena. Boys and girls, ages 5 through 15, will be entered in the seven events of the show.

ROUGH RIDE — Professional rodeo's bareback bronco riders won over a half-million dollars ($514,571) prize money last season. But paths to the paywindow are rough. This rider got only a handful of dirt and bruises for failure to stay aboard the required eight seconds.

Spectators Vote Steer Wrestling Tops

Steer must be caught from horse. If steer gets loose dogger may take no more than one step to catch him. Steer will be considered down only when it is lying flat on its side, all four feet and head straight. — Synopsis R.C.A. rules.

Steer wrestling has a surprising number of spectator votes for the most exciting event in the rodeo arena. When a man drops from a galloping horse onto the horns of a steer who is going full tilt, stops the steer and throws it to the ground, they have seen skill overcome heavily weighted odds.

The first time people see this they are sure the strongest man, who is lucky enough to draw the slowest and most cooperative steer, should be the winner. The truth is, the man who quickly and consistently can get a steer off balance while he himself stays in control is on the way to the winner's circle.

Briefly, the secret is this. As the cowboy catches up to the steer he reaches with his right hand, scooping up the right horn, and as his horse speeds by the steer the cowboy gets this horn snugly in the crook of his right elbow. At the same time, his left hand pushes down on the other horn while his horse veers off to the left. The cowboy's heels are dropped ahead, and at a 45 degree angle, to the path the steer is taking.

Digging in his heels, the cowboy is tipping the steer's head as much as he can and pulling it toward the center of a left-hand turn. As the steer stops—his hindquarters having swung around—the cowboy's left hand reaches for the animal's upturned nose and with this hold he is able to throw the steer on its side.

The winning run takes perfect coordination. Besides the steer wrestler and his horse there is a second man who starts from the opposite side of the steer and his job is to keep the animal running straight.

The steer actually trips the barrier, in front of the contestant's horse, when he reaches the end of a premeasured light rope. This rope is looped around his horns—in it there is a breakable string link which allows it to fall free. Another such link in the barrier breaks should the steer wrestler hit it before the steer crosses the scoreline.

During the year thousands of dollars are divided by split seconds so the art of brushing the barrier becomes important.

The hazer appears to be merely galloping alongside the steer and to the uninitiated onlooker all he clearly does is retrieve his partner's horse after the jump is made. In reality, from the moment the steer leaves the chute the hazer plays an important part.

Bucking Horse Leads Life of Ease

The professional bucking horses of rodeo work less, live as well and last longer than any other "working" horse in the world.

Even more than the slick thoroughbreds cared for on the racing farms, the shaggy, ill-tempered bronc is the pampered prince of the equine kingdom.

Rodeo broncs buck in eight and ten second stretches. Even the busiest bucking horses are rarely turned out of the chute oftener than twice a week or more than thirty times a year. Thus, their "working" year is less than five minutes long.

No one can train a horse to buck. He either likes it or he doesn't. All his owners can do is to give him plenty of rest, feed and water and hope his moral stays high enough that he will go on trying to flatten every rider who crawls on his back.

A big part of the moral building is letting the horse think he is winning. That's why the bronc ride in professional rodeo is limited to either eight or ten seconds, depending upon arena conditions.

Bucking horses are at their worst the first twenty jumps from the chute and a cowboy who got past that first storm would have an odds on chance of riding the bronc from there on out.

Cruel treatment of bucking horses is a myth among misguided animal lovers. Besides being specifically forbidden by a set of rules — written in harmony by the Rodeo Cowboys Association and the American Humane Association — mistreatment of bucking horses would be a good way for any rodeo stock contractor to commit economic suicide. Under federal horses simply won't buck at all. The average age of all bucking horses in pro rodeo is somewhere between twelve and fifteen years old and nearly every major bucking string boasts more than one old reliable past twenty.

Nylon lariat rope came into use during World War II when long fibered manila, grown mainly in the Philippines, was no longer available. Nylon ropes, which will stretch almost a third length, are virtually unbreakable, are long lasting and impervious to dampness. They are used by rodeo cowboys in steer roping events.

GOING UP — To decide the year's champion cowboy, professional rodeo holds a title playoff at the end of the season. Only the nation's best bucking stock reaches the National Finals. This is Snappy John stellar bareback bronc of the Oklahoma string of Beutler Brothers who will be furnishing bucking stock for the rodeo here.

Rodeo Has Own World Series

Since 1959, the sport of pro rodeo has had its own world series, the National Finals rodeo, held late in the year.

The top fifteen money winners in each event are eligible to compete and they tangle with stock — carefully selected for their proven ability to hurl cowboys aloft — from bucking strings throughout North America.

Going to its seventh year, the Finals is a well established classic. The term "the Finals" already denotes respect.

From its recent site, the Los Angeles Sports Arena, to the shadows back of the chutes where the Finals were first thought of, this ambitious project has achieved its many goals.

These goals were to focus national attention on a date and place where the championships would be decided, give bucking stock their rightful acclaim while they were still in action — not having their reputation built entirely on legend — and to create a well-lit classroom in which the public could learn more about rodeo.

This last goal, perhaps the most important, was set because those behind the sport are convinced the gate will increase with the public's knowledge.

Specifically, rodeo's increasing space and time — in newspapers, television and radio — has brought these goals much neared. And, if the surge in current attendance figures can be traced to the Finals door, then rodeo's world series is approaching its ultimate purpose of helping all rodeos.

The Finals spent the first three years in Dallas, Texas, moved to Los Angeles in 1962 and according to policy, are moving again.

The theory behind these moves is the Finals should stimulate interest in rodeo locally as well as nationally. The ideal situation would be to hold the Finals in a city which had never had a rodeo. Then when the world series left that city its departure would create a demand for a high caliber rodeo to take its place.

The successful Cotton Bowl Rodeo at Dallas, created in the wake of the Finals, proved this policy sound.

Boys Ranch Sets Rodeo Labor Day

AMARILLO (Spl) — The 336 youngsters at Cal Farley's Boys Ranch near here are getting ready for their annual rodeo and the practice rides have already started for the Labor Day weekend event.

More Ranchers will be participating than ever. They started practicing nearly three months before the event and the boys have signs of putting on the best performance ever. All the boys will take part in the rodeo, either in competition or in the many behind-the-scenes activities that are necessary to a successful rodeo.

The events range from bronc riding for the older boys to the famous stick-horse race in which the youngest boys, ages 5 to 8, navigate their mounts around barrels placed in the Ranch's arena. Professional rodeo stock is used by the older boys and calves from the Ranch's own herd provide thrilling rides for the less experienced Ranchers.

The highlight of the two-day rodeo is the naming of the Junior and Senior All Around Cowboys. Members of the adult staff also saddle up horses and work in the chutes and the arena assisting the boys.

During the past 20 years the Boys Ranch Rodeo has become one of the most anticipated occasions, not only with the Ranchers, but with their friends across the nation, and this year the boys are going all the way to make the 21st Annual Rodeo the best one yet.

Northern cowboys have captured the saddle bronc riding championship, 28 of the last 36 years; in contrast the Southwest produced 29 of the calf roping champions, in the same period.

Idaho's Dean Oliver was the first and only cowboy to move the calf roping championship from southwest territory. He won his first crown in '55, now owns seven, the last five in a row.

Rodeo West's Last Frontier

Rodeo is the last frontier of the once-wild west. It was born on a bet, and bred of the same circumstances of history that created the once sinful cities of Dodge and Abilene.

It began shortly after Texans came home from the Civil War, to find that their longhorn herds had multiplied unchecked. Southern cattle markets, already depressed by the collapse of the Confederacy, were soon glutted. So the Texans turned their herds to the north and to the west, driving them across the plains, first to better markets, then to the encroaching railheads at Abilene and Wichita and Dodge, later to the greener pastures that stretched across the great plains clear to the Canadian line.

The trail drivers were tough men and independent, who lived in the saddle and slept under the open sky. They sat their mounts like centaurs, the two-animal and man — becoming one. They drove the sword-armed cattle through drouth and dust and blizzard, across some of the wildest country man has pioneered.

They knew their cattle as a craftsman knows his tools. They carried guns — to kill coyotes and other range varmints, but they worked with a rope on a horse.

Occasionally they'd hit a trail town, where they blew off enough steam, in that brief moment of history, to keep four generations of fiction writers busy ever since. But town, in the long monotony of their lives, was an unexpected pleasure; a binge of a few days, perhaps, in every year.

Between towns they made up their own amusement. And these tough hands created a recreation that was typically tough. The hands of the different cattle outfits, coming together on the trail or at roundup time, bet their scant wages on their skill at riding rank broncs or roping longhorned steers.

It was rough sport for short stakes. The prize money — the cowboys own bets — was held in a hat.

The cowboy sport might have flourished briefly out there on plains, to slip quickly, quietly into the pages of history like the buffalo, the marauding plains Indian and the trail drivers themselves. But the face of the plain was changing.

Steel drivers were gashing the swales of buffalo grass, laying the ribbons of rail to the west. From the east came bankers and buyers and merchants to build depots and stockyards and banks and courthouses, along the right of way.

This was the era of the torchlight parade, the Fourth of July oration, the town bandshell on the courthouse square. In a generation of proud and bustling burghers who liked their civic celebrations big and wild, the building townsmen of the western frontier were the busiest, the proudest and the wildest of all.

They went out on the plains and invited the cowboys to bring their contest into town. At Cheyenne, Wyo., in 1872, the townsfolk gathered at the settlement edge to watch some Texans try to ride the wild stock.

At Pecos, Texas, in 1883, they penned the longhorns on the courthouse lawn and roped them down main street. At Prescott, Ariz., five years later they built a grandstand and sold tickets.

In a short generation the wild west settled down. The open range was fenced and posted,

Texas held the biggest number of R.C.A. rodeos in '64, with 72; Oklahoma's Jim Shoulders is pro rodeo's biggest title grabber, California ranked second, 58; and Colorado was third with 41. Through '59, a total of sixteen from '50 through '59.

Rodeo Bosses Most Battered Directors

They have been called, with more truth than they like to admit, the world's most battered Board of Directors. The combined salaries of the voting members won't add up to enough for a hamburger dinner. Yet the decisions they make at their meetings affect a sport which has, in the last four seasons, paid out over twelve million dollars in prize money.

They are the thirteen men who sit on the board of the Rodeo Cowboys Association, the non-profit service organization which is both the conscience and moving spirit of professional rodeo.

Like the PGA in golf or the NCAA in inter-collegiate sports, the RCA sets the rules in pro rodeo, names the champions and speaks for the sport on national issues.

The organization began some 29 years ago as a contestant's brotherhood dedicated to protecting the cowboys' economic rights in the hardship years of the depression Thirties. They were called the Cowboys Turtle Association and their demands were limited to standard rules, fair and experienced judges, and an adequate amount of prize money.

But their sport was the world's most disorganized, a series of unrelated contests which, like Topsy, "just grew" from the informal cowboy sessions on the open plains of the early west.

The rodeos were — and still are — organized and underwritten by volunteer committees of businessmen who contributed their time and energy as a service to the community.

These men recognized the need for a closer cohesion among rodeos. But as volunteers with their own livelihood to earn in other fields, they had little time to devote to organization beyond their own contest.

So the cowboys, the full-time professionals in the sport, were encouraged to take over the responsibility. Now superimposed over the associations traditional concern with conditions of the contest is a dedication to the future of rodeo as a whole.

and every sport has more also-rans than champions — he will win closer to $3,000 a year, slim pickin' indeed in this high-cost era of inflation. Obviously, the money isn't the whole answer.

Why does he do it? You can ask the cowboys themselves. Their answers are neither articulate nor very revealing. One battered veteran puzzled long over this strange question and answered at length: "Well, I'm sure not bothered by insurance salesmen."

The answer lies in the nature of men who answer a challenge — the challenge of a bronc "that can't be rode" or a roping time that can't be bettered. It is not an unusual phenomenon. The pioneers answered the challenge of the wilderness. The businessman answers the challenge of new markets. Man still answers the smaller challenge of unclimbed mountains while he prepares to answer the greatest challenge — travel in space.

The cowboy competes partly from boastfulness, partly on a bet and partly from sheer bravery. He chooses rodeo because he's willing to ride against the odds as long as he can ride in freedom.

In saddle bronc riding, if he draws an animal he's never seen before, he'll find out how he bucks, how best to set his saddle and where to take the rein. Who does he ask? The other bronc riders who are trying to beat him.

In steer wrestling, whether he wins depends on how fast he can catch a running steer jumping from the back of his high-balling horse. To keep the steer running straight he asks someone to haze for him. Who does he ask? Another steer wrestler entered in the same contest.

It doesn't occur to a cowboy that he can improve his own chances of winning by lying just a little about the broncs or slowing up just a touch on the steers. In any other sport, this would be called sportsmanship, a word seldom heard in rodeo.

In rodeo this is a quality of honesty so taken for granted that it doesn't have a name. It is simply part of being a man.

The cowboys' herds nowadays are whizzed down super highways in big trucks by contract hauler. His cattle are calmed by tranquilizers and branded in chutes.

What draws rational men to this contest, where the rules are stacked against the man to favor the animal? The money, you might say, and this is part of the answer. If he's good, he might get rich. The world's champion all around cowboy wins over $35,000 a year and his traveling expenses and entry fees cost him only half of that. But if he's only average —

PARTING COMPANY with his gyrating mount this cowboy fails to stay on board the required eight seconds in rodeo's saddle bronc riding event and loses chance to share in the prize money. Some $461,510 was paid out in this event last year at contests sanctioned by the professional Rodeo Cowboys Association.

Regardless of what TV westerns would have us believe, a West wasn't won at the faro tables. Nor was it settled by the six gun. Its history was written by thousands of trailing hooves across a half-million trackless miles of thirsty plains. It is a story largely of individuals and raw courage.

They crossed the plains seeking better land or more freedom. Their driving urges, the rugged individualism, the personal courage is alive today. The cowboy still rides the far reaches of the west, still stakes his life to win his living because he prefers that to the creeping restrictions that go with the fringe benefits of a steady job.

The rodeo cowboy earns no salary, draws no expense allowance, has no guaranteed annual wage. His only income is what he can win in a fiercely competitive sport, where he must win over not only the cowboys he competes against but the rank animals he competes on. And he must pay for this privilege — entry fees that run up to $100 per event per rodeo.

The competing cowboy can win more in a minute than most men earn in a month. But he can be killed or crippled for life by the wild flick of a hoof or the thrust of a horn — and he knows it.

Walker Tops Standings After Cheyenne Sweep

DENVER—The national lead in four of eight cowboy championship races for 1965 changed hands after Cheyenne Frontier Days, the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association said here Monday.

In its 68th year, the southern Wyoming city's 6-day rodeo, which hikes the town's economy a reported $4 million, ended Sunday afternoon, distributing over $87,000 to winning cowboys, competing in six arena events.

Track events, horse racing, chuck wagon races and a wild horse race, hiked the rodeo's total payoff over the $100,000 mark.

One cowboy contestant collected over $3,000, four others pocketed more than $2,000 apiece and seventeen more earned from $1,097 to $1,880 each, the R.C.A. said, in some of the season's wildest riding action.

Cheyenne's prize money bundle sent Enoch Walker, 33, Cody, Wyo., to the national lead in saddle-bronc riding; pushed veteran Harley May 38, Oakdale, Calif., to the front in steer wrestling charts; put Idaho's 9-time world champion, Dean Oliver, 35, back on top in calf roping; and gave Jim Prather, 28, Clairemont, Tex., the first chance of his rodeo career at the single steer roping title.

Other event leaders—in bareback bronc riding, bull riding, and team roping—held to their pre-Cheyenne totals.

Walker, 1960's bronc riding titlist, knocked Shawn Davis, 24, Whitehall, Mont., back to third in the event's charts, by winning an $880 fourth-place finish in Frontier Park. It was the first time this season, Davis, former inter-collegiate riding champ, had lost the lead.

Davis missed Cheyenne's pay window entirely as the event win went to Jim Tescher, 34, Medora, N. D., for $1,522.

May, former steer wrestling titlist in 1952 and 1956, beat out 89 other entries, with a total time of 32.8 seconds on three steers, and walked off with $2,735. The lanky Californian gained an over $2,000 edge in the event's national picture.

Oliver, from Boise, calf roping champion for the last five years in a row, snared $1,478, to regain the lead from Glen Franklin, 30, House, N.M., who had been in front since January.

Oliver's new money came from a third place finish in Frontier Days action as he wound up four tenths of a second behind Bud Smith, 37, Del Rio, Tex., rancher and Jack Burkholder, 27, a San Antonio high school teacher, both of whom recorded 50 seconds flat on three calves, for a first and second place tie.

Smith, who placed deeper in go-round money than Burkholder, earned $3,195, as the rodeo's big money winner. Burkholder got $2,443.

Top money award for two events went to Warren Wuthier, 29, Buffalo, Wyo., who earned

$1,673 in calf roping and steer wrestling.

Prather, making his initial win of the year in steer roping, went to the event's national lead, with $2,275. His total time on three steers was 65.9 seconds.

Only Veteran Riders Judge

Imagine an umpire closely watching a play at second base. And imagine he knows full well if the ball beat the runner it could cost the runner $2,500.

Adding tenseness to this imaginary situation let's say the runner and the umpire had been brought up together, driven together a quarter million miles through blistering heat and numbing cold. Now the umpire knows he is deciding a financial crisis in his friend's life.

The umpire helped unload the bunch of cows that still have to be paid for. No easy decision this, but a rodeo judge faces some just as tough.

Because knowledge of animals are involved, the Rodeo Cowboys Association has found the best officials come from among active contestants. By rule, the association says a judge must be a cowboy who has contested within the last twelve months. They feel a longer period of inactivity would dull his ability to evaluate how hard the bucking stock is to ride.

These men in the striped vests, paid in ratio to the size of the rodeo's purse, are judging horses and bulls, marking each from 1 to 25, on how hard he bucks. They are scoring the rider in a similar point spread on how well he spurs and the degree of control he displays.

The scores you hear are the total of what both judges marked the animal and the rider. They stand on either side of the chute gate concentrating on that side of the ride. The first thing they look for—in saddle and bareback bronc riding—is whether the rider's feet are over the point of the horse's shoulders when the animal's front feet hit the ground, first jump out of the chute. If they see this didn't happen the cowboy is disqualified.

Bull Riding Most Dangerous Rodeo Event

Riding to be done with one hand. Bull will be ridden with hand and loose rope, with or without hand hold. Rope must be qualified for being bucked off or touching animal with free hand.

Synopsis R.C.A. rules.

The most popular riding event, and the most dangerous in rodeo, is the bull riding. Watching these cross-bred Brahmas do everything but turn inside out the question immediately arises why would anybody in their right mind get on these heaving, spinning juggernauts.

Not only have there been many who have gone a whole season without being ridden the required eight seconds, but there are some who will go after the rider whether he left their back intentionally or not.

Because bulls will charge a man on horseback—and pickup men can't be used as in the other two riding events—only the clown can help the scrambling, stunned, or upended cowboys.

At this moment, the man in the baggy raiment is the most important person in the world to the bull rider. Often his courage, recognition of what a bull has on his mind and his reactive speed, is the reason that bull rider can eat supper that night.

If a man is motivated by testing his own nerve, bull riding will do it. In addition, the event has added appeal because any one who can ride half his stock during the season will wind up with a lot of prize money.

In the other riding events an unlucky cowboy conceivably could draw horse after horse on which he couldn't win a dime. A bull rider uses a rope which is looped like a noose around the animal's middle. It is a flat plait with a handhold like the snug handle of a dufflebag. The rider puts his gloved hand in this loop, knuckles down, and a helping friend, standing on the chute, pulls the slack out of the rope as if he were tugging a heavy bucket from a well.

When the rope's tightness feels right to the rider, he takes the free end of the rope and lays it across his palm. Then he wraps it once behind his hand and lays it across his palm again. He clenches his fist with everything he can muster; he hunches his body close to his hand and, as soon as he feels the bull standing squarely, he nods and the gate swings open.

As long as the cowboy doesn't touch the bull with his free hand and still has his riding hand on some part of the rope at the end of the eight seconds, the judges will score his ride from 1 to 25 on how hard the bull bucked, and from 1 to 25 on how well the cowboy rode.

A bull rider dreads being bucked off away from his riding hand. When this happens his weight—even though his fist has opened—can bind the wrap behind his hand and there he's hung. Looking like a rag doll tied to a mad dog, the cowboy is helpless until his hand wrenches free or the clown comes to his rescue.

To qualify, rider must have spurs over the break of the shoulders and touching the horse when front feet hit the ground first jump out of the chute. Rider disqualified for: being bucked off; changing hands on rein; losing stirrup; or touching the animal, saddle or rein with his free hand.

Synopsis R. C. A. rules.

Oddly enough, saddle bronc riding, the classic event, has less competitors than any other in professional rodeo. Cowboys with little ranching experience yet with a strong hand, have gone to the top in bull riding and bareback bronc riding, but rodeo's oldest event, and with roping, the most closely linked to actual ranch work, demands a contestant with years of actual experience on rough horses.

Few outsiders have ever crashed the upper ranks. The instinctive reactions required to keep the stirrups, sense what a horse will do next, and the rhythm required—because there is nothing solid to hang onto—make this event one in which there is no substitute for the school of hard knocks.

To give the horse every advantage, the rider is required to have his dulled spurs over the point of the animal's shoulders when the bronc's front feet hit the ground first jump out of the chute.

Quoting former six-time world champion saddle bronc rider, Casey Tibbs, "the first thing we think about when we know what horse we've drawn, is how much rein we'll give him. If we don't know the horse, we'll find someone who has been on him and they'll tell us."

The dependency a cowboy has on his rein often makes the difference between the good and the champion rider. A man who is not dependent on the rein alone—relying greatly on balance—can use his feet with more freedom. The judges, marking the rider from 1 to 25, will give him a higher mark for this full arcing stroke, which cowboys call "ick."

Equally important is the fact that some horses, which the judges also score from 1 to 25 on how hard they buck, will "turn on" better if his passenger isn't hanging on to the rein with brute strength.

The rider is marked down by the judges if he loses control—cowboys call it "getting into a storm"—and in this event the saddle itself makes recovery more difficult. The cantle of the saddle, behind, and the swells, in front, get under a man and literally knock him out of there. The fear of hanging up in a stirrup, always in the back of the rider's mind, is another angle adding to the event's danger.

Calf Roping Is Race Against Time

If cowboys intend to use two loops, two ropes must be carried. Cowboy must throw calf by hand, cross and tie any three feet. If calf is down when the roper reaches it, he must allow calf to get up and then throw calf. Tie must hold for six seconds after roper calls time. — Synopsis R.C.A. rules.

Calf roping is a race against time with seconds counted in decimal points and the money going to the swift—there is not time to be lost in waste motion, even less to be spent signaling the horse.

To win, horse and rider must work together at peak efficiency with automatic teamwork polished to precision. And that requires constant practice.

The contest begins behind the barrier, a rope stretched across the box-like space where the roper and his mount wait for the quarry to be released. The barrier is automatic, triggered by a measured length of twine around the calf's neck.

When the calf, released from the chute, reaches a predetermined head start he hits the end of the twine which falls away as it trips the barrier.

Because a tenth of a second often will win a roping the roper and his horse try to hit the barrier at the exact moment it is released. If the cowboy rides through the barrier before it trips a penalty of 10 seconds is added to his time, usually enough to keep him from finishing in the money.

So teamwork starts at the roping box. The horse should break instantly on signal from the roper. A slow start will cost precious seconds after the fast breaking calf; a fraction too soon will cost the 10-second penalty.

Out of the box, a good horse will rate the calf, closing on him quickly and holding a steady interval, regardless of how the calf bobs or weaves. Most ropers like their horses to stay a length behind and a fraction to one side to allow a clean throw.

If the thrown loop misses, the cowboy gets another try, provided he carries another rope ready tied to the saddle. Calf roping is catch as catch can as long as the loop holds until the roper gets his hands on the calf.

The horse's quick stop is used by the cowboy to propel him down the rope to the calf. He comes off the horse running. If stop and dismount are not timed perfectly the roper is left flat-footed beside his horse.

On the ground, the roper must throw the calf by hand, a task made easier if the horse keeps backed against a tight rope. The calf may be downed either by "leggin" — using a foreleg as a pry to tip him over — or by "flanking" — picking the animal up bodily and laying him on his side.

Once the calf is downed, the cowboy gathers three legs, wraps and ties them with a short length of light rope, called a pigging string, carried either in his mouth, or tucked in his belt. He signals completion of his run by raising both hands high. Smoothness, in calf roping is all-important.

Rodeo Open To Anyone

For generations rodeo has been open to any ambitious kid with nerve enough to give it a try; and the tradition still stands.

Any youngster — or for that matter any restless adult discontent with his job in the bank — can test his skill in taking lumps at rodeos approved by the professional Rodeo Cowboys Association.

For $10 a season he can get a permit card from RCA headquarters in Denver allowing him to enter in the association's sanctioned rodeos until he wins a total $1,000 in prize money.

That's enough by the cowboys' reckoning to make him a pro in any man's league.

Rodeo Winners Determined By Money

Rodeo is a contest of cowboys competing for prize money. So the simplest, fairest way to name the world champions of professional rodeo is by counting the money they win each season.

From official results of every rodeo approved by the Rodeo Cowboys Association each season, a careful, cumulative record of dollars won through the year by every cowboy member, is kept at the association's Denver, Colorado, headquarters.

At the end of the regular season, a certified public accountant audits the financial chart and ascertains the top 15 winners in each event. These men become eligible to compete in the title playoffs, the National Finals Rodeo.

The NFR does not change the system of naming champions but is simply fitted into it. Money won at the Finals, along with seasonal earnings, all are dollars toward the titles. So the titlists still are the men who won the most money for the year.

A total of $24,000 in added financial dividends is guaranteed the new crown-wearers by the RCA. This is apportioned $3,000 per title, with the champion getting 40 per cent, runner-up 30 percent, third place winner 20 percent, and fourth place holder 10 percent, and is aside from contributions from other donors. Top money winner of 1954, Ed-aho's Dean Oliver, won $81,180 in competition, pocketed another $4,500 in donated cash awards. Keeping track of a cowboy's winnings these days is a sizeable task.

PAYOFF — Richest annual payoff of all rodeo events, modern-day calf roping calls for split-second teamwork by horse and rider. The professional Rodeo Cowboys Association tallied $733,741 won by its calf roping members last year.

"THE FACT that Neolithic man did not produce an atomic bomb was not because he did not have the brains, but because the experience and culture of a few thousand years were needed before man could use his brain for such purposes," states Dr. Stanley Cobb, Harvard University neurologist, who says the best brains are the big brains and the really big brains, those weighing over 900 grams, seem to be only in man, porpoise, elephant and whale. But he disagrees with a scientific authority who held that a brain had to weigh over 1,000 grams before it could develop language and intellect. "Brain size by itself tells very little," the doctor said. "On the average a whale's brain weighs 7,000 grams, an elephant's 3,000, a man's 1,400 and a cat's 30. All of this shows that brain size is related to the size of the body containing it. To most people a big brain means mental prowess and a small brain stupidity," he said, "but the fact is that only very small human brains are inadequate, and very large brains have no advantage over medium-sized ones." Now what we would like to know is whether man or woman has the largest brain. Apple blossoming might be of interest to area gardeners. A report by Dr. H. M. Cathey of the U.S. Department of Agriculture states that minute amounts of gas exuded by ripe apples promotes blossoming in a wide variety of plants. It is a gas somewhat similar to hydroxyethyl hydrazona used by growers in Hawaii to make field-grown pineapples bloom and bear fruit. Simply put the plant in a bag, he reports, with an apple and leave for four days. Then remove the plant and care for it as usual. Within one to six months, depending on the species, it will produce blooms, although ordinarily it does not bear flowers. Someday mi-lady could be wearing the latest styles fashioned of exotic aerospace insulation. Not even the flame of an oxy-acetylene welding torch ruffled model Pat Powers, when the torch was held against the model's arm, which was protected by a mere quarter-inch of the material that is used on spacecraft in the Mercury, Gemini and Apollo programs.

MRS. W. D. (NELLIE) Kelley flew to San Francisco, Calif., last week where she will board the luxury liner SS Lurline today, sailing for Hawaii. E. Roy and Phyllis Smith and children, Barbara, John and Leslie, of Lima, Ohio, surprised their many Pampa friends with a stop-over visit last week on their way home from a California vacation. Mr. Smith, publisher of the Lima (Ohio) News, held the same position with the Pampa News for several years, moving to Lima three years ago. Newlyweds Jerry Edmondson and Gerald Allen were seen at First Presbyterian Church services last Sunday morning. A group of friends and neighbors of Will and Talley Hunt dropped by the Hunt home Friday evening to bid the family goodbye. The Hunts and daughters, Stacey and Kim, are leaving Pampa soon to make their home in Boston, Mass. Congratulations to Phyllis Atwood and Jim Reeves on being named the recipients of the Gray County 4-H Gold Star Awards. Miss Atwood is the 16-year-old daughter of Ted and Ladell Atwood and Reeves is the 15-year-old son of Dora and Alvin Reeves. Joyce and Chick Hickman are enjoying a fisherman's holiday in Minnesota. Vern and Lida Hallar have been entertaining two grandsons the past week. Visiting in the Hallar home have been David Hulsey of Amarillo and Derrell Wayne Hallar of Perryton. Bob and Ruth Clements have had as their houseguests their son and family, Bill and Leatrice Clements and son, Rob, of Roswell, N.M., and Mr. Clements' brother and wife, Roy and Martha Clements of Friona. Gib and Thelma Morris are caring for their two-year-old granddaughter, Amber Hester of McLean, while mother, Mrs. Guy (Erma Lee) Hester is recuperating from surgery. Mrs. Joe Windle of Falls City, Neb., has been visiting the past three weeks in the home of her daughter and son-in-law, Carol and Eugene Harper. Carl and Helen Hoskins and family, newcomers to Pampa from Burlington, Colo., have purchased Bill and Helen Kelley's home on Chestnut. Hoskins, previously a resident engineer for the State of Colorado, has taken an engineer's position with Cabot.

PAMPA COUNTRY CLUB members and guests enjoyed a gala Hawaiian luau last Tuesday evening. The food was exotic and delicious, the favorite delicacies being the roast pig, bamboo sprouts and macadamia nuts. A few of those seen, dressed in colorful Hawaiian costumes, greatly enjoying the floor show of hula dancers and dancing around the club's pool to Herb Remington and His Island Music, were Charlotte and Fletcher Kennedy, Ralph and Teresa Kennedy, Ralph and Evelyn Sidwell, Laura and Floyd Imel, Fern and Johnny Hines and Kathryn and Dudley Steele who had as their guests Al and Sue Morgan of Boston, Mass. The Steeles were authentically dressed, Hawaiian style, since their daughter Marilyn, brought the costumes they were wearing back from Hawaii. Bob and Doris Johnson entertained a group of friends informally in the Johnson home, which was decorated Hawaiian fashion, before the group went to P.C.C. Among those gathering at the Johnsons home were Wil and Curt Beck, Dr. Will and Evelyn Graham, Buddy and Jeanette Polson and LeRoi and Frances Ogden. Mrs. W. R. (Jenkie) Campbell, Mrs. J. R. (Ruth) Spearman and Mrs. Aubrey (Margaret) Steele honored Mrs. David Kampschroeder with a bridal shower in First Methodist Church parlor Wednesday afternoon. The honoree, the former Janet Osborne, and daughter of Mrs. Irene Osborne, will soon be bidding her new husband goodbye when he reports for duty with the U.S. Army in Ft. Benning, Ga., bound for Viet Nam. Didn't get the complete guest list, but a few of those attending the shower were Miss Sue Ann Thompson, Miss Marilyn Steele, Mrs. M. K. (Bess) Griffith, Mrs. Billy (Ruth) Greene and Mrs. Carlton (Jewell) Nance. Mrs. Roy (Mildred) Sullivan, Miss Yvonne Goss, Miss Pearl Spagh and Miss Mary Reeve will leave tomorrow for Denver where they will attend the Southwest Regional Conference of Delta Kappa Gamma Society for teachers. G. B. and Helene Hogan and son, Terry Madeira, have returned from vacationing in Galveston where they met other Pampans, Herb and Peggy Peoples and daughter Carol at the Hotel Galvez and Villa. The group drove to Houston where they toured the Astrodome and attended a baseball game. While in Houston the Hogans also visited Mrs. Hogan's other sons, Bob and Terry Madeira, former Pampans.

Couple Pledges Vows in Evening Rites

Mrs. Joe Clark Humphrey and Miss Susan Bea Quible

Spiral and tree candelabra entwined with salal foliage and bearing white cathedral tapers, and an altar arrangement of white mums, flanked by Grecian pedestal urns holding white mums, appointed the wedding scene last evening for the pledging of vows of Miss Susan Bea Quible and Joe Clark Humphrey.

Grouped candelabra and salal foliage decorated the choir rail while salal foliage was placed on the communion rail. Honor pews were marked with white satin ribbon and salal foliage and a white satin pillow covered the kneeling bench.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Quible of 1918 N. Russell and Dr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Humphrey of Abilene are the parents of the bridegroom.

Rev. Harry Vanderpool pronounced the double-ring vows at 8 o'clock in First Methodist Church, Mrs. Hubert Carson, organist, presented appropriate nuptial selections and accompanied Hugh Carson, vocalist, as he sang "Because," "Oh Promise Me" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride, lovely in a chapel-length gown of imported silk organza over bridal taffeta, trimmed with hand-clipped chantilly lace, was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father. The fitted bodice of the gown, appliqued with hand-clipped chantilly lace, featured a scooped neckline and three-quarter length sleeves. The sheath skirt, also appliqued with hand-clipped chantilly lace, was embroidered in seed pearl clusters and leaf vines. A detachable, chapel-length train, trimmed on the side panels with chantilly lace appliques and seed pearl clusters, fell from slightly above the back waistline. A large, flat bow of organza, from which fell an elongated, diamond-shaped panel, trimmed with chantilly lace appliques and seed pearl clusters, was placed at the center back waistline. The bride's elbow-length tiered veil of imported silk bridal illusion fell gracefully from a small organza pillbox trimmed with appliques of chantilly lace and seed pearls. She carried a white Rainbow Bible topped with stephanotis in which a white orchid was nestled, accented with satin streamers. The bride carried out the tradition of something old, new, borrowed and blue by wearing a six pence in her shoe and carrying a linen handkerchief that had belonged to her maternal great-grandmother. Attired in formal-length gowns of coral dull-lustre satin featuring scooped necklines, fitted bodices, elbow-length sleeves and slightly belled skirts, with a flat matching satin bow at the center back waistline, bridal attendants were Mrs. Paul Brown Jr., bride's cousin, matron of Ushers seating the wedding guests were Steve Mittelstat of Berger, Paul Brown Jr. of Lindsay, Okla., Clinton Bowman of Deming, N.M., and Harmon Meixner.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Quible was attired in a sheath dress fashioned of capri blue lace and chiffon, accented by matching accessories. A pink cymbidium orchid corsage completed her ensemble. Mrs. Humphrey chose a gown fashioned with a beige lace bodice, accented by tiny rhinestones and pearls, and a crystalline skirt. Matching accessories and a bronze cymbidium orchid corsage complemented her costume. Arrangements of white mums placed on Grecian pedestals appointed Pampa Country Club for the reception held following the wedding rites. The bride's table, covered with a white satin cloth, was appointed with a center arrangement of white fuji mums flanked by silver candelabra, a silver punch bowl and the five-tiered wedding cake. ## Father's Importance Finally Made Public

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

It has finally been said. And in public, too: via an article a few weeks ago in Parade magazine by no less an authority than Dr. Stanley F. Yolles, director of the National Institute of Mental Health. Sentimentally entitled "The Importance of Being Dad," the article contains this dynamite statement:

"Fathers may have greater effect on children than mothers."

I wish Dr. Yolles hadn't qualified it with the hesitating words "may have a greater effect." But then that's how scientists feel obliged to talk in public until they've got so much evidence for their assertions that nobody dares question them. However, I'm not a scientist and am glad to stick out my unscientific neck with this prophecy:

Within the next decade deeper research into the origins of delinquency, drug addiction, alcoholism, homosexuality and other forms of emotional retardation will establish father as the parent whose physical or psychological detachment from children's lives muddles those lives, often irreparably.

Yes, I'm as sure as I can be that father's prime importance to children will soon become the big new promotion in the mental health field. So, I am obliged to urge the mothers of this country to start preparing now to abdicate as the High Cockolour of the American family.

They can begin this preparation by questioning all they've been sold by the child guidance experts on mother's wonderful, unchallengeable, priority importance to children.

We mothers only hold our top priority importance to Johnny and Linda during their household years. The very moment they venture beyond the front yard, that importance goes to father, the worker of mysteries in the world beyond the front yard. He is the interpreter and enforcer of the laws you've got to know about if you're ever to learn to manage it the way he does. That's when father becomes It. If this doesn't happen, all our mommy-love can't put Humpty Dumpty together again as he was intended to be.

"Many behavioral problems of children cannot be explained by pointing to mothers," writes Dr. Yolles.

You bet they can't. They can only be explained by fathers who are too busy getting themselves ahead in the world to be bothered with leading children into it, or by fathers who are too scared of mothers to laugh at them when they nag or overprotect or too impressed by mothers' child guidance book psychology to be able to rear, "No matter who says what, I say he can't do it!"

Were I asked to identify the single, most threatening peril looming over this nation today, I would have to say, "It is the absence of manliness in the lives of its children."

Our hair needs special care to keep it from getting dry and brittle. A creamy lotion that is applied after a shampoo helps restore gloss and body to the hair.

Miss Betty Green and Joe L. Milligan Exchange Vows in Oklahoma City Rites

St. Joseph's Old Cathedral in Oklahoma City, Okla., was the scene for wedding vows uniting Miss Betty Green and Joe L. Milligan, both of Oklahoma City.

Father Thompson officiated the double-ring ceremony at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon before an altar appointed with basket arrangements of white gladioli.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Catherine Green of Konawa, Okla., and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Milligan of White Deer.

Mrs. J. A. Manning, organist, provided appropriate wedding selections.

Given in marriage by her brother, Maurice Green, the bride was gowned in white organza sheer and alencon lace over bridal taffeta. The empire styled bodice was fashioned of alencon lace and featured a scalloped neckline and intermission sleeves. The A-line skirt was adorned with alencon lace motifs. The bride's elbow-length veil of English silk illusion fell from a lace and pearl crown. She carried a bridal bouquet of white carnations and pink roses centered with a white orchid.

Mrs. Larry Edgemon attended her sister as matron of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Gail Willis and Miss Shirley Sharp.

Serving as best man to the bridegroom was Don L. Loula while ushers were Troy Loula and Harold J. Webb. Chris Kuesterstein served as altar boy.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Green was attired in a navy blue suit accented by a white hat and navy blue accessories. Mrs. Milligan selected a pink lace suit complemented by matching accessories. Both mothers wore white carnation corsages.

Plaza Tower Hotel's Topaz Room, Oklahoma City, was the setting for the reception held following the pledging of vows. Presiding at the punch bowl was Miss Janice Stanfield and the Misses Joan Shuyler and Cecilia Ybarra served the wedding cake while Mrs. John Swinney attended the guest registrar.

Before departing on a wedding trip to points of interest in South Texas the new Mrs. Milligan changed into a three-piece suit of blue and white stripe accented by matching accessories. She wore the orchid lifted from her bridal bouquet. Upon their return the newly weds will make their home at 5430 N. Harvey, Oklahoma City.

The bride, a graduate of St. Anthony's School of Nursing,

B&PW Members Enjoy Patio Party

A membership back yard party for the Business and Professional Women's Club was held in Mrs. Earl Eaton's yard at 1601 Mary Ellen Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock. Mrs. Manual Powers, membership chairman, was in charge of all the arrangements.

A buffet style dinner was served from a large table on the patio. Members and guests were then seated at bridge tables covered with red and white checked table clothes.

After dinner the group was entertained by "The Climbers," a group of junior high school girls consisting of Misses. Mary Bear, den, manager, Jo Hiatt, Helen McDaniel, Ellen McDaniel, Susan Smith, Carolyn McKinley and Monte Westbrook. These girls, atop black step ladders of various heights, were dressed in identical rosette blouses with the name "Climbers" embroidered across the front, white shorts and white Keds. ## Make a Blanket To Cuddle Baby

By MARY BROOKS PICKEN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

All new babies need to be cuddled in a pretty, truly soft, "receiving blanket."

A receiving blanket suffices for a coat when baby is very young. It insures protection from cold or drafts.

Mothers delight in them and appreciate having not just one but several, especially the kind that will go into the wash and come out looking new.

Make these blankets of double-fleeced cotton flannel, wool challis, blend challis or soft sheer wool and line them with challis or cotton flannel. No matter what you use, be sure it is soft, washable and pretty.

First, even the cut edges. Trim selvages off so that they won't tighten after washing. Turn all edges over to the wrong side 3/4 inches, turning each corner diagonally. Clip away the surplus fabric. Stitch corners and turn the creased edge to the right side. Press the seams open.

Turn to the right side. Press all edges, keeping 3/4-inch turn even. Cover the raw edge with a decorative braid or binding or with val lace.

Place the braid 1/2-inch from the outside edge. Stitch it on. Make first stitching on the outside edge of the braid so as to catch the hem. Miter the corners of the braid neatly. Make

False Lashes Give Sound Foundation To View That This Fall Will Be 'False'

By ALICIA HART
Beauty Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

There is a sound foundation to the view that this is going to be a false fall. Leading the swing to more fake foolery among us girls are falsies for the derriere.

But top names in the make-up world insist the smart gal will wear her falsies above the neck.

The trend in make-up is to accentuate the eyes instead of the mouth. Helping to do this will be false eyelashes.

It seems about one woman in 500 has lashes long enough and thick enough to be chick these days. Mascara, eye-liner and eye shadow do emphasize the eyes. Why not, though, get in the fashion swim and try false eyelashes? These are worn day and evening. You may want more than one pair and trim each to fit day or nighttime occasions.

Some firms such as Viviane Woodard in Los Angeles sell eyelashes in the home and teach you how to apply them.

A home consultant for the firm says you will need a good magnifying mirror and an eyeliner pencil to cover the area where the false lashes join your own.

Good lashes of human hair, she says, should last at least three months. With gentle care, they can last as long as six.

Once a month you will need to curl your lashes and there are curling rods available for this. If you forget and shower or swim with your lashes on, curl them immediately.

To apply your false eyelashes, complete your eye make-up first. Also trim lashes to length you feel is suitable. The lash strip should not extend beyond the end of your eye and not into the corner of your eye. Use manicure scissors and trim each lash individually for best results. Lashes should be shorter near the tear duct. When buying eyelashes, make certain complete instructions are included for their application.

If you wear glasses, trim false

School And You

By SUSAN LIGHT
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

DEAR MRS. LIGHT: We would like your viewpoint on the following matter: Does a teacher have the right to force a child to eat food he does not want, and to keep him in after school if he does not eat it?

Last spring a group of children were kept in after school for just this reason. It is hard to believe that such dictatorial actions are permitted in a presumably civilized center of learning.

—FED-UP MOTHERS
ANSWER: Not knowing all the facts in this case, I hesitate to go on record as being firmly "pro" or "con."

I do, however, have some personal opinions about forcing children to clean up their plates at school or to eat the last crumb of their packed lunches. These opinions do not necessarily reflect the attitudes of my fellow teachers, so I can understand why both you and your children might be "fed up."

I believe children's appetites and tastes vary even as yours and mine, and they should be allowed to eat as much or as little as they please at school within the limits of necessary lunchroom regulations. Some children dawdle over their food and need to be encouraged to eat enough before the lunch period is over to sustain them through the afternoon. Others start with dessert and have to be reminded to eat the main course first.

Frequently teachers check lunch boxes or trays and send children back to eat more. If a child says he isn't hungry or doesn't like a certain food, I think the teacher should accept his explanation without fuss. If the child is habitually a poor eater, she should mention the fact to his mother and let her take it from there. Food habits are actually the responsibility of parents and shouldn't concern teachers too much unless they adversely affect a child's school-work.

As for punitive measures for not eating unwanted food, this, in my opinion, is for the birds. If no other factors are involved—such as throwing potato chips, blowing milk straw papers, squirting mustard and catsup and the like—you have a right to feel as you do.

Let's hope next year's teacher can remember her own childhood food habits and tastes.

Please send your school problems to Susan Light in care of this paper. While she cannot answer each letter personally, letters of general interest will be answered in this column.

Let's Leave This One Field to Men

Newspaper, Enterprise Assn.

A magazine which caters to women offered in a recent issue to tell wives what they should know about men's clothes.

Wives are already the family authority on bringing up children. (They read the books and magazine articles on child care and they can always quote an authority to back up their ideas if the husband and father disagrees.)

Wives also have the final word on furnishing the home—because here they have also boned up on the latest trends in decorating and because women just naturally assume that when it comes to fixing up a house their taste is superior to that of any man who doesn't happen to be an interior decorator.

When it comes to choosing their own clothes, most women would rather get the opinion of another woman than of their husbands—so it's a rare woman who asks her husband to go shopping with her because she considers his taste to be superior.

Why, then, should women try to become experts on men's clothing? Why should not the poor men at least be allowed to choose their own clothes without any advice from their wives? If the question were put to men on how much women should know about men's clothes, they would probably say the less the better.

For a man whose wife doesn't think she is an authority on men's clothes can pick out his own—instead of having to wear what his wife selects for him.

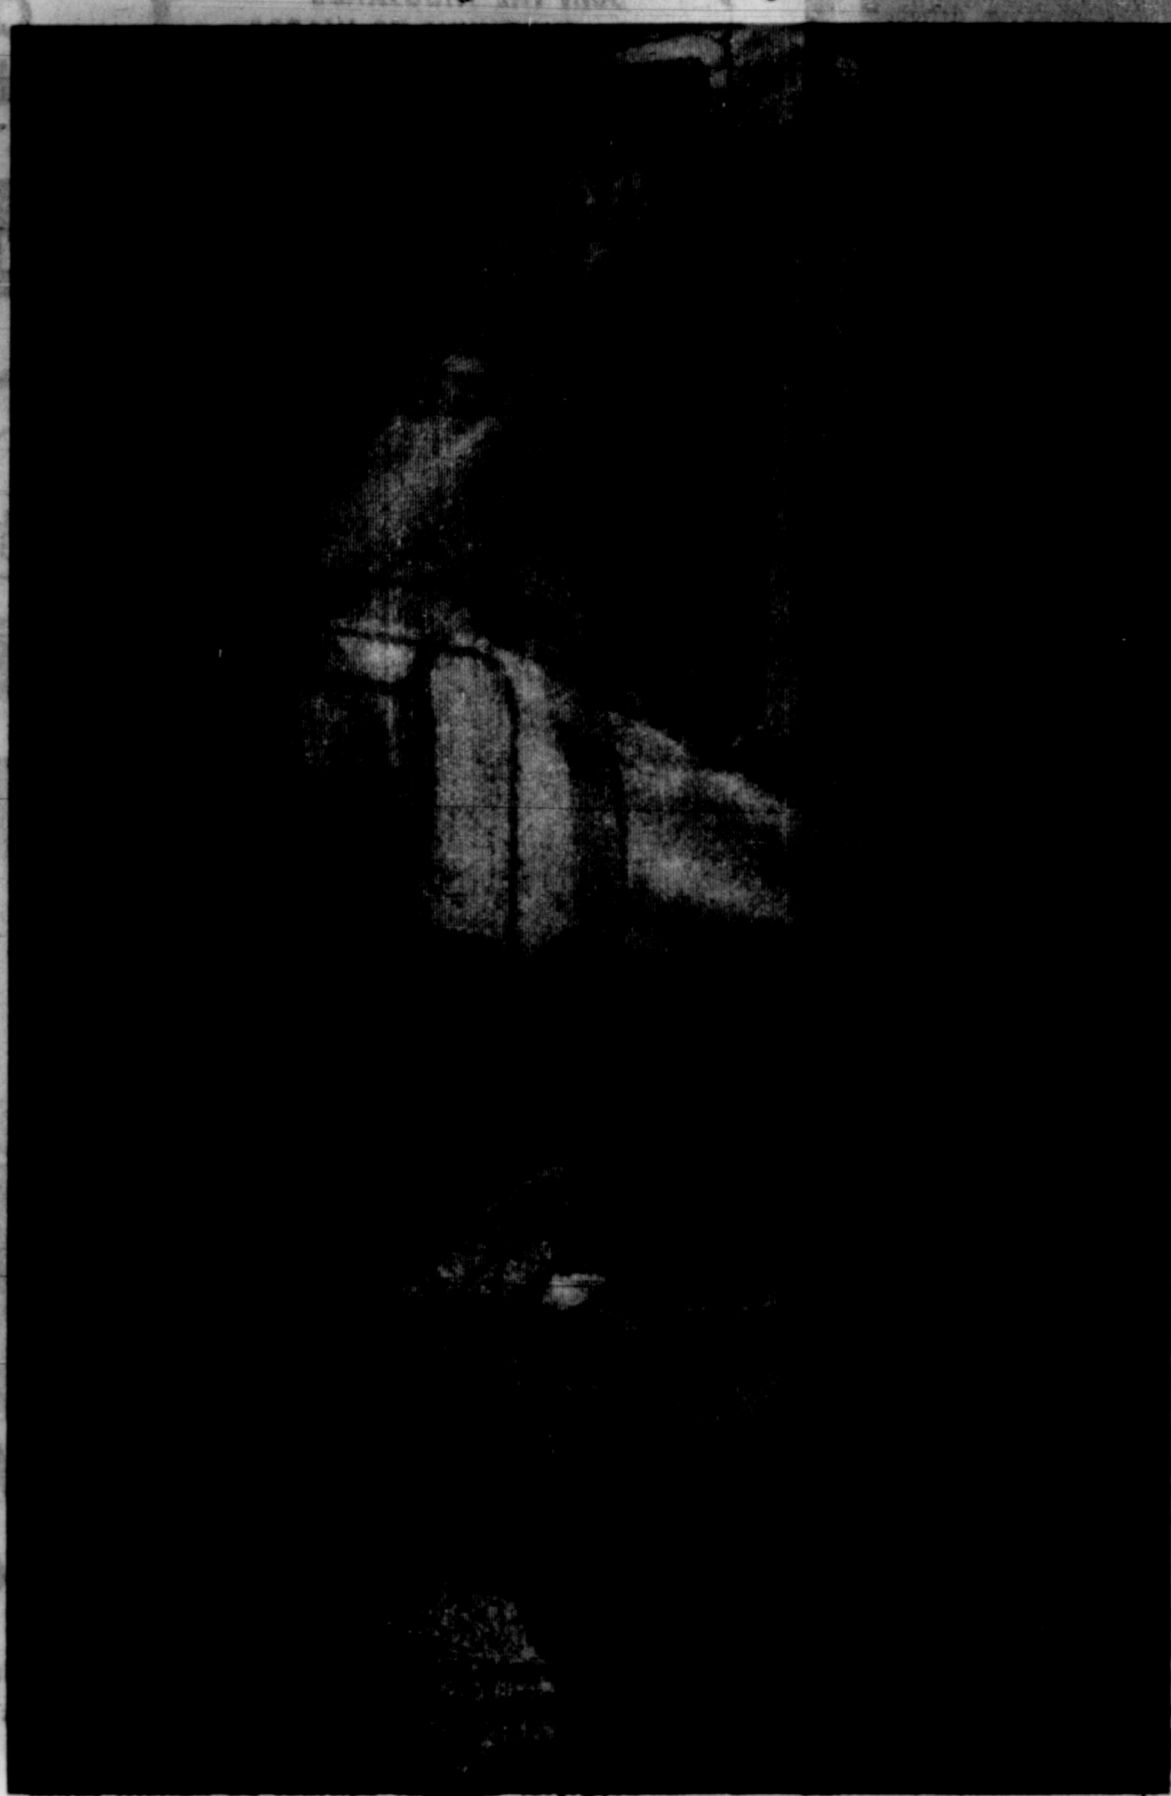

Nor does he have to listen to his wife complain about his own taste in clothes after he buys a new suit or sports jacket without her help. ("Why did you get another suit so much like the last one you bought—and the one before that?" "Why did you let a salesman talk you into that wild-looking sport coat?")

The man whose wife is willing for him to be the family authority on men's clothes is as carefree as a bachelor when he walks into a men's store.

He doesn't have to take his wife along or wonder — if he doesn't — if she will approve his purchases. So all a wife really needs to know about men's clothes is enough to let a man pick them out for himself — as he was perfectly capable of doing before he got a wife.

Harrison-Conway Wedding Solemnized

Mrs. Harold Lynn Conway
... nee Miss Janetta Bess Harrison

Miss Janetta Bess Harrison and Harold Lynn (Bill) Conway exchanged double-ring wedding vows at 5 o'clock the evening of July 31 in Paul's Union Church, LaMarque.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon L. Poole of La Marque and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Conway of 2245 Christine.

Rev. Harry Burch officiated the ceremony and Miss Cynthia Kolb presented traditional nuptial selections at the organ and accompanied Mrs. Donna Spencer, bride's aunt, vocalist.

Mr. Poole gave his step-daughter in marriage. The bride was gowned in white silk organza over satin designed with fitted bodice featuring a V neckline and long tapering sleeves which terminated in petal points at the wrists. The neckline and sleeves were trimmed with scalloped lace. The chapel-length straight skirt fell from a V waistline. Her veil of silk organza was secured by two strands of pearls at the hairline with dropped pearls falling across the bride's center forehead. She carried a cascade bouquet of white baby and starburst mums.

Bridal attendants were Miss Susan B. Lewis of LaMarque, maid of honor, and Miss Pam Checchi of Galveston, and Miss Donna Harrison of LaMarque, bride's sisters, bridesmaids. Dressed in gowns of turquoise, pink and yellow crystalline with matching rose coils, they each carried bouquets of mums.

Bob Conway of Grand Prairie served his brother as bestman while ushers were Mike Conway of Pasadena, bridegroom's brother, and Robert Collett of Galveston, bridegroom's step-brother.

flower girls and ring bearers were Mark and Mike Lloyd of Galveston, nephews of the bride.

A reception was held in Paul's Union Fellowship Hall following the exchange of vows. The newlyweds will make their home at 202 Villa Monterrey Apts., Gulf Freeway, Houston, upon their return from a wedding trip to New Orleans, La.

The bride attended the University of Houston where she majored in home economics and was employed as an executive secretary by Monsanto prior to her marriage. The bridegroom, a graduate of Texas Technological University with a mathematics major, worked towards a Masters Degree at the University of Texas. He served as a First Lieutenant with the U. S. Army in Europe for two and one-half years. Mr. Conway is now employed as an aeronautical engineer by NASA at the Manned Spacecraft Center in Houston.

The Misses Donna and Deanna Conway of Grand Prairie, nieces of the bridegroom, served as

Dear Abby... Engaged Girl Feels As Though She's Caged

DEAR ABBY: I am 18 and engaged to a wonderful guy (I'll call "Buddy"), who is 20, in the Army and is stationed overseas. He's been there since last December and if he's lucky he'll be home (on leave) for Christmas, but he has to go back until June 1966. I'm sure I'm really in love with Buddy, but here's my problem. All my girl friends are dating and having fun and I am getting tired of sitting home. Is there anything wrong with having a friendly date? Everyone knows I am engaged and all I want is to go out and have a good time with the other kids. Lots of my friends think I accepted this engagement ring too soon, but I don't. My mother doesn't understand. She says as long as I am wearing Buddy's engagement ring I am not going on any kind of date with anyone else. I don't want to send the ring back, but this is like being in jail and I'm tired of being "CAGED".

DEAR "CAGED": A girl who is "really in love" doesn't feel as though she's "in jail" because she isn't dating. I think you took the ring too soon. But now that you have it, keep the promise you made when "Buddy" put it on your finger. Stay home. When your fiancé returns, if you still feel that to give up dating is too great a sacrifice, return the ring.

DEAR ABBY: We are parents of a 16-year-old daughter who is beautiful, bright and sought-after, and could have the pick of any young man in town. But she has chosen as her "steady" a disreputable 19-year-old vagrant who sleeps in his car and sponges off his friends. He has even been picked up and questioned regarding burglaries. Our daughter honestly believes that the "love of a good woman" can bring out the best in him. We are at our wits' end with her. How can we cope with her?

BEAUTY'S PARENTS: While your daughter's intentions may be admirable, she lacks mature judgment and experience. That's what parents are for. The 19-year-old character you describe is apt to bring out the worst in your daughter before she can bring out the best in him. It's your duty as responsible parents to nip that romance in the bud.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please tell me what to do with this kind of husband? We have been married for ten years and we have three beautiful children. I am not able to support myself and have nowhere to go or I would have left him long ago. This is my problem. He has a "big mouth. He tells everything (and I mean nothing) is sacred. Our private life is discussed on his job, in conversations with neighbors, relatives, and in every beer joint he visits. He will tell anything to get a laugh at my expense. I've tried talking calmly to him and I have even shouted at him, but it hasn't helped. I didn't know he was so filthy-

Fraser Family Has Reunion in Groom

GROOM (Spl) — The Fraser family held its annual family reunion at Lake McClellan Aug. 1.

Attending were Mr. and Mrs. Allan Angel of Plainview; Mr. and Mrs. Wayland Angel, Mary, Clifford and Kenay of Canyon; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Tom Parker, Kathy, Elizabeth and Billy of Pleasanton; Mrs. E. H. Coburn, Buff, Jenny Lynn, and Terry Ann of Corpus Christi; Mr. and Mrs. Temple Slay, Mr. and Mrs. James Slay, Denise, Jimmy and Steven of Amarillo; Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Slay and Joel of Wellington; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Fraser, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Fraser, Mike, David and Elizabeth of Pampa; Mrs. Winnie Inmon and son, Ernie, of Paris; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Huffman, Christine and Mary Frances of Lockney; Mr. and Mrs. Larry McVay, Larry Wayne and Gregory of Irving; Mr. and Mrs. Gaylen Fredericksen and Sean Lee of Clarendon; Mr. and Mrs. Austin Crowell, Jerry, John and Connie, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fraser, Mr. and Mrs. John Fraser, Cindy, John R., and Walter Kent, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Morrow and Margy Emery.

When I married him. Must I spend the rest of my life with a man who acts like this because I made a terrible mistake when I was young? I am fed up.

MRS. X: You need more help than I can give you in a letter. If your husband is not "sick in the head" (and do not dismiss this possibility until you have investigated it thoroughly) he needs to be talked to by someone whose judgment he respects. Have you a clergyman, family doctor, or even a wise friend who can straighten him out? A marriage with three beautiful children under ten is worth saving. And no man in his right mind would risk losing his family because he can't keep his mouth shut.

CONFIDENTIAL TO L. IN PORTOLA VALLEY: Parents who say their children never gave them one minute's worry will lie about other things.

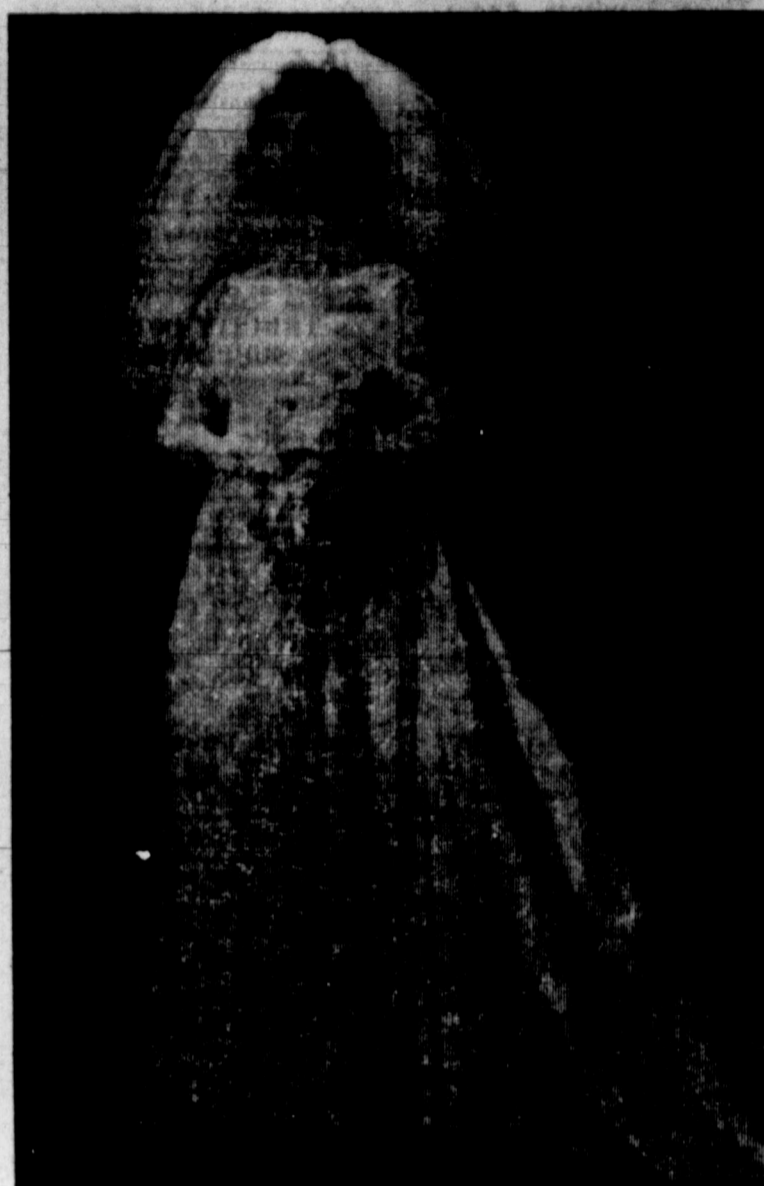

Problems? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Former Pampans' Daughter Is Married

Mrs. Jack Keith Lugeanbeal nee Miss Sara Nan Delashaw

Emerald greenery and arrangements of mums appointed the candlelight wedding scene for the ceremony uniting Miss Sara Nan Delashaw and Jack Keith Lugeanbeal.

Rev. Ray Lawler was officiant for the double-ring ceremony performed at 7:30 p. m., July 24 in First Methodist Church, Seminole, Okla.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph W. Delashaw of Seminole, Okla., former Pampans. Mr. and Mrs. Jack C. Lugeanbeal of Tulsa, Okla., are the parents of the bridegroom.

Traditional wedding selections were provided by Mrs. N. J. Phillips Jr., organist, who also accompanied Mrs. Ray Powell as she sang "Through the Years," "Whither Thou Goest" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a gown of silk taffeta and pear de ange lace designed with sheath lines with a lace fitted bodice featuring long sleeves tapering to points over the wrists and a scoop scalloped neckline which dipped to a deep V in the back. The sheath skirt was fashioned of lace over silk taffeta with scallops just above the hemline. The taffeta wateau train accented the back and swept to chapel length. The bride's veil of silk illusion was held by a half hat of lace petals detailed by seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of fugi mums and stephanotis with streamers tied in lace knots, atop a white Bible, and carried out the tradition of something old, new, borrowed and blue.

Dressed identically in floor-length gowns of turquoise chiffon and aqua crepe, designed with empire bodices of turquoise chiffon, long sleeves and bateau necklines, bridal attendants were Miss Jan Adams, maid of honor; Miss Lynda Thomas and Miss Linda Glenn, both of Seminole, Okla., bridesmaids, and Mrs. Joe Wate of Stillwater, Okla., bridesmatron. The bodices of the attendants' gowns were detailed by a satin band and bow at the back over the slim crepe skirt. Each wore a matching chiffon bow accented by matching rose coil and carried nosegays of aqua fugi mums with streamers.

Lynn Lugeanbeal of Tulsa served his brother as best man while ushers were Phil Brown of Birmingham, Ala., Norman Bryant and Allen Ross, both of Stillwater, Okla., and Marshall Delashaw of Midwest City, Okla.

Mrs. Delashaw selected a sheath gown fashioned of turquoise lace and shantung complemented by matching flower hat and matching accessories for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Lugeanbeal selected a two-piece sheath dress styled of turquoise lace, matching accessories and a Dior bow coat with half veil. Both mothers wore gardenia corsages.

Mrs. Michael Delashaw, bride's cousin, presided at the punch bowl and the Misses Janie Withrow and Karen Fowler served the wedding cake at the reception held following the wedding rites. Guests were registered by Miss Linda Middlebrook.

For traveling of interest in New Mexico and Colorado, the new Mrs. Lugeanbeal chose a three-piece knit suit of military blue accented by gardenia accessories. She wore the corsage lifted from her bridal bouquet.

The bride attended Seminole Junior College and East Central State College, Ada, Okla. The bridegroom is a graduate of Oklahoma State University with a BS Degree in Psychology.

Pampans attending the wedding ceremony included Mrs. Faye Delis Adams and Mrs. Otto Mangold.

Patty Jo Flippo Feted With Birthday Party SKELLYTOWN (Spl) — Patty Jo Flippo, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cordie C. Flippo of Skellytown, was honored recently with a birthday party marking her fifth birthday.

After playing games and opening gifts, guests enjoyed birthday cake and ice cream. The cake was in the form of a large elephant with pink frosting. Party favors were nut cups filled with gum, lollipops, balloons and party hats.

Attending were the honoree's grandmother, Mrs. H. Flippo, and Greg and Jeff Houghton, Helen, Junior and Jody Flippo, Tommy Wall, Marc Flippo, Mrs. Orville Wall, Mrs. Bill Houghton and Mrs. James Flippo.

Petree-Longhofer Vows Exchanged

CANADIAN (Spl) — Miss Dixie Sue Petree, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Creed Petree of Canadian, was married at 3 p. m., Aug. 1, to Carl Ralph Longhofer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Longhofer of Canadian.

The double-ring ceremony was read in the First Baptist Church by the pastor, Rev. Troy Noland. Mrs. Bob Dillman played traditional organ selections and accompanied the Misses Janis Wilson, Karen Longhofer and Dora Mae Hext as they sang "Red Roses".

The altar was banked with greenery and flanked on either side by tall baskets of white gladioli.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, chose for her wedding a floor-length gown with train of silk organza embroidered with pearls and enhanced with lace. The bodice was fashioned with a scoop neckline. She carried a bridal bouquet of white roses. Her veil fell from a tiara of pearls and sequins.

A reception was held in the Church Parlor following the ceremony. Mrs. Larry McLeod registered the guests and served the wedding cake. Mrs. Dale Poirer and Miss Sandra Flowers were in charge of the punch bowl. The wedding cake was topped with a miniature church with a spiral staircase with the miniature bride and bridegroom at the foot of it, the handwork of Mrs. Horace Rivers.
