THREE-YEAR PLAN FUMC Launches Rebuilding Project

Members of the First United Methodist Church launched a three-year rebuilding fund project Wednesday night with a loyalty dinner in the Fellowship Hall.

The project, which will include complete renovation and remodeling using the present church building at 201 E. Foster as the basis, is expected to cost about $300,000.

Among the items of rebuilding will be structural changes involving the electrical system, heating and air conditioning and basement improvements, along with complete remodeling of the building's facade.

Dr. Lloyd V. Hamilton, pastor, explained the need for the project to the assembled members last night, with Don Lane, general chairman for the project, reporting on the fund campaign.

Travis Lively Sr. delivered a brief summary of historical highlights of the past 67 years of the local church.

Dr. Joe Donaldson, steering committee chairman, gave the welcome and introductions as he presided over the dinner and accepted the challenge for the project.

Dr. Harry Vanderpool, former pastor now of Albuquerque, N.M., spoke on "The Challenge of Tomorrow Is Here Today."

Mrs. Michael Weatherly delivered the invocation, with Dan Duggins providing the benediction. Mrs. Jeff Anderson provided the musical interlude.

IN COMPROMISE Israel Accepts Prisoner Plan

By United Press International

Israeli officials said today Israel has accepted a compromise proposal worked out by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat providing for an exchange of prisoners, a corridor to the trapped Egyptian 3rd Army and an end to the Arab sea blockade.

Beyond that it was understood that there will be direct negotiations between Egypt and Israel for the first real peace since Israel was established in the first Middle East war 25 years ago.

Government sources in Israel reported the acceptance of the compromise peace plan as Kissinger left Cairo, flew to neighboring Jordan for talks with King Hussein and then flew to Saudi Arabia for talks there with King Feisal.

As he left Cairo, Kissinger himself reported "good progress."

While Kissinger conferred in Amman with King Hussein of Jordan, assistant secretary of state for Middle East Affairs, Joseph Sisco, met in Jerusalem with Prime Minister Golda Meir of Israel. Sisco carried the latest proposals to Israel Wednesday night after a meeting in Cairo between Kissinger and Sadat.

Before Mrs. Meir met Sisco for a second time today, the Israeli cabinet met for two hours. Sisco emerged from the 90-minute session with the prime minister saying the talks had been "useful and constructive... I'm optimistic."

He said he would be joining Kissinger in Riyadh.

Israeli government sources in Tel Aviv said the peace plan provided that:

- Israel will allow a supply corridor, supervised by United Nations forces, into the Egyptian 3rd Army, whose 20,000 men are surrounded on the southern end of the Suez Canal. Cairo will not have full control of the route and no military supplies will be allowed in.
- There will be full exchange of prisoners of war with Egypt, beginning as soon as possible with the wounded. Israel holds about 8,000 Egyptian prisoners while listing about 350 of its men missing on the southern front.
- The Egyptians will lift their blockade of the Bab el-Mandeb Strait at the entrance to the Red Sea.

Kissinger spent nearly five hours in Amman for talks with Hussein. He spent two and a half hours in talks with the Jordanian ruler and then was the king's guest at a palace lunch.

Truck Tears Power Lines

A transport truck from Midland, carrying a storage tank on its bed, tore down a quantity of utility lines on Brown St. around 11 a.m. today when the top of the tank hit the lines as the truck passed under them.

Telephone lines, electricity lines and cable TV lines were torn loose and strewn across Brown St. in the mishap.

The electric lines were repaired before 11:30 a.m. but units of the telephone company repair service were still working at press time to restore phone service.

The truck was going east on Brown St. approaching the Cuyler St. intersection when the lines were torn down.

A Texas Highway department employee directing traffic at the scene told The News police checking the driver's permits found them in order. The truck driver was not identified.

Nixon Plans To Stay On

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has taken frank note that in a painful year since his landslide reelection he has lost the faith of "great numbers of Americans." But rather than resign he says he will struggle to remove their distrust.

The President—with his aides in court trying to defend his credibility, his impeachment discussed in Congress and his popularity at a new low in the polls—acknowledged his extraordinary situation in a brief, intense "personal note" at the end of a 20-minute televised speech from the White House on the forthcoming shortages of fuel and power.

He said his response to editorials calling for his resignation is: "I have no intention of walking away from the job I was elected to do."

"As long as I am physically able, I am going to continue to work 16 to 18 hours a day for the cause of a real peace abroad, and for the cause of prosperity, without inflation, without war, at home."

Nixon said he was "confident" he would regain the people's faith.

In the months ahead, he said, he would do "everything that I can" to remove doubts about his integrity.

Nixon Adds to Staff

Presidential Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon was "adding to his staff of lawyers working on Watergate-related matters—it now numbers a dozen—and was determined 'to communicate to the Congress, the press and the American people the President's position more effectively than we have in the past.'"

His remarks indicated the White House was digging in for the long haul.

In other developments:

- Rose Mary Woods, who has kept out of the public eye during two decades of service as Nixon's personal secretary, was to testify before Judge John J. Sirica in the White House's efforts to dissolve disbelief that two subpoenaed Watergate tapes never existed. Also to testify was H. R. Haldeman, once Nixon's most intimate and most powerful adviser.
- Sirica denied a new trial for James W. McCord, the Watergate defendant and bugging expert convicted in January, 1973, and refused to order trials for his five co-defendants who had pleaded guilty. Sirica said he would pronounce sentence on the six on Friday, possibly giving an indication of how stern he could be expected to be on others convicted.
- Jaworski to Testify
- In Congress, where the firing of Watergate Prosecutor Archibald Cox triggered an avalanche of mail, Cox's designated successor, Leon Jaworski was called to testify. He was to tell a House judiciary subcommittee of his understanding of the terms under which he accepted the job and what he would do if confronted with the circumstances that caused Cox to be fired.

What effect President Nixon's energy conservation appeal of last night will have on local city and county governments was still in the speculative stage today.

County Judge Don Cain said the question of conserving fuel and heat will be one of the topics for discussion on the agenda when county commissioners meet Nov. 15.

The judge did not speculate on what action would be taken.

City Manager Mack Wofford expressed a similar opinion and said it was anticipated instructions from state officials in Austin probably would govern any local regulations.

As for the public in general, for the time being, it was expected compliance with the President's request on turning down thermostats for heating, for a 50-mile speed limit on highways, car pools and other energy saving suggestions—will rest with individual citizens.

Nixon Asks Commitment In Beating Energy Crisis

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon, calling for a nationwide commitment to beat the energy crisis, has asked the public to lower thermostats and drive slower and urged Congress to bring back year-around daylight saving time and to relax some environmental rules.

In a national televised broadcast stressing the energy crisis is the worst since World War II, Nixon said if his measures did not work, more restrictive actions, such as gas rationing, might be needed.

The measures requested to beat the crisis this winter included cutting speed limits from 70 miles an hour to 50—a move experts say would cut gasoline usage 20 per cent per trip—and lowering room temperatures to 68 degrees.

The Senate Interior Committee, under the chairmanship of Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., began consideration today of a bill which encompasses many of Nixon's proposals.

Jackson, who said Thursday the administration ought to be planning for rationing, said he hoped the bill could be on the Senate floor by Tuesday. Nixon in his speech had asked for the energy bill within a week.

John A. Love, the presidential adviser on energy, told the which developed the atomic bomb during World War II and landed a man on the moon in the 1960s, said his aim was complete self-sufficiency in energy by 1980—"project independence" as he called it.

The laws he wanted passed for long-range protection included authorization to build the Alaskan oil pipeline, power to encourage natural gas production, power to set strip-mining standards and the organization of a separate governmental department to handle energy matters.

"The fuel crisis need not mean genuine suffering for any American," Nixon said. "But it will require some sacrifice by all Americans."

Nixon said he was taking some immediate action to help the shortage this winter and was asking Congress for short-run emergency power to take other action.

In addition to daylight saving time and relaxed environmental rules so more coal can be used, Nixon asked Congress for the authority to restrict some working hours, use naval petroleum reserves that have been saved for defense needs, cut highway speeds across the nation and a just transportation schedules.

He also asked the Atomic Energy Commission to cut the time for licensing new atomic power plants and urged governors and local officials to take appropriate actions in their area like ordering cuts in speed limits, staggering work hours and encouraging car pools and mass transit.

He ordered power plants be prevented from switching from coal to oil, directed airlines get less petroleum products which would result in a 10 per cent cut in flights and directed the government agencies to take the same measures he was asking the public to take.

The new laws, presidential directives and belt-tightening could erase the oil deficit in the short run, he said; reducing highway speeds could save 600,000 barrels of oil a day; cooler homes and offices could save 640,000 barrels; cutting air flights, 170,000; converting power plants to coal, 430,000; increasing federal oil reserves' production, 160,000; and boosting production of oil from non-governmental wells, 350,000 barrels daily.

Only if those things don't work, Nixon said, will he turn to gasoline rationing on the World War II coupon-cutting level.

ON WAR POWERS Solons Override Presidential Vote

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress has opened a new constitutional debate with President Nixon, overriding his veto and restricting his war-making powers.

By votes of 284 to 135 in the House and 75 to 18 in the Senate, the legislators rejected Nixon's contention the War Powers Resolution's 90-day limit on unauthorized warring was both unconstitutional and dangerous.

It was the first time, after eight tries on other bills, Congress has overridden a presidential veto this year.

The measure's main sponsor in the House, Rep. Clement Zablocki, D-Wis., said immediately that Congress had "sent a message up Pennsylvania Ave. loud and clear," and added he thought Nixon would be more cautious in using the veto hereafter.

Both he and Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., the Senate sponsor, said Nixon's troubles over the Watergate tapes and congressional doubts about his handling of the Middle East crisis contributed to the Republican defections making the override possible.

There was no immediate reaction from the White House, where Nixon in his veto message had intimated he would not abide by the measure even if he was overridden, saying any attempt to impose such restrictions "by legislation alone is clearly without force."

Two powerful Senate conservatives, Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., and John Tower, R-Tex., denounced the action and called for an immediate court test of its constitutionality.

Tower said the action "sent a very dangerous message to Moscow," and Goldwater called

TO AID HARVESTING Price Urges Committee To Take 'Quick Action'

Congressman Bob Price of Pampa, has urged the White House Energy Policy Committee to take quick action to provide diesel fuel and propane on an emergency basis to enable agricultural producers to harvest crops.

"Texas suppliers, and in turn producers, are being unfairly short-changed by the mandatory fuel allocation play which went into effect Nov. 1," Price said. "Allocation levels are based upon consumption during November of last year, but as to adverse weather conditions, Texas crops were later last year than normal and the consumption was lower than normal."

"This year in Northwest Texas the milo crop is being harvested earlier than last year and the cotton crop is only partially harvested. Yet, some producers are unable to obtain diesel fuel with which to run their harvesting equipment, and some suppliers have already, in the first week of November, handled their entire supply allocated for the month. This is a peculiar circumstance which calls for immediate remedial administrative action," Price said.

The 13th District Congressman said existing fuel shortages "might have been avoided had the Congress acted earlier on proposals to provide the incentives necessary for increased domestic production of oil and natural gas."

Price has sponsored bills to de-regulate the well-head price of natural gas, to provide a tax credit for expenditures used in seeking and developing new domestic oil supplies, and to provide a tax credit to encourage secondary oil recovery.

"Now we are faced with shortages and mandatory fuel allocations are required. This Administration's desire is to place agricultural needs in top priority. I am asking the policy committee to take special action which will support priority for agriculture," Price said.

Secretary Claims Recordings 'Poor'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The quality of the conversations on President Nixon's Watergate tapes is "very bad," his longtime secretary who has listened to many of them said today.

Rose Mary Woods, Nixon's secretary for 20 years, described the tapes in testimony before Judge John J. Sirica at the fourth day of hearings on the tapes—their whereabouts and their quality.

Miss Woods said that President Nixon had been given copies of what transcripts she was able to make of the tapes, working steadily for a month listening to the tapes.

"The quality is very bad on some, depending on the room (in which they were recorded)," Miss Woods testified.

"There are lots of funny things on it. If the President put his feet up on the desk—as he sometimes does—it sounds like a bomb in your ear. Or if someone brings a cup of coffee in and puts it down on the desk... it's difficult."

"Sometimes I could hear the President whispering. Other times, there were four people talking at once and I couldn't even get one voice."

Miss Woods, wearing a scarlet wool dress and a double strand of pearls, said she did not know anything about the White House recording system until its existence was disclosed in testimony before the Senate Watergate committee July 16.

She said she never heard any of the tapes until the weekend of Sept. 29, when she was asked to go to Camp David to help transcribe them.

She said she worked from that Saturday morning until 3 a.m. Sunday, got three hours sleep and worked through until Sunday evening.

"I had gone up there thinking I could finish it in one weekend and came back without finishing one," she said. "And I don't mean one tape. I mean just one conversation."

H. R. Haldeman, Nixon's former chief of staff who like Miss Woods has listened to some of the tapes, also was summoned by Sirica to testify at the hearings on the recordings and White House claims that tapes were not made, as previously believed, of two key Watergate conversations by the President.

A White House official, who asked not to be identified, also told UPI that some of the taped conversations were "hardly audible."

He made the comment after a witness testified Wednesday that Miss Woods had complained that, while listening to one of them, she discovered "a gap in what she expected to be a recorded conversation."

The official said that from the portions of tapes he had listened to, the recording system in the White House was "not nearly as sensitive" as a former White House assistant who disclosed its existence had suggested.

The testimony that Nixon's conversations on some telephones and certain offices were recorded automatically was given by Alexander P. Butterfield, who said he had a major hand in installing the system. He now is new administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration.

HOME-COMING TIME — Pampa High School senior Lon Hudson, right, purchases a mum from Future Teachers of America members Brenda Winters, left, and Teresa Jordan, in preparation for homecoming activities. A pep rally will be held at 6 p.m. today at Coronado Center. Another rally will be held at Harvester Stadium prior to the 7:30 p.m. game with Palo Duro High School of Amarillo.

'Hello, Dolly'—Coming Monday And Tuesday

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — I recently ran across a little quiz on group nomenclature. See how well you can do on it.
If a group of lions is called a pride and a group of geese is a gaggle, what are groups of hens, cats, toads, peacocks, leopards, pheasants, herons, bears and swans?
Answer: Brood of hens, clowder of cats, knot of toads, muster of peacocks, leap of leopards, nye of pheasants, siege of herons, sloth of bears, wedge of swans.
These are good things to know if your social life is centered around veterinarians. Otherwise, your chances of working them into everyday conversations are rather slim.
How often, for example, do you have an opportunity to say, "Did you happen to see a muster of peacocks strutting in this direction?"

Another Example
Or, "Isn't that a leap of leopards over there by the carriage house?"
Not very often, I dare say.
On the whole, you probably would be better off learning the names of groups that enter into ordinary discussions, such as arguments over the Watergate case.

Here are a few group names that can be used in good advantage in Watergate debates:
"How much longer are those blasted hearings going to continue?"
"A long time. The committee still has a large garble of witnesses waiting to testify."
"Why does it take them so long to interrogate a witness?"
"Many witnesses spend a lot of time conferring with their attorneys. Some of them have a whole cavil of lawyers advising them."
"Are they afraid their testimony might be incriminating?"

A Venal of Defendants?
"Yes. There is already a good-sized venal of defendants under indictment as a result of the Watergate investigation."
"There certainly are. It will take a whole cudgel of judges to try all of those cases. What political impact do you think the Watergate scandals will have?"
"With a gabble of Senators up for re-election next year, the consequences could be far-reaching. I expect that both parties will have a grapple of candidates seeking the Presidential nomination."
"Could be. The outcome of the national conventions probably will hinge on a dubiety of uncommitted delegates. The winning candidate will need to hire a muddle of campaign workers and a bosh of speechwriters. But he can't do that unless he lines up a jangle of contributors."
"Right. It should be a close race with a small qualm of voters making the difference."

TV In Review

By RICK DU BROW
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — I had a dream the other night, and it had to do with television.
I dreamed there were no Senate hearings, for anything, on the home tube.
I dreamed there was a bulletin on the networks that the Israelis and Arabs had settled all differences and stopped all fighting.
I dreamed that the networks immediately followed up with special broadcasts showing people in the Middle East smiling broadly as they talked and talked about peace.
I dreamed that there was a television bulletin saying that the American government had developed a synthetic fuel that immediately ended the energy crisis.
Dollar Value Shoots Up
I dreamed that video correspondents overseas followed this up with reports that the American dollar had shot up in value and was at its highest point in years.
I dreamed that Walter Cronkite, John Chancellor, Howard K. Smith and Harry Reasoner all confessed with smiles on the same night that there just wasn't any bad news to report.
I dreamed that the big auto makers put on video commercial saying they had developed a spectacular new high-mileage engine, and that they had asked Ralph Nader to test it.

I dreamed that Bob Hope and the Smothers Brothers entertained at a nationally televised gala from Washington, D.C., at which Republicans and Democrats celebrated months of peaceful, nonpartisan cooperation.
I dreamed that Henry Kissinger had a video news conference in which he confessed he was wondering what to do next as secretary of state because he had straightened out all our foreign problems.
Crew Sends Message
I dreamed that a Skylab crew sent a message to Earth via television that some Martians had dropped in for a friendly visit and wanted to know the road to San Jose.
I dreamed a government spokesman announced on the home screen that since everything was going so smoothly in Washington, the major federal priority at the moment was the elimination of smog.
I dreamed there were telecasts about the remarkable drop in prices of food, gasoline, automobiles, houses, college educations, sports event tickets, clothing, telephone service, electricity and other luxuries.
And then I woke up.

The Woman's View

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — A famed motivational researcher calls on the billion dollar advertising industry to sell more than its products—also sell good citizenship.
"The suggestion couldn't come at a better time."
As the researcher, Dr. Ernest Dichter puts it, "We may all know how to recite the pledge of allegiance, or how many presidents there were, but living in a democracy, as our Watergate hearings show, demands something entirely different."
"How many of us have really learned to combat prejudices within ourselves? How many have learned to accept criticism, to live with a president they did not vote for, to react not emotionally to the issues, but in an intelligent and rational way?"
Dichter, head of the Institute for Motivational Research, Inc., Croton-on-Hudson, N.Y., says that "billions of dollars are spent on advertising and a good portion of it now is devoted to fulfilling the task of social responsibility."
But he indicates there's room for much more awareness in the business community. For one, he will tailor a citizenship test for a client—he's already devised one for one corporation.
Writing in the current "Findings", institute publication, Dichter tells some methods by which good citizenship can be sold.

Selling Citizenship
"For example," he says, "in asking people to decide between one brand and another, they could very well teach them at the same time how one makes decisions altogether, which of course is an extremely important process in voting, and is not being taught at present in elementary or high schools."
"The advertiser could be of great help and do something worthwhile, both for his product and for the improvement of our democratic institutions."
"The advertiser also can sell the public on awareness of one's emotions and often lack of control over them."
Dichter tells how... The advertiser could refer to a particular product or service and say, "Be aware that you may well be guided... by your own emotions. In other words, we are not trying to put one over on you. Of course we're playing on your desire to be more beautiful... the innate desire that most of us have for safety or for security. That's why we write the ads and the commercials the way we do, trying to sell you insurance."

"But instead of using any kind of subversive approaches, we are telling you about it quite openly... you are being influenced much more than you think by emotion. For example, you may vote for a candidate just because he is good looking or because he has a nice voice, but he may really not be the right kind of public servant."
Dichter says advertisers should be honest in their claims and honest with the reader or listener in what the advertiser is doing.
A commercial for a garment could also carry the message, be guided by your own beliefs even though your friends may tell you the garment is not right for you—"Have your own standards and don't just bend with the wind. That's the kind of citizen you will not be too easily influenced by rhetoric or false propaganda."
In other words, says Dichter, with such sales approach, "it might be possible to instill... another lesson in democratic living."
The name California is thought to have come from a 15th Century Spanish novel which used the word to describe a mythical island near the Garden of Eden full of gold and beautiful women.

Army Offering Medical Training

Laboratory tests play an important part in the detection, diagnosis and treatment of serious diseases.
Medical Laboratory workers and their assistants are responsible for this work. They perform their tests under the direction of pathologists (physicians who specialize in diagnosing the causes and nature of diseases).
Their work involves the use of precision instruments such as microscopes and automatic analyzers to analyze the blood, tissues and fluids in the human body. Physicians then use the results of these tests to treat their patients.
Medical laboratory assistants, who generally do not have college training, assist the medical technologist in routine tests and related work that can be learned in a relatively short time.
Assistants may concentrate in one of several areas. Laboratory assistants working in bacteriology, serology, and parasitology prepare and stain slides for study and then record the results.
Those in hematology collect and perform blood counts and tests to determine bleeding and coagulation time. In clinical chemistry, assistants help analyze samples of body fluids to diagnose and treat diseases.

The U.S. Department of Labor reports there were over 100,000 medical lab workers employed in the U.S. last year. About 80 per cent of them were employed in hospitals. Other places of employment include independent laboratories, physicians' offices, clinics, public health agencies, pharmaceutical firms and research institutions.
In addition, about 3,000 persons were employed by the Veterans Administration.
Most medical laboratory assistants receive their training on the job. In recent years, an increasing number have turned to hospitals, vocational schools and the military for formal instruction. In the future, experts agree, formal academic training will be a prerequisite.
Among the personal characteristics employers consider important for lab work are technical accuracy, dependability and the ability to work under pressure.
Employment opportunities for medical lab workers through the 70s are expected to be excellent. This is based on clear trends which indicate that physicians are relying on lab workers to a greater extent than in the past.

Also, the construction of additional hospitals, an increasing population, and growing federal emphasis on programs like Medicare suggest a growing demand for lab workers in the years ahead.

Festive Foods For Approaching Holiday Season

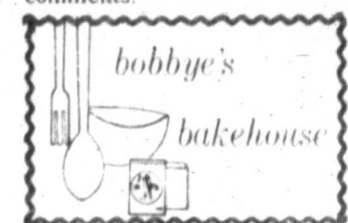

By BOBBY COMBS
With Thanksgiving approaching and Christmas and New Year's just around the corner, many of us are getting in the mood for holiday foods.

Mildred Prince, local Home Service Director for Southwestern Public Service Company, is one of 13 area directors who have compiled a tenth anniversary cook book, "Festive Foods." They selected some of their favorite recipes, with hopes of making this year's edition, "the best of ten years."

Many of these recipes are old, some are new; but each one was kitchen tested for your benefit and each director hopes you will enjoy reading and using them.

Mrs. Prince will be instructing programs for various study clubs and local home demonstration clubs during the coming weeks, preparing for the holiday season.

For assistance with the use and care of your major electrical appliances, assistance with lighting and kitchen planning, contact the home service advisor in your area. Remember, too, that she has a selection of programs available for groups and will always be pleased to give assistance and listen to your comments.

When ready to serve, have punch base removed from freezer and almost thawed, or take chilled punch base from refrigerator; add chilled gingerale and serve.

This will serve 35 to 40 punch cups.

1/2 teaspoon salt 1 cup mashed ripe bananas

The game at Glamis castle was taking its usual course. MacDuff, the best player in Scotland, was winning as usual. He had tried to quit but MacBeth had commanded "Play on, MacDuff!" and he had agreed to one last rubber.

Both sides were vulnerable. MacDuff had reached a spade game in accordance with the principle that good cards seem to fall to good players.

MacBeth opened the king of diamonds. He continued with the ace and queen. MacDuff thought a while and discarded the deuce of hearts.

MacBeth thought a while. "I should have asked those witches about bridge. They prophesied that I would be thane of Cawdor and later King of Scotland. That is a great destiny, but I would like to beat this MacDuff just once at something."

The witches could predict the future. They couldn't

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

FRIDAY, NOV. 9
Your birthday today:
 Opens a swiftly flowing stream-of-consciousness type of experience. One situation phases into another without any sharp separation into distinct episodes. Definite points of deliberate choice are unlikely, so that life seems to decide itself before you've given it thought. Business and career drive improves. Today's natives attract publicity, pursue limited, special ambitions.

Aries [March 21-April 19]:
 The "sure thing" is very likely anything but. Wind up your work week with as little fuss as you can and the minimum of self-indulgence and expense. Home life needs regulation.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]:
 Persistence brings some permanent benefit. Double check your facts. All kinds of wrong information is probable, susceptible to correction. Your emotional stance runs to extremes.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]:
 Benefit comes from close attention to the deeds and sayings of those you suspect have inside information. There is no reason for haste; take time to cheer up the less fortunate.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]:
 Start early, with plenty of time allowance for extra details. Your friends offer advice for deeper perspective, plus unrealistic schemes for money. Sort them out carefully; be thrifty!

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]:
 When you've got the totals added up, then begin settling accounts, not before. Bringing matters to a comfortable balance now is quite an accomplishment. Tact is important in achieving this.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]:
 Surprise, most of it pleasant, is promised for today. Avoid rash moves, needless travel. Strive to live in the present moment, absorbing all the fine nuances of current experience completely.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]:
 You are up and on your way toward a higher level of spiritual expression. Be attentive so that you catch each important detail of your work, any changes. Remember—you may not come this way again.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]:
 You can't exert all the leadership, therefore should encourage rather than control. Prudence is the keynote in showing concern for the good qualities of those you care about.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]:
 Joint projects come under question, double-checking, revision. You have been hitting too heavy a pace lately, need some special consideration, a chance to escape tensions.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]:
 Things have a crisp, open-and-shut clarity today. All you have to do is pursue a constructive course. Nothing comes to perfection, of course, but you'll like what you achieve.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]:
 You won't find any short cut or the chance to take things easy, so get in there early with the best program you can organize for a full and lively day.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]:
 What ordinarily is a chore or hard work now becomes fun. Your imaginative streak fills in reasons for these activities and what the pleasant results may be.

Fur fashion then and now — the return to elegance

By Helen Hennessy
 NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) —
 When Ben Kahn does a fur presentation, it's a tough one to top — for quality, style and the whole production itself. His recent Fall and Winter collection — shown to 1,000 customers, buyers, friends and press — lived up to its predecessors.

The show produced by Michael Arceneaux and entitled, "Furs in Retrospect — Then and Now," starred Debbie Reynolds and the dancers from the Broadway musical "Irene."

Debbie Reynolds was delightful as she impersonated Pearl Bailey wearing an orange hare sleeveless coat, Zsa Zsa Gabor in a horizontal blue fox coat and Mae West in a shadow blue fox coat worked in a chevron pattern. She also modeled coats and jackets of dark ranch mink, cognac chinchilla, a melon-dyed mink bolero, a tourmaline mink bolero, white swakara with Mongolian lamb collar and a long ranch mink coat with vertical top and zip-off horizontal bottom.

Fur styles from the '30s, '40s, '50s and '60s when Joan Crawford, Betty Grable, Marilyn Monroe and Elizabeth Taylor were the fashion style setters were shown in contrast with the new collection. In the styles of yesterday furs such as natural wild mink and ranch mink, Persian lamb, raccoon and ermine were the favorites of the day.

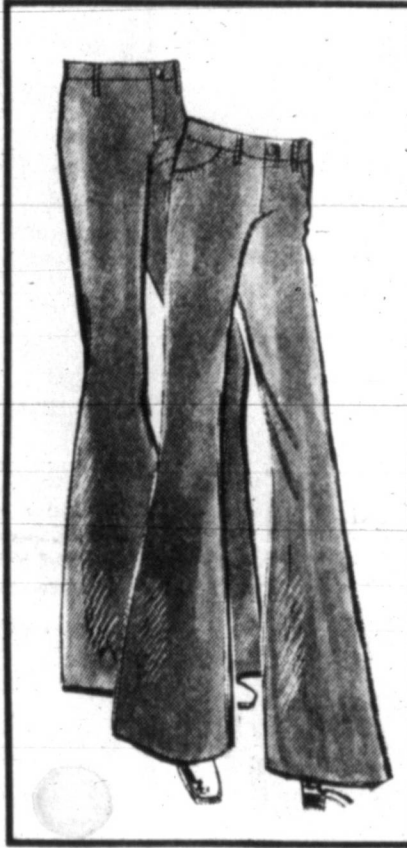

"Couture inspired the early collections," said Ernest Graf, president of Ben Kahn. "In the Sixties it was a more relaxed and sportive influence. But now in the Seventies we've returned to the elegant high couture inspirations."

In the contemporary collection, designed by Jerry Sorbara and John Puntar, coat lengths were just below the knee. Jacket lengths were at the waist, hip and mid-thigh. And the furs used were spectacular.

She gets rebuff after dressing down neighbor

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: A 40-year-old man who is a neighbor of mine, and also a friend, goes out to get his morning paper in the nude.

I have told him that this is against the law, but he says as long as he is on his property they can't arrest him—I told him, it didn't make any difference, it was still against the law.

I am afraid they will catch him and lock him up. Will you please print this. There are lots of children in the neighborhood, and I don't think this is very nice. Sign me
WORRIED IN FORT PIERCE, FLA

DEAR WORRIED: Laws differ, but your neighbor should find out if he's within the law to be without clothes even on his own property in view of the neighbors. [What could they charge him with? Indecent exposure, or being an attractive nuisance?]

DEAR ABBY: A woman wrote that she had been married 27 years, and all she was good for was sex. One is struck by her incapacity to realize that she must be one fantastically creative, imaginative, responsive female to have made sex so exciting for the same man for 27 years.

She says she's "the world's worst cook and housekeeper, and not good at anything except sex"—as if sex was a bad thing to be good at.

One could easily change the letter around. A woman may have written in saying all she was good for was cooking, and that's the only reason her husband married her, and now they are both overweight, and their lives are devoid of everything except the pleasures of eating. That would be worse, wouldn't it?

Or she might have said she was the world's greatest housekeeper, but since she didn't have a passionate nature, her husband went out and paid prostitutes, or kept mistresses to fulfill his sexual needs. Sadder, but more believable, right?

I was married for years to a man who found my sexual nature both irritating and intimidating. Since he really didn't enjoy either physical or emotional intimacy, and since he mostly wanted me to be an excellent cook and housekeeper [neither of which I am or ever will be], our relationship was singularly lacking in closeness, friendship, and love.

Luckily, I since have left that marriage and have found a man who appreciates a woman who is passionate, responsive, and sexually creative.

After six years of this fulfilling relationship, please tell that poor woman for me that I have been there, too—both ways. And believe me, this way is better!

"LIVING" IN RIVERSIDE, CAL.

DEAR ABBY: We are studying about reproduction in school. The book says that a female can become pregnant only during a two to four day period every month, but it doesn't say anything about a man. Does the man have a certain time when he is fertile, too?

I am embarrassed to ask the teacher because I don't want to sound dumb.

WANTS TO KNOW

DEAR WANTS: First: There is nothing "dumb" about your question—in fact, no question is "dumb" if it's sincere, so never hesitate to ask. The male is fertile on a nonstop basis throughout his reproductive life.

Message T-Shirts Live On

COLLEGE STATION — Cotton knit T-shirts have become one of the hottest selling items on the youth market.

These clothing billboards reflect a theme for every feeling. Ecology, special interest sports, nostalgic trips, scenes of faraway places and ex-officio endorsements of special foods exemplify the hundreds of variations. — Marilyn Brown said.

The consumer education-clothing and textiles specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, noted the fad moved printed T-shirts from strictly a children's camp and resort item — or sports uniform — into the swinging young adult market.

Although part of the T-shirt business is done through boutiques and smaller stores that have the ability to get in and out fast, giant chain stores also get their share.

However, sales of T-shirts aren't limited to stores — restaurants, record companies, movers, theaters and various stores from motorcyclists shops to supermarkets use them for advertising and promotion.

Printed T-shirt fabrics currently are moving into new apparel areas — such as long and short dresses, the specialist noted.

Some current, coming looks include batik, florals, Indian paisleys and some with lace trims and dolman sleeves.

The message T-shirt lives on and on — only the graphics change with the quirks and whims of youth. — she added.

By POLLY CRAMER

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — My problem is with dress and skirt belts that become limp when they are laundered. Often the backing cracks, too. What can one do to make such belts firm and new looking again? — MARGARET.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is that the large stores in shopping centers do not always put the hours they are open in their ads. We go to some in Maryland, Delaware, Virginia, and even New Jersey, and no two seem to have the same shopping hours. After driving perhaps 1 1/2 hours it is annoying to find the stores do not open until 10 a.m. and it maybe only 9:30. Doubtless they think everyone knows the hours but since the 9-to-5 store hours went out few people can keep the different hours straight. — N.R.F.

DEAR POLLY — Barbara, who has a white spot on her pecan wood bed, should rub the spot with petroleum jelly, let it stand overnight and then wipe it all off. Repeat if necessary. I won a Polly Dollar for this as a pointer some years ago. — MELBA.

Melba, I do want to thank you again for this pointer. I have used it many times and found it to be great. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — I want to tell Barbara who accidentally sprayed disinfectant on her pecan wood bed that I had a white mark on my pecan dresser. After trying everything I rubbed it with a broken pecan nut meat. It worked like magic and no make was left. — MRS R.L.C.

DEAR POLLY — I sprayed a disinfectant all over the house and white spots appeared on my coffee table. I wrote to the company that makes the spray and they suggested cigarette ashes wet with fresh lemon juice. Apply with a cloth but do not leave on too long, just a very few minutes, and then wipe with a clean dry cloth. I have used this for four or five years. — MRS. E.S.

DEAR POLLY — Most families have the problem of scuff marks on the floors but a quick and easy way to remove them is to wet a cloth or paper towel with silver polish. Rub the scuff marks and they will come off with little effort.

It is a bit easier for people confined to wheel-chairs to give a quick cleanup to rugs by using a child's hand sweeper which does a fairly good job, is light and easy to handle. — MRS. L.G.

DEAR POLLY — When getting my son ready for school I discovered a big stain on a brand new shirt that had just come out of the wash. It had only been worn twice so I was distraught. The spot looked oily. I rubbed hair shampoo on it and left it on for a few hours going on the idea that it removes oil and dirt from the hair and it did just that to the spot. The shirt was then good as new and I have tried this on other things, too, and had a 100 per cent batting average. Do try an inconspicuous spot before using on colored things. — JANE.

STITCHIN' TIME Luck of the Irish knitters

By Judy Love

A pair of ponchos with an Irish twist — that's the luckiest stitch of all for knitters. In this season of knits, here's news for holiday gifting that will give warm joy for years.

Either of these handsome pull-on ponchos is a fashion winner. Each is warm, rugged wonderfully wearable over both pants and skirts.

The timeless tradition of Fisherman Knit patterns work with lucky designs for the needleworker — not to mention the person it's made for. You'll find the directions for these authentic stitch patterns beautifully clear and easy to follow. I needn't tell you how much a handmade poncho from Ireland would be — but you can bet your stitches you'd think twice before buying one. The savings when you knit either of these winners are beautiful. Perhaps most important, however, is the great satisfaction you'll get from knitting either the one-size fits-all poncho, or the round neckline poncho with directions for sizes 8 to 18.

You'll work with Bernat Blarney Spun yarn, using 19 2 oz balls for the fits-all poncho, or from 9 to 13 2 oz balls for the great looking small-to-large poncho.

If you start clicking right now, you'll have one of these Irish Knit beauties ready to warm a holiday heart.

Directions for both are available from your local paper. Ask for easy to follow instructions for perfect Irish ponchos; simple send fifty cents to Stitchin' Time, c/o this newspaper, Radio City Station, Box 503, New York, N.Y. 10019. Ask for leaflet S381 and be sure to include your name, address and zip code.

KNIT KNACKS

Dear Judy Love: I am knitting a sweater and I want to make buttons to match, but my pattern doesn't show me how — it calls for purchased buttons. Can you give me instructions for making buttons? L.N., Bloomington, Ind.

Dear L.N.: I have several methods of making buttons for knitted or crocheted garments, and have selected one that I think you will find easy to make. The materials needed are easy to find and inexpensive. At the 5 & 10 you can find plastic rings — they come in many different sizes, and you should have no trouble finding the right size for your buttonholes. Also a crochet hook.

Using your leftover yarn (or if you wish, a contrasting color for a different effect) and with your crochet hook, Timeless beauty in the Irish tradition — classic Fisherman Knit ponchos are the perfect gift to give or keep.

work so around plastic ring; join with sl st in first sc. *Skip next sc, sc in next sc; repeat from * around. Join, then leave 10-12" for sewing. Turn sc to center of ring, thread yarn needle with end.

Gather sts tog at center, fasten off. On larger rings, make a web effect in center. Sew onto garment for a truly "personal" and interesting effect.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Prof. Lawrence is a deft member of my "Compliment Club." He realizes, too, the superb value of dramatizing education, which is a form of salesmanship. And the Bible cites, many super salesmen, as shown in today's case.

CASE Y-564: Lawrence R., aged 27, is a psychology professor.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "I am using your textbook for two classes.

"And I want to compliment you on the way you can intrigue the interest of students.

"That's doubly true because of your PROJECT BOOK that the professor obtains.

"For its 77 dramatic 5-minute classroom demonstrations banish absenteeism.

"Now the students know that they will witness a clever classroom demonstration at every class session, so they not only show up on time.

"But many of them ask if they may invite a roommate to one of the classes!

"That's been almost unheard of heretofore!

"Your textbook is a splendid salesman for Applied Psychology."

COMPLIMENT CLUB

Lawrence is obviously a deft Applied Psychologist.

For he has demonstrated the use of the "Compliment Club" technique on me.

But I appreciate his seeing the effect that classroom salesmanship exerts on zooming enrollments, regular attendance and even the invitation of guest students.

While teaching at Northwestern University, I always set aside one day each semester when students could invite their friends, roommates or families.

We had to use the N. U. Law School Auditorium to handle the crowds, but my classes were always overflowing each semester.

For salesmanship is the psychological "sparkplug" that zooms business, as well as church attendance, school enrollments, etc.

The first stellar salesman was the Serpent in the Garden of Eden.

He sold Eve on tasting the forbidden fruit.

And that was one of the great milestones in human occupation of this planet, for it forced man to start working, instead of remaining on Divine Welfare!

Abraham was another salesman, who twice traded his wife to foreign kings as the insurance policy on his own life.

His grandson, Jacob, then sold Esau on bartering his birthright for Jacob's tasty bean soup.

Laban deserves praise, too, for selling Jacob on working 7 years to win Rachel for a wife.

Laban then tricked Jacob and gave him the wrong daughter, which Jacob didn't discover till next morning.

But Laban then used more salesmanship and sold Jacob on working another 7 years.

David likewise used salesmanship on King Saul to gain permission to fight the giant, Goliath.

He backed up his salesmanship with facts, when he cited his previous killing of bears and lions.

Judas Iscariot then sold Jesus for 30 pieces of silver, without which deal Christianity would not have materialized!

Remember, too, that Christianity is indebted to capital punishment for its very existence on this Earth!

And Paul was a super salesman during the first century, A.D., for he sold the new ethical system to many cities, in which he established little sales groups of other fervent disseminators of the glad tidings.

Siberian Miners

Uncover Diamond

MOSCOW (UPI) — Siberian miners have found a 232-carat diamond, equalling the largest diamond ever found in the Soviet Union, the newspaper Trud said Wednesday.

The new diamond, named the Star of Yakutia, was found in the rich diamond fields at Mirnyy in the Yakutskaya region.

According to the Guinness Book of Records, the largest diamond ever found was the 3.106-carat Cullinan, discovered in South Africa in 1905.

The name Catherine comes from a Greek name meaning "pure."

His New Testament Epistles are really the Sales Manager's letters to his Mediterranean religious sales crews at Galatia, Ephesus, Corinth, etc.

Send for my booklet "The New Psychology of Advertising and Selling," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Worry Clinic, Hopkins Bldg., Melbet, Indiana 47888. Enclose a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you read for one of my booklets.)

Whatever Happened To Halloween Soap Marks, Pranks?

NORTH LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — I was driving to work one morning last week, vaguely disturbed. Something was wrong. I passed by well-kept lawns and later, downtown store windows filled with wares as usual.

Then it hit me. Where were all the soap marks on the windows, the endless rolls of toilet paper strung through tree branches, the airless tires on parked cars rendered flat by some menacing dash-about rakehell who had terrorized the neighborhood with his cronies all night?

Gone, passed as quietly as flapping bat wings. Gone with the witches and goblins and all that used to go klump in the night. Like the brontosaurus and the 50-cent blue plate special. Halloween as we knew it just disappeared.

This Halloween my wife and I took our costumed tykes around the neighborhood, stopping at houses where the porch light was on and friendly ladies came to the door dispensing candy corn, suckers, salt water taffy, and now and then an apple.

This was done amid chortles of "Oh, how cute," and "What's the little one? A rabbit? Precious!"

So much for Halloween, 1973. When I was a boy in Shawnee, Okla., more years ago than I would like to think, one of my pals, who shall remain nameless because he still does business there, took paint and brush to the top of the water tower one Halloween and wrote his name in 10-foot letters. Other monograms were added on succeeding Halloweens, along with "Seniors '52" and "Beat Seminole" and so on until the whole thing read like a crumpled Sunday newspaper.

But my pal's name stood out among all the rest, a monument to derring-do that others who came later could only imitate. His name stood out in bold relief above the Shawnee skyline for a dozen years, until finally they painted the whole thing over.

That was Halloween. That is the best story of all—one that has achieved folklore status. That was the night a dead cat was hurled through the picture window of a particularly unloved high school teacher. Well sir, they had the police in on that one. No one was ever arrested but the late night crowd at the Wide-Awake Cafe knows who they were for certain and still speak of the cat-throwing from time to time when there is a gathering.

A log hut which cost less than $200 to construct served as the University of Georgia at Athens, Ga., from 1801 to 1805.
