

Rookie Astronaut Will Take 96-Minute Walk Around the World!

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — Unheralded Rookie Astronaut David R. Scott will set out early next year to walk completely around the world in 96 minutes.

Slender, 33-year-old Dave Scott, an astronaut for less than two years, was named by the U. S. space agency to ride alongside the nation's first civilian space pilot, Neil Armstrong, aboard Gemini 8.

And when they set out aboard a Titan 2 booster from Cape Kennedy, they will begin the most fabulous cosmic adventure ever.

Scott, a former Air Force test pilot and son of a retired general, was a surprise choice. Astronaut Elliot See, a civilian had been considered the unofficial favorite.

One circuit will take about 96 minutes, give or take a few seconds on the first day of the four-day flight of Gemini 4 last June 3-7. Scott expects to make his walk last through at least one complete revolution around earth.

He will carry along a "zot gun," similar to the device White used to propel himself around, only more powerful and carrying more fuel.

surface to walk upon in space, Scott will zip around to the thick adapter section of the spaceship, retrieve the nuclear measurement package and pick up a bottle of life-giving oxygen.

"Although in recent years not more than one boy in one hundred has been educated in the private schools of the United States, those schools have... educated approximately as many leaders as all the public schools combined."

Red Death Toll: 226

SAIGON (UPI) — The Communist death toll in the battle of An Khe jumped to at least 226 when American paratroopers searching the battlefield discovered an additional 71 Viet Cong bodies, official U. S. military sources said today.

But the sources also reported seven American jet fighters and one helicopter downed Monday for one of the worst days of the Viet Nam air war.

Fierce hand-to-hand combat developed before the outnumbered Americans gained the upper hand and forced the guerrillas to break off contact and fade into the surrounding jungle.

AT SENATE HEARING

Bobby Baker Case 'Pops Up' Again

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Bobby Baker case popped up again today at a Senate hearing.

The name of the former Senate Democratic secretary, who resigned his job under fire, came up when a Senate judiciary subcommittee took up the President's nomination of David G. Bress, 57, to succeed Dean Acheson Jr. as U.S. attorney for the District of Columbia.

Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., who has spearheaded Senate investigations of the Baker case, testified in opposition to Bress' nomination because Bress once served as a lawyer for Baker's financial empire.

Williams said it was not proper that Bress be appointed at a time when a federal grand jury still was considering facets of the Baker case.

INDIA ACCEPTS

General Assembly In Session

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—India was reported today to have agreed to accept the United Nations cease-fire demand in Kashmir provided Pakistan does likewise.

The small Chinese force withdrew into Tibet after a brief exchange in which no casualties were reported.

There was as yet no word from Pakistan. Foreign Minister Z.A. Bhutto was flying here and it was believed he may be carrying President Mohammad Ayub Khan's reply.

Little fighting was reported between India and Pakistan today and New Delhi dispatches said Indian Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri was reported to have accepted a United Nations demand for a cease-fire.

Indian sources said Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri sent word to U.N. Secretary General Thant that his government would issue the cease-fire orders to troops provided India was given confirmation that Pakistan would do the same.

Before the Indian Defense Ministry announced today's firing incident—the first since the two-month, 1962 war—a UPI dispatch from Gangtok, the capital of Sikkim, said the Chinese today intensified their firing across the border and extended the area from which they were fighting.

Television in Review

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — CBS-TV's "Trials of O'Brien" — a new series with talented Peter Falk as an earthy, flamboyant lawyer, turned up during the weekend—a blend of third-rate, imitation Damon Runyon and unpleasant New York affectation.

This New York production was really a major disappointment, wasting so many special people who are regulars in the show. In addition to Falk, there is the lovely and literate Joanna Barnes, who portrays his ex-wife and who came off best in the opener Saturday; actress-authoress Ilka Chase, who plays his ex-mother-in-law; and Elaine Stritch, who appears as his long-suffering secretary, and who has a special place in the hearts of theatregoers for her hilarious "Zip" number as an intellectual stripteaser in "Pal Joey."

Except when handled by such masters of New Yorkese as Runyon, O. Henry and Jimmy Cannon, and except when directed with pinpoint flavor, attempts to delineate "picturesque" characters of that city can result in provincial cuteness as determinedly phony and mannered as Hollywood cuteness. And that is what happened.

Just about nothing else happened. The story, about one of Falk's clients who is falsely accused of murder, went absolutely nowhere and did absolutely nothing, and managed to do all of this very slowly, loudly and haphazardly. You'd have thought someone in the professional set set threw it together between planes. There was even the gimmick of throwing the troubled man's little daughter into the temporary care of Falk, in the manner of Run-yon's "Little Miss Marker." Falk, normally one of the very best actors around, is such a warmly effective performer that one cannot understand why he had to employ such an exaggerated New York accent and be so determinedly lovable that it seemed he was on the verge of chewing the scenery. He's just too good for that sort of stuff, but if he keeps it up he will relegate himself to nothing but character actor status in the movies.

The best scenes were between Falk and Miss Barnes as the divorced couple still fond of each other. Someone should really do a good situation comedy series about divorce. It will have a big audience.

If quality is any yardstick, there should be as big audience for a surprisingly successful new one-hour NBC-TV series that arrived Sunday night, "The Wackiest Ship in the Army," about an old two-masted schooner pressed into service for espionage missions in the South Pacific in World War II. This is a finely-tooled service comedy with some adventure thrown in, and I found myself laughing out loud at the performances of Jack Warden, Mike Kellin, Rudy Solari and all the others unhappy with their assignment to the vessel. Gary Collins is a good straight man as the young officer who tries to maintain discipline.

Warden is the series' all-around man as a knowing, tough service veteran, and the writing and direction of Danny Arnold should be mentioned for assuring the show's opening success. The humor was dry, bright and expert, the characters well-drawn and convincing, and the showdown with a two-man Japanese submarine was very funny.

the man he had been seeking all night for questioning in a murder were killed in a shootout in a West Texas cornfield.
Another deputy was critically wounded and an early police was also shot.

Killed were Deputy Sheriff
Jess Minton of Snyder, Tex., and 28-year-old Carlos Perez of Colorado City.
The other deputy, Forrest
Smith of Colorado City, was in critical condition at Root Memorial Hospital in Colorado

AID FOR STORM VICTIMS — Area residents contributed some 1,900 pounds of articles for the New Orleans disaster area following an appeal by the Salvation Army. Some of the material is seen behind Salvation Army Captain Robert Tritten, left, and Harold Burris, local manager for Merchant's Fast Freight Lines. The motor freight carrier is hauling the articles free of charge to a connection point with Red Ball who will complete the mission of mercy. Capt. Tritten was both jubilant and grateful for the response locally. Not shown were three working

Trinity
Project
Doubtful
WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House today called up for certain passage a $1.9 billion public works package aimed at helping, among others, Atlantic City vacationers, Ohio riverboat captains and bayou fishermen.
The vote was not expected until Wednesday on the huge rivers and harbors bill. It would authorize 144 flood control, navigation and beach erosion projects in 41 states. The Senate already has approved a similar measure.
A project sure to draw fire was the Trinity River navigation proposal — designed to make Fort Worth a seaport.
The bill carries authorization for more than $400 million for the navigation features of the project and $83 million for immediate expenditure.
Aim of the project is to dredge the Trinity and to build a series of dams and reservoirs on it so barges could be towed more than 300 miles inland from the Gulf of Mexico to Fort Worth.

Jury Makes
No Charges
In Alabama
MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — A federal grand jury investigating alleged police brutality against civil rights demonstrators in Selma and Marion refused today to indict anyone.
The jury had investigated the use of billy clubs and tear gas
by state troopers and Dallas County authorities in blocking the civil rights march from Selma to Montgomery last March 7. Scores of Negroes were injured in the melee.
Grand Jury Foreman Charles
W. Forrest told U.S. District Judge Daniel H. Thomas the jury considered accusations against seven persons in five separate cases but declined to return formal charges.
Forrest, in his terse report,
said the jury worked six days
and questioned 49 witnesses.
Thomas recessed the grand jury indefinitely.
Justice Department Attorney
James P. Turner declined to comment on the jury report other than to say "they worked hard."
Forrest said the grand jury made the report "having performed the services to the best of our ability."
Turner later was approached by several jurors who expressed their disappointment at the jury's action. It took 12 members to get an indictment and the Justice Department obviously was short by several votes.

Martin Hopes
To Gain
Carr's Post
AUSTIN (UPI)—Secretary of State Crawford Martin, a one-time unsuccessful candidate for lieutenant-governor, announced
Monday he will run for attorney general next year.
He hopes to succeed Atty.
Gen. Waggoner Carr, who said over the weekend that he will try to unseat Republican Sen.
John Tower in the U.S. Senate race next year.
Martin, 49, served 14 years in the state Senate before running unsuccessfully against Lt. Gov.
Preston Smith. After his defeat in the Democratic primary he was appointed secretary of state by Gov. John Connally.
Asked if he thought Connally, who announced Saturday he would seek a third term, would support him Martin replied "I feel he will vote for me since he named me secretary of state."
Martin said he had talked to numerous legislators before making his decision. He said among those he talked to was state Sen. Franklin Spears of San Antonio. Spears is a potential candidate for attorney general.
"I told him this morning of my plans to run," Martin said.
"He wished me good luck and I wished him the same." But Martin said Spears did not reveal plans for his own political future.
In Houston, Dist. Atty. Frank Briscoe said he was considering running either for Congress or for attorney general. He said, "attorney general appeals to me more."

Pampa Traffic
Commission
Loses Two
The Pampa Traffic Commission had to act on two resignations from its membership at the regular monthly meeting at the Pampa Hotel yesterday.
City Engineer Harold Foreman submitted his resignation, stating he was moving to Grapevine Oct. 1.
The other resignation came from Pampa High School coach Harold Moore, who stated a conflict prevented him from attending the noon meetings of the commission.
In other business, the commission voted to recommend that the city paint speed zone signs into the street in the 1800, 1900 and 2000 block of Chestnut.
The action came after John Ellis requested the commission do something about cars speeding up and down Chestnut street.
Ellis resides at 1905 Chestnut.

ed at the meeting.

Four to five inches were rethe snow extended over some high mountains of northern

New Mexico late Monday.
The weather bureau said to-areas of the state would be clear, but unseasonably cool.

Temperatures plunged below

northern New Mexico early

At Grants a 29 degree read-

IT'S THE LAW
in Texas

MAN OVER BEAST

The Bible tells us that man-kind was given dominion over the animals of the land and the fish of the sea. But, as any sportsman knows, it isn't always easy for one particular man to gain dominion over one particular animal or one particular fish.

In the eyes of the law, when do you become the owner of a wild creature? To start with, the state "owns" all the wild animals and fish that dwell permanently within its borders.

But the state owns them only in a very general sense, holding title in trust for the benefit of the people. Any person — subject to the fish and game laws and private property rights — may acquire ownership of any animal or fish simply by reducing it to his possession.

1 But just what is possession? Consider this case:

A hunter was in hot pursuit of a deer when another hunter, appearing suddenly from a different direction, felled the animal with a fatal shot.

In short order the two men went to court to settle ownership of the deer. The judge duly ruled in favor of the second hunter, holding that pursuit alone, no matter how close to success, was not enough to give title to the pursuer.

But in another case, a hunter who inflicted disabling wounds on a wolf won over a second hunter who stepped up close and administered the coup de grace. The court said the first hunter had acquired possession, hence ownership, by making the wolf's escape just about impossible.

Even as you may gain ownership by gaining possession, so you may also lose ownership by having no right in a fish which, although briefly hooked, squirms free and regains the safety of the water.

In one unusual case, the owner of a sea lion that escaped into the ocean was held to have no claim against a man who caught the same sea lion two weeks later, 70 miles away.

On the other hand, if an escaped animal is trained to come home again, then the owner retains title. The habit of return, like an invisible leash, ties the animal to its owner.

A woman's pet canary, having escaped from its cage, was caught and kept by a neighbor. But in a court test, the first woman was held to be the owner still. The court pointed out that the bird answered to her call, had not gone far, and had previously come home voluntarily after an outing.

"Such a bird could not be considered fair game for capture, said the court, because it had not truly gone 'back to nature.'"

Fire Burns Out Tennessee Fair

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—Fire broke out at the Tennessee State Fair late Monday night, burning up a grandstand and reducing exhibit buildings and sideshows to ashes.

At least 15 persons, 10 of them firemen, were injured and damages were estimated at more than $12 million. Thousands fled from orange smoke and flames that shot hundreds of feet into the air.

Fire Chief Russell Campbell ordered a search through the debris for possible victims of the fast moving fire early today.

"We have had reports of missing persons but we haven't found anybody," Campbell said. He did not elaborate on the missing persons reports. One fireman was hit in the neck by a "hot wire," Campbell said. Nine others suffered smoke inhalation.

The fire chief said he was Closed Hearing Set For Accused Slayer

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI)—A closed preliminary hearing began Monday for Erwin Faye Stewart, accused in the 1963 slaying of Texas socialite Jane Langdon.

Five prosecution witnesses testified before Justice of the Peace Charles Coppock. Among those were the victim's father, Judge Jack Langdon of the Texas Court of Appeals, and Dr. Daruis Behan, who per-told that the fire started in the women's exhibit building, "where they do the cooking" and spread rapidly to a nearby grandstand.

Officials closed the fair because of the opening day fire and fair manager Cliff Andrews called for a meeting to determine whether an effort would be made to reopen it for the scheduled week's run.

Mayor Beverly Briley, whose automobile was destroyed by the fire, formed the autopsy on the body of Miss Langdon.

The Texas Christian University coed's body was found in an abandoned mine north of Phoenix in March, 1963. She disappeared after she came here to visit with her mother.

the fast-spreading flames, said that between 20,000 and 30,000 persons had turned out for the opening day but the crowd had thinned considerably when the fire broke out about 10:15 p.m.

SWIMS BOTH WAYS

Chicago Chemist Batters English Channel Record

DOVER, England (UPI)—A 37-year-old chemist from Chicago, Ill., waded ashore at South Foreland early today and claimed a record in swimming the English Channel both ways "non-stop."

He was Ted Erikson, who swam from England to France and back again in 30 hours and 3 minutes with a 10-minute rest on the French coast.

"It's great to be back on dry land again," Erikson said. "What I want now is a nice hot bath."

Erikson claimed he clipped 13 hours and 7 minutes off the time set by the only other man to swim the English channel both ways, Antonio Abertondo of Argentina, Abertondo accomplished his feat in 1961. It was his third try this month to swim the channel.

STOWAWAY HOME

S O U T H A M P T O N, England (UPI)—Kevin Adams, a 10-year-old sent 6,000 miles to live with relatives in South Africa, grew homesick and took the inexpensive way home.

The captain of the liner Pendennis Castle which docked here Monday said the youngster turned himself in as a stowaway a few hours after the ship left South Africa.

both ways. His two previous attempts to follow a course plotted by a computer failed and he used the traditional method of following a pilot in a boat.

"Ted had two chances using the computer and failed," said Arthur Liddon of Dover, Erikson's pilot. "This time we decided to ditch the computer chart. Ted swam for all he was worth and we made it in the traditional manner."

Abertondo's time in 1961 was 43 hours and 10 minutes. Erikson had hoped to complete the two-way swim in 25 hours.

Newspaper Strike Negotiators 'Reflect' A Day

NEW YORK (UPI)—Negotiators in the New York newspaper strike were given the day off today to "reflect and reevaluate" their positions. A mediator reported major progress on one key issue.

Talks between the New York Times and the striking American Newspaper Guild (ANG) will resume at 10 a.m. Wednesday. The strike, now in its sixth day, resulted in the closing of the Times and six of New York's seven other major newspapers.

A hearing was scheduled today in Manhattan Federal Court on a petition from the printing pressmen's union seeking an injunction to force reopening of the six newspapers which stopped publishing voluntarily when the strike closed the Times. The six papers are members of the Newspaper Publishers Association of New York City, which has a pact to suspend all member papers if strike closes one.

In addition to the Times, the newspapers which stopped publishing are the Daily News, Herald Tribune, Journal-American, World Telegram and Sun, Long Island Press and Long Island Star-Journal.

In announcing the recess in talks Monday night, Chief mediator Theodore W. Kheel said "major progress" has been made during the day on one of four major issues in the Times-Guild dispute. Negotiators had been devoting much time in the past two days to the issue of pensions but Kheel would not disclose whether the progress had been made in that field.

Simple Burial Service Set for Marshall Field

CHICAGO (UPI)—A simple Presbyterian funeral service was planned today for Marshall Field, publisher, philanthropist and civic leader.

No eulogy was included in the services at Fourth Presbyterian Church.

Field, editor and publisher of the Chicago Daily News and the Chicago Sun-Times died Saturday at the age of 49. Death was attributed to congestive heart failure.

Field, who was also board chairman of Field Enterprises, Inc., was to be buried in a landscaped family plot at Grace-Land Cemetery.

A brief graveside ceremony was planned to follow the church services.

Field's great-grandfather was the founder of the Marshall Field and Co. department stores enterprise. Field himself won a law degree from the University of Virginia, served as a gunnery officer in the Navy during World War II and was awarded the Silver Star.

He entered the newspaper publishing field following the war.

He succeeded his father, Marshall Field III, as editor and publisher of the Sun-Times on Oct. 1, 1950. In 1959 he purchased controlling interest in the Chicago Daily News from Knight Newspapers Inc.

Tarrant Gets First Medical Examiner

F O R T W O R T H (UPI)—Dr. T. C. Terrell will become Tarrant County's first medical examiner Nov. 1.

He was appointed to the post Monday by the county commissioners.

The 59th Legislature passed a special bill authorizing the post. The bill says that Tarrant County must always keep a medical examiner and not allow the responsibility of ruling on deaths to pass back to justices of the peace.

Immigration Bill Faces Quick Vote

By United Press International WASHINGTON (UPI)—Changes appeared good today for quick Senate passage of the administration's immigration reform bill.

Sen Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., floor manager of the bill, said there was a good chance the House-approved bill might win Senate approval sometime this afternoon.

There were some minor amendments expected to be offered, but they were not expected to delay Senate action.

However, before the Senate could act there were scheduled speeches against the bill to be offered by Sens. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., and John L. McClellan, D-Ark.

The measure would scrap the 41-year-old national origins quota system.

In other developments, WORKS—The House called up for certain passage a $1.9 billion public works package, but a vote was not expected until Wednesday on the huge rivers and harbors bill.

TARIFFS—The Senate Finance Committee was scheduled to meet in executive session to consider the administration's automotive tariffs agreement with Canada, Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., Monday shut off what he called a filibuster by opponents of the measure.

Monday Business The House unanimously approved Monday a bill to permit servicemen to buy $10,000 group life insurance policies at a rate of $2 per month.

The House passed the bill on a vote of 350 to 0. The measure now goes to the Senate as a possible substitute for a Senate-approved measure to grant $10,000 in free insurance to men killed in combat zones.

House sponsors argued that the Senate bill, while protecting servicemen killed in traffic accidents in Saigon, would not protect those killed in plane crashes of training accidents in the United States.

Ecumenical Group Votes Declaration

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—The Ecumenical Council registered overwhelming approval today in a preliminary vote on a declaration affirming the right of all men to religious liberty.

The long-awaited vote was 1,998 in favor of the declaration to 224 against. The vote was regarded as a great liberal victory over the council's conservative minority, which had won successive delays in the initial vote.

The large majority in favor of the declaration supported the liberal argument that most councilmen want to put the Roman Catholic Church on record as favoring freedom of worship.

The ballot assures that the Secretariat for Promoting Christian Unity can use the declaration as the basis of further revisions without the danger of massive conservative obstruction.

HERO HELD

BANGOR, Maine (UPI)—A Korean war hero was being held today under $25,000 bond after pleading innocent Monday to a charge of kidnaping a blonde heiress after his escape from a mental hospital.

Roger R. Haller, 31, who was decorated with the Silver Star for gallantry in Korea, was ordered held for the January term of the Penobscott County Superior Court at a hearing in district court.

The Paterson, N.J., native allegedly abducted Mrs. Lynne Pierce McGinn, 28, a blonde Junior League and daughter of a former New York broker from her Orrington home Thursday.

SECRET GOVERNMENT

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Stephen M. Young, D-Ohio, wants Congress to set up a "watchdog" committee to monitor the activities of the super-secret Central Intelligence Agency (CIA).

He told the Senate Monday the CIA had "in effect been making foreign policy" and had assumed responsibilities of the President and Congress. Young said "the CIA has gradually taken on the character of an invisible government, answerable only to itself."

Kimonos Come Out of Retirement and Go to the Ball

By HELEN HENNESSY
Women's Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
NEW YORK (NEA) — The kimono has come out of retirement both here and in the Orient.

This spring, in New York, Norman Norell took the kimono out of the boudoir where it once reigned supreme, and designed beautiful kimono dresses for evening which were the sensation of his collection.

And now in Japan, where since World War II the kimono had become merely a ceremonial costume, it once again is being worn for evening as the elegant dress it is.

The kimono went into figurative mothballs in its native land for two reasons. During and since the war women in Japan had to work and this form of dress does not lend itself to factory or office.

In addition, the kimono was expensive and money in Japan was scarce.

So elegance lost out to economic and overseas visitors to Japan — who had visualized streets lined with doll-like beauties in native costume — were startled to see instead mangled young women in stiletto heels and tweedy suits — western garb had taken over.

But these same visitors played an important role in restoring the kimono to fashion in Japan. Tourism helped to bring prosperity to the average home and Japanese girls can now afford to wear this handsome dress for evening.

The unusual fabric designs from Japan are taken from the traditional motifs — arched bridges, bamboo, streams, stones and the rocks in the famous temple gardens of Kyoto.

One interesting note on the kimono is that the obi (the sash which is tied in an elaborate manner in the back) often costs more than the kimono itself.

The popularity of this dress is spreading among dignitaries who visit Japan. Britain's Princess Alexandra and Princess Beatrix of the Netherlands both own and wear beautiful kimonos for formal evenings. The fashion has caught on among American tourists as well. The price has come down and some can be bought for as little as $10. They also go up to $3,000.

Along with the sari and the burmese, the kimono will now add its grace to formal winter evenings both at home and in the ballroom here in America, where the trend toward femininity is obviously gaining momentum. The enthusiasm with which American women are adopting these graceful fashions from far-away lands is proof of that.

And it's a good thing, too. A man doesn't want to dance with a drill sergeant. So what can we lose by looking pretty and perhaps just a trifle helpless?

HAVE KIMONO, WILL TRAVEL — Typical American teen-agers express admiration for kimono-clad Miss Yoshiko Usui at San Francisco International Airport where she was boarding a plane for her trip home to Tokyo. Versions of the kimono are now becoming a popular fashion for evening wear here in America as well as in Japan, where in recent years this dress was used only as a ceremonial costume.

MEMO TO MEN: If you want to keep your wife happy in retirement (your retirement, that is) here are a few pointers that will make it easy.

ONE. Clear out of the house for a few hours every morning. That will give your wife a chance to do the housework in peace and quiet. Since she can't retire, make her work as easy as possible by keeping out from under foot.

TWO. Encourage her to keep up with her clubs and friends. Just because you don't have to go to the office every day, don't make her feel completely tied down.

THREE. Find some interests and hobbies of your own, so that you don't sit around watching televisions all day long, a practice that is guaranteed to drive almost any woman crazy.

FOUR. Be as particular about your clothes and grooming as you were before retirement. If you grow careless it will be hard on your morale and hard on your wife's, too.

FIVE. Recall all the things the two of you used to talk about doing when you had time — and start doing at least some of them.

SIX. Go along with any ideas your wife dreams up for making your home more attractive. A

Lutheran Ladies Plan Bible Study

A program on "Church World Service" was presented at the September meeting of Zion Lutheran Ladies Aid by Mrs. Edwin Eaton and Mrs. Cliff Bass. A film entitled "Hunger," and a color sound filmstrip entitled "How Real the Hope?" gave an excellent visual portrayal of how our Lutheran World Relief program, in cooperation with the Church of Christ to the suffering millions in the Middle East.

Mrs. J. M. Thompson led the group in a responsive reading and prayer as the "Mite Box" offerings were brought to the altar.

A new member, Mrs. Lloyd Brummett, was welcomed, and one guest, Mrs. Barbara Pearson.

Plans were made to begin the Ladies Bible Study on Wednesday and every two weeks thereafter from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. The Bible Study entitled "So Live in Him" will be based on the book of Colossians and will be led by Mrs. Linda Herring.

Members present Mmes Art Ziebarth, Edwin Eaton, Melvin Herring, W. M. Willett, J. P. Carlson, Bill Clark, Melvin Clark, Bob Johnson, J. M. Thompson, Roy Franke, Joy Thomas, George King and Norman Buhrow.

Hats and stockings to match — this was one idea from designer Madeleine de Rauch of Paris. She showed olive rib knit stockings with an olive pillbox and jersey wimple. The accessories went with a checked suit of olive and blue mixture.

woman of any age is happier if she can plan and carry out some projects for making the house she cares for more livable.

SEVEN. Don't be a grouch. A woman can put up with a grouch who goes to work five days a week far better than she can put up with one in retirement.

EIGHT. Pay your wife plenty of compliments. A woman who feels admired and appreciated is a happy woman. And if your wife isn't happy in your retirement, you aren't going to be long.

Dear Abby...

Jack's Arrangements Are Being Played

Morgantown, W. Virginia

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for three years. My wife and I work different shifts so we don't see very much of each other. A while back I started seeing a girl who works my shift. One thing led to another and now she tells me that she is going to have a baby and I am the father. She has been divorced a full year so there's no pinning this on her ex-husband. She thinks I love her just because I told her I did, but what else does a guy say in a situation like that?

Anyway, I don't love her that much and I would rather stay with the wife I have. This girl says if I don't divorce my wife and marry her fast, she will take me to court. Can she? Maybe I should just pack up and leave town. What do you recommend?

JACK
DEAR JACK: (And I hope you have plenty of it.) Get yourself a lawyer, I suggest you stay where you are and face the music. They're playing your arrangements.

DEAR ABBY: When you informed a young woman, who had been married by a Justice of the Peace, that her own clergyman would perform the marriage a second time under more auspicious circumstances, I think you goofed.

It may be that there are some denominations that have a special regulation on second ceremonies. It is even conceivable that there are pastors in my own denomination who would consent to such a request. However, if I interpret my church's teachings correctly, we are obliged to recognize a civil marriage as valid and inviolate. I would, in some sort of church ceremony, offer the church's blessings on such a marriage, but I would not perform the marriage ceremony the second time.

Sincerely yours,
Richard C. Inge, Pastor

Senior Center Corner

By MRS. O. A. WAGNER

Senior Citizens attending the Thursday meeting heard a pleasant announcement. J. V. Kidwell and Mrs. Myrtle Enloe, who met at the Center, were married Wednesday evening in Central Baptist Church Pastor's Study by Rev. T. O. Upshaw. The couple was present, as usual for the meeting, and asked that friends visit them in their home at 505 N. Warren.

Another pleasant surprise at Thursday's meeting was a brief visit from Uncle Billy Frost, Uncle Billy, who looked well and said he never felt better, was brought to the Center by Mrs. L. W. Newton and daughter, Carla.

Mrs. Alma Bailey spent the weekend in Amarillo visiting relatives including her first great-grandchild, Kamie Denise, born Sept. 9 to Mr. and Mrs. Glen Schonherstedt. Mrs. Schonherstedt is the former Pamela Bailey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Bailey.

Mark Gates, senior at West Texas State University, Canyon, spent the weekend with his grandmother, Mrs. P. H. Gates. Mrs. W. R. Ewing was welcomed back at the Center Thursday following a long absence.

pathy to the family of Mrs. Mary Lee Bullock, who was buried last week. Mrs. Bullock attended Senior Citizen's Center regularly as long as health permitted.

Mrs. Jessie VanHuss, who must make a hobby of lovely hats, was wearing a beautiful white straw at last week's meeting.

Mrs. Myrtle Enloe Kidwell and granddaughter, Miss Polly Skidmore, entertained those present Thursday by performing a pantomime to the "Prayer for the Middle Aged" with Mrs. Marie Fitzgerald acting as narrator. Mrs. Kidwell also created much mirth as she paraded among the tables dressed in old-fashioned attire and dipping snuff as many of the Senior Citizen's grandmothers did. Concluding the program was Miss Skidmore's a capella rendition of "The Old Rugged Cross."

Exceptional Childrens Association members served as hostesses for Thursday's meeting. Serving home made cake and coffee were Mmes. Jake Sloan, Jeri Moore, M. V. Turner, B. J. Richardson, Tim Harley and Vern Wright.

Altrusans attending were Mmes. Marie Fitzgerald, Louise

Law Enforcement Careers Open to 70

AUSTIN — Col. Homer Garrison Jr., director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, announced today that the DPS has job opportunities in the uniformed services for over 70 young men interested in a career in law enforcement.

"The positions include opportunities for advanced education, excellent physical conditioning and a chance to participate in an outstanding public service," Garrison said.

Those who qualify will receive a salary while in training. They will undergo training at the DPS Law Enforcement Academy in Austin, studying such subjects as Texas Highway Law, accident investigation, first aid, professional driving, care and use of firearms, and many others.

Upon graduation from the 16-week training course at the Academy, the trainee is commissioned into one of the DPS uniformed services. Assignment is based on talent and ability as well as the desire to serve in a particular branch. The services include: Highway Patrol, License and Weight, Driver Licensing, and Motor Vehicle Inspection.

"The work of a patrolman is challenging," Garrison pointed out, "but the rewards are many. Each man answers the call to serve with the best of opportunities for participating in the constantly developing effort to curb the dual menace of increasing crime and traffic accidents.

Benefits afforded patrolmen include: two weeks annual vacation; 12 or more holidays each year; 12 days sick leave each year; $10 per month longevity added to his salary at the end of each five years; modern liberal retirement privileges based on age and years of service; traveling expenses as prescribed by law. DPS patrolmen are furnished all uniforms and equipment necessary for performance of

IN CRASHES

Alcohol Causal Factor

AUSTIN — Analysis of fatal general aviation aircraft accidents in the Southwest Region of the Federal Aviation Agency in 1964 shows that in 30.3 percent, alcohol was a contributing or causal factor.

Writing in the September issue of Texas Medicine, official publication of the Texas Medical Association, Dr. Harry L. Gibbons, Regional Flight Surgeon, and Judith L. Plechus, Human Factors Technician, Fort Worth, present their evaluations of the medical and human factors involved in the 86 accidents last year.

Toxicological or postmortem studies, or both, were obtained in 76.7 percent of the cases. Regardless of other known factors, the pilot's blood alcohol level was ascertained if possible.

Of the accidents in which alcohol was involved, 52.9 percent occurred with private rather than commercial or student licensed pilots. Pilots with 201-300 hours of flying time accounted for 5.9 percent of the accidents, while those with more than 1,000 hours accounted for 41.1 percent.

"The mere presence of alcohol in the pilot's body at the time of an accident does not constitute the probable cause; however, there is sufficient literature describing the effects of small dosages of alcohol upon performance in a link trainer and also the effects of alcohol on various parameters of the sensory modalities to convince the most intransigent," the authors state. Alcohol dulls critical judgment and sense of responsibility, frees emotions and instinctive impulses from habitual control, impairs mental function, and interferes with a person's physical control, speech, and sensory perceptions.

When fatal accidents occur, complete postmortem examinations can help to determine causes and associate them with current medical standards to keep persons who are likely to have accidents from flying planes. Such studies also can indicate equipment failure and provide crash injury correlation. Statistics are valuable when legislators consider new laws affecting aviation, and also to show pilots certain types of avoidable hazards, such as drinking and flying.

their duties. "Application for these positions should be made as soon as possible," Garrison stated. "The deadline for applications for our next patrol training school is November 29, 1965. Those who are selected to fill these positions have the privilege of knowing that they stand as the symbol of order in our society, and are respected by all law-abiding citizens."

Full details on qualifications can be obtained from the nearest Department of Public Safety office or any DPS patrolman.

Grand Jury To Hear Boggs Case

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (UPI)—A grand jury — first in Coconino County history — will convene Oct. 7 to hear the case of Donald Boggs, 23, an ex-convict from Ohio accused of killing two new Hampshire men.

Coconino County Superior Judge Laurence Wren Monday ordered the grand jury session at the request of Boggs' attorney, Tom Brooks, and County Atty. Jerry Smith.

The grand jury request was made last week when Boggs appeared for arraignment on two murder charges. He refused to enter a plea pending a decision of the grand jury.

Boggs was accused of killing Robert D. Willis, 23, and Halvor Johnson, 28, both of Newport N.H. Their bodies were found on Labor day near Ash Fork, Ariz.

In a statement to sheriff's deputies, Boggs admitted killing Willis, Johnson and two other men, Warren George Lenker, a Brigham Young University student, and H. N. Flory, 50, San Antonio, Tex. Lenker's body was found near Cedar City, Utah, and Flory was found dead near Lockhart Tex.

Boggs and his girlfriend, Kixie Lee Radcliff, 16, Amesville, Ohio, were arrested here Sept. 8. She faces a hearing before Judge Wren Wednesday. A second juvenile hearing also has been scheduled for the girl after she undergoes psychological tests.

The court earlier ordered Miss Radcliff bound over for trial as an adult on two charges of murder in the deaths of Willis and Johnson, but Judge Wren granted a request by court-appointed attorneys for a second juvenile hearing. The attorneys argued she was not represented by counsel at the first hearing.

Car Thefts Up 12.6% For August

NEW YORK — Thieves stole an estimated 45,386 cars in August — an increase of 12.6 percent over the same month last year, it was announced today by Michael J. Murphy, president of the National Automobile Theft Bureau.

Mr. Murphy said that thefts could be nearly halved overnight if all motorists made a habit of taking keys out of the ignition and locking their cars.

"The latest FBI crime report notes that at least 42 percent of all cars stolen had the key in the ignition or the ignition unlocked. Many other drivers made it almost as easy for the thief by leaving their cars unlocked," he said.

"Couple these statistics with the fact that the highest auto theft rate is among persons in the 15 to 19-year-old age bracket and we see why locking cars is a major auto theft deterrent."

"Most teen-age car thefts are spur of the moment actions," Mr. Murphy said. "Remove car keys and you remove temptation."

Prosecution Begins Case In Slaying

DUNCAN, Okla. (UPI)—Prosecutors began building their case today against Bert Michael Lana, a football coach's son accused of the brutal stabbing of honor student Tama Hallmark.

Lana, 17, faces a trial which probably will last all week and play to a packed court room. He is charged with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill Miss Hallmark, now, 19, daughter of an oil company executive.

An 11-man, 1-woman jury was selected in six hours Monday—somewhat faster than expected. In a move unusual for non-capital cases, Dist. Judge Arthur Marmaduke ordered the jury locked up in hotel rooms for the duration of the trial.

Lana Denies Charge
Asst. Atty. Gen. Jack Swidensky, in his opening statement Monday, vowed the state would prove Lana forced Miss Hallmark at knifepoint to drive from Duncan High School to a seldom traveled dirt road west of Duncan the afternoon of Jan. 6, 1964.

Swidensky said the evidence would show the slight, bespectacled Lana repeatedly stabbed her and left her for dead.

Lana has denied the charge. Swidensky said Miss Hallmark, although left by the tragedy with impaired speech and partially paralyzed right arm, would testify against Lana.

Miss Hallmark picked Lana's picture out of a school annual and identified him as her attacker after several months of treatment at several hospitals.

The defense is expected to challenge her testimony on medical grounds.

Lana was sworn in as a witness, indicating he will testify in his own defense.

Heel Print Found
"Tama's testimony will show Bert Michael Lana jumped over the back seat and started to stab her," Swidensky told the jury.

The prosecutor also said officers found a "unique" heel print at the scene which will link Lana with the crime.
Dr. W. R. Cheatwood, Duncan physician, testified he gave emergency treatment to Miss Hallmark. He said she had about 50 stab wounds, including a large "Y"-shaped cut on her neck, and that the wounds "would likely have caused death, if not treated promptly."

Phone of Tomorrow Gets Small-Town Try

United Press International
SUCCASUNNA, N. J. (UPI) — Mrs. Helen Nero stood by helplessly as she watched her 17-year-old daughter, Louise, sprawled on the living room floor gossiping over the telephone.

She had long since become used to teen-age telephone chatter but now, due to something called progress, Louise was talking to two girl friends, in different places, at the same time.

In another part of town, Warren Barker dialed a special code number on his phone before closing his asphaltting store for the weekend.

Barker, an amateur pilot, and his wife, Martha, then boarded his single-engine plane and flew down to visit his parents in Flanders, N.J.

During the visit, several telephone calls to the asphaltting company were automatically switched to his parents' phone.

A Comparison

Bell engineers compare the new system with a busy executive who gets things done efficiently with the help of a secretary and a filing system.

The executive is a central control unit which coordinates every move the system makes. The secretary is a temporary memory unit which remembers numbers as they're dialed and sends them to the central control.

The filing system is a permanent memory unit which contains nearly 6 million bits of information.

Frederick R. Kappel, chairman of the board of American Telephone and Telegraph Co., said ECO units will be installed at the rate of one a day by 1970. He said every town in the country will have a unit by 2,000.

"Succasunna is only the beginning," he said. "There are a dozen more such offices in various stages of installation right now."

R. C. Myers, an official of New Jersey Bell, said Succasunna was chosen for testing the first ECO unit because it's a small town — 7,000 population — and near the Bell Laboratories in New Jersey.

The telephone, which carried its first precocious words in 1875, has grown up in Succasunna, where it's now following people around.

The Bell Telephone Company installed its first Electronic Central Office (ECO) May 30 in this quiet residential section of Roxbury Township in Morris County. About 200 persons here can now arrange conference calls and transfer incoming calls quicker than an old-time operator could say "number please."

If a subscriber leaves his home or office, he simply dials a code number followed by the telephone number at the place he's going. His calls will follow him.

Residents can arrange business conferences and coffee klatches just as easily by dialing a third party into an existing conversation. The first two persons have to live in Succasunna but the third can be anywhere in the world.

"Both innovations are just wonderful," said Mrs. Nero, wife of Roxbury Mayor Louis C. Nero. "Now, when you want to go out and you're expecting an important call, you don't have to wait around."

Mrs. Barker was just as enthusiastic about her new telephone services. "You can't know how happy I am with it," she said. "Now that I have it, I don't know how I was able to get along before."

Bell, to bring about Succasunna's ultra-modern telephone system, soldered together 50,000 transistors, 170,000 diodes, 189,000 resistors, 18,000 capacitors, 14,400 transformers, 728 relays and 67,600 switches at a cost of more than $100 million. It took 2,000 man hours of

Complete Planning Change Needed To Avoid Crisis

NEW YORK (UPI) — The severe drought that has struck the Northeast and some other sections of the country in the last several years is just a sample of conditions to come and only a complete change in planning water - saving measures can forestall a national water crisis.

That's the word from Erik Jonsson, Mayor of Dallas, Tex., in an interview while in New York to confer with water-industry officials about the Conference on the Super-City of Tomorrow, which will be held in Dallas Sept. 23.

The danger is not that the nation is running out of water, Jonsson said. The real crisis is a shortage of the pipes, pumps, treatment and transmission facilities to bring water from where it is to where it isn't.

"In short," said Jonsson, "we are water rich but facilities poor." The Mayor blamed the shortage on increased demand for water, due to several factors: the population explosion; higher levels of education that promote greater personal hygiene; and rising incomes that result in more and more people being able to afford a host of water-using household conveniences like washing machines, dish washers, garbage disposals, air conditioners, lawn sprinklers, and even backyard swimming pools.

The upcoming Conference on the Super - City of Tomorrow will cover every aspect of city planning, Jonsson said. It is the third such meeting in a series sponsored by the National Water Institute, the American Water Works Association and the Water Pollution Control Federation to alert the nation to the need for long-range planning on urban problems.

In addition to water supply and treatment, subjects embrace transportation, schools, municipal finance and utilities. The first two conferences were held in New York City, Oct. 30, 1963, and Los Angeles, June 24, 1964.

Right now, each person in the average American home uses from 60 to 75 gallons of water a day, Jonsson said. Every year, the amount increases another gallon per person. With these figures in mind, he said, consider that the U.S. population will increase from the present 190 million to 260 million by 1980. That means 70 million more people in 15 years to draw on available water supplies.

So the current drought — felt in many parts of the country — actually may prove to be the proverbial "blessing in disguise," said Jonsson. It may wake up the nation to the need for comprehensive, long-range planning now. Only then, will we have the facilities to meet the water requirements of our exploding population tomorrow, he said.

Jonsson pointed to the severe droughts in Dallas of the early 1950's that staggered the city but resulted in a long-range solution to be carried out in steps to meet the water supply needs of the entire Dallas area through the year 2,000.

Thus, Dallas today has plenty of water. Moreover, the system will be capable of delivering more than 500 million gallons daily to serve a predicted population of almost 2.5 million people by the turn of the century, Jonsson said.

Tabloids Start In Face of NY Paper Strike

NEW YORK (UPI) — Three new tabloid daily newspapers hit the newsstands today in this city in which seven of the eight major dailies are closed. A fourth newspaper was planned.

New Yorkers found on newsstands this morning, in addition to a number of out of town newspapers, the Daily Mirror, the Herald and the New Daily.

The Daily Mirror, not connected with the defunct paper of the same name, said it was beginning publication with a press run of 300,000. A spokesman said it would continue publication as a regular daily on Long Island after settlement of the strike against the New York Times which resulted in the closing of six other metropolitan dailies.

The Herald was published by the Bridgeport Herald Corp., Bridgeport, Conn., and shipped into the city. Today's edition consisted of 24 pages. Its selling price was 15 cents.

The New Daily, an offset publication, hit the street with 16 pages. The masthead listed its selling price as 10 cents and carried the place of publication as Ozone Park, N.Y., a suburban area of Queens. The publisher was not listed.

Another interim newspaper called A.M. was scheduled to go on sale Thursday.

Mercury Mining Boom Hits

DURANGO, Mexico (UPI) — With the price of mercury almost quadrupled in the past 24 months, Durango is undergoing a mercury mining boom, state officials said Monday.

Several new mercury processing plants are planned for the Cabecera and Pedernillo regions, they said, where new deposits are being worked.

The price of mercury has jumped from about $2.50 (U.S.) a pound two months ago to almost $10 a pound now, they said.

Charges Filed In Subsidy Payments

DENVER (UPI) — A suit was filed in U.S. district court today, charging two agencies with arbitrarily taking steps to reduce wheat subsidy payments on a Fort Worth man's eastern Colorado farm.

The suit was filed Monday by James S. Garvey, owner of 4,861 acres of farmland in five counties — Bent, Kiowa, Cheyenne, Lincoln and Crowley.

Named as defendants were the Kiowa County and Colorado Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation committees.

Garvey charged in the suit that the committees reduced the "normal yield" estimates for his farm as a penalty because his holdings were so large.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture had ordered reductions in yield estimates for some farms in eastern Colorado because of adverse weather and other conditions.

Cotton Crop Will Exceed First Estimate

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — The Mexican cotton crop will probably be about 150,000 bales higher than was previously estimated, the National Cotton Producers Union said Monday.

Increasing crop yields in the Texas border state of Tamaulipas and in the northwestern region along the California-Arizona border, were among the chief causes cited by the union.

The union said initial reports coming in from around the country indicated a total national crop in the neighborhood of 2.5 million bales.

At the same time Monday, the organization called again for the creation of a government-business committee to plan and control Mexican cotton production. Such a committee also would be in charge of finding foreign markets for Mexican cotton at optimum prices, in order to maintain stable prices for Mexican cotton.

Mexico now exports close to two-thirds of its total annual cotton production, with the majority of its exported cotton sold of the United States. However, this may change abruptly in the wake of the one-price cotton system passed in Washington last week as part of the Johnson administration's farm bill. The bill sharply lowers U.S. price supports for cotton, by about $9 a bale.

National Window

By LYLE WILSON
United Press International
Only on the television screen at the dinner hour is it permissible to talk out loud about such horrid subjects as armpit odor, nasal drip, stomach acids and the shrinking purchasing power of the U.S. dollar.

The shrinking purchasing power of the U.S. dollar is especially verboten. To mention this shrinkage at any time is to put in doubt the boom-is-here-to-stay magic of the Johnson administration. To put in doubt any of the Johnson administration magic has come to be regarded as an anti-American practice engaged in by extremists, rightists, Republicans, and such nonconformists, not to forget those simple minded citizens who believed still in simple arithmetic.

Chairman Gardner Ackley of the President's Council of Economic Advisers (CEA) was crystal ball gazing only the other day. He gazed right through 1966 and reported that the existing expansion of economic activity would continue through that election year. Ackley and most other economists scoff at fears of current inflation.

Dollar Shrinkage
Some of the simple arithmetic, however, and a great many American housewives are against the economists on that. The simple arithmetic is that the dollar is shrinking in purchasing power, if ever so slowly. Simple minded citizens who apply to this shrinkage the rules of simple arithmetic cannot escape the conclusion that anything that continues to shrink year after year and month after month must be expected to disappear altogether unless the process is reversed.

Housewives measure this dollar shrinkage in terms of the High Cost of Living or HCL. HCL were magic initials nearly 60 years ago just after World War I and since have gone pretty much out of style. But a Louis J. Harris poll of housewives this month was a reminder that the women are HCL conscious. Very much so. The poll reported the women unhappy with rising prices. These women do not get their opinion of the U.S. dollar from Chairman Ackley or, even, from LBJ. They tend to measure their dollars against what happens at the supermarket checkout counter. The Republicans are beginning to get the word. The Sept. 13 newsletter of the Republican Congressional Committee notes the Harris poll finding that 87 per cent of American housewives are concerned about the rising HCL, especially food prices.

Slow Process
The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics has reported the dollar's purchasing power as of July compared with the year 1939. Since 1939 the dollar has lost 56.1 cents in purchasing power. Its July value was 43.9 cents. From 1949 to last July, the dollar cost 26 cents in purchasing power. From July 1959, to last July the shrinkage was 9.3 cents. In one year from July 1964 to July 1965 the loss in purchasing power was 1.6 cents. This is a slow process, painless and useful for stoking the fires of the economy to make good on political assurances that the boom is here to stay.

That is, this process is painless unless it is tagged as contributing to the rising HCL. Under those circumstances, the politicians most likely to be accused of responsibility for a shrinking dollar had best take to the woods or to the storm cellars. And hear this:

The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported that more than 1 million workers would receive cost-of-living pay increases of from one to three cents an hour on the basis of price hikes noted in July. If that is not an instance of the effect of currency inflation, someone in LBJ's stable of economists should explain what it should be called.

DRINKING TEAM
LUTON, England (UPI)—A team of pub stalwarts thrashed a group of teetotalers Sunday 20 to 1 in a soccer match. The drinkers' team was recruited from regulars at the Oddfellow Arms, a local pub. However, last minute changes in the lineup were made necessary when two team members stayed out on an all-night party.

"I had no idea they would be so fit and fast," said Larry Simpson, captain of the abstainers, over a post-game glass of milk.

SCIENCE SKETCHES

THAT ACHING BACK may run in the family. In one Columbus, Ohio family, reports Ohio State University, the father and 11 of his 12 children suffer from similar backaches. Some people inherit a structurally weak back and are warned to go easy when putting around the house. Treatment is time-consuming and not always successful.

RUNNING even a medium-sized steel plant is an expensive proposition. These figures are given by the American Iron and Steel Institute for one month's operation: electricity: $240,000; gas: $249,000; water: $45,000; telephone: $4,400; fuel oil: $64,000; steam: $55,000; compressed air: $13,000; oxygen: $60,000.

OXYGEN THERAPY for sick horses is as easy as putting on the feedbag. Horses suffering from respiratory difficulties — often caused by a change in climate or racing in damp evening air — are given oxygen by means of a mask developed by Chemtron, Chicago. The plastic device fits over their noses.

Foreign Commentary

By K. C. THALER... LONDON (UPI) — Present rumblings in the Kremlin reflect the Soviet leadership's growing uneasiness over worsening relations with Peking, mounting domestic economic troubles and disarray in the Warsaw pact alignment. It has long been clear that the chances of reconciliation between Moscow and Peking are virtually nil while Mao Tse-tung's regime is pushing with increasing determination for nuclear power status and leadership of the Communist and unaligned camps.

Red China's aggressive posture in Asia has helped to range Russia in some cases — however reluctantly — on the side of the United States, thus supplying Peking with further ammunition to attack Moscow for playing the "imperialists" game. For Moscow it is a very grave problem.

Domestic Problems The domestic front, too, presents the Kremlin leadership with problems of extreme gravity right now. The harvest is once more bad and recent reports suggest that things are far worse than had been expected even a few weeks ago. Moscow has placed orders in the West for nearly 10 million tons of wheat, at the cost of about half a billion dollars. Now it looks as if Russia will have to buy another three million tons.

The powerful Central Committee is meeting in Moscow next month to decide on emergency measures. They may involve drastic changes in the economy and some changes in the governmental setup — not necessarily on the top level, at least not yet. The Kremlin leadership appears to be reluctantly inching toward the capitalist idea that nothing short of incentives can promote a significant boost to the economic and agricultural effort.

Finally, the latest comings and goings in Moscow of East European leaders and a surprise trip to Warsaw of party chief Leonid Brezhnev have spotlighted the Kremlin's growing preoccupation with its East European posture.

Realign Pact With Romania firmly set on an independent course and other satellites anxious to widen their political and economic contacts with the West, Moscow is apparently about to revamp the Warsaw Pact alignment.

There has been Russian talk of "strengthening" the pact, but it looks as if Russia may in effect have to loosen it, at least politically, to allow for the growing tendency toward greater national independence among the East Europeans.

Russia, which has dominated the alliance in the past and has been in full control of its military side, may now have to allow a bigger say to some of her partners. Already their economic alignment in Comecon, the Communist counterpart to the Western Common Market, has all but petered out because of the refusal of some of the East European nations to merge their economic plans with those of Russia and their respective neighbors.

The Kremlin leadership has lot on its plate.

Rambling while, wondering whatever happened to the forward pass

In two games the Harvesters have passed 13 times, completed 3 for 38 yards. But, it hasn't been the passers, it's been the receivers with four throws being in the hands of intended receivers and dropped.

Too, the Harvesters pass protection hasn't been the best in the world with quarterbacks Larry Daniels and Roy Harper being thrown for losses five times.

A Different Team

And didn't Pampa look like a different team, especially the offensive line, who blocked like they were afraid they wouldn't be playing again.

Defensively the Harvesters must improve, although penalties didn't help Friday night.

Remember what coach Eural Ramsey said at the start of the season, "If we can improve every game, we're gonna beat somebody."

You can look for that to happen Friday night at Amarillo.

New National Amateur champion Bob Murphy Jr. can be thankful for extra clubs, and the fact he didn't have any.

Murphy edged Oklahoma State golfer Bob Dickson Jr. by one shot for the title. But, Dickson has four penalty shots in the tournament for carrying an extra club in his bag the first two holes of the second round.

The penalty was two strokes per hole and Dickson turned himself in.

Tickets to six more games for West-Texas State are on sale at 27 outlets in the Panhandle with Richard Drug the Pampa outlet.

West Texas meets Bowling Green Saturday in the first home encounter.

All-Americans are already being named and Tech's Donny Anderson is right at the head of the list.

Anderson has been picked in the current issue of Sport magazine in its 19th annual All-America preview football team.

Also named were Gary Snook of Iowa, Mike Garrett of USC and Jim Grabowski of Illinois. Carl McAdams of Oklahoma was named to the defensive team as Charley Brown of Syracuse.

There must be something in a name.

Take Joe Don Looney for instance who has driven every coach he has had that way by his no practice and after hours antics.

But he has been a star everywhere he's been. Sunday he ran 78-yards for Detroit for a touchdown.

It said he is Detroit owner Bill Ford's baby and stands no chance of being sold, over the objections of coach Harry Gilmer.

Jack Nicklaus' analysis of Gary Player after South African won the World Series of Golf noted that Gary has been playing more boldly this year. "He goes for the flag now on every shot," said Jack, "which wasn't like Gary at all. He used to play it safe and finish second."

Harper Named As Harvester Of Week

ROY HARPER ... does the job

In the nine years that Pampa and Palo Duro have been playing football against each other the Harvesters have never won.

But if Pampa's shuttling quarterback Roy Harper has anything to do with it that nine game losing streak will be broken in this year.

Harper, one of the Harvesters' two quarterbacks, was named Harvester-of-the-Week by coach Eural Ramsey.

The 167-pound senior has run the Harvesters' like a real field general, passed well and run well, when he has had to.

Harper was honored today at a luncheon by the Pampa Jaycees.

The six-foot signal caller was chosen for the honor for his attitude in practice and his all-around play in the Pampa-Wichita Falls game.

Torre Fined, Suspended For Bumping Umpire

MILWAUKEE (UPI)—A repentant Joe Torre was riding the Milwaukee Braves' bench with a two-day suspension and $100 fine today because he bumped an umpire during a dispute over a punt that made San Francisco's Hal Lanier look like a modern-day Ty Cobb.

National League President Warren Giles levied the punishment Monday because of Torre's run-in with umpire Bill Williams. The incident took place Sunday in a game won by the Giants 4-2, and for all practical purposes, put the Braves out of the pennant race.

Torre was contrite and wished "I could undo what I did, but I can't." Torre said of the fine and suspension, "I just saw red," he said.

Torre missed Monday's game against the Philadelphia Phillies and will have to sit out tonight's game with the Los Angeles Dodgers.

American Roundup

Terry, Gonzales On Carpet for Baseball Brawl

By United Press International The American League may have its own bat-swinging incident to rival the recent debate involving Juan Marichal and Johnny Roseboro of the National League.

Pedro Gonzalez of the Cleveland Indians and Larry Sherry of the Detroit Tigers were the latest combatants in the late-summer baseball heat, and as usual only a cloudy picture exists of what really happened.

The incident developed in the fifth inning of Monday night's game at Cleveland, won in 14 innings by the Indians 5-4. Before order was restored, almost all players from both teams were on the field.

Sherry, a relief pitcher, touched off the brawl when he came close to Gonzalez with two consecutive pitches. On both occasions, the ball hit Gonzalez' bat as he darted back from the plate.

After the second pitch, the Indian second baseman charged out to the mound with his bat in hand. At this point, the stories differ sharply, depending on which dugout you're in.

Sherry, who said he didn't think he was throwing too close, claimed that Gonzalez hit him in the back with his bat. Gonzalez, normally a mild-mannered man, denied he struck the pitcher.

Asked why he went to the mound, Gonzalez said: "Ball-players have a right to make a living and it's a dangerous situation when a pitcher comes too close to a batter with a ball."

The Indians were more or less nonchalant about the whole affair, referring to it as a minor dispute. However, the Tigers were irate and claimed that there should be regulations to prohibit such incidents where a ballplayer can be seriously injured.

Gonzalez was ejected from the game and a full report is being sent to American League president Joe Cronin before any further action is taken.

In the only other A.L. games played Monday, the league-leading Minnesota Twins lost a chance to close in on their first American League pennant by losing to Kansas City 8-2 and the Baltimore Orioles kept their slim hopes alive with a 4-2 victory over the California Angels.

THOSE NEW YORK FANS

Fans Booning Hurts Mike

By MILTON RICHMAN NEW YORK (UPI)—Quickest fall down laughing is to tell him that New York fans have the reputation of being among the fairest in the country.

When he laughs at that statement, he does it kind of funny. With tears in his eyes.

Taliaferro is a 23-year-old second year quarterback with the New York Jets, or rather he's trying to be. It isn't easy operating at the same position as Joe Namath, the $400,000 Golden Boy, under the most ideal circumstances and they were anything but that when the Jets opened their home season at Shea Stadium last Saturday night.

Anything Taliaferro did against the Kansas City Chiefs was wrong as far as the crowd of 53,698 was concerned.

The fans booed him unmercifully just on general principle, it seemed.

He Felt Betrayed

"It's hard to describe exactly the way I felt. I know it certainly didn't make me feel good by any means. I felt as if I was doing the best I could and it wasn't appreciated. It would be the same way anyone else in any different occupation would feel, I imagine."

"How would a doctor or lawyer feel if they were doing their very best and suddenly they heard themselves being booed? How would a butcher, a baker or anyone else feel? That's the way I felt. About this big."

Taliaferro held his thumb and forefinger no more than a quarter of an inch apart.

"I realize better than anyone else that I didn't have a great night out there," he said. "I felt it was an off-night. But it was just one night, not an entire season."

The rather quiet, 6-foot-2, 205-pound Taliaferro comes from Dallas and always had heard New York was the city of opportunity. He was drafted by both the Jets and the Giants so no matter whom he signed with, New York was the place he was going to play his professional football.

He also always heard New York fan were exceptionally fair-minded.

The first time Taliaferro began to wonder about that was two years ago when he was a spectator at Yankee Stadium watching the football Giants play one of their games there.

"I heard them boo a man that day I always had a lot of respect for, Y. A. Tittle," he said. "They also booed Allie Sherman. If they booed Y. A. I suppose they'll boo anybody."

"That's right, Mike, they will. This is the city where they even booed Babe Ruth and Joe DiMaggio on occasion.

Taliaferro might find that a little hard to understand except that no city in the world has any real monopoly on vocal criticism.

For that matter, historians say that mighty Caesar had some rough days in Rome. And that was long before they ever paid six-figure bonuses to any quarterback.

Texas Women's Amateur Starts

DALLAS (UPI)—Play begins today first round of the Texas Women's Amateur Golf Championship.

Jeanie Butler of Harlingen and Kathy Ahern of Dallas tied for medalist honors in the qualifying round Monday with 2-over-par 75s. Mrs. Paul Hendrix of Tyler shot the third best round, a 76, and Mrs. Jack Mungler of Dallas was fourth at 79.

A field of 145 qualified for the match play competition in three flights.

Miss Butler is one of four former champions of the tournament. The other three, Mrs. John Rothmell of Houston, Mrs. Frank Goldwaite of Fort Worth and Mrs. Frances Rich of Dallas, also qualified for the championship flight.

Giants Continue To Stretch Lead For NL Pennant

By United Press International Masanori Murakami, the lend-lease southpaw from Japan, is silencing the scoffers who claimed San Francisco's pitching staff wouldn't hold up in the long stretch drive for the National League pennant.

Cincinnati had two men on base and none out when Giants manager Herman Franke called on Murakami Monday night, and the 180-pound fireman quickly doused the threat to preserve a 4-0 shutout victory and eliminate one more would-be contender from the pennant race.

The Philadelphia Phils, who beat the Milwaukee Braves 4-1 in a day game, were eliminated from contention by the Giants' victory. In the only other National League game, the Pittsburgh Pirates throttled the New York Mets 10-0.

In the American League, Kansas City defeated the leading Minnesota Twins 8-2. Baltimore downed California 4-2 and Cleveland beat Detroit 5-4 in a 14-inning marathon.

Murakami has been a good luck charm for the Giants as they have rolled up a phenomenal record to gain a four-game lead over the second-place Los Angeles Dodgers, who were idle Monday.

The smiling Japanese has contributed to seven victories and taken part in only one defeat in his last 10 appearances.

Against Cincinnati, a long fly ball by Deron Johnson in the sixth looked like trouble for the Giants, but Murakami's luck held out and Jay Alou grabbed the ball in right centerfield.

Murakami struck out four, allowed one hit and walked none during his four-inning stint on the mound to preserve Bob Bolin's 12th victory against five defeats.

SWC Teams Spend 'Afternoon At the Movies'

By United Press International It was "Afternoon at the Movies" for most Southwest Conference football teams Monday.

With the best opening in years, six wins against two losses, the films of Saturday's lidlifter on the SWC's 51st campaign was pleasing to most.

All except Texas Christian and Texas A&M, of course, since they were the losers.

Baylor coach John Bridgers paused long enough to count two starters out of action for the Washington battle coming up. And Texas Tech coach J. T. King and Texas mentor Darrell Royal kept sneaking glances at the circle marked around Sept. 25 on the calendar.

That's Saturday, the day Tech and Texas meet head-on in Austin's Memorial Stadium before a sell-out crowd. The day conference play officially gets underway.

Two Bear Starters Out King and Royal were just apprehensive. Bridgers was dismayed.

Baylor fullback Charlie Wilson and split end Paul Becton received knee injuries in the 14-8 upset over Auburn and will be on the sidelines indefinitely. And indefinitely is long enough for the dangerous Washington Huskies to move into Waco. Bridgers said either Clint Mitchell or Mike Wayne Marshall will move up in the fullback spot and George Cheshire, who caught a TD pass from quarterback Terry Southall against Auburn, will move to the first unit in the split end slot.

Back to the movies, Texas Christian drew a horror show. The Horned Frogs reviewed the e34-14 mauling they got from highly rated Nebraska last week. Coach Aba Martin quickly put away the film and sent the Frogs onto the practice field for a no-contact session in preparation for the Florida State Seminoles.

Martin was not so much displeased with his squad's play as he was awed by the power Nebraska displayed in the rout. He said the Cornhuskers looked No. 1 in the nation until he saw something better.

Rain Drives Aggies Inside Texas A&M coach Gene Stallings said-the Aggies came out of the 21-0 loss to Louisiana State in good shape and all hands were expected to be ready for Georgia Tech in Atlanta Saturday.

Rambling while wondering whatever happened to the forward pass

In two games the Harvesters have passed 13 times, completed 3 for 38 yards. But, it hasn't been the passers, it's been the receivers with four throws being in the hands of intended receivers and dropped.

Too, the Harvesters pass protection hasn't been the best in the world with quarterbacks Larry Daniels and Roy Harper being thrown for losses five times.

A Different Team

And didn't Pampa look like a different team, especially the offensive line, who blocked like they were afraid they wouldn't be playing again.

Defensively the Harvesters must improve, although penalties didn't help Friday night.

Remember what coach Eural Ramsey said at the start of the season, "If we can improve every game, we're gonna beat somebody."

You can look for that to happen Friday night at Amarillo.

New National Amateur champion Bob Murphy Jr. can be thankful for extra clubs, and the fact he didn't have any.

Murphy edged Oklahoma State golfer Bob Dickson Jr. by one shot for the title. But, Dickson has four penalty shots in the tournament for carrying an extra club in his bag the first two holes of the second round.

The penalty was two strokes per hole and Dickson turned himself in.

Tickets to six more games for West Texas State are on sale at 27 outlets in the Panhandle with Richard Drug the Pampa outlet.

West Texas meets Bowling Green Saturday in the first home encounter.

All-Americans are already being named and Tech's Donny Anderson is right at the head of the list.

Anderson has been picked in the current issue of Sport magazine in its 19th annual All-America preview football team.

Also named were Gary Snook of Iowa, Mike Garrett of USC and Jim Grabowski of Illinois. Carl McAdams of Oklahoma was named to the defensive team as was Charley Brown of Syracuse.

There must be something in a name.

Take Joe Don Looney for instance who has driven every coach he has had that way by his no practice and after hours antics.

But he has been a star everywhere he's been. Sunday he ran 78-yards for Detroit for a touchdown.

It said he is Detroit owner Bill Ford's baby and stands no chance of being sold, over the objections of coach Harry Gilmer.

Jack Nicklaus' analysis of Gary Player after South African won the World Series of Golf noted that Gary has been playing more boldly this year. "He's goes for the flag now on every shot," said Jack, "which wasn't like Gary at all. He used to play it safe and finish second."

ROY HARPER ... does the job

Harper Named As Harvester Of Week

In the nine years that Pampa and Palo Duro have been playing football against each other the Harvesters have never won.

But if Pampa's shuttling quarterback Roy Harper has anything to do with it that nine game losing streak will be broken this year.

Harper, one of the Harvesters' two quarterbacks, was named Harvester-of-the-Week by coach Eural Ramsey.

The 167-pound senior has run the Harvesters' like a real field general, passed well and run well, when he has had to.

Harper was honored today at a luncheon by the Pampa Jaycees.

The six-foot signal caller was chosen for the honor for his attitude in practice and his all-around play in the Pampa-Wichita Falls game.

Torre Fined, Suspended For Bumping Umpire

MILWAUKEE (UPI)—A repentant Joe Torre was riding the Milwaukee Braves' bench with a two-day suspension and $100 fine today because he bumped an umpire during a dispute over a punt that made San Francisco's Hal Lanier look like a modern-day Ty Cobb.

National League President Warren Giles levied the punishment Monday because of Torre's run-in with umpire Bill Williams. The incident took place Sunday in a game won by the Giants 4-2, and for all practical purposes, put the Braves out of the pennant race.

Torre was contrite and wished "I could undo what I did, but I can't."

"I deserved it," Torre said of the fine and suspension. "I just saw red," he said.

Torre missed Monday's game against the Philadelphia Phillies and will have to sit out tonight's game with the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Terry, Gonzales On Carpet for Baseball Brawl

By United Press International
The American League may have its own bat-swinging incident to rival the recent debacle involving Juan Marichal and Johnny Roseboro of the National League.

Pedro Gonzalez of the Cleveland Indians and Larry Sherry of the Detroit Tigers were the latest combatants in the late-summer baseball heat, and as usual only a cloudy picture exists of what really happened.

The incident developed in the fifth inning of Monday night's game at Cleveland, won in 14 innings by the Indians 5-4. Before order was restored, almost all players from both teams were on the field.

Sherry, a relief pitcher, touched off the brawl when he came close to Gonzalez with two consecutive pitches. On both occasions, the ball hit Gonzalez' bat as he darted back from the plate.

After the second pitch, the Indian second baseman charged out to the mound with his bat in hand. At this point, the stories differ sharply, depending on which dugout you're in.

The fans booed him unmercifully just on general principle, it seemed.

They Wanted Namath
For one thing, the quarterback they came to see was Namath.

For another, the struggling Taliaferro wasn't exactly a ball of fire while he was directing the team. He hit on only four of 12 passes for a paltry 24 yards as the Jets lost 14-10.

From the way things went, however, he could have connected on 20 for 20 and there was no guarantee that the crowd wouldn't quit calling for Namath, who finally was brought in.

Taliaferro, who helped lead Illinois to the Big Ten and Rose Bowl championships during his senior year, doesn't blame Namath, even indirectly for the bone-chilling avalanche of boos—which descended around is head.

"That's the farthest thing from my mind," he said, while still trying to find some reason for the vocal abuse he took as he relaxed in his apartment.

"I was never booed in college. I'm sure I must have been booed before, but I was never so aware of it as I was on Saturday night," he went on.

He Felt Betrayed
"It's hard to describe exactly the way I felt. I know it certainly didn't make me feel good by any means. I felt as if I was doing the best I could and it wasn't appreciated.

Murakami struck out four, allowed one hit and walked none during his four-inning stint on the mound to preserve Bob Bolin's 12th victory against five defeats.

Against Cincinnati, a long fly ball by Deron Johnson in the sixth looked like trouble for the Giants, but Murakami's luck held out and Jay Alam grabbed the ball in right centerfield.

SWC Teams Spend 'Afternoon At The Movies'

By United Press International
It was "Afternoon at the Movies" for most Southwest Conference football teams Monday.

With the best opening in years, six wins against two losses, the films of Saturday's lidlifter on the SWC's 51st campaign was pleasing to most.

All except Texas Christian and Texas A&M, of course, since they were the two losers.

Baylor coach John Bridgers paused long enough to count two starters out of action for the Washington battle coming up. And Texas Tech coach J. T. King and Texas mentor Darrell Royal dept sneaking glances at the circle marked around Sept. 25 on the calendar.

That's Saturday, the day Tech and Texas meet head-on in Austin's Memorial Stadium before a sell-out crowd. The day conference play officially gets underway.

Two Bear Starters Out
King and Royal were just apprehensive. Bridgers was dismayed.

Baylor fullback Charlie Wilson and split end Paul Becton received knee injuries in the 14-8 upset over Auburn and will be on the sidelines indefinitely. And indefinitely is long enough for the dangerous Washington Huskies to move into Waco.

Bridgers said either Clint Mitchell or Mike Wayne Marshall will move up in the fullback spot and George Cheshire, who caught a TD pass from quarterback Terry Southall against Auburn, will move to the first unit in the split end slot.

Back to the movies, Texas Christian drew a horror show.

The Horned Frogs reviewed the 63-14 mauling they got from highly rated Nebraska last week. Coach Aba Martin quickly put away the film and sent the Frogs onto the practice field for a no-contact session in preparation for the Florida State Seminoles.

Martin was not so much displeased with his squad's play as he was awed by the power Nebraska displayed in the rout. He said the Cornhuskers looked No. 1 in the nation until he saw something better.

Rain Drives Aggies Inside
Texas A&M coach Gene Stallings said the Aggies came out of the 21-0 loss to Louisiana State in good shape and all hands were expected to be ready for Georgia Tech in Atlanta Saturday.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself no more, no less. It is thus consistent with the Human Relations Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Court Hazy on Individual Rights

When the Supreme Court convenes Oct. 4 to begin its 177th year, it can look back on one of the most important and certain one of the stormiest decades in its history.

It was a decade replete with landmark decisions that signaled revolution in equal legal rights for Negroes, in stricter rules for treatment of persons accused of crime and in reapportionment of state legislatures.

The recent Court term marked the end of the stormy decade that began in 1954 with Brown v. Board of Education of Topeka, the decision that discarded the old "separate-but-equal" doctrine of public schools for whites and Negroes, a doctrine on which segregationist laws rested.

That decision was followed by others, such as Baker v. Carr (1962), in which the Court said the judiciary could enter the hitherto forbidden area of apportionment of state legislatures, and Gideon v. Wainwright (1963) and Escobedo v. Illinois (1964), extending the right of counsel to indigent defendants in state criminal cases.

For Americans of a younger generation, it came as a surprise that nine justices on the Court, so removed from the Washington limelight, could have such forceful impact on the nation's life. Critics accused the Court of legislating Negroes' rights that were the proper business of the states, of crippling police efforts to suppress the rising national crime rate, of fostering an anti-religious atmosphere in decisions striking down state-sponsored prayer in public schools and of engaging in politics rather than law in requiring state legislatures to be reapportioned on the basis of population.

Despite the criticism, the Court in its 1964-65 term reaffirmed — usually by heavy majorities — its determination to resist what it considered state efforts to dilute or deny equal rights for Negroes. It also struck down federal and state actions which it felt unconsciously infringed on individual rights to privacy, to a fair trial, to unfettered postal service and to nonjudicial censorship of movies.

The Court upheld, on the other hand, the State Department ban on travel to Cuba. It held that the rule excluding illegally seized evidence from state criminal prosecutions was not retroactive, and it said Congress intended to include under the antitrust laws labor unions which engaged in coercive agreements with management. Among the court's major decisions were two upholding the constitutionality of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. The typical civil rights case involved state laws allegedly discriminating against Negroes, but the two major decisions involved a federal law allegedly discriminating against motel and restaurant owners who refused to serve Negroes.

The restaurant owners in the cases, Heart of Atlanta Motel v. U.S. and Katzenbach v. McClung, argued that Title II of the Act abridged their property and individual rights in that it required them to serve Negroes either because the motel generally relied on interstate travelers (Heart of Atlanta) or the restaurant used substantial amounts of food shipped in interstate commerce (McClung).

In opinions written by Justice Tom C. Clark, the Court unanimously held that both provisions of the act were valid as exercises of Congress' sweeping powers under the commerce clause in Article I of the Constitution, empowering Congress to regulate commerce among the states. The Court found that there was nothing new about such "public accommodations" laws, that 32 states had them and that the "inkeepers rule" in old common-law in England required inkeepers to accept all "unobjectionable" travelers who sought lodging in good faith.

However, the unanimity of the Court in those cases was shattered in Hamm v. City of Rock Hill, a case involving a civil rights worker convicted for trying to desegregate a lunch counter. The five-member majority of the Court, in an opinion also written by Clark, held that Congress intended the Civil Rights Act of 1964 to abate, or dismiss, all such pending sit-in prosecutions. The act "substitutes a right for a crime," Clark said. Thus the Hamm prosecution and uncounted hundreds of similar cases pending at the time the Act was passed were dismissed.

The four dissenters (Justices Black, Harlan, Stewart and White) charged that their colleagues were stretching the law, that a federal statute required that no law of Congress would abate a pending criminal case unless it specifically said so and that the Act was silent on that point. Justice White said that "had Congress intended to ratify massive disobedience to the law, so often attended by violence, I feel sure it would have said so in unmistakable language."

The court can't seem to distinguish between public and private, between individual rights and equality before the law. How can the rest of the country pursue a consistent path of respect for individual liberty when the Supreme Court refuses to make the distinction between a man's right to equal treatment by the government and his right to determine the use of his private property and fortune?

A Public Concern

Most of the talk about the population explosion and most of the action, including the government's turnabout from its former hands-off attitude toward the subject of birth control, has been occasioned by alarming statistics from the underdeveloped nations.

But even in the wealthy and spacious United States, the economic and social effects of unrestrained reproduction are becoming more and more evident. (With the highest birth rate of any industrialized nation, the U.S. population is now increasing by 7,200 a day.)

Twenty-five years ago, the rate of illegitimate births in this country was seven for every 1,000 unmarried women of child-bearing age. By 1960 this had tripled to 22.1 per 1,000.

This rise has been mirrored in the skyrocketing cost of the government's Aid to Dependent Children program, much of which involves the children of unwed mothers.

Ten years ago there were 2.2 million ADC cases. There are now more than four million. In 1955, the cost of supporting them was $639 million. This year it will surpass $1.5 billion.

As one writer has pointed out, even the censors and moralists are wavering in their opposition to the publicly subsidized dissemination of birth control information. They are beginning to realize that the population problem is hitting them right in the pocketbook, even if they remain unmoved by the erosion of human values that it entails.

Some traditional opposition remains. The Roman Catholic archbishops of the United States recently attacked proposals to promote birth control through the administration's antipovertry program — not so much from the standpoint of morality but as "an invasion of the sacred right of privacy."

A thought for the day: British author H. G. Wells said: "Human history becomes more and more a race between education and catastrophe."

Presidential 'Legislative Sleeper' to Furnish $50 Million Annually To Colleges to Assist in Solving Urban, Suburban Problems

ROBERT ALLEN

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — President Johnson is maneuvering through Congress another "legislative sleeper" being privately hailed by his aides as even more important than the recently-passed State Technical Service Act.

Known as the Community Service Programs section of the President's higher education bill, the revolutionary proposal is designed to extend the role of the nation's universities, faculties and student bodies into community and national affairs on a scale never before attempted.

Like the State Technical Service Act, which the President publicly labeled the "sleeper" of the 89th Congress, the Community Service Program is patterned after the Agricultural Extension Service Act.

It provides $50 million annually in federal grants to universities and colleges the next five years to launch programs to assist in solving urban and suburban problems. Under guidelines to be laid down by the Office of Education of the Department of Health, Education & Welfare, educators will be encouraged to exert a liberal influence in their communities by giving them federal funds to hold conferences, seminars and teach-ins to discuss and work out methods of combating the social ills and problems of the growing big cities and their suburbs.

Emphasizing the sense of mission behind the administration's new educational project, Vice President Hubert Humphrey told a Washington meeting of educators:

"If we are going to solve the problems of poverty and race that are plaguing our cities, the universities and their faculties must become involved in the community around them. They must quit playing games and get into the battle.

"Any nation that believes in justice must see that those on the bottom receive more than those on top. This Community Service Program will use the great influence of the universities to help bring this about."

BEHIND THE SCENES—According to White House aides, the new educational program is the brainchild of HEW Secretary John Gardner, who helped sell it to the President while serving as chairman of the White House Conference on Education before his recent cabinet appointment.

Working closely with Fred H. Harrington, Wisconsin University president, Gardner reportedly developed the idea of projecting the influence of universities into the communities while president of Carnegie Corporation.

Both Gardner and Harrington view the proposed Community Service Program as a means of encouraging colleges and universities to transmit directly to the people the knowledge and

Did you know that before the African diamond fields were discovered in the 19th century, pearls were considered the most highly valued jewels in the world? The odds against nature creating two pearls with identical combinations of size, shape, hue and luster are so astronomical they cannot even be calculated.

Today's smile: A businessman told one of his junior executives: "I'd give a thousand dollars to anyone who would do my worrying for me." The ambitious young man said he'd be glad to assume the chore, asking: "Where's the thousand?" The businessman said: "That's your first worry."

One of our Southern readers suggests that we start a campaign to replace with something new that old hackneyed phrase "have a nice week-end." Of course it's a tired, trite expression, but it is gradually being replaced in some sections of the country by the initials "TGFF," which means "Thank God For Friday." That's not surprising at a time when most government agencies and a lot of other things that affect our daily lives are identified solely by their initials.

Thoughts while shaving: London newspapers usually treat nobility with respect, but several of the livelier ones sometimes refer to Sir Laurence Olivier as "Sir Larry." . . . Have you noticed in the automobile ads that none of the auto makers are manufacturing today's car? If you believe their ads, each of them is manufacturing tomorrow's car today. . . . A friend in the Northeast tells us the great drought there had an unusual effect on trees and shrubs. Due to the lack of water the plants lost an entire year's growth. Since nurseries price trees and shrubs according to size, they aren't making much profit this year, although they managed to keep the stock healthy. . . . Maybe Yale men won't like to be reminded of it, but Old Eli's college at New Haven was founded by Harvard men. Nine of the ten ministers who met at Bradford, Conn., in 1700 to found the college were Harvard grads. . . . Hearing the Mills Brothers sing "The Glowworm" on an old recording recalled that Paul Lincke's composition was the all-time best seller of sheet music as an instrumental piece. Since its publication in 1902, more than 4 million copies have been sold. . . . All of which makes us wonder how much sheet music is sold today. . . . The Los Angeles (Calif.) TIMES headlined a story: "Technically Speaking, Don't — If You Want To Communicate." Don't what? Wit and Whimsy Politicians make strange bedfellows, but they soon get used to the same bunk.

An insurance company issued a life insurance policy in the name of Samuel Wilson. Premiums were paid promptly for several years but suddenly stopped. After a few delinquent notices the company received this reply: "Please cancel the insurance on Sam. We can't pay anymore. He died last May, Mrs. S. Wilson."

EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS

Writer Says MD's Haven't Been Able to Protect Him

By SAM CAMPBELL Business Editor

I know a lot of "conservative" medical doctors. They are opposed to socialized medical programs. Yet when you get them right down to brass tacks, they do admit that what they call the "public" ought to be protected against quackery.

One MD, a very conservative, conscientious fellow — the country type who up until 10 years ago charged only $3 for a house call — went so far as to say that he believes the "public" should be protected against chiropractors.

A Law?

He thinks there "ought to be a law." I sure hope this so-called conservative doesn't get his way. For Saturday I was lifting a folding table out of the car, I turned in just such a way that my back flipped out of place. This was painful, but not exactly a surprise. It has happened a couple of times before.

The first time I carried the pain for quite awhile. Then I got desperate. I asked the advice of a friend who was a chiropractor. He had me lie on a table while he did some yanking and pushing. When he got through, believe it or not, the pain was gone.

I told the MD, "Imagination," he said.

About a year later, I rolled over in bed. My feet hung up in the blankets. That was enough to trip the trick back. The pain was so acute, I sent my wife over to the neighbor's to borrow crutches so I could hobble from the car to the chiropractor's office.

Walked Out

When I walked out of the office, however, I carried the crutches over my shoulder. Imagination?

If so, I wish I could conjure up the same kind of cure right now. For here I have sat for two days, unable to think about anything except this crippled back. It happens that my chiropractor is out of town on a holiday.

Of course, I could look up an MD — settle for a pain pill and hot pad. But no, I would rather put up with the pain than indulge in such medical quackery. I will wait for the chiropractor to come down out of the hills.

In the meantime, I shall rejoice that my "conservative" doctor friends haven't succeeded in protecting me legally against the chiropractor whose treatments heretofore have worked so well for me.

Really, I'm in a very delicate situation. No only must I sweat out the arrival of the chiropractor, I am impelled also to make a philosophical decision as to which branch of the healing arts is most fraught with quackery. One thing for sure, I dare not ask my back: it's prejudiced.

Anti-Poverty Wages (Weekly Labor Forecast and Review)

Can you blame the public when it looks at the federal anti-poverty program with skepticism, when it sees wage rates and salaries paid to workers and officials hired by this federal program far exceeding compensation paid for comparable jobs in other fields?

Here is just one illustration of this disparity: For eight weeks, Project Headstart officials in New York City tried to hire 100 nurses to work in the new anti-poverty program but none applied. But last week, 10 nurses applied within an hour. Why? The hourly pay of nurses was raised from $2.65 to $5 and $6.

The nurses will work in the summer at special pre-school nurseries set up under the anti-poverty program for four-year-old children in poor neighborhoods.

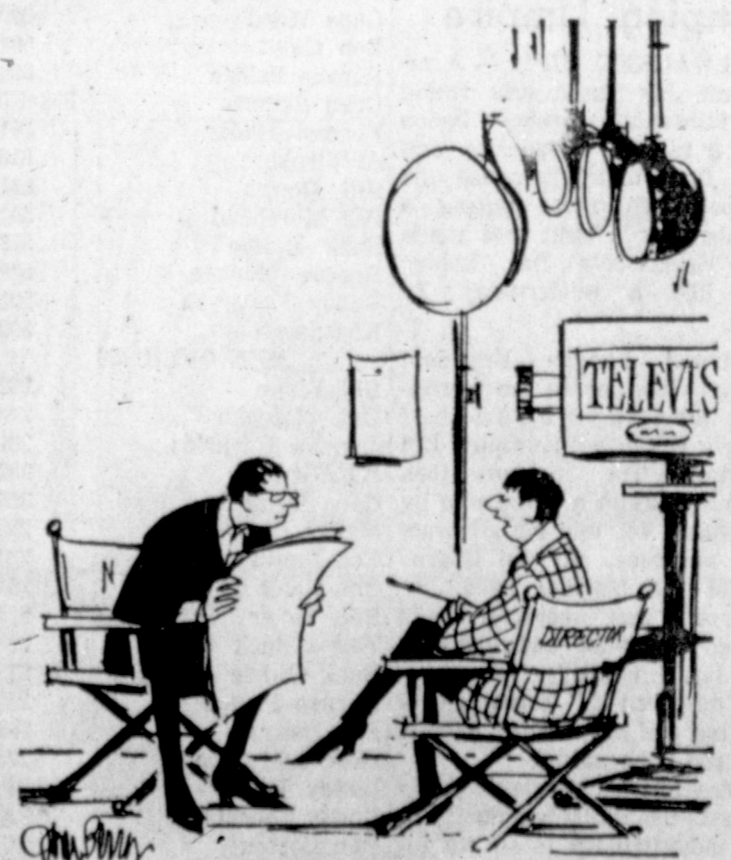

Teachers participating in this program will receive from $8 to $9.20 an hour. For the 25 hours of work per week, this means salaries of from $200 to $230 per week.

The $8 an hour rate — $200 for a 25-hour-week — will be paid to 900 teachers in the New York board of education's 148 "head start" schools. Supervisors will get $9.20 an hour.

When office workers, service industry workers, and factory and construction workers see these exaggerated hourly pay rates, they say to themselves: "If government can pay these wage scales, why can't private employers do the same?"

The result will be extreme dissatisfaction, resulting in labor-management discord and strikes.
