Who's Ho's Pal in Viet Nam? Russia or China?

By LEON DENNEK Foreign News Analyst UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. — (NEA)—How close are peace negotiations in Viet Nam?

China's growing isolation even in the Communist world is therefore believed to be the reason for President Johnson's accelerated global peace offensive.

epin embarked on his mission after several weeks of negotiations with Nguyen Van Dong, noted Vietnamese scholar and chief of the Viet Cong's "diplomatic mission" in Moscow.

Russians and their East European satellites as "revisionists" and tools of American imperialism.

East European diplomats see North Viet Nam inching closer to the Russians in their conflict with Communist China. North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh, in their view, will eventually join North Korea, Fidel Castro's Cuba and other Communist nations which once backed Mao Tse-tung but lately have deserted his camp.

It also throws new light on Aleksandr Shelepin's mission to North Viet Nam. Shelepin, a leading member of the Kremlin's ruling Presidium, was recently assigned to organize an international Communist conclave to "excommunicate" Red China.

Similar Viet Cong missions recently have been established in Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Poland and East Germany. This despite the fact that Mao Tse-tung has repeatedly branded the Communists as "revisionists" and tools of American imperialism.

Obviously in defiance of China he also praised "the socialist countries" that are helping Viet Nam against "the American invaders." Even more lavish in his praise of the Russians and their East European satellites was Dang Quang Minh, chief of the Viet Cong delegation in Hungary.

Dear Abby... Picked to Pieces Asks A Good Question

DEAR ABBY: I met a girl eight months ago, and five miles after I met her I confided to a friend. "There is the future Mrs. K..." I mention this just to emphasize what a great impression she made on me. I am a high school dropout, through no fault of my own, but a dropout nonetheless. She is a high school teacher with a B. A. degree, going for her M. A. I am 29 and she is 26. I sell for a living and do very well. Here's the problem: She is trying to remake me. I don't mind criticism because I really want to improve myself, but I can't even turn around without her correcting me. "Don't talk so fast!" "Do not rattle your keys in your pocket!" "Stand up straight!" "Quit cracking your knuckles!" "Clean your glasses!" She even criticizes my driving. There is something wrong with everything I do. I can't even drink a cup of coffee without her telling me that I'm making too much noise. Yet I still want to marry her. Why?

PICKED TO PIECES
DEAR PICKED: Beats me. There must be something very special in this girl's favor that you have failed to mention.

DEAR ABBY: We have a child in our neighborhood (I'll call him Dickie), who has just turned five. Dickie has been the cause of many "accidents" involving the neighborhood children. For instance, my baby was sitting in her stroller outside when Dickie took her for a "walk" (run) into the back fence, and knocked her out. I have forbidden him to go near the baby again.

Then he took my three-year-old boy for a "ride" on his trike, and my boy "fell off", cutting his forehead so badly he had to have eight stitches in it. Now my five-year-old just came home with a bump on his head the size of an egg. Dickie hurled an inner tube at him, knocking his head against a tree.

These are only a few incidents involving my own children. Dickie has been responsible for many other "accidents" involving other neighborhood children. I once complained to his mother, and she just laughed and said he was "all boy". This is fine, but I would like to see my children grow to adulthood despite this child. Am I an overprotective mother? What now?

UPSET MOTHER
DEAR UPSET: You and your husband and the parents of the other children who have been victimized by Dickie's "all boy" behavior should call on Dickie's parents. Urge them to take this child to a specialist in child behavior. Their boy could be disturbed and in need of professional help. The child is all at seeding up flares for help. In the meantime, keep your children safely out of Dickie's reach.

DEAR ABBY: Last month our neighborhood was hit by the night before he left, many of his friends and relatives honored him with gifts of money. In a few weeks he got an honorable discharge because of an injury. Please, Abby, advise us if it is proper for him to return the money to those who gave it to him. He doesn't want to offend anyone, but he doesn't feel right keeping it.

W. VIRGINIA
DEAR W. VIRGINIA: Your son should attempt to return the money. The givers will probably insist that he keep it, but feeling as he does, he should make the gesture.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "TRYING HARD" IN SAN MATEO: Don't assume that all marriages are "worth saving" just because there are children involved. Unless the reason for the breach is recognized and set right, the reconciliation won't last long.

'Birth Defects' Film Viewed by Council of Clubs

The Council of Clubs met recently in the City Club Room with 14 clubs represented. Mrs. James Quay, president, presided over the short business meeting, during which all the member clubs were urged to remind members of the need for Betty Crocker coupons to purchase the hollow handled knives for the kitchen.

The program on the March of Dimes was presented by Don Losher, who showed the film on "Birth Defects." Mrs. R. A. Mack commented on the film and urged all of the clubs to assist in the Mothers March to be on the evening of Jan. 24. Mrs. Mack asked all Pampanos to turn on their porch lights and give generously to this important project.

Mrs. Lois Fagan reported that the Pampa Music Club had received a letter from a serviceman in Viet - Nam thanking the club for the Christmas box of cookies, candy and gifts. This box was sent through the Red Cross and the serviceman divided the contents between them. Mrs. Fagan told the group that Christmas was a little brighter for the club members because they had shared with those who are giving so much.

Scouting Scoops

By MRS. G. J. BOYD

January neighborhood meetings have been held and several interesting things have been discussed.

Reports are to be made in February on the progress of the Juliet Lowe programs to be presented Feb. 22. Troops from each school will present this program for the troops of their school. Heard this was quite successful last year and hopes are high that it will be bigger and better this year.

Oldest troop from each school will conduct the flag ceremony on Citizenship Day, March 8. It is a bit early to bring this to the attention of the leaders but it takes practice of the troop to undertake this ceremony. For the sake of the leader's nerves and maybe the prevention of some ulcers... practice is necessary.

Also in March is the window displays during Girl Scout Week and this takes time and preparation.

Troop 55, Mrs. R. C. Atchley, leader, and Mrs. Carl Laflin, assistant, have their Promise in Action to visit and entertain at the Pampa Convalescent Center. Understand that they enjoyed, and were enjoyed, the Christmas caroling. The troop is anxious to return for a Valentine's visit. Mrs. Jack McCabe is the willing and able song leader for this troop. Always nice to hear of such willing helpers.

Speaking of willing helpers, Mrs. Bill Stephens, assistant leader of Troop 43, presented the troop with a cake for their Christmas party. This happened at many of the troop parties but in this case, after a fire destroyed most of the Stephens' home the night before the troop party. That is truly devotion to duty and Mrs. Forrest Pitts feels she is quite lucky to have this assistant. Mrs. Garland Tivis and Mrs. Tommy Allison helped Mrs. Pitts with the troop party.

Troop 54 worked on their decorations for the banquet during their slumber party last Thursday. They will be responsible for decorating one table. Plans for this will find the girls armed with cans, gold paint and net, along with work and inspired workers. Table decorations will be created that will be admired and appreciated by many people. It's amazing what lovely need arises.

Troop 219, Mrs. J. R. Newman, leader, made "footies", slippers made of wash clothes, elastic and decorations, and presented them to patients in the hospital.

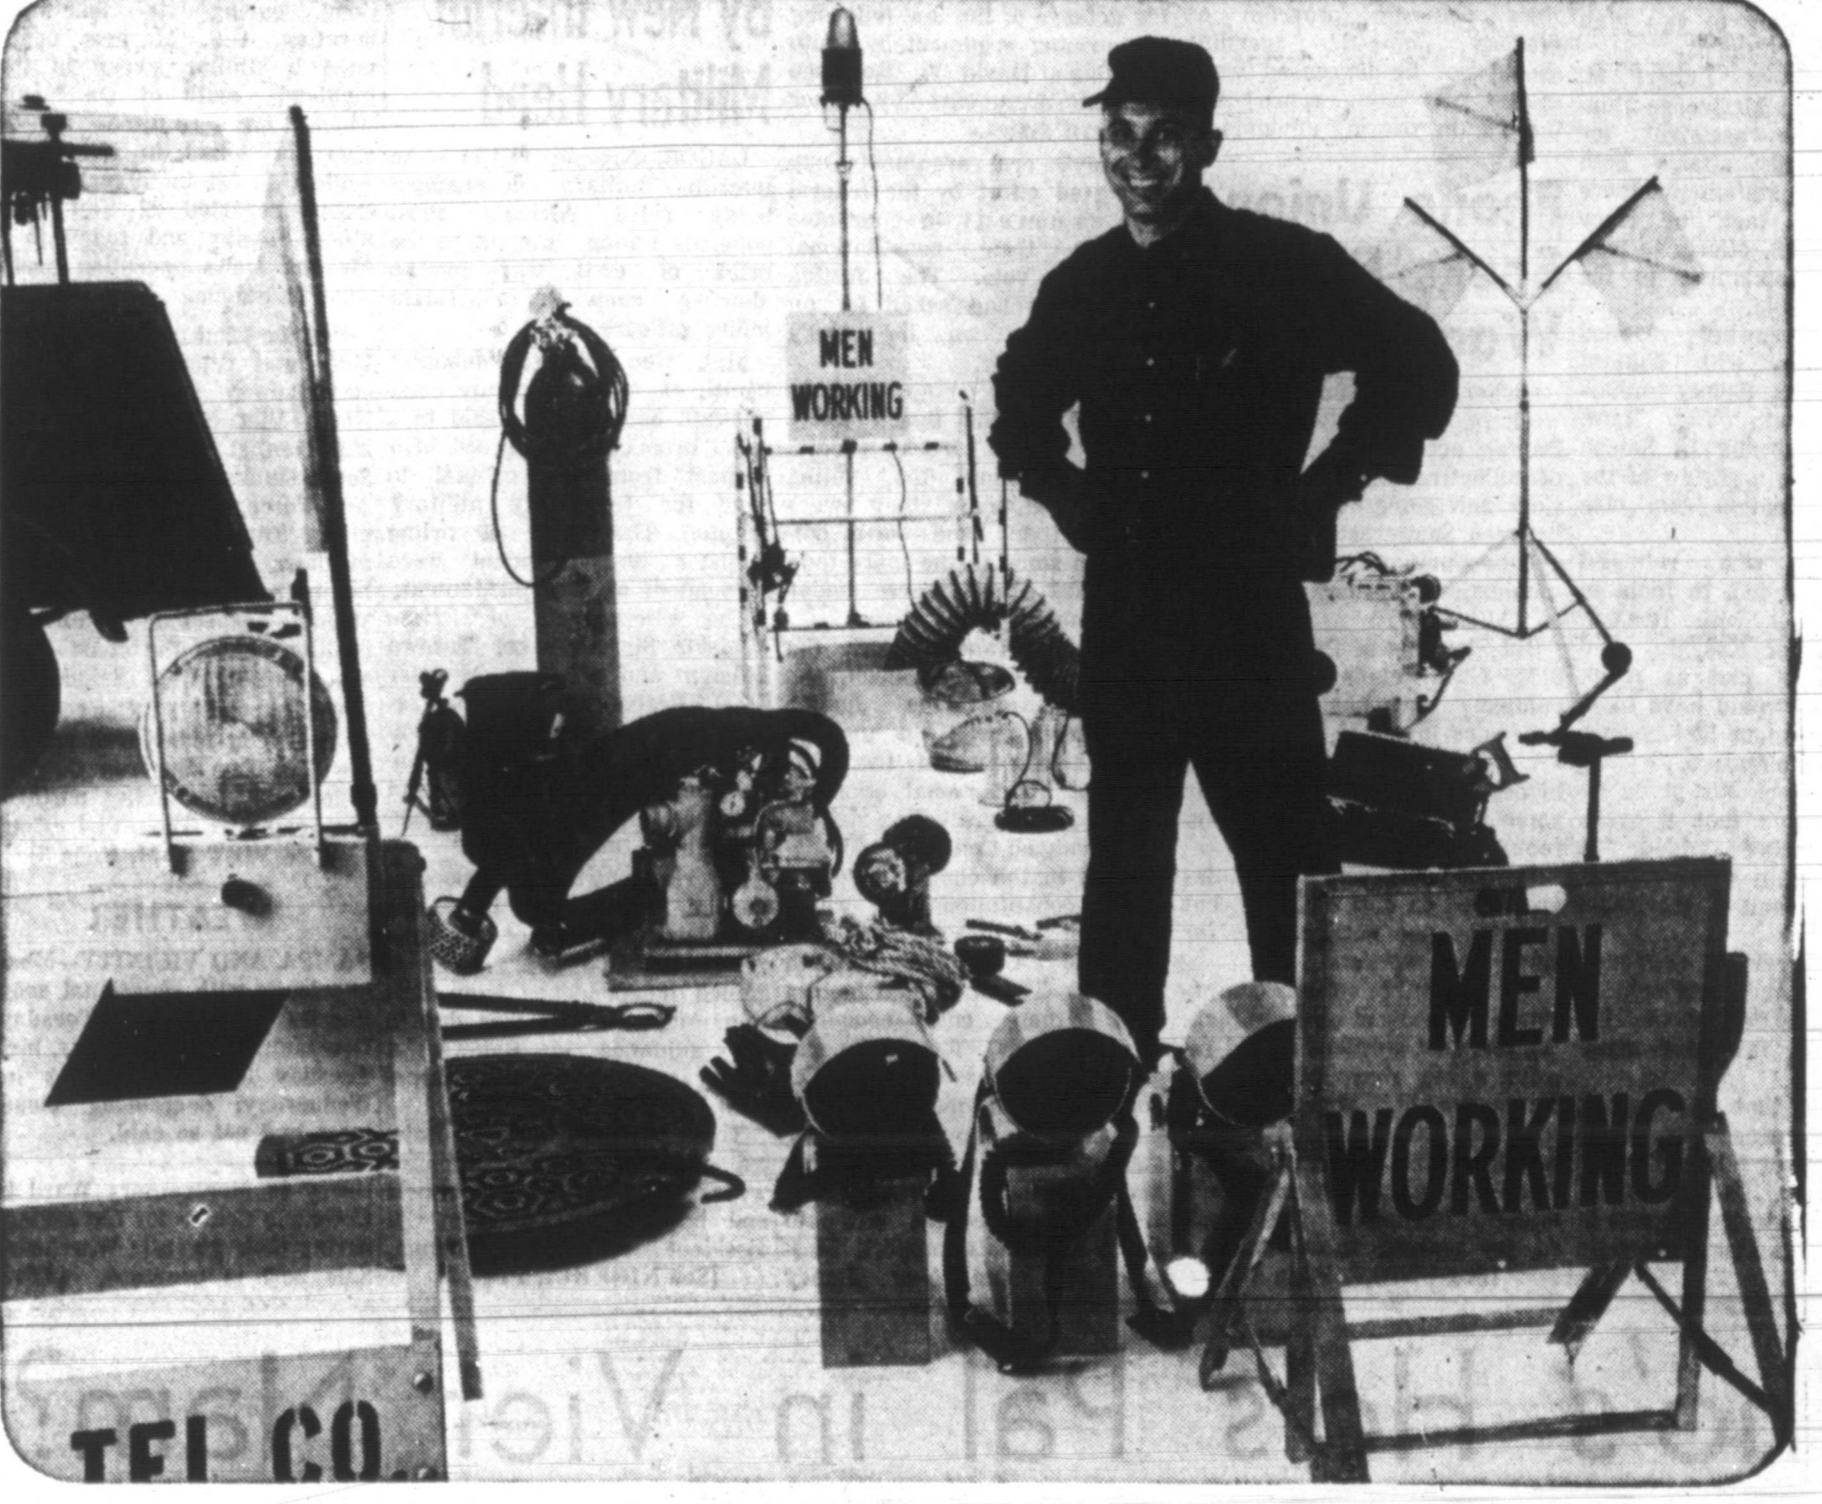

The Board Leadership Conference was held Saturday at the Coronado Inn. Board members and nominating committees from the ten county council studied and talked of the role that leadership of board plays in an effective Girl Scout program. A breakfast before the first session and a luncheon before the second session was enjoyed by the members, Mrs. J. D. Giddings, national board member from Baytown, conducted the training program.

Yale Professor Says Hanoi May Have Withdrawn

NEW YORK (UPI) — A Yale professor who returned recently from an unauthorized peace mission to North Viet Nam speculated Sunday that Hanoi may have withdrawn its troops from South Viet Nam in direct response to President Johnson's peace overtures.

Stoughton Lynd, a Quaker who teaches history, said at a news conference he based his speculation on a Jan. 5 interview he had with North Viet Nam Premier Pham Van Dong and on reports in American newspapers.

During the 90-minute interview with Pham, Lynd said, the premier denied point-blank that any North Vietnamese troops were aiding the Viet Cong in South Viet Nam.

Lynd said this puzzled him but added to press reports here indicating no contact with North Vietnamese troops since before the Christmas truce, it "seems a possible indication" of a favorable reaction to U.S. peace moves.

Testimony Begins In Mossler Murder Trial

MIAMI (UPI) — The case of the murder of millionaire Jacques Mossler on a sultry night not quite 18 months ago comes to trial today in a court house still trimmed for Christmas, with his blonde widow and her nephew charged as lovers and killers.

Pretty ex-model Candace Mossler, mid-fortyish and starting to show her wrinkles, and swarthy Melvin Lane Powers, 23, were to appear in the courtroom of Circuit Judge George Schultz.

The trial begins at 9:30 a.m. EST.

Powers and Mrs. Mossler are accused of plotting the death of her Texas financial wizard husband in order to carry on a torrid love affair uninterrupted.

The first day and perhaps all of the first week will be taken up with questioning some of the 274 prospective jurors called. Twelve of them and several alternates will be chosen to hear the first degree murder case against Mrs. Mossler and the son of one of her sisters.

Mrs. Mossler and Powers are represented by a squad of six attorneys, headed by prominent Texas lawyer Percy Foreman. State Attorney Richard Gerstein leads a prosecution team of three men.

Special Session On Improvements Set Tomorrow

Community Improvements that may cost Pampans $2,900,000 will be discussed tomorrow at a special city commission meeting.

The commission will attempt to decide which recommendations of three major study committees will be placed before Pampa voters in a special election.

The three proposals and their cost are: highways inside the city, $1,200,000; water treatment plant, $750,000; and streets and thoroughfares, $950,000.

A special advisory committee named to study financing of these projects and headed by Aubrey Steele, last week told the commission that all the projects were needed by the city and should be acted on.

The finance committee recommended that cost of the improvements be met by issuing general obligation bonds.

Steele said "We believe the costs should be met by obligation bonds because the interest cost is less and city revenue will be needed to take care of maintaining the new projects."

Mayor Jim Nation has urged commissioners to reviewing all the reports and be ready to act on them at tomorrow's meeting.

Ron Graves was elected president of the Pampa Community Players Sunday at an organizational meeting of its new group.

The charter members accepted a constitution for the group and elected other officers who are John Callarman, vice president; Sherry Morris, secretary and Catherine Serrurier, treasurer.

The four officers also form an executive board with Madeline Graves serving as chairman of the board.

Although the group is still in the throes of organization, Graves said its purpose is to further cultural and dramatic interests of Pampa residents. "We want to be of service to the individual and at the same time help to develop community interests," he said.

It is still too early for the Community Players to formulate a program of plays, Graves added, but said the group was interested only in producing high quality efforts.

A building committee has been named and will investigate the possibility of erecting a community playhouse.

Another membership meeting is scheduled at 7:30 Wednesday evening at Mrs. Serrurier's residence, 825 N. Wells.

'Bucket Brigade' Set Saturday

Some eight men's service clubs were set to man their stations next Saturday for the March of Dimes 'Bucket Brigade', following a drawing for locations this morning in the Chamber of Commerce offices.

City chairman John Warner said that the following clubs would participate: Pampa Key Club, Kingsmill & Frost; Pampa Jaycees, Cuyler and Kingsmill; Downtown Kiwanis, Browning and Ballard; Rotary, Hobart and Brown; Noon Lions, Kentucky and Hobart.

Also Optimists, Cuyler and Foster; Top o' Texas Kiwanis, Kingsmill and Somerville; and Evening Lions, Cuyler and Francis.

The 'Bucket Brigade' which is an annual event in the drive against birth defects, will be held from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m., weather permitting, according to Warner.

Jets Collide On Refueling Trip

ALMERIA, Spain (UPI) — A Strategic Air Command B52 jet bomber and a KC135 flying tanker collided in the air over the southeast coast of Spain during a refueling mission today and crashed.

A U.S. Air Force spokesman at Torrejon Air Base near Madrid said witnesses saw four parachutes shortly after the collision at 10 a.m. Spanish naval officials said four crewmen were rescued from the sea and one of them was hospitalized with serious injuries.

A B52 normally carries a six-man crew and the KC135 has a crew of three to five men.

Chamber Bids For Jaycee Parley

Pampa may be host to the summer Area I convention of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, if the convention committee of the Chamber of Commerce has anything to do with it.

The committee has launched a campaign to interest Jaycee presidents in Area I in holding their summer confab in Pampa.

In a letter to Jaycee presidents, the committee promised "gold, not red, carpet treatment" to all delegates.

The committee said they will provide all possible assistance to the convention should the Jaycees choose Pampa.

"You will be welcomed by the mayor and Chamber of Commerce president and receive complete cooperation from all city officials," the letter says.

The Chamber said a committee has already formulated convention plans, in the event the Jaycees choose Pampa as the convention site.

opened up with mortars but the two companies of Vietnamese defenders drove them back with heavy artillery after flames lit the Communist positions. At least 30 guerrillas were known dead.

Eight Vietnamese civilians in a nearby dependent housing area were killed by the mortar fire.

A second attack was launched by the Communists on a Vietnamese paratroop battalion on the southwestern outskirts of Saigon. Government casualties were described as "light" and the Viet Cong withdrew.

A third wave of guerrillas trying to infiltrate the Chinese suburb of Cholon was surprised by Vietnamese national police, who opened fire and called for reinforcements. The Viet Cong fled and there were no casualties reported on either side.

U.S. and allied spokesmen reported on a number of operations both underway or just concluded. Among them:

—Troops of the Korean Tigt Division and Korean Marines ended their month-long sweep of jungles in the Tuy Ho area of the Central Highlands. A Korean spokesman said 473 Viet Cong were killed during the sweep.

—Operation Mallard, a U.S. Marine sweep 16 miles south of Da Nang, continued today. Twenty-nine Viet Cong have been killed and 12 captured during the first five days of the campaign.

—Operation Big Lodge, previously unreported, was in its third day south of Da Nang. U.S. Marine forces reported light contact with the enemy but uncovered numerous tunnels, trenches, booby traps and rice caches in the region.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain — without surgery.

In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most amazing of all—results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements, like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!"

The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®) — discovery of a world-famous research institute. This substance is now available in suppository or ointment form under the name Preparation 199. At all drug counters.

A Watchful Newspaper
EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities. We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself no more, no less. It is thus consistent with the Human Relations Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Union Inconsistency

It is encouraging indeed when one encounters evidence that labor unions are finally waking up to the dangers of big government with its proliferating bureaucracies.

A subscriber has sent to one Freedom paper a copy of the December 1965 issue of "The Rocket," the monthly organ of the United Auto Workers Local Number 933 in Indianapolis. An article on the front page of the publication was of interest. Headed "Government," the article reported as follows:

"The Federal Government owns 769.9 million acres of land in the 50 states, or more than 1 out of every 3 acres." (Actually, the complete story is even grimmer than that. Total land under ownership or regulatory control of all levels of government, federal, state, county, city and school district, is now approaching the halfway mark. In other words, out of the total 2,271,694,460 acres comprising Alaska and Hawaii, somewhere near 50 per cent is now owned or controlled by the various levels of government. And the end is not yet.)

"Quoting again from the union paper: "Government ownership of land is commonly supposed to be a major concern only to residents of the Western States. But this is not so. In 1962, the Federal and State Governments owned over one-fifth of all the land in Michigan; one-sixth of Minnesota; nearly one-seventh of New Hampshire; one-eighth of Pennsylvania; one-ninth of New York; and about one tenth of Arkansas.

"The 50 states, approximately 3,000 counties, 17,000 municipalities, 17,000 townships, 34,000 school districts, and 19,000 other special districts, employ over 7 million persons and spend $68 billion annually." (Government at all levels, including the federal government, has on its payroll over 10 million persons, one out of every seven people employed in the 50 United States.) "They affect the activities of the average citizen daily

Aerial Traffic Jam

Well, the wild, blue yonder is getting wilder. And the traffic control tower boys are getting blur.

For looming on the horizon is an aerial traffic jam that threatens in time to rival the care-free, happy-go-lucky frenzy that makes driving the freeway so relaxing.

It hasn't reached that point yet, or anywhere near it. But when you take 2,100 huge commercial airliners now flying 5,000,000 hours a year and stir in 90,000 private and corporate craft flying 15 million hours a year—you've got the makings of something really big.

At some of the larger airports, private and corporate planes are already taking off and landing at a peak-hour rate of one every two minutes. Ditto from commercial airliners.

Result: Some fun! And it's only the beginning.

Mangled Masterpieces

One of the best remedies for world-weariness is to look at things through the eyes of kids. In the current issue of a school publication, Ronald N. Wood, an author and former biology teacher in a Vermont high school, submits a few reasons why people keep on having children.

One of his pupils wrote on a test: "When man eats, his food goes from his stomach into his small intestines."

Others endowed man with a "gaul blotter," "lunks" (for breathing) and "red constables" in his blood.

Some of his favorite definitions:

Aphyziation — "When you indulge in too much carbon monoxide."

Mammal — "An animal that in a multitude of ways, whereas the Federal Government has relatively little daily direct contact with the average citizen.

"Government spending will grow and grow and grow, Federal, state, and local. This fiscal year's federal spending on cash basis of $121.4 billion will, by 1970, become $152 billion. The U.S. News and World Report calculates State and local government spending will rise from $54 billion to an estimated $72 billion.

"The biggest rises in federal spending will be for health, education, welfare, labor—i.e., for 'The Great Society.' "Federal agencies now require more than one billion reports every year, or 5 for every man, woman, and child in the U.S. To process and inspect these reports costs an estimated $25 billion a year. That's more than all the corporations in America pay to their stockholders in dividends."

The union article then went on to point up the great and significant difference between the free enterprise sector, even loaded as it is with inflation and other taxes and paralyzing governmental rules and regulations, and the operation of the governmental bureaucracy.

"The cost of living has risen 9 per cent in the past 6 years while the cost of government has risen 41 per cent in the same period."

As said in the beginning, it is heartening to see at least one union finally waking up to the reality of the growing menace of a complete governmental take-over of the economy and the resulting total regimentation of our daily lives. However, we wonder if the writer of the article from which we have just quoted and the bosses of the United Auto Workers union will ever pause and reflect upon just how much of that terrific government growth has been due to union lobbying and demands for preferential laws and powers not enjoyed by business and industry which, in the final analysis, provide all the jobs and pay all the bills?

Experts estimate that less than 10 per cent of the almost 400,000 businesses in this country that could use company aircraft now own them. But the others are catching on — fast. More than 9,000 such planes were sold in the United States in 1964—23 per cent more than the year before.

As more and more businesses and individuals develop the aerial a-go-go fever, some worry-type folks are wondering if the Gemini rendezvous was just a teeny preview of air travel in the future.

Aviation authorities are aware of the boom in air-traffic and naturally are working on it. But if we don't have more luck controlling driver behavior on the highways, fasten your seat belts and head for the nearest landing strip.

There is, as we say, turbulence ahead!

Today's newspaper headline writers frequently use the initials LBJ to identify President Johnson. According to our recollection, that method of identifying the chief executive was first introduced in the early days of the New Deal when most papers found it difficult to fit the name Roosevelt into heads over news stories. They used the initials FDR, which fitted easily and conveyed the message that the story dealt with some activity or action of the President. We don't recall too many papers using HST to identify President Truman, but Eisenhower usually came out in type IKE and everyone knew instantly to whom it referred.

Today's smile: A wife, reading a newspaper, said to her husband: "I've just been reading about a machine that does the work of ten men. It almost has brains." Her husband scoffed: "Not if it does all that work."

There's still hope for Johnny if he's a high school dropout. Thomas A. However, we wouldn't advise any youngster to try to do it today the way Edison did.

Considerations of Possible Russian Reactions Determining U. S. Military Policies in Viet Nam — Ball

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — Russia is largely determining the nature and scope of U. S. combat operations in Viet Nam.

In the insistent hope that the Kremlin rulers can be prevailed on to help bring about a Viet Nam settlement, President Johnson is deliberately barring recourse to drastic military measures that would expand the conflict and presumably lead to Soviet retaliation.

That explains why the highly vulnerable Hanoi-Haiphong industrial and transportation complex has not been bombed, why a naval blockade of North Viet Nam has not been imposed, why the Communists' main agricultural region in the extensively irrigated Mekong Valley has gone untouched, why vital power plants have not been blasted, and other similar glaring "omissions."

This profoundly significant disclosure was made by Undersecretary George Ball under sharp questioning at his closed-door meeting this week with the House Foreign Affairs Committee. He substituted for Secretary Rusk, who accompanied Vice President Humphrey in representing the U. S. at the funeral of Premier Shastri.

"Russia is the principal instrumentality in the effort to end the Viet Nam fighting," Ball said when asked why Haiphong and other North Viet Nam ports were not being blocked. "That would involve Russian ships, and it is the President's view nothing is to be gained by antagonizing them. In fact, quite the contrary."

"We have been repeatedly told," exclaimed a committee man, "that by bombing North Viet Nam and intensifying military and economic pressures Hanoi would be forced to come to the negotiating table. Now you tell us the President is purposely pulling our punch in order not to infuriate the Soviet."

"This seems a self-defeating course to me. These contradictory policies don't make sense."

"Mr. Secretary, I'll tell you one thing," snapped Representative Wayne Hays, D-O. "You people had better settle this problem one way or the other, in the election this fall."

Ball made no reply.

MOST DISAPPOINTING — Representative H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, vigorously grilled Ball about British and other free world shipping to North Viet Nam.

"Why did we join Britain in imposing a tight economic boycott on Rhodesia while British ships continue to supply both Viet Nam and Cuba?" demanded Gross. "Why did we go to their aid when they're not helping us in a far more difficult situation?"

"It's very disappointing," reminded Ball. "But our diplomatic commissions around the world in the past weeks have brought increased support for us."

"Cite one instance, I know of none. I recall when Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge went around the world asking for help, and about all he got were expressions of deep gratification that we were doing the fighting and dying. That appears to be about all the latest group of globe-trotters have obtained from countries into which we have pumped billions of dollars of aid."

"It's very disappointing," repeated Ball sadly. He sidestepped questions about the duration of the bombing lull, saying, "That is a matter for the President to decide. The cessation is on a day-to-day basis, and it's entirely up to him."

CRUCIAL TARGET — If and when North Viet Nam bombing is resumed, among the most controversial targets on the Joint Chiefs of Staff list is a giant dredge near Haiphong.

This French-made dredge, dating back to French rule of Viet Nam, is essential in keeping the main channel of the river leading to Haiphong from filling in with silt. The huge dredge is used daily by the Communists to enable ships to clear the 17-mile stretch up the Red River to this key port's docking areas.

Naval experts estimate that if the dredge were destroyed, the Red River channel would silt up so thickly in six weeks that more than half of the ocean-going freighters would be unable to reach Haiphong. Within four months, the channel would be too shallow for 80 per cent of the ships — thus constituting a "natural" blockade of the Reds' main seaport.

In vigorously urging destruction of this vital steel dredge — largest and only one of its kind in North Viet Nam — the Joint Chiefs are stressing this can be done in several ways, in addition to bombing:

(1) By naval gunfire; (2) frogmen using high explosives; (3) sabotage by South Viet Nam rangers; (4) missiles.

The military leaders contend that destruction of the dredge is especially urgent as it is definitely known that a number of wide-hatched Russian ships are enroute to North Viet Nam. Intelligence has warned these vessels are the type used to transport intermediate-range ballistic missiles capable of hitting the areas in which U. S. troops are concentrated in South Viet Nam.

Senate Republican Leader Everett Dirksen, Ill., has asked the Joint Chiefs for a comprehensive memorandum on the dredge and their recommendations for destroying it.

Deputy Defense Secretary Cyrus Vance, in response to questions on Capitol Hill about destruction of the dredge, replied, "That is under active consideration, but no decision has been made."

LBJ Mum On Bundy Successor

By BRUCE BOSSAT
WASHINGTON Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA)—President Johnson is not even giving his most valued cabinet associates the faintest clue what he intends to do about the national security adviser's job after the scheduled departure of incumbent McGeorge Bundy at the end of February.

Meanwhile, informed report has it that the attitude of these key associates toward this post are not exactly what one might expect.

As developed by Bundy, the national security operation has often been described as a competing "little State Department" in the White House. Yet Secretary of State Dean Rusk is reported to feel that this presidential agency should definitely be maintained in going condition.

On the other hand, Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara, while voicing deep personal regret at the impending departure of Bundy, has told some people that without Bundy in the job he sees little point in preserving the national security operation.

The President's silence on the matter has, inevitably, only heightened speculation as to what he will do.

One source predicts that as he wrestles with the problem he will so load up Bundy with assignments that "his last month in the job could be hell."

An informed guess is that Johnson might avoid making a definite choice of a replacement for months, relying meantime on some sort of technical "pro tem" arrangement that would keep the Bundy operation percolating at minimum level.

There are arguments, of course, that the activity should never again be more than a technical communicating center between State-Defense and the White House. It is thought that the President might be willing to test the soundness of this reasoning.

Others insist, however, that if the President tries this he will in good time revert to a full Bundy-style operation.

They contend that there is a clearly demonstrated need for a foreign affairs adviser—in the truest sense—functioning permanently within the White House and close to the President's elbow.

They remind that this job was not conceived for Bundy out of the blue by the late John F. Kennedy, but actually began to evolve under President Truman and reached a considerable development under President Eisenhower, who used first Robert Cutler and then Gordon Gray in the security affairs post.

It is suggested by some that just physical proximity is sufficient to justify the arrangement. Comments one observer: "If some foreign affairs point arises quickly for the President, finding Rusk and either getting him on the telephone or waiting for him to come to the White House (assuming he's in town) may not do. The need

The Doctor Says:

By DR. WAYNE BRANDSTADT
The Quality of Fearfulness Has Always Been With Us

The quality of fearfulness is not strained—it faltereth alike on young and old, male and female, rich and poor. Man has always known fear and anxiety. Thornton Wilder ably expressed this thought in his play, "The Skin of Our Teeth," which showed that through the ages man has been confronted with a series of crises and that one way or another, he has always come through them.

It is possible that, with modern systems of communication and a resultant greater awareness of distant dangers, fearfulness is playing an increasing role in the mental and physical health of the people. The annual sale of tranquilizers would indicate that this is so.

Fear and anxiety, although related, are not precisely the same. Anxiety is characterized by a lack of confidence in oneself, a feeling of dependency on others, an unwillingness to develop new skills and easy fatigability, irritability and discouragement. A fear has a definite cause (fear that one's discomfort is due to an indurable disease) while anxiety is a vague apprehension due to causes buried in the sub-conscious and often hard to uncover.

Fear, far from being a bad thing, is the force that prompts us to adopt safety precautions in our daily lives. Fear of cancer has definitely reduced the death rate from this disease by leading people to seek an early diagnosis. Anxiety on the other hand is more destructive than constructive. The man with anxieties feels trapped and is likely to develop high blood pressure, a peptic ulcer, mucous colitis or some form of neurosis. The neurotic may be defined as an essentially normal individual who is losing his battle against his anxiety.

It is estimated that nearly half of the people who consult their doctor are suffering from causes in which anxiety plays a major role. In fact, these people find it easier to talk to their doctor about the discomfort in their abdomen or chest than about the nagging uneasiness in the back of their mind.

In most cases, however, if the patient and doctor fail to get to the root of the underlying anxiety, attempts to bring about a lasting improvement are doomed to disappointment.

In tomorrow's column we take a closer look at the causes and manifestations of anxiety.

is for instant face-to-face discussion. It's better if the President can say: "Tell Mac to come upstairs right away."

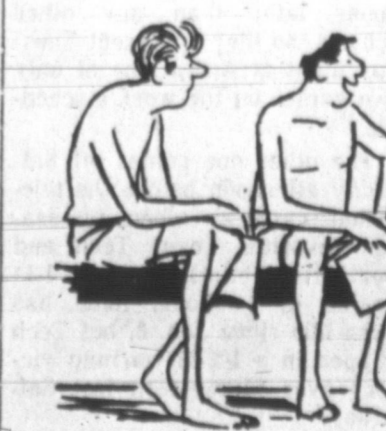

"It may be that the poorest step the State Department ever took was when it moved out of its old building directly across the way from the White House."

Evidently, the practicalities of the Bundy operation appeal to Rusk himself, despite the argument that it automatically creates a rival focus of foreign affairs guidance and thus undercuts State.

In the end Rusk's view may carry decisive weight. Furthermore, with Viet Nam and other international issues boiling, 1966 hardly seems the year to abandon or strip down any potentially useful foreign affairs operation.

Hunt for Truth

By H. L. HUNT

WHY? This is the heyday of the flat assertion and the bland assumption. It is increasingly difficult to get people to explain anything they do or think.

The cub newspaper reporter is told, whenever he is hunting down a story, to answer first of all the questions: "Who? What? Where? When?" The inquisitive and enterprising American has always had the urge to ask the question: "How?" Very often he is not satisfied until he gets the answer.

But in a time when distortion of reports and truth is so prevalent, these simple questions which we are all accustomed to asking are not enough. They will do us no good when we are confronted with a court which tells us that the law is what judges say it is, with a teacher who tells his students that truth is what the majority happens to believe at the moment, or with a maker of policy in Washington who says that the good opinion of other countries is more important than the security of our own.

To statements like this, the only appropriate response is the simple, but often devastating question: "Why?" Where the matter under discussion is really important, we should not rest until we get the answer to this question.

The fascinating fact is that very few of the asserters and assumers and the believers in "truth by consensus vote" can answer the question "why?" because the real answer would destroy their credibility completely. For that reason, this one-word question can be a mighty weapon in the armory of freedom, truth and common sense.

WHOSE BENEFIT
(California Feature Service)

Orville L. Freeman, U.S. Secretary of Agriculture, having turned farm labor over to Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz, has found himself a new gimmick. It is the power granted him by the Cropland Adjustment Program, under the 1965 Food and Agricultural Act, to rent 40 million acres of farm land for purposes other than farming.

As California Farmer points out, Orville can dole out multiple payments to landowners, for such things as not farming the land, for conservation practices on that non-farmed land, and for permitting free public access for fishing, hunting and trapping. The CAP will as the Secretary exulted, "give us a chance to shift some really significant acreages to public benefit uses."

We'll let the California Farmer put the last editorial words in our mouth: "When we read this we hung up on the last three words. It had never occurred to us that farming was not a public benefit use."

NEW TRADEMARK — Celanese Corporation has introduced a new corporate trademark, which will be applied throughout the world in advertising, literature, product labeling, stationery and business forms. The new bold, stylized "C" trademark is compared here with the old script version by Harold Blanche, chairman, left, and James R. Kennedy vice chairman of the corporation. Blanche said the new identity program was adopted "to express the underlying unity of a multi-national family of companies, and to associate the corporation's name more with this concept than with any particular product."

Celanese Adopts New Corporate Signature

Celanese Corporation, whose Pampa plant is a member of the Celanese group, tomorrow will introduce a new corporate trademark that will be the graphic focal point of a worldwide program of corporate identification.

The new corporate signature, designed by Saul Bass & Associates of Los Angeles, utilizes a bold, stylized "C." It replaces a delicate, fine-line script version dating back to the 1920s when Celanese started business as one of the pioneers of man-made fibers. From 1925 domestic sales of $1.6 million, Celanese has grown to become one of the major international chemical companies, with 1965 sales projected at more than $850 million, and with 90 plants and 40,000 employees associated with the corporation and affiliates in the U. S. and 24 other countries.

In announcing the company's new identity program, Harold Blanche, chairman, said it was prompted by management's desire "to express the underlying unity of a multi-national family of companies, and to associate the corporation's name more with this concept than with any particular product."

The new identification system will be introduced with advertising in national newspapers and magazines in the U. S. this month. Throughout the remainder of this year, it will be gradually applied worldwide to millions of items — including advertising, stationery and business forms, ranging from garment hang-tags to paint cans and plastic housewares, packaging, plant signs, literature, calling cards and displays.

The Celanese group of companies includes many different names, including the oldest in the U. S. — Devoe & Reynolds Co., Inc., of Louisville, Ky. — do not include the word "Celanese" but will utilize a new tie-in phrase. "A Member of the Celanese Group", similar to the "group" terminology used by a number of corporations that many countries.

Celanese produces more than 100 basic products, including chemicals, fibers, plastics, paints and coatings, petroleum and forest products.

The company felt the old script signature could not be used effectively as the unifying symbol to tie together all the various companies. It was not strong and legible for such modern uses as TV commercials, and it did not reflect the identity of a large industrial corporation. This conviction was reinforced by responses to a consumer survey. A national sampling of 2,000 persons disclosed that 44 per cent of them recognized the word "Celanese" more as a fiber or fabric than as a company. This undoubtedly was the result of the heavy advertising and promotion that has been carried on for many years by the corporation's fibers company, aimed in large part at women consumers.

The company therefore set out to find a new symbol that would be versatile enough to represent it just as effectively in industrial markets as in the world of fashion.

The most distinctive element of the new corporate trademark is an extra-bold, designed initial "C", starting with a curl-line stroke and widening gracefully into an arc that resolves into a solid base line with squared end. This symbol may be utilized either in a vertical arrangement, with the symbol used as the initial letter of the word "Celanese".

These companies in the Celanese family whose names begin with "C" — Champion Petroleum Company of Fort Worth, and Chemcell Limited and Columbia Cellulose Company Limited of Canada — will use the new "C" symbol in conjunction with their company names.

All companies whose names do not include the word "Celanese" will utilize a new tie-in phrase. "A Member of the Celanese Group", similar to the "group" terminology used by a

Pearl Brewing Sets New High Sales Record

The Pearl Brewing Co. set a new all time sales record of 1,711,872 barrels of products during 1965. It was announced at the company's 33rd annual Distributors Convention last week in San Antonio.

Harvey J. Bolser, vice-president, Marketing, said not only did combined sales from the San Antonio and St. Joseph, Mo. plants last year reach this new total, but Texas sales are estimated to be 153,000 barrels more than the nearest competitor.

Otto A. Koehler, president and chairman of the board, welcomed the Pearl wholesalers from eight states including J. P. Colbert, distributor for the Pampa area.
