MOTHER DIES BEGGING FOR CHILD'S LIFE

Viet Cong Slaughters Women and Children In Attack on Village

SAIGON (UPI)—The Communist Viet Cong swept through a refugee village south of Da Nang today gunning down civilian men, women and children in what appeared to be a vicious act of revenge.

A government spokesman said the Communists killed 33 civilians and wounded 54 in the pre-dawn attack on the village of Tu Hiep.

Reports from the refugee center said one mother knelt down in front of one of the attacking guerrillas to beg for the life of her infant. The Viet Cong shot her in the face and then deliberately riddled the baby's body with machine gun fire.

Tu Hiep is located about 36 miles southwest of Da Nang, within the perimeter of the provincial capital of Tam Ky in Quang Tin Province.

Mortar Barrage
The spokesman said the Communists held government relief forces at bay during the attack by launching a simultaneous mortar barrage against the provincial capital.

Tu Hiep was populated mostly by South Vietnamese civilians who had fled from the Viet Cong in the Central Highlands.

"It appears that one of the reasons for the vicious attack (was that) the Viet Cong probably was seeking some sort of revenge," a military spokesman said.

The guerrillas struck less than 24 hours before the scheduled start of the three and one-half day lunar New Year truce.

Terrorist Attack

A Viet Cong act of terrorism was reported in Da Nang itself shortly before daylight about four hours after the attack on the refugee center. Da Nang is the site of a major American air base.

A terrorist in a three-wheel cycle cab pedaled up to an American building in Da Nang and exploded a bomb.

Two U.S. servicemen and two

Vietnamese were injured by the blast, but there was only moderate damage to the building.

Elsewhere around the country no significant action by American or Allied forces were reported in 24 hours.

Mrs. Indira Gandhi Named India Premier

NEW DELHI (UPI)—Mrs. Indira Nehru Gandhi today was elected Prime Minister of India by an overwhelming vote of the ruling Congress party's members of Parliament. The 48-year-old widow becomes the only woman head of government in the world.

Mrs. Gandhi, daughter of the late Prime Minister Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, was chosen to succeed Lal Bahadur Shastri who died of a heart attack Jan. 11.

She received 355 of the 526 votes cast by parliamentary members of the Congress party in secret balloting under the great dome of the legislative building. The lawmakers lustily cheered their decision.

The frail black-haired mother of two is the second woman in modern history to attain the rank of prime minister. The first was Mrs. Sirmavo Bandaranaike of Ceylon, who succeeded her late husband in September of 1959 but lost a bid for reelection in April, 1964.

Mrs. Gandhi, who was a close friend but not related to Mohandas Gandhi, India's revered spiritual leader during the independence movement, won out over former Finance Minister Morarji Desai, 69.

Great crowds massed outside Parliament in brilliant sunshine cheered the decision of the ruling party's legislators. Desai had refused to withdraw despite Mrs. Gandhi's insurmountable popularity.

Mrs. Gandhi, dressed in a pure white sari with a gray shawl, sat in the back rows of Parliament holding mums

SKID ROW — Pampans slid and skidded to work in the morning rush hours today. This was the scene on Mary Ellen near Georgia at 9:10 a.m. as a wrecker service driver hooks onto an ice-stalled car to pull it away and untie a traffic knot. Patrolman Gayle Stevens was on the spot to help get autos moving again. Difficulties were ironed out at many intersections as city trucks spread sanders to provide traction on slippery streets.

Johnson Sends Congress Viet Nam War Bills

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson, awaiting word on the chances for peace talks in Viet Nam, sends Congress today his request for $12.7 billion to help finance the war.

The supplementary money bill, assured of approval, would cover such long-range war needs as rising manpower costs, weapons equipment and parts, transportation and construction as well as $415 million in economic assistance to South Viet Nam.

On Thursday Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara will be questioned by the Senate Armed Services Committee and its military appropriations subcommittee.

Meanwhile, Johnson's last returning diplomatic emissaries, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and roving Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, are scheduled to arrive tonight from the Far East.

Fewer Accidents But More Injuries in '65

Pampa drivers set a better driving record in 1965, but failed to heed the lessons of the past, a final report on city accidents in 1965 reveals.

On the plus side, there were no fatalities, fewer accidents and a considerable lowering of property damage in 1965.

On the negative side, there were more personal injuries despite the fewer accidents — and drivers in the same age brackets seemed to have accidents at the same time on the same type roadways while committing the same driving errors.

Statistically, there were 582 accidents in which 167 persons were injured and in 463 of which there was property damage totaling $166,021.43 during the past year.

This compares to 654 accidents, two fatalities, 154 personal injuries and 537 instances

Higgins Firemen Fight Own Fire

Sirens screamed and volunteer firemen in Higgins sprinted to the fire house to grab their helmets and jump in the fire truck. But black, acrid smoke stopped them.

Wind had filled the fire station with smoke from an electrical fire in a power plant behind the station. The volunteers finally groped through the smoke, got their equipment and put out the fire.

Diplomats Work To Save Europe Common Market

LUXEMBOURG (UPI)—Diplomats across Europe today worked to satisfy French President Charles De Gaulle and save the prosperous Common Market.

France has given her Common Market partners until the end of the month to accept De Gaulle's demands for changes in the Market or face the consequences.

The partners, who consider the consequences will be the death of the community, wasted no time.

After a two-day ministerial session Tuesday, the ministers' deputies gathered to study the crisis.

The ministers gather again in Luxembourg on Jan. 28 for more talks.

De Gaulle is determined member nations must keep their veto power over community legislation.

French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville put De Gaulle's demands to West Germany, Italy, Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg.

Couve also set out the French leaders demands for stripping the markets executive commission of much of its supranational power and lodging it firmly under control of member governments.

Couve said France would end its crippling six-month old boycott of the market if her partners meet the demands and the deadline.

Jim Morris Named Young Man of Year

By BOB ADAMS

Jim Morris was recognized Tuesday night as the Outstanding Young Man in Pampa for 1965.

Morris, chief clerk for Southwestern Public Service in Pampa, received the Junior Chamber of Commerce Distinguished Service Award at the Jaycees' annual Bosses Night Banquet.

In other awards at the banquet, I. W. Timney, Pampa contractor, was named Boss of the Year for his outstanding support of the Jaycee movement during 1965 as employer of his son, Don Timney. The Bill Swift Award for performing the most travel in support of Jaycee activities went to Jake Webb, a director of the Pampa Jaycees.

Certificates of appreciation were presented to the city's three news media. The Pampa News and radio stations KPDX and KHHL for their support of the Jaycee program during the past year.

"Spoke," "Sparkplug," and "Roadrunner" awards went to Jaycees who have been extremely active in Jaycee work during the past year.

The main speaker of the evening was Dr. Jim Granberry, Lubbock dentist, who was named one of the Texas Jaycees' five Outstanding Young Men of 1965.

Alcohol was a factor in only 13 accidents this past year compared to 24 in 1964.

More On The Way As Near Blizzard Socks in Panhandle

Pampans awoke Wednesday to a 3-inch blanket of snow that was not warmly welcomed by either motorists or area farmers.

The snow, capped with a glaze of light, freezing rain, made driving a hazardous proposition at best. Several accidents of the "fender-bender" class were reported and traffic was snarled at some underpasses and gullies in the city area.

A new cold front should move into the area Thursday and Friday bearing with it the possibility of occasional light snow, the weatherman said this morning. The temperatures, after dropping to the teens tonight, will rise no higher than the mid-20s Thursday.

County Agent Foster Whaley was not too optimistic on the snow cover's benefits to farmers who have been looking for moisture to aid the wheat crop.

"This amount of snow reduces to less than a quarter of an inch of rainfall. This amount probably won't reach the sub-soil possibly not even get to the root level," Whaley said.

The agriculture agent said that with the trivial benefit to the wheat crop, he was more concerned with the harm and hardships the storm has brought to area cattle.

With the snow tapering off by noon and temperatures rising to the mid-30s, roads were expected to be fairly clear by "going home from work" time.

The storm which hit the Panhandle last night and this morning besieged the western third of Texas with snow, sleet and freezing rain. A freak spring-time type thunderstorm with lightning and hail swept through Big Spring.

Blowing snow cut visibility sharply and icy highways brought warnings to motorists. The snow piled up three inches at Amarillo within a couple of hours and two inches at Lubbock. Midland and Odessa both had more than an inch of snow and Fort Stockton and Sanderson had three inches and two inches respectively.

Dozens of points had less. It was another day of drizzle and rain for most of the rest of the state.

A thunderstorm more appropriate to spring than winter whipped through Big Spring early today. It unleashed lightning, thunder and hail which later turned to about two inches of snow.

"It crackled and flashed and then hailed for about 20 minutes," a Big Spring police dispatcher said.

Winds accompanied the storm but did no damage. Blowing snow cut visibility to a quarter-mile at Amarillo Municipal Air Terminal but air traffic continued.

The Texas Department of Public Safety issued hazardous driving warnings for most of Northwest, Southwest and parts of North Central Texas.

The U.S. Weather Bureau said as much as four inches of snow could be expected in Northwest Texas today with high temperatures around 34 (See SNOW, Page 3)

Three Steps Toward Creating Good Business Climate Listed

Businessmen should take three important steps in creating a climate conducive to operating businesses at a profit, according to Arnold Mathias, district manager for the United States Chamber of Commerce in Houston. Mathias addressed the Pampa Chamber of Commerce's legislative and national affairs committee this morning in the Chamber Conference Room.

The three steps include:

(1) Better economic understanding between employer and employee. The employer should understand that the employer must make a profit before he can increase wages and other benefits.

(2) Continued and effective participation in politics. Mathias said that only one-half of one per cent of the populace selects the candidates and the party platforms.

(3) Legislative action which effects the business climate. Politicians should be contacted after they are elected.

The speaker said that businessmen get together through the Chamber to further the profit motive. He also added that 75 to 80 per cent of the voters in a city such as Pampa are either members of the Chamber or employed by CoC members.

Tom Snow was in charge of the meeting.

CUT YOUR OWN TAXES: 13

A Black Ink Item: Interest

By RAY DE CRANE
NEA Special Writer

As a general rule the average taxpayer needs three major deductions on his Form 1040 to justify itemizing deductions rather than taking the alternative choices. These three are:

- Interest payments on a sizable mortgage.
- Real estate taxes.

married persons this would be limited to $100, plus an additional for each exemption.

In considering the interest deduction on your return, attention is usually centered first on mortgage interest. Ordinarily, the monthly or yearly mortgage slip will show the allocation of interest, taxes and insurance. If your statement does this the note, he defaulted and the finance company forced you to make the payment, you would then have an interest deduction. In that case you were legally obligated to make the payment.

Carrying charges and service charges are not deductible as such. To arrive at the allowable interest deduction, total the —A substantial medical deduction.

Even if you don't have all three, continue through your master checklist of deductions. Then compare your total with your two alternatives: a 10 percent of income allowance, or the minimum standard deduction.

There is no limit to the itemized deductions you may claim, so long as they are all allowable and the expenses can be substantiated.

Your alternative choices do have limits. The 10 percent rule (for example, $800 allowance on an $8,000 income) provides a top allowance of $1,000 regardless how high the income might be. And this is further restricted to a top of $500 per person when separate returns are filed by a married couple.

The minimum standard deduction permits the use on joint returns of a flat $200, plus an additional $100 for each exemption. This means that a husband, wife and five children could claim an allowance of $900 without itemizing deductions. On separate returns of payments made during the year for your allowable deduction.

Other interest properly deductible on your return includes the amount paid a bank, savings and loan, credit union or finance company for the use of their money.

A cardinal rule on interest deduction is that it can be claimed only by the person legally obligated for the payment. If you gratuitously make a mortgage payment for one of your children you cannot claim the interest you paid. Similarly, if you helped a friend by making a payment on a note for him, you have no interest deduction. But if you were a co-signer on unpaid balances on the first day of each month, divide by 12 to get the average unpaid balance and then multiply by 6 percent to arrive at allowable interest.

Walter Rogers Reports:
Opposes Four Year Terms for Congress

A number of hot controversies are going to develop in this Session of Congress over points and programs mentioned by President Johnson in his proposal for a Constitutional amendment to extend the terms of Members of the House of Representatives to four years, concurrent with that of the President. Terms of House members are now two years, as they have been through all of the Nation's history.

I'm opposed to any change in the length of term of House members. There are sound and substantial reasons for not tampering with the present, proven system, and I'd like to review a few of them with you.

First, a reference to history: Many Delegates to the Constitutional Convention in 1787 felt that annual elections should be held for members of the House of Representatives, following the colonial practice which was designed as a check on royal governors. Other Delegates argued that the terms should be for three years in order to enable Representatives to acquire knowledge of the interests and needs of States other than their own. James Madison, supporting the three-year term, argued that one year would be almost consumed in preparing for and traveling to and from the seat of national business. On the other side, Elbridge Gerry of Massachusetts considered annual elections the only defense of the people against tyranny. He stated that he was as much against a triennial House as against a hereditary Executive.

Finally, the Delegates to the Constitutional Convention decided in favor of three-year terms while meeting in Committee of the Whole—but the Convention itself later fixed the term at two years as a compromise between a one-year and three-year term. Thus it has remained.

It is essential that the House of Representatives remain fully accountable to the people, that its members reflect the will of the people they represent. Members of the U.S. Senate represent broader interests, as our Constitution determined the system: Senators speak for their States and are more truly trustees of broad interests than representatives of specific districts or areas. The argument as to whether House members should be trustees or representatives has run through history, but I believe as I think most of my colleagues in the House believe that the solemn responsibility of House members is to reflect the majority will of the people of their districts when that will can be determined. When it is not possible to know how constituents would feel on a particular issue before the House, it is the obligation then of the Member to make the best decision possible.

Whatever the approach to voting, it is essential to the system that the people who elect Members of the House be able to review their work and make changes, if they see fit, at frequent intervals. In this way, the House—and, thus, national legislation—remains fully in the hands of the people. Power resides in the people acting through their representatives, and it is incumbent upon the representatives to remain fully responsive. Government by the people requires as an indispensable element the continuing power of the people to control those who represent them. Texans recently reemphasized the validity of this point by turning down a proposed amendment to the State Constitution to extend the terms of members of the Texas Legislature. The principle is the same as in the current controversy.

Four-year terms might make for an easier life for the office holder but good government would suffer. And, again, as President Harry Truman said of his job, "If you can't stand the heat, get out of the kitchen."

ALL WRAPPED UP—Terrill Mayo of St. Louis, Mo., had to invent a special device to take care of all the loose ends in his hobby. The machine, left, has electric motors which turn two rollers, all to add bits and pieces to the ball of string, right, he began collecting eight years ago. Weighing in currently at 2,400 pounds, the ball contains an estimated 3,260,000 feet of string and is so heavy a wrecker's derrick is required to move it. Mayo, who plans on adding another 1,500 pounds to the stringy mass, says he has a "constructive" plan for it which he will reveal when the time is right.

Television in Review

By RICK DU BROW

United Press International HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Publicity men and woman are a much put upon lot. Frequently they are better educated, more honest and finer social companions than the stars and producers they must work for. If anything happens, they must take the blame but little credit. So it seems only fair to give some credit where it is due. I am talking today about ABC-TV's new "Batman" series.

There is no question that, for all its shortcomings, "Batman" is the most talked about new series of the television season. And there is no question that this was accomplished primarily because of the imaginative promotion and publicity campaign behind it. At the moment, the status of the series is like that of a balloon sitting atop a pinhead. Precariously inflated, full of nothing—prominent only because somebody managed to blow it up.

While the producers of "Batman" have taken a fence-sitting, half-hip, half-straight adventure approach to satisfy both adults and children in the audience, only the publicity campaign has struck precisely the right note in its approach—and one wonders whether the show might not be better if the writer of the press releases had written the scripts as well. The full contents of one release, for instance, read as follows: "J. St. John acts like a brazen hussy Jan. 12. Batman knows how to deal with her kind."

Promotional Quiz

Another press release, from last week's episodes, read like this: "Quiz: In the ever-Batman can't get past 'The Riddler' this Wednesday an series of the television season. Thursday, what will ABC-TV broadcast next week? (A) An interlude of recorded music. (B) Potemkin. (C) Armed forces training film. (D) Highlights from memorable weathercasts of 1957."

The irony of the whole "Batman" campaign, however, is that its success only emphasized the reason why it is really extraordinarily difficult for the series to be "hip." The idea of the show, we are told incessantly, is that it is a put-on. Yet for a put-on to be successful, it is essential for the target of the put-on to be innocent (at first) of the fact that he is being put on. Otherwise, it is like listening to the fellow who precedes a joke by saying, "This is the funniest story you've ever heard. It'll kill you." End of joke. Likewise, end of put-on.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Franklin D. Roosevelt Memorial Commission decided this week to make a fresh start toward choosing a suitable design for a monument to the late president.

Although this appears to be an act of sheer desperation, I nonetheless commend the commission for its courage.

The commission already has learned how difficult it is to select a design that will please everybody. Or, I should say, a design that will please anybody.

The original proposal, an abstract arrangement of eight concrete slabs, drew almost unanimous approval, ranging in intensity from slight nausea to hysterical laughter.

It took the commission several years to screw up the nerve for another running of the gamut, but it has finally taken the plunge.

A group of prominent architects will be asked to submit new design ideas. The commission hopes to reach a decision within the next few months. Lots of luck!

I fear, however, that the timing was bad. All signs indicate that 1966 will be a year of crisis for monuments in the U.S. capital. Monuments will be hard pressed just to hold their own.

To attempt to implant a new monument during a period of memorial upheaval is asking for trouble.

It was only a week or so ago that the Titanic Memorial went down. This statue, erected in memory of the husbands and wives—and little children—who lost their lives when that great ship went down in 1912, was uprooted to make room for a freeway.

Officials say they will try to find a new space for it, but the prognosis isn't favorable. It currently is homeless and likely to remain so.

The relentless march of the freeway builders also is expected soon to overrun the statue of John Ericsson, inventor of the screw propeller.

Previously, they had swamped the statues of Williams Jennings Bryan and Dr. Benjamin Rush, the Revolutionary War surgeon general. Who knows where they will strike next?

It is clear that the government eventually will have to set up some sort of adoption agency, or maybe a statutory orphanage, to cope with the problem of displaced memorials.

However, the firm says, the uncertainties in the overall picture remain numerous and it would follow a selective investment policy at this time.

Tessel, Patric & Ostrau Inc. says that in light of the extremely bright technical picture, there appears little reason for traders not to take an aggressive stand.

Thomson & McKinnon says that despite the recent new highs in the Dow-Jones Industrial and Standard & Poor's composite indicators, it must be noted that the market at this time is outperforming the indicators and, in its opinion, will continue to do so over the near term.

Morris

1964. In a talk well-larded with laughter, he spelled out the attributes he believes necessary for success.

These attributes, Dr. Granberry said, include tolerance, appreciation, humility, optimism, and kindness. "These attributes lead to the proper attitude, which is service to others, not 'What's in it for me?'"

"It's not just public relations we're talking about, but human relations. We must always remember to give a man a second chance - in fact we must give him that first chance to prove himself."

Chamber of Commerce president Norman Henry presented a Top o' Texan award to Dr. Granberry in appreciation for his Pampa visit.

Morris, a native of McLean, is a self-made man in the words of E. O. Wedgeworth, manager of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, who was a member of a three-man committee who selected the outstanding young man. Other members were A. J. Carubbi Jr., and Jerry Sims, both past recipients of the DSA Award.

Wedgeworth, in introducing Morris, said, "When Jim was 11 years old, his father, a Southwestern Public Service employee, died. At the age of 12, Jim went to work in an ice plant to help meet family expenses."

Although he worked, Morris was quite active in McLean High School where he was president of his senior class and voted "Most Popular Boy." He starred on the football team, where he earned the nickname, "Moose."

After graduating from high school, Morris went to work for Southwestern Public Service in Amarillo. He advanced quickly, becoming the youngest employee of the company to gain a full journeyman's rating.

Transferred to McLean as service man in 1951, he was named manager of the McLean office, a position he held for five years.

During his service with Southwestern in McLean, Morris developed his interest in public and civic affairs. He was president of three McLean organizations, the Lions Club, Jaycees and Ex-Student Association. One year he was named Lion of the Year.

Upon his transfer to Pampa, Morris continued his civic activities. He is a director of the Board of Realtors and the Lions Club. Morris has been active in Chamber of Commerce, United Fund, and Boy Scout work. He is also active in the First Baptist Church. He served as Sunday School superintendent while in McLean.

Morris, his wife Joyce, and their two sons, Jeff, 14, and Joe, 11, live at 1928 N. Wells.

Wedgeworth said he believed that Mrs. Morris summed up the characteristics of the Outstanding Young Man of 1965 when she said, "Jim doesn't

Foreign Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM

UPI Foreign News Analyst
Disaster not included in Britain's boycott plans is sweeping rebel Rhodesia.

When a little more than two months ago Britain embargoed oil shipments, cut off credits and imposed other economic sanctions against the all-white government of Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith, it believed that these alone would be sufficient to bring the government down.

The objective was to force Rhodesia back to the "constitutional path," which in British eyes meant eventual Rhodesian rule by the country's four million blacks as opposed to 250,000 whites.

What Britain did not take into account was a drought sweeping across not only Rhodesia but South Africa as well. It has placed Britain in a strange position.

Parched Lands
From Middle Rhodesia southward through Matabeleland, grazing lands are bare through lack of rainfall.

In an attempt to save something, the government is trying to move 200,000 head of cattle from the parched homeland to the better watered areas northward.

But even to the north, the maize fields have withered and farmers have been supplied with sorghum seed to replace the lost maize.

Thousands of families, it is feared, will face starvation.

Faced with an unplanned catastrophe threatening Rhodesian blacks and whites alike, Britain solved her dilemma in manner not calculated to please Rhodesia's Black African neighbors determined to bring down Smith's white supremacy government by whatever means.

Together with Canada and Australia, Britain will supply emergency grain to stricken Central African areas—including Rhodesia. Explained a British official:
"Starvation has no place in our sanctions scheme."

Mentally Retarded Child Assaulted

DALLAS (UPI) — A retarded 14-year-old girl walking to Admson High School for special classes was abducted and raped Monday. Police arrested an 18-year-old youth for questioning in the case.

Police said the girl was attacked in Kiest Park. The rapist then returned the girl where he had picked her up.

Minutes later the attacker approached the girl again and she screamed. Neighbors called police. While a patrolman questioned the girl, the rapist circled the block in his car and came by again.

The policeman hopped in his patrol car and curbed the man. No charges were immediately filed.

MOSQUITO PLAGUE

LOURENCO MARQUES, Mozambique (UPI) — Swarms of mosquitoes are invading the Mozambique capital and free vaccinations against typhus will be given in several posts set up for the purpose, it was announced Monday. The mosquitoes flourished mainly due to floods caused by typhoon "Calude" two weeks ago.

Sessions of the Constitutional Convention in 1977 were not open to the public, but were conducted in secret.

Funeral Services Set for 'Unknown' Boy Found Dead

MONROE, Mich. (UPI) — Unless someone can identify him, a 3-year-old boy will be routinely buried in this Southern Michigan town later this week, known only as "little boy blue."

The boy, clad in a blue quilted ski jacket, red shirt, black corduroy pants and blue socks, was found by a rabbit hunter in an outhouse on an abandoned farm near here.

An autopsy revealed the lad had been beaten to death.

Their only clue, authorities said, is a label inside the boy's shirt: "Matt Peters Jr." They don't know whether the brand is a national one or what kind of distribution it has.

No one has claimed the boy. His description: Brown hair, 35 inches tall, 25 pounds with that sturdy, well-fed look.

Police theorize no one has claimed the boy because those who know him may be his murderer, or murderers. They believe either the parents slew the boy or they are dead themselves.

Shortly after the body was discovered last Saturday, police sent out a nationwide alert for an identification of the lad.

By the middle of this week, only two divorced fathers had come to take a look at the boy on the possibility he may have been a son. He wasn't. He remained unidentified.

Meantime, the little body was being held in a freezer at Mercy Hospital.

Monroe County officials will bury the youngster in a few days unless a loved one shows to give "little boy blue" a proper burial.

VAUGHN-REPLACEMENT

Lawyers Attempt to Prove Eligibility for Attorney Race

AUSTIN (UPI) — State Sens. to list Calhoun and Spears on Franklin Spears and Galloway the May 7 primary ballot. Calhoun Jr. will try to convince the State Supreme Court today that they are eligible to run for attorney general. A section of the state constitution designed to keep legislators from raising the pay of an office they intend to seek. The 59th Legislature raised the attorney general's salary to $22,500, a $2,500 increase. Davis' action left Secretary of State Crawford Martin as the only candidate for attorney general. Martin's eligibility was not questioned because he is not a member of the legislature. The constitution says "no senator or representative shall, during the term for which he was elected, be eligible to any civil office of profit under this state, which shall have been created, or the emoluments of which have been increased during such term." Spears and Calhoun both contend this prohibition does not apply to them because their legislative terms will be over by the time the new attorney general takes office. Spears explains his case. Spears claims his four-year senate term ends Nov. 6—two days before the general election. Calhoun was elected in 1964 to a four-year senate term, but he claims because senatorial redistricting forced all senators to face election again this year, his term ends election day.

TEST SCHEDULED

GAY TRAPPINGS
NOTTINGHAM, Eng. (UPI) — Streetcleaners here soon will be issued orange fibreglass wheelbarrows so motorists will be able to spot them more easily. in northern Norway, Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, supreme allied commander, Europe, said.

Something New in Big City Schools

Behind this pleasing exterior, the students of Brooklyn's P. S. 45 find a colorful beehive of isolated activity, designed to mean education and opportunity to them.

P. S. 45 in Brooklyn is a school which may start a trend. As conceived by Morris Ketchum Jr. and Associates, the architects, a midcity grade school should be a little world of its own, isolated from its neighborhood. Entering in the morning, the children start six-and-a-half hours in a clean, bright, stimulating world, a delight to the eye as well as the mind. The school is built looking inward on two courtyards. There are no exterior windows, thus discouraging vandalism and shutting out street noises and distractions. There are expanses of orange bricks, contrasted with sections in tan and beige. Color is everywhere. Another innovation, the efficient lunchroom for the 1,600 students is equipped only for heating and serving frozen foods.

Classrooms open onto courtyards, are light and airy.

It's The Law In Texas

Motorist A, held liable for an accident, was ordered to pay more than his insurance coverage, more than everything he owned. In desperation, he decided to go through bankruptcy. Although this left him poor, at least he was relieved of his overwhelming burden of debt.

Motorist B, in a similar predicament, also tried bankruptcy. But in his case, that didn't help. Even after going through bankruptcy, liability for the accident still hung over him as heavily as before.

The difference in these two cases illustrates an important provision of the Bankruptcy Act. Bankruptcy does cancel most debts, but not all. One debt it does not cancel is liability for "wilful and malicious" injuries inflicted on others.

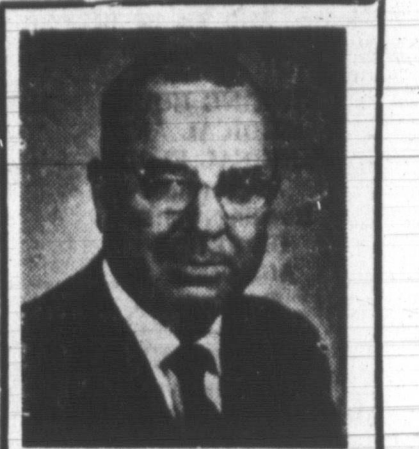

Motorist A had caused his accident by just driving a bit too fast. The court held this was not "wilful and malicious."

But motorist B had been driving at high speed during a storm, on the wrong side of the road, while under the influence of liquor. The court decided this was indeed "wilful and malicious" conduct — and not even bankruptcy could save him from responsibility for it.

Most often, such questions arise out of auto accidents. But any kind of wilful and malicious act may put the offender beyond the relief of bankruptcy. Consider these cases:

A cantankerous home owner, to scare away some boys, fired at them with an air gun, injuring one in the eye; A disgruntled boy friend spread slanderous stories about a girl's reputation; The owner of a dog known to be vicious let it run loose on the streets, where it attacked a passing pedestrian.

GETTING THE WORD ACROSS—U.S. planes deliver more than bombs on missions over Viet Cong territory. Aircraft also are a key means of carrying on the propaganda war in Viet Nam. The gaping hole in the side of an Air Force C-47 transport, above, houses a huge, high-altitude loud speaker system. In flight, the speakers are turned downward for broadcasting tape-recorded messages to Communist forces.

MOSCOW (UPI)—Japanese peace treaty. The United States is the world's largest producer and consumer of shrimp, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Foreign Minister Etsusaburo Shina, who arrived in Moscow Sunday night for a one-day visit, was greeted by Soviet leaders ranging from the flag-decked airport.

Jack H. Vaughn To Head Peace Corps

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Jack Hood Vaughn today came home to the Peace Corps.

The 45-year-old Vaughn was named Monday by President Johnson to succeed Sargent Shriver as corps director.

Vaughn, presently assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs, became regional director for Latin America when the Peace Corps was founded in 1961.

He stayed in that post until 1964, when Johnson named him ambassador to Panama. From there he succeeded Thomas Mann in the State Department.

Vaughn said he was "not yet sure" who would take his place at the State Department.

Asked about his plans for the Peace Corps, Vaughn, with a laugh, replied: "I think probably as the first step I will send all volunteers to Latin America. That is my first instinct."

Vaughn's first experiences in Latin America were as a youth in 1940 when he traveled to Mexico. To support himself, the one-time Michigan Golden Gloves featherweight champion, fought 26 professional bouts under the name "Johnny Hood."

By LYLE WILSON

United Press International Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York blew his chance to stand ten feet tall in the Republican party as the public's defender against the savage brutality of an illegal transit strike.

Lindsay blew it big. Mike Quill and his tough pals pushed the mayor around like a bully and his gang pushes around the new kid on the block. Mike and his lads scorned the mayor as "pipsqueak." Mike's word. They sneered at him.

When the city's ordeal was ended and Lindsay's public image had been cruelly smeared, chief union negotiator Douglas MacMahon summed up the union's contempt for the charming young man in City Hall. Said MacMahon: "I think he got some good on-the-job training."

Lindsay had almost everything going for him in the transit strike and still he blew it. The public was for the mayor or for anyone with the guts to stand up to Mike Quill. The law was on Lindsay's side because the strike was illegal. Not even Quill denied that.

Disgusts Labor Quill's outrageous performance disgusted some of his own colleagues in the labor union business. AFL-CIO President George Meany gave Quill the back of his hand. Tough Mike defied 'em all, including President Johnson. The President sat this one out for lack of authority to deal with the union, although LBJ had equally as much authority in that area as ever he had to deal with steel prices. So Lindsay really had everything except the Johnson administration going for him. But the mayor did not find within himself the strength and fortitude to take on Quill. The mayor seemed to have no stomach for the political equivalent of a contact sport.

John Lindsay's career as the charming Moses who would lead the lost Republicans to the Promised Land seems not to have survived the first fortnight of his term as mayor. The labor, liberal and left-wing pundits who were booning Lindsay for a Republican presidential nomination are strangely silent.

Mexico President Gets Big Welcome In Costa Rica

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (UPI)—An estimated 200,000 Costa Ricans turned out Tuesday to give Mexican President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz the warmest welcome so far in his current tour of Central America.

The crowds were so dense that Diaz left the Cadillac convertible in which he was riding for several blocks, shaking hands right and left. Then he and Costa Rican President Francisco Orlich climbed into a pickup truck to resume the journey.

Diaz was an hour later in reaching the Mexican embassy, where he will live during his two-day stay here. He is the first Mexican president ever to visit Costa Rica.

Orlich and his wife met Diaz at the airport on his arrival Tuesday morning. Later in the day, the two presidents met for private talks and Tuesday night Diaz was Orlich's guest at a state banquet.

On arriving at the Mexican embassy, Diaz Ordaz told Mexican newsmen traveling with him on his Central American tour:

"I am deeply grateful for this news, enthusiastic and riotous... add your own adjectives... reception accorded by the people of Costa Rica to Mexico."

He asked that his appreciation be conveyed to the Costa Rican people.

Observers said the reception was comparable only to that accorded to the late President John F. Kennedy when he visited Costa Rica in March, 1962.

CHOPPERS PROVEN

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The performance of helicopters in Viet Nam, with an average loss of one for every 18,000 flights, has removed all "honest doubts" about their vulnerability in combat, an Army expert says.

Col. George W. Putnam of the Army aviation school at Ft. Rucker, Ala., told a news conference that the Army now is graduating 3,500 copter pilots a year—more than triple the number before last summer. Nearly all are going directly to Viet Nam, he said, where copters have become an "accepted way of life."

Gardening News

By THELMA BRAY

Friday, Jan. 21, is being observed in Texas as Arbor Day. But because some local garden clubs in years previous encountered the problem of snow or a frozen ground which prevented planting of trees on this date, the observance will be held here in Pampa on April 10 which is the birthday of J. Sterling Morton, the founder of Arbor Day, and the 94th anniversary since the first Arbor Day.

Morton, a member of the State Board of Agriculture of Nebraska, introduced a resolution on Jan. 4, 1872, asking that an Arbor Day be observed and "consecrated to tree planting."

Following the adoption of the resolution, the Governor of Nebraska issued the first Arbor Day proclamation and on April 10, 1872, Morton's birthday, more than a million trees were planted. All this took place in a state in which only three percent of the land area originally was covered by tree growth.

The need for observing Arbor Day in Texas was first recognized in a community which originally had comparatively few trees. In 1889, Temple citizens held a mass meeting on a street corner and passed a resolution advocating the designation of February 22 as Arbor Day. Introduced in the legislature by Senator Iyer of Belton, the Arbor Day resolution became a law. Less than half a century after its citizens re-

Approximately one-tenth of the State's manufacturing establishments are wood-using plants, with an output of more than one-half billion dollars a year. Fashion Designer Only As Good As The Fabric Used

A fashion designer is only as good as the fabric with which he or she works, says Adele Simpson, Mrs. Simpson, New York designer-manufacturer, made the comment in connection with predictions of styles for the next five years. "We're in a great changing world," said Mrs. Simpson, "an era of the scientific. The minute we hit the moon I felt all our clothes were old-fashioned." But she added, she does see continuation of the almost-clothes, or bare look to fashion because of "the cult of the body." Women no longer just get a permanent or shampoo and set. They spend the day on beauty, with massage, facial, exercises. It's no longer just the face that counts," said Mrs. Simpson.

Dear Abby...

Read Genesis II, 24 To Scripture Quoting Mate

DEAR ABBY: We have been married seven months and our only quarrels have been over my husband's refusal to take my part against his parents when they are in the wrong. We live in a one-room apartment with a pull-down bed. The church we attend is on the corner of our block. My husband's parents attend the early morning Mass there every Sunday. We attend a later Mass, but his parents have started coming to our apartment right after early morning Mass. I work six days a week and Sunday morning is the only morning I can sleep a little bit later, but with my in-laws calling on us before 7:30 a.m., it is impossible. Also I look terrible when I first get up and I'm embarrassed to receive guests that way.

Last Sunday my in-laws woke me up again. I ran into the bathroom and locked the door. My mother-in-law demanded that I come right out and apologize for my "childish" behavior. My husband didn't take my part against his mother and I think he should have. Another time his father opened some mail, addressed to me, and my husband didn't say a word. When I complain about his folks he says, "Remember Exodus XX, 12, the Fifth Commandment: Honor thy father and thy mother". Thanking you in advance for any advice you can give me, I am.

Very truly yours,
IN-LAW TROUBLE
DEAR TROUBLE: Your in-laws are rude and inconsiderate and your husband should set them straight. And since your husband quotes Scriptures, ask

Color Dominates Italian Fashions

By SHELLA WALSH
United Press International
ROME (UPI) — Top Italian designers appear to have decided on a "kaleidoscope of color" as the theme of this season's spring-summer high fashion collections.

Federico Forquet, one of the most sophisticated Italian designers, today opened the third day of Rome's famed fashion showing before international buyers and the press. Biki and Veneziani of Milan and Lancetti of Rome were also on hand to present their collections.

This season most Italian designers have decided to spell out their fashion story with Color—the muted contrast of pastels, the abrupt juxtaposition of black and white, or the flat statement of a clear, bright hue.

Princess Irene Galitzine, who presented her collection Tuesday night to a fashion audience that included the wife of Indonesian President Sukarno and film star and former model Daniela Bianchi, even called her spring-summer show "kaleidoscope."

The collection took its name from a series of splendid prints that looked as though the images from a very subtle kaleidoscope had been spilled out onto the softest and airiest of silk.

Galitzine's long and utterly feminine evening gowns were sometime draped toga-fashion or swatched in light cape panels. In a sharper color vein, chartreuse crinkle textured silk slashed with V-patterns of fuchsia were used for a gently shaped slim gown that fell from a cuffed neckline.

The Princess Palazzo pajamas and some of her summer evening gowns were cut to bare one half of the midriff or swoop low down on the back.

Sophisticated simplicity was the theme of Galitzine's day belted coat over a cream shantung dress that buttoned on one side and was loosely belted at the waist.

With a canny use of seams, Galitzine kept her day clothes either slightly flaring or gradually tapering to the hemline.

him to read Genesis II, 24: "And therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his wife."

DEAR ABBY: I should like your opinion of the business executive (or professional man) who has pictures of his wife and family prominently displayed on his desk. No one else is interested, and if he has forgotten what his family looks like, he should take a better look at them when he gets home. I never know what to say when I am confronted with a "gallery" of pictures. I suppose one is expected to say something complimentary, but I find myself fighting the urge to speak the truth.

EXECUTIVE (RETIRED)
DEAR EXECUTIVE: The reasons for "family galleries" on office desks are many and varied. Some are there because the man himself likes to look at them. Others are there because the man's wife has put them there. Some are there because the man is proud of his family and wants to crow a little. And some are there for "protection." (I'm told that occasionally a woman needs to be reminded that her doctor, dentist or lawyer is a family man.)

DEAR ABBY: What can parents do about a situation like this? We have always taught our children to address adults as "MR." and "MRS." We have some neighbors who are older than we are and they keep telling our children NOT to address them in that manner but as, "JENNIE and HANK." Training children is hard enough nowadays without neighbors like these to complicate matters. Can you tell us what to do? We've always been on friendly terms with all our neighbors and don't want any trouble now.

ANNOYED PARENTS
DEAR PARENTS: Tell your neighbors (privately, of course) that you have instructed your children to address adults as Mr. and Mrs., and when adults ask to be addressed by their first names, they confuse the children and encourage them to disregard their parents' wishes. If you tell them in a nice way and ask for their co-operation, you'll have no trouble.

Pampa Rally Edges Westerners

CHARITY TOSS — Doug Altom made this free shot, in the fourth quarter to give Pampa a two point lead and enable the Harvesters to down Lubbock 52-51 in second half action in district 3-4A.

By RON CROSS
News Sports Editor

Doug Altom, who, like his Harvester teammates, never gives up, scored six straight points Tuesday night to bring Pampa from the brink of defeat to a narrow 52-51 conference victory over Lubbock at Harvester Fieldhouse.

The victory enabled Pampa to start off on the win side of things in second half play in district 3-4A.

Pampa is 1-0 in league play and 16-4 for the season—and have now rung up three straight victories.

Lubbock third place finishers in first half play slipped to 0-2 in district competition and 14-6 for the season. The loss was the fourth in a row for the Westerners.

The Westerners grabbed a quick 41-39 lead at the start of the final period only to see free shots by Steve Williams and Mike Wise, who led Pampa scoring with 13 points, tie it up.

Altom's goal put Pampa on top, 43-41 with 5:40 left, but the Westerners' Don Burrell hit a basket to tie the score for the 10th time.

But Altom countered again to give the Harvesters their last lead of the night at 43-43 with 5:20 remaining.

The 5'11 guard came right back with two charity tosses, then Crossland added two and a 49-43 Pampa lead with 3:10 left.

But Lubbock wasn't dead yet. After Fred Dickson and Gary Crossland exchanged baskets the Westerners' Wes Verner, who led all scorers with 15 points, tallied two straight baskets to cut the Pampa margin to 50-49 with 1:05 left to play.

Two seconds later forward Steve Williams was fouled and the 6'0 senior calmly sank them both to push Pampa in front, 52-49.

Don Burrell bucketed for Lubbock with six seconds to go and Pampa never brought it in from out of bounds.

After the Westerners jumped off 2-0 Pampa soon caught up and built up a four point spread at 13-9 with 1:30 left in the period.

Senior David Cain, who had another good night with 12 points and Green exchanged buckets and the quarter ended with Pampa on top 15-14.

Cain goaled again at the start of the second period to push Pampa out front, 17-14 and the Harvesters soon enjoyed a five point margin at 21-16 with six minutes left before halftime.

The Westerners cut it to 21-20 with 5:08 left but Pampa maintained a four point spread until 33 seconds from the end when Verner and Dickson hit baskets to tie it 26-26.

But Williams goaled and Poe hit one charity toss to send the Harvesters in at halftime with a 28-27 lead.

The Pampa Shockers ran their record to 13-4 with their third straight victory, 71-56 over the Westerner B team.

Bo Lang paced the Shockers with 22 points, Johnny Marsh hit 14 and Jim Cornutt 13.

HIGH SHOT — Lubbock's Bill Green had to get a lot of height on the ball to get it over the outstretched fingertips of the Harvesters' David Cain. The 6'5 Cain scored 12 points to help pace Pampa to a 52-51 conference victory over Lubbock.

Chicago's Halas Proved Exactly Nothing in Suit

By MILTON RICHMAN
NEW YORK (UPI) — So what did George Halas prove? Nothing. Absolutely nothing, other than that he's an obstinate old man who is long accustomed to having his way and who is dead bent on utter and complete compliance from his lieutenants even if he has to shoot one of them at sunrise to make his point.

Halas, who sometimes acts like a modern day Captain Bligh, made it sound as if the only thing that he involved was principle when he dropped a breach of contract suit against his defensive coach, George Allen, in a Chicago courtroom Tuesday so that Allen could sign on as head coach with the rival Los Angeles Rams.

"George Allen was a minor issue," said Halas. "The validity of the contract was the issue. I want to drop the suit. George Allen can go to Los Angeles."

That all sounds terribly righteous and pure, but the suspicion exists that the validity of Allen's contract with the Bears was no more the real issue than the brand of after shave lotion he uses.

More To Point

A lot more to the point was that Halas wished to show Allen who's the boss. Papa Bear simply wanted the final say before one of his cubs struck out on his own.

Some of Halas' reasons for blocking Allen's departure to the Rams at first bordered on the ridiculous. One of the protests originally lodged by the Bears' 70-year-old owner and head coach was that Allen knew too many of the team's secrets.

By that, Halas apparently meant Allen knew too many of the Bears' plays because what other kind of secrets could he have possibly been referring to?

If he did mean the plays, that amounts to the biggest laugh yet of the new year. Every club in the NFL knows the "secrets" of the other clubs 24 hours after they play one another. That's when they generally run the game movies.

One of the more intriguing aspects of the Bears' family squabble was a statement made by Allen to the effect that "Halas is like a father to me."

He seemed to be treating Allen more like an orphan during the entire procedure, however.

AFL Owners Near End Of Meetings; Foss Still Boss

HOUSTON (UPI) — Irritable and tired, owners of American Football League teams carried their meeting toward adjournment today and expected to hear Commissioner Joe Foss hand out some fines for the league's latest big flap.

Foss said he will decide today what he will do about the trade of Ernie Ladd and Earl Faison from San Diego to Houston—A deal that San Diego Coach Sid Gillman said was the result of extreme tampering by the Houston Oilers.

Owners agreed on some new procedures for the league Tuesday. Then they met so late and got so irritable, Foss said, that he called a halt just before midnight and sent the owners off "in different directions so no one would get hurt."

Cause of much of the irritation was a discussion of pre-season games. The owners got nowhere in two hours of wrangling, Foss reported, and went back to their starting point for today's concluding session.

The AFL expansion committee suggested Tuesday the league add two teams for the 1967 season. The three-man committee will report back to owners in March for a vote.

Foss said cities competing for a possible new franchise included Portland, Ore., Los Angeles, Anaheim, Chicago, Milwaukee, Cincinnati, Philadelphia, Washington and New Orleans.

Owners agreed on a central scouting operation Tuesday and said they would not move into an area unless the city had proper facilities or a firm proposal to build them.

Owners delayed action on a proposal to build team rosters to 40 men, so they see what they do about expanding the league first. They also were awaiting a committee report on possible rule change concerning letting the clock run out.

Pampa Junior High Teams Split

Pampa Junior High eighth and Lee ninth grade cage teams salvaged wins for their schools Tuesday with Lee ninth downing Borger Austin, 60-51 and Pampa eighth clipping White Deer, 30-23.

Three boys hit in double figures for Lee with Gary Parrish scoring 20 points, Jim Hollis 16 and Jay Johnson 25.

Kemp paced Borger with 14, Morris hit 12 and Graves 10. Lee led 29-19 at halftime.

Lee eighth fell to Austin 47-27 with Lewis Brantley's eight points high for Lee. Chavez hit 17 for Austin.

Lee seventh bowed to Austin, 36-27. Berry, Kihmman hit eight for Lee.

Cliff Gage paced Pampa eighth with 12 and Jack Gindorf hit nine for the Reapers. Hassler hit 10 for White Deer.

The host team led 18-10 at halftime and 24-17 after three periods.

Pampa ninth fell, 46-41 to the Bucks with Carlton's 17 high for Pampa.

Thursday Pampa eighth and ninth hosts Borger Austin at 4 p.m. and Pampa Seventh plays at Phillips.

Rambling With Red

RON CROSS

In case you've been wondering who the fellow is in the drawing above this column, try this.

Take off a little of the hair, make the face a little fatter and the nose a little longer and you've got it.

No, it's not tubby of the 'Little Lulu' comics, it's really me... HORRORFYING—What!

It took a bit of haggling with the artist to get it down this way but anything is better than the original, especially if you're going bald, fat and have a rather protruding nose. OK SNOZ!!

In this case the artist, Mrs. Ray Rodgers Jr. had her work cut out.

"Are you sure you wouldn't like to have your nose bobbed before we start this," said she.

To this we gave a rather curt, "no."

"Well, then how about a wig. The sun is blinding me, shining off your bald dome," came the next suggestion.

Figuring this didn't even need an answer we continued to stare straight left with a slight snarl on our face.

"I know a wonderful diet you could go on if you'd care to lose a little weight," she proposed.

After a few more minutes of insults the first drawing was done.

A quick look in the mirror convinced me I didn't have a hook nose.

"Try smiling in this one and lift your head up a little," she said, starting on the second drawing.

The second drawing was it, the masterpiece.

Rushing down to the News office we showed it around, not really wanting, but getting opinions.

The comments came something like this:

"Who is it Major Hoopie?"

"That can't be you Cross, too much hair and besides his nose is straight."

"Who you trying to kid, Ron? That's too good looking for you."

ANYTHING IS!! EVEN MY DOG!

That one really smarted.

So, not being a conformist, we ran it anyway.

Briscoe, Bucks Roll To Cage Victories

Gary Hester cut to 24-21 at halftime and paced McLean with eight and trailed 30-28 after three periods.

David Mooring hit 22 for Clarendon Moore and David Bow-ers paced Miami with 11 points.

Money War Continues Between AFL, NFL Pro Football Clubs

(In the propaganda battle between the pro football leagues, the National Football League claims a big edge. There's a dissenter to the opinion, however, that they've won the war. For the other side, Larry Merchant, columnist for the Philadelphia Daily News, has summoned forth the following arguments.)

By LARRY MERCHANT
Special Correspondent
PHILADELPHIA (NEA)—The winning and losing shares in the NFL championship game were about $7,000 and $4,000. In the AFL it came to $5,000 and $3,000.

you will find that the numbers have been doctored. To maintain its prestige, the NFL simply wouldn't draft prospects it wasn't reasonably sure of signing. So top AFL signees like Yearby of Michigan, Brown of Minnesota, Bird of Kentucky, Hedrick of Purdue and others either do not appear at all or were late give-up picks in the NFL.

The odds are further reduced by the fact that the NFL has 15 teams to the AFL's nine and by different methods of drafting futures, or redshirts (the AFL has a separate draft for them). Ultimately, all that matters is how many prime prospects are signed per team.

A fast survey of the draft shows that the NFL got about 13 of the top 20 offensive and defensive backs, one of the three top linebackers, half of the dozen top offensive ends and 18 of the top 24 interior linemen.

This shows the NFL edge in prime prospects to be about two to one, or about three per NFL team to two per AFL team. Significantly, the NFL's biggest edge is in linemen, where the AFL has been especially successful in the past.

Yet the fact of the matter is that the gap between the leagues is narrowing and will continue to do so until approximate parity is reached, say, by 1970.

The reason is this: NFL teams must get two or three prospects per season who actually make it as bonafide first stringers merely to maintain their present level of play. And the reason for that is that the rate of attrition — there are, by actual count, more than 120 NFL veterans, or about eight per team, who figure to retire in the next five years. The NFL, on the whole, will be doing well to replace them.

The AFL, meanwhile, will retire very few if any of its stars. They won't be signing replacements in the next five years, they'll be signing only additions to their present nucleus. While the NFL fights a holding action, the AFL is fighting an improving action.

Since the NFL refuses to risk its prestige on the field of strife with the AFL — fortunately, at this time, for the AFL — the popular measure of their gap has become the college draft and signings. The trouble is that this is about as reliable as a yardstick made with rubber bands. You can stretch it any way you like.

For example, the NFL claims 38 signings among its first 43 draftees. Splendid. Better than a seven-to-one edge. Take that, AFL.

But if you look a little closer

Woldt, Matson Due Induction In Sports Hall

Roy (Deck) Woldt, who may be should have an S. for a middle initial (for success) will join seven other coaches and seven athletes Jan. 30 in Amarillo to be honored in the Panhandle Sports Hall of Fame.

Another Pampa n, known world-wide as the greatest shot-putter ever, will also be inducted into the hall.

Two area athletes will be honored into the hall, Carl McAdams, OU All-American and a rookie next season with the New York Jets from White Deer and Texas Tech and Stinnett great Donny Anderson.

The coach and athlete of the year will be selected at the ceremonies, slated to begin at 2 p.m. in the YMCA.

Woldt has a good shot at the coach of the year honors and Matson, McAdams and Anderson are all strong contenders for being named Athlete of 1965.

Woldt, a professional baseballer with the Pampa Oilers, did an amazing job with the Harvester baseballers last spring.

Deck was pressed into coaching duties when Ray Howard resigned when the second semester was underway.

Pampa had been picked at the bottom of the pile in 3-4A and after losing their first two district games the Harvesters rolled off 13 straight victories and a tie for first.

Tascosa tripped Pampa in the last game of the season, costing them the district title.

In his years as a pro baseballer Woldt batted under .300 only once, .272 at Wilksbarre, Pa. in the Class A league.

His best year was in 1946 at Clovis when he hit .336, hit 25 home runs and drove in 109 runs.

Rifle, Pistol Club Holds Meet

The Pampa Rifle and Pistol club held their regular meeting this week and held a 22-caliber shoot.

Ags Maintain Lead in SWC

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—Texas A & M, frustrated by Texas' clinging defense in the first half, took advantage of cold Longhorn shooting after the intermission Tuesday night and came from behind, 64-57.

It was the Aggies' fifth consecutive victory in the Southwest Conference and pushed them into a commanding league lead.

But A & M looked as though its winning streak was over during the first half before a hostile crowd of 7,000 at Gregory Gymnasium.

The Longhorns put on a full-court press from the opening whistle. It upset the Aggies. They missed shots, made bad passes and, as a last resort, benched high-scoring John Beasley in favor of a smaller man in an attempt to race past the press.

Texas was ahead 35-15 at one point and led 42-29 at the half.

But the Longhorns sank only four of 20 field goal attempts in the last half and managed only 10 rebounds to the Aggies' 19.

Beasley got 22 points. Mickey White led the Longhorns with 18.

Christmases in the Future

The Christmas season is always comforting, even in the most troubled of times, if for no other reason than that it is a reminder, at least to most of us, that God's still in His Heaven and even if everything is not right with the world, it still can be. And the Christmas just passed seemed to us especially so, because we somehow sensed a deeper and more religious spirit abroad in the land this time than we've sensed in many a year. Also, it was reassuring to note that even those offices of government which have seemed most inclined to want to replace God as determiner of our destinies, nonetheless gave pause at Christmas-time, apparently out of respect for The Higher Authority. But then, some disturbing thoughts crossed our mind. And at the risk of being pegged as a sort of post-Christmas Scrooge for damping too soon the comforting warmth of the Christmas just past, we feel compelled to mention some things which cause us concern about Christmases of the future. During those last few shopping days, as the Christmas spirit was building toward its peak, the US Supreme Court refused to hear a plea from a group of parents in New York City asking that their children be allowed, voluntarily, to participarticipate in nonsectarian, non-official prayer in their school classroom. The High Court gave no reason for refusing to hear their appeal. During the same period a school official, in keeping with the High Court's previous rulings on such matters, banned the singing of the 4th stanza of the Star Spangled Banner because one 16-year old student complained that it is a prayer. In another realm, we recall that not many weeks ago the verdict of a Maryland court was set aside on grounds that the jury had been required to express a belief in God. These and other omens cause us to wonder — was the Christmas-time pause by offices of our government in every case born of respect for God Almighty? Or, was it merely a tactical concession to the evident religious sentiments of most citizens? We find little comfort in the fact that all departments of our government seem to respect religious sentiment at Christmas when some of them completely disregard religious principles all through the year. Perhaps if, like old Scrooge, we were all given a vision of what this present behavior portends for our Christmases future, we'd be a little more fired up in trying to do something about it.

Filling Pandora's Box

We suspect that one of the reasons some far-fetched projects come out of the US Office of Economic Opportunity (that is, Poverty War HQ) is because so many far-out proposals go in. Probably an outsider examining the pending file in that office would be doubled over with laughter, at least until he remembered who's going to pay for such of the proposals as are eventually approved. There's a proposal, for example, asking a grant of $150,000 to start a weekly newspaper in Washington, D. C. The $150,000 is only to get it started. After a few weeks the paper is supposed to become a "self-supporting, non-profit community enterprise," with a nine-member editorial board (for an eight-page tabloid) and a host of journalist trainees to gather news to fill its pages. These apprentice newsmen will seek scoops on such things as "the latest eviction" in the community and where to get free advice on legal problems or birth control. And their product will cost the reader only a nickel a copy. But why should anyone pay a nickel for a newspaper when he can get four bucks an hour for listening to a lecture? That is a proposal made by the Human Relations Commission, in Newark, New Jersey. We figure that could cause such an exodus from Washington as to leave that non-profit weekly newspaper without any reporters, let alone any readers. The Newark proposal is for a 55-hour course of lectures, discussions and field trips designed to improve understanding between police officers and poor with an enrollment of about 1,200 of each. A staff of 22 persons, headed by a "group dynamics specialist," would run the show — for about $200,000 annually. We think there's an inequity in this one, however, since people only get $4 an hour for listening while lecturers and discussion leaders may get as high as $6 an hour for talking. If anything, those pay scales should be reversed. That, we suppose, could be handled at Poverty HQ as a condition for approving the project. This all prompts us to offer our own proposal to the OEO. Let them gather all they can of the weird proposals which flood into Washington, place them neatly in a strong steel box, close it, lock it, give us the key and throw away the box. Even Pandora's box might have been a good thing if someone had just nailed down the lid.

Always the Optimists

The optimists are at it again. Those people who pontificate at so many microphones, who set the editorial policy of the slick magazines, and who swing a lot of weight in our State Department, are once again advancing the theory that Communist leaders (except possibly a few misguided Red Chinese leaders) are basically decent, and if we are nice to them they will surely respond in kind. These are the same types who were so optimistic when President Roosevelt signed the 1933 treaty recognizing the Soviet Union, the biggest breakthrough that international Communism ever made. They were optimistic throughout World War II, convinced that Good Old Uncle Joe Stalin would be overawedly grateful to us for having kept Hitler from overrunning communist-land. They were optimistic about the brave new world of the future that was going to result from all those friendly get-togethers at Teheran, Yalta and Potsdam. Their optimism undampened by what happened up to that time, these perennial optimists waxed enthusiastic about such people as Mao Tse-tung, Fidel Castro, Tito and Sukarno. Nothing was too good for these "agrarian reformers" who, they said, were dedicated to making this a better world for the downtrodden and the exploited. Now our optimists are at it again, and as usual they are pulling out all the propaganda stops for their latest enthusiasm. That is, their theory that Soviet Russia is becoming more capitalistic every day and the Red Chinese hate the middle-of-the-road Kremmites because of it. So, a split is developing between them, and we must take advantage of it. This we can do by helping the USSR as much as possible. First and foremost, it is essential that we trade with them, on their terms of course, much like those we gave Stalin during World War II when we handed him $11 billion in lend-lease. What do we get in return? Well, it's really impolite to ask, but presumably we'll get a treaty every bit as good as the one FDR signed in 1933, or those we got at Teheran, Yalta and Potsdam. However, we'll doubtless get another dividend. When our Rover Boys of Diplomacy, such as Soapy Williams or Aye Harriman, show up at Communist capitals they won't be laughed at until they get down the road a bit.

US Works To Avoid Coup In Viet Nam

By RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA)—U.S. officials in Saigon have been working behind the scenes to prevent a coup that would oust Premier Nguyen Cao Ky. The man they've been worriedly watching is paratrooper Brig. Gen. Nguyen Chanh Thi, commander in northern South Viet Nam. A few months back, key American officials in Saigon thought Ky would be out before spring. Now they think Ky will get by. But they keep their fingers crossed. In a quiet way, the Americans have been discouraging Thi. They've sent him word the United States wouldn't like a coup. When Thi cautiously put out feelers to determine how the Catholics would react to a Thi takeover, Americans made certain he had his answer quickly. (That answer: "The Catholics would be violently opposed.") Ky has handled himself well in this give and take. He hasn't ousted the men plotting against him. Instead, he has quietly let them know he's aware of what they're doing. On one occasion, Ky deliberately upped the coupsters' timing by taking a key plotter with him on an out-of-town trip. Ky recently informed one anti-Ky general (accurately) on how fellow plotters were using him and meanwhile attempting to stab him in the back. Ky proved his story to the general and won his loyalty, temporarily anyway. Ky kids Thi about Thi's ambition to replace him. Ky tells Thi jokingly that if he wants the job he need not bother with a coup—that the post is a big headache anyway. He then proceeds to detail for Thi what a premier puts up with each day. This backstage defense budget decision is being carefully linked to the President's open-armed search-for-peace being vigorously pushed throughout the world by his diplomats. The slowdown of the Viet Nam money bill, which already is causing a budget crisis at the Pentagon, also is tied to the extension of the U.S. bombing ban against North Viet Nam targets. The bombing lull will last at least until January 21 unless the Communist North Vietnamese launch a major military offensive against U. S. forces in South Viet Nam or the Viet Cong undertake a massive terror campaign against Saigon.

According to Democratic congressional leaders, President Johnson is pursuing a "don't rock the boat" strategy in the hope that his highly-publicized peace offensive may yet produce some concrete results. He is telling the legislators that his advisers contend it would not be diplomatically wise to publish details of the new Viet Nam budget while his peace-seekers are making their all-out effort to bring the Hanoi regime to the conference table or reach a "standstill" ceasefire. This highly controversial strategy, being seriously questioned by the Joint Chiefs of Staff and a number of the President's close friends in Congress, is expected to delay final congressional action on the President's No. 1 priority legislative measure beyond his February 28 deadline. APPROACHING SHOWDOWN — In their White House deliberations on Viet Nam financing, the Democratic legislators are being told that the specific U. S. arms needs will be outlined to the House and Senate Appropriations and Armed Services Committees around January 24. President Johnson justifies this delay by explaining that the final outcome of his peace offensive should be known by then. If the results are negative, the President says he will consider resumption of "controlled" bombing of military targets in North Viet Nam. Whether to order new air strikes is a decision the President must make. Congressional sources point out that the administration's interagency committee on Viet Nam policy is scheduled to meet January 21 to weigh all developments including the question of ending the bombing lull. These legislators say the President so far has religiously followed the committee's recommendations, one of which resulted in the lull.

WASHINGTON — President Johnson is delaying sending specific details of his $12 billion emergency Viet Nam war request to Congress until next week for strategic diplomatic reasons. This backstage defense budget decision is being carefully linked to the President's open-armed search-for-peace being vigorously pushed throughout the world by his diplomats. The slowdown of the Viet Nam money bill, which already is causing a budget crisis at the Pentagon, also is tied to the extension of the U.S. bombing ban against North Viet Nam targets. The bombing lull will last at least until January 21 unless the Communist North Vietnamese launch a major military offensive against U. S. forces in South Viet Nam or the Viet Cong undertake a massive terror campaign against Saigon. HARRIMAN'S MISSION — Ambassador-at-large Averell Harriman's peace-seeking mission has been widened to include private contact with the political leaders of the Communist Viet Cong. The presidential trouble-shooter, who has worked easily with Communist diplomats in the past, is under White House instructions to determine what the leaders of the Reds' shadow government are demanding for a cease-fire. Operating under strictest secrecy, Harriman is trying to arrange a meeting with the Viet Cong leaders by offering to meet with them any place in the world outside of Communist China. Rendezvous in Viet Nam, Cambodia, Burma, India, Algeria, France and the Soviet Union have been proposed. At this writing, there was no word in Washington as to whether the Viet Cong were agreeable to this secret contact despite their public demands for a seat at any conference table. BIG SURPRISE — Democratic congressional leaders were caught completely by surprise when President Johnson proposed a constitutional amendment extending the term of members of Congress to four years, concurrent with that of the President. After listening to the President's unexpected proposal, Speaker John McCormack, D-Mass., turned to House Majority Leader Carl Albert, Okla., asking if he had received advance briefing on this amendment. "No! Nobody from the White House consulted with me," replied Representative Albert. "The only one who mentioned it to me was Representative Frank Chelf, D-Ky., who asked for my opinion." "I didn't know about the proposal until the President revealed it in his State of the Union message," admitted McCormack. "Neither were our colleagues in the Senate given any advance notice."

Question Box

(We invite questions on economic and the proper functions of government which will not insure anyone.)
QUESTION: "A week or so ago, you mentioned recipients of Rhodes Scholarships. 1. Can you expound on reasons why a British Philanthropist should educate a citizen of the United States? 2. Can you cite examples of outstanding achievements by past recipients of Rhodes Scholarships?"
ANSWER: 1. In his will, Cecil Rhodes cited what he considered the value of such scholarships: "in creating in American students an attachment to the country from which they originally sprang without weakening their sympathy for their own, and so fostering the cause of the union of English-speaking people," in the words of the Encyclopedia Britannica. "Rhodes believed that his objects would be best attained by bringing together for education at Oxford young men selected for four groups of qualities which he defined as follows: literary and scholastic ability and attainments; qualities of manhood, truth, courage, devotion to duty, sympathy for and protection of the weak, kindness, unselfishness and fellowship; exhibition during school days of moral force of character and instincts to lead and to take an interest in his schoolmates; fondness for sports." 2. We have no specific records of accomplishments of Rhodes Scholars.

Just 157 years ago today Edgar Allen Poe, inventor of the modern detective story, was born in Boston, Mass. During his tragic 40-year lifetime he gained immortality through his imaginative stories and poems. Few lyricists rank with Poe for the beauty and simplicity of verse. His work is as good today as it was when first published. Aspiring song writers might begin their first lesson in rhyming moon and June by studying Poe's poetry. The rhythm and melody of his stanzas surpass anything turned out by the late Oscar Hammerstein, considered by many the poet lyricist of modern times. Poe never made any money on his work, but he was the trail blazer for such later millionaires as the aforementioned Hammerstein and Ian Fleming, creator of James Bond.

Today's smile: Two women were discussing a mutual friend and one asked: "Have you known Marge very long?" The other answered: "Oh, yes, I've known her since we were the same age." Once upon a time a dog's life connoted a hard time, but that's not true today. Most dogs have it better than humans. During a visit to one of Manhattan's posh pet stores we saw auto seat belts for the family poms, terrycloth robes, flannel pajamas, snow suits, berets, and even an electric tooth brush. No doubt the later would sharpen the fangs of Rover so that he'd be in fine fettle when the postman made his daily call. Thoughts while shaving: The average automatic washers are built to last about seven or eight years, according to an appliance dealer. He says that if the manufacturers did away with sealed mechanisms and included a small hole for periodic oiling of the main bearing they would last forever. Woolworth's could give lessons in merchandising to many firms. When one of the top-selling Beale records came out earlier this year they were able to get it into their 2000 U.S. stores in less than two days. That's moving merchandise. . . . The National Safety Council says three-fourths of all traffic accidents result from such mistakes as driving too fast for road and weather conditions, driving on the left side of the center line, failing to yield the right of way, and driving too soon after drinking. . . . The British really adhere to tradition. Every Monarch from William the Conqueror

Although personally favoring the idea, Speaker McCormack is indicating there is little likelihood of its passing this year. He stressed that Representative Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., chairman of the Judiciary Committee, which considers all constitutional amendments, is opposed. Also, the change would need two-thirds approval by members of both the Senate and House.

The Nation's Press

WHAT THIS COUNTRY NEEDS... (Santa Cruz (Calif.) Mining Journal)
Just a few years ago a man's private life was his own business, and no one would dare inquire into his personal affairs. Now every bureaucrat in the country thinks he has the right to check into all phases of a man's personal life, even inquiring as to what brand of toilet tissue he uses. This all began with the passage of the income tax law which, strangely enough, was not designed to raise money but was written to give the bureaucrats—the right to investigate your personal life. This way they would know how much you made, how much you spent, how much you saved, and how much you gave for charity, if you did. What this country really needs is a "None of Your Damn Business Week" where you look these jokers in the eye and tell them to go fly a kite. Then we should pass the Liberty Amendment and stop this nonsense once and for all.

Hunt for Truth
BY H. L. HUNT
THE NATURE OF A REPUBLIC
Most Americans today are taught that our country is a democracy. When a better-informed person tries to explain that the United States has been, and ought to remain, a Constitutional Republic, he may be met either with hostility or a blank stare. This reaction comes because too many Americans have been led to think of democracy as virtually a sacred word, while they have lost almost all understanding of the meaning of a Constitutional Republic. The nature of a republic can be summed up in very few words. It is a form of government which does not lodge absolute power in anyone. A republic is not a vehicle for absolute power, but a defense against it. A republic is governed under a real, workable system of checks and balances. Any other system of government assigns absolute power, actual or potential, to some particular person or group. Monarchy assigns it to a king. Totalitarianism assigns it to a dictator. Oligarchy assigns it to a class. Democracy assigns it to the majority of the people. Because government must have some power in order to work at all, it is better to have that power controlled by a majority than by any minority or a single man. That is why democratic elections are the best means of choosing political leaders. But if the power of those leaders is not carefully restricted by the Constitution of the Republic, democratic election alone cannot keep them from becoming tyrants. Our Founding Fathers gave us a republic because they knew that only a republic can preserve liberty. If we abandon their Constitution, in the name of democracy or any other name, we shall lose our liberty.

or in 1066 to Elizabeth II in 1953 has been crowned in Westminster Abbey. Incidentally, the famous edifice, which recently got a good cleaning, has not been an Abbey since 1540 when Henry VIII banished the monks. It is now a church and a museum that includes a little bit of everything that was ever great about the Empire. . . . If you're paying higher prices for Maine lobsters, there are many good reasons for it. Speedy air transportation now delivers them to western Europe, where they are much in demand, and the market for lobster meat has so expanded that millions of pounds of the delicacy are now frozen and canned. It all combines to create a lobster shortage and high prices. . . . The New York DAILY NEWS headlined a story: "She Was Only A Canary In A Beautiful Rage." We'll bet she chirped, too.

The Doctor Says:

By DR. WAYNE BRANDSTADT
Family Counseling Agency
May Hold Key to Problem
Having already looked at the causes and results of the chronic anxiety state the question arises: What can be done about it? The solution is not easy but the situation is not hopeless. It is of prime importance to break the chain of cause and effect. Since the roots of the trouble are usually in the family, a reputable family-counseling agency can often help. The goals are mutual affection, trust and moral support. Each member of the family must be respected as an individual and allowed to develop his own independent personality. We must train ourselves not only to avoid stewing over things that are beyond our control but also to face up to situations that appear to be threatening and finding a solution rather than trying to sweep them under the carpet. If, while suffering from anxiety, you can learn to deal with your problem you will not only feel better but you will have reached a new level of maturity. Often, if you can get the sympathetic ear of a friend, doctor or clergymen and talk about your problem, you will arrive at a solution more through his moral support than through any specific advice. If all else fails a course of tranquilizers may be just what you need. The important point to remember is that the smallest doses, taken for the shortest time required to improve your mental outlook, will be the best for you in the long run. Don't make these drugs a permanent crutch. Which drugs to use should be left to your doctor to decide. Q—I have been taking Coumadin for 10 years. Every two weeks I go to my doctor for a prothrombin test. Is there any way a person can tell the condition of his blood without this test? A—Anyone who is taking an anticoagulant, must have a checkup at least twice a month to make sure the clotting power of the blood does not fall to a dangerous level. There is no other way to be sure. Q—Ever since my 22-year-old son had encephalitis four years ago he has had recurring bouts of hiccups. Are these the result of his encephalitis? Can anything be done to get rid of them? A—Encephalitis sometimes leaves a focus of irritation in the brain and results in attacks of hiccups. Treatment with various sedatives has been tried but without notable success. When simpler methods fail electric stimulation of the phrenic nerve may be tried.

All Phases Of Post Office To Be Automated

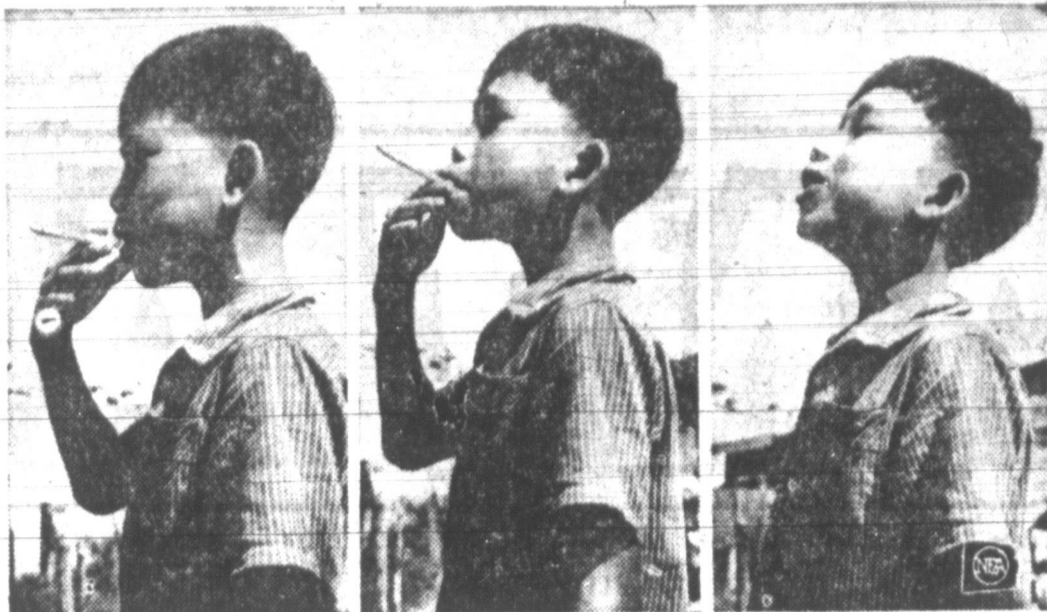

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Post Office Department plans to automate almost all phases of the postal service except the mailman.

The objective, according to Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien, is to "provide our employees with the necessary tools to handle the skyrocketing mail volume—in other words, to get letters delivered faster. O'Brien announced Tuesday his department would spend $65 million in the next six months on a variety of automated machinery. One is a gadget that removes film rolls and hotel keys from other mail on processing line. Another is an optical scanner that can read and sort machine-printed ZIP code mail at the rate of 36,000 per hour.

The U.S. mail load last year was 75 billion pieces. The automated equipment will help cope with this and, it is hoped, hasten the time when there is one-day delivery of domestic mail.

GIVING IT A TRY—The impact of U.S. ways on Viet Nam reaches far. Hamburger stands and pizza palaces blossom in Saigon, and here a six-year-old boy tries out an American cigarette, evidently finding it to his liking.

Attorney Charged On Attempted Murder

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—An attorney was charged Tuesday with attempting five times to arrange murder for hire, allegedly in plots to kill his ex-wife and a prominent Republican lawyer who won her divorce case.

Charles W. Hinman, 57, was arrested on five counts of soliciting to commit murder. Named as the intended victim in four counts was Murray M. Chotiner, an attorney who managed the 1952 vice presidential campaign of Richard M. Nixon.

"I didn't believe it," said Chotiner when asked what he thought when told of the alleged plots. Hinman denied the charges, but officers quoted him as saying, "society would be better off if people like Chotiner were dead." Chotiner, who won an interlocutory divorce decree for Hinman's wife, Marcia, has been prominent in the California Republican Party for more than 20 years. In addition to his association with Nixon, he assisted in 1946 campaign of former Sen. William F. Knowland and was an unsuccessful candidate for Congress in 1960. Deputy Dist. Atty. Richard Hecht said authorities began investigating the case last Dec. 17 when Hinman allegedly tried to hire a man to kill his 27-year-old wife.

Hecht said another count alleged that Hinman paid Leonard Amabile, 22, $240 as a downpayment with an offer of $260 additional if Chotiner were killed. Amabile reported to Chotiner's partner who notified authorities.
