IF GEORGE HAD BEEN A GIRL — This being Washington's birthday, our photographer got to wondering what the scene would have been back there in colonial days if it had been a girl, instead of George, who chopped down the cherry tree. So, the photo snapper comes up today with a complete switch. Here 4-year-old Lynne Holcomb wields the hatchet (left) and (right) tells her mother, Mrs. James Holcomb, 3001 Rosewood, "mommy, I cannot tell a lie—I did it with my little (?) hatchet."

Cross Case In Hands of Jury

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — A jury that has "serious reservations" about capital punishment was expected to begin deliberating before nightfall the fate of James C. Cross, accused of strangling two coeds in a fit of lust.

Two psychiatrists testified for the defense Monday that Cross was "acting out a sexual daydream" when Susan Rugsby and Shirley Ann Stark were slain last July 18. The defense has built its case around testimony of Cross' mental condition.

The state wants Cross, son of a Fort Worth advertising executive, sent to the electric chair. It contends he was sane when the girls were slain.

Perry L. Jones, chief defense counsel, has never had a client sentenced to death and Dist. Atty. Tom Blackwell has never gotten a death sentence.

The state finished its case Saturday and the defense rested Monday.

Dist. Judge Mace B. Thurmond said he would present the charge to the jury today and then give both sides three hours for final arguments.

John Marsh Remains In Critical Condition

'Still critical' was Amarillo's Northwest Hospital's opinion today on the condition of Johnny Marsh, 15-year-old Pampa youth, shot here Saturday.

Brain surgery to remove a bullet from the youth's skull has not been performed.

Marsh has been clinging to life since he was shot in the head with a 22-caliber pistol in the home of his friend, Gary Dudley, 15, of 700 N. Somerville. Dudley is the son of Ray Dudley, a former Pampa police chief and the owner of Dudley Motor Co.

Young Marsh is the son of Pampa High School Principal and Mrs. Cameron Marsh, 2200 Evergreen. The youth was handling a Ruger pistol Saturday when it discharged, sending a bullet into his brain. The slug from the pistol entered just over the right eye, passed through the brain and severed the spinal chord, lodging in the back of the boy's head.

Hospital authorities said Monday Marsh had shown some slight improvement over the weekend and his future progress would determine whether surgeons would attempt surgery.

Marsh had reportedly bought the gun from another high school youth last Friday. Police are investigating to determine the original source of the gun sale.

ABA Supports US Viet Policy

CHICAGO (UPI) — The American Bar Association, replying to Senate criticism of U.S. foreign policy, stood aligned with the administration today in defending the United States' position in Viet Nam as legal under international law.

The ABA's House of Delegates, in a mid-year meeting, unanimously supported the foreign policy resolution Monday by a vote of 276-0.

The key paragraph stated: "Be it resolved by the American Bar Association that the United States position in Viet Nam is legal under international law and is in accordance with the United Nations charter and the Southeast Asia treaty."

The resolution mentioned "recent hearings before the foreign relations committee of the U.S. Senate" where Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., declared last week that the U.S. war effort violated the U.N. charter and international law.

Eberhard P. Deutsch, chairman of the ABA's standing committee on peace and law through the United Nations, said the resolution was prompted by Morse's remarks.

The New Orleans, La., lawyer added that, if invited, he would go to Washington and testify before the foreign relations committee "to help clear public opinion that has been confused by Sen. Morse's statement."

Informed of the resolution, Morse said in Washington: "Apparently what the ABA needs is a freshman refresher course in constitutional law."

Morse, a member of the prestigious foreign relations committee, said at the hearings he would make a major speech in the Senate sometime this week on Southeast Asia treaty obligations.

100 to 1,000 Cars Destroyed in Inferno

OCEANSIDE, Calif. (UPI) — Greyhound driver Thomas Harbert of Los Angeles was driving northbound on U.S. 101. Patchy fog obliterated the steep hills of the Camp Pendleton Marine base to his right and the Pacific Ocean to his left. At times, even the sometimes curving highway was visible for only 200 feet.

When the bus was about 10 miles north of this city and about 80 miles southeast of Los Angeles, Harbert noticed several cars had stopped by the side of the road because of a collision involving apparent injuries. He stopped his bus and started setting out flares along the highway.

Then began an incredible chain of events which left a half dozen people dead, at least that many seriously injured, scores of motor vehicles wrecked and caused a traffic jam involving thousands of automobiles.

The 13-mile stretch of four-lane divided highway is known as "Slaughter Alley" because of prior fatal accidents. Only one emergency telephone is located in the area.

Stops Auto Trailer
Harbert decided to cross the highway to flag down a southbound vehicle and dispatch its driver to telephone authorities. He stopped an automobile transport trailer loaded with seven cars.

California highway patrolmen later said they discovered that the trailer truck driver had left the back of his vehicle protruding 3 feet 4 inches into the right or outer lane when he stopped.

To avoid hitting the transport, a southbound auto changed lanes in front of a tanker truck. The truck driver swerved to his left and struck the middle divider—cables attached to poles to prevent headon collision. This caused the gasoline tanker to halt abruptly on the inside or left.

1963 RULING CITED

Carubbi Ruled Off Demo Ballot

A 1963 provision of the Texas election code makes it doubtful if Pampa attorney A. J. Carubbi will be able to have his name on the May 7 Democratic primary ballot.

Carubbi neglected to post the $76 balance of his filing fee by the Saturday midnight deadline. Carubbi planned to file for Gray County judge.

Carubbi said today, "I regret the action taken by the Gray County Democratic Committee and at present I am reviewing my position according to the Texas statutes. A further statement will be issued at a later date."

Jimmy Thompson, chairman of the Gray County Democratic Executive Committee, said this morning there was no attempt being made to "persecute" Carubbi. "He simply failed to pay his filing fee," Bob Baker (executive committee secretary) mailed each potential candidate a letter advising them of the deadline, Thompson said.

"Carubbi mailed us a cashiers check for the balance of the fee. But it is being returned," Thompson quoted Article 13.08 of the Texas election code as being the precedent in the Carubbi dispute. The article reads in part, "and no person's name shall be placed on the ballot unless he pays the assess-

"The law is very clear," Executive Secretary Baker said, "and it becomes a serious matter."

The filing fee, according to law, is based on 5 per cent of the total yearly salary of the office sought, divided equally among the total number of candidates for the office.

There are four other Democratic candidates for Gray County judge. They are Justice of the Peace G. L. (Nat) Lunsford, Atty. Harold Comer and incumbent Judge Bill Craig, all of Pampa, and John Haynes of McLean. There also is an unopposed candidate for county judge on the Republican ticket, Atty. Sherman Lenning of Pampa.

1,000 CONG KILLED IN BONG SON AREA — Troops of the 1st Cavalry 2nd Brigade were flown into the mountains southwest of Bong Son by helicopter to begin a cleanup operation following the very successful Operation Eagle's Claw. A U.S. military spokesman in Saigon announced that more than 1,000 Communists were killed in the clean up of the Bong Son area.

HOUSE APPROVAL AWAITED

Voter Registration Bill Near Passage

AUSTIN (UPI) — The House was ready to take final action today on an emergency voter registration bill, but lawmakers faced the possibility of Gov. John Connally's extending the special session for other legislation.

Connally, who controls the subjects that can be considered in special sessions, so far has limited the call to the bill to replace the outdated poll tax. But rumors persisted late Monday night the governor might extend the call to take in such topics as an emergency appropriations for junior colleges, laws to implement "medicare" in the state and more funds for San Antonio's HemisFair.

Connally and his staff met with legislative leaders late into the night Monday on whether or not the called 30-day session should be opened to other matters. Earlier, the governor had said he still was undecided.

Both houses Monday finally passed the annual voter registration plans, but the versions differed slightly. Late Monday night, the House State Affairs Committee got the Senate bill and voted it out for today's House floor action.

The Connally-backed annual voter registration plan goes into effect immediately upon final passage. It has an emergency provision to open a special 15-day registration period for those who failed to purchase a poll tax before the Jan. 31 deadline.

These voters, however, who registered in the special period would not be eligible to vote if the federal ruling declaring the poll tax unconstitutional is temporarily set aside to allow the state to appeal to the Supreme Court.

Basically, the new voter law requires those eligible to register each year with a "county registrar," who will be the county tax assessor-collector. The state will pay 25 cents per voter each year to the county to finance the election process, previously paid by the poll tax.

Voters can register by mail, but the law would prohibit the "roving deputies" who in the past could wander through businesses and offices to sell poll taxes to all who wanted them.

Sen. Grady Hazlewood of Amarillo, sponsor of the Senate bill, said the proposal is "an emergency bill to get us out of the dilemma the federal court put us in. This gives the greatest possible voter participation you can conceive of."

"We're simply trying to devise the simplest method for people to register," Rep. Gene Fondren of Taylor, the house sponsor, said.

A minority group led by Sen. Franklin Spears of San Antonio in the House tried to get a permanent registration system passed. It would permit voters to re-register automatically by voting at least once each two years.

Advisory Group Asked to Study Airport Proposal

A request of the Chamber of Commerce Aviation Committee for the City of Pampa to take over administration and maintenance of Perry Lefors Airfield was turned over today by the City Commission to the School, City, County Cooperative Government Study Committee.

The group is one of 11 advisory groups named by Mayor Jim Nation last Spring to help solve major city problems.

The request that the city take over the airfield from Gray County supervision was made today by Wynne Veale and Ed Myatt of the chamber committee.

The commission was asked by Myatt and Veale to consider transferring ownership of the County airport from the county to the city.

"We are not on the 'outs' with the county," Myatt said. "This is a matter we are approaching primarily for the benefits that can be accrued to Pampa from an industrial standpoint."

Myatt listed a number of companies whose planes regularly use the airport.

"We most certainly are not trying to establish a country club for private fliers," he added.

Veale read a letter addressed to the commission in which the Aviation Committee stated: "In view of recent developments of our Industrial Foundation in promoting new industry in the community and in the course of contacting many firms and organizations as to their needs, we find air transportation as one of the key factors, and a modern airport as an absolute necessity."

"It is the opinion of the Aviation Committee that the best interests of Pampa could be served with the city owning and administering the airport, and we respectfully request that you give consideration to the proposal provided, of course, that it would be satisfactory with the Gray County Commissioners Court."

At the suggestion of Mayor Jim Nation the matter was referred to the joint study committee for study and recommendations. Floyd Watson is chairman of the committee and other members are County Judge Bill Craig, School Superintendent Jack Edmondson, J. C. Randall, Art Aftergut, Tom Rose, Dr. Ken Royse, Arthur Teed, Glenn Radcliff and Harold Barrett.

MOSSLER DEFENSE BEGINS

Hair Found in Slain Man's Hand Not That of Accused

MIAMI (UPI) — A strand of hair found in the left palm of slain multimillionaire Jacques Mossler was not that of his accused killer, Melvin Lane Powers, a police chemist testified today.

The 69-year-old banker was stabbed and bludgeoned to death in the predawn hours of June 30, 1964 in his Key Biscayne apartment here. The state contends that Powers did the stabbing and beating as a result of a conspiracy with his aunt and alleged lover, Candace Mossler, Jacques' wife. Another Dade County crime laboratory expert identified a one-pound package of shattered remains of the neck of a glass figurine swan that were found about an inch from the head of Mossler's body.

He said that the base of the swan was never found. The defense, opening the second day of its case in the sixth week of circuit court trial, called as a witness William Hartner, a Dade County crime (See HAIR, Page 3)

$1,438,000 Spent Locally for Cigarettes

Has the anti-smoking campaign, conducted by the U. S. Surgeon General and others, reduced cigarette smoking in Gray County?

What effect have the health warnings had on local smokers? How much are they smoking compared with people in other areas?

Judging from the latest regional figures on cigarette sales, business is back to normal. The cutback in smoking in 1964, after release of the Government report linking cigarettes with lung cancer, heart disease and other ailments, was short-lived.

Now, it appears, the public has decided to ignore the warnings and has gone back to cigarettes in earnest.

Figures compiled by the Internal Revenue Service and by the Tobacco Tax Council give the rate of consumption in each section of the country.

A breakdown of these figures shows that no less than 4,254,000 packs of cigarettes were smoked in Gray County in the past year.

This was a rate of 193 packs for every local resident over the age of 18. In some parts of the United States the rate of consumption was even higher than this and in some areas, lower. The average, nationally, among persons over 18, was 216 packs a last year. In the West South Central States it was 193 packs.

In general, the per capita use of cigarettes has again reached the record rate set in 1963.

The recent rise is attributed to the fact that most of the people who had stopped smoking, or had turned to cigars or pipes after the Surgeon General's report, have gone back to cigarettes.

Data from the Department of Agriculture indicates that the rise in total consumption of cigarettes in the United States last year took place despite increases in state and local taxes in many areas.

It lists the total at $32 billion, up from $11 billion in 1964 and from $24 billion in 1963. The increase in population and, consequently, in the number of smokers, accounted for a large part of the rise.

Just how much do residents of Gray County spend per year for cigarettes? It adds up to more than most of them realize. Their total outlay last year amounted to approximately $1,438,000, or about $65 per smoker, the figures show.

Television in Review

By RICK DU BROW
United Press International
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—CBS-TV's "The Twentieth Century" offered on Sunday evening a half-hour survey of Moscow University, which, we were informed, is a school without benefit of cheerleaders or drum majorettes.

This deficiency is really something of a pity. For aesthetic reasons only, one yearns to hear the cry: "Hey, hey, whaddya say, get that ball and fight, Tovarich!" But, we were also informed, college athletics apparently have a rather unimportant role too. It sounds like just the kind of thing you'd expect from a Communist.

Well, anyway, there was a great deal of other information in the brief survey, though none quite as shocking—and, in fact, the program held such interest for the viewer in its short duration that one wished there might be a much longer encore in the future, one that has room to spread out and dig very deeply.

The broadcast, filmed in Moscow, presented numerous facts, among them:

- Students at Moscow U. get free tuition, board and room, and each also receives at least $40 a month allowance. To help repay this, they work for the government for three years after graduation, and then find their own jobs.
- Students generally seem to be exempt from being drafted.
- As might be expected, though the Russians have their alternating tough and easing moments of freedom of thought, certain books are not to be found in the Moscow U. library. Among these, for instance, are the works of Trotsky, and Hemingway's "For Whom the Bell Tolls," which puts the Soviet Union in a bad light.
- Single men and women live in adjoining rooms in dormitories and visit each other freely.
- As other television programs have previously shown, youth cafes now offer rock 'n' roll music for dancing.

The program noted also that Russian students are not as outspoken as ours in denouncing their own form of government freely in a classroom if the urge is upon them. As correspondent Hughes Rudd suggested, they are not yet at quite the stage when students might picket with signs saying: Get the Red army out of Hungary.

NBC-TV Sunday night presented an hour documentary, "The Daughters of Orange," which theoretically examined "the role of monarchy in the modern world," but more realistically stuck essentially to the attractive journalistic subject of the problems of the women who have been heir to the Dutch throne, and who might be. The very notion of such matters as marital choices causing difficulties among queens and princesses in this day and age gave the hour a curiously quaint, and even somewhat reassuring, tone—if rather dated. The reporter and narrator was Aline Saarinen, who is a lot better looking than all those queens and princesses, but that's the way journalists are.

Pandering Charge Filed in Amarillo

John Gaston Helms, 29, Shamrock, was charged with pandering in Potter county after allegedly forcing his wife to practice prostitution in Pampa bars. Helms gave detectives a statement admitting he forced his wife to practice prostitution in Shamrock, Amarillo, Fort Stockton and Pampa. Mrs. Helms told police her husband would drop her off at a bar to pick up men and take them to the couple's home. She said her husband would always be in the next room waiting to take her to another bar and to take the money she had obtained. After being dropped off at a beer lounge in Amarillo last week, she went to the home of an Amarillo minister and told her story. Helms remained in Potter county jail in lieu of $5,000 bond on the felony pandering charge.

Merchants Urged To Work For Downtown Area

There will always be a downtown in Pampa or any other town and it is up to the merchants and property owners to make and keep it attractive to shoppers. That was the highlight of a speech by Paul Timmons, associate editor of the Amarillo Globe News, as he spoke to members and guests at the second annual banquet of the Downtown Business Association last night in the Pampa Hotel. Timmons' subject was "Downtown" and he advised downtown merchants to work for, promote and be loyal to their area. The speaker suggested that traffic engineering and street improvements may be part of the answer to making downtown areas attractive and convenient to shoppers. "Today's shopper demands convenient parking that is easy to find," he said. He stated there are many problems that will take the combined thinking of merchants and property owners to find the solutions. "And above all," Timmons said, "it is important that we not be misled into thinking that the moving of business to the suburbs is inevitable. It is a trend that has been going on for a few years," he added, "but that trend has begun to change because downtown merchants everywhere are working together and have become convinced that downtown is where a city's heart is located. So, don't let your city have heart trouble. If it does, it is because the downtown is sick." Timmons was introduced by J. C. Roberts, DBA president. Gene Lewis, association secretary, told the banquet audience that DBA directors are considering a proposal to switch downtown store opening night from Thursday to Saturday night. "We are considering a plan to seek cooperation of the downtown stores to remain open on Saturday nights and make Pampa a Saturday night town," Lewis said. A decision on the plan is expected to be reached soon. Association President Roberts told of the close relationship between downtown merchants and merchants of the Coronado Shopping Center. "We work together for the good of Pampa as a whole," Roberts said. Ken Womak, manager of Moses' store, chairman of the DBA promotion committee during the past year, outlined successful promotions of the past and others scheduled for the future. "If downtown Pampa is not successful," Womak said "Pampa will never be successful." The DBA now has grown to 112 members from a 50-member nucleus two years ago, Roberts reported.

Lane. Now the two lanes were blocked, setting the stage for a series of fiery collisions. A Chevrolet Corvair containing a man and pregnant woman wedged itself between the two trucks. A 1955 Chevrolet and huge grocery van joined the mess and the gasoline tanker exploded in flames. Struck from Behind About 10 minutes later and two-tenths of a mile north of this wreckage, a truck with a single tank loaded with gasoline stopped. It was struck in the rear by a second truck, this one loaded with two tanks of gas. Explosions and fire rocked the area as other cars and trucks piled into the wreckage. Six persons were killed, at least six others were injured and 20 vehicles were gutted by fire, including seven on the auto transport trailer. Estimates of the number of vehicles destroyed or damaged in the crashes ranged from 100 to 1,000, but 18 hours after the crash, California highway patrolmen still weren't sure of the specific number. But the crashes caused one of the worst traffic jams in years on the San Diego-Los Angeles freeway with an estimated 5,000 cars backed up 2-4 hours. Some motorists were rerouted 25 miles through the sprawling Marine base. The bodies of all the victims were charred beyond recognition and authorities expected they would have to make identifications through comparison of the victims' teeth with dental charts.

Mayor

The mayor stated. Former Mayor E. C. Sidwell appeared before the commission this morning and suggested that the bond election issues be discussed in a public forum or panel meeting with a moderator. "I would like to see a public forum, particularly on the city's water problems," Sidwell said. "I don't think it is fair for city taxpayers to pick up the bill for a program for those outside the city who share benefits. I think public discussion of both sides would be good. So far, all I know about it is what I read in the newspaper." Mayor Nation, in his brief statement at the close of today's council session, also referred to Sidwell's remarks and stated he did not believe it was the commission's responsibility to engage in public debate of any kind.

laboratory chemist. He said that when he got the hair from the dead man's palm on the day of the murder, "it was represented to me as coming from the head of Melvin Lane Powers." However, he testified, examination showed it to be of a different color characteristic than hair coming from the head of Powers. Foremost target as the defense got its case rolling was a hollow-eyed, sunken cheeked, 21-time convict, Billy Frank Mulvey. He had testified for the state that Candy Mossler in the summer of 1962 gave him $7,000 to kill her husband. He spent it, he said, and never acted.

Importance Of Conventions For Pampa Stressed

Pampa could become a convention center, Duggan Smith, Pampa chamber of commerce convention chairman, told the chamber luncheon Monday. With an assist from the Pampa Community Players, Smith presented a program on convention-getting in the Starlight room of the Coronado Inn. The Players enacted skits showing the good and bad methods of securing and servicing conventions and Smith outlined Pampa's needs for becoming a convention center. Pampa is presently limited by the number of conventioners it can house, he said, pointing to the need for a new civic center or similar structure. A second detriment to getting conventions in Pampa, he added, was the "off-center" location of Pampa in comparison to other Texas cities. Since Pampa is a long distance from any place in Texas, some conventioners do not want to travel here for a meeting. Smith said each business and professional man in Pampa can help secure conventions for various trade and professional groups of which he is a member. This personal action by Pampa residents is of utmost importance in securing conventions, he said. The convention committee of the chamber of commerce is ready with help for any group desiring to hold a convention in Pampa. Name tags, convention folders and brochures on the city and other aids are available for conventions. Following Smith's program, Jim Nation, Pampa mayor, gave a brief resume of the March 8 bond election. Norman C. Henry, Pampa chamber of commerce president, presided over the Monday noon luncheon. Rev. J. W. Duke, pastor of First Christian church gave the invocation. Mrs. Bill Pearce entertained diners with organ music. The chamber's next luncheon will be Monday, March 7, with a program by the educational committee, W. A. Morgan, chairman.

DWI Charge Filed On Acee Gooden

A Pampa driver, Acee Phillip Gooden, 109 South Gillispie, was charged with driving while intoxicated following a minor accident Monday. Pampa police said Gooden backed into a parked car owned by O. F. Sheemaker, Box 2498 near the intersection of Kingsmill and Somerville streets. Only minor damage resulted to the parked car. Read The News Classified Ads stated that he noticed one member of the committee did not reside in the city. "I believe those outside who desire to put more taxes on the city should come into the city and participate in city taxes," Sidwell said. The commission today also referred two other proposals to the City and Five Government Committee. One had to do with a proposal to establish a community center building in Hollywood Park adjacent to Carver elementary school. Lewis McJunkins, Samuel Motley and Leslie McJunkins appeared and asked that the city buy a community center building at Bowers City and move it to the site. Entire cost of purchasing the building, moving it to Pampa and putting it in shape would be in the neighborhood of $6,000. McJunkins told the commission it was needed for youngsters of his community, to give them a place of recreation and keep them out of "beer joints." Also turned over to city staff members and the Government Cooperative Committee was a request of the Top O Texas Rodeo Association for renewal of the association's Recreation Park contract with the city and city participation in maintenance of the rodeo grandstands. The present contract expires at the end of this year and the rodeo group is seeking some city assistance in getting the stands repaired for this summer's rodeo. Wylle Reynolds and Bill Tidwell appeared for the Rodeo Association at today's council meeting. In other business, City Manager Jim White and staff members were asked to consider renewal of the Southwestern Public Service Co. contract for city street lighting. SWPS Manager Gordon Lyons told the commission the utility would like to modernize the entire city street lighting system by installation of mercury vapor lamps in place of incandescent lamps. In 1942, as President Franklin Roosevelt delivered one of his radio "fireside chats" to the nation, a Japanese submarine fired 25 shells at an oil refinery near Santa Barbara, Calif.

George Washington As A Guerrilla Fighter

By ROELIF LOVELAND
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Anyone who considers guerrilla warfare, such as that going on in Viet Nam, as something new facing our fighting men is mistaken by at least a couple of centuries.

George Washington was a pretty fair guerrilla fighter. He learned the trade from the American Indians long before the Revolutionary War and later utilized some of the hard lessons he was taught when he was fighting to establish this nation's independence.

The redskins knew it wasn't a smart idea to stand up in plain sight in parade-ground formation, sporting bright red in the retreat and added to his reputation as a cool leader under fire. He later wrote of the debacle:

"The folly and consequence of opposing compact bodies to the sparse manner of Indian fighting in woods, which had in a manner been predicted, was now so clearly verified that from hence forward another mode obtained in all future operations."

In other words, Braddock's textbook advance had made him a sitting duck.

Anyone hopeful of discovering a whole pocketful of guerrilla tactics encountered or employed by Washington is doomed to the war with the French: "We met here about 20 warriors who were going to the southward to war, but coming to a place upon the head of the Great Kunnaway, where they found seven people killed and scalped (all but one woman with very light hair) they turned about and ran back for fear the inhabitants should rise and take them as authors of the murder. They report that the bodies were lying about the house and some of them much torn and eaten by dogs. By the marks which were left, they say they were French Indians of the Ottawa nation, etc., who did it."

One suspects that George Washington, who cautioned against foreign involvement, might change his mind were he alive today. The problems of 1966 are not those of 1776 and today's world has shrunk to postage-stamp size.

Yet, though times and customs and weapons of war change, one thing remains true: The soldier's job, particularly in guerrilla war, is neither a pleasant nor an easy one. It never has been.

jackets, as the admittedly brave, but foolish, British did. Far better to get behind a tree or rock and let the enemy have it — a technique in which the Colonials already had considerable experience by the time Concord and Lexington rolled around.

Take the most famous example, which occurred in 1755 during the French and Indian War, when France and Britain were contesting for dominance in North America:

British General William Braddock started out to capture Fort Duquesne, an unfinished British fort taken over by the French on the present site of Pittsburgh, Pa. He was accompanied by Washington, a colonel in the Virginia militia, who had been over this route the summer before and had been forced to withdraw by the French after attempting a stand at Fort Necessity.

Braddock unfortunately committed the cardinal error of not sending out enough scouts. Ten miles from his objective he was ambushed by some 900 French and their Indian allies. Still in column formation and flanked on both sides, the British and Colonials lost 714 men. More than half the total force was killed or wounded, including 63 of the 89 officers.

Braddock was valiant — he had four horses shot out from under him — but he was mortally wounded and died four days later. Washington assisted failure, however. Biographies about the Father of His Country mention no bear traps buried in the forest, no sharpened stakes, no booby traps.

But they do reveal a man who could sleep safely in the snow while the man next to him froze all his fingers and toes, who knew that a little whisky and a few presents performed miracles in promoting amicable relations with Indians, who found out that a man could last a long time on short rations and that gentlemen with drill manuals didn't win guerrilla wars.

Most important of all, for his subsequent role as Commander-in-Chief of the Continental Army, he learned the value of innovation — the ability to seize opportunity, to put the enemy off-balance, to make the most of whatever advantage he had.

Washington's appreciation of the element of surprise is perhaps best exemplified by the successful use he put it to on the night of Dec. 24, 1776, when he crossed the ice-filled Delaware River, which common sense said couldn't be crossed, and whipped the Hessian garrison in Trenton.

The British were outraged. No gentleman would attack on Christmas Eve while decent men were taking their ease!

Then, as now, atrocities were part and parcel of guerrilla war, a fact apparent to Washington when he wrote after crossing the Alleghenies during

Quotes From The News

By United Press International
LONDON — Navy Minister Christopher Mayhew, who resigned his post and charged that Britain's defense policy is too dependent on the United States:

"By keeping quiet I would be sharing direct personal responsibility for decisions on defense which I am convinced are dangerously mistaken. . . . We cannot maintain a world role in the 1970s, including a presence East of Suez, on 2,000 million pounds ($5.6 billion) — not without excessive strain on the forces, or excessive dependence on the United States, or both."

SAIGON — Maj. Edith Nuttall, chief of nurses at the 3rd Field Hospital, commenting on the deaths in a helicopter crash of two nurses, the first U.S. servicewomen to die in the Viet Nam war:

"Both of these girls were such fine nurses. They were just about everything one would hope professional nurses to be. We're all very upset about this."

TOKYO — The communist New China News Agency, claiming the United States is having trouble finding foreign support for its activities in Viet Nam:

"Each country supporting the U.S. war effort has its own axe to grind. They are afraid to get hopelessly involved in the U.S. venture and become sacrificial objects for the U.S. funeral pyre."

Backstairs At The Whitehouse

By MERRIMAN SMITH
 UPI White House Reporter
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — Backstairs at the White House: The current Viet Nam policy hearings before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee bring to mind the vast amount of unsolicited advice President Johnson receives daily on how to run the war.

Members of the armed forces here and abroad are free to communicate with him and they do, as many as 80 to 100 letters a week. Johnson tries to read and answer many of these, but at times it is a heart-rending job.

Letters from servicemen in Viet Nam are for the most part supportive of United States policy there, but occasionally GI Joe has a gripe or a master plan for ending the war successfully. If the gripes seem at all reasonable, they are looked into promptly.

Commanding officers in the field may not be happy at all times by the thought of men under their direction being able to communicate directly with the commander-in-chief, but this has been an American way of life for many years. A soldier might write something utterly irresponsible from Viet Nam and if he knows about it, his commanding officer might try to talk him out of it. But woe betide an officer who tries to stop such a letter and Washington finds out about it.

Family Sorrows

Johnson wants his staff to pay particular attention to letters from dependents of servicemen. Some of these are so moving that the Chief Executive on occasion becomes quite emotional about them. When a son, sweetheart or husband has been hurt or killed in Southeast Asia, his women-folks at times write rather poignant letters to the White House.

Letters of this type come from service families of other countries involved in Viet Nam, almost as if the writers feared no one would know about their sad contributions to the war.

RAIN: MARS VISIT

S. T. JOHN'S, Antigua, Leeward Islands (UPI) — Unseasonable rain Sunday marred the arrival of Queen Elizabeth II on Antigua, latest call on her tour of the British West Indies.

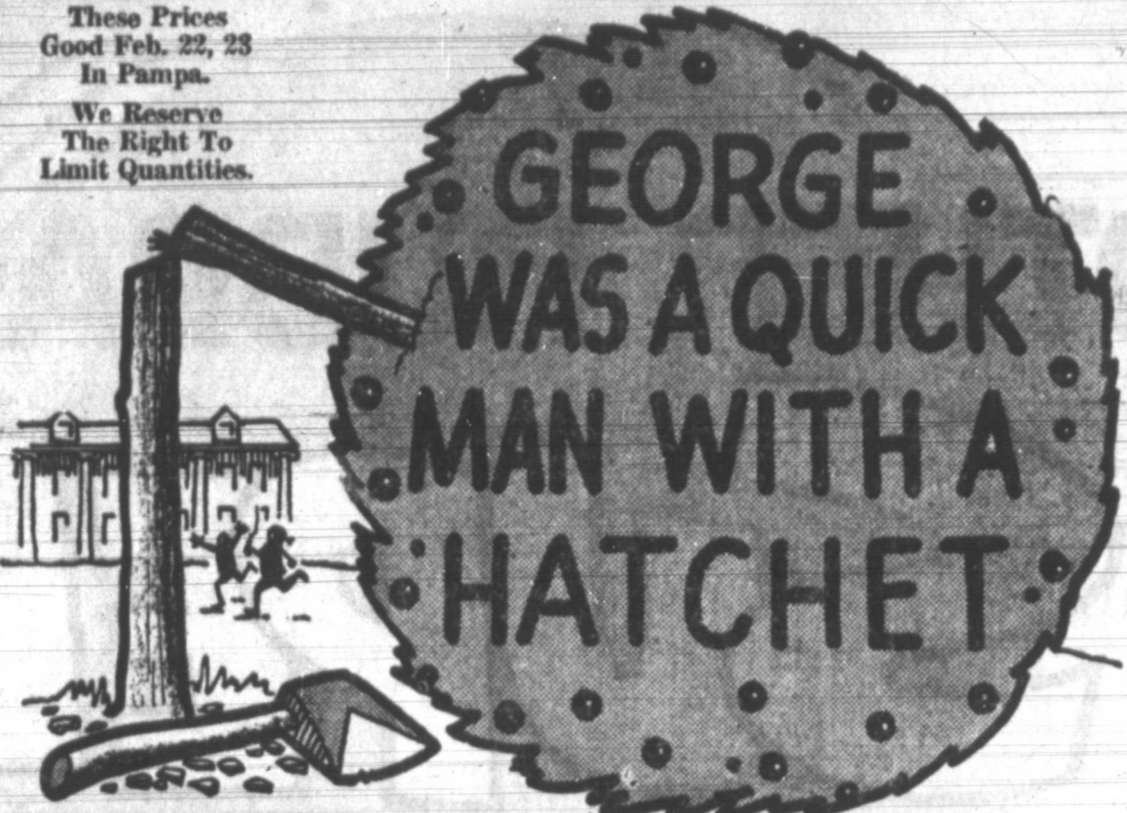

The rain held off as the Queen drove with Prince Philip, in an open red sedan through cheering crowds after arriving from Montserrat aboard the royal yacht Britannia.
