James Cross Receives Life for Coed Murder

'I Feel It Is A Fair Verdict' -- Accused

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — James C. Cross Jr., a former University of Texas English major, faced life imprisonment today for the strangling of a coed.

Cross, 23, sighed and smiled broadly at his lawyers after the 11-man, one-woman jury announced his penalty late Tuesday.

"I feel it is a fair verdict," Cross said to Dist. Judge Mace Thurman just before formal sentencing.

Cross was accused of strangling Susan Rigsby and Shirley Ann Stark, both 21, last July 18 in a sexual frenzy. He was tried only for the slaying of Miss Rigsby. The state said the coeds were killed after they stopped at Cross' apartment to refresh after a 200-mile drive from Dallas.

The jury deliberated two hours and 34 minutes over the issue of guilt or innocence then, under terms of Texas' new code of Criminal procedure, heard more evidence then deliberated another hour to decide Cross' punishment.

Dist. Atty. Tom Blackwell originally sought to send Cross to the electric chair. But he did not press for the death penalty in his final argument.

"The facts testify and demand the death penalty," said Blackwell. "But life in prison would be acceptable. This defendant must be permanently isolated from society," he said. Perry L. Jones, chief defense counsel, told the jurors he could not ask them for a "not guilty" verdict. He promised if the jury would see that Cross got life instead of death the sentence would not be appealed.

Egypt Strains US Relations

CAIRO (UPI) —Diplomatic observers said today Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser's latest anti-American threats could lead to a crisis in relations between the United States and United Arab Republic.

The Arab leader, in an address Tuesday night marking Unity Day—the eighth anniversary of the unsuccessful 1958 union of Egypt and Syria—also threatened to renew the war in the Yemen.

Nasser speaking at Cairo University, lashed out at the United States for providing Israel with military aid. He threatened a "preventive" war if Israel began attempts to develop nuclear weapons.

The Arab leader said U.S. aid to Israel showed "a policy antagonistic to Arab nations and the Arab people." He was believed referring to recent reports that the United States was supplying Israel with 200 Patton tanks.

The unusually tough speech indicated that Nasser was returning to the offensive in Arab politics. He said Israel could not develop nuclear arms without help from the West.

Nasser also had used the term "preventive war" with Israel in a recent interview with Iraqi journalists.

Nasser also threatened to keep his troops in Yemen for as long as five years. He accused Saudi Arabia King Faisal of financing a plot against the U.A.R.

BULLET WOUND FATAL

Gallant Fight For Life Ends For John Marsh

Johnny Marsh died this morning.

The Pampa youth, 15-year-old son of High School Principal and Mrs. Cameron Marsh, 2100 Evergreen, had lingered near death in Northwest Hospital in Amarillo following an accidental shooting in Pampa early Saturday night. His death climaxed a three-day fight for life in the hospital's intensive care unit. Doctors did not think he would live more than several hours after he was admitted to the hospital.

Young Marsh was accidentally shot in the head by a 22-caliber target pistol at the home of Ray Dudley, 700 N. Somerset, shortly after 7:30 p.m. Dudley is the owner of the Ray Dudley Motor Co.

Dudley's son Gary, 15, a friend of Marsh, was with the youth when the shooting occurred. The two boys were alone in the home preparing to spend the night with friends when the accidental shooting took place.

Gary said Marsh was playing with the gun before it discharged, sending a slug into his brain. The bullet entered above the youth's right eye, and lodged in his brain, severing the spinal chord. Police investigators said the bullet split on entry, a piece of the slug was found in the Dudley bathroom.

Young Dudley said the youth was twirling the Ruger target pistol before the shooting. "I guess he thought the gun was on safety." When I went into the bathroom to clean up, Johnny was playing and twirling it. I told him it was dangerous to do that and to be careful or something might happen. Then I heard the shot and turned around. Johnny staggered and fell to the floor. I asked him if he was hurt bad. He rubbed his hand across his eye and collapsed.

Johnny was president of his homeroom and played on the school's sophomore basketball team. Marsh played with Dudley in the high school band and as members of a small combo. Parents of the boys had no knowledge of the gun. Young Marsh bought from a 16-year-old schoolmate. The youth who sold Marsh the gun bought it from another 15-year-old who slipped it out of his father's house, police said today.

Funeral services for the youth will be at 4:30 p.m. tomorrow in Carmichael-Whitley Colonial Chapel. Rev. Donald S. Hauck, pastor of First Presbyterian Church, will officiate. Interment will be in Austin Cemetery under direction of Carmichael-Whitley Funeral Directors.

Any memorials should be made in the form of donations to their favorite charity or scholarship fund.

Marsh was a member of First Presbyterian Church. Survivors, in addition to his parents include a brother, Randy Marsh of the home, and grandparents, Mrs. Dan Cameron of Pampa and Mrs. and Mrs. Harold C. Marsh of Silver Springs, Md.

Pallbearers will be George Bailey, Carl Lang, Johnnie Carlos, Alvin Aachord, Jim Cornutt, Rick Foster, Moody Meixner and Buddy Newton, all members of the Pampa High School Shocker basketball team.

Other members of the Shocker basketball team and members of the Harvester basketball team will serve as honorary pallbearers.

Officials Ponder Which Satellite To Launch First

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — Space officials meet late today to clear up a weather-scrambled launching schedule by deciding whether to proceed with the launch of a Tiro storm hunter satellite or the first Apollo spaceship Thursday.

Both are tentatively scheduled for Thursday morning launches, but only one can go. Apollo has priority but needs mostly clear skies for camera coverage. Tiro can be launched in cloudy weather.

The unmanned three-seat Apollo spaceship had been scheduled for launch on a sub-orbital test flight today atop a Saturn IB rocket. But the countdown was halted Tuesday night because of a thick overcast that would have blocked launch photography.

CRASH SCENE — Two Pampa area men were injured in an early-morning collision four miles southwest of Pampa on a country road intersection. This Phillips Pipeline pickup wreckage gives mute testimony to the force of the crash that sent its driver, O. L. Cheyning, 1041 Banks, to Highland General Hospital. Driver of the other auto involved, L. E. Hutchinson, Pampa, was taken to an Amarillo hospital. Investigation Highway Patrolman Stanley Schneider said the two men suffered only minor injuries in the 7:45 a.m. collision.

Negro Gang Attacks Group Of Spectators

SOUTHWEST TEXAS BELTED

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Police said a gang of Negroes, swinging fists and slashing knives, charged a group of spectators leaving a basketball game Tuesday night and stabbed seven white teen-agers.

Patrolman Tom Vernon said attackers, in a group described by officers as a "large crowd," charged through the spectators and apparently stabbed or struck individuals at random. One of the injured, Leon B. Pierce, 18, was hospitalized in critical condition with stab wounds in his stomach and back. Police said several other persons were reported struck by rocks, but did not require medical aid.

The incident took place at Douglas High School gymnasium after Douglas, an all-Negro school, defeated predominantly white Putnam City High School, 67-57, for Oklahoma's Mid-State Conference championship. Police were unable to determine what might have triggered the attack which occurred Sunday night. (See GANG, Page 3)

Worst Snowstorm In 17-Years Hits State

The worst snowstorm in 17 years belted Southwest Texas today, leaving as much as 14 inches of snow, death and bitter cold.

Snow covered the state from the Red River to Alice in deep South Texas. At least 11 deaths were attributed to the storm. The U.S. Weather Bureau said the 34 inches of snow in San Antonio was the heaviest amount since 47 inches fell Jan. 30, 1949.

The snow was slowly moving out of the state from west to east, but the U.S. Weather Bureau, in a five-day forecast, said snow could be expected in North Texas again at the week's end.

Sub-freezing temperatures were forecast tonight for the lower Rio Grande Valley, threatening the region's multi-million dollar citrus and vegetable crops.

Highways were hazardous in every portion of the state except the northwest, where skies were clear.

The leading edge of the storm that struck Texas and Arkansas was spreading into Tennessee and the Weather Bureau said roads were dangerous in a 200-mile wide belt from Tennessee into Southwest Texas.

Hundreds of schools were closed in Texas, including the University of Texas at Austin. The worst traffic accident killed four persons at Bremond Tuesday night. Another early today on an icy Dallas street killed Eva Forrest, 33, in a two-car collision. A Dallas baby died of exposure.

State Prepares New Forms for Sign Up

AUSTIN (UPI) — Forms to register Texas voters who did not pay their poll tax were being prepared today for each county under a new voter registration law enacted Tuesday by a special session of the 59th Legislature.

The Senate put the finishing touches to the emergency voter registration plan to replace the poll tax at mid-afternoon by accepting minor changes placed on the bill by the House.

Following that unanimous 28-0 vote in the Senate, Gov. John Connally in a brief speech to a joint session congratulated lawmakers for a "job well done" and told them their work was finished.

Thus, the special session which could have run 30 full days under the call, lasted only 10 days. It opened on Feb. 14 for the specific purpose to write a new voter registration law after a federal court in Austin ruled the poll tax unconstitutional as a prerequisite to vote in Texas.

The decision by Connally not to extend the subject matter of the special session was popular with legislators, many of whom need to get back home and resume campaigns for re-election. They loudly applauded the decision when Connally announced it to them.

The governor commended lawmakers for the bill which he said would provide "honest and fair" elections. He said the bill "provides strong protection against fraud and dishonest elections."

"The law you have passed will in my mind turn out to be one of the best voter registration bills in the nation," Connally said.

The new act will go into effect as soon as Connally signs it, which probably will be Thursday.

The first impact of it will be the calling of a special 15-day period for any eligible voter who failed to purchase a poll tax to register. This will begin seven days after Connally signs the act into law.

Veteran observers estimate that around 75,000 persons would register during that special period.

Secretary of State Crawford Martin prepared special kits with instructions to the 254 county tax assessor-collectors to handle the special registration. Most counties should receive the kits by the end of the week.

These emergency registrants will be eligible to vote, however, only if the U.S. Supreme Court fails to delay the effect of the federal district court ruling that outlawed the poll tax, or if the high court upholds that action.

Otherwise, if the Supreme Court grants the state a stay to delay the effect of the ruling, the only eligible voters in Texas this year will be those who paid the poll tax before the Jan. 31 deadline.

Under the new law, Texas voters will register each year between Oct. 1 and Jan. 31 either by mail or with their county tax assessor collector. Or, the county registrar can (See VOTER, Page 3)

Harold Barrett, local auto dealer, was named Boss of the Year last night at the sixth annual American Business Women's Association Bosses Night Banquet in Starlight Room of Coronado Inn.

Barrett was nominated by his secretary, Miss Maxine Nabors. The winning letter of nomination was selected by a panel of judges composed of J. C. Roberts, Floyd Watson and Ken Womac.

Rep. Walter Rogers, banquet speaker, stated "The government of America will be preserved if the people will meet their responsibility."

Rep. Rogers told of the need for water in this area and mentioned several plans that had been proposed in the past to (See BARRETT, Page 3)

Humphrey Home From World Trek

SEOUL — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey today ended his 41-thousand-mile, nine-month swing through Asia and the Pacific. He flew home from his last stop reportedly carrying a promise of more Korean troops to fight in Viet Nam.

At 7 a.m. the precipitation band across Texas extended from near Paris to Corsicana to Cotulla to Eagle Pass.

Highways were hazardous in every portion of the state except the northwest, where skies were clear.

The leading edge of the storm that struck Texas and Arkansas was spreading into Tennessee and the Weather Bureau said roads were dangerous in a 200-mile wide belt from Tennessee into Southwest Texas.

Capsule View of Provisions In New Voter Registration

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Here is a capsule view of the provisions of Texas new annual voter registration law, finally passed Tuesday by the Texas Legislature in special session:

—Voters register each year, with the county "registrar," who is the county tax assessor-collector.

—Registration can be done by mail or in person.

—The law prohibits "roving deputies" and says a tax collector can name deputies as he sees fit, but they must stay in one place designated on a list in his office. If they move, they must post the new location on the list.

—Nobody can act as an agent to register somebody else, unless the agent is a member of the immediate family of the person registering. But a county registrar can name deputies to help, such as with an entire family of illiterates or aged people.

—For the emergency of this year's elections, registration will open up for a 14-day period, starting seven days after Gov. John Connally signs the bill into law. If the courts should refuse to delay the final decision outlawing the poll tax, these emergency registrants could vote this year.

—The state will pay each county 25 cents per voter each year to pay for elections, previously financed with the poll tax.

—Those who have paid their poll tax for this year's elections are eligible to vote, regardless of what the courts do now.

SUPPORTS RED CHINA SEATING IN UN

Churches Urge Reversal of China Policy

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — The general board of the National Council of Churches, a body representing 40 million Protestant and Orthodox Christians in the United States, has called for a major reversal of U.S. policy toward mainland China as a policy statement of church leaders of 30 major communions, rather than a statement on behalf of all church members. The three dissenting votes were cast by laymen and an Armenian church leader from New Jersey abstained.

Several other policy statements were scheduled for today, including one on Rhodesia, the African nation which declared its independence from Great Britain.

The board said its recommendations on China were made "as Christians and therefore as witnesses to a Lord who reconciles us all" while recognizing "the increasing belligerence of mainland China."

It called upon President Johnson to appoint a commission to examine American relations with China.

The commission "should be asked to formulate resolutions for public and government consideration based upon intensive study and wide consultation taking into account the studies and resolutions of the churches on this issue."

Chicago Salesman Relates Harrowing Tale of Being Kidnaped by Jail Fugitives

CHICAGO (UPI) —A young salesman sat on a sofa in his suburban home today and talked about the "punks" who invaded his home and held him and his family hostage.

The "punks" were fugitives from the Cook County jail.

Eugene Copp, 35, seated beside his wife, revealed how the two fugitives who intruded into their suburban Lyons home were talked out of harming the family, which includes six children.

Once, Copp said, the fugitives "froticked" with some of the children.

Copp was kidnaped at gunpoint Monday by Louis Stamas, 37, Berwyn, Ill., and Mark J. Clancy, 28, Chicago, police said, after they and two other prisoners broke out of jail and commandeered a sheriff's wagon. All four have been captured.

Dressed in the prison guard uniforms of the men they overpowered in their escape, Stamas and Clancy entered Copp's auto in front of a South Side bowling alley. They ordered him to drive to the Copp home.

"I told these guys that I'd do anything, just don't hurt the kids," Copp recalled.

Police said today they would question the blond, teenage girl friend of Stamas to try and determine how a snub-nosed pistol was smuggled to him at the jail.

Stamas and Clancy, joined by Dennis Baker, 21, Chicago, and Edward W. Shriner, 22, Blue Island, Ill., made their way along the corridors of the jail overpowering guards as they went and slipping into their uniforms.

Making their way to the jail parking lot, the men took attendant William Bailey as a hostage and drove off in the sheriff's wagon.

Once outside, the group split into pairs.

Stamas and Clancy left the Copp home after dark. They were spotted by police in a taxicab this morning and police picked them up without incident.

A police chase netted the other two prisoners, Baker and Shriner, when the two were seen driving a stolen car on the northwest side of Chicago.

US Army Troops Storm Two Viet Cong Strongholds

SAIGON (UPI) — Two divisions of U.S. Army troops today overran two longtime Viet Cong strongholds in widely separated regions of South Viet Nam after heavy earlier fighting, but found the Communists had fled.

The troops were from the 1st Infantry Division, taking part in Operation Mastiff about 31 miles northwest of Saigon, and the 1st Cavalry (Airmobile), engaged in Operation White Wing-Masher about 300 miles northeast of the capital.

A U.S. military spokesman said the infantrymen seized an abandoned Viet Cong regimental base camp after heavy shelling and air attacks in an area thick with underbrush and dotted with rubber plantations north of Saigon.

The cavalry troops captured a Viet Cong stronghold near Bong Son far to the northeast after four days of ground assaults and air and artillery barrages. The Communists apparently had retreated to a nearby jungle in both regions.

Speaking on the work of the CATV in regard to the Federal Communications Commission, Rep. Rogers said, "The television cable has been discussed by the people of Pampa and surrounding areas. Congress must now determine whether the cable system is to be government-controlled. The issue could be one of the biggest matters on the domestic level this year.

Commenting on the international scene, Rogers said: "Man, in order to remain free is going to constantly face the challenge we face today. The challenge in Viet Nam is the challenge to freedom and the dignity of man."

"The future of our country depends on what we teach our children to do", Rogers stated. "The United States was catapulted into world leadership by World War II. Our government is being challenged at this time, because we assumed that position. We must pay the price of leadership for we can expect the challenge to continue. Man, in order to remain free, must also continue to face the challenge of freedom. There will be no time to set back and relax from the battle against Communism.

Two Pampans To Enter Pleas On Assault Charge

Two Pampans will enter not guilty pleas to aggravated assault charges filed in Carson County Court against four Pampans following an alleged attack on a White Deer man Sunday.

Ray Brewer, 27; George Hollis, 25; James Pitcock, 23; and Donald Miller, 24, all of Pampa, were charged after their arrest at a road block set up between White Deer and Pampa. The men allegedly attacked Jerry Braddock in the early morning hours Sunday in White Deer.

Pampa Attorney Harold L. Comer will represent Hollis and Miller. Comer said Tuesday the two will plead guilty to the charge. Comer said Brewer and Pitcock did not as yet have counsel and that he did not know what their pleas will be.

According to Braddock, he and his wife had stopped in White Deer to talk to another couple when a car with four men pulled up beside their car. The men got out, used abusive language and proposed a drag race or a fight. Two of the men came over to the Braddock car and one of the men slapped Braddock. When he got out of his car, Braddock was held down while the other man hit him, tearing his coat off in the assault. A friend of the Braddocks, Mrs. Buck Lavake drove to summon police aid.

A road block was set up between White Deer and Pampa where the patrol was forced to shoot the left front tire to stop the suspected assailants.

County Attorney Frank Dove filed aggravated assault charges against the four in Panhandle Monday. One thousand dollar bonds were posted by each of the quartet who had employed Pampa lawyers to defend them.

County Attorney Dove said the assault charge carries punishments of a fine of not less than $25 and up to one thousand dollars plus court costs or jail sentences of no less than one month and not more than two years.

Some of those injured told police they were dejected by Negroes who were in the midst of the crowd as the attackers ran through the group of spectators. Police said they received estimates of the size of the gang ranging from 30 to 40 to as many as 75 to 100.

John Stark, a sports reporter for the Oklahoma Journal, said he also saw a "gang of white thugs" clustered at exits of the gym, taunting spectators as they left.

In addition to Pierce, president of the Putnam student body, other treated for injuries included Don C. Cornett, 16; Rolly Kent Beardshaw, 16; Joe Davis Norvell, 15; Ted Allen Richardson, 16, and two teenagers who were not identified.

LUCKY STRIKE

Walter Rogers Reports: Stop Aid to Communist Nations

Two weeks ago I introduced legislation in the House of Representatives to cut off U.S. foreign aid to countries maintaining diplomatic or trade relations with the Communist regime in North Viet Nam. Since then, I have been encouraged by many expressions of support not only from citizens of the Texas Panhandle but also from Members of Congress and Americans from other sections of the country. I am continuing to press for early adoption of this measure.

My resolution states "that it is the sense of Congress that all United States military and economic assistance should be suspended to every country which maintains diplomatic relations with North Viet Nam or is itself directly engaged in trade or commerce with North Viet Nam or permits ships or aircraft under its registry to engage in trade or commerce with North Viet Nam."

We are battling in South Viet Nam as elsewhere in the world to contain Communism. Any assistance given Communism or Communist-dominated countries is a direct blow at the United States — which is in too many instances providing help to countries which in turn help Communist countries. By law, the United States prohibits virtually all trade, shipping, and financial transactions with Communist China, North Korea, North Viet Nam and Cuba. Yet these Communist countries, as others, are the recipients of assistance through commercial relations with countries who are themselves receiving direct U.S. foreign aid.

During 1965, the U.S. Government made diplomatic approaches to Free World countries with ships in the North Vietnamese trade asking their cooperation in stopping this trade. Free World shipping aid declined. For example, Japanese flag vessels were withdrawn as of April 1, 1965. There is still progress to be made. I am advised that Free World imports to North Viet Nam consist mainly of chemicals (primarily fertilizers), machines, and industrial raw materials — and these indeed, may be considered strategic, although any and all articles helping Communism to survive are strategic.

Standing behind the North Vietnamese regime is the world's leading outlaw nation, Communist China. It is discouraging to note that trade by Free World countries with Communist China increased during 1964, when the Viet Nam war was growing hotter, rather than decreased. Latest reports show that imports to Communist China from the Free World rose by 22 percent to $977 million — while the exports of the Chinese Reds for the first time exceeded one billion dollars. In 1964, seven countries, which sold $50 million or more each to mainland China, provided nearly three quarters of that country's imports. Australia and Japan led the list following in order of Purists in the art of political science no doubt will deplore the effort of American maritime unions to establish a positive police against allies of the United States whose ships trade with the North Viet Nam Communists.

The purists will recall that the conduct of foreign relations is assigned by the U.S. Constitution to the president, with occasional reference to the U.S. Senate.

The Maritime Trades Department of the AFL-CIO has called on its 29 member unions to boycott all ships of any country whose vessels trade with North Viet Nam. Not all American citizens will deplore this direction action on the docks.

Least likely to deplore the boycott will be the parents, wives and children of American men now serving in Southeast Asia or who were killed, wounded or missing in action there. This aspect of the situation will not be missed by LBJ. The politically sensitive President is reputed to keep both ears to the ground at all times to detect changes in the vibrations of popular opinion.

Sufficient publicity of the extent of free world trade with North Viet Nam is likely to set up vibrations easily detected by a politician through the soles of his feet. The citizens will be astonished to learn, no doubt, that British flag ships are the free world leaders in trade with North Viet Nam. A list of free world ships arriving in North Viet Nam last year appeared in the Congressional Record on last Feb. 7.

goods supplied by Canada, Argentina, Cuba, the United Kingdom, and France.

The strongest Communist power, and our principal opponent in the Cold War, remains the Soviet Union. Imports of the Soviet Union from the Free World totaled $2.5 billion in 1964 — a gain of 20 per cent over 1963. Soviet exports, at $2.4 billion, remained at about the 1963 level. Soviet purchases of wheat and wheat flour rose to more than $480 million in 1964, and as a result of a sharp increase in Soviet purchases of wheat, Canada became in 1964 the principal Free World supplier to the USSR. I have always opposed wheat sales to the Soviet Union and to other Communist countries and will continue to do so. Again, most items shipped to Communist lands to make up deficits in their production may certainly be regarded as strategic; without Free World help in supplying wheat, the failures of Soviet agriculture would have forced a severe slackening in the entire USSR economy.

In the world-wide struggle with Communism, we are only hurting ourselves when we help other countries which are helping our enemies.

Massive Federal Attack On Highway Accident Proposed

By ROBERT COCHNAR

Newspaper Enterprise Assn. NEW YORK — (NEA) — Unless the federal government does something soon, deaths from motor vehicle accidents will reach 100,000 a year by 1975 — double the present auto death rates.

The prediction was made today by the American Trial Lawyers Assn. in a "white paper" which urged Washington to take steps to stop the carnage on the highways.

The group of 20,000 attorneys also asked the federal government to appoint a national "safety czar" to co-ordinate a comprehensive highway safety program.

Joseph Keiner, association president, charged it was an "undeniable fact" that the federal government had "no plan" to cope with the highway slaughter.

But a plan of some kind may soon be in the offing. In his State of the Union address, President Johnson said he will propose a "Highway Safety Act of 1966 to seek an end to this mounting tragedy." The act, not yet written, is expected to be sent to Congress within two months.

The Trial Lawyers' report, titled "Stop Murder by Motor," is the first step of a national educational campaign planned by the association in an effort to curb highway deaths.

The study reported that while 605,000 Americans have died in all wars from the Revolution to Viet Nam, road deaths in this country have totaled 1.5 million in only 25 years.

The number of persons injured in highway accidents in one year (1964) is the same number as the total beds in all United States hospitals — 1.7 million, the study revealed.

While criticizing the apparent lack of federal interest in highway safety, the association also blasts automobile and tire manufacturers for their "lack of concern for safety" and recommends that the federal government set minimum safety standards for design and maintenance of all vehicles and equipment as "it has already done for planes, ships and trains."

Other recommendations made by the Trial Lawyers include: The creation of a Federal Bureau of Driver Licensing to provide federal control of licensing and ensure uniform standards.

Mandatory physical and eye examinations of drivers every three years, raising the minimum age limit for drivers to 18, except for 16-year-olds who have passed certified driver education courses.

Lowering the blood alcohol level at which drivers are assumed to be drunk to .10 per cent and adopting an "Implied Consent Law" under which a driver charged with drinking would be compelled to undergo an alcohol test or forfeit his license.

Mandatory safety design features in all cars sold in the United States. Such features would include padded head supports to prevent "whiplast" injuries; safety wheels; disc brakes and dual braking systems; head and tail lights; hydraulic bumpers; elimination of X-frames; permanent flashing warning systems for emergencies.

Grand Dragon Of Texas Klan To Speak in Austin

AUSTIN (UPI)—The grand dragon of the Texas Ku Klux Klan will speak at 7:10 p.m. today on the University of Texas campus, an appearance at first refused by university officials.

Royce McPhail will make his appearance in the main ballroom of the Texas Union under sponsorship of the men's section of the Student Christian Association. He will speak on "The Communist Menace in America."

Dean of Students Edwin B. Price refused permission for use of university facilities for the speech last month on grounds the Klan was classified by the government as a "subversive organization."

Vice-Chancellor Norman A. Hackerman overruled Price a few days later in the face of student and faculty protests and said there was nothing in university rules to prevent the student group from sponsoring the appearance.

Hackerman said the ruling was not to be construed "as an endorsement of the speaker's statements or views."

It was back in October of 1956 at the Soviet Communist party's 20th congress that then-Premier Nikita Khrushchev coupled a denunciation of Josef Stalin with a challenge to the capitalist world to all-out economic competition under the heading of co-existence.

The 21st congress, in January, 1959, saw the denunciation of the "anti-party" group and the introduction of a seven-year plan which was to produce the highest per capita production in Europe by the end of 1965 and in the world by 1970.

Denunciation of the anti-party group resulted in the exile or removal from power of seven men formerly high in Soviet councils, including former premiers Bulganin, Molotov and Melnikov.

Split Emerges
The 22nd congress, in October, 1961, followed the usual pattern of politics and economics in almost equal mixture.

The quarrel between the Soviet Union and Red China began emerging into public view and to the long-suffering Soviet people Khrushchev made another of the pie-in-the-sky promises for which he was to become famous.

His economic program declared. "In the current decade (1961-1970) the Soviet Union will surpass the strongest and richest capitalist country, the United States, in production per head of population . . . everyone will live in easy circumstances, all collective and state farms will become high productive and profitable enterprises, the demand for well-appointed housing will, in the main be satisfied, hard physical work will disappear, the U.S.S.R. will become the country with the shortest workday . . ."

Soviet party congresses, usually attended by more than 1,200 delegates plus representatives of Communist parties throughout the world, are more noted for color than their debate and since 1961 none has been held.

Humphrey Fails On Bid to Win India's Support

NEW DELHI (UPI)—Prime Minister Mrs. Indira Gandhi said today Vice President Hubert Humphrey had unsuccessfully sought support for the American position in Viet Nam during his recent visit to India.

She said she did not pledge India's support because of "India's position as a non-aligned country."

In remarks before parliament, Mrs. Gandhi also said "there is no truth" to reports that she had ordered Indian government ministers not to criticize U.S. Viet Nam policy.

She said Humphrey explained the U.S. position in Viet Nam and "expressed the hope that we would do everything possible to facilitate a peaceful solution of the problem."

"We expressed our concern at the danger of escalation of the conflict and our anxiety that a peaceful solution should be found for which the framework of the Geneva agreement formed the best basis," Mrs. Gandhi said.

STOP MURDER BY MOTOR

A STUDY OF SLAUGHTER ON THE HIGHWAY AND WHAT YOU CAN DO ABOUT IT

PUBLISHED AS A PUBLIC SERVICE BY THE AMERICAN TRIAL LAWYERS ASSOCIATION

This is the cover of the sweeping study made by the American Trial Lawyers Association.

Mandatory inspection of all motor vehicles twice yearly. National traffic codes, highway signs, traffic control devices and accident reporting centers with uniform accident report forms. Pointing out that there are no "state boundaries" for automobile travel, the association said that auto safety regulations could properly be made by the federal government without raising "states' rights" controversies.

The far-ranging report warned that improper auto design and driver failure are the underlying causes of most serious accidents. It noted that while the "drinking driver," the young and the aged have a higher proportion of accidents than other groups, "most traffic accidents happen to respectable, normal people driving on normal roads, the responsible, up-standing citizen and decent driver who makes an error in judgment or neglects good driving habits."

No Escape From Electric Eye

MAY DE CRANE
NEA Special Writer
WASHINGTON (NEA) — One of Internal Revenue Service's best kept secrets can now be told.

As recently as two years ago IRS was warning taxpayers that all dividend payment slips sent in by corporations and all interest payment slips returned by financial institutions were matched against income tax returns. The threat was obvious: These amounts had better appear on your tax return or you were in trouble.

Through numerous contacts in IRS the writer knew otherwise. Most of these report slips remained in their packing cartons in revenue offices. The facilities simply were not available to do the matching.

Because of the real danger of upsetting the nation's tax collection machinery the story was never printed. And millions of extra tax dollars were paid on those dividends and savings interest figures.

The story can be reported now with this real word disclosure from this writer:

IRS today CAN match all your payment slips with your tax returns and will be doing it this year.

This does not necessarily mean that IRS has abandoned the old-fashioned honor system in the collection and reporting of taxes. It does mean that your today's modern computer equipment makes it possible to perform many operations impossible until now.

"The taxpayer who continues to use his previous year's tax return as a reference simply because he was never questioned before is living in a fool's paradise."

The speaker was John P. McKay, assistant director of the latest IRS service center now going into operation in Cincinnati, Ohio.

This center will computer-audit all individual income tax returns originating in Ohio, West Virginia, Virginia and Kentucky. It is one of several such installations around the country.

Here's what happens to your return in a service center: Key punch operators transfer all the pertinent information from your return — including salary or wages, extra income, dividends, interest, plus all your deductions and your claimed exemptions — onto coded cards. These cards are fed at the rate of 10,000 an hour into the computers.

Mathematical errors are no problem. The computers, which have a vast memory for all tax rates and tax tables, can correct your mistakes. But the stumbling blocks are incorrect Social Security numbers, failure to report all items of income, failure to check the appropriate blocks on your return, claiming a $600 exemption for more persons than you have listed.

The equipment refuses to digest incorrect or garbled information. Your return will go on to an error tape and you will receive a letter from IRS. This may advise you to supply the missing data, correct the mis-information or to come to the IRS office for a consultation.

"Bear in mind," said McKay, "that the punch card operator can code only what she reads on your return. If you write or print your H's like S's on your return she will start your last name with the S instead of an H. If your figure 3 looks like the figure 8 she will record the wrong Social Security number for you. If you print the names of three dependent children and then record 2 dependents in the appropriate margin she will have to copy that identical information on the card. This is what throws a monkey wrench into the machinery.

"Formerly our examiners could detect and change such obvious errors. That is why I advise ignoring your previous year's returns and starting from scratch each year.

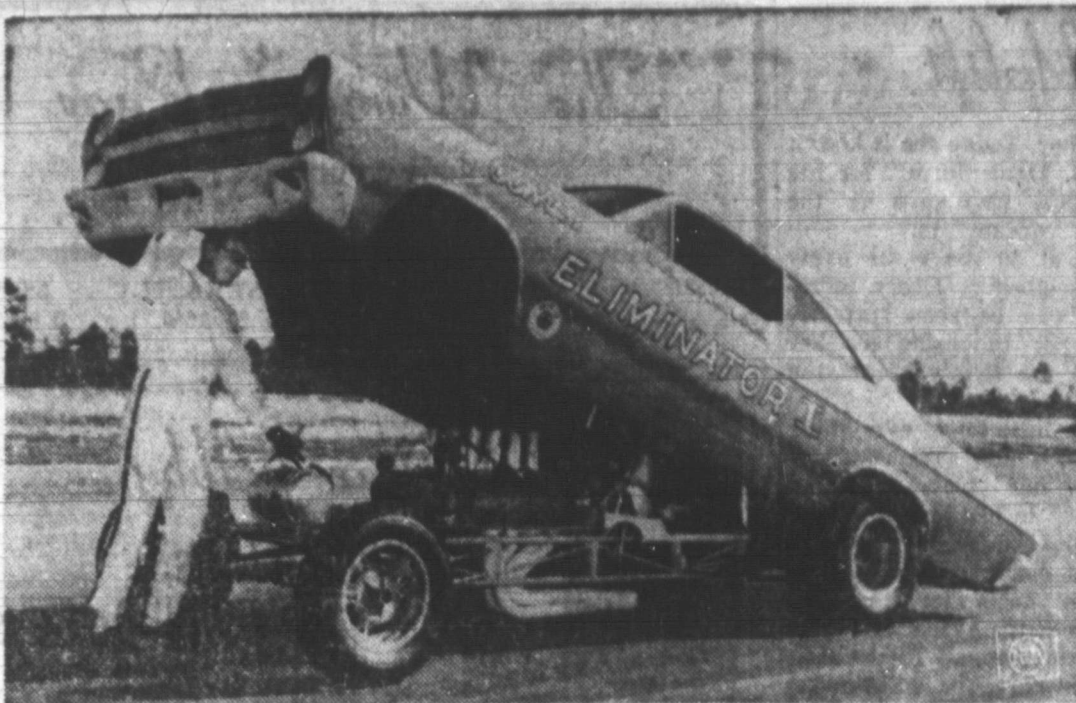

"Don't copy your Social Security number from last year's return. Maybe it didn't make any difference last year if you had the wrong number because we were not matching yet. Look at your Social Security card first and report the number from that."

Television in Review

By RICK DU BROW
United Press International
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Television's major entertainment moment of the season arrived Monday night: A one-hour CBS-TV musical special trying to capture the spirit of Harlem in the 1920s, and starring Sidney Poitier, Diahann Carroll, Sammy Davis Jr. and Duke Ellington and his orchestra.

As of now, this is the show to beat in all the year-end awards. The only other music or variety program in the same league thus far was Frank Sinatra's one-man performance for NBC-TV. And Barbra Streisand, who starred in last season's finest entertainment broadcast, has another annual hour coming up soon, also on CBS-TV.

The executive producer of Monday night's Harlem-set program, "The Strollin' 20s," was Harry Belafonte, who created the broadcast, packaged it and served simply as the host who made the introduction. If a show is so good that it doesn't need a Harry Belafonte performing in it, you can get a pretty fair idea of its quality. In his one stroke, Belafonte did more to upgrade the falling New York image in network television entertainment production than anyone in years.

The backbone of the hour was the script by poet-playwright-journalist Langston Hughes, an evocative, lyrical piece of writing full of love for its subject. The chief speaker of the words was Poitier—"The Stroller," described by Hughes as "a philosophical narrator taking us on a tour of Harlem, who acts as a bridge for the scenes and musical numbers." In short, this was no "and now folks we'd like you to meet Mary Sunshine" type of variety outing.

According to Hughes, "Mr. Belafonte contacted me after reading my autobiography, 'The Big Sea.' It contains a section on New York's Harlem in the '20s, when the area became established as the center of Negro culture. We discussed the idea of a television special."

With producer Phil Stein and director Charles Dubin hewing to the most tasteful sort of concept—and presenting a show that was beautiful to look at even from just a visual viewpoint, and that passed up an audience or laugh track—the hour got off to a fast start with a zestful mood-setting production number, "Strollin'."

From there on, the show was loosely divided into these segments: A rent party; a section recalling Harlem-type theatrical entertainment of the period; an exquisite sad-happy sequence built around the miseries and desperate joys of family life in the area; and finally a scene with the Ellington orchestra at a jazz spot.

NEW YORK—Steel output increased 1.8 per cent last week, the American Iron & Steel Institute reported, but output is still running behind the year ago level.

Production for the year-to-date lagged 9.1 per cent behind 1965.

Construction spending in January rose 3 per cent from the December level, the Commerce Department reported. Seasonally adjusted figures showed a record annual pace of $74.061 billion, up from the $71.748 billion reported in December.

American Motors Corp. began a two week suspension of production Monday with layoffs affecting 15,000 workers in the company's Kenosha and Milwaukee plants. The shutdown marks AMC's second suspension in two months because of lagging sales.

WASHINGTON —The upward spiral of factory wages has been tapering off in recent years, the Labor Department reports. Annual pay increases for the 12.5 million most strongly unionized factory workers have averaged 2.9 per cent for the past five years, compared with 4 per cent yearly during the preceding years.

There's a Fortune in Uplift

INTRODUCED UPLIFT — Petite Mrs. Ida Rosenthal, 80, is the young-at-heart chairman of Maidenform, a multimillion dollar company dedicated to the purpose of beautifying the feminine form. Over 43 years ago in the era of the "boyish," bosomed flapper she introduced the uplift bra. No need to ask if it caught on.

By HELEN HENNESSY
Newspaper Enterprise
Women's Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The feminine figure has been called "the form divine." But nature is capricious and many of us weren't endowed with even a reasonable facsimile thereof.

But every gal did get her rightful share of vanity. And since the beginning of civilization we have attempted to re-shape nature's gifts into lines more to our liking.

Way back when Cleopatra was spying on Caesar from behind a pyramid, she was wearing needs to take care of an occasional bulge or two. Even her ancestors wore tight, narrow bands as supporting devices for the bosom.

Wasp-waisted Catherine of France and Elizabeth I of England didn't get that way through nature's loving hands. They wore corsets with steel plates. In fact, Catherine's little steel waist-cincher became such a fashion favorite that it literally squeezed the life out of many women of her era and was finally banned by Henry IV.

It wasn't until 1900 that the bra, as an item separated from the corset, appeared. And it was called a corset waist.

Then in the flapper era the bosom had a setback. In the early '20s women began to wear bras that were nothing short of tight binders. How else could a 38-C look boyishly flat?

And it was then, 43 years ago, that Mrs. Ida Rosenthal, a petite dressmaker in New York City, decided the time had come to do something about bringing back the form divine.

"Nature made women with a bosom," she said. "So why fight nature?"

of the other. Today she is known as "Mrs. Maidenform," for Ida is the lady who gave us the bras we "dream" in.

Today at 80 she is as lively as a discotheque. Every morning she can be seen sprightly leaving her limousine for her office at the firm's Manhattan headquarters.

"I do a little bit of everything — finance, selling, travel."

One of her travel ventures was a trip to her native Russia as the first American woman to visit that country on a cultural exchange basis for the soft goods industry. This was just two years ago and Russia had better prepare for a different kind of revolution than the type it's accustomed to.

"Russian women don't wear girdles," she told me. "A few stores sell them but they're girdles we were making 40 years ago—a piece of cloth with buttons and no stretch.

"Even bras are made of rayon satin, completely without elasticity and fastened with buttons instead of hooks."

Mrs. Rosenthal is of the opinion that the Soviet women need help badly when it comes to underpinnings. She is willing to come to their rescue. And this time it shouldn't take her seven years to shape up things.

This little lady even put bras on pigeons. Among its many contributions to the war effort during World War II, Maidenform made pigeon vests (peculiarly bra-like) for "pigeons in uniform." These vests were created for the security and safety of the little messengers.

The vest-wearing passengers were attached to paratroopers. The specially treated vests of porous fabric to allow for breathing were adjustable. Will the pigeon with the B cup please fly up?

Well, no matter the fashion—flapper, sweater girl, or just neat and trim—Mrs. Rosenthal's dream bras are sure to help us keep "in."

Mrs. Rosenthal's marriage and her business venture were a perfect blend. While her husband, William, a sculptor and artist, concentrated on design, she handled the financial and selling end of the business. But each looked in on the territory

Anyone interested in trees and the natural world around us would enjoy the book "The Great American Forest" by Rutherford Platt. One interesting story he tells is about a fossil forest. He says that in 1945 while delving into the geologic history of our forests, he discovered an article in an English scientific journal about the fossil forest which an explorer had found on the foggy ice-bound west coast of Greenland.

It described how a glacial finger of the ice cap had cut a deep canyon through the mountains exposing a layer of sandstone replete with fossils of parts of trees, outlines of seeds, leaves and twigs.

Mrs. Platt says everything about the ghost forest seemed impossible. Greenland is burdened with an ice cap that comes to 2 miles deep. He was seized by a great desire to see this marvelous sight. But its exact location was a mystery. Apparently none of the writers who referred to "The Greenland Cretaceous flora" had ever personally visited the spot; they only referred to each other's reports.

Mr. Platt goes on to tell that one day in the Harvard Library he held a thrill like that of Cortez when he caught sight of the Pacific. In his hand, Mr. Platt held a crumbling brown pamphlet from one of those never opened bundles that a faithful librarian had tied up with a red ribbon a long time ago and he read these words, "... on the mainland of Greenland, facing the north shore of Disko at Aternakerdluk..." Here were the directions to his mysterious forest!

Mr. Platt discussed the information contained in this pamphlet with Admiral Donald B. Macmillan, the famous Arctic explorer, who took an immediate and lively interest in the idea of visiting the site of the earliest hardwood forest known to have grown on earth. He tells about how a small party of scientists and adventurers put ashore at Aternakerdluk, Greenland for a "spooky experience" on a July night in 1947.

They were able to spend only six hours there because of hurricane blizzards which moved in silently from the distance. He says, "the brief vision of Aternakerdluk was gone like a dream — its spell and the glimpse which it afforded into the space of timelessness will now always be a haunting memory."

In the future this column will include more about Mr. Platt's experience during those few hours exploring the colossal jagged crack in this mountain.

To add to the delight of this journey for this columnist was the thrill of discovering when reading the February 1966 issue of Reader's Digest that the article "The Most Unforgettable Character I've Met" was written by Rutherford Platt about the commander of the ship that took the men on this expedition.

Dear Abby....

Girls Will Be Girls,
Boys Will Be Boys

DEAR ABBY: I can sympathize with the members of the Retail Clerks Association, who have difficulty knowing whether some customers should be addressed as "Sir," or "Madam." I have six children and seventeen grandchildren, and at my age it is hard to keep track of all their names.

Yesterday one of my granddaughters and her husband called on me. When they walked into the house they looked like twins! They both wore jeans, boots, sweaters and jackets. Their hair was exactly the same color, and their haircuts were identical. I really did not know which one was my granddaughter until they removed their jackets. What is this world coming to? It doesn't make sense when one can't tell the boys from the girls.

Stretch Taffeta Is Revolution in Lingerie Industry

By HELEN HENNESSY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
NEW YORK (NEA) — The current popularity of slim, light, clingy knits has posed a problem for everyone. What to wear under them so that they look their best has until now caused a dilemma, especially where slips are concerned.

Taffeta has offered the best solution. Its firmness, opacity and noncling characteristics, coupled with its resistance to static electricity, has made it more satisfactory under clingy outer garments than the softer fabrics. Yet these very assets created a problem.

Because of these qualities, it has absolutely no "give." It had to be fitted full enough to allow "sitting room" which in turn always meant too much standing room. And so a conventional taffeta slip created noticeable ridges and bunching under a well-fitted knit.

Now this problem has been solved. And the solution, which sounds simple enough, is actually something of a revolution in the lingerie industry. It is Stretch Taffeta, a completely new construction. The breakthrough was achieved by introducing Lycra Spandex into the taffeta weave to provide easy horizontal stretch. It is just enough stretch to permit a taffeta slip to move with a woman when she walks or sits. Yet she can choose the size which fits her perfectly when she stands up.

The slips look and feel exactly like any other taffeta slip—crisp and luxurious.

Many fine lingerie manufacturers now offer Stretch Taffeta slips. They are readily identifiable by a bright yellow tag. Of all the new things being currently made in the lingerie field, this should offer great satisfaction and comfort.

School And You

By SUSAN LIGHT

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
DEAR MRS. LIGHT: Regarding your columns on English, I would like to add a few comments about the present generation of misspellers. Apparently, spelling has gone the way of old-fashioned arithmetic and geography. After 12 years in school, the kids come out not knowing how to spell much besides their own names. As an employer, I've seen young stenographers type sentences like the following:

"This is in ansir to your letter which I recieved sevrel days ago."

It appears to me that spelling merits a special place in the curriculum from first grade through senior high.

—BUSINESSMAN
ANSWER: Belleye me, mister, we're trying, a t least through the eighth grade. Contrary to what you may think, spelling is still very much "in." Attend a textbook publishers' fair sometime. You may be surprised at the number of workshops, teachers' guides, programmed materials and films that tackle the spelling problem.

Throughout our nation's schools, spelling is attacked phonetically, with drill, spell-donors, games, overhead projectors, dictionaries — anything that has the slightest possibility of spelling success. Unfortunately, the language doesn't lend itself to easy spelling. It simply has too many unphonetic words. (Take the "ph" in "phonic," for example.) And even when the words are phonetic, adults have a way of dropping and garbling syllables so that children don't hear them correctly.

Some children seem to be born with an eye and an ear for spelling, just as others are born with an eye for painting or an ear for music. Some learn the hard way by everlasting study. But many never quite make the grade, through no real fault of their own or their teacher.

Perhaps the mighty efforts to teach children how to spell slack off too much in high school, where the emphasis is on literature and creative writing. By that time, though, the die is set, and it's almost impossible to break poor spelling habits.

Poor spelling, I'm afraid, will continue to be a national disability until we simplify our English language. But who REALLY wants to do that?

Robert E. Lee Band and Ninth Grade Choir Present Fathers' Night Program

Robert E. Lee P-TA observed Fathers' Night on Feb. 17, which was also the anniversary of the founding of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Dr. M. McDaniel presided and led the Pledge of Allegiance to the flag. David Dougherty, an eighth grade student at Robert E. Lee, gave the meditation and the invocation.

The program was presented by the School Band and Ninth Grade Choir. The choir, under the direction of Mrs. C. L. Cross, presented four numbers: "Sing unto God" by Gordon Young, "Alleluia" Will James, "Let Every Heart Be Merry" arranged by Noble Cain, and "Hall of Fame," a march. The combined choir and band presented "America the Beautiful."

The assistant principal, Floyd Sackett, read the minutes of the last meeting. The treasurer's statement was read by Weldon Rogers. The recommendations from the executive board included the donation of $25 from the unit to the Student Council, and a check for that amount was presented to Jay Johnson, mayor of Robert E. Lee, who stated that it would be added to the council's fund.

The report of the nominating committee, composed of Jack Nichols, principal, and Mmes. Archie Maness and S. T. Friend, listed the following nominations for officers for 1966-67: president, Mrs. Gene R. Barber, vice president, Mrs. W. D. Price Jr., secretary, Mrs. H. B. Taylor Jr., treasurer, Mrs. Weldon Rogers, parliamentary, Mrs. Earl O'Neal, historian, Mrs. Murray Sealey, and city council representatives, Mrs. H. L. Meers and Mrs. Melvin Rainey. These officers were elected by a voice vote.

The reports from P-TA City Council, given by Mrs. Friend, indicated that the council had recommended that unit dues remain at fifty cents for 1966-1967, that five members from Robert E. Lee had completed the fall study course and that Spring Conference will be held at Berger April 25-26.

H. B. Taylor Jr., husband of the membership chairman, stated that Lee P-TA has 491 members.

Mr. Nichols announced that Texas Public School Week, which is also Teacher Appreciation Week, will be observed March 7-10. The choir will present a program at assembly on Wednesday, March 9, at 10:30 a.m. in the auditorium. There will be a concert by the secondary bands at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, March 10. Parents are invited to visit the school during that week. March 11 is the date of the teachers' meeting in Amarillo and will be a school holiday.

Clinton Forbes moved that in-coming officers be sent as delegates to the Spring Conference; this motion was approved. After the meeting punch, coffee and cookies were served in the cafeteria by the hospitality committee headed by Mrs. E. C. Woodall.

Teen Panel Criticizes Home Furnishings

By AILEEN SNOODY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
CHICAGO — (NEA) — The continuing need to cater to the teen-ager left several hundred retail furniture store owners shaking their heads here after listening to a teen panel.

Twenty young men and women (11 were in college) were not too shy about their knowledge or lack of it, likes and dislikes and future plans for buying furnishings for the home.

What they said had the men and women who want to corner the multibillion dollar youth market wincing often, smiling tolerantly only on occasion. Their concern about the youth's opinions and wants stems from the fact that the three top furniture "sellers" are youth groups, according to Max Huffman of Huffman - Boyle Furniture, Hackensack, N. J. He pointed out that the present generation under 25 is the most vital to face the industry.

"It is oriented to spending," he said, "and is the most acquisitive generation we have known." By 1970 half the U. S. population will be in the under-25 category. Currently, 30 per cent of the high school women graduates will be married within a year and of those marrying, 60 per cent are teen-age girls.

With this as reference, the panel members shot holes in many market chestnuts. For example, none could name five furniture manufacturers and three knew the brand name of only one. This is startling because surveys have shown that the teen-ager generally prefers to make brand name purchases, especially in appliances.

Although the majority of the panel members agreed that a furniture store was the best place to shop for their furniture, several expressed distrust of advertising and salesmen. One girl said, "I feel it is all a racket. They advertise one item and try to get me to buy something more expensive." Another pointed out that too many salesmen push only for a commission and are anxious "to sell you something you don't want."

Another girl, however, suggested comparison shopping for price and checking with the Better Business Bureau when upset about a store's approach. The members of the panel had definite ideas in some areas but admitted they were not certain what the difference in quality would be between a $500 couch and a $200 couch. One expressed the belief that "price does not necessarily mean bet-her home was well-decorated and two said they would follow their parents' home furnishing selections for their own homes.

TEENS' CHOICE — Teen panelists in a Chicago meeting expressed a desire for room-to-room individuality. Mixing of decorating periods might occur in separate rooms but the youths preferred each room to be an entity. Ease-of-care and long-wear demands also appear in chairs upholstered in black vinyl. Table and chairs are designed for R-N Richardson Brothers at lower than dining height.

Most also complained of living with "hand-me-down furniture from different family eras" in their own rooms. They felt, when decorating would make drastic changes, their first home even though they were not able to identify furniture styles such as modern or contemporary and only one knew what traditional furniture was.

In decorating their fictional first home, the panel members fell into the same trap as their parents. Most believed they would spend more money and time on the living room, "because most guests don't see the bedroom."

Perhaps the most astute comment on what style to buy came from a young man who said, "I'll buy it if it matches and I like it." Most went for contemporary furniture that would be well-constructed with ample wall shelves for housing television, stereo equipment and books. Each room they planned to decorate would be complete in itself, and many expressed a desire to mix periods and styles, but on a room-to-room basis.

The teen-age panelists fortified the youthful attitude of "I'd rather do it myself" and wanted to be individualists when selecting items for their

Ruth Millett Don't Knock the Man Who's Fighting Age

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

By RUTH MILLETT

There has been a lot of fun poked at men (I've poked a little myself) for the way they are beginning to borrow women's beauty routines — having their hair styled instead of cut, getting facials, patronizing their own beauty salons or sneaking into women's shops after hours for hair dye jobs, shampoos and sets, and for helping to boom the beauty industry by buying all kinds of lotions, hair sprays, wrinkle creams and colognes such as women use, except that they are packaged and advertised under masculine-sounding names.

Maybe the fun that has been poked has been unfair. Perhaps the men have just as much right as women to spend time and money trying to hold on to the appearance of youth as long as possible.

Lately I've been noticing how few of the gray-haired and white-haired men I see have wives whose hair is also gray or white.

The majority of them have wives without a single silver thread marring the crowning glory maintained by long and costly sessions at a beauty salon.

Now, any gray-haired or white-haired man with a wife who is forever blonde, brunette or red-haired must have moments of thinking that it's all a little unfair.

While she is spending HIS money to knock years off HER age by hair styling and dyeing and elaborate beauty routines, he is going around looking every one of his years.

If the beauty and cosmetic industries can do so much to keep women looking younger than they are, why not men, too?

If that is the way men are beginning to reason — and obviously many of them are — perhaps we women ought to be as understanding of their desire to fight age as they are of our battle against it.

We know it isn't really funny, don't we?

The big swing to velour for spring will be augmented further by a new all synthetic knit velour that both stretches and provides the easy-care of other miracle fabrics. The new knit is a combination of polypropylene and nylon, said the manufacturer, Stretchit, Inc., and is machine washable, needing only a brief air drying after laundry. The fabric comes in solids and stripe combinations, and is guaranteed against bleeding, crocking, or fading.

It's the silvery look for the fun-seeking set. The metallic glint dominates long gowns, sweaters, pants suits, dresses, shoes — even shows in stockings worn at winter resorts, reports National Airlines which draws vacationers to the South.

Bowling Breaks by Gil

GIL BURGUND

What about that? My picture yet, and here I was about to ask for a raise. Boy, am I going to have to work hard to deserve such an honor.

It's going to be hard work too if you all don't help and get me some of those newsy items that are a l-w-a-y-s happening. There isn't any tournament to fill up space so this may be short and sweet.

I hope everyone saw the pictures in Ron Cross's sports column last Sunday.

Believe me, this nice publicity for bowling and Ron deserves a round of applause for the Honor Roll and the bowler of the week pictures.

I suppose you are wondering about Lula Bell White. She bowled the first triplicate score in quite some time of a nice 122-122-122 in fact, it's been a long time for a triplicate, and all spare or a dutch 200.

Mary Croats had a 136-137-137 for an almost and so did Vivian Garrison.

I wonder if I dare mention her 107-107-108? Here is an almost double — double father and son, Cecil Olsen 163,158,158 and Kent Olsen 180,148,180.

We should start to believe it or not column because here is one hard to believe. Agnes Robbins left the 1-2-4-7 picked out the 2 pin and left the rest. Also Richard Hladuk claimed he really picked up the Big-Four Split but he did admit it wasn't legal because his ball-bounced off of the gutter and angled across and got them all.

There were a number of splits picked up tho. Ruth Wilson, a lefty, had hardly finished picking the 4-7-10 when Billie Gray picked the 3-10 and no one was more surprised than Florence Mounce when she picked the 3-7-10.

Kyles Shoes and Go-Jet Service had a real battle the other night. Kyles paid off twice on a Coke Frame which means pretty good bowling.

Both teams should have been bowling in the Women's International which starts April 15. There are over 4000 teams entered with a few from Pampa. I'll try and find out and list all those going.

What do you say when a fellow comes to the desk and asks for a size 15 shoe? Hank Gruben did just that but he is a pretty big fellow.

Red Payne says that the second 600 series comes a lot easier than the first.

Bob Owsly a left-hander, lays the ball so close to the gutter that he had a slight mishap the other night. He almost knocked the foul detector mechanism into the next alley, yep — he sure put a nice dent in his ball, too.

I'm sure the proof reader hopes I get this typewriter fixed and since it is such a mess I'm going to quit right now and get it fixed.

Season Ends On Sad Note for Groom's Tigers

WELLINGTON (Spl) — The 1965-66 basketball season came to an end on a sad note for Groom's Tigers Tuesday night.

Groom lost a bi-district contest to fast Quitaque, 53-51 when a fourth quarter rally fell a little shy.

The Tigers trailed from the outset but had rallied strongly in the fading minutes of the game.

Quitaque led 13-7 after one period and 30-25 at halftime. Groom started the fourth quarter trailing by only four, 40-36.

The win marked the fifth straight year that Quitaque of district 10-B will advance to the regional tournament.

Brad Major paced the Tigers in scoring with 22 points and tied Quitaque's Bobby Cockran for high point honors.

Jerry Roberts, the Tiger's leading scorer all season was held to 13 points.

Groom managed but 19 field goals to 21 for Quitaque but hit 13 charity tosses to 11 for the winners.

Richards Still Unemployed

By MILTON RICHMAN

MIAMI (UPI) — Paul Richards shows up at the ball park bright and early every morning, partly out of habit, partly out of necessity and partly out of nostalgia.

Unemployed and without a baseball connection for the first time in 40 years, Richards is making the rounds of all the training camps in an effort to hook on again.

The distinguished-looking 57-year-old former Houston general manager talked with the Baltimore Orioles Tuesday and will try the Cincinnati Reds next. Richards is trying them all.

"If you're going over to Pompano Beach, tell (George Selkirk) I'd like to have a talk with him," he told one writer, who was on his way to see the Washington Senators. "What do you want to talk to Selkirk about?" Richards was asked.

"I'm looking for a job," he replied. "I'm pretty close to being on the bread line."

That statement about the bread line was an obvious gag; but the one about looking for a job was not.

Not Destitute

Financially, Richards is fixed so that he could still live well enough even if he never worked another day in his life. There also is a matter of some $300,000 which he claims Houston owner Judge Roy Hofheinz owes him on the unexpired portion of a seven-year contract.

Richards was getting an estimated $55,000 a year from the Astros as general manager when Hofheinz let him go last Dec. 18. His contract still had five years to run and when his checks suddenly stopped coming, Richards took his case to the commissioner and hinted he would even go to court to press his claim.

Standing outside the Orioles' clubhouse, Richards, who once served as combination general manager and field manager of that club, conceded there seems to be relatively few openings available to him.

"I'd be willing to do most anything, from handling a team in a rookie league on up," said the man, who generally is believed to own one of the sharpest baseball minds in the entire business.

"You don't go around telling people what you can do for them," he said. "they have to have something in mind that you can do to help them. I talked with Harry Alton (Baltimore's new general manager) and he said he'd let me know. So have a couple of other people."

Richards isn't used to going around with his hat in his hand, begging for a job. As recently as six months ago, he was being besieged with managerial offers.

"I was contacted by three or four clubs about managing just prior and during the World Series," he explained. "But I was unwilling to break my contract with Houston despite the fact I didn't think my association would last too long under the present ownership."

Contract Stopped Him
He meant Hofheinz, of course, and Richards said he would have given those managerial offers "a lot of thought had I not been tied to a contract."

Richards paused a moment, then said: "Take these names down." He went on to list catchers John Bateman, Dave Adlesh and John Hoffman; first baseman Charlie Harrison; second baseman Joe Morgan; shortstop Sonny Jackson; center fielder Jimmy Wynn; right fielder Rusty Staub and pitcher Larry Dierker.

"In the second or third game of the season, that'll be more or less the lineup for Houston," he said.

All those he named were either trained, developed or signed by him while he was with the Astros.

Stuart Traded To N.Y. Mets

ST. PETERSBURGH, Fla. (UPI) — Slugging first baseman Dick Stuart, the legendary "Dr. Strangelove" who has put several big-league managers on tranquilizers with his antics, was the complete property of the New York Mets today in what has to go down as one of the great "bargain basement" trades in baseball history.

The 33-year-old Stuart, who hit 42 home runs for the Boston Red Sox in 1963 and led the American League in runs batted in with 118 the same year, came to the Mets Tuesday from the Philadelphia Phillies in exchange for minor league infielders Bobby Klaus, Wayne Graham and catcher Jim Schaffer.

The three players, all of whom were on the roster of the Mets' Jacksonville farm club, were transferred to the Phillies' San Diego roster. To make room for Stuart on their own roster, the Mets sent infielder Jim Lampe to Jacksonville.

Stuart wasted no time in signing his 1966 contract with the Mets Tuesday. The big slugger got an estimated $47,000.

The Mets now boast their finest infield in history with Stuart at first, Ron Hunt at second, Roy McMillan at shortstop and Ken Boyer at third.

None of the three players the Mets gave up for Stuart hit .250 last season. Klaus hit .191 in 119 games with the Mets and Schaffer hit .135 in 24 games with New York. Graham spent last year with the Mets' Buffalo farm club and hit .243 in 131 games.

The Baltimore Orioles and Atlanta Braves both opened their spring camps Tuesday for batterymen and each team also signed a leading pitcher. The Orioles inked lefthander Steve Barber for an estimated $30,000 while Atlanta corralled lefty Denny Lemaster. The Braves also signed rookie Dan Schneider, a promising lefty.

HEATS ON — Four Minnesota Twins shed winter poundage in a sauna bath while they sweat out who's going to be in the starting lineup opening day. Left to right are: infielder Frank Quilici, pitcher Jim Perry, infielder Bernie Allen and first baseman Rich Reese.

Aggies, SMU in Tie, Three Others Trail

By United Press International
Southern Methodist and Texas A&M were deadlocked for the Southwest Conference basketball lead today with three challengers all two full games off the pace.

The Mustangs beat the Aggies 82-65 in Dallas Tuesday night to climb into the tie with A&M, which now has lost three of its last four games. SMU got off to a bad start but has now won seven straight so both leaders hold 8-1 league records.

Knotted at 6-5 are Texas Tech, Texas and Arkansas. Tech was upset by Baylor 83-82 at Waco or would have been the runner up.

Texas Downs Rice
Texas beat the last-place Rice Owls 91-82 in Houston and Arkansas rolled to a 91-73 home victory over Texas Christian in other Tuesday night games.

Non-conference contests saw the University of Houston overwhelm Texas Wesleyan 152-108, Trinity top Arlington State 93-88, Angelo State rally to beat Tarleton State 63-52 and Hardin-Simmons run away from New Mexico State 185-49.

SMU broke open its challenge game with the Aggies, taking the lead 19-17 and never giving it up. Carroll Hooser led the way with 20 points and the Mustangs enjoyed a 45-34 half-time advantage.

Hooser's defensive work held Aggie ace John Beasley to 18 points to the delight of the overflow crowd of 9,100. From now on SMU has the toughest schedule — playing Texas and TCU on the road and Tech in Dallas while the Aggies host Rice and Baylor and journey to Arkansas.

Baylor overcame a late 78-76 Tech lead to nip the Red Raiders before a small turnout of some 2,000 fans who braved snow and ice. The Bears won it with three free throws in the last 28 seconds — two by Jimmy Turner and one by Tommy Hatfield.

Hardy Led
Darrell Hardy led Baylor with 23 points and 15 rebounds, while Norman Reuther paced Tech with 16 points. Both teams hit with 54 per cent field goal accuracy.

Knicks Tough On Their Own Court

By United Press International
The New York Knicks are never going to make it into the National Basketball Association playoffs, but they still are mighty tough to beat on their home court.

It's the Knicks' bad luck to be in an Eastern Division that also contains the league's three top teams. The Knicks Tuesday stretched their Madison Square Garden win streak to six straight with a 113-108 triumph over St. Louis.

New York's home win string was the team's longest since 1957-58 and the victory was the Knicks' 10th in the last 13 outings. Walt Bellamy and Willis Reed hooped 24 apiece while player-coach Richie Guerin of the Hawks, who will quit as a player after this year, had 32 markers.

Meanwhile, Boston kept atop the Eastern Division and Philadelphia just 1½ games back with victories.

Boston trailed San Francisco by 20 points but rallied for a 116-108 win while the 76ers outscored Detroit, 117-112.

Sam Jones paced Boston in its win at San Francisco by hooping 30 points and Bill Russell ignored a pulled muscle to pull 23 rebounds. But the real winning margin was provided by the famed Celtic bench as Mel Counts and John Havlicek came in to spark the Boston rallies.

Philadelphia's great one-two punch of Wilt Chamberlain and Hal Greer combined for 61 points against Detroit. Chamberlain got 32 and Greer 29, while Eddie Miles led Detroit with 21. The game was played as the opener of the Madison Square Garden twin bill which saw New York top St. Louis in the nightcap.

PISTON DRIVE — Dave DeBusschere (22) of the Detroit Pistons and Philadelphia's Chet Walker look like sprinters charging out of the blocks, legs pumping and bodies forward. DeBusschere grabbed defensive rebound and the race was on.

Cheerleaders, Amarillo Team Post Cage Wins

The Pampa Cheerleaders and KIXZ of Amarillo won charity basketball games here Tuesday night.

The cheerleaders waxed the Trutees, 31-16 behind a stout defense that almost crumbled in the final quarter.

The Amarillo team edged the coaches, 55-54 with a little help from the referees.

There was one casualty in the coaches contest with Lee ninth grade coach Rossi Simpson catching a left elbow jab to the left eye.

The last Big Ten football team to go through the season undefeated was Ohio State in 1954.

Wrist Slapping for Professor

The State Department has given the back of its hand to several Americans, including Yale Professor Staughton Lynd, for making unauthorized trips last year to Communist North Viet Nam. Passports of the offending travelers were revoked. The action was announced one day and a day later Lynd showed up in London to make a speech. It doesn't matter much one way or the other whether Lynd was aware that his passport was no good when he left the country. It is highly probable that Lynd flouted the law a second time to underscore his contempt for the regulation. He seems to hate everything American. It could be, too, that the London trip on the bogus passport will compound the offense in the eyes of the State Department and the boy may be in trouble.

Lynd is a product of American tax-supported schools in which academic freedom permits assorted kooks to preach the violent overthrow of the U.S. government and laugh at free enterprise as something belonging to the past. It's no wonder he developed an allegiance for a foreign ideology.

Since his return from Hanoi, Lynd has emerged as a spokesman for the New Left movement, consisting chiefly of university students, professors and others of the smart set. Washington reporters say his speeches in the East on American involvement in the Viet Nam war have been attended by standing-room-only audiences.

Always the Optimists

The optimists are at it again. Those people who pontificate at so many microphones, who set the editorial policy of the slick magazines, and who swing a lot of weight in our State Department, are once again advancing the theory that Communist leaders (except possibly a few misguided Red Chinese leaders) are basically decent, and if we are nice to them they will surely respond in kind.

These are the same types who were so optimistic when President Roosevelt signed the 1933 treaty recognizing the Soviet Union, the biggest breakthrough that international Communism ever made. They were optimistic throughout World War II, convinced that Good Old Uncle Joe Stalin would be everlasting grateful to us for having kept Hitler from overrunning continental Europe. They were optimistic about the brave new world of the future that was going to result from all those friendly get-togethers at Teheran, Yalta and Potsdam.

Their optimism undampened by what happened up to that time, these perennial optimists waxed enthusiastic about such people as Mao Tse-tung, Fidel Castro, Tito and Sukarno. Nothing was too good for these "agrarian reformers" who, they said, were dedicated to making this a better world for the downtrodden and the exploited.

Now our optimists are at it again, and as usual they are pulling out all the propaganda stops for their latest enthusiasm. That is, their theory that Soviet Russia is becoming more capitalistic every day and the Red Chinese hate the middle-of-the-road Kremloinites because of it. So, a split is developing between them, and we must take advantage of it. This we can do by helping the USSR as much as possible. First and foremost, it is essential that we trade with them, on their terms of course, much like those we gave Stalin during World War II when we handed him $11 billion in lend-lease.

What do we get in return? Well, it's really impolite to ask, but presumably we'll get a treaty every bit as good as the one FDR signed in 1933, or those we got at Teheran, Yalta and Potsdam. However, we'll doubtless get another dividend. When our Rover Boy of Diplomacy, such as Soapy Williams or Ave Harriman, show up at Communist capitals they won't be laughed at until they get down the road a bit.

INSULT TO WORKING PEOPL
The great marvel of the free enterprise system in America is that it virtually guarantees a reasonable annual income to everyone in this country, providing he or she is willing to work. No country in history has been so successful in creating job opportunities for its people.

But our society has one criterion, namely, that the individual have a willingness to work. Our economic system is not designed for the drones, for the shiftless, and for the fellow who wants to lie abed in the morning while others are out on the job.

Yet there are some people in this country — people who should know better — who want to redesign our system so that it gives the drone full equality with the worker. In early February, the National Commission on Technology, Automation, and Economic Progress came up with a 216-page report endorsing a guaranteed minimum annual wage for every American. If the commission's report is translated into law, the citizen who chooses not to work will get a cash allowance from the government. It will be his constitutional right, say advocates of the plan.

It is not surprising to find Walter Reuther, head of the United Auto Workers, endorsing this plan. Mr. Reuther long has been associated with radical schemes to redistribute the wealth. But it is shocking to find several prominent businessmen advocating such an unbusinesslike proposal.

Just how unbusinesslike it is may be gauged from the commission's estimate that providing a guaranteed annual income to all could cost between $2 billion and $20 billion a year. Now, that's quite a gap — something more than the difference between two cents and twenty cents.

But even this prediction is based on the assumption that not many citizens will choose to draw their cash allowances while relaxing in an easy chair. But the promoters of the guaranteed annual income scheme seem to know as little about human motivation as they do about the cost of the plan.

Sloth is a sin that has been recognized for centuries. And this country has plenty of slothful people. It already has a large contingent of relievers who extract money from the taxpayers.

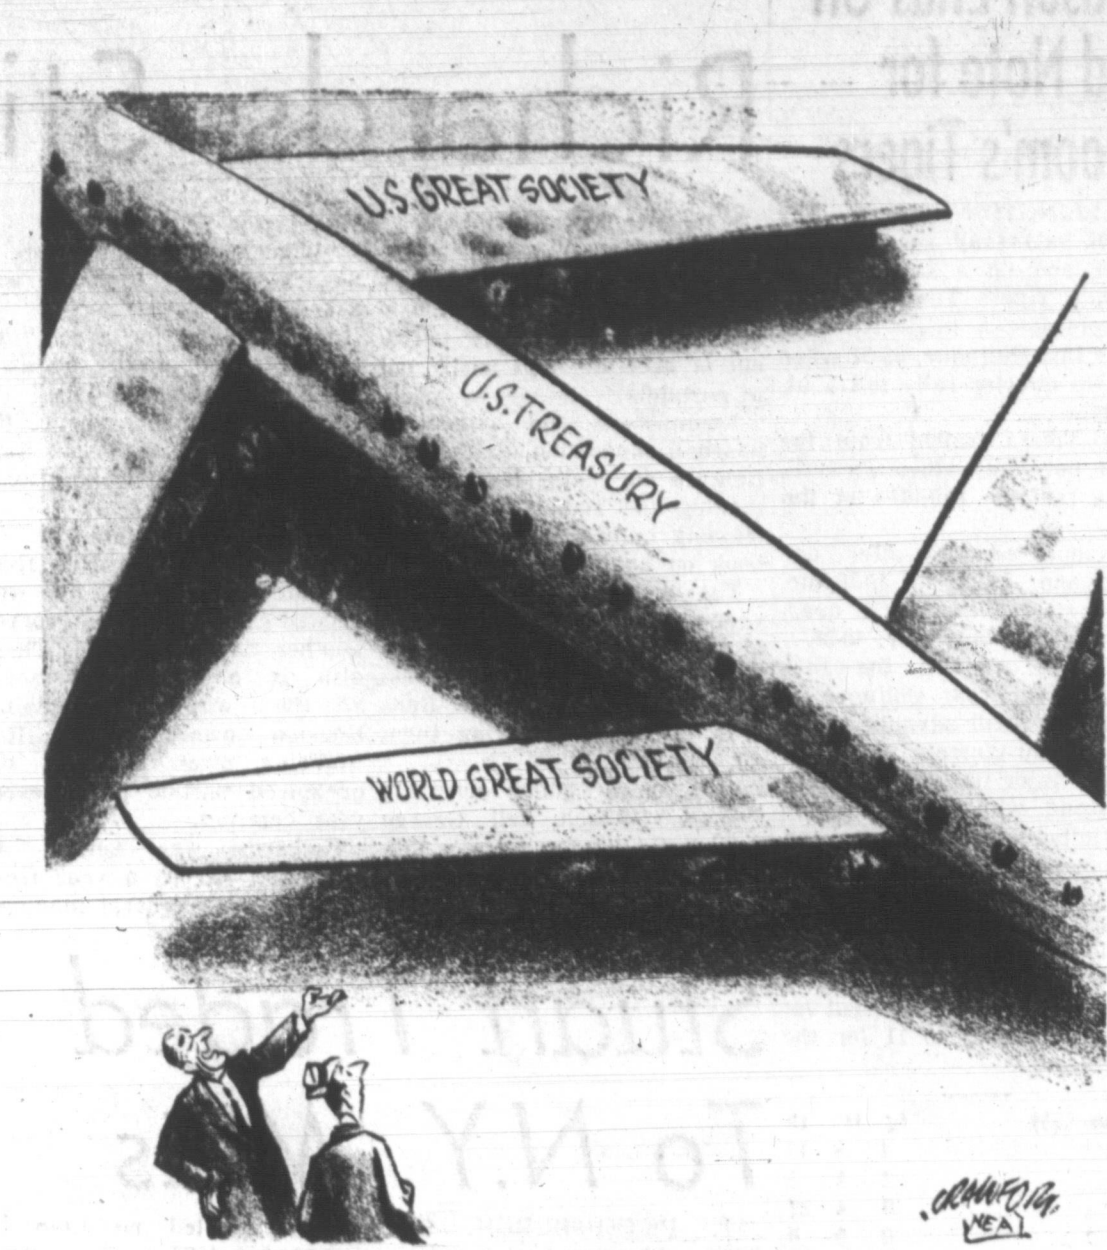

In many big cities welfare officials have had much trouble with relief chiselers. Getting able-bodied men on relief to go to work has been a vexing problem in numerous communities. Imagine if every chiseler and bum realized that he never had to work again, that all he needed to do was file an application for a guaranteed annual wage! One can be sure that the ranks of the drones would swell enormously.

And what would be the reaction of working men and women? Consider the practicalities of the situation. Throughout this country, people get up early to go to work. Others work at night. Many people hold down rather unpleasant jobs, simply because they know that working is the only way to support themselves and their families. Wouldn't many of these people be outraged if they saw bums making a career of bumming at public expense? Wouldn't many of them ask: Why should I work to support the loafers? Wouldn't some men with the rough jobs conclude that it would be easier to stay at home and collect a guaranteed annual wage?

The advocates of the guaranteed annual wage have devised a scheme that would do terrible damage to this country. A guaranteed annual income would be an incentive to stop working. It would make non-working morally acceptable. Such a scheme is an insult to everyone who does his part in this society by holding down a job, whether as bank president or garbage man. To subsidize the drones in this manner would be to steal the rightful earnings of those citizens who use their physical and/or mental energies each day to support themselves, their families, their communities and their country.

A further and perhaps conclusive argument against the guaranteed annual wage is that it would create a class of totally dependent citizens. With no livelihood of their own, and no pride derived from work, these dependents would be completely vulnerable to unscrupulous politicians.

Members of Key House Committee Opposing President's Bill To Ease Trade Barriers While Reds Trade With No. Viet Nam

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON. — President Johnson's plan for a far-reaching liberalization of U.S. trade policies with the Soviet bloc is running into a stalling backlash from the Viet Nam war.

So far, he has been unable to persuade any of the ranking members of the powerful House Ways and Means Committee to introduce his bill to relax existing trade barriers... because of the Communist countries' expanding of arms shipments to North Viet Nam. And that's not all.

The balking legislators are threatening to enact new trade restrictions against Russia and Poland if the White House persists in pressing for action this year on the President's State-of-the-Union request.

That's the blunt report Representative Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., chairman, has made to Democratic House leaders inquiring about the prospects for this proposal in the President's 1966 "Great Society" program.

Mills, the first to refuse to sponsor the East-West trade measure, says that committee members are furious at the Soviet bloc's arming of North Viet Nam and the Viet Cong.

To forcefully underscore their indignation, Mills and his committee colleagues are preparing to submit to the White House a list of more than 100 Russian and Polish ships regularly carrying weapons to North Viet Nam.

The legislators will warn the President there can be no committee approval of his East-West trade expansion proposal until the Red regimes unilaterally halt their Viet Nam weapons traffic.

To support the administration's measure under existing circumstances, they contend, would be to court "political suicide, as the overwhelming majority of American people are against trading with Communists actively helping the Viet Cong."

THE SPREADING REVOLT—This backstage House rebellion already is showing signs of spreading to the Senate, where the President's East-West trade plan as propounded in his State-of-the-Union message was greeted with considerable approval.

Now Senator Samuel Ervin, D-N.C., and other senators have taken advantage of the joint Armed Services - Appropriations Committees hearings on the President's multi-billion dollar emergency Viet Nam budget to voice sharp opposition to his trade move.

Supporting Ervin in his criticism of the administration's move were Senators Richard Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the Armed Services Committee, John Stennis, D-Miss., Thomas Dodd, D-Conn., and Strom Thurmond, R-S.C.

MAKING A CASE — Senator Dodd, personal friends of the President, is so concerned about the administration's effort to expand trade with the Soviet bloc while not doing anything to stop their arms shipments to North Viet Nam, that he is sending a stern memorandum to the White House warning of the disastrous military consequences. Significant highlights are as follows:

"It makes no sense to risk American lives to bomb trucks or trains in North Viet Nam while permitting the Communists to ship and unload hundreds of thousands of tons of supplies monthly via the port Haiphong. Our sea power is challengeable. It is within our power to interdict the flow of traffic to Haiphong without the loss of a single American life."

"Rather than urging expanded East-West trade as a method of mollifying the Soviet Union, as some of your top advisers have been doing, I believe we should take the initiative in organizing a free world embargo on all shipments of grain to the Soviet Union, Red China and other Communist nations."

"During the Neville Chamberlain era there was a ditty sung in England that started out with the words: 'Let's not be nasty to the Nazis.' The apostles of conciliationism apparently believe that it is equally wrong to be nasty to the Communists and that we must seek, by repeated professions and actions of friendship, to persuade them of our good intentions. But the hard lesson of history is that, in dealing with totalitarian dictators, professions of good faith, concessions and conciliatory actions in general are construed as manifestations of weakness. Conversely, the policy of firmness has been successful against them whenever it has been tried. The time has come to face up to realities in Viet Nam."

While the President has not yet reacted to Dodd's memorandum or the growing opposition in the House, the State Department is brushing it aside.

Anthony Solomon, Assistant Secretary for Economic Affairs, is roaming the Capitol corridors trying to find a Ways and Means committeeman willing to sponsor the administration's trade bill.

As drafted by Solomon, the measure would give the President the power to grant most-favored-nation treatment to all Communist countries. At present, this authority is held by Congress.

Reason For Rift Over Viet Policy

By BRUCE BOSSAT
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The really deep rift over Vietnamese policy in the United States is not the one between the hawks and the doves. It is between those who see a large role and those who see a limited place for U.S. power in the world.

In the 20 years since World War II, the United States government — under four different presidents — has played the big role.

One way or another, it has employed its power in Western Europe, Greece and Turkey, Cyprus, Lebanon, the Congo, Thailand, Laos, Viet Nam, Korea, Guatemala, the Dominican Republic.

Much of the time, in fact, the United States has been the world's one - country substitute for the United Nations in its role as pacifier and subduer of those who would subdue others.

America played this part as global policeman because four presidents thought it had to. Leadership was thrust upon us. The U.N. was generally too weak and so were our traditional allies.

But some of those same allies have been torn between welcoming and resenting our uses of immense power around the earth.

And many liberal critics at home, almost chronically at odds with their government, have either disapproved such uses or felt uncomfortable with them.

It is some of these critics who today are arguing, within the emotional context of the controversial Viet Nam war, that we have no business either in that country or anywhere on the Asian mainland.

Beyond complaints about specific aspects of our presence in Viet Nam, more than a few objectors make the fundamental point: They contend that we should not act as Asia's guardian against the spread of tyranny, that this is a matter for Asians alone.

These critics, in other words, are the advocates of a limited world role for the United States. Left unanswered, in any real sense, is the question of who fills the breach against tyranny in a world with no other single powerful champion of freedom — and no concert of powers able and willing.

Hunt for Truth

By M. L. HUNT

WORLD'S FAIR - 1ST INSTALLMENT

In June, 1963, officials of the New York World's Fair contacted me regarding a concession on 3 1/2 acres adjoining the famed "Fountain pool" in the Industrial Section. The Fair had obligated a large camera company to install 11 of the most modern rides, usually placed at world's fairs and state fairs in the entertainment section, granting the camera company such concession in the Industrial Section.

Through representations made to me by Mr. Martin Stone, a close Jewish friend, I decided to take this concession, then available, paying $1,100,122 rental for two years in advance by a subsidiary corporation, H L H Fun and Food, Inc. We would install 11 rides and dispense, through stand-up food counters and other restaurants, the many food and drug products H L H Products supplies to retail stores plus products of some companies H L H Products would acquire.

We offered to build at the three entrances replicas of Independence Hall, Mt. Vernon, and Ft. Ticonderoga, and at a spot on the grounds suitable to direct from above the visitor traffic flow, a replica of the tower of the Old North Church in Boston where the lantern was to be hung alerting the populace of the impending British invasion. "One if by land and two if by sea."

When as many as five or six men were in Robert Moses' office he habitually paced back and forth, orating. He functioned as a czar and his closest friends said it was while in an emotional state that he made all his decisions.

At a meeting in his office he began to orate, telling an attorney, "Prepare papers to cancel Hunt's concession." Reminded by an official it was too late to secure another concessionaire, he said, "I shall rescind it and leave it idle."

In Viet Nam, more than a few objectors make the fundamental point: They contend that we should not act as Asia's guardian against the spread of tyranny, that this is a matter for Asians alone.

These critics, in other words, are the advocates of a limited world role for the United States. Left unanswered, in any real sense, is the question of who fills the breach against tyranny in a world with no other single powerful champion of freedom — and no concert of powers able and willing.

The "limited - role" advocates seem to argue that this should be no concern of ours. Deeply committed to our noninvolvement, they seem also not to be troubled about the consequences of such a policy for Laos, Cambodia, Thailand, Burma, India, Malaysia and a host of struggling African and Latin-American lands.

Four presidents in a row have insisted on making any major threatened spread of tyranny a U.S. concern and have troubled themselves about the future of still - independent nations everywhere.

They have done so partly because they believe some country or group of countries must play the "large role" of world policeman. We are the only nation with the strength and will to do it.

But they believe further that our own national interest is at stake. In a nuclear age, at what point does a tyranny advancing across distant continents become a threat to U.S. independence?

Of course, no one knows for sure. But it is the habit of American presidents, as with other national leaders, to resolve great doubts in favor of the national interest as they see it. They do not take chances when they fear that failure may be irreversible.

This is where they part from critics who prefer a less commanding American role. The critics believe the United States can do more for the world not by wielding its immense power but by serving as a laboratory, a model, and an energetic exporter of social invention useful to aspiring peoples in many lands.

To their opponents, this presumes a world innocent of the uses of power and, hence, unreal. Clearly the gulf between the two is great. It has existed for a long time. Viet Nam simply makes it freshly visible.

The Doctor Says:

By DR. WAYNE BRANDSTADT
You Have to Want to Live In Order to Quit Smoking

Q — Will a pipe smoker who inhales be as likely to get lung cancer as a cigarette smoker? Could smoking cigarettes cause pain in the chest? How can I stop smoking?

A — In one study, limited to men, the death rate per 100,000 from lung cancer among cigarette smokers was 127, among pipe smokers 39, among cigar smokers 13 and among nonsmokers 13. Heavy smoking is associated with an increase in the incidence of lung cancer, chronic bronchitis, emphysema, tuberculosis and coronary heart disease. Chest pain is associated with only one of these—heart disease.

Quitting smoking is a tough problem for most confirmed smokers. It takes a great deal of will power. Without strong motivation failure can be assured. Some persons are benefited by such psychological props as substituting gum chewing for smoking, self-hypnosis with the aid of a specially prepared record, drinking more water, getting more outdoor exercise and getting adequate rest so that nervous tension is reduced. In the last analysis, however, you have got to want to live more than you want to smoke.

Q — What is the difference between an M. D., D. O., and D. C.? Can a D. O. or D. C. do major surgery?

A — An M. D. is a doctor of medicine and is permitted by law to use any form of treatment he thinks will benefit his patient. A D. O. is a doctor of osteopathy. The schools of osteopathy have increased their scope in recent years. They now use drugs and perform major surgery.

The story on doctors of chiropractic is more complicated. In general they fall into two groups: Those who limit their practice to manipulations of the spinal column and those who do everything an M. D. does except prescribe drugs. This includes the use of X-rays for diagnosis; treatment with ultrasound, diathermy, heat, diet including vitamin supplements and colonic irrigations. In some states they may be licensed, not as chiropractors, but as druggless healers.

Q — The doctor says my husband has bulbar palsy. Is there any cure for it?

A — In this disease the tongue, jaws and palate are paralyzed and speech, chewing and swallowing are difficult. In some victims there may also be some weakness of the neck and shoulder muscles. The disease may be caused by hemorrhage into the spinal cord just below the brain; by a tumor in this region or by chronic degeneration of unknown cause. Treatment is unsatisfactory.

matter of fact

The king salmon, found in Alaskan waters, has been known to spawn as far as 3,000 miles from the sea. The pink salmon spawns only a few miles from the sea. All salmon spawn only in fresh water, then die. Young salmon, after they are spawned, sometimes remain in fresh water for as long as a year before descending the streams to enter salt water.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI) — It has been reported that one reason President Johnson dislikes big, televised news conferences is because some reporters ask stupid questions.

If this were an isolated impression, confined to the White House, I would be inclined to let it go unchallenged. Apparently, however, it has become fairly widespread.

On several occasions, friends not in the newspaper business, after watching a news conference on television, have said to me, "why do some of you guys ask such stupid questions?"

And not long ago I received a letter from an admiring reader who said, "you must be one of those reporters who ask stupid questions on television."

Some Questions Questionable
I will admit that there are usually a few questions that are something less than sagacious. But the public could easily jump to the wrong conclusion about this.

Some viewers may have gotten the idea that reporters who ask stupid questions do so because they are stupid. Therefore, I feel that a few words of explanation may be in order.

For one thing, most of the reporters you see on television cover other things besides the White House, Congress, for example.

Many congressmen hold what are known as non-news conferences. That is, they call news conferences that actually aren't very newsworthy, if at all.

To avoid embarrassing the congressman, reporters will go ahead and ask a lot of questions anyway. Some of them get into the habit of doing this, which explains why their questions at presidential news conferences may seem pointless.

May Steal Question
Also consider that a reporter may go to a news conference with a prepared question that is astute and penetrating. But some other reporter jumps up ahead of him with the same question.

The President then recognizes the first reporter who, not having had time to collect his thoughts, is forced to improvise a question that may not turn out to be altogether sapient.

Finally, you should bear in mind that the President's aides frequently "plant" questions they want to have asked. There is no reason not to suppose that some of them aren't pretty stupid, too.

Since the origin is not identified, it could be that the President has been blaming us reporters for asinine questions his own staff thought up.

WRONG ADDRESS
DENVER (UPI) — Mrs. Jessie B. Johnson called police to report a robbery when she found just about everything including the kitchen sink missing from a home owned by a Denver welfare agency.

Clarence Russell Anderson later told police he had the missing furniture, furnace, freezer, carpeting, fireplaces, bathroom fixtures, tile, chandeliers, mirrors, doorknobs and sink.

He sent men from his wrecking company to the wrong address.

CATTLE COUNTRY
RENO, Nev. (UPI) — Nevada's latest population figures show a cattle population of 538,000, compared with 490,000 this, which explains why their

Lawmaker Files Resolution To Block Attempts to License Church Schools

AUSTIN (UPI) — Rep. W. H. Miller of Houston filed a resolution in the House today to block a move by the State Welfare Department to force church schools to get a state license to operate day care centers.

The resolution was the outgrowth of a letter dated Feb. 11 from welfare commissioner John Winters to Houston attorney David D. Allen, who is representing the Easthaven Baptist Church of Houston.

Miller said he had received several dozen irate telegrams from leaders of Baptist churches in Houston protesting the order by Winters violates the principle of separation of church and state.

The House legislator said Winters' order had the effect of the state attempting to regulate all church-related schools which enroll children under age 16 and keep them for six hours or more.

Winters said in the letter to Allen that "I am unable to agree with your conclusion that the day care center operated by Easthaven Baptist Church is exempt from licensing by this department."

"A day care center is not religious activity per se," Winters wrote. "It is more in the nature of a proprietary function. For this reason, this department has uniformly held that a day care center even though conducted on church property is subject to licensing."

MAROONED IN TREE
MAULEON, France (UPI) — Timothy Camgrand, 74, spent most of the day marooned in a tree Monday.

The sonic boom of an aircraft dislodged his ladder and Camgrand waited hours until a neighbor came by and raised the ladder to let him down.

THORN PRICK FATAL
CATANIA, Sicily (UPI) — Mrs. Agata Garuffi, 54, who pricked her finger on a thorn while ridding roses three weeks ago, died Monday. Doctors said she contracted tetanus and by the time her husband brought her to the hospital it was too late to save her life.

UPSET BY TICKET
SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Officer Gerard Clancy stopped a 35-year-old woman motorist in front of her home, and wrote out a traffic ticket. She ripped it up, bit Clancy on the left cheek and fled into her house. Clancy did not turn the other cheek. He arrested the woman on an aggravated assault charge and issued a new traffic ticket.

LEAVE ON CRUISE
PORT SAID, U.A.R. (UPI) — Italian film star Gina Lollobrigida and Aristotle Onassis sailed from Port Said Monday night for a cruise aboard the Greek shipping magnate's yacht, Miss Lollobrigida spent the day in Cairo touring the Pyramids.

BEHIND BARS
GLOUCESTER, England (UPI) — Civil leaders were behind bars here Sunday. They held their annual service in the municipal jail in order to "show prisoners that although out off from the world outside, they are not forgotten."
