"Old Ironsides," Sails Again Set, Ready for Tour and More Glory

BOSTON (INS)—Brought back from possible oblivion by the "pinnacles" saved by school children throughout the nation, the grand old frigate U. S. Constitution, now fully refitted from stem to stern, is ready to leave Boston for the first time since 1851 to make a tour of the ports of the United States, New masts, spars, and her thirty white duck sails complete the latest picture of the gallant old man of war which is an important national monument at Gettysburg or the Washington Memorial.

Launched in Boston October 21, 1776, the Constitution's first victories were made when as flagship of the Mediterranean fleet during the blockade of Tripoli she covered herself with glory by dealing a decisive blow to the system of piracy and tribute existing for centuries on that coast.

In 1812 she gained lasting gratitude by defeating in the darkest hour of the war with England, the British frigate "Guerriere," thus ending for all time England's domination of the seas and vindicating our right to exist as a nation. In all she made nineteen captures, three of them being among the most spectacular battles of maritime history.

After the war her career was full of event and action. After six years she again sailed for the Mediterranean where Lord Byron paid her a visit. It is said that while on board he remarked, "I would rather have a nod from an American than a snuff box from an Emperor."

In 1848 in the harbor of Naples her captain invited the King of Naples and Pope Pius IV, who was then residing there, to visit her. The two dignitaries were rowed aboard by the captains of other foreign ships lying in the harbor, among which were Russian, French, English, Spanish and American. This is the first and only instance of sovereign honors being on American territory, for such was the deck of the Constitution.

Two other great crises occurred in her career when she was threatened with destruction. For the famous ship which was never defeated in war succumbed with the decay of age. In 1828 she was ordered destroyed or sold by the Secretary of Navy, but was saved by the national indignation consequent to the restrictions of a poem by Oliver Wendell.

Joined in the Boston Advertiser again in 1871 in Philadelphia, she far gone to sea under her own sail, she was rebuilt. Publication since then has been constant.

Last foreign cruise was in 1906-1907, when she visited the Exposition in Paris. In 1907-1908, with the exception of a few long voyages she carried out cruises for six months, 1909-1910, 1911-1912, 1913-1914, 1915-1916, 1917-1918, 1919-1920, 1921-1922, 1923-1924, 1925-1926, 1927-1928, 1929-1930, 1931-1932, 1933-1934, 1935-1936.

The flag she flew at her mast head during her present tour of the nation is the same as that she carried so gloriously to victory in 1812. It consists of fifteen stars white on blue field with fifteen stripes alternate white and red.

AGENTS
The Constitution is now on the stocks at the Boston Navy Yard. She will be ready for sea in the fall. The ship is now being refitted and will be ready for sea in the fall. The ship is now being refitted and will be ready for sea in the fall.

Two nieces of Rev. W. G. Bailey, Miss Helen and Elizabeth Bailey, both of San Antonio, and Mrs. Nona of Wichita Falls are visiting with Rev. and Mrs. Bailey. The three visitors, the host and hostess and their sons, W. G. Jr. and Hugh Frank Bailey will leave Monday evening for Carlsbad, New Mexico, where they will make a trip through the cavern.

George Parsons, of the Shafter Real Company, visited his uncle, C. C. Quinn at the Tex hotel.

MODEST MAIDENS

W. P. LESLIE HERE
Judge and Mrs. W. P. Leslie, formerly of this city but now of Eastland, spent the week-end in the Springs at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Coffey. Judge Leslie was prominent in local legal circles before becoming judge of the eleventh district of civil appeals court. He and Mrs. Leslie were well known and loved by citizens of this city.

"What? You're going back to Palm Beach?"
"Yes, I have to go back—the society columns say I'm still there!"

BRIDGE PROTECTED

WHEELER, Texas, July 14, 1936—Wheeler county has received $2,221 for a barrier to protect the south approach to the bridge across the north fork of Red river, on state highway No. 4, which was threatened when the river changed its channel last fall.

WIFE ROBBED OF BONUS

DETROIT (INS)—The dream of the future for Mrs. Martin Bucars, 42, was shattered by the depression of a negro holdup footpad. Enroute to purchase a small business with the $605 soldier bonus of her crippled husband, Mrs. Bucars was held up and robbed.

Jibes At Famous Furnish Fun For Capital Art Club

WASHINGTON (AP)—Highest dignitaries of the nation are not immune from the good natured jibes of the Arts Club of Washington. Recently a display of figurines carved out of soap representing some of the well known congressmen caused many chuckles.

Former Senator Tom Heflin of Alabama seemed to enjoy the caricature as much as anybody and on several occasions gave impromptu humorous talks before the club.

In an historic old house once occupied by President James Madison, the club, whose membership includes noted artists, actors, writers and musicians of the country, often entertains during the summer months.

annual frolic and one is apt to see any one from Senator Borah to George Washington.

Last year a distinguished looking artist, who resembles the late Chauncey Depew, donned frock coat and side burns and attended the ball disguised as the famous after dinner speaker.

George and Martha Washington are favorite subjects for impersonations at the Bal Bohem.

Tradition has it that during the battle of Bladenburg in 1814 President Madison and his cabinet were holding an important conference in the house now occupied by the club.

The swift approach of British troops broke up the meeting and Madison, forced to flee, galloped on horseback through the halls of the house to escape capture.

Mrs. James Monroe entertained there in lavish fashion.

Among the noted honorary members of the club are Mrs. Minnie Madden Fiske, Edwin H. Blashfield, E. H. Sothern and his wife, formerly Julia Marlowe.

COAST GUARD MASCOT
NEW LONDON, Conn. (INS)—Students at the coast guard academy here have long had a penchant for bears. Three they have had as mascots, each of them named OBJE, with a numeral after the name. When the bears get too big and too restless they are turned over to some zoo. OBJE, Third, came into port last fall from Asheville, N. C., where the Federal forest service found the little creature, weighing twelve pounds and decidedly wobbly on its legs. Students at the academy have been nursing OBJE, Third, taking turns at sitting up in the night to feed it from a bottle.

SPORTSIANTS

By Alan Gould

Max Schmeling may have gotten some of his bright ideas about fighting from the champion he resembles, Jack Dempsey, but the German's workmanlike style is fashioned more upon the Gene Tunney pattern.

Max is not the killing puncher that Dempsey was. He is a short, sharp and punishing hitter, however, with a style calculated, like Tunney's to wear down an opponent over the route. Tunney battered Gibbons and Dempsey much the same way that Schmeling beat down Stribling and Risio.

Max is not the finished boxer that Gene was. Probably he never will be as clever or as fast. Nevertheless, Schmeling has remarkable endurance, plus an instinct for rating his pace well and natural ability as a blocker. He took most of Stribling's blows on his arms or gloves, picking them off with astonishing rapidity.

Considering that Schmeling had fought less than four rounds in nearly two previous years, his showing against Stribling was little short of remarkable. He had plenty of courage, in his favor. Apparently he learns quickly, by observation as well as experience.

He was smartly boxed, too, and climbed into the ring in Cleveland's magnificent lakefront stadium in as prime condition for the fight as was Twenty Grand for the Belmont Stakes.

"THROUGH" AT 15
 It seems strange to consider a fighter of Stribling's ability "through" at 26, an age when Tunney, for example, was just finding himself on the upgrade and when Big Bill Tilden was just breaking toward the top of the tennis heap. Stribling will not quit the ring, but by now it seems clear his championship ambitions are behind him. The lean Georgian fought himself out over the short, two of three-over fight.

He has never shown his ability to go the full championship distance against first class opposition. His worst two setbacks were at 15 rounds against Berlebach and Schmeling. In the language of the turf, he appears strictly a sprinter.

Teacher Decides He Will Leave Farming Alone, Stick to Books

McKINNEY, Texas, July 13 (AP)—When it comes to a decision between farming and school teaching, Bill Williams, young principal of the Lovjoy school, southwest of McKinney, will stick to instructing the youth of the community. Becoming ambitious early in the spring, Williams rented an acre of land near the school and set out an acre of fine slip onions. He set out, cultivated, pulled and marketed the crop himself, hoping to make some extra money.

With the 150 crates marketed, he sat down to figure the expenditures and receipts. With the figures on the table, he found he had made exactly 46 cents on his crop. Williams believes he'll continue to teach for a while. He was recently re-elected principal of the Lovjoy school.

Sulphur Deposit Found Near Border

PRESIDIO, Texas, July 13 (AP)—A deposit of sulphur 30 feet wide, 50 feet deep and estimated to be unlimited in productivity, has been found just across the Rio Grande from Candelaria, 60 miles from Presidio.

The deposit is in the state of Chihuahua and is reported to be the largest bed of sulphur ever found on the North American continent. Samples of the discovery have been sent to analysts and chemists.

Republican Strategist Uses No Brass Bands In Fence-Building

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE
 WASHINGTON, July 13 (AP)—Behind a curtain of reserve, apparently shutoff from the roar of political campaign, the self-styled "plain Mr. Brown," of Washington and Ohio, goes quietly about the business of postmastering and political fence-mending.

Walter Folger Brown postmaster general, may or may not be chairman of the republican national committee during the 1932 battle, but no matter who has the title it is considered practically certain that Brown will have high position on the G. O. P. board of strategy.

Never a "brass band politician," he is reputedly one of the most successful political dodgers in the national capital.

Brown came out of the Harvard law school in 1894 to practice law with his father in Toledo, soon he was in politics.

He was chairman of the Ohio republican central committee from 1912 until 1918 when he led the Roosevelt "Bull Moose" movement in the state. He returned soon, however, to the regular G. O. P. fold.

He first met Herbert Hoover in March, 1921. The latter, then secretary of commerce, offered him the post of assistant secretary, but he declined because it would involve abandonment of his law practice.

Later that year he accepted appointment from President Harding as chairman of a committee designed to reorganize government departments in Washington.

It was then he became intimate with Hoover and found in him perhaps his strongest supporter in departmental reorganization.

In the presidential preference primary in Ohio, Brown is credited with having much to do in carrying the state for Hoover against the candidacy of the late Senator Willis, a favorite son.

His appointment to the postmaster generalship and elevation to high place as a political adviser to the president was a natural consequence.

Owing to his political power at home, he has been called "the czar of Toledo." There is nothing "caustic" about his appearance or manner. He resembles a reserved banker, with composure perhaps his most striking trait.

Seldom can he be drawn into the arena of political controversy. Once embroiled, however, he is considered a hard-headed fighter. Favorite of his hobbies is cooking. He delights in concocting intricate dishes for friends, a number of his recipes being original. He enjoys yachting and motoring and is a member of a Washington golf club but has not played for several years.

Principal building, the commission thought the people were entitled to the service of a man as city manager who at least would know the intricate or technical matters of engineering.

The commission still remains silent regarding action to secure a site for the location of the new city hall and auditorium. Members of the board declare they are awaiting word from the post office department at Washington with reference to the location of the $165,000 federal building to be constructed here. A message of final decision from that governmental division is expected daily in this city.

Kinnman's Sore Thumb Leads To Fatal Hits, Walks

A sore thumb caused Kinnman to weaken momentarily and allow a couple of hits and as many walks to give Lomax the winning margin over Southwestern Bell Telephone Sunday. Until that one had timed the local team was leading in the baseball encounter at Lomax. Score was 5-3.

Kinnman made up for what weakness he possessed on the mound by his superb hitting. He was tied in number of blows with McMahon, diminutive third sacker, who nicked Priehard of Lomax for three safeties.

Batteries were Southwestern Bell, Kinnman and Johnson; Lomax, Priehard and Stallings. Another member of the Stallings clan led the Lomax hitting attack and played off steadily ball at first base. The telephone team lays claim to a victory over Craden by virtue of a forfeit. It alleges that they had matched a game with the Oilers, but that Craden failed to put in its appearance at any time during the afternoon.

Designs Completed For Eleven U. S. Destroyers

WASHINGTON, July 13 (AP)—Designs for eleven new destroyers were completed today. The navy will advertise for bids Wednesday. They are the first destroyers designed in America in fourteen years and will cost from four to five million dollars each. They are to be larger and more rugged than the present type.

Vaughn To Be Missing During Crucial Series

Vincent Returns To Game After Illness With Tight Hurling

By BILL FAIKER
 DALLAS, July 13 (AP)—When Vincent and Houston play July 25, 26 and 27 in the first series to determine the first half pennant, Beaumont will face the crucial test unless the good pitching arm of Mulehoe Vaughn, regarded as one of the best in the first half.

Vaughn has been suspended for 30 days, the suspension effective from July 7. Vaughn is troubled with an ailment that threatens to put him on the shelf for good, as in order to get him well and ready to pitch again, Export officials suspended Vaughn, sending him to El Paso where medical men are giving an examination. Previous to his suspension, Vaughn had won eleven and lost six. Buck Marvick will try to fill Vaughn's starring place on the Beaumont staff.

Knocked out in the first ten days of the season by an appendicitis operation, Fred Vincent, Wichita Falls pitcher, recently proved by leading the Dallas Stars, 3 to 0 in Vincent gave two 8-inners this time and allowed only four men to reach first base.

Vincent, operator, promises to make Texas league be as lively as in night games, providing he can stay off the hospital list. Since his return from the operation table, Vincent has pitched 13 innings, allowed six hits and one run.

This includes his game of July 7. Vincent's trouble is not supposed to be a stomach ailment, but a sickness which Fred Thompson, Wichita Falls sports editor, gives as "data on Vincent's battle with sickness as follows:

"As far back as 1926, he was found for the major, only to have a serious operation set him back. In that year he went to Baltimore from the New York-Penn league, and won his first six starts. Then came the first operation which finished him for that season. He returned with Baltimore in 1927, 1928, but in 1929 he had still failed to completely recover, and he laid back where he started from—the New York-Penn league. There his comeback started, and several pitching feats, notably his 1 to 0 victory in a 15-inning title playoff game, brought him to the attention of the Browns and their subsidiaries. Last year he was never a well man, and his pitching was periodically effective and wild. He returned this year in good health but once under a strain of the past year, he was set back by another operation—this time for appendicitis.

Ernie Holman, Dallas third baseman, after going hitless July 7 with Vincent on the mound, said:

"They cut on Fred so much they, late finally cut out all the hits out of him. Looks tough from here as it is out for us boys."

Tigers Win Off Forsan

Mexico, Nine, Behind Cronin's Pitching, Scores 15 Runs

Continuing their winning spree the Tigers, a Mexican baseball team, trounced over late Sunlight team of Fortson Sunday 15 to 7.

Pitching for the Tigers, Cronin was successful in whiffing an even dozen of the men who faced him, although he was freely touched at intervals. He was fairly effective in the pinches and was never in great danger of being slugged out of the box. Hunter, pitching for Sunlight, was less lucky with his flings, striking out only four batters and yielding to the cutting blades of the Tigers.

The game was played on the Sunlight diamond—several of Fortson's players being in the line-up. Flushed by their recent string of victories Tiger team members and officials issued a challenge to any and all comers, no matter where they reside.

FRECKLED JACKIE COOPER FOUND 'SKIPPY' 'TAILOR-MADE' ROLE LEADING TO STARDOM

By HUBBARD KEAVY

HOLLYWOOD, July 12 (UP)—His name is Jackie, but it might be "Skippy," he is so like the character that brought him screen fame.

He is Jackie Cooper, Hollywood's newest and youngest star, who, until a few months ago, was just another child actor. He differed from most of them in that he worked frequently.

Three and a half years ago, four-year-old Jackie began his career by playing a small role in Lloyd Hamilton. Other pictures, most of them comedies, followed at intervals during the next two years.

Came the talkies and the discovery that Jackie had a voice. He sang in one of the early revues, although ill with mumps.

"Good trouper," don't stop for nothing, especially a little something like mumps," he explains. "Even mumps couldn't make my voice any worse."

Meanwhile the search was on for a youngster to play the part of "Skippy" in the picture of that name. Months went by as hundreds of children were tested. None was the type wanted.

It was inevitable that the search would get around to Jackie. It did, the picture was made and it made Jackie. "Naturally," everyone agrees. "Skippy" is one of the most human and appealing child pictures ever filmed.

Jackie contributed more than his share to its success. The story was tailor-made for him. He didn't act; he was just himself.

Already under contract to a producer for a mere $100 a week, he looked as though that was all Jackie would get for the next five years, despite the increased demand for his services.

But another company wanted Jackie so much that it bought his five-year $100-a-week contract. Everyone concerned profited, most of all Jackie, whose salary increased $100 a week.

Jackie is a normal, healthy lad who gets into as much mischief as any other youth his age. Mentally he seems older than his years, and next fall he will be in grade 4-A.

He likes guns, but the most dangerous weapon he owns is an air rifle. His mother, formerly Mabel DeLeon, was a vaudeville pianist; his father died when Jackie was two. Jackie was born in Los Angeles on Sept. 15, 1922.

Jackie Cooper didn't have to act in "Skippy," the film that made him a star with a $1,500 weekly salary. He is merely himself, a fun-loving mischievous boy. He's not yet eight years old, but has been in pictures for nearly four years.

His hair is straw blond, his eyes hazel and his flat little nose a mass of freckles.

When he grows up he thinks he'll be a "motorist" or else take Lindbergh's place. If, Cheryl's any, please left for a guy to fly to.

At the time of the shooting, Jackie was in the city of Los Angeles, California, and was in the city of Los Angeles, California.

Byrd Profits From Polar Trip In Spite Of $900,000 Expense

NEW YORK, July 12 (UP)—The South Polar expedition that cost the friends and backers of Admiral Richard E. Byrd nearly $900,000 has actually profited the expedition leader approximately $200,000. It has been revealed by authorities close to the Admiral.

The list of estimated returns from lectures, books, motion pictures and other exhibitions, all figured conservatively, were as follows:

Lecture tour $220,000
Newspaper serials $165,000
Motion pictures $80,000
Books $70,000
Total $535,000

Against this total should be charged off, it was said, the expedition's deficit of $100,000, the cost of scientific record of observations, now in preparation at a price of $50,000, a donation of $100,000 at the time of the expedition, and the cost of the City of New York at a museum set at $100,000.

Subtracting these charges from the $535,000 gross proceeds, the balance going to Admiral Byrd would then be $225,000.

Incidentally, Admiral Byrd waived the stipulation that none of himself might take the lecture platform, this enabling his wife to earn some money for themselves.
