Banks Increase Interest Rates to Corporations

Will Soon Effect All Financing

NEW YORK (UPI) — The nation's major banks Thursday increased the interest rate charge on prime loans—short-term loans to the country's biggest corporations—from 5 to 5½ per cent.

The increase, the second in three months, had the immediate effect of wiping out a gain of nearly seven points in the Dow Jones industrial average on the shaky New York Stock Exchange. The planned effect is to tighten credit to the banks' best customers—the corporations.

The increase was designed to cut down the huge number of prime-rate business loans during a period when bank lending rates for these loans are below those of bond market and other money market rates.

Practically all business financing eventually will be affected by the increase, and some economists predicted that it would filter into rates charged homeowners for mortgages, although not immediately and not to the extent of the full ½ per cent.

There was no immediate comment from Washington on the increase, neither from the White House, the Federal Reserve Board nor the Treasury Department.

Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. was the first to announce the one-half of one per cent increase. Its action was quickly followed by the nation's other big lenders — among them, Chase Manhattan; Bank of America; Manufacturers Hanover Trust; Mellon National; Pittsburgh National Bank; First National of Chicago; Republic National Bank of Dallas; Wells Fargo, and leading banks in Boston, St. Louis and other large cities.

Several New York banks, including Morgan, not only raised the prime rate, but increased the rate on brokers' loans from 5¼ to 5½ per cent. Brokers' loans are made to stock brokers to finance their customers' margin (credit) accounts.

Morgan's action raised the prime rate to its highest since it was established in the 1930s at 1½ per cent. Until last December, when the Federal Reserve Board raised its discount rate—the rate member banks pay for borrowing money from the reserve system—from 4 to 4½—the prime rate had been 4½ per cent from August of 1960.

Police Hunt For Suspect in Bogus Bill Passing

Pampa police were on the lookout today for a woman suspected of passing counterfeit bills in the Panhandle area.

Secret Service agents have issued a warrant for the arrest of Zelma Sparks, alias Zelma Mendenhall. The woman is described as about 34, 5 feet 5 inches in height and weighs about 160 pounds. She is believed to be in the company of one or two white males.

The wanted woman drives a maroon 1965 Ford Sedan bearing Oklahoma license GY 843. Pampa police said serial numbers of the counterfeit bills are K 6368224 A and K 63168224 A. The Sparks woman was last seen in Amarillo, officers said.

US WITHDRAWAL COSTLY

France Bases Not Crucial To Europe Defense

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Approximately $862 million in military installations in France are not crucial to the effective defense of Europe, according to American officials who say the withdrawal of U.S. troops would cost France up to $150 million.

The assessment came Thursday in response to questions based on President Charles de Gaulle's apparent plan to seek command of bases now used by foreign forces, and withdraw French military units and staff officers from NATO commands.

Asked whether Europe could be defended without the NATO bases in France, U.S. officials said simply: Yes, it could. They said too that the withdrawal of 30,000 U.S. military men and their families from Air Force and Army bases in France would cost the French from $125 million to $150 million in net dollar income.

Behind the official assessment was a series of studies offering options for action once De Gaulle's specific plans are known. The cost of relocating American forces elsewhere was not included in the assessment. The Defense Department said in response to a question that the United States has spent

HIGH BALL

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — The policeman's ball brings in the money, but the overhead is too high.

Police Chief George Bichsel ruled, therefore, that policemen may no longer work on their off-duty time, soliciting ticket sales. The last ball grossed $61,000 but the 30 policemen who did the telephoning to sell tickets had to be paid $20,000. That plus other overhead, cut the take from the ball to $1,500.

New Photogramatic Unit To Begin Improvement Survey

An engineering survey of SH 152 (Alcock St.) is expected to be made next week by a photogramatic unit of the State Highway Dept. G. K. Reading, resident engineer, said today.

This would mean an early start on preliminary work for the Alcock St. improvement from Faulkner to Price Rd., approved by Pampa voters in last Tuesday's bond election. Reading said the engineers will be in the area next week in connection with survey work on Interstate 40, the Alanreed-McLean area from the Wheeler County line to the Carson County line.

The resident engineer explained that the survey is done by flying over the area and taking pictures of the right of way from Faulkner to Price Rd. The photos are processed and run through a machine which gives measurements, eliminating the need for a surveyor. (See SURVEY, Page 3)

Amarillo Police Find Man's Body Stuffed in Trunk

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — David Carlot, 21, a gas station attendant from Amarillo, Tex., was in the custody of sheriff's deputies today after allegedly admitting he killed a man in Texas.

Carlot was arrested at the home of his father after deputies received information he was driving a car belonging to Joe Lavato, 29, also of Amarillo.

He was booked for murder after telling investigators he killed Lavato accidentally and stuffed the body in the trunk of his car which he abandoned.

Deputies said the suspect told them he and the victim were in his car and Joe wanted to see his gun. He said when Lavato reached for the gun it fired accidentally, deputies said. Carlot then told officers he panicked and fled in Lavato's car. Deputies here contacted Amarillo authorities who found the car and body just outside the Texas town.

Engine Failure Cited As Cause Of Fatal Crash

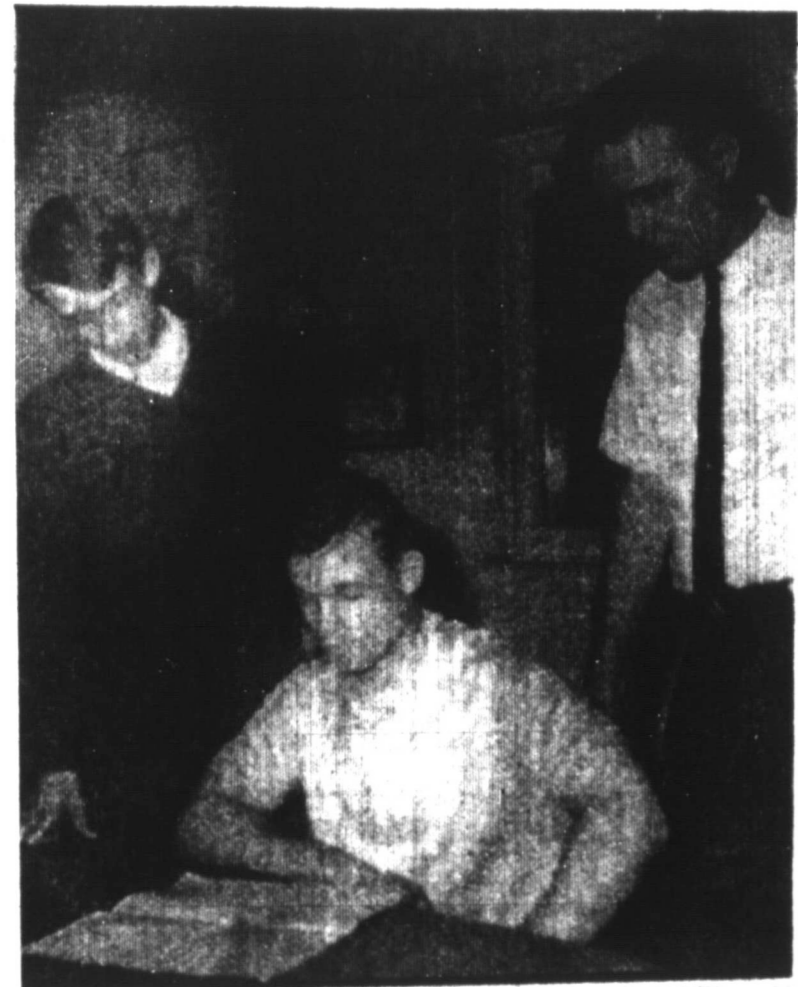

The Civil Aeronautics Board in Washington has filed a report that engine failure and pilot error were responsible for the fatal airplane crash that claimed the lives of three Pampa men near Douglas, Wyo., last Aug. 9.

All aboard the plane, including pilot Demaris Holt and his two passengers, B. M. Behrman and Clayton Husted, were killed. They were on a return flight from a fishing trip at Great Bear Lake in Canada, when an engine of the private plane failed.

The CAB stated inadequate pre-flight inspection resulted in oil starvation which induced feathering of the left propeller. The board said the pilot failed to maintain flying speed during the attempted emergency landing. The CAB also stated there was insufficient oil in the left engine, a condition which caused automatic propeller feathering when the oil was reduced to an unsafe level.

Rehearsal Preview Set by PHS Choir

Pampans who like choral music will have an opportunity tomorrow night to attend a dress rehearsal preview of the concert Pampa High School's A Cappella Choir will present next Wednesday morning at the American Choral Directors Association convention in Kansas City, Mo.

The 86-member choir, one of only two high school choirs in the United States selected to appear at the national convention with college and university choirs, will sing its entire concert program beginning at 7:15 p.m. Saturday in Robert E. Lee Junior High auditorium.

B. R. Henson, head of the choral and music department at Texas Christian University, was in Pampa today to conduct a clinic for choir members this afternoon and tonight in the high school auditorium.

Also on the program at Robert E. Lee auditorium tomorrow night will be the 120-voice High School Girls Choir. The girls' choir will be rehearsing for the Interscholastic League contests at Canyon one week from today.

The A Cappella Choir will return from Kansas City Thursday night, attend school Friday morning and then, along with the Girls Choir, will leave at noon Friday for the Canyon contests.

The choir and its director, Hugh Sanders, will leave Pampa at 4:30 p.m. Monday by chartered bus and arrive in Kansas City Tuesday evening. After presenting their 25-minute program in Kansas City Wednesday morning, the Pampa choir will be directed by Dr. Charles Hirt, director of choral organizations at the University (See PREVIEW, Page 3)

COULD TOPPLE GOVERNMENT

Another Sex-Security Scandal Brewing in British Parliament

OTTAWA (UPI) — Parliament acts today on a move to oust a cabinet minister who removed the lid from a five-year-old sex scandal rivaling Britain's Christine Keeler case. Justice Minister Lucien Carlin charged Thursday that "several" ministers in the former government of Conservative Prime Minister John Diefenbaker were romantically involved with Gerta Munsinger, a blonde East German beauty charges at an unusually candid news conference, saying he wanted a judicial inquiry because of a "bona fide security case" that in ways was "worse" than Britain's 1963 scandal involving party girl Keeler and Defense Minister John Profumo.

Cardin said that while he was an associate defense minister he learned of the relationship (See SCANDAL, Page 3)

Sheer Genius Takes 'Slosh' From Coffee

By ELDON BARRETT
United Press International
EATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Dean Spencer is a sheer genius. If you don't believe it, ask the passengers of West Coast Airlines.

Spencer has invented a device that takes the slosh out of a cup of coffee.

It is the greatest invention since the bib.

His patented slosh-stopper is a piece of plastic, round in shape with a doughnut hole in the center and indentations on the outer rim—sort of a cross between a cogwheel and a telephone dial.

This device fits inside the lip of a plastic or paper throwaway cup, like those used for coffee or soda pop "to go." It stays in place while you drink the beverage, and like the cup, you toss it away when you're finished with it.

Spencer calls his invention "Dinegard," a trade name he has registered.

West Coast Airlines officials think so much of the device they have ordered a million of them. The airline has been testing "Dinegards" for about two months and West Coast now probably has the coolest stewardesses in the business.

West Coast and other airlines as well as airplane manufacturing firms have done business with Spencer before.

Twenty years ago, he established the Spencer Aircraft Industries, and among other things, began manufacturing hose and tubing closures that wouldn't pop off. Orders from the Boeing Co. made his business a success 10 years ago.

Spencer, 64, is a pilot himself, and has a lot of friends

House to Stamp Approval On LBJ's Money Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The House Appropriations Committee planned today to place its stamp of approval on President Johnson's $13 billion money bill for military equipment to fight the Viet Nam war and step up American defense readiness.

The committee scheduled a meeting to vote on the measure, which was expected to emerge for floor consideration with most of the items asked by the President intact.

The proposal would boost spending for such items of military hardware as aircraft and helicopters being used in the Viet Nam war, ammunition and weapons.

Included in the overall total of the bill was $4.8 billion in spending for the fiscal year ending June 30 which received congressional authorization Thursday.

The military authorization bill had previously tied up the Senate in two weeks of heated debate over the administration's policies in Viet Nam.

But it received final approval from both houses and was sent to the White House in a burst of legislative activity which also saw the Senate approve Johnson's bill for $415 in additional economic aid for South Viet Nam and other trouble spots.

The aid bill now goes back to the House for approval of one minor change. Final passage in the Senate was on an 87-2 vote with only Sens. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., and Ernest Gruening, D-Alaska, opposing.

UNSUCCESSFUL ATTEMPT LONDON (UPI) —Rosemarie Frankland, 22, a one-time department store clerk who won the "miss world" title in 1961, thus becoming the first British girl to do so, is being sued for divorce by her journalist husband, Ben Jones, it was learned Thursday. At the time she won the title she said "I have had enough of the glamour business—now I want to try marriage."

Pampa Teachers Attend District Meet in Amarillo

All Pampa students got a rest from the rigors of school work today with 300 Pampa public school teachers attending a district teachers convention in Amarillo.

Another 180 teachers from Gray - Roberts county Unit of District 9 attended the Northwest Conference for Education, District 9, of the Texas State Teachers Association. Approximately 3,000 area teachers converged on Municipal Auditorium for the one-day session.

The convention climaxed Texas Education Week in the Panhandle and the convention theme was "Education for Peace and World Understanding."

All Pampa residents reported glass breakage at their homes or businesses Thursday. In each case of breakage, a large rock was hurled through the glass.

Pampa police said Rod McDonald reported the windows behind his plumbing business broken Thursday by hurled rocks. McDonald's business site is at 513 N. Cuyler.

C. Carter, 1424 Williston, told Pampa police someone hurled a rock through his home's picture window Thursday evening. A window at the home of R. E. French, 1805 Beech, was also broken Thursday evening by a rock hurled from a car. French said he heard a car drive by his home at a high rate of speed but could not get a license number.

About $160 in damage was done to a living room window at the home of Mrs. Aron Meek, 1345 Williston, Thursday evening in a similar rock-throwing incident.

In 1962, a $4.9 billion foreign aid bill was sent to Congress.

City Officially Approves Election

The Pampa City Commission met late yesterday afternoon and canvassed results of last Tuesday's $2,900,000 bond election.

A check of the poll sheets found no errors and a resolution making the returns official was adopted.

All five propositions on the ballot were declared approved by the voters.

The commissioners also approved payment of $358 to election judges and clerks in the four polling places.

County Officers Probe Wire Theft

The Gray County Sheriff and Deputies are investigating the theft of about $387 worth of copper wire reported missing Thursday.

The wire, property of Southwest Public Service Company, was strung out along a road two miles south of Pampa. Officers reported about three-quarters of a mile of wire was stolen.

Scandal

He said also that earlier rumors of the girl had classed her only as a "security risk," but it was now known she had once been an espionage agent.

B&PW Members Review History Of Club During Business Women's Week

Business and Professional Women's Club met Tuesday evening in the City Club Room with Mrs. Eli Ethridge, president, presiding. The Pledge of Allegiance was repeated in unison.

The "Girl of the Month" for March, Miss Linda Hubbard, was introduced by Mrs. L. B. Robertson.

Minutes of the last board meeting were read by Mrs. Earl Eaton and the treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Emmett Gee. Correspondence was read by Mrs. Charley Ford and Council of Clubs report was given by Mrs. J. A. Knox.

Mrs. Marguerite Nash, personal development chairman, presented the program. Mrs. Laura Belle Cornelius gave the devotional. A question and answer game was played after which "The Unpredictables", including Misses Diana Rose, Barbara Brown, Sandra McNaughton and Wanetta Bayless, presented two vocal selections, accompanied by two of the girls with guitar.

Refreshments were served from a table covered with a pink cloth, and centered by tall pink candles attractively arranged. Back of the table stood a white trellis entwined with pink peach blossoms. Potted peach blossoms were placed throughout the club room.

Twenty-seven members and six guests were present.

B&PW THROUGH THE YEARS

1919—The National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs emerged from the efforts of 212 delegates from 45 states, a non-sectarian, bipartisan, self-supporting organization, outgrowth of the previous year's War Work Council meeting of the YWCA.

1920—Adopted Mary Stewart's "Collect for Club Women"; brought out its first issue of Independent Woman, the official publication, speaking for all business and professional women.

1921—Was incorporated in New York as a non-profit organization; adopted its Emblem, the golden circle containing the Nike, the Torch, the Wand, and the Ship of Commerce.

1923—Established the Lena Lake Forrest Fellowship Fund, marking the beginning of a tremendous scholarship program for which it is well known on club, state and National levels. (Administration of the Lena Lake Forrest Fund was transferred to the Foundation a decade ago.)

1927—Selected Green and Gold as Federation colors.

1928—Undertook first European tour, organized by Dr. Lena Madasin Phillips, which set the stage for the International Federation to become a reality two years later; initiated National Business Women's Week, the Federation's annual salute to career women.

1935—Endorsed the Merit System in Civil Service, opposing discrimination in employment because of marital status; referred to the clubs for study the Equal Rights Amendment to the Constitution.

1941—Established Chinese Nurses Project to aid in training Free Chinese Army Nurses and, two decades later, with voluntary gifts from members, build the Dr. Minnie L. Maffett Nurses Residence in Taiwan.

1945—Invited by the State Department to participate in the San Francisco Conference where the UN Charter was drafted.

1952—Endorsed a woman for vice president of the United States in both political parties.

1956—Moved its National Executive Offices from New York to Washington; brought forth the long-planned Business and Professional Women's Foundation.

1957—Dedicated and moved into its own building at 2012 Massachusetts Avenue in Washington, D. C.

1961—Established UN Fellowship Award through which a member each year is enabled to study at the United Nations; voted to sponsor the first Executive Development program for Women, through the Foundation; sponsored the first of a planned series of Conferences of Business and Professional Women of the Americas, in San Juan.

1962—Sponsored the first Congress of American Women Leaders, of which there have been three.

1965—Saw legislative progress: the establishment of the Equal Pay for Comparable Work law and the removal of discrimination in government employment through repeal of Section 165 of the revised statutes of the United States.

1966—Looks ahead to fourth Annual Legislative Conference in January; Tenth Anniversary of the Foundation in February; second Conference of Business and Professional Women of the Americas in November; and all

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are not understanding you better than usual, what you have in mind and can get a great deal done because they can realize to state to others directly and exactly. Let others see that you can accomplish a great deal by tackling all that faces you with determination.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Interesting individuals now entering your realm of existence can prove to be very good for you in the future. Find point of contact. You have certain views that are unique and can prove to be invaluable.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20) Instead of finding excuses, go ahead and pay any just bills owing and then collect what others owe you. Put in a good day's work. Evening can be most satisfying from the romantic standpoint. Be charming.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) If you contact associates directly, you can have a better meeting of minds, combine efforts more intelligently. If later, you are hurried, get out for pleasure. Pressure from the public can be very taxing at times.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Dive right into all work that needs to be done, stop procrastinating, and you'll get everything completed in less time. Clearly certain points with co-workers. This makes for increased production.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Finding the right hobby that will alleviate pressures is wise, and can also be helpful to you physically. Be with true congenials. Show special talents. Do not neglect your mate in the evening.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Be more already in your points of view instead of wavering from one to the other. Know what your basic aims are. Listen to what kin have to say concerning how to increase income.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) You have far better ideas now on how to regulate your assets work, so that you are more efficient and comfortable as it increases production. Others will assist you more enthusiastically in your plans.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have year and for years to come a continuation of its objectives on behalf of career women: to elevate standards; to promote their interests; to bring about a spirit of cooperation among them; to extend opportunities through education.

In 50 states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, reaching hands across the sea to touch the hands of International Federation members, 175,000 United States members in 3,700 clubs will help write many more years of the history of advancement for all business and professional women.

Dear Abby.... She Needs Him Like Custer Needed Indians

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a pretty little 19-year-old farm-reared girl considering marriage to a 44-year-old city man who was recently divorced and given the custody of his three problem sons?

The boys are 17, 15, and 13. The two older boys have been in trouble with the law and are on probation. This man is trying to rush the girl into a decision because he can't get a housekeeper for those delinquent kids of his. She is a sweet, church-going girl, Abby, but very easily talked into things.

HER FRIEND
DEAR FRIEND: A pretty little 19-year-old farm-reared girl needs a 44-year-old man with three delinquent sons like Custer needed another Indian. If she's your friend, and "easily talked into things," try to talk her into forgetting him.

DEAR ABBY: When my husband goes to kiss me, I push him away, too. But not for the same reason "Love Starved's" wife pushes him away. My husband has the roughest beard this side of the Yukon.

If I let him smooch me in the evening, my poor face is like raw hamburger the next morning. How do you make love to a porcupine?

SHIRLEY
DEAR SHIRLEY: Very carefully.

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of eight lovely children. The baby is one month old today. For the past 10 years I have worked the 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. shift (I am a nurse.) My mother, God bless her, cares for my children. My husband is very unreliable. He is a club joiner and is always on the go.

During my last pregnancy, I had to drive myself to the hospital because my mother could not leave the children and my husband was playing bridge at the Legion with his pals. He thinks it's easy for me to work all night and lose sleep trying to be both mother and dad in the day time.

I'd quit my job but he never gives me any money and I'm afraid he wouldn't make the house payments. My father warned me about his laziness, but I thought I was lucky to get such a handsome man and

A capella Choir leaves Monday to perform for the national convention of the American Choral Directors Association in Kansas City, Mo. The choir will also assist in a clinic session led by Dr. Charles Hirt of the University of Southern California.

It was not simple luck that the Pampa choir was one of two high schools selected to attend the national meeting. It was, however, serious dedication and hard work of both, the members and Hugh Sanders, director, that contributed to that special quality that made the choir stand out from the other entries.

"Let me say how honored ADCDA is to have such a select group on our national program," Harold A. Decker, second vice-president of the ADCDA, said. The choir will present a public concert tomorrow night at 7:15 in the Robert E. Lee Junior High School Auditorium.

Choir members are not the only concert conscious musicians this week.

Last night Pampa High School Band and the two junior high school bands presented a public concert in Robert E. Lee Auditorium. The joint concert climaxed Pampa's observances of Texas Education Week.

Band, choir and speech members opened Texas Education Week activities. The students performed Monday at the Chamber of Commerce luncheon.

Mike Carr will serve as president of Key Club next year. Other newly elected officers are Kevin Francis, vice president; Charles Hampton, secretary; Wendie Watson, treasurer; Robert Karr, senior director, and Will Wall, junior director.

Mike is in charge of plans for attending the District Convention in Dallas April 15-17. The boys will go on a chartered bus and stay in the Statler-Hilton Hotel, according to Jerry Masterson, vice president.

March 29 has been set aside for the 1965-1966 Harvester Basketball Banquet. The banquet will honor both Harvester and Shocker basketball teams.

Team captains, who were elected by the boys by secret ballot, will be announced at the banquet. The Hustling Harvester Award will be presented to the boy who has shown the most spirit during the season. After the boys voted on the Hustling Harvester, Coaches Terry Culey and Gary Griffin made the final selection.

DEAR TIRED: If it took you eight children to realize you picked a lemon, you are slower than most women. Some men will never walk as long as they have a crutch. Stay home, and let your husband support you. (He might like it.) If he really is lazy and an inadequate provider, be grateful for your nursing education, because you might have to go on supporting yourself for a long, long time.

Presbyterians Honor Organist Fidelia Yoder For Long Service

Mrs. Fidelia Yoder, organist at the First Presbyterian Church for 25 years, was honored Wednesday at a surprise dinner party in the Fellowship Hall of the church. Mrs. Yoder began her work in February, 1941, at the time the present sanctuary was completed, and has served continuously since that time.

A silver tea service, honoring her silver anniversary, was presented by the Pastor on behalf of the congregation, and for her proposed trip to Africa this summer a raincoat and matching umbrella. Miss Mary Reeves, a close friend, made this presentation. The choir, under direction of Mrs. George Budd, sang an original ditty to honor their friend and accompanist.

Several of Mrs. Yoder's close friends were united to share in the occasion. Mr. and Mrs. Herman Jones, Mr. and Mrs. John B. Hessey, Mrs. Burt Nuckolls, Mrs. Calvin Whitley, and Mrs. Lois Fagan. Arrangements for this surprise dinner were under the direction of Elders E. O. Wedgeworth and Homer Johnson, with a special committee consisting of Mrs. John Nutting, Mrs. George Budd and Miss Harriet Henderson responsible for selecting the gift. Circle II of the United Presbyterian Women, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Russell McConnell, took charge of the meal.

Today, the key affirmations of the creed are being challenged—not merely by skeptics outside the church, which is an old story—but also by bishops, ministers and theologians who speak from within the Christian community.

Some of the challenging voices are being raised in the Roman Catholic Church. But most of the radical ferment in theology is taking place in Protestantism. In the United States, England and Germany—the three great centers of Protestant culture—sharp debate is underway in seminaries, in the pages of religious journals, at national church conferences and even late, at parish-level meetings.

This outburst of theological controversy is not focused, like so many disputes of the past, on fine points of doctrine. It is concerned with the most basic of all religious questions—the existence and nature of God.

God Not Particularized

To clarify the real issues, it should be emphasized at the outset that no responsible Christian theologian, today or at any time in the past, has envisioned God in anthropological terms as a particular being who resides somewhere "up there" or "out there."

Classic Christian theology, from New Testament days until now, has always understood God to transcend all categories

The self-styled "Christian radicals" who seek to jettison the concept of a personal God argue that it has become meaningless to vast numbers of people. Thus, Anglican Bishop John A. T. Robinson asserts in his widely read book, "Honest to God," that in the space age, "men can no longer credit the existence of God as a supernatural person." Bishop Robinson does not go into detail as to why this should be so. But he states from his own observation that it is a fact. And he goes on to argue that Christians should adapt their preaching to what "modern man" is prepared to accept, by abandoning personal references to a "Father in Heaven" in favor of impersonal abstrac-tion of time and space. It has insisted that the reality of God surpasses any conception that finite human minds can encompass.

But Christianity—in common with Judaism and Islam—has traditionally spoken of God as a person. There are two reasons for this. The first is that living, thinking, purposeful beings are the highest and most complex phenomenon that we find in the universe. The creator of the universe may be infinitely more than men can imagine when they project personality to the ultimate degree, say traditional theologians, but he certainly is not less than a living person.

The second reason is the intuitive but unshakable conviction of believers that the reality they encounter through faith is not an impersonal force like magnetism or gravitation, but a caring, loving, forgiving person. . . . In Martin Buber's famous phrase not an It but a Thou.

This concept of a personal God is by no means confined today to a few naive laymen. On the contrary, it has been upheld with great vigor in recent years by Karl Barth, Emil Brunner, Rudolf Bultmann, Reinhold and Richard Niebuhr, John Baillie, Austin Farrer and many other giants of 20th Century Protestant theology.

The true nature of "Substance" as defined first by Biblical prophets and later by Christ Jesus will be the Lesson-Sermon subject in all Christian Science services this Sunday. Related passages from the denominational textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, will complete the readings.

The story of Peter's healing of the lame man at the gate of the temple called Beautiful Acts 3) will be presented to illustrate the theme that real substance is spiritual. Peter's response to the man's plea for alms was: "Silver and gold have I none; but such as I have give I thee: In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth rise up and walk." The account continues: "And he leaping up stood, and walked, and entered with them into the temple, praising and leaping and walking with God."

Theologians In Ferment Over 'Apostles' Creed Doctrinal Challenges, Skepticism

(First of Two)
By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

"I believe in God the Father Almighty, maker of Heaven and earth, and in Jesus Christ his only son our Lord. . . ."

Those are the opening words of the Apostles' Creed, which has stood for nearly 2,000 years as a summary of essential Christian beliefs.

Today, the key affirmations of the creed are being challenged—not merely by skeptics outside the church, which is an old story—but also by bishops, ministers and theologians who speak from within the Christian community.

Some of the challenging voices are being raised in the Roman Catholic Church. But most of the radical ferment in theology is taking place in Protestantism. tion of time and space. It has insisted that the reality of God surpasses any conception that finite human minds can encompass.

But Christianity—in common with Judaism and Islam—has traditionally spoken of God as a person. There are two reasons for this. The first is that living, thinking, purposeful beings are the highest and most complex phenomenon that we find in the universe. The creator of the universe may be infinitely more than men can imagine when they project personality to the ultimate degree, say traditional theologians, but he certainly is not less than a living person.

The second reason is the intuitive but unshakable conviction of believers that the reality they encounter through faith is not an impersonal force like magnetism or gravitation, but a caring, loving, forgiving person. . . . In Martin Buber's famous phrase not an It but a Thou.

This concept of a personal God is by no means confined today to a few naive laymen. On the contrary, it has been upheld with great vigor in recent years by Karl Barth, Emil Brunner, Rudolf Bultmann, Reinhold and Richard Niebuhr, John Baillie, Austin Farrer and many other giants of 20th Century Protestant theology.

The true nature of "Substance" as defined first by Biblical prophets and later by Christ Jesus will be the Lesson-Sermon subject in all Christian Science services this Sunday. Related passages from the denominational textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, will complete the readings.

The story of Peter's healing of the lame man at the gate of the temple called Beautiful Acts 3) will be presented to illustrate the theme that real substance is spiritual. Peter's response to the man's plea for alms was: "Silver and gold have I none; but such as I have give I thee: In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth rise up and walk." The account continues: "And he leaping up stood, and walked, and entered with them into the temple, praising and leaping and walking with God."

has chosen to be silent. . . . (We are) saying that God has disappeared from history. . . . he is truly absent, not simply hidden from view, and therefore he is truly dead."

Hamilton emphasized the same point. "We are not talking about the absence of the experience of God, but about the experience of the absence of God," he says. If there ever were a God such as the Bible talks about—one who takes an active, compassionate interest in human affairs—he has disappeared from human experience, and to say that he is "dead" is simply to underscore that the loss is "final and irrevocable."

Some Christian laymen, distressed to hear such talk coming from faculty members at church-related institutions, are inclined to view Altizer and Hamilton as men who, having lost their faith but not their jobs, are trying to make a "new theology" out of old-fashioned atheism.

But most professional theologians, however much they disagree with Altizer and Hamilton, credit them with having articulated a feeling which is very widespread today, not only in society at large, but in churches and even among the clergy. It is essentially a feeling of despair about the possibility of knowing God.

While acknowledging the sincerity of the "Christian radicals," traditional theologians object to the sweeping, undocumented generalizations to which the radicals are prone. It is one thing, they say, for a man to announce that he has not been able to establish personal contact with God, and that many other people have told him they have the same difficulty.

Assertion of Negative Falter

But to proceed from this evidence to the dogmatic assertion that there is no God is entirely unwarranted. Like

Witnesses Find April Important

Next month will be a special importance to the local congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses for several reasons. Besides a special talk, "What Binding Satan Will Mean for Mankind," on April 1, and the Memorial celebration on April 5, many of the local congregation will be putting forth an extra effort to increase their share of the door-to-door ministry work. During a special meeting held February 27, six local ministers requested applications for "vacation pioneering."

An acceptance of these applications means that at least seventy-five hours in the door-to-door ministry during April, thus increasing their share in this work by about seven times.

The door-to-door ministry is one of things that distinguishes Jehovah's Witnesses from most other religions. Last year 1,034,268 witnesses spent 131,237,644 hours in this door-to-door ministry in 197 different lands. The local congregation is looking forward to sharing in this ministry in an increased amount with Jehovah's Witnesses all over the world in April.

Baptists To Hear Carver

Dr. Douglas Carver, Pastor of the First Baptist Church, will be in the pulpit for the eleven o'clock morning worship and has chosen "A Snake in the Grass" for his sermon topic. His text can be found in Acts 28:3. Mr. Sam Allen, Minister of Music, will direct the Church Choir in singing the anthem, "Eternal King" by Marshall and will present Mr. Jim Johnson, tenor, who will sing a solo, "I Know a Name." Miss Eloise Lane, organist, will play "Andante" by Sheppard for the offertory.

Mr. Philip Stovall, new Minister of Education, outlined some specific plans for Sunday School and Training Union promotion for the immediate future and we are expecting a good attendance in these organizations Sunday.

"Life's Greatest Bargain" is the subject Rev. J. R. Manning, Assistant Pastor, will use for his six o'clock evening worship sermon with the text taken from Philippians 3:7-14. The Chapel Choir will occupy the choir loft and will sing special music, Miss Lane will play "Evensong" by Duddy for the organ offertory.

DOES LIFE PREACH JESUS?

"For whoso findeth me, findeth life, and shall obtain favour of the Lord. But he that sinneth against me wrongeth his own soul: all they that hate me love death." Proverbs 8:35, 36.

Is this just so much religious banter, or does life really work that way? Many young people make excuses for not giving their hearts to the Lord by saying,—"I want to enjoy life while I am young. I may consider giving my heart to the Lord when I am too old to have fun." Does this mean that doing evil is fun, and doing good is dull? Does this mean that Satan is the "most", and Jesus is a "square"? You would expect me to say, "no", but what does LIFE say?

Suppose a person refuses to serve Jesus because Jesus teaches purity and holiness. He says, "Who can have fun and be pure and holy?" So he begins a life of lust and passion. He carries his infidelity and unfaithfulness over into a marriage. Can you find one marriage of this kind that is beautiful and rich? Of course not!

Another young person refuses Jesus Christ because Jesus teaches "love your neighbor as yourself." He thinks only sissies are kind and considerate of others. He says, "if you are going to the top, you must knock others out of the way." Khrushchev tried this in Russia, and he reached the top—for a while. But would you refer to him as the "happiest man in the world"—today? Of course not!

Another person refuses Jesus Christ because Jesus teaches him to give up "ungodliness and world lust." He says, "how can a man have fun if he can't go to wild parties and get drunk once-in-a-while?" But talk to the alcoholic on his death bed. Will he tell you that his life has been a life of great peace and joy? Of course not!

Not only does the Bible teach, but LIFE proves that any man who refuses to accept Jesus as his Saviour, and pattern his life after Him is living against life. That man is a fool and hates himself!

The Pampa Daily News

A Watchful Newspaper

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself no more, no less. It is thus consistent with the Human Relations Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Unalienable Rights

Most Americans believe that men have unalienable rights which they get from God or the Creator. It is one of those things that makes us "different" from some other countries. It is this belief that makes it difficult for many foreigners to understand us. Almost every other nation in the world, including some of the so-called free nations have governments based upon the "collective" concept, while our government was supposed to be based upon the concept of the freedom of the individual with guarantees of "life liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

We have grown and prospered with our relatively free enterprise system, although from the very beginning there were forces at work which would take this from us.

Socialists, both consciously and unconsciously dispute our basic ideas. They say in effect, "how do you know that the rights belong to the individual? Has God ever signed a contract? Why should a man be considered different from the other animals?"

They insist the rights belong to the state (meaning the government or "collective"). The signers of the Declaration of Independence had no trouble with that argument. They considered "these truths to be self-evident." They merely turned the questions around and asked, "If all rights belong to the government, where and how did the government get them?"

Try to answer that, and the only way you end up is with the "divine right of kings," and that bubble was burst hundreds of years ago.

There's another possible answer from socialists and collectivists: It is that the individual must give way to "the common good."

This is another way of saying that the group, be it a race, a government or a class, is more important than the individual.

But that notion has been disproved by all history. The greatest advances of mankind have come in nations at a time when the individual has been considered most important. At the same time horrors which no man would dare consider for his own selfish sake have been perpetrated with a clear conscience for the "common good."

Some people continue to advocate the old lie that individual free men are not capable of handling their own affairs but must let the government do it for them.

Take a look at history. It's always been the same and always will be. Socialism, totalitarianism, collectivism, Statism, are all the same thing. They have all produced the same result: general misery, starvation, suffering.

Here in our America, we have believed in the individual. We have protected him, in some degree at least, from the group and from the government. In so doing, the individual has been more free here than anywhere else, with the result that Americans have what all the world wants.

So, it's amazing that so many people these days preach the "new order" of the common good, which is nothing but the dark order of yesterday. The real "new order" began in 1776 when our forefathers wrote: "We hold these truths to be self-evident: that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their creator with certain unalienable rights."

'Subversive' Non-Smoking

In case you do not realize it, you are "subversive" if you boycott those who are buying from communist nations approved by the State Department. At least that is what we infer from a statement being sent out in answer to objections to American cigarette manufacturers buying some of their tobacco from Communist Yugoslavia, headed by Dictator Tito. The cigarette companies quote Under Secretary of State George Ball:

"It is absolutely unacceptable that right wing or left wing or any other kind of group should be intimidated or by threat of boycott try to subvert or to undermine the foreign policy of the United States, which has to be conducted by the President and Congress under the American Constitution." As regular readers know, we have always been in favor of free trade between free individuals. And we have no objection if private companies like cigarette manufacturers want to buy from communists. But, when they deal with Russia or Yugoslavia or buy the products of a country they are not trading with free individuals. They are trading with the politicians of a country which not only keeps its own people in slavery, but which seeks to destroy the capitalist system all over the world.

And, whether the administration likes it or not, free individuals have a right to refuse to buy the products of a country which they believe is against their own self best interest. It is not at all subversive. An economic boycott is one of the few weapons left in the hands of the consumers.

A great many concerned Americans are having difficulty understanding the foreign policy of Messrs. Johnson, Rusk, McNamara and Connor. While 200-000 of the Nation's finest young men are facing death against a communist aggressor in Viet Nam, their nation continues to aid with money and goods the communist nations which are supplying the Viet Cong with weapons to kill the Americans.

The politicians in Washington may regard a boycott as subversive of the politicians' "foreign policy," but we believe such a boycott is the right of an otherwise helpless group of concerned individuals who do not wish to be coerced into trading with the enemy.

Standing in Line to Sue

Here's yet another reason, if one is needed, to practice safe driving habits.

It's taking longer than ever to bring personal injury suits — almost all of which arise out of automobile accidents — to jury trial in state courts.

According to the 12th annual survey of state court calendars by the Institute for Judicial Administration, the average waiting period in the 94 courts that provided information grew to 19.9 months last year. In 1964 it was 18.4 months.

Fifteen of the courts, all in populous counties, reported a lapse of more than 30 months between the time a suit is filed and a decision rendered. Worst was Cook County (Chicago), with a delay of 69.3 months. It's doubtful if even Shakespeare was thinking in terms of over five and a half years when he spoke of "the law's delay."

Straight Talk

By TOM ANDERSON

The number of people in the world will double in the next 34 years.

At the time of Christ, world population is estimated to have been around 250 million. To double it took, not 34 years, but 16 centuries. Thus birth control may be the only solution — a side from atomic annihilation, cars or cannibalism, that is. At the present rate of growth, by the year 2500 there will be one square yard for each human being, assuming "equal shares," of course. And by the year 5000, there will be more people than space on the earth. Of course, if the Russians will let us on their moon, maybe there'll be a spare pothole there and maybe an extra piece of Red green cheese.

Naturally the unfed multitudes on a collision course with starvation won't stop breeding if we subsidize them to keep on.

If our government is going either to continue or enlarge our "food for peace" program — which it certainly is — our government should kill the present acreage control and price support programs and buy the commodities on the open market at the going price. Such government purchases would greatly strengthen market prices. Of course, it would result in the unemployment of untold hundreds of thousands of government bureaucrats who are now planning the farmers and milking the taxpayers. It would curtail fantastic government controls based on political and hereditary privileges. This sensible program is being promoted by our greatest agricultural statesman, Charles Shuman, head of the American Farm Bureau Federation. Shuman says, "A reading between the lines of certain scare statements about the depletion of our surplus (down from $7 billion to $6 billion) would seem to indicate that some of the food-for-hunger promoters have in mind a plan to keep U.S. Department of Agriculture supply managers employed with a domestic allocation plan tied to international commodity agreements."

Certainly. And some of them are for doing away with not only freedom to farm but doing away with the United States itself, by incorporating it into a one-world socialist state under the communist United Nations.

Shuman wisely counsels that "if the market price is given the opportunity to respond to foreign aid demand, it should be possible to discontinue the present (farm) control programs, and price supports could be used only as originally intended — to stabilize marketing, not to fix prices."

And now President Johnson has embarked upon a buy-peace program in South Vietnam. He plans to pour so many of our goodies — not his — into South Vietnam that a stable government will result. Then the North Vietnamese will look at their fed-and-fat brothers to the South and cry out for peace and food — and houses and roads and cars and movies and TV and the other goodies of the affluent society. As is par for the course, this theory ignores the fact that Communism has never, anywhere, risen from the starving masses, but has been conceived, born, fed and administered by rich, well-fed intellectuals, from the top down.

"Food for peace" is a fraud. Food does not produce peace. We've given untold billions to Chinese, Russian and other enemies. We've given nothing to our friends in Rhodesia and South Africa — except the back of our hand and boycotts. All they want from us is our friendship.

The only way we'll ever have permanent peace is to surrender to the Comrats; the peace of the prison, the peace after the firing squad has fired, the peace of the mass grave — that's peace, Communist style.

Citizens' Crusade Against Poverty To Meet in Washington; To Lobby for More Participation by Poor, Immediate Job Projects

ROBERT ALLEN

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — Just about everyone holds conventions in the national capital, and now the organized poor are going to have a whirl at it.

The Citizens' Crusade Against Poverty, a civil-rights-oriented organization bankrolled reportedly to the tune of $1 million by the United Auto Workers and headed by the latter's president, Walter Reuther, is preparing to stage a convention in Washington April 13-14. Dr. Martin Luther King is chairman of the Crusade's Commission on Public Information & Education.

Some 300 to 500 delegates from Harlem, Chicago, Watts, the Mississippi delta area and other troubled centers are slated to attend. All their expenses, including rooms in a well-known downtown hotel, will be paid by the Crusade.

Purpose of the affair is to exert pressure on Congress and administration officials for two demands:

—Greater participation of the poor on local anti-poverty boards, councils and other agencies.

—Increased emphasis on projects designed to provide immediate jobs rather than "social experiments," such as legal aid, consumer education, etc.

Also under consideration by Crusade planners is taking a vigorous stand against President Johnson's Viet Nam policy. Reputed reason for such a critical declaration is the contention that the economic and social welfare of the poor "is being sacrificed to meet the soaring costs of the conflict."

A "march" on the Capitol or the White House or both may conclude the two-day powwow. That is still undecided. It probably will depend on how much press, radio and TV attention the other activities of the convention attract. They will consist of group meetings with congressional leaders and anti-poverty and other federal officials, and carefully-rehearsed and staged "story" demonstrations in the convention hall.

These "stories" will deal with pressing problems and proposed solutions in particular areas.

MISSISSIPPI TECHNIQUE — There also are intimations that Crusade officials already are looking beyond the April 13-14 convention.

They are guardedly talking about following it up with sit-ins and mass picketing by throngs of women, children and old people brought to Washington by buses from around the country. This co-called Mississippi technique was used by the Crusade last month to lobby for a stalled Head Start project in that state.

Several weeks after the Crusade brought 48 Negro pre-school children and teachers to the capital, where they staged a demonstration in a congressional hearing room, called on various officials and engaged in other well-publicized activities, anti-poverty authorities announced a $5.6 million grant for the Head Start project.

Still another significant objective is indicated by Richard Boone, Crusade executive director.

"This convention will enable representatives of the poor from all over the country to get to know each other so they can put their problems in a common voice," he pointed out. "Once they have done that, they can better focus and direct their voice where it will do the most good. They will be able to put some tough questions to people in Washington; questions like whether anti-poverty dollars will go to the poor or continue to wind up with the middle man."

HEADING 'EM OFF — There are indications that both in Congress and administration quarters steps are underway to take the sting out of the convention's demands.

Representative Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y., controversial chairman of the Education and Labor Committee that is considering the new anti-poverty bill, is avowing himself as heartily in favor of the Crusade's two basic proposals, particularly creating more jobs.

"We're going to change the legislative image of the war on poverty," says Powell. "We're going to place the emphasis on job creation and on-the-job training. Many of the cultural and social frills are going to be cut out. They are all right, but people need bread in their stomachs before they need culture for their souls."

Republican committeemen, spearheaded by Representatives Albert Quie, Minn., and Charles Goodell, N.Y., strongly favor expanding job training programs. They also want to shift administrative control of these projects from the Office of Economic Opportunity, headed by Sargent Shriver, to the Labor Department. They contend the latter has more experience and know-how to handle this.

Other members of Congress are formulating a provision they will seek to write into the anti-poverty measure spelling out exactly what is meant by "maximum feasible participation" of the poor in local policy agencies. No such guidelines now exist, and such participation ranges from zero to 80 and 90 per cent.

In the Office of Economic Opportunity, Director Shriver's assistants also are formulating proposals aimed at creating more jobs. Three particularly are favored, as follows:

Job Shops: This program would set up shops in impoverished neighborhoods where men and women would be hired for training and work on jobs subcontracted from firms in the area. Minimum or slightly above minimum wages would be paid the trainee employees. Cost to the government is estimated at around $600 per participant. Anti-poverty authorities an-view job shops as a potentially effective antidote to juvenile gangs.

Employment Enterprises: Local anti-poverty organizations would set up enterprises to provide a wide variety of needed services, such as household and apartment cleaning, minor repairing, small remodeling and maintenance, lawn and garden upkeep. Unemployed would be trained for such work, and after they have established an employed status, would be encouraged to set up their own enterprises. Estimated federal cost is about $400 per participant. These projects are considered an effective way of reaching so-called hard-core unemployed, as well as filling badly needed community services.

Small Industrial Developments: Under this proposal, industries would be set up to take advantage of available skills in a particular area. Cited as an example is jewelry and ornament making by Indians in Southwestern states. Weaving, pottery and wood carving in Kentucky, Georgia, West Virginia and other states are pointed out as other illustrations. No costs have yet been estimated, but it is indicated that as much as $200,000 might be usefully put into a particular project.

Opinion is general on Capitol Hill that the $1.5 billion anti-poverty program will be renewed.

There is divided view on whether this year's funds will be increased or decreased. The outlook on that is conjectural, and will considerably depend on the state of the national economy when Congress gets around to acting on this measure.

Also likely to play an important role in the outcome is this year's congressional election.

The American Way

By HARRY BROWNE
The war in Vietnam becomes more of a war every day and many viewpoints are being expressed over the policies of the U.S. Government.

On one hand are those who say the war is wrong, that the Viet Cong are not such "bad guys", and that they should be admitted to a coalition government in South Vietnam, etc.

On the other hand are those who say the war should be stepped up — blockades, bombings, etc. These people say the Communists can be defeated quickly if the full force of American military might is imposed.

In the middle are the supporters of present government policy. These people say that the President and his advisors are doing "just fine" and that only disunity can come from criticizing them.

These three major views cover a lot of ground. And yet I'll bet that there are a great many individuals who find it uncomfortable to line up with any one of these three viewpoints. There seems to be something wrong with each of them.

There is a fourth view of the subject. But this is the point of view supported by the type of person who does not tour the country making speeches, who does not run for Congress, and does not join organizations or committees. As a result, this view does not make the headlines.

This fourth philosophy can be summarized this: the individual can only be responsible for his own life and property; he has no right, need or obligation to force others to do as he thinks best; his only concern over the sins of others extends to proper methods of protecting oneself against those sins.

Although many people might casually subscribe to such a principle, very few follow it through to its logical conclusion. For the inevitable application of it must be that it is wrong to draft men against their will to fight battles that they did not start; it is wrong to interfere in the lives of the Vietnamese people (North or South); it is wrong to assume that an attack against Vietnam is an attack against us.

And it is wrong to use the war as a justification to coerce billions of dollars from the American people for the empire-building schemes of the government.

What is right in this situation is to end the draft (even in wartime). End American participation in the affairs of Vietnam. On what terms? On no terms. Simply get out. If the Viet Cong overrun South Vietnam, it will be the problem of those people to do what is necessary about it. I fail to see how communism could be any worse than the totalitarian government imposed in South Vietnam by our own government. Did you know that black market offenses and other "economic crimes" are punishable by death?

Return the stolen resources to the American taxpayer and let him decide where he will send his money. Then those who want to fight can volunteer to do so on their own. Those who want a coalition government can support it on their own. Those who want to hire Robert McNamara to conduct a war on behalf of the Vietnamese can do it on their own.

And those of the fourth philosophy can ignore the debates and spend money for their own protection — against those who would like to confiscate their money for pet policies.

Question Box

(We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

QUESTION: "Can there be constructive criticism for an act that violates the Golden Rule, other than advocating stopping it?"

ANSWER: That question comes up when politicians are criticized for advocating some form of socialism. Their contention is that they do not want negative criticism, they want "constructive" criticism.

It is hard to conceive how one can have constructive criticism for murder, robbery, rape, or not respecting the property of others.

Socialism is just lacking respect for the property of others.

The trouble comes mainly from believing that the majority can violate an act that would be a violation of the Golden Rule if done by an individual but not a violation of the Golden Rule if it is done by the majority or a dictator does it. That seems to be a contradiction of terms.

For hundreds of years there has been criticism of various forms of socialism in government. When one man is driven into a corner and can't explain how it is in harmony with the Golden Rule, he wants to change the subject or gets mad and contends that you are insulting or misrepresenting him.

Yes, about the only constructive criticism of an act that violates the Golden Rule is the advocating that it be stopped. One can't pick figs from thistles or grapes from thorns. Men love darkness rather than light because their deeds are evil.

Frequently they believe their deeds are not evil, but they are simply mistaken. The man who is seeking after understanding is always glad to have his inconsistencies and contradictions pointed out. That is the way he has an opportunity of learning. That is one advantage of making your convictions known — so that everyone can criticize them. If one selects his own opponents, he can always be right. But if there is one exception to an act, it is immoral and violates the Golden Rule.

A chorus of voices in the mass communications media, including some spokesmen for high governmental offices, unite in assuring us that all is well. They maintain we can have both guns and butter without raising taxes to pay for them, and that federal aid does not mean federal control. They contend we still have plenty of freedom, often suggest we name any freedoms we have lost, reply with the argument that the kind we lost was something different called, disparagingly, "rugged individualism."

Advocates of liberty must find effective ways to breach the apathy barrier, to reach more of their fellow Americans with a message of truth and right, and of warning. This cannot be done merely by preaching to the winds, by "voices crying in the wilderness," or by caustic criticism. People must be approached individually with the message of freedom for the individual.

Every man has his own areas of special and deep concern, however these areas may differ from one person to the next. Each has personal freedoms and opportunities especially dear to his heart, and subjects on which he is well-informed. The effective advocate of freedom will follow up these particular avenues to show each person what he would lose if the U. S. became a totalitarian state. No man who earns his own living is apathetic about everything. Each one can be reached if we find the key.

BREACHING THE APATHY BARRIER

Those wishing to save freedom face three exceedingly difficult tasks: to find others who are genuinely interested in preserving their freedom, to convince them their freedom is actually in danger, and to penetrate public nonchalance.

Bulldogs Tamed; PHS Eyes Dumas

BORGER (Sp.) —Harvester baseball coach Bobby Stephens worked his basebalers through a heavy defensive drill today for Saturday's doubleheader against Dumas, starting at 1 p.m. in Dumas.

Thursday the Harvesters opened the 1966 season by pouncing Borger, 15-7, although Pampa was guilty of six errors and the Bulldogs 10.

"I thought our defense was lacking a little and our hitting was fair, but not quite as good as I thought it would be," Stephens said.

The Pampa coach said that, "I hope we got 'em (errors) out of our system. We made a lot of mental mistakes."

Sophomore and junior pitchers Dickey Henley and Jim Lang pitched well enough to lead one to believe that the hurling department may be Pampa's strongest fort.

The 'Big Two' of the pitching staff, Roy Harper and Bud Hammons are scheduled to go against Dumas Saturday.

Gary Molberg's three-run homer in the fifth inning, a towering 300-foot blast put the game on ice for the Harvesters, who were leading only 9-7 at the time.

Pampa jumped to a 1-0 lead in the second on Corky Dodd's leadoff single, a sacrifice by Larry Jones and an error by Borger second sacker Steve Gooch.

The Bulldogs came back in their half of the second for three runs, two of them earned, on three singles and two Harvester errors.

Ted Glad Casey Made It

By MILTON RICHMAN

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (UPI) —Ted Williams was shaving and listening to the radio when he interrupted for a news bulletin.

He was so intrigued by the announcement that he put his razor down on the sink and immediately went over to the radio to make sure to catch every word.

"I'm proud to be going in with Casey," declared the former Boston slugger excitedly while watching the Red Sox hitters from behind the batting cage.

Perfect Day
"Going in the same day with him makes it perfect. Maybe there are a handful of men who have contributed as much to baseball as he has, but no one has contributed any more. That's for sure.

"He's an absolutely fabulous character. Here's a fellow promoting baseball every chance he gets. In all baseball history, who has ever heard of a manager being responsible for so much damage at so many different parks?"

Even as he had enthusiastically about Stengel, Williams kept both eyes on each Red Sox hitter who entered the cage. He had a word or two for every one of them.

"Thataway, kid," he encouraged. "That's getting your wrists into it."

"Was that a strike?" the rookie inquired, never taking his eyes off the pitcher.

"Sure was," Williams answered. Standing there behind the cage, wearing his familiar No. 9 uniform and holding a bat in his hands, Williams looked as if he still could get up there at the plate and give a decent account of himself.

"Nah-h-h," he scoffed a little self-consciously when the idea was suggested. "I haven't swung a bat at all this spring. Every once in a while I think I'll get in there and try it. I keep thinking I can hit some of these guys. Maybe it's just as well I keep thinking and letting it go at that."

Williams laughed and pounded the dirt with the business end of his bat.

"I enjoy working with young kids," he said. "If I can help, I'm pleased. Generally I wait until they ask questions. Basically, what I try to do is show the boy the advantage of not pulling the ball. That's right, I said not pulling the ball."

"When I tried consciously to pull the ball, I didn't hit well. Look here," he said, pointing to the hitting area on the bat. "If you swing level and just try to meet the ball, you have all this hitting area. But if you try to pull, you decrease the hitting area by as much as 60 per cent. I know I pulled a lot in later years. That was because I knew the pitchers better and had a lot more confidence."

"When I started playing, I wasn't that much of a pull hitter, though. Neither was Musial nor Mize. They started pulling more when they got to know the pitchers."

Williams took another vicious swipe with the bat, swinging it like a golf club.

Playing golf, someone asked him?

"Yeah but I'm no good," he said. "Too much right hand. I banana the ball. I've been in the 70s but don't even mention it. I'm an 82 to 86 player, that's what I am."

Yanks Show Power, Reds Show O'Toole

By United Press International

The feeling in the Cincinnati Reds' camp is that it's a new year, a new manager and a new Jim O'Toole.

One spring exhibition game doesn't make a baseball season, of course, but it was no accident that new manager Don Heffner chose O'Toole as one of his three pitchers in the Reds' first game of the new exhibition season.

Some experts believe that O'Toole's poor season cost the Reds the pennant in 1965 and that a good season could win them the 1966 pennant.

O'Toole went the middle three innings in the Reds' 5-3 triumph over the Kansas City Athletics, giving up just one scratch hit. Sammy Ellis, a 22-game winner for the Reds in 1965, and Dom Zanni who had a 9-6 record for San Diego of the Pacific Coast League, pitched the other six innings.

The Houston Astros edged out the American League champion Minnesota Twins, 7-6, in 11 innings when Sonny Jackson singled, moved to second on a sacrifice and tallied on Jerry Kindall's error. Don Mincher, the Twins' muscular first baseman, drove in four runs with a three-run homer and a single.

Tommy McCraw was on the front end of a fourth-inning double steal that gave the Chicago White Sox the winning run in a 4-3 decision over the Boston Red Sox. Eddie Fisher, one of the White Sox' knuckleballer relief acts, was hit hard by the Red Sox during a two-inning workout and rookie Dennis Higgins pitched the Chicago ninth.

Joe Penitone and Clete Boyer hit homers in an 11-hit attack that carried the New York Yankees to a 7-4 victory over the Washington Senators. Bob Friend, acquired from the Pittsburgh Pirates during the winter, shut out the Senators on three hits for three innings in his Yankee debut. Johnny Orsino and Ken Hamlin homered for the Senators.

In other camps: Jim Bunning, Chris Short and Bo Belinsky were named to pitch for the Philadelphia Phillies in Friday's exhibition opener with the Reds. . . . Ray Sadecki, hoping to bounce back from a 6-15 season, encouraged the St. Louis Cardinals with a strong four-inning performance in an intra-squad game. . . . Fred Newman, one of the mainstays of the California Angels' pitching staff, is sidelined with a lame arm until Saturday.

Miners, Kansas Favored in NCAA

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI)—Texas Western and Kansas — two ball control teams with rugged defenses, height and muscles under the backboard, were strong favorites in tonight's opening round of the NCAA Midwest Regional Basketball Tournament.

Texas Western, third ranked in the nation, battled the ninth ranked Cincinnati Bearcats in the first game of the double header at Lubbock Coliseum.

The fourth-ranked Kansas Jayhawks meet unranked Southern Methodist in the nightcap.

The winners tangle Saturday night for the privilege of going to the national championships at College Park, Md., March 18-19. The losers play in a preliminary game for third place.

Texas Western (24-1) will hurl a sticky man-to-man defense against the Bearcats (21-5) and depend on offensive firepower from guards Bobby Joe Hill and little Willie Cager along with 6-8 Nevil Shed and 6-6 David Lattin under the boards.

Coach Don Haskins substitutes freely and has a good bench. Bearcat coach Tay Baker, who brought Cincinnati a Missouri Valley Conference Championship on his first try, will counter with a defense similar to the one the Miners employ. The Bearcats have a slow-down attack spearheaded by Don Rolfe.

Cincinnati won back-to-back championships in 1961 and 1962 but this current team has never tasted post-season pressure.

Kansas, 17-8, the Big Eight Conference champ, anchors its defense and offense around 6-11 Walt Wesley, second team UPI All-American.

Coach Ted Owens has his team wait for the percentage shot and guards Jo Jo White and Dell Lewis and forwards Al Lopes and Don Franz give Wesley an excellent supporting cast.

It was reported in the News Thursday that Groom's All-State football and basketball, Jerry Roberts had signed a letter of intent with Southern Methodist University.

Lawyers Pull Court Surprise

MILWAUKEE (UPI)—Baseball attorneys, still awaiting their turn "at bat," pulled a surprising courtroom play Thursday by introducing as evidence a document which says they stand a "substantial chance" of losing Wisconsin's anitrust suit against the sport.

The document, a legal opinion prepared by former Justice Department official Louis Oberdorfer, now a Washington, D.C., attorney, was given last summer to members of Teams, Inc., a local civic group.

It said that should the Braves attempt to leave Milwaukee for Atlanta, as had been voted by the National League, they would "probably be held to violate both state and federal antitrust laws."

It said the best remedy could be found in Wisconsin state courts where, there was "a substantial chance of success" and in federal court where there was "a reasonable chance of success" in showing violation of the federal law.

However, the opinion said, a federal court would probably hold that the move was in violation of state antitrust law and the Braves could be enjoined from moving "unless and until another major league team takes the field in Milwaukee." The team has moved to Atlanta and the suit attempts to force its return.

Wall Street In Review

NEW YORK (UPI)—William R. White of Hornblower & Weeks-Hemphill Noyes says that in view of the growing caution in financial markets, "a further contraction in prices may seem a logical expectation in an extension of the retracement of earlier gains," perhaps to "a point where about two-thirds of the June-February advance may be dissipated.

L. O. Hooper of W. E. Hutton & Co. says he suspects that investment environment in most of 1966 will be far different from that of 1965 and that it is well to be suspicious of some of the assumptions on which the 1965 investment climate was based.

Thomson & McKinnon says the recuperative ability of the market, as demonstrated in the past few sessions, provides a certain degree of encouragement. However, the analyst says, a basically constructive investment course, with continued emphasis on selectivity, remains in order.

By United Press International MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—Dr. Werner von Braun, director of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Marshall Spaceflight Center at Huntsville, Ala., commenting on the U.S.-Russia race to the moon:

"Unless we keep running like hell there is a good chance of getting licked. They have a very good program."

NEW YORK—Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., calling on the Johnson administration to end its policy of containing Communist China through military power:

"Once we have made a realistic appraisal we should make every effort to open the door to greater political contacts with the mainland Chinese."

SAIGON—A U.S. military spokesman commenting on the bitter fighting at the A Shau outpost before the camp fell under an onslaught of North Vietnamese regulars:

"They attacked the Communist bodies like cordwood on the wire perimeter."

AMSTERDAM—Prince Claus von Amnberg in a television statement appealing to the Dutch people to give him and Crown Princess Beatrix a chance:

"The Dutch people were given unspeakably much sorrow and great injustice during the last war but nobody can undo the past."

Television in Review

By RICK DU BROW
United Press International
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—A prediction of a fantastic "communications center" in the average home—in the not too distant future—is causing much talk by usually biased show people who heard it described in a speech here.

The forecaster of the future—a role not uncommon to him—was David Sarnoff, chairman of the board of the Radio Corp. of America (the parent company of NBC-TV) and one of the world's most respected communications authorities. The current spurge of color television, for instance, is perhaps due more to his personal pioneering of the innovation than to anything else.

Sarnoff spoke this past weekend to a large assembly of Hollywood's elite in accepting an award at the annual Screen Producers Guild's prize-giving dinner. He said, in part:

"By the mid-70s and possibly sooner, high power broadcast satellites will beam television programs and motion pictures directly to home receivers anywhere in the world. In the not too distant future, information will flow in almost limitless quantities on laser light beams through hollow pipes extended from city to city."

"Our present instruments—telephone, radio, television, still and motion pictures, record and tape player—will merge into a comprehensive system which will become the communications center of the home."

"Through the communications center in the home, much of the daily business of the households will also be done."

LCC Scholarship Fund Enriched by Perryton Couple

LUBBOCK (Spl)—Mr. and Mrs. Walter Daniel, Perryton, have given $30,500 to the Lubbock Christian College endowment fund.

Income from the gift, given in the form of stocks and bonds, will be administered by the Board of Trustees and used for scholarships for worthy students attending LCC.

Mrs. Daniel requested that the gift be named in honor of her father, Dr. William Pearson, a pioneer medical doctor in Ochiltree County. The fund will be called the "Dr. William Pearson Memorial Fund" according to John Hay, LCC development department official.

Dr. Williams was interested during his lifetime in the education of young people and was known around Perryton for making awards to students with the best grades, deportment records and attendance.

"My father had to work his way through state Normal at Huntsville and Vanderbilt University," she said. "Because of his difficulty obtaining his education, I feel that this scholarship fund in his memory is a way my husband and I can help ambitious young people today."

Making their home on a ranch near Perryton, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel have been married since 1925. She is the only daughter of Dr. Pearson.

SIX DEPARTED
NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI)—The government Thursday ordered the immediate deportation of four Communist diplomats and two Communist newsmen. The four were identified as two first secretaries at the Soviet Embassy, a clerk at the Chinese Communist Embassy and the second secretary at the Czech Embassy. The newsmen were a Russian and a Czech.

URGES FREE ZONE
TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI)—Soviet Ambassador Dimitri Chuvakhin Thursday urged the formation of a nuclear-free zone in the Middle East to halt the arms race. Addressing the Israel Council of the World Jewish Congress, he also called for organized Jewish opinion to back the Soviet fight against German "revanchists and militarists."

"I feel that this scholarship fund in his memory is a way my husband and I can help ambitious young people today."

The Channel Swim: Next week's scheduled orbital mission by two American astronauts, in which one of them is expected to take a lengthy "walk in space," will be given extensive coverage by the networks, with the launching planned for Tuesday. The space-walk hopefully will take place Wednesday, and splashdown is scheduled for Friday. The mission is aiming at a rendezvous and docking in space of a manned and unmanned vehicle, launched the same day.

Ferment
all attempts at proving a negative, it is vulnerable to refutation by a single contrary example. And there are not one or two but millions of people in the world today who are prepared to say out of their own experience what St. Paul said about God: "I know in whom I have believed..."

Although the debate doubtless will continue to generate a lot of sound and fury, there seems to be a growing feeling among traditional Christians that the radical challenge is simply to affirm—in the most lucid, honest and contemporary language possible—that God is, and that he continues to make Himself known to those who seek him with humble hearts. While this testimony will not be believed by everyone, Prof. Robert McAfee Brown of Stanford University points out, "faith has never been easy" and disbelief is not a modern phenomenon.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI)—In addition to sponsors and alternate sponsors, some television programs now come equipped with bonus sponsors, otherwise known as "hidden extras."

I encountered no less than 11 bonus sponsors on a recent evening while doing some research on a scientific theory I have developed. I call it "A Theorem of Quantum Commercial Profusion in the Latter Stages of Old Movies."

Although difficult to explain in a layman's terms, the theory is based on the premise that sequences of televised movies tend to become shorter near the end of the pictures. In other words, viewers are permitted to see enough of the film to arouse their interest in the plot. Then, once they are hooked, the commercial floodgates are opened.

Watched Old Movie
In order to test the theory under laboratory conditions, I watched an old movie while keeping a log of the commercial interruptions. It was an interesting experiment.

The announcer said the first portion would be brought to us by a girdle, an eye shadow, a cigarette and a tomato paste. After the girdle commercial, the film began.

It ran 15 minutes and was followed by messages from the eye shadow, the tomato paste and an "instant breakfast," which had not been previously identified as a sponsor.

The film ran 15 more minutes before the next break. This time two bonus sponsors appeared. Besides the cigarette's message, we had messages from a hair rinse and a skin lotion.

The next sequence lasted only 10 minutes, leading up to three more bonus messages. Then the announcer informed us that the "second portion" of the film would begin with four new sponsors.

More Commercials
The second portion came in three parts, each lasting 12 minutes and each bringing three messages, five of which were from bonus sponsors.

The last portion, brought to us by a cigarette, a cough syrup, a ketchup and a non-dairy cream substitute, also was divided into three sections,

Eye Bank Donors Sought in County

Joe Tooley, president of the Hi-Plains Eye Bank, today urged residents of Gray County to support the sight restoration work of the eye bank.

One of the chief service efforts of the Pampa Lions Clubs is Blind Activities. A small percent of the blind whose blindness is caused by a defective cornea, may be helped to see again by a corneal transplant operation.

Donor eye tissue is provided to eye surgeons for corneal transplant surgery, other types of eye surgery and research by the Hi-Plains Eye Bank. Anyone of legal age can arrange to donate his eyes after death to the eye bank by signing a donor card during his lifetime. The next of kin may also donate the eyes of the deceased after death, Tooley stated.

Age, sex, race or condition of vision have no bearing on donating eyes. All major religious faiths approve the donation of eyes to eye banks.

Anyone in Gray Co. wishing to donate eyes for sight restoration work may receive a donor form by writing to the Hi-Plains Eye Bank, 320 Herring Hotel, by phoning DR 3-4004 in Amarillo or by calling Lion Joe Tooley MO 5-5747 in Pampa.

It had only one bonus sponsor, a cat food. However, I turned the set off when the film ended and thus missed the final messages.

BASIS OF COMPARISON—All models are two-door hardtops equipped with V-8 engine, automatic transmission, power steering, power brakes, radio and heater. Monthly payments have been computed on manufacturer's suggested retail price, 1/3 down and 36 monthly payments. Not included are the extras you pay for on practically any new car: white-wall tires, deluxe wheel covers, destination charges, state and local taxes, interest, insurance, and licensing fees.

*CHRYSLER'S 5-YEAR/50,000-MILE ENGINE AND DRIVE TRAIN WARRANTY WITH THIS COVERAGE: Chrysler Corporation warrants, for 5 years or 50,000 miles, whichever comes first, against defects in materials and workmanship and will replace or repair at a Chrysler Motors Corporation Authorized Dealer's place of business, without charge for required parts and labor, the engine block, head and internal parts, intake manifold, water pump, transmission case and internal parts (excluding manual clutch), torque converter, drive shaft, universal joints, rear axle and differential, and rear wheel bearings of its 1966 automobiles, provided the owner has the engine oil changed every 3 months or 4,000 miles, whichever comes first, the oil filter replaced every second oil change and the carburetor air filter cleaned every 6 months and replaced every 2 years, and every 6 months furnishes to such a dealer evidence of performance of the required service, and requests the dealer to certify (1) receipt of such evidence and (2) the car's then current mileage.

And now, about the warranty. Chrysler's is the only one that covers the engine and drive train for 5 years or 50,000 miles.
