Gasoline Rationing By Early 1974?

Kissinger Meets With Mao, Chou

PEKING (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger met for nearly two hours, 45 minutes today with Mao Tsetung in which they discussed a wide range of subjects, and the Chinese Communist party chairman passed on his regards to President Nixon.

Kissinger went to the residence of the 79-year-old Mao, on the edge of the Forbidden City, after a three-hour meeting with Premier Chou En-lai.

Kissinger was accompanied on the visit by Ambassador David K.E. Bruce, chief of the U.S. liaison office in Peking who was meeting Mao for the first time, and Winston Lord, another State Department representative who formerly was a White House assistant to Kissinger.

Ambassador Robert J. McCloskey, serving as chief State Department spokesman during the Kissinger visit to the Chinese capital, which winds up Wednesday, told reporters after the Kissinger-Mao meeting: "Chairman Mao expressed his welcome to Dr. Kissinger on his revisit to China and had a conversation with him on a wide range of subjects in a friendly atmosphere."

"At the end of the meeting, Chairman Mao asked Dr. Kissinger to convey his regards to President Nixon."

McCloskey who coordinated the brief announcement with his Chinese counterpart, told reporters under questioning that Kissinger also had expressed the President's best wishes to Mao.

The lengthy meetings by Kissinger with Mao and Chou fueled speculation that broadened Sino-American contacts would result from the Kissinger visit, but no details were immediately forthcoming.

It was Kissinger's third—and longest—meeting with the revolutionary Chinese leader.

Chou participated in the discussions on the Chinese side, along with Foreign Minister Chi Pengfei, Assistant Foreign Minister Wong Hai-jung, who has emerged as the No. 3 Chinese official since the Communist Party Congress last September, and two Chinese translators.

After the talks, the Kissinger party left the grounds of the Forbidden City in a minicorridor of three long, black Red Flag limousines. A crowd had gathered when they saw the lights over the gate lit up, a signal that Mao was seeing a visitor.

Kissinger winds up his four days in the Chinese capital Tuesday with a final mid-afternoon meeting with Chou.

McCloskey said that a joint communique might be issued at the conclusion of the talks.

McCloskey had "no comment" when asked if the communique might refer to a further withdrawal of U.S. troops from Taiwan.

The United States still has diplomatic relations with the Chinese Nationalist government on Taiwan, and although they have gradually been downgraded following the break-through on contacts with Peking.

Officials cautioned reporters against predicting establishment of diplomatic relations with mainland China as a result of Kissinger's visit there.

NO MAN'S LAND — Israel and Egyptian Army officers meet with Red Cross representatives to discuss details of providing relief supplies to Egyptian units surrounded at Suez City. Both warring factions have agreed to a truce calling for negotiations in Geneva next month in hopes of obtaining a lasting peace. 'Sooner It Comes, Better It Will Be'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gasoline rationing by early 1974 or before was foreseen by several administration and congressional leaders today. Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chief sponsor of emergency energy legislation, said the sooner it comes, the better.

Jackson called together the Senate Interior Committee, which he heads, to put the finishing touches on legislation embodying many recommendations proposed by President Nixon last week. Jackson said the bill would be approved today and predicted Senate passage Wednesday.

Among the provisions of the legislation is clear standby authority for the administration to ration gasoline. Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton and Charles DiBona, deputy White House energy adviser, both said rationing was likely early next year.

Jackson said today: "The sooner we move on gasoline rationing, the more we will save and the less traumatic the effect. If we delay it, it'll just wham! I mean, we'll get hit so hard, they'll say why didn't you tell us earlier? The faster we get our machinery moving, the better."

Morton described the chances of rationing as about 50-50, although he said he did not think it could be implemented before the first of the year.

DiBona said, "I think the probabilities of having gasoline rationing before the winter is over are very high."

Morton said if rationing does come, it could last up to two years. Jackson said he too saw it lasting for an extended period and possibly extending into other areas.

Jackson warned on the NBC-TV Today Show of "the fallout effect, the ripple effect, growing out of energy" shortages.

He said this could reduce supplies of many basic products such as metals for the auto industry. In this event, the government might have to move in with some type of controls, Jackson said.

"You'll have to decide which industries get the materials, based on needs, the public requirements."

Jackson said he did not expect direct rationing of consumer products such as food, but predicted "real trouble" as far as available resources in consumer lines could occur at the manufacturing level.

Morton acknowledged Sunday that some consideration had been given within the administration to the possibility of imposing a heavy surtax on gasoline as a means of discouraging purchases and thus reducing the pressure on supplies.

A figure of 30 or more cents a gallon has been mentioned by some administration officials.

Jackson said, "I'm opposed to it...there ought to be equitable burden-sharing, and I don't see tax as a way to do it."

One of the measures urged by Nixon last week as a long-term solution to the nation's fuel shortages was expediting construction of a pipeline across Alaska to bring oil from the frozen north slopes to an ice-free port in the southern end of the state.

The House planned to vote later today on the bill.

Other Nixon proposals were a cutback to a 50 mile an hour speed limit on highways and a return to year-round daylight savings time. Jackson predicted today both proposals would be approved shortly.

Court Upholds Previous Ruling On Death Law

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court let stand today a ruling that its 1972 decision against capital punishment voided New York State's death penalty law.

In a brief order the court rejected an appeal by Oneida County District Attorney Richard D. Enders of a ruling, which was handed down June 19, 1973, by the New York Court of Appeals, the state's highest tribunal.

The Court of Appeals vacated the sentence of Martin J. Fitzpatrick of Syracuse who had been convicted in 1970 of the murder of two policemen in Sheriff.

Fitzpatrick also appealed to the high court from parts of the state court decision that were adverse to him. He claimed he was questioned by police without the warnings as to his rights which the U.S. Supreme Court has required. He also said police entered his home without either a search or an arrest warrant. The court did not act on these questions.

The gist of the five-man majority's 1972 opinions on capital punishment was that as presently imposed the death penalty was the kind of "cruel and unusual punishment" forbidden in the Constitution.

Only two justices thought it should be outlawed in all circumstances. The others saw flaws in the haphazard manner in which some persons get a life sentence and others get death.

ATTENDANT ASSULTED Police Officers Arrest Two Robbery Suspects

Larry Louis Jackson, 21, and Bobby Montgomery, 17, are in Gray County jail in lieu of $10,000 bond each in connection with the robbery by assault of an attendant at Legg Fruit Stand, 408 S. Ballard, yesterday afternoon.

Jackson gave an Austin address to officers. Montgomery reportedly has been living in Borger for the past three weeks after moving there from Slaton.

Delmer L. Dorsey, an employe at the fruit stand, called police yesterday at 3:24 p.m. to report the robbery.

When officers arrived at a restaurant near the fruit stand, Dorsey told them that while he was working at the stand two men came in, grabbed him by the throat and attempted to break into the cash register.

Failing to open the register, the men made Dorsey open it for them, reports said.

After he opened it, Dorsey said, the men took approximately $65 from the register, $20 from him and then locked him in a cooler with his hands tied behind him.

Shortly after the report was received, a policeman in South Pampa reported a man had begun running from him when he saw his patrol car.

The man ran into the old foundry east of S. Somerville St. and the officer called for back-up units.

When other patrol cars converged on the scene, reports said, Jackson came out of the foundry and surrendered.

Jackson was then taken before Dorsey who, reports said, positively identified him as one of the robbers.

Police reports said Jackson told officers Montgomery was involved in the robbery and told them he might have gone to Borger.

Borger police were notified and they found that Montgomery had been to Borger but had taken a bus to Amarillo.

Montgomery was arrested by Amarillo sheriff's deputies as he got off a bus in that city. He was returned to Pampa last evening.

Both men were arraigned before Justice of the Peace Nat Lunsford, who sets the bonds.

Middle East Truce Pact Encounters New Trouble

By United Press International

New difficulties arose today in carrying out terms of the one-day-old Egyptian-Israeli Middle East agreement but both sides appeared ready to go to Geneva next month for formal negotiations aimed at a lasting peace that would end a quarter of a century of war.

A six-point Egyptian-Israeli agreement was signed Sunday in a green army tent in the Egyptian desert at Kilometer 101, about 60 miles from Cairo, and the two generals who signed it returned to the scene today to try to straighten out the latest difficulties.

The latest snag came over interpretation of the agreement. Israeli dispatches said the agreement called for immediate exchange of prisoners of war but that Egypt was giving priority to opening of a relief corridor to Suez City and the trapped 3rd Egyptian Army. Israel also was reported raising some questions over exact operation of the supply corridor.

Israeli Premier Golda Meir, speaking to a news conference in London today, pledged that Israel will do its utmost to prevent a breakdown of the cease-fire and urged early direct peace negotiations without preconditions on either side.

She stressed that a return of POWs without delay is a key issue on which the Israelis feel particularly strongly. Two international Red Cross planes were standing by on the island of Cyprus today to begin the exchange of prisoners but their flights to Tel Aviv and Cairo were delayed.

Although there appeared general agreement that Israeli-Egyptian negotiations would begin in Geneva next month, UPI correspondent Joseph W. Grigg reported from Tel Aviv that it looked as if Israel's hope of direct face-to-face peace talks with the Arabs were running into trouble.

He said both Western and Israeli diplomatic sources said the United States and the Soviet Union appear certain to play a direct role in the negotiations. Egypt also indicated it would bring in Western Europe, Africa and China to a multinational conference under U.N. auspices.

Syria has accepted the U.N. cease-fire but has not taken direct part in the peace negotiations. However Damascus is expected to go along with the general settlement as is Jordan which fought on the Syrian side. Saudi Arabia and Iraq have opposed the negotiations.

The generals meeting today at Kilometer 101 were Israeli Maj. Gen. Aharon Yariv and Egyptian Maj. Gen. Mohammed Gemassy who signed the agreement worked out by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Reports in Israeli newspapers said Israel wants the prisoner exchange to come simultaneously with its turning over checkpoints on the Cairo-Suez highway to U.N. troops who will supervise the movement of supplies to the Egyptian 3rd Army.

President Provides Material

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon announced today he would turn over additional tapes and memoranda to Judge John J. Sirica so that the court could determine the substance of two critical presidential conversations on Watergate that the White House says were never recorded.

In a lengthy statement, Nixon expressed confidence that the new information would prove "that these two conversations were never recorded (and) public doubt on this issue will be completely and satisfactorily removed."

The President also agreed to allow court-approved, independent experts to examine the additional tapes to attest to their authenticity.

"It is my hope that these steps will clear up this aspect of the Watergate matter once and for all," he said.

Specifically, Nixon offered to furnish:

—A dictabel recording of his recollection of a June 20, 1972, conversation with former Attorney General John N. Mitchell—one of the conversations subpoenaed by the court which the White House said was not recorded. Additionally, two full reels of other telephone conversations made the same day and logs of the President's telephone calls for June 20 will be furnished.

—Contemporaneous notes Nixon made for his personal diary on an April 15, 1973, conversation with John W. Dean III—the other conversation subpoenaed by the court which the White House says was not recorded. Additionally, Nixon said he would make available two reels of tapes recorded of his conversations on that date which would prove that the tapes ran out before he got around to talking to Dean.

—Recordings of two conversations he held with Dean on April 16—one of which, according to Nixon, covered virtually the same areas as in the April 15 conversation. The second, the President said, was the final meeting between Nixon and his counsel before Dean was fired as White House counsel April 30.

—A portion of a dictation belt on which Nixon recorded his recollections of an conversation last March 21 with Dean. This conversation was recorded and has been subpoenaed by the court. The tape of the actual conversation is to be provided.

'Stringbean,' Wife Shot By Burglars

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — The lanky "Stringbean" of the Grand Ole Opry and "Hee Haw," David Akeman, and his wife were shot to death early Sunday when they returned from a performance and apparently surprised burglars at their isolated farm home.

The bodies of Akeman, 58, and his wife, Estelle, 66, were found by another Opry star, Louis "Grandpa" Jones, who arrived just after dawn to pick them up for a fishing trip.

Akeman was sprawled on the living room floor, his wife lay in weeds about 20 yards from the red frame house that sits on a 300-acre lot at the end of a country road.

They apparently had been shot to death by burglars, police said.

Investigation sources said about $5,700 was found hidden on the bodies Sunday night at a funeral home. It was reported.

Akeman was said to have had about $3,500 in a secret pocket of his bib coveralls and about $2,200 was found in a tobacco sack in Mrs. Akeman's bra, it was reported.

Metro Detective Lt. Tom Cathey had said earlier that police believed Akeman had been carrying several thousand dollars.

"The house had been ransacked and they apparently were looking for money which Mr. Akeman, Stringbean, was thought to have been carrying," Cathey said.

From all indications, he came home and surprised them in the act and was shot," said Cathey. He said Akeman was shot once. Mrs. Akeman, 60, who was apparently in the car when her husband entered the home and fled when she heard the shot, was felled by three shots.

Cathey would not say what the thief or thieves had with, but what they did not get was a priceless banjo willed to Akeman by the legendary Uncle Dave Macon. The five-string instrument was found sitting on the porch of the farm house.

Cathey said detectives were questioning four persons Sunday, but he declined to call them suspects.

He said seven bank books were found in the Akemans' three-room home. Sources said the books showed the simple-living Stringbean had salted away more than a half a million dollars.

His Last Performance

Akeman put in what was to be his last performance at the Grand Ole Opry, which he joined in 1942. Saturday night. His wife drove him home because he did not drive.

Cathey said he believed Mrs. Akeman drove their Cadillac, although officers earlier thought they had taken the family station wagon, which was found abandoned in an old rock quarry about a mile and a half from the 300-acre farm after the slayings.

Guitarist Don Gibson said Akeman carried a pistol in the bag with his cash, but Cathey declined to speculate whether Akeman exchanged shots with his killer.

Pampa Faced With 'Serious' House Shortage

Pampa has a serious housing shortage, according to Harris Brinson, assistant manager of the Chamber of Commerce.

Brinson says there are not enough houses and apartments available to meet the demand of people moving into the city.

As a result, local building contractors, officials of lending institutions and realtors have been asked to meet Wednesday forenoon with officials of the Chamber of Commerce, city and Pampa Industrial Foundation to discuss the situation and seek a solution to the housing problem.

The meeting is scheduled for 10 a.m. Wednesday in the chamber conference room in the Hughes Bldg.

Bus Accident Injures Eight

SHAMROCK — Three people were hospitalized in fair condition here today following a collision between a Samnorwood school bus and a pickup on a county road 2.8 miles southwest of the city.

Hospitalized are David Myers, 34, driver of the pickup; Sherri Brown, 16, and Tammy Clark, 12, both passengers in the bus.

According to Highway Patrolman Doug Wright of Wellington, the wreck occurred about 7:45 a.m.

The two vehicles hit front end to front end, Wright said, but with neither traveling at a fast speed.

Treated at the Shamrock Hospital and released were Paul Gowin, 18, driver of the bus, and passengers Bobby Brown, 12, Eugena Weldon, 16, Rodney Weldon, 9, and Arvil Godwin, 13.

Nixon, Strategists Discuss 'Prestige'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon met with top Republican Party strategists today in the first step of a concerted campaign to rebuild his Watergate-tarnished prestige.

In advance of meetings Tuesday through Thursday with every GOP member of Congress, Nixon breakfasted with the Republican Coordinating Committee, including congressional leaders, GOP national committeemen and three state governors.

All of the 234 Republican House members and senators have been invited to discuss the Watergate situation with the President later in the week in twice-a-day sessions beginning Tuesday.

Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., described the White House gettogether as a first step toward "total and complete disclosure" by the chief executive of all Watergate information in an effort to restore public confidence in Nixon and allay public demands for his resignation or impeachment.

There were fresh reports today that the President might be planning further public moves to clear up any questions of his own involvement in Watergate and related matters.

He told Americans last week that he was confident he would be able to clear up to their satisfaction any doubts about his conduct of the presidency.

Nixon agreed last month to abide by an order by Judge John J. Sirica to turn over his Watergate tapes to the judge for private screening. Since then, the White House has disclosed that tapes did not exist for two conversations previously believed to have been recorded.

Sirica has been holding hearings on the tapes—both as to how they are protected from any possible alteration and their quality—following the disclosure.

A new Louis Harris poll made public today showed that in October, 32 per cent of those questioned felt Nixon was doing a good or excellent job as President, while 64 per cent rated him only poor or fair and 4 per cent were not sure.

Ziegler Confirms Meetings

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler confirmed there would be a series of White House meetings with Republicans, but gave no details how they would be conducted. Ziegler at first indicated the President would confer with Democrats at some future time. A White House spokesman said later in the day that a few Democrats might be included in the meetings this week, but that this was still uncertain.

Dallas Policeman's Trial Starts Today

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — D. L. Cain, stripped of his credentials and suspended indefinitely from the Dallas police force is charged with killing a 12-year-old Mexican-American youth in the backseat of his patrol car. He goes on trial today.

Cain said a member of the department, is accused of murder in the death of Santos Rodriguez, who was shot and killed while handcuffed in the back seat of a patrol car.

The shooting touched off a violent demonstration in downtown Dallas the following week, which left several officers injured, and numerous store windows smashed.

The trial was moved to Austin because of publicity in Dallas County. Dallas District Judge Ed Gossett will preside at the trial.

Cain, and his partner, Roy Arnold, told investigating officers they picked up Rodriguez and his brother at their home July 24 to question them about a service station burglary.

The officers and the two youths drove to the service station, where the policemen began their questioning.

Guerrillas Cut Phnom Penh's Lifeline Road

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Rebel troops cut Phnom Penh's tenuous, lifeline road to the sea just hours after a 193-truck convoy rolled into the capital with vital rice for the refugee-swollen population, the Cambodian military command reported today.

Col. Am Rong, the command spokesman, said the Communist-led insurgents blocked Highway 4 Sunday about 37 miles southwest of the capital. "The road is temporarily closed to traffic," he said.

He said it was the second time in two days the Khmer Rouge guerrillas had managed to cut the highway, which runs from Phnom Penh to the Gulf of Siam port of Kompong Som.

The closing of the highway left the Cambodian capital with only two other sources of supplies — Pochentong airport and the Mekong River, which flows to Saigon, the South Vietnamese capital. Three oil tankers and three rice barges reached Phnom Penh Sunday night after traveling up the Mekong.

In other action, Am Rong said Sunday government troops, backed by warplanes, have launched a "huge operation" against rebel positions near Vihear Suor, 11 miles east of Phnom Penh.

Field reporters said the three-day-old operation aimed at clearing rebel troops from positions 10 miles northwest of Phnom Penh was stalled about 1 1/4 miles away.

In Phnom Penh, police said a man on a motorbike tossed a grenade Saturday night at a group of military men, killing one soldier and wounding seven other persons, including four soldiers.

The attack was the latest in a string of terrorist bombings in Phnom Penh and the capital's suburbs since Oct. 29. Authorities have reported 12 persons slain and 101 wounded in the bombings.

DESPITE RESCHEDULING

Various People Observe Armistice Day 'Correctly'

By United Press International. Despite what they decided down in Washington, D.C., about Oct. 22 being Armistice Day, the folks in Albany, Ore., are going to do it right.

The Oregon Legislature decided this year that the best date to remember Nov. 11, 1918, the day World War I ended, would be Nov. 11, or as close to it as they could get, so all state offices, public schools and liquor stores will be closed today. A parade in Albany will feature 150 winners of the Congressional Medal of Honor. Bob Hope and Gen. Omar Bradley, the nation's only five-star general.

Other states that honor Armistice Day on Nov. 11 are Mississippi, Wisconsin, and Louisiana, where the town of Mamou, population 1,000, has a sort of Hoopay-for-Fall celebration, with rides, drinks and music.

Congress decided that Veterans Day would be the fourth

Monday of October, which fell on the 22nd this year, as part of a general rejiggering of holidays designed to spread them out more evenly during the year and also to make for more three-day weekends.

T. W. Marshall of Indianapolis, one of 11 surviving members of a World War I veterans "last man's club," said, "November 11th will always be our Veterans' Day." His group held a 38th annual dinner meeting at Plainfield, Ind., Sunday.

Water Group Starts Drive For Members

Water, Inc., officials from throughout West Texas and Eastern New Mexico were in Lubbock Saturday for the launching of a month long drive for new members.

Attending the session at the Red Raider Convention Center was Felix W. Ryals of White Deer. Keynote speaker at the membership kickoff luncheon was John J. Kendrick, Brownfield banker and the first president of Water, Inc.

Kendrick noted the High Plains area has the capability of closing the gap between food, fiber and fuel needs and supplies, given adequate supplemental water.

"We must tell the nation and the world about our capabilities," he said, "but our voice can only be as strong as our undergirding membership."

Water, Inc. activities center around obtaining supplemental water for the area.

Price Says IRS Action Can Hurt Cattle Industry

Congressman Bob Price of Pampa says a recent Internal Revenue Service action regarding cash basis accounting in the cattle feeding industry pre-empting Congressional authority and can financially damage the industry.

He urged the IRS to delay its action and allow the Congress to debate the matter as part of its tax reform package now before the House Ways & Means Committee.

In a "Technical Information Release" now being distributed, the IRS explains a new "Revenue Ruling" setting new and stricter criteria for determining whether a purchase of cattle feed to be consumed after the end of the taxable year can be considered for tax purposes as a business expense in the purchase year.

"This ruling will limit the amount of investment into the cattle feeding industry from outside sources," Price said. "It is estimated that some 87 per cent of the nation's beef supply is fattened in feedlots. More than 40 per cent of cattle

Revival To Get New Evangelist

Rev. Albert Neuschwanger who was the scheduled evangelist for the revival beginning tomorrow at the First Church of the Nazarene, 500 N. West, will not be able to come to Pampa because of illness.

Kenney Marchant, a student at Bethany Nazarene College in Bethany, Okla., will be in Pampa for the services instead.

IN TWO STATES

18 Killings Now Linked To Massacre Suspects

STOCKTON, Calif. (UPI) — Two bodies tossed carelessly among tall water reeds in the remote Sierras brought to 18 today the number of killings linked to massacre suspects Douglas E. Gretzler and Willie L. Steelman.

Arizona and California detectives investigating a two-state murder spree found the bodies Sunday near Knights Ferry, at a location pinpointed by the jailed suspects.

Gretzler, 22, and Steelman, 28, were definitely linked with 18 cold-blooded "execution" murders that began in Arizona in mid-October and climaxed last Wednesday with the slaying of nine persons in the tiny Northern California town of Victor.

The slashed bodies found Sunday were believed to be those of Mike Adshade and Ken Unrein, both 21, who were kidnaped in Phoenix, Ariz. Oct. 16. The suspects told detectives they killed the two kidnap victims because they kept pleading to be freed.

Police Studying More Reports Of Vandalism

Pampa police are investigating yet another incidence of vandalism in North Crest, an area of the city which was hit heavily over the weekend.

Mrs. Tom Wyatt, 1101 Sandwood, reported to police yesterday that someone had painted profane words on a newly painted fence at the residence.

Joan Lasater, 1108 Sirroco, called police yesterday regarding a note left by officers at her house Friday night.

While investigating other incidents in the neighborhood, police discovered the Lasater residence had been broken into. Ms. Lasater told officers eggs had been broken on the floor and against the TV in the house, but she did not notice anything being missing.

Gayle Trollinger, 2530 Charles, who delivers newspapers to route boys in the city, told police yesterday that a package dropped at 1505 Hamilton early Sunday had been strewn about and some of them set on fire.

Officers on patrol yesterday found other newspapers that had already been delivered to city residents had been torn up and strewn about.

Police are also investigating the theft of a 22 rifle from a pickup owned by Michael D. Cox, Pampa.

Woman To Woman

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
NEW YORK (UPI) — Will it be the nation's fireplaces to the rescue during the winter's fuel shortage in some parts of the country? It depends.

The expectation is that—those who have one—the fireplace will do more this winter than provide a romantic accent to cold evenings and the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays. If a snowstorm knocks out electricity, or fuel is short, it may be the fireplace to the rescue.

The forecast is based on a United Press International check of selected firewood dealers. Most say business is heavier than usual. Prices are the same or slightly higher than last year.

A serious shortage of firewood is hard to imagine. In most parts of the nation a drive to the nearest woods puts one in touch with deadwood (it's a good idea to get permission of the owner). With a saw or an axe a novice can cut what's needed, stashing it in a bushel basket or sack. The exercise is good. The time spent out of doors will make cheeks glow.

Among those experiencing a run on fireplace wood are Kenneth and Dorothy Wakefield of Elkhorn, Neb. Early this fall they built up a big stockpile. They supply local dealers for home fireplaces.

In New Hampshire and other New England states dealers report heavier than usual demand. It is difficult to tell, however, how much of this is due to the threatened fuel shortage. Many of the New England states have within their borders numerous second homes—vacation places—heavily used in the winter months by the ski set. These are big users of fire places. Atmosphere.

In Westport, Conn., a southern New England town that is a bedroom community of New York City, Bill Lauterbach of the L.H. Gault Co. said sales are "about the same" as last year. The price is the same, too: $35 per half-cord and $65 per cord. The rush season is before Thanksgiving and before Christmas.

In Kansas City a check of several dealers showed demand running ahead of supply. "We've got plenty of wood... but everything goes out as fast or faster than it comes in," said

Frank Schloegel, operator of Southside Fireplace Wood Co.

In Wichita, Kan., Pruitt's Hardware was taking orders for wood five weeks before delivery and wasn't promising delivery at all.

"We have 150 half-cords on order now and could sell close to 800 this winter," a Pruitt's spokesman said. A half-cord goes for $32, up from $24.50 a year ago. Labor is main problem. People cutting get paid more this year.

Schloegel said people are buying more than they should. "They're afraid of a repeat of last winter when ice storms knocked out electrical service and put furnaces out of order. There's also some hoarding because of talk of high prices and shortages." Schloegel gets $55 a cord, up about $2 from last year.

In Dallas, the cost of a cord is up a bit—to $65 from $60 last year. A half-cord goes for around $40. Supply is plentiful. No shortages are expected.

Lewis Fields, a major supplier, expects more buyers but not because of the fuel shortage. "More fireplaces," he said.

In Chicago, a major builder in the more affluent North Shore section says his $70,000 houses have two fireplaces. The fireplaces are for atmosphere, not warmth.

AFTER 20 YEARS

Mrs. Gee Still United Fund Secretary

By BOBBY COMBS
In the spring of 1953, on March 23, the first meeting was held for the purpose of organizing a "United Fund."

At that time, Mrs. Elsie Gee, 417 Hill, was appointed secretary for the organization, a position she has kept for the past 20 years.

Mrs. Gee is a great asset to the cooperation, but insists that "all I do is push the pencil, officers and members do the hard work."

Her late husband, Emmett Gee, was manager of Gray County Wheat Growers, and they have one son Richard and three grandchildren who reside in Midwest City, Okla. Instead of each member agency having its own campaign, the United Fund is a local non-profit organization formed to help you pay your fair share of many essential health, welfare and recreational services in your community—at one time.

This year, the goal is $100,000, a figure which represents a six per cent increase over last year's successfully met goal.

Rising operational costs of the nine member agencies make this higher goal imperative.

Agencies are The Pampa Milk Fund, Pampa Welfare Index, Boy Scouts of America, Girl Scouts, Salvation Army, Red Cross, Gonzales Warm Springs Foundation, Southwestern Diabetic Foundation and Texas Association for Mental Health.

Mrs. Gee recalls the drive chairman for the first United Fund drive was Paul Brown, and the goal for this drive was $45,150.00. Total amount raised was $47,119.55.

Original members that signed the charter on May 8, 1953 were J. E. Murfee Jr., Mrs. Rufe Jordan, Floyd Imel, Lynn Boyd, A. A. Schuneman, John H. Frick, R. E. McKernan, Dr. J. B. Veale Jr., Mrs. Rex Rose, Frank D. Smith, Hugh Burdette, Irvin Cole, J. C. McWilliams, Mrs. W. R. Campbell and Ivy Duncan.

The charter was compiled and donated to the organization by Don Cain, and it was approved and filed with the Secretary of State on June 30, 1953, to be in existence for 50 years.

Traffic Deaths Running Higher

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—Traffic deaths in Texas are running three per cent above the pace set in 1972, the Department of Public Safety reported.

Through noon Friday, 3,074 fatalities had been recorded on Texas streets and highways, an increase of 80 over the 2,994 reported through the same period in 1972.

API Chapter Sets Meeting For Thursday

The Panhandle Chapter API will meet Thursday at 6:30 p.m. at the Pampa Country Club.

Paul Gilkeson, area sales representative for Baroid Division of N. L. Industries, Inc. of Oklahoma City, Okla., will speak on "The Scale in Your Life," concerning scale as it occurs in nature, in the human body and in the oilfield.

Gilkeson graduated from Rice University in 1948 and has worked for Baroid for 25 years in the drilling mud lab and in the field as a Sales Engineer for Baroid Treating Chemicals.

He is a member of API, National Association of Corrosion Engineers and Society of Petroleum Engineers. He is a registered professional engineer in Texas and a registered corrosion specialist.

The annual election of officers banquet will be Dec. 1, in the Shrine Hall south of Pampa. Tickets for the event will be available from any API officers, including B. R. Nunn, C. D. Zlomke, John Rogers, Pete Blanda, Harold Lawley or Martin Ludeman.

Area Baylor Group Plans Fall Meeting

The fall meeting of the Amarillo-Pampa area chapter of Baylor Parents League (BPL) will be at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 13 at the Big Texan Steak Ranch, Route 2 in Amarillo.

Parents of all Amarillo and Pampa-area students currently attending Baylor and Baylor ex-students in the area are invited to the meeting.

A $3.75-a-plate dinner will be served before the meeting's program.

Representing Baylor University at the meeting will be Mrs. Jack Herring, BPL director; Ed Phelps, Baylor development officer for the Amarillo-Pampa area; Mrs. Mabel Warren, assistant to Mrs. Herring; and Baylor President Abner V. McCall, who will be guest speaker at the meeting.

Mrs. Herring said the purpose of fall BPL meetings is to "inform Baylor parents about different specific areas of the university."

Current Amarillo-Pampa area BPL chapter officers are Dr. and Mrs. Dudley Moore, Canyon, who serve as president. Serving as vice president are Mr. and Mrs. Tom Scivally, Amarillo. Mrs. J. A. Hoover, Canyon, serves as secretary.

In its sixth year, BPL acts as a communication link between parents and the university, informing parents of the traditions, present accomplishments and future goals of Baylor. It also acts as a channel of communication between administrators, faculty and students.

Dear Abby

Mom's double-trouble—pregnant, unwed teens

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I have two daughters who are pregnant and not married. One is 15, and the other is 18. The 15 year old is just entering 10th grade, and I don't want her to marry so young. I think she should finish high school first. The boy is 18, and plans on going to college. I spoke with his mother, and she said after the baby comes, if it looks like her son, MAYBE he will marry my daughter.

The 18 year old is expecting first. Her boy friend said he didn't have any plans for marriage right now because he has five more car payments to make, but when he is free and clear he will pay something toward the baby's support. Meanwhile, he hardly ever comes around anymore, but he's been seen out with other girls. My daughter is so dumb, she thinks he will marry her when he's out of debt.

Now that you have the facts, here is my question: Do you think I should give my daughters baby showers?

UNDECIDED

DEAR UNDECIDED: It isn't proper for a close member of the family to give showers. They are usually given by friends.

DEAR ABBY: My mother was a young widow with three children when she remarried. Abby, not all men can accept stepchildren as their own. My stepfather has been good to me (the only girl) but he's been awfully hard on the boys. One ran away years ago, but the other is sticking it out until he finishes school. Mom and I have always tried to give the boys lots of love to make up for the lack of fatherly love.

However, Mom is now destroying the child she's trying to protect. He can't get up in the morning himself, so she wakes him four or five times and has breakfast waiting for him. She drives him to and from work, otherwise he'd be late. He's refinanced when he overspends, and Mom runs all his errands—the latest being payment of a traffic ticket. [He didn't even say "thank you."]

I am seven years older than this brother, self-supporting, and live in the same town. I would like to see the kid allowed to mature. I know he would, if Mom would only let him. Watching her wait on him constantly infuriates my stepfather. If I say anything to Mom, she says I'm jealous. I don't think I am. I am only concerned because the boy will be 20 next month and he's incredibly immature and irresponsible. I'd do anything to get my mother off his neck. Should I talk to a friend she respects? We have no clergyman.

BIG SISTER

DEAR SIS: Yes! If the friend makes as much sense as you do.

CONFIDENTIAL [AND MANY THANKS] to all who wrote to inform me that the poem I was trying to track down is: "Which the Chicken, Which the Egg." And it goes like this:

"He drinks because she scolds, he thinks,
She thinks she scolds because he drinks,
And neither will admit what's true,
That he's a sot and she's a shrew."

[Ogden Nash]

And the first person to get the facts to me was Carol Ritter, the gracious, wideawake librarian at the Woonsocket, S. D., Public Library. [Woonsocket's population is 835!]

Jim: "There was a time when you were known as the great exponent of psychic bidding, yet when I started to learn bridge you told me never to bid psychics. What caused you to give them up?"

Oswald: "A lot of that reputation was undeserved. I did use weak jump overcalls. In fact, I invented that bid back in 1931. They were called psychics then, but they are not by modern definition since all players at the table know just what type hand I would hold when I made a jump overcall. As for ordinary fake bids, or psychics, I gave them up for two reasons. The unimportant one was that when they worked my opponents were likely to think they had been cheated. The important reason was that they didn't work often enough to make up for the times they acted like two-headed rattlesnakes and turned around and bit me. The hand shown today was the clincher."

Jim: "There is nothing psychic about South's opening heart bid. The hand is minimum but it is a half-opening bid."

Oswald: "Yes it is. I sat North. My partner bid frequent psychics and when I looked at my 28 points I was so sure he had bid one that I simply bid four hearts. It turned out he had every missing face card and we had missed about the easiest grand slam ever seen."

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

TUESDAY, NOV. 13

Your birthday today: Converting intangibles into materially useful form is a major challenge. Your extended sensory perceptiveness is bound to increase this year. Today's natives have strong aptitudes for poetry, are impulsive, restless, often leave home mainly for the joy of returning.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Much of today's discussion is devoted to touchy subjects. Be careful about how you approach difficult questions. Seek a change of mood and scene for later in the day.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: To others, your point of view soon becomes unreasonable, so forget about explaining in the first place.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Having money on your mind hinders your "luck" in getting hold of or keeping it. Make a simple, short-term budget, and stick to it.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Just when things seem to be flowing smoothly, you encounter obstacles. Success depends on how you react to pressure.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Responsibility descends upon you from all sides, including some not rightfully yours. You have little support where you'd expected it.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Nothing is to be gained by forcing issues. What will bring results is hard work, prayer, and patience.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: It's not so much what you'd like to do as it is what you must do. Your free will is mainly a matter of how you choose to react.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Leave behind cumbersome projects, bad habits, unproductive attitudes. Let people handle their own problems.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Being clear-cut in your adherence to well-set plans is your main path to success now. Extra expense arises from the folly of friends.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Stand your ground today, quietly, but take no initiative except to counteract where you choose to do so.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: While waiting for people to respond, supplies to arrive, etc., use your time for planning distant objectives.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Your feelings come on in a rush, only to meet crosscurrents. Pull yourself together, and wait until you have people's full attention.

The Woman's View

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — It's enough to drive a person from drink. The drink is water.

It's often been called the real fountain of youth. But a detailed look at pollution of rivers, lakes, estuaries and harbors shows it often is the fountain of disease.

Where does the dirty water come from? One national environmentalist estimates, roughly, that one-third comes from industry, one-third from communities, and one-third from agriculture.

As for what to do about it, he sees clear choices. "There are only two ways of eliminating water pollution. One is laborious cleaning of water that has been fouled. The other, manifestly simpler, is to stop pollution before it starts, to prevent contaminations from getting into waterways."

So writes Gladwin Hill, environmental correspondent for The New York Times, in a new publication from the Public Affairs Committee, a New York-based nonprofit educational organization. Its title: "Cleansing Our Waters."

Hill writes that people are using water faster than nature can refine it. The result is water unappealing, unfit for drink, and sometimes hazardous just to dip in it.

The Potomac River, as it runs past the nation's capital in Washington, is so dirty, he says, that health officials have repeatedly warned that it is hazardous just to dip your hand in it.

Hill says the total amount of pollution entering our waterways annually has been estimated at 804 billion pounds of suspended solids and 137 billion pounds of dissolved solids—more than two tons per citizen.

"All this fluid waste is a staggering burden on the nation," he says. "recreational possibilities are reduced by billions of person-hours of pleasure and billions of dollars of potential commerce."

"Pollution...has severely impaired the propagation of both shellfish and deepwater species, putting a dent in the nation's food supply and pushing up seafood prices."

Then there's the cost to public health. He says that in the decade 1961-70, there were 130 officially recorded outbreaks of disease in this country caused by drinking water—more than one a month—involving as many as 16,000 persons in individual episodes.

He figures it will cost $8.7 billion a year to clean up water pollution, with federal, state and local governments in the act, plus various private approaches. Even so, he says, it is less than the $13 billion a year reckoned as the largely hidden costs of water pollution to the nation.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — No part of the epic onward and upward march of humankind is more inspiring than man's long and difficult struggle to smell better.

History does not record at what point Homo Sapiens first became disenchanted with his own smell. We do know, however, that as long ago as the Pleistocene Epoch primeval tribesmen were daubing dabs of "Naughty Boy" toilet water behind their ears and knees in an effort to make themselves more socially acceptable.

But somewhere along the way, no one knows just why, perfume came to be considered unmanly. To improve their smell without getting the fishy from their associates, men were obliged to resort to subterfuges.

What they did was mix in scents with shaving lotion and hair tonic. That way they could perfume themselves under the guise of combing razor drag and dandruff.

Now, however, masculine use of fragrance is coming into the open. Many men, presumably unassuming in manhood, are going around practically swimming in ambergris, orrisroot, musk, myrrh, rose water and eau de Cologne.

I was speaking of this the other day to Xavier Guerrand-Hermes, representative of a French perfume company which has just entered the men's fragrance market in this country.

He expressed the view that unlike women, who use perfume primarily as a sex attractant, men have started scenting themselves for nostalgic reasons.

He said they are trying to recapture the aromas of their youth—flowers, freshly baked bread, etc.—that have disappeared from modern cities.

"Cities today have a different smell," he said. "They create no sensual impressions. They arouse no feeling of rediscovery. So men are forced to turn to artificial fragrances with which they can identify."

My chat with Guerrand-Hermes started me to wondering what the perfume business will be like when the youths of today grow up.

By that time, one hopes, the aroma of flowers and freshly baked bread will again be evident. But if the Guerrand-Hermes theory is correct, men will continue perfuming themselves.

For by that time, in order to recapture yesteryear's aromas, men will need to wear such fragrances as Altar of Smog, Essence of Exhaust Fumes and Eau de Garbage.

Before going out on the town, a young man may splash a bit of Bouquet of Tenement upon his shoulders. Or maybe affix a sachet of Oil of Slums to his bowling shirt.

Such smells may not enhance his social acceptability. But will they ever bring back memories?

NSF Seeking Public Service Research Ideas

The National Science Foundation is seeking proposals for research projects broadly aimed at providing knowledge to help improve the organization and delivery of public services.

A total of up to $2 million may be provided for the research. The projects will be administered by the Division of Social Systems and Human Resources (SSHR) in NSF's Directorate of Research Applications.

A key consideration in the research is what alternative governmental entities such as counties, municipalities, or special districts are best suited to deliver a particular public service in a particular area.

The services to be dealt with in this research are restricted to fire; police; solid waste collection and disposal; public health (excluding mental health); and water and sewage management.

The research would be conducted within metropolitan areas, in close coordination with users of research. Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas for these projects are defined as those which were within the boundaries of a single state had populations under 1,500,000 in the 1970 U.S. Census.

The deadline for receiving these proposals is 4 p.m. CST, Jan. 22, 1974. Proposals may be submitted by academic institutions and by nonacademic, nonprofit, or profit organizations.

Copies of Program Solicitation 73-28, Decision-Related Research on the Organization of Service Delivery in Metropolitan Areas, may be obtained from Forms and Publications, Room 236, National Science Foundation, 1800 G Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20550. Telephone (202) 632-4128.

Paris confronts new revolution in transportation

By Jerry Tuttle

PARIS (NEA) — A Second French Revolution is being fought on and under the streets of Paris — and the people are winning.

The enemy this time is not the iron grip of royalty but of traffic congestion. One result of the struggle is that Paris has built one of the world's most efficient and glamorous rapid transit systems, ranking with Hamburg, Stockholm and Tokyo.

Transportation problems here mean, as usual, automobile problems. In 1900 there were 2,447 of them rattling over the cobblestones. Today there are three million in the metropolitan area, one for every three citizens.

In the city proper there are parking spaces, including streets, for only half the cars registered. The other day two motorists were seen near the Champs-Elysees disputing claim to a bus stop.

Mammoth underground parking projects have had little effect on congestion, nor apparently does the gasoline price of $1.12 a gallon. In fact, the Paris prefect of police fears that expressways and new parking facilities may be self-defeating, merely luring more motorists to the city. It is an article of faith among traffic control experts that no Western city has ever succeeded in building parking spaces as fast as it has built autos.

Paris administrators have shown ingenuity and the willingness to spend great sums of money and labor to keep this 2,000-year-old town from freezing in a mass of metal. Reserved bus and taxi lanes — some running counter to one-way avenues — have helped raise bus speeds above the city-wide average of 6 mph.

The first no-parking sign was erected in Paris in 1907 (it was immediately denounced as "ugly"). Today armies of meter maids (called "eggplants" for the color of their uniforms) paper windshields with computerized bad news.

The traffic, against all odds, moves. But the real solution, it was determined eight years ago, lay underground. The city then launched a $6 billion project to build a high-speed transit system connecting central Paris by deep tunnels with the fast growing suburbs. Outside the city above-ground tracks are used, and dozens of bright, futuristic stations have been built.

Today electric-powered trains carry passengers at running speeds of 60 m.p.h. into Paris. The 15-mile trip from the western terminus St. Germain-en-Laye to the Opera, at the center of town, now takes just 22 minutes. The Rapid is linked with the traditional subway ("Metro") lines and the bus system.

The ultramodern station at the Opera, the system's largest, is 12 stories underground. It is the length of nearly three football fields, required 2.5 million man hours to build, moves 100,000 passengers an hour through a complex of moving underground sidewalks, elevators and escalators, canceling their tickets electronically at stainless steel turnstiles.

The complex movement of trains, buses, people and money is coordinated by a giant computer system of Honeywell Bull, the overseas affiliate of Honeywell Information Systems in the U.S. The computer system coordinates:

- The Rapid, with 453 cars, 46 miles of track, 51 stations.
- The Metro, with 3,200 cars, 107 miles of track, 343 stations.
- The bus system; 3,600 vehicles, 1,100 miles of routes, 4,600 passenger stops.
- Personnel affairs of 35,000 employees.

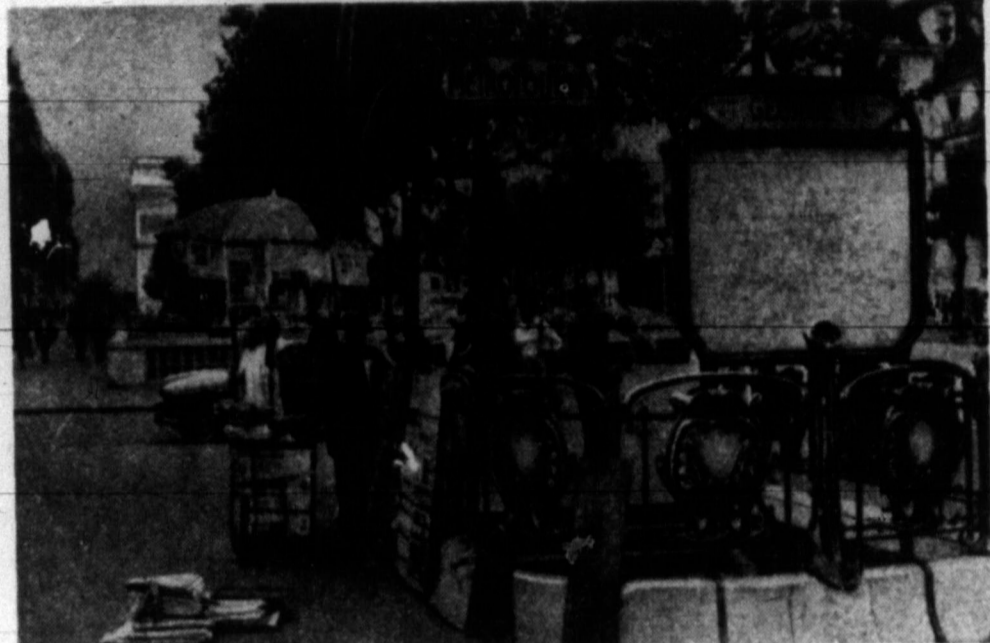

The entire system —

Rapid, Metro and bus — now carries more than six million passengers daily, two billion a year. The arms of the Rapid will be linked by 1978, but already that system carries 500,000 passengers daily, half of the former auto commuters in the areas served. The slide away from mass transit to automobile, begun in the 1950s, seems to be reversing itself.

Meanwhile, the city's fight against the private car continues on other fronts. The prefect of police is known to be considering a plan to charge auto owners monthly fees for street parking.

"After all," he says, "a car owner has no more logical right to store his auto in the street than his refrigerator."

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

THE OLD AND THE NEW co-exist in Paris' updated subway system. One of the classic Metro stations preserves the flavor of another day.

EFFICIENCY RATHER THAN NOSTALGIA is the hallmark of the new Rapid system designed to alleviate Paris' massive transportation problem.

Mary McCann and her Nurses Association sponsored my recent public lecture in Pennsylvania. It was headed, "Sex Problems in Marriage." In the forum discussion afterwards, note some of the typical questions from the audience. Watch for my answers!

CASE Y-567: Recently the Beaver County (Pa.) Nurses Association invited me to deliver a public address under its auspices.

"Sex Problems in Marriage," was the announced title. "Dr. Crane," Mary McCann explained, "we are trying to improve domestic harmony and combat divorce."

"So our organization is sponsoring this evening address by you as a helpful clinic on Marital Problems."

A large and very attentive crowd turned out for the meeting.

"But, Dr. Crane," some of the nurses added, "several women have telephoned, saying they had wanted to attend."

"Yet they now feared to do so lest their neighbors might surmise they were having marital problems in the bedroom."

"So maybe we should have employed a more general title such as, 'How to Stay Happily Married.'"

"Then you could have dealt with sex dilemmas, anyway, without making a lot of wives feel embarrassed."

HEADLINE STRATEGY

Similarly, many patients formerly were reluctant to admit they were consulting a psychiatrist.

"For my friends might think I am going crazy," was their attitude.

College Plans Winter Concert At Clarendon

The Clarendon College Music Department will present a Winter Pops Concert on Tuesday, Nov. 13, at 8 p.m. in the Harned Sisters Fine Arts Center.

The concert of light music will include performances by the College Choir, Stage Band and newly formed College Singers. Forty-five student musicians are involved in the presentation.

The College Choir, organized in the fall of 1972, has performed for various area civic clubs and in public concert. Selections to be performed include "All His Children" by Henry Mancini; "And I Love You So" by Don McLean; and "Anytime of the Year" by Hirsch.

The College Singers, a small vocal ensemble, was organized earlier this fall. Its members were selected on the basis of audition. The group has recently given two performances for the Hedley Cotton Festival.

Musical numbers featuring the College Singers include "Happy Together" by Milt Rogers; "Sounds of the Carpenters" by Jerry Nowak; and "Take Up the Hammer of Hope" by Carl Strommer.

The Stage Band, organized in the fall of 1972, has entertained at various college athletic functions, area civic clubs, and high school organizations. Recently they gave performances at the Hedley Cotton Festival and the Memphis Cotton Boll Enduro.

Concert selections will include "Sweet Caroline" by Neil Diamond; "Groovin' Easy" by Marty Gold, and "Shambala" by Daniel Moore. Featured soloists will be Kent Heath and Benny Stallings, trumpet; Mike Chappell, alto saxophone; Denise Hill, trombone; and Fred Lowder, drums.

Admission will be $1 for adults and 75 cents for students. College Students are admitted free. Proceeds will be used to provide scholarship assistance for area students.

Skylab Camera Takes Picture Of Mercury

HOUSTON (UPI)—Johnson Space Center scientists reported a telescope aboard the unmanned Skylab spacecraft captured a rare view of Mercury as the tiny planet passed between the Earth and the Sun.

Dr. Ed Reeves, principle investigator for the Harvard College Observatory, said the sighting of the eclipse was the first through a telescope lofted into space.

About 50 scientists and engineers worked to aim the instrument in order to catch the solar system's smallest planet during the eclipse. Reeves said such an eclipse would not occur again for 15 years.

Same was true of genitourinary doctors, whose patients with ordinary ailments within the realm of the G-U doctor, were often afraid they'd be regarded as afflicted with venereal disease!

"Sex Problems in Marriage" is a dynamic title that appeals to most adults, at least in the privacy of their homes or our medical offices.

For it is an axiom that most divorces start in the bedroom! But there are still many cultured wives who shy away from showing a public interest in sexual matters.

That's also why I often employ euphemisms in this daily column, such as "boudoir cheesecake" and "erotic calories."

At this evening meeting, the nurses provided the audience with cards on which they could write questions for my forum discussion that followed the main address.

For when a speaker confronts a mixed audience, even in this frank modern age, many people hesitate to stand up and ask an oral question, though they may flood me with written queries.

Here are some of the questions that were on their cards:

- (1) Is frigidity an emotional or a physical problem and how can it be overcome?
- (2) Why are American men so breast-oriented whereas European males are more buttocks-oriented?
- (3) Why is there so much rape when women can be had freely?
- (4) Who should be the boss in the family - the husband or the wife?
- (5) Why are there so many women here to listen to your address though many of their husbands didn't accompany them?
- (6) How about a man over 60 who claims he never was interested in sex?
- (7) Dr. Crane, you say divorce can be avoided if husband and wife follow the rules of the marriage game. Do you practice what you preach?
- (8) What will occur when young wives have abortions and then later want babies but find they can't have any?
- (9) How many times have you yourself been married? And what about your children?
- (10) What is the usual frequency and duration of the sex act in marriage?

Later this week I'll answer some of these questions, so keep on the lookout!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Worry Clinic, Hopkins Bldg., Mellett, Indiana 47933. Enclose a long stamped, addressed envelope and 15 cents in cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Hilda Brungot serving 19th term

For New Hampshire legislator, 86 isn't too old

(Ed. Note: This is another in a series of articles on America's aged appearing throughout 1973.)

By Tom Tiede

BERLIN, N.H. — (NEA) — When she was younger, before the 19th Amendment, Hilda Brungot was advised to forget politics and concentrate on cooking and raising babies. Then as she grew older, and older, and older, the lady was told to give up politics (why fight that hassle?) and retire to the life of cooking and visiting her raised babies.

But Hilda Constance Frederica Brungot has never much listened to the suggestions of conformity. And so at 86 years old, a few weeks shy of 87, she is serving her 19th term in the New Hampshire General Court (state lawmaking body). At an age when most steal off to someplace to rest, Rep. Brungot is called by those who know her: The First Lady of the Legislatures.

Retire? That idea, says she, is "cockeyed and crazy." On the contrary she believes her life began to surge forward at about 65. She got a divorce at 70 and high school diploma at 80. Now, aside from being the oldest and longest-running woman legislator in the nation, she is also a notary public, justice of the peace, eight-unit apartment owner and on the side, when she gets the chance, "I sell greeting cards."

Retire? Poo. "My brother Charlie, who was two years older than me, he retired. He worked 50 years as an engineer and then he just decided to stop and retire. Well, what he did from then on was sit around waiting to die. He sat for a few years at home, until he became so unfrisky nobody could do anything with him. Then he went to the nursing home and passed away. That's what retirement does. And it's not for me."

Retirement, of course, need not be the ominous twilight that Rep. Brungot believes. But she is correct in intimating, at least, that it all too often is: Geriatric authorities generally agree that many people who give up their work also give up their future goals. These people, says psychologist Robert N. Butler, can become cynical towards themselves and death — and begin to deny the future: "For these individuals old age becomes a bitter, comfortless void."

Such a void, once created, leads to many of the emotional problems of some older Americans. The sense of isolation. The feelings of uselessness. Withdrawal and irritability. Good health can also be affected, says Dr. Carl Eisendorfer of the University of Washington Psychology Department; he believes such ailments as senility may be caused as much by psychological changes and frustrations as anything else. And in its severest form the retirement void may even lead to self destruction.

prospects is that in the majority of cases they needn't happen. Authorities believe that proper motivation can prevent old age voids. "Life satisfaction," say researchers at the Duke University geriatrics center, "is the key to a healthy, ripe old age."

And Hilda Brungot is an outstanding example. Born in an age when women were relegated to "women's work," saddled for years by the demands of her six children, stuck far-out-of-the-way in New Hampshire countryside, she might easily have foregone careers of her own. But: "When I was just a kid, my father ran for the legislature and I decided to help him out. My first day campaigning I knocked on 36 doors and got invited in for 36 cups of coffee. I've been in politics ever since."

Not even severe arthritis has crippled her energies. Though she walks with crutches she needs no support for her mind. "At reelection time I just take out my phonebook. I call up every voter in my ward and ask for their help." So far the voters have turned her down only three times since her first race of 1928.

Today Rep. Brungot, a conservative Republican — she believes in cutting taxes, is against abortion, doesn't want to talk about President Nixon and is quite against women's lib — today, she says she reads every page of every bill proposed in her state (some 1,500 to 2,000 a session); she says her justice of the peace business is so full she sometimes has three or four marriages a week ("I don't like them, but uh, most of them are emergencies, you know"); she says she handles constituents, complaining or otherwise, as adeptly as ever.

As for her great age: "It's no handicap. Actually, until recently I never thought of myself as old. Now people all make a fuss about it so I have to think about it, too. But 86-87, I still don't think it's old. Not old enough to quit, anyway."

Not by a long shot. Rep. Brungot believes the secret to life satisfaction is live it as if she's eternal. Socrates felt the same; he started taking dancing lessons at 70. For those who go on pursuing ends that give existence meaning, says First Lady Hilda Brungot, old age is definitely not the end of life.

NMRFAAMCE - It's Not A Dirty Word

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst
 NMRFAAMCE is neither a dirty word nor taken from the comic strips. It stands for Negotiations on the Mutual Reduction of Forces and Armaments and Associated Measures in Central Europe. It probably will be around for some time.

Brezhnev has predicted that some cuts may be made as early as 1975. Under pressure of congress and American opinion, the United States has favored for several years a reduction of its forces in Europe, but in a balanced way between western and communist forces.

The Western nations would confine negotiations primarily to manpower. The Communists want it extended to cover nuclear forces, especially U.S. nuclear-armed aircraft. Recent events have added new and complicated factors to the negotiations. Especially these involve the new relationship between airplanes, tanks and missiles as demonstrated by experience in the latest Mideast outbreak. Within recent months the Soviets are reported to have beefed up their armored forces in central Europe so that Communist tanks now outnumber NATO forces by two to one.

and to have increased by at least 50 percent their tactical airpower. Texas farmers planted 20,000 acres of hairy vetch in 1972 and harvested three million pounds of seed. Vetch is used for fodder.

By those who recall such things it will be noted that the new title evolved from the much simpler MBFR, Mutual and Balanced Force Reductions, and that the word "balanced" has been dropped.

This is on demand of the Soviet Union, chief spokesman for east European communist nations which stand aligned against NATO nations across central Europe.

On the Communist, or Warsaw pact, side are the Soviet Union, Poland, East Germany and Czechoslovakia. Special status on that side is accorded to Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria.

On the NATO side are the United States, Britain, the Netherlands, West Germany, Luxembourg, Belgium and Canada, with special status being held by Italy, Norway, Denmark, Greece and Turkey.

Primarily involved in the negotiations are 855,000 troops of the Warsaw pact nations as opposed to about 770,000 from NATO countries. Most involved are 330,000 Soviet forces and 313,000 Americans.

The term "most" is used because in any eventual agreement, Soviet and American forces would be first to be reduced with across-the-board cuts by NATO and Warsaw pact nations coming later.

The U.S. and NATO position is that reductions should be "balanced" by the fact that U.S. forces would be withdrawing some 3,000 miles and Russian forces only about 500 so that Soviet withdrawals should be numerically higher.

The Soviet position is that reductions should be manpower, although subject to some negotiations. Soviet party leader Leonid I

WITH WIN OVER LIONS

Vikes Clinch Division Tie

By United Press International
The great National Football League December playoff extravaganza seems to have its first three entries.

The unbeaten Minnesota Vikings nailed down at least a tie for the National Conference Central Division title Sunday by beating the Detroit Lions for the 12th straight time, 28-7, while Miami and Pittsburgh all but clinched American Conference titles.

Miami, now 7-1, opened up a three-game bulge on Buffalo in the AFC East by shutting out Baltimore for the fourth straight time, 44-0, while Pittsburgh's defense outmuscled Oakland, 19-7, to keep the Steelers 2 1/2-game edge over Cleveland in the AFC Central.

It would take almost complete reversals in form for the Dolphins and Steelers to lose their titles now.

Minnesota, with old-timers Bill Brown and Dave Osborne carrying the running attack, erupted for two touchdowns in the third period to break open its game against Detroit.

Brown Ties Game
The Vikings spotted Detroit a touchdown on a 33-yard pass from Bill Munson to Ron Jesse before Brown, who gained 80 of his 102 yards in the first half, plunged over from the one to tie the game.

Wally Hilgenberg ran two yards with a blocked punt in the second period to give Minnesota a 14-7 lead and the Vikings put away their ninth victory in the third period as Ed Marinaro ran seven yards for one score and Fran Tarkenton threw 31 yards to John Gilliam for another.

Munson shook his head in disbelief. "I don't know when those guys are going to get old," he said.

Miami, with Mercury Morris scoring on runs of 48 and 53 yards and cornerback Tim

Foley scoring his first pro TDs on blocked punts, humiliated Baltimore. The Dolphins ran up a 17-0 lead in the first period, boosted it to 27-0 at the half and didn't let up until the final gun.

"It wasn't a jinx that beat us out there today," said Baltimore Coach Howard Schnelberger, an assistant at Miami last season. "We were badly outclassed by a fine Miami football team. They dominated every phase of the game."

The Curtain Slams
The Steelers call their defense, "the Steel Curtain," and it slammed down on Oakland with a thud. Listed as six-point underdogs despite losing only one game, the Steelers dropped Oakland quarterbacks five times, intercepted four passes and forced two crucial intentional grounding penalties.

Defensive end Dwight White's interception set up Terry Hanratty's 14-yard TD pass to Ron Shanklin and Mike Wagner's fumble recovery set the stage for Franco Harris one-yard TD run.

As it turned out, Harris, who made a spectacular catch and run with a deflected pass in the playoffs to beat Oakland with five seconds left, again was the Steeler hero since his TD provided the margin of victory. Daryle Lamonica passed 27 yards to Fred Biletnikoff in the final period for Oakland's lone TD.

In other games, Washington ripped San Francisco, 33-9. Dallas downed the New York Giants, 23-10. Los Angeles clubbed New Orleans, 29-7. Atlanta beat Philadelphia, 44-27. Cincinnati edged Buffalo, 16-13. Cleveland topped Houston, 23-13. Denver downed San Diego, 30-19. Green Bay beat St. Louis, 25-22, and the New York Jets trounced New England, 33-

13. Chicago is at Kansas city tonight.
Bill Kilmer threw two second half TD passes and Curt Knight kicked four field goals as the Redskins beat San Francisco. Kilmer passed 25 yards to Charlie Harraway and two to Mike Hancock and Brig Owens set up two field goals with an interception and a fumble recovery.

The Cowboys remained tied with Washington for first in the NFC East as Charlie Waters intercepted two passes and recovered a fumble to set up scores. Dallas capitalized on eight turnovers to hand New York its seventh straight loss, with Walt Garrison scoring twice.

Hadl Throws TD Pass
John Hadl threw an 18-yard TD pass to Lawrence McCutcheon and David Ray kicked three field goals as the Rams rallied to beat New Orleans. The victory left Los Angeles a game ahead of Atlanta in the NFC

West after the Falcons, under Bob Lee, erupted for 24 points in the final period to beat the Eagles for their fifth straight win.

Lee, unbeaten since taking over as Atlanta quarterback, threw a 12-yard TD pass to Ken Burrow and set up two other TDs.

Horst Muhimann's 33-yard field goal with three seconds left lifted Cincinnati over Buffalo and Don Cockroft's three field goals and a short scoring plunge by Mike Phipps helped the Browns hand Houston its eighth loss in nine games.

Charley Johnson threw two second half TD passes and Floyd Little dove for another TD as the Broncos overcame San Diego and ruined Ron Waller's coaching debut. Jerry Tagge, in his first pro start at quarterback, ran for one score and set up four Chester Marcol field goals as the Packers snapped a four-game losing streak by beating St. Louis.

Gilbert In Lead After 4 Rounds

PINEHURST, N.C. (UPI)—If the World Open golf championship were a standard 72-hole tournament, Gibby Gilbert would be putting a cool $100,000 in the bank today.

But 72 holes is just the halfway mark for the $500,000 marathon event, richest in golf history. So Gilbert, who shot a one-under-par 70 Sunday for a five-stroke lead after four rounds, doesn't have a dime yet.

Today and Tuesday he will be trying to relax and polish his game at the Pinehurst Country Club, getting ready for the second 72 holes starting Wednesday.

The 32-year-old pro, whose victory in the 1970 Houston Open was his only triumph in six years on the tour, started out with a course record 62, nine under par, in the opening round and survived a pair of 74s to hold the lead in every round so far.

"This is the first time I've ever led a tournament for four rounds," Gilbert said. "Every day, I'm proving something to myself."

Golf, he said, "is a mental game. You can psych yourself into doing things and that's great."

In second place were veteran Al Beiberger, 1966 PGA champion, and tour sophomore Tom Watson. Both shot three-under-par 68s Sunday, best score turned in for the day, to tie at one-over-par 285.

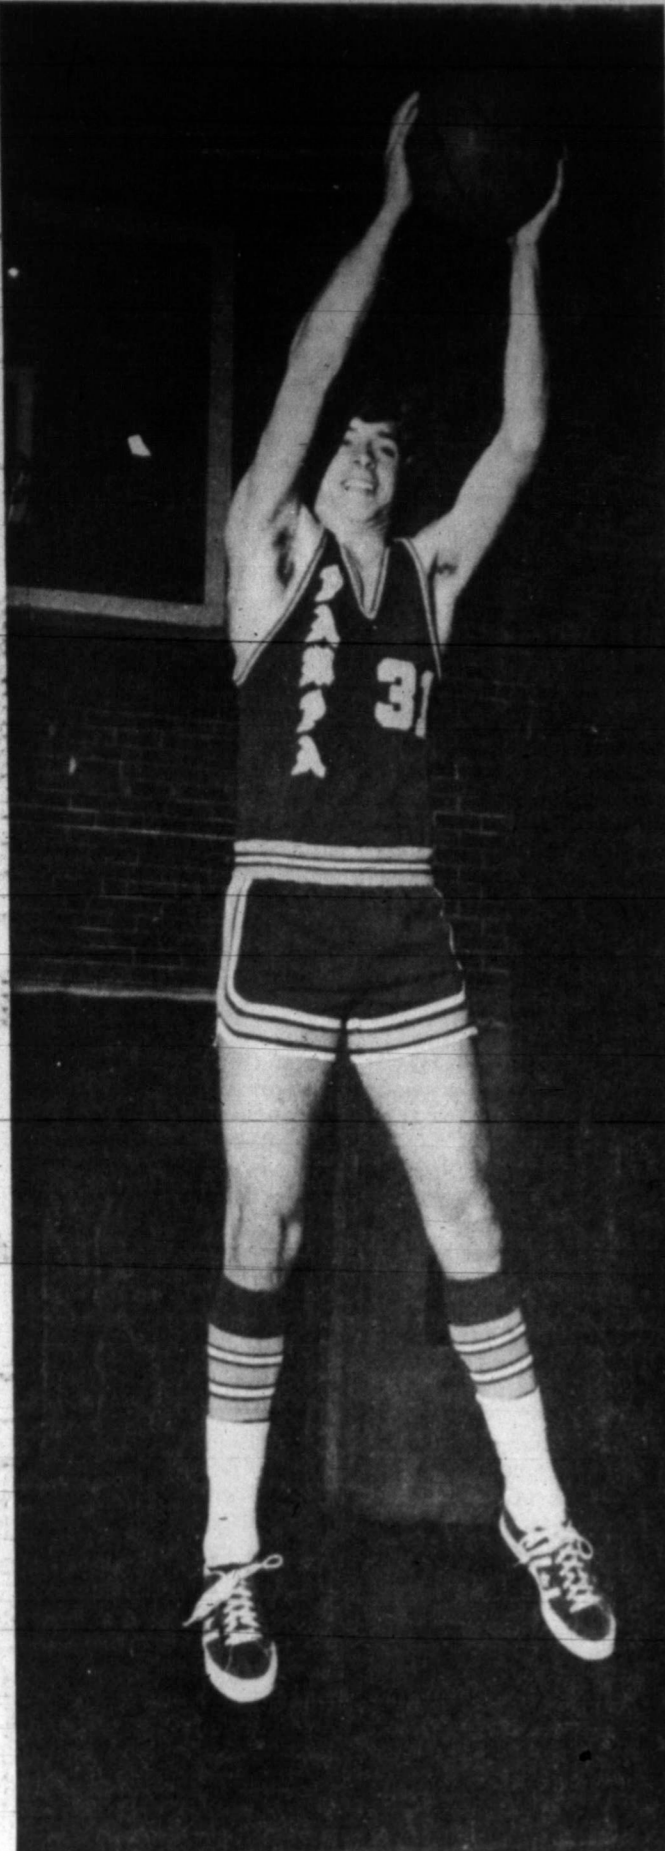

"It's still anybody's tournament," said Watson. "Anybody ten shots off the lead can come back and win."

Allen Miller, tied for the lead after three rounds, soared to a 76 Sunday that left him six strokes off the pace at 286. Bob Menne, with a 70 Sunday, Bobby Mitchell with a 72, and Jerry Heard with a 74 were bunched at 287, seven strokes off the pace. Mike McCullough with a 71 Sunday and Miller Barber with a 74 stood at 289.

The field, which started 240 strong, was cut to 74 players after Sunday's round, with the cut being at 298, 14 over par. Among those dropped from the field were Australian Bruce Crampton, the tour's second ranking money winner this year.

MEET A HARVESTER — Mike Fraser (last in series) is a 6-1 junior forward, who should see a great deal of action and give the Harvesters additional shooting strength this season. "He shoots well, that's probably his strongest asset," said Pampa coach Robert McPherson, "and a hard worker and a good rebounder."

MEET A HARVESTER — Six-foot junior post-forward Kory Gamblin is the younger brother of former Pampa standout Marsh Gamblin, a '72 graduate and now a Panhandle State player. Kory, a Shocker last season, is, says head coach Robert McPherson, "a hard worker and a good rebounder."

SATURDAY NTSU To Meet Tulsa For Crown

By United Press International
It is showdown week in the Missouri Valley Conference, and North Texas coach Hayden Fry is simply delighted to have the opportunity.

"All I can say is that I'm happy to be here," said Fry. "We're here and that is all that really matters."

Fry's club has a 5-3-1 record this season, but all five of those victories have been in Missouri Valley play and when North Texas meets Tulsa (4-0 in conference action) next Saturday in Denton, the league title will be on the line.

North Texas kept its conference record unblemished last week with a 31-21 decision over Wichita, bouncing back from a 52-3 massacre the week before at the hands of Cincinnati.

Tulsa coach F. A. Dry, whose Golden Hurricane had the week off, was in the stands to have a look at his upcoming opponent.

For a change North Texas showed some offense in disposing of Wichita. Sophomore Tony Ford had been Fry's surprise choice for starting quarterback against Wichita, and he responded by throwing four touchdown passes—three of them to David Kervin.

"Ford was masterful," exclaimed Fry. "He executed plays and ran the offense superbly. He didn't have any interceptions, and we didn't lose any fumbles. He did just a fantastic job."

North Texas' victory came in the only conference game of the week, but in non-league action Drake fell to Southern Illinois, 37-20. Louisville was nipped by Dayton, 10-9. West Texas stumbled against Tampa, 28-6; and New Mexico State closed out its season with a 40-12 loss against Utah State.

to the sidelines only to have had his club hard hit by injuries.

TCU lost games that it had a chance to win—against Arkansas, Texas A&M and last week against Texas Tech—and speculation continues about Tohill's job security.

And this week TCU's Horned Frogs must play Texas' Longhorns, who need only a win Saturday in Austin to clinch a share of their sixth straight Southwest Conference title and wrap up their sixth straight appearance in the Cotton Bowl—probably against Nebraska.

Tohill was in a depressed mood following his team's 24-10 loss to the 14th-ranked Tech Red Raiders last Saturday. His team had lost a 10-point lead, his starting quarterback had broken the thumb on his right hand and his star running back—Mike Luttrell—had suffered a pinched shoulder nerve.

So it was hard to show any enthusiasm. But Tohill is used to adversity.

"No matter what kind of football team you are playing," Tohill said, looking ahead to the meeting with the 12th-ranked Longhorns "you have to believe you can win the football game."

"If you walk out there thinking you can't win then you sure enough are going to get the fire knocked out of you."

"I always believe something is going to happen—we are going to intercept a pass or recover a fumble or they are going to drop a pass."

"I always believe something will happen and we will win the football game."

"A lot of people in the state of Texas think Texas is going to beat us, but I'll tell you of one head coach, nine assistant coaches and 56 football players who don't."

As far as the rumors which began two weeks ago that he was on the endangered list, Tohill said he could not let such talk bother him.

"As long as I'm working, I'm working," he said. "And when they tell me I'm not, I'm not. I'm going to do the best I can while I am here."

Texas kept its conference record clean last week with a fairly easy 42-6 thrashing of Baylor. Texas Tech's win over TCU put the Red Raiders in second place by itself since Arkansas was upset by Rice, 17-7.

Texas A&M produced perhaps the biggest surprise of the conference season with its win over SMU. It was not so much the fact that A&M won that was the surprise, but it was the way the Aggies did it—45-10.

While TCU is trying to figure out how to cope with Texas this week, Texas Tech will entertain Baylor and then probably accept an invitation to a bowl game. Texas A&M will travel to Rice and SMU and Arkansas will both try to rebound when they meet in Dallas.

Dallas Remains Tied For Lead After 23-10 Win Over Giants

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UPI)—When you've lost seven games in a row, you're not exactly surprised when things go wrong.

"I think subconsciously we're asking ourselves what's going to happen next," quarterback Randy Johnson said Sunday after the New York Giants suffered a 23-10 loss to the Dallas Cowboys.

What happened to the Giants Sunday was that the Cowboys intercepted four passes, recovered two fumbles, and blocked both a punt and a field goal attempt.

Popein Pleased After 5-2 Win Over Islanders

By United Press International
Larry Popein, the dour coach of the New York Rangers, allowed himself the trace of a smile and just a little bit of optimism.

"I was very happy with the game," he said Sunday night, referring to the Rangers' 5-2 victory over the Islanders.

"What I liked about it is that we took 57 shots on the Islanders' goal."

Small wonder. The Rangers, off to a very poor start, had been playing like they wanted to beat Sonja Henie's figure skating records but had been forgetting to put the puck in the net.

Rod Gilbert scored two goals, the 273rd and 274th of his career to set a new club record and pace the Rangers' bombardment. His second goal turned out to be the winner as the Rangers kept the pressure on the Islanders all the way.

Browns Belt Oilers 2nd Straight Game

HOUSTON (UPI)—Coach Nick Skorich warned his stumbling Cleveland Browns last week he would discard some players unless they boosted their performance.

"I don't know what effect it had," Skorich said. Quarterback Mike Phipps did.

"It didn't have any effect," he said. "The motivation was we couldn't afford a loss. If a guy's motivation for playing is fear he will lose his job then he just does not belong here."

Thus the Browns pulled themselves together and dumped Houston 23-13, boosting their record to 5-3-1 and holding 2 1/2 games behind AFC Central Division leader Pittsburgh.

Cleveland beat Houston 42-13 three weeks ago but tied San Diego and fell to Minnesota before the rematch.

"We won it, but it wasn't too good," Skorich said. "We couldn't afford another loss and stay in the division race. I think we prepared and played that way."

The Browns erupted for 17 points in the first quarter while holding error-ridden Houston to minus nine yards.

The next time the Giants got the ball, they had a second and 10 on the Giant 28 when Johnson was called for intentionally grounding the ball.

"I don't like to criticize the official, but it was a ridiculous call," said Johnson. "I had Bob Tucker open and I was throwing to him when I was hit from behind and the ball hit the ground."

The call put the Giants back to the Cowboy 43 and two plays later, Jethro Pugh blocked a Pete Gogolak field goal attempt to set up the Cowboys' second touchdown on Walt Garrison's one-yard run. That just about wrapped up the game for the Cowboys.

Dallas coach Tom Landry said, "he has a great feel for the ball. He's a smart player. He doesn't have the most natural ability in the world but he makes up for it with desire."

last week he would discard some players unless they boosted their performance.

"I don't know what effect it had," Skorich said. Quarterback Mike Phipps did.

"It didn't have any effect," he said. "The motivation was we couldn't afford a loss. If a guy's motivation for playing is fear he will lose his job then he just does not belong here."

Thus the Browns pulled themselves together and dumped Houston 23-13, boosting their record to 5-3-1 and holding 2 1/2 games behind AFC Central Division leader Pittsburgh.

Cleveland beat Houston 42-13 three weeks ago but tied San Diego and fell to Minnesota before the rematch.

"We won it, but it wasn't too good," Skorich said. "We couldn't afford another loss and stay in the division race

'No-Limit' Poker Game

President Nixon seems to have been pleased with his ability to act during the Mideast crisis. An exchange of notes between himself and the Soviet's party boss Leonid Brezhnev, we are told prevented a confrontation of Russian and American military forces in the war zone.

Naturally, we are also pleased that the nation is not involved in a new war to the extent the recent threat suggested.

But we think that situation should be examined from a different point of view.

To be fair, the role Mr. Nixon has played has been thrust upon him by the historical shift of power from the Congress to the Executive Branch, and too many taxpayers, we fear, are not keenly aware that the rules of the game have changed.

Mr. Nixon's action could be compared with a chief operating officer of a company who revealed to his stockholders that he had bet all the company's assets on a poker hand, and the other guy didn't call.

"See how lucky you are?" The chilling aspect of such a revelation is the obvious question, "What if the bluff didn't work?"

Who authorized the President to play poker with the company assets?

This sends us back to our earlier discussions of the U.S. Constitution and to our contention that the political government of this nation has escaped the chains of the Constitution.

Do not take our word for it — read the Constitution. It is written in simple language when discussing the powers of the President.

Article II, Section 2 contains the only reference to the military powers of the President. "The President shall

In short, it is the mood of Thanksgiving. In the struggle, in the rivalry, in the competition, there is room for laughter, for joy, for the word of encouragement.

What do you wish to receive, that is what you give — a word of assurance, of comfort, of greeting, tied up in a smile of recognition.

To be sure, you, your neighbor, we — the whole country — have problems.

Is Media The Target Or System?

By BRUCE BLOSSAT WASHINGTON (NEA) —

White House spokesmen assailing former Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox and his 50-lawyer staff as a "get the President" partisan army are coming close to a broad attack upon the whole U.S. judicial process.

Moreover, the assault is fraught with inconsistencies and inaccuracies.

For instance, presidential aide Patrick Buchanan, detailing for newsmen what he and President Nixon himself consider unbalanced Watergate coverage by hostile media representatives, said a leading Eastern newspaper never had exposed the partisan character of Cox's staff.

Buchanan really went further, seeming to argue that no responsible journalists in the press or television had done the job. In fact, a major newspaper group with important big city outlets turned out a long article laying out not only Cox's own well-known Democratic leanings and ties to the Kennedy family, but establishing that many of his staff once had worked for the late Robert Kennedy when he was U.S. Attorney General.

At least one other highly respected journal made clear the background of "Cox's army."

But the vital thing here is what follows from this. Are the President and Buchanan and other White House aides contending that the consequence of this political coloration would inevitably have been a series of "partisan" indictments and "partisan" trials?

Let's look at the process in its end-stage, in the courtroom. Judges and juries are committed by the rigid strictures of the law to weigh all matters solely on the basis of provable evidence. If the evidence does not support the charge, their duty is simple: to acquit.

Any judge who himself accepted tainted evidence or allowed a jury to hear it would presumably find the court's verdict in a given case reversed for error either by an appeals court or, if the issue had the requisite magnitude, the U.S. Supreme Court.

Reminded that evidence, not political partisanship, is supposed to govern in a court of law, Buchanan responded by saying that partisan prosecutors could nevertheless obtain indictments if not convictions, and that indictments can ruin men for their entire lives.

Now, admittedly, we are living in a super-heated atmosphere where, unhappily, in the confused minds of many Americans (including some public figures) the indictment, a mere charge, is taken as proof of guilt.

But no government official, particularly one like Buchanan speaking for Mr. Nixon's self-proclaimed "law and order" regime, should be arguing that indictments by grand juries are ruinous proclamations of guilt. On principle, which Buchanan should be upholding, they are only declarations that enough evidence exists to warrant trial.

Furthermore, Buchanan really is attacking the system. He implies grand juries are oddly vulnerable to partisan prosecutors' presentations. They are indeed imperfect, but so far no substitute for them has been devised.

One last matter. Forget Cox's army. Assistant Attorney General Henry Petersen told the Senate Watergate committee that if he'd just been "left alone," the Justice department — without Cox — could soon have won some key Watergate indictments.

Petersen, no "partisan" in Mr. Nixon's eyes, is still on the job. He seems to have integrity. Would not indictments coming from his work have to be judged equally ruinous by the Nixon-Buchanan standards?

Congressman Gross: It's Time To Stop Spending

By H.R. GROSS Iowa Congressman

WASHINGTON — With the wholesale price index jumping 6.2 per cent in August or at the incredible annual rate of 74.4 per cent, President Nixon is still groping and floundering in his so-called war against inflation.

In his recent radio speech to the nation and what was prescribed as his "Second State of the Union Message", the President called on Congress to:

Fight inflation by refusing to increase spending for domestic programs. BUT SUPPORT HIS SPENDING BUDGETS FOR DEFENSE AND FOREIGN AID.

The President has called for the spending of $81.1 BILLION in this fiscal year for the Defense Department — an increase over last year of $5 BILLION, and $18 BILLION in all its ramifications for foreign aid — also an increase of about $5 BILLION.

Nixon also called for a "special revenue sharing" plan for aid to schools, community development and manpower training although he well knows the federal government has no revenue, special or otherwise, except that which is obtained from interest bearing debt, to share with the schools or for any other purpose.

Then President Nixon went out of his way to call on Congress to enact legislation validating conversion of the nation's system of weights and measures to the metric system — in other words from yards, quarts and pounds to meters, liters and kilograms. It is estimated such a conversion would cost citizens of this country 40 to 60 BILLION DOLLARS, and this at a time when the administration professes to be trying to hold down costs both to individuals and in government!

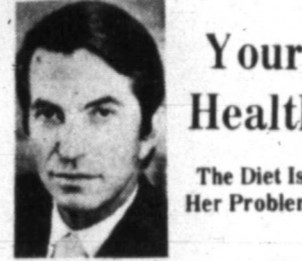

The demand for this conversion, with its enormous costs, all of which will be paid by the ultimate consumers and in the midst of controls designed to protect consumers from rocketing costs, is utterly inexplicable.

In making it clear as he has, that his request for $81.1 BILLION for spending on the military, and $18 BILLION for spending on the foreign handout program is sacred and must not be cut, the President is treading on dangerous ground. The war in Vietnam is over and there can be reasonable cuts in military spending.

As for foreign aid, it is time to stop flim-flamming the public with the absurd and long-discredited hokum that this government can buy its way around the world. We have already spent almost $250 BILLION in that soft-headed belief. Billions should be sliced from the foreign aid programs this year and a definite course charted to end all of it in the next two years.

Meanwhile, and as this newsletter is written, a trial balloon has been floated by the White House to sample the climate for a tax increase. Details are lacking but it appears the proposal is for a "temporary" 10% income tax increase with the money thus collected to be returned to the taxpayers in two or three years when, hopefully, inflation will have been halted.

As we have previously noted in these columns, Lyndon Johnson once enticed Congress into approving a 10% surtax in exchange for which he promised to cut federal spending 5 to 10 billion dollars. Lyndon got the extra revenue but the spending cuts are still to come and Lyndon is no longer among us.

Your Health The Diet Is Her Problem

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I've been putting off writing this letter for some time now out of fear. I'm afraid of what might be wrong with me.

The problem is much too complicated to explain in detail, but I am a girl, almost 18. Recently I dieted and lost 20 to 25 pounds on my own. I paid attention to nutrition and proper exercise, but I wasn't under medical supervision. I have absolutely no idea if the loss of weight has anything to do with my problem, but I'd like to know that I have been on a diet while this was happening.

I haven't had my menstrual period for over six months (I'm not pregnant). I've become irritable, tired, depressed and my legs and soles of my feet hurt so much sometimes I can barely walk. I don't know what is wrong. I've not mentioned this to anyone yet. Right now I just want to know what to do. If I were 45 years old, I might believe I was going through the menopause, but I'm only 17, so I'm worried that it might be a disease or possibly a type of cancer. I'm terrified, doctor. Please, please write and tell me what is wrong. I'm so scared and worried I can't sleep half the time, and I feel like crying or something.

DEAR READER — You are pretty good at making a diagnosis. Probably most of your problems are related to that do-it-yourself diet program you have been on. There are a lot of problems caused by dieting. I'm one of the strongest proponents for staying slim and preventing obesity, but not by measures that can and will destroy your health.

The longer I write this column and see people, the more convinced I am that most of the public hasn't the foggiest idea of how much trouble they can cause themselves with ill-advised diet programs. Unfortunately some of these programs are advised on a nationwide scale.

In 1950 Dr. Ancel Keys and his group at the University of Minnesota studied young, healthy people by putting them on a 1600 calorie diet. They lost weight and lost their hair fell out. There were personality changes, very much like you now describe. Almost all seemed withdrawn, irritable and old before their time.

That is only the beginning. It took six months for most of them to regain their health, after starting on a high calorie diet and rehabilitation program. Mind you, all of these problems occurred while eating 1600 calories a day of a pretty good diet, no doubt much better than the one you have been on.

The first thing I would advise is that you begin at once to eat a good nutritious diet, in accordance with your appetite. Then see a doctor to be sure you don't have any other problems. I would think, though, that with a good, sound, nutrition program directed toward regaining your health, plenty of vitamins, and protein that you could regain your old zest for living in a few months. I hope your letter reminds many others that food is the source of your energy and health.

Inside Washington

Officers Fight to Get Rejuvenation for Gets By Robert S. Allen

Opponents Want Nixon to Quit — Impeachment a Risky Course WASHINGTON — The strategy and aim of the "get Nixon" cabal is now clearly evident.

It is to impel the President to give up and quit — not to impeach him.

The uproarious impeachment clamor and furor are part of the fierce drumfire of agitation and propaganda to "psych" and pressure him out of office by his own resignation.

If the President "toughs it out" and withstands this venomous onslaught, impeachment may be resorted to. But only as a last recourse — because it is a protracted and complex procedure, with a definitely uncertain outcome for the would-be impeachers as well as their intended victim.

A long, drawn-out impeachment operation could be devastatingly boomerang — a stark possibility fully realized by top Democratic leaders, if not by their political, ideological and other extremist allies out to "get Nixon" at all cost.

That's why Democratic chiefs are so insistently stressing the resignation theme, while ostensibly going through the motions of gearing for impeachment.

Actually, they are leery of embarking on impeachment and behind the scenes are uneasily trying to control and restrain the loud-mouthed and demagogic firebrands and extremists frothingly itching for a public lynching — such as Reps. Robert Drinan, D-Mass., leftist Jesuit priest; Jerome Waldie, D-Calif., candidate for governor who never misses an opportunity to grab for a headline by excoriating the President; and John Seiberling, D-Ohio, who has made a career of castigating the President.

The trio are members of the House Judiciary Committee, which under the floundering and biased chairmanship of Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N.J., is already displaying flagrant partisanship and prejudice against the President.

If and when this Democratic-controlled committee (21 Democrats, 17 Republicans) does initiate impeachment, it's a foregone conclusion the hearings will be covert and secret. Rodino, Drinan, Waldie, Seiberling, Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., and other hotrods will do their utmost to see that — all the while craftily leaking headline-making sensations to friendly media.

That's why responsible House and Senate Democratic leaders are fervently hoping that somehow the President can be induced to resign.

How It's Being Done Significant indication of this was Sen. Ted Kennedy's little-noticed admonition that there must be no stalling on the confirmation of Vice President-designate Gerald Ford.

This pointed comment was aimed squarely at Rodino and his ultra-partisan committee.

Kennedy is a member of the Senate Judiciary Committee, and his attitude is in striking contrast to Rodino's flabby dawdling and stalling. He has yet to start hearings on Ford. The Newark politico's alibi is that he is awaiting an FBI report, which actually has been in his hands about a week.

However, it's doubtful he has personally gone over it. It was turned over to his staff — which has been considerably enlarged in the last few weeks.

Rodino is the last man to pass up an opportunity for a juicy patronage grab.

Like other party chiefs, Kennedy is wary of impeachment. At the least it would take months during which a lot of things could happen — including partisan and other excesses by militant and activist elements.

That's why Kennedy is stressing the resignation line, and counseling speedy approval of Ford — on the theory that would help "persuade" the President to quit.

Meanwhile, one reason you are reading and hearing so much about impeachment is that much of it is deliberately organized and manipulated propaganda — "get Nixon" agitation.

A graphic illustration of that was revealed by Martin Dyckman in the Miami Herald.

The reporter disclosed that "aides to consumer advocate Ralph Nader were campaigning nationwide for President Nixon's impeachment, employing congressional telephones to stir up public pressure on Congress."

As related by the newsmen, a "Geoffrey Leeds" admitted using the office and telephone of Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., militant radical and dove, to drum up telegrams, mail and other messages to members of Congress urging impeachment of the President.

Dyckman quotes Leeds as saying, "We are asking citizens to call their Congressmen and their offices and to telegraph them to support impeachment measures."

The newsmen also reported "the Nader volunteers apparently were calling people whose names appear on lists of the consumer crusader."

When Mimi Barker, press secretary of Rep. Schroeder, was asked about the propriety of using her congressional phone for this agitational purpose, she replied she didn't "consider the activity a misuse of taxpayers' money because that day was a government holiday and the phones were not needed for official business."

"We've let other groups use these phones," Miss Barker is quoted as telling Dyckman. "It's not costing taxpayers any more doing that."

Also revealed by the loquacious and ingenious Miss Barker was that "Nader volunteers are using at least a half-dozen other congressional telephones" in the same manner.

Rep. Schroeder is a member of the Armed Services Committee, where she has been in the forefront of opposing major weapons developments and clamoring for drastic pruning of defense expenditures.

Another example of the resign-or-be-impeached line is the blast of Rep. Donald Riegle, Mich., elected Republican who flipped to the Democrats early this year — to no enthusiasm on their part. When Riegle announced intention of doing that, Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, chairman of the Administration Committee, took the House floor and bluntly urged the GOP to keep Riegle.

"We don't want him" snapped Hays, noted for his razor tongue.

Assailing the President, Riegle called on him to resign "on the day Vice President-designate Ford is officially confirmed in that office."

Men's wear

Even underwear gets printed this fall

By WALTER LOGAN
NEW YORK (UPI) — It has been said that Fall 1973 is the season of bow ties, suits with vests and camel hair coats. It is also the season of printed fabrics, and this goes for everything from the bow ties to jazzy underwear.

The American Printed Fabrics Council attributes this upswing in prints to the theory that when men feel secure about the prospects of steady employment and continued prosperity they show a propensity for flamboyance in color and design.

And flamboyant sports shirts are only the beginning of the print boom. Printed fabrics appear in neckties, dress shirts, underwear, slacks, especially printed corduroy, caftans for wear at home, sports jackets, evening wear.

Another factor is that the United States, never a country to worry too much about tomorrow, enjoys a "disposable view" about its apparel. This is exaggerated when money is easy to come by and if a man tires of his flamboyant sports shirt he hangs it up in the closet and goes out and buys something he likes better.

Another reason for the popularity of prints is that they respond quickly to the slightest shifts in color and pattern tastes. Plaids happen to be in favor at the moment but it is not necessary to wait till some mill weaves them—they can be printed almost at once.

This ends the long wait between the time a man saw something advertised for sale and the actual time he could buy it. And color communications in newspapers, magazines and television help whet the appetite.

Fall 1973 is also the season for color in men's wear and some designers have cast inhibitions to the wind. There is a color and pattern explosion in some garments—and printed fabrics to bring back the looks of the past in other.

The biggest changes have been in the sports shirts, which have gone from a reasonably dull look to something else again. Now they are in florals, stripes, abstract patterns, classic paisleys and traditional heraldic designs of the old school tie vintage.

It is true to a somewhat lesser degree in dress shirts where you can find prints interspersed with woven patterns—in plaids, in checks, in stripes, in dots, and in heraldics. And with these come printed ties, in even more patterns. And more of them are bow ties. Oddly enough printed slacks are one of the big items this fall. Plaids printed on corduroy are almost undetectable from more expensive woven woollens. And the same idea carries over into sports jackets, sports shirts, short golfing or baseball jackets.

For formal wear the prints show up in evening jackets printed in paisley or other classic designs, worn with the traditional black trousers and shoes. For the more uninhibited there are floral prints on mohair fabrics.

There is a growing demand for caftan type clothes to be worn around the house for lounging and even for party wear. These appear in batiks, Hindu patterns, paisley, moire stripes and sporting designs.

Perhaps the biggest use of prints come in what the clothing business calls "fashion underwear"—briefs or boxers printed in wild and colorful patterns and with T shirts to match. The most popular designs are abstracts and geometrics.
