500 Commies Die in Vicious Viet Nam Battle

SAIGON (UPI) — Heavy fighting raged across South Viet Nam during the weekend with American, Vietnamese and allied forces killing an estimated 500 Communists in three separate actions, military spokesmen reported today.

U. S. paratroopers fighting for the first time in the Communist controlled Mekong Delta killed 111 Communists and captured 89 Viet-Cong and 502 suspects in day-long fighting Sunday south of Saigon.

An allied strike force continued to hammer at two battalions of enemy troops near the Cambodian border. They were joined later by Australian and New Zealand units.

Large Number Killed
At least 160 Viet Cong were claimed killed in joint Vietnamese-South Korean operations which began Saturday 225 miles northeast of Saigon.

On Sunday, elements of the U. S. 173rd Airborne Brigade dropped by helicopter under heavy fire into landing zones softened by air strikes and artillery.

During the fighting U. S. helicopters sprayed Viet Cong concentrations with non-lethal tear gas. This accounted for a large part of the hundreds of suspects rounded up during Sunday's drive.

The undeclared U. S. truce in the air war over Communist North Viet Nam began its 11th day tonight, unbroken since 6 p. m. Christmas Eve. The Hanoi regime, however, charged today the major U. S. "peace offensive" aimed at bringing about negotiations was "deceitful and hypocritical."

First U. S. Swamp Force
The Mekong Delta fighting was in the Plain of Reeds near the Cambodian frontier, where the Viet Cong are attempting to foil harvesting of a vital rice crop. The 173rd Brigade is the first U. S. ground unit to be sent on a combat operation in the swamp country, although advisers have fought individually.

Weather Due To Begin Slow Warm-Up

Shivering Pampans enduring Monday morning temperatures in the 20s might have found it hard to believe, but the weatherman said it would be fair and warmer Monday with a high near 50.

The warming trend was predicted to continue through Wednesday, but night temperatures would still be below freezing, the weatherman said.

Tonight the mercury was scheduled to drop almost as low as last night — into the mid 20s. Tuesday it was expected to rise to the mid-50s.

Freezing weather gripped most of Texas today and touched off showers along the Gulf Coast.

Virtually all of Northwestern Texas shivered in temperatures that dipped into the 20s and low 30s after a mass of Canadian air blew in.

Jarvis announced for the position of Precinct 2 Commissioner.

Jarvis, who has not yet filed his official candidacy, will seek the post now being held by Clyde Organ.

College Students May Be Called To Meet Draft Need

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Draft Director Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey said today the Selective Service System may have to tap the college classroom to meet the manpower demands of a steadily rising U. S. commitment in Viet Nam.

The number of college students who may be called will depend on Defense Department needs, Hershey said. College students have not been called for military service as draftees thus far.

In a copyright interview in U. S. News & World Report, Hershey said that continuation of present manpower demands would mean some full time students might be drafted.

Another source of manpower that may be tapped are "all those people in reserve units who aren't doing anything," Hershey said.

"I'm not trying to get anyone from these priority outfits," he said, referring to units chosen for an early call-up in an (See DRAFT, Page 3)

Three Million Have No Transportation

NEW YORK (UPI) — The first strike in history to stall this city's 1,000-mile subway-bus transit system delivered its full impact during the morning rush hour today. Thousands of workers apparently heeded official advice to stay at home and a major traffic crisis was averted.

Before he took off on a helicopter survey of the city's congested expressways and streets Mayor John V. Lindsay was advised by his traffic and police commissioners that the city had weathered the inbound commuter crush "in very good shape."

Lindsay withheld a final decision on imposing strict traffic control sanctions but officials were amazed at the swiftness with which early traffic congestion was cleared.

Unstruck commuter railroads also handled heavier than normal loads with no serious delays reported.

Despite the less than expected hardship on the first business day of the strike, Traffic Commissioner Henry A. Barnes said the city weathered the inbound crush on its roadway, bridge and tunnel system "much better than contemplated." But, he warned, this does not mean the crisis is over.

"We don't know what will happen later today or tomorrow," he said.

Lindsay, who walked four miles to City Hall before sunup to take command of the first crisis of his new administration, had repeatedly urged non-essential workers to stay at home. Even as the inbound rush mounted today, he repeated the plea and asked those already en route to "turn your car around."

His pleas apparently were taken far more seriously than city officials had dared to hope. But even with the first crisis past the city was far from settling the unprecedented strike of 36,000 transit workers which — Forced three million plus (See STRIKE, Page 3)

LBJ Says Major Task in '66 Will Be Viet Peace

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson feels the founding of a world consensus, rooted in the belief that war can benefit no nation, will be the major task for all nations in 1966.

He sees 1965 as a good year in which his administration's achievements at home and abroad were overshadowed by the frustrations and failures of the search for peace in Viet Nam.

Domestically, the tasks of 1966 will center on continuation of the Great Society programs, the foundations of which were built in the last session of Congress.

Abroad, the President hopes to find the paths along which the world may take the slow deliberate steps toward the consensus he feels Americans reached during 1965.

In broad terms, these are the president's feelings as described by a high White House source this weekend, shortly before Johnson left his Texas ranch to return to Washington.

While the failure to find peace in Viet Nam was perhaps the President's greatest disappointment in 1965, he was said to feel that the United States had showed great restraint in the face of extreme provocation.

Johnson feels that 1965 was, on balance, a pretty good year for the moderates in foreign PI 2-36. Another Holiday present level of skill, that our transportation system is no longer adequate to the demands that we place on it," the spokesman said.

Another Holiday Death Record Set

By United Press International
The nation's motorists started the new year in an old way. They broke another holiday traffic death record.

Records were set last year on every major holiday, with the more than 720 deaths during Christmas surpassing any previous holiday traffic death count.

Drivers started 1966 on the same tragic course, breaking last year's New Year's record of 474 highway deaths.

With late reports still coming in today, a United Press International count showed at least 538 persons were killed in traffic accidents between 6 p. m. local time Thursday and midnight Sunday.

The breakdown:
Traffic 538
Fires 52
Planes 12
Miscellaneous 54
Total 656

Ohio led the rush to a record with 46 traffic deaths. California was close behind with 45. New York had 40, Michigan 30 and Illinois 29.

A Alaska, Idaho, Nevada, Rhode Island and South Dakota escaped the holiday without a single recorded highway fatality.

"It's clear the nation can't depend on more horror to terrify drivers into safe highway behavior," a spokesman for the National Safety Council said.

Rep. Charles L. Weltner, D-Ga., says the Committee has the legal weapons to eventually get those lists.

"But we already have a good idea of the identities of a great many rank-and-file members," he added.

"I'm certain a great many of them are most anxious to keep their neighbors from knowing that they are members of the KKK. It's because they sense what is a fact, that southern communities view violence and terror with abhorrence."

Steel Increase Hinges on Follow By Other Makers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Johnson administration's drive to force a rollback of Bethlehem Steel Corp.'s price hikes hinged today on what the nation's other big steel companies decide to do.

Administration officials, while hinting at possible government retaliation against Bethlehem, were hoping that no other company would follow Bethlehem's lead in raising prices on structural shapes and piling steel by $5 a ton.

Bethlehem's unexpected action, announced last Friday, stunned administration economists who labeled it "unwarranted" and possibly inflationary.

President Johnson personally entered the fray, issuing a statement from his Texas ranch Saturday asking that Bethlehem reconsider its action in light of "the impact of unnecessary price gain against the sacrifices of our men in Viet Nam."

House to Open Probe of Violent Actions of KKK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional investigators plan to focus on the violent side of the Ku Klux Klan when the wide-ranging inquiry into the "invisible empire" resumes this week.

During the first phase of the investigation by the House Committee on Un-American Activities late last year, the emphasis was on allegations that assorted kleagles, wizards and the like were pocketing some of the dues and donation money to make life more comfortable for themselves.

But, beginning Tuesday, the committee plans to survey states where there has been more racial violence— notably Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama. The states covered last year were North and South Carolina, Virginia and Georgia.

Committee investigators believe they know the identities of "a great many" rank-and-file members of the Klan and may make them public when the new hearings begin.

To do so, according to one member of the committee, would be a grievous blow to the secret organization.

Rep. Charles L. Weltner, D-Ga., says the Committee has the legal weapons to eventually get those lists.

"But we already have a good idea of the identities of a great many rank-and-file members," he added.

"I'm certain a great many of them are most anxious to keep their neighbors from knowing that they are members of the KKK. It's because they sense what is a fact, that southern communities view violence and terror with abhorrence."

Russians Appear Ready to Ax Red China and Mao Tse-Tung

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Russian emissaries in Europe, Latin America and Asia— according to western intelligence — are quietly preparing an international conference that will read Mao Tse-tung out of the Communist movement.

This may be one of the reasons why Moscow trouble-shooter Aleksandr Shelepin undertook his mission to Hanoi. While in the Far East, Shelepin is likely to make one final effort to bring the Chinese to reason.

A conference to "excommunicate" Mao was originally proposed by Nikita Khrushchev shortly before he was ousted as Soviet premier. However, his successors in the Kremlin decided to play down their conflict with Peking obviously in the hope that they could still come to terms with Mao.

For 14 months after Khrushchev's fall, Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev and Premier Alexse Kosigin stubbornly refused to retaliate to the invective Peking never tired of hurling in their direction. Despite Red China's harsh onslaught on Moscow, no criticism of Peking appeared in any Soviet newspaper and no angry retort was directed at Mao.

What changed the situation—in the view of specialists on communism—is the war in Viet Nam.

There is increasing evidence that the Russians and their east European satellites no longer believe in a Communist victory. As they see it, prolongation of the Vietnamese conflict will only serve to undermine Communist influence in the underdeveloped nations of Latin America, Asia and Africa.

As usual, deep secrecy shrouds Moscow's anti-Chinese moves. But much vital information to supplement the intelligence reports can be gleaned from the current rash of anti-Communist statements by the Russians themselves and by their east European satellites.

Poland's official newspaper

Trybuna Ludu just launched a strong attack on the Chinese Communist party for rejecting Soviet suggestions for working out a common plan to help North Viet Nam.

Until this attack, Poland was officially at least neutral in the Moscow-Peking conflict. The harsh tone and language of Trybuna's editorial clearly indicate that even the cautious Poles have given up any hope of ever coming to terms with the present leaders of China.

Trybuna was referring specifically to Mao's argument that joint Russian-Chinese action in Viet Nam would mean "drawing Viet Nam into the orbit of Soviet-American co-operation."

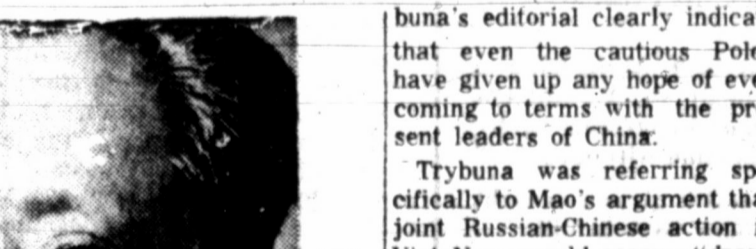

Such statements by the Red Chinese "are extremely provocative," the Polish editorial warned.

Equally significant was the unprecedented castigation of Red China by Neues Deutschland, mouthpiece of East Germany. Quoting from secret letters exchanged between Peking and Moscow, Neues Deutschland charged that China "refused transit of Russian aid to the Viet 'ong.' It also said that Mao, who fears Soviet influence in

Olen's Tune-up and Brake Service Offers First Class Auto Repair

Olen's Tune-Up Brake and Electric, 310 N. Ward, can put your car in top running order... does your car shimmy and shake, do the tires show uneven wear? If these things are true, then you need to see Olen's right away. Unaligned tires can cause excessive wear that will reduce your tires life by two whole years. Tires that are wearing unevenly, also endanger your family's life. As your tires are being dragged sideways, heat is being built up and that is just asking for a blow-out. Heat is the biggest villain as far as your tire is concerned, more heat than about any other factor and when this is minimized you are increasing the life of your tires.

It is estimated that 7 out of 10 cars have out of align front ends. Come in today and have Olen check your front end with the Alemite Cross-Sight Wheel Aligner, which will show Olen just what is needed to put your car back in to first class condition.

To eliminate all guess-work as to the performance of your engine, have Olen's Tune-Up and Brake test your car on the Dyna-Vision Analyzer. This electronic test instrument will analyze your engine and show the problems on a TV screen. Olen will find out just what is wrong in no time and when he has made the final adjustments... a perfect tune-up job will be the results. Old fashioned tune-up methods are out of date. The trial and error method has been replaced by this surer method, and it saves you money too. Stop in at Olen's Tune-up Brake & Electric at 310 N. Ward and let Olen put your car back into First Class Running Condition.

Foreign Commentary

By JOHN A. CALLCOTT
United Press International
GENEVA (UPI)—Although the Russians agreed to resume the 17-nation disarmament conference early this year, the chances are slim they will allow the talks to make any meaningful progress.

The conference meets again Jan. 27. France, theoretically the 18th participant, will be ignoring it as it has done ever since the conference first began in 1961.

Preventing more nations acquiring nuclear weapons is again at the top of the agenda. Nuclear non-proliferation is considered by both the United States and the Soviet Union to be the most vital problem facing the world. Agreement sets right there, however.

Moscow last year rejected Washington's non-proliferation proposal because of Western plans to create a NATO nuclear force. The Russians claim such a force would amount to proliferation.

Sets Conditions
Although the West now has no firm plans for any such force, Russia has made it clear she will continue to reject any non-proliferation agreement unless all talk-stops of nuclear sharing arrangements within NATO.

West Germany, accused by Moscow of trying to get control over nuclear weapons, wants a larger say in NATO nuclear strategy. Washington agrees with this desire, but no one is in any hurry to work out a solution.

What Washington refuses to do is to let Moscow, in effect, dictate Western military strategy by having NATO relinquish the right to share nuclear planning among member nations if and when it wants to, more more more.

Thus, the non-proliferation issue is deadlocked even before the conference resumes and as yet no one sees a way to reach a compromise.

The other major issue is the banning of underground nuclear tests—the only ones permitted after the 1963 partial test ban agreement.

Refuses Inspection
Moscow, however, still rejects any form of on-site inspection which the West says is necessary to prevent cheating. Thus, few officials—either from the four Western participants, the eight neutrals or the five Communist states for that session will produce new agreements.

But all participants agree that it is at least one accomplishment to hold talks at all in view of the Viet Nam War.

Last year, Moscow refused to permit a resumption until July because of Viet Nam. Instead they convened the entire United Nations Disarmament Commission to use as a platform for anti-American propaganda.

This year despite the fact that Viet Nam fighting has intensified, Moscow agreed to resumption right at the beginning of the year.

Western officials expect the usual Soviet outbursts against American action in Viet Nam before the conference settles down.

Don't Be One of Millions Who Overpay Uncle Sam Cut Your Own Income Taxes

By RAY DE CRANE
NEA Special Writer
Refunds should be back in vogue again this year.

While filing an income tax return is never an event looked forward to with great expectancy, this year's task should not be the nightmare experience shared by so many a year ago.

The Revenue Act of 1964 cut the tax rate in two stages. Two-thirds of the cut was effective in 1964; the other third applies to income received in 1965.

And for all of 1965 the withholding tax cut was too deep to match the tax rate reduction. Consequently, many who had been accustomed to a refund had to make a payment in April 1965 and others found the tax due to be far greater than they had anticipated.

Reduction in the rates—in the lowest bracket the rate has been trimmed from 16 per cent to 14 per cent (a 12 1/2 per cent cut)—is just one of the many changes affecting 1965 earnings.

Persons who have stock investments will find new rules for the accounting of their dividends. The first $100 in dividends is excludable from income. If a husband and wife are filing a joint return and each has dividend income or they own stock jointly it is possible for them to receive $200 in tax-free dividends.

After this initial reduction the dividends are fully taxable. Formerly there had been a dividend credit. For example, prior to 1964, if $500 in dividends received, $100 was excluded on a joint return. The balance of $400 received a 4 per cent tax credit of $16. This amount was subtracted from the total income tax due figure. A year ago this credit was reduced to 2 per cent. In 1965 it disappeared

We will try to reduce both types of errors by giving completed examples to follow and the information to help you determine your own detailed deductions.

Remember, tax savings are come tax returns will be helpful in filing a correct return.

Most of the situations confronting the average wage earner and salaried employee will be explained in the series of which this article is the first. There will be suggestions for the salesman or professional man who uses his car in his work and who has travel and entertainment expenses.

The small investor who receives dividends and who may have sold some of his holdings will be advised on his accounting problems. So, too, will the Four Trampled When Holiday Dancers Panic

NUNEATON, England (UPI)—Four holiday revelers—a teenager girl and three men—were trampled to death Friday night when panic turned a New Year's Eve dance into a stampede of terror. Six other persons were injured seriously.

It was a half-hour before midnight when a mob of dancers suddenly bolted down stair case leading from a dance floor here. Some reports said the crowd surged down the stairs when one man fainted in the middle of the stairway. A section of handrail on the stair was ripped from its bolts as the dancers piled atop each other.

Police still were questioning witnesses Saturday to determine exactly what caused the panic in the co-operative hall of this town 97 miles northwest of London. The Hall, meanwhile, was closed by police.

One of the injured, a youth of 20, was admitted to a hospital in shock. Another youth required 64 stitches to close an arm cut.

Police said the mob scene was caused by "sheer weight of numbers" and not by rowdiness. Police said there was no evidence of a fight precipitating the panic nor drunkenness. Police said the 900-person capacity of the dance hall had not been exceeded.

One witness said, "there was a terrific stampede and all hell broke loose."

A teen-age girl who escaped serious injury said she was walking down the stairs with

Last year nearly three million taxpayers made mistakes on their returns which were caught by Internal Revenue's electronic computers.

There is no way of knowing how many persons overpaid their taxes because they failed to take advantage of tax-saving opportunities or were unaware of all their proper deductions.

ner boy friend when she was shoved.

Then, she said, "people were shouting and screaming and scrambling to get over me."

An 18-year-old boy said, "I was knocked all over the place. I tried to help some girls but collapsed and nearly suffocated as I was trampled on, and the girls were screaming because they were getting crushed."

Police said the four victims were trampled and suffocated. An inquest was expected to be held next week.

Rex Calvert, promoter of the dance, told police there were six exits from dance floor. "It's fantastic that a thing like this could happen," he said.

Junior Stock Show Scheduled March 7-9

The Top O' Texas Junior Livestock Show, sponsored by the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, will be held March 7, 8 and 9 at the Gray County Barn and Show Arena.

Rules and regulations governing the contest were sent out Monday to all county agents teachers in the six counties included in the show — Gray, Carson, Roberts, Ochiltree, Hemphill and Wheeler.

It is expected that 100 fat steers and 200 fat barrows will be exhibited this year. Nine cash prizes in each steer category will be paid by the Chamber of Commerce.

Three cash prizes will be paid in each of 12 classes of hogs. Steer judge will be Doug Wythe of the Animal Husbandry Department, Texas A&M. Barrows will be judged by L. M. Hargrove, professor of agriculture, Texas Tech.

The ToT Show will be preceded on March 5 by the Gray County Livestock Show, sponsored by the Pampa Lions Club. Judging of stock will be accomplished on March 7, with stock sale scheduled for March 9.

The Top o' Texas Hereford Breeders Show and Sale will be held in conjunction with the ToT Junior Livestock Show. Sixty head of registered Herefords are expected to be shown.

Herefords will be judged by Charlie Kyd, Three Forks, Mont.

In addition the Future Farmers of America Livestock judging competition for Area I will be conducted during the ToT Show. Fifty judging teams are expected to enter from the Panhandle area.

New facilities for the show, in the just-completed $28,000 addition to the County Barn, will make for a bigger and better show this year. E. O. "Red" Wedgworth, Chamber of Commerce manager, said.

He pointed out that there are excellent new kitchen and dining room facilities and that new stall facilities will permit better display of entries. For the first time, cattle and hogs will be in separate areas.

Actor Anthony Quinn Married

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (UPI) — Actor Anthony Quinn, 50, and Yolanda Addolori, 31, the mother of the couple's two small sons, were married Sunday night in a private civil ceremony here.

Superior Judge Edward Brand of nearby Santa Monica performed the simple ceremony before a small group of friends, including actor John Cassavetes and Quinn's mother, Mrs. Frank Bowles of Los Angeles.

Quinn and his wife plan to make their home in Rome, a spokesman said.

The marriage climaxed a widely publicized romance between the two-time Academy Award winner and the bride, who claimed to be from a noble Venetian family.

Fire Inflicts Light Damage

Very little damage was reported as Pampa firemen made their first run of 1966 Saturday to the Hardin and Roth Truck Terminal on W. Brown.

A small amount of gasoline, leaking from a tanker truck, was ignited by an openface gas heater.

Firemen extinguished the fire in ten minutes.

Calculator Missing In Foundry Entry

A $400 calculator and $5 in small change was reportedly taken in a burglary Saturday at the Pampa Foundry, 701 S. Somerville.

The burglary was reported to police by H. O. Darby, president of the firm. Entry to the building had been gained by breaking a rear window.

First Negro Catholic Bishop To Be Elevated

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The Most Rev. Harold R. Perry, the first American Negro to be elevated to the rank of Roman Catholic bishop, will be consecrated Thursday in historic St. Louis Basilica in New Orleans' French Quarter.

The new auxiliary bishop of New Orleans will receive the symbolic trappings of office during a mass and ceremony celebrated by Archbishop Philip M. Hannan of New Orleans. John P. Cody of Chicago and Egidio Vagnozzi, apostolic delegate to the United States.

Bishop Perry, 49, is a native of Lake Charles, La. Another native of Lake Charles, Bishop Robert Tracy of Baton Rouge, La., will preach at the consecration.

A Papal Bull from Pope Paul VI announcing Perry's elevation will be read and a staff

TIME'S MAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of U.S. forces in Viet Nam, is Time Magazine's Man of the Year for 1965.

In announcing its choice Sunday, the News Magazine said: "General Westmoreland was the personification of the American fighting man in 1965 who, through the monsoon mud of nameless hamlets, amidst the swirling sand of seagirt enclaves, atop the jungled mountains of the Annamese Cordillera, served as the instrument of U.S. policy, quietly enduring the terror and discomfort of a conflict that was not yet a war, on a battlefield that was all no-man's land."

It is considered certain that East German boss Walter Ulbricht, a noted opportunist even among Communists, is anticipating a new development in the Communist camp. In this case it is believed to be the certainty that Moscow intends to convoke an anti-Chinese international conference.

Strike

Closed public and parochial schools normally attended by more than 1.5 million pupils. Most colleges and universities also suspended classes.

Resulted in an estimated $40 million a day loss in sales volume to retail stores. Even after Michael J. Quill, the flamboyant, Irish-immigrant president of the Transit Workers Union original $680 million demand by 80 per cent, the negotiators were reported still talking but making no progress.

Quill, 60, who once worked as a pick and shovel laborer in the subway system, ordered the strike at 5 a.m. Saturday in defiance of a court order and said he was prepared to "rot in jail" if he were arrested. The strike-banning injunction was issued last Thursday at the behest of the transit authority.

The TWU chief was due in court at 2 p.m. EST today to explain why he should not be fined or imprisoned for ignoring the edict. He tore up the court papers in front of a television camera.

The mayor also made televised appeals Saturday and Sunday, asking that people not come into the city. He said only one quarter of the 3.3 million persons who normally work on Manhattan Island could possibly reach their jobs by car, taxi or on foot.

But Quill countered Lindsay's appeal, calling on the public to drive into the business districts. "Working people can't afford to stay home," he said.

Even Sunday, a bleak and rainy day, brought heavy traffic to the bridges and tunnels which must be crossed to reach Manhattan. With the walkout in its third day, there were these developments:

Public and parochial schools, normally attended by more than 1.5 million children, were closed for the day. Private schools and colleges

Survivors include one son, Fern M. Bain of Pampa, and four grandchildren.

Sterling Scarbrough

Funeral services for Sterling Scarbrough, 27, of Canadian, who was killed in a one-car turnover Saturday afternoon near Canadian, were scheduled for 3:30 p.m. today in Canadian Central Baptist Church. Rev. Earl Maddux, pastor of Fellowship Baptist Church of Pampa, was to officiate, assisted by Rev. Vernon Cline, pastor of the Canadian Church. Burial was to be in Canadian Cemetery under direction of Stickleby Funeral Home.

A rosary was read by Father Antonio Catalina of Canadian at 7:30 p.m. yesterday in Stickleby Funeral Home.

A drifter for the Jack Grace Drilling Co. of Canadian, Mr. Scarbrough was driving to work on a well near Durham, Okla., when the accident occurred. Officers reported Mr. Scarbrough was driving east on Hwy. 33, about 10 miles southeast of Canadian, when he lost control of his car and it overturned five times.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Mary Helen Miller Scarbrough, and three daughters, Regina, Leda and Twyla Scarbrough, all of the home; his father, G. M. Scarbrough of Mountainair, N. M.; mother, Mrs. Marie Harris of Jacksboro, and one sister, Mrs. Connie Isabelle of Jacksboro.

Losses to stores, just starting their January sales, were estimated at $40 million per day.

Police were ordered on 12-hour workdays. Officials feared a "fire catastrophe" if a major blaze broke out and heavy traffic prevented firemen from reaching it.

Walter Rogers Visits Panhandle

Rep. Walter Rogers arrived in the Panhandle today for a week of appointments with constituents and to deliver a number of speeches to local groups.

During the week, Rogers will fill appointments at his 18th Congressional District office in the Hughes Building and at the Herring Hotel in Amarillo.

He will speak to the McLean Lions Club, Tuesday noon and at the Berger Chamber of Commerce Thursday noon.

Wednesday he will attend the official opening of the new Social Security office in Pampa. The congressman is expected to return to Washington Friday evening to prepare for the opening of the 89th Congress next Monday.

New Way Found To Stop Hair Loss, Grow More Hair

HOUSTON, Texas—If you don't suffer from male pattern baldness, you can now stop your hair loss... and grow more hair.

For years "they said it couldn't be done." But now a firm of laboratory consultants has developed a treatment that is not only stopping hair loss... but is really growing hair!

They don't even ask you to take their word for it. If they believe that the treatment will help you, they invite you to try it for 32 days, at their risk, and see for yourself!

Naturally, they would not offer this no-risk trial unless the treatment worked. However, it is impossible to help everyone.

The great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and more fully developed stages of male pattern baldness and cannot be helped.

But, if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness may seem to "run in your family," this is certainly no proof of the cause of YOUR hair loss.

Many conditions can cause hair loss. No matter which one is causing your hair loss, if you wait until you are slick bald and your hair roots are dead, you are beyond help. So, if you still have any hair on top of your head, and would like to stop your hair loss and grow more hair... now is the time to do something about it before it's too late.

Loesch Laboratory Consultants, Inc., will supply you with treatment for 32 days, at their risk, if they believe the treatment will help you. Just send them the information listed below. All inquiries are answered confidentially, by mail and without obligation. Adv.

Groom's Roberts Heads All-State

By United Press International
Jerry Roberts, a 6-5, 195-pound end from Groom, and Ronnie Yarborough, a 6-3, 180-pound guard from Spring Hill, were the big vote pullers on the Texas Sports Writers' Association's 1965 Class B all-state schoolboy football team.

SWC LEAGUE PLAY OPENS

Aggies, SMU to Tangle

By United Press International
The short, but aggressive Arkansas Razorbacks, who compiled the league's best December warmup record, start finding out this week if they are real challengers for the Southwestern Conference basketball title.

The Razorbacks, boasting an experienced squad but without the tall boy generally figured necessary to be a contender, won five of seven pre-title games to emerge as the dark-horse candidate for the honors generally conceded earlier to either Texas Tech or SMU.

The Hogs will invade Fort Worth Tuesday night to meet high-scoring TCU and then catch Texas Tech at Fayetteville in an afternoon game on Saturday. If they can sweep both games, the rest of the league had better revise their estimates.

Tech, the pre-season favorite which had to beat New Mexico State 106-87 last week to get a 4-5 record, opens at home Tuesday against Baylor (2-7) before going to the Ozarks.

SMU, 5-5 after beating Connecticut 80-66 last week, has the toughest chore on opening night, playing the Texas Aggies (5-4) at College Station. The Mustangs then entertain Texas (4-5) in an afternoon televised game Saturday.

Rice (0-9) is at Texas in the other Tuesday opener, while the Aggies visit Rice and TCU (2-7) goes to Baylor in Saturday night games.

Lombardi Gives Players Credit

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — The champagne cork popped. But Vince Lombardi, who had just coached his Green Bay Packers to their third National Football League championship in five years would have none of it.

"That's not for me," he said in the clamorous Packer dressing room Sunday. "It's for my players. They did it, not me."

"But coach, I've had this on ice since we came out here—I knew we couldn't lose," equipment manager "Dad" Braisher answered. "Just one sip?"

Lombardi agreed—just one sip, but then the bottle went out to the players and Lombardi turned to talking about the team that had just whipped the Cleveland Browns for the NFL crown.

"They said we didn't have an offense," he gloated. "I guess we showed 'em."

"This team has character—they showed it all year. They never counted themselves out. They won it." Regarding Paul Hornung and Jim Taylor, a lot of people counted them out, said they were past their prime," Lombardi said. "I guess that performance shows there's a little life left."

Taylor and Hornung gained 201 yards rushing between them and just about scuttled any rumors that two veteran Packer heroes will have to step aside next season to make room for Green Bay's million-dollar rookie runners—halfback Donny Anderson and fullback Jim Grabowski.

Arkansas won third place in the Sun Carnival tourney by beating Loyola 67-57 after losing 77-75 to Iowa in the first round. The other three conference teams competing in holiday tournaments failed to win a single game.

The Aggies, who carried a 5-1 record into the All-College Tournament, lost 101-74 to Virginia Tech, 98-86 to Xavier and 85-72 to Bowling Green; Texas lost 95-80 to Seattle and 82-77 to California in the Seattle tourney; Arkansas bowed 92-75 to Arkansas State and 101-84 to Rutgers in the Jonesboro Classic, and TCU lost 96-90 to Idaho and 82-80 to Tulane in the Lobo Tournament.

Saban May Replace Nugent at Maryland

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — Lou Saban, who led Buffalo to American Football League championships in 1964 and 1965 and earned coach of the year honors for himself in the process, resigned as head coach of the Bills Sunday.

Saban refused to give a reason for his resignation but there was widespread speculation that he would replace Tom Nugent as head coach at the University of Maryland.

"The officials at Maryland would have to answer that," Saban replied when asked if the rumor were true.

Saban said that he had been considering resigning for the last six or seven weeks, even before the Bills' championship game with the San Diego Chargers Dec. 26. He indicated that his reasons for leaving had nothing to do with the way he was treated during his three-year tenure as head coach.

"I feel my decision would have been the same regardless of the team or city in which I was coaching," Saban said.

He did, however, give some indication as to why he might be leaving.

"Winning the championship has enabled me to enjoy the highest honor, both as a player and as a coach, that can come to a man in pro football," Saban said. "There can be little left to conquer in pro football."

MONTEREY PLAYS HERE FRIDAY

Pampa, Sandies Play in Amarillo

By RON CROSS
News Sports Editor
When the firing is over Tuesday night at 14th and Polk in Amarillo one of two things will have happened in the 3-4A basketball race.

There will either be a two or three way tie for first place or Amarillo will have remained in first place, undefeated.

Pampa, the third place choice of district coaches and Amarillo, expected to battle it out with Monterey for first place, tangle at the new Sandie gym at 14th and Polk, starting at 8 p.m.

The Sandies (5-0) are blessed with talent, tallness and experience and they are a hot shooting team.

In 14 regular season games, Amarillo has lost but once, to undefeated El Paso Austin, 62-61 at El Paso. In five conference outings they are untouched, having downed co-favorite Monterey.

But the Sandies aren't unbeatable and Pampa seems to be the team with the best chance to ruin Amarillo's conference record in the first half of this split season.

Amarillo carries a 69.7 regular season offensive average and 49.9 defensive mark and stand 61.4 and 48.8 in conference action.

Pampa, 4-1, who has had some close calls and have had the stall put on them by Palo Duro, Caprock and Plainview and

'Old' Kemp Named AFL's Best Player

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jackie Kemp, the Buffalo Bills' bargain basement quarterback, today was being hailed as the American Football League's Player of the Year.

The 30-year-old signal-caller from Occidental College received nine first place votes from a special panel of 24 writers — three from each league city — in a poll conducted by United Press International.

Paul Lowe and Lance Alworth, both of the San Diego Chargers, tied for second in the balloting with four votes each. Tom Sestak and Pete Gogolak, Kemp's teammates on the AFL champion Buffalo squad, Kansas City's Bobby Bell and Boston's Nick Buoniconti each garnered one vote.

Kemp cost Buffalo owner Ralph Wilson $100. That was the price tag on him when Sid Gillman, coach of the Chargers, placed Kemp on waivers early in the 1962 season. Kemp had broken his middle finger and Gillman figured no one would claim him and he could relegate his star quarterback to the taxi squad.

Will The Real No. 1 Team Please Stand Up

By United Press International
Millions of football fans still aren't sure today whether the morning after wasn't wilder than the night before.

After celebrating into the wee hours of New Year's Day, countless armchair quarterback backs collapsed before their television sets to watch the traditional bowl games. And like the night before, the results were staggering.

The nation's top three teams lost, being handed their first defeats after rolling up 10-0 records in 1965. UCLA whipped national champion Michigan State 14-12 in the Rose Bowl, Louisiana State stopped Arkansas (No. 2), 14-7 in the Cotton Bowl and Alabama blasted third-ranked Nebraska 39-28 in the Orange Bowl.

"The greatest mismatch of the century," the UCLA players yelled after avenging an early-season loss to Michigan State.

The Bruins took advantage of a Michigan State fumble and an intercepted pass to score a pair of first-half touchdowns. The Spartans rallied for two TDs after intermission, but the Bruins thwarted both attempts by Michigan State for two-point conversions.

Little Joe Labruzzo, the smallest man on the field, carried the ball six consecutive times on an LSU touchdown march, scored the TD and added another to help stop Arkansas' 22-game winning streak. Bill Bass anchored the tough LSU defensive unit which held the Razorbacks scoreless after intermission.

Alabama quarterback Steve Sloan, called "the greatest" by his predecessor, Joe Namath of the New York Jets, set an Orange Bowl record by completing 20 passes in 29 attempts for 296 yards. Steve Bowman scored twice for the Crimson Tide, who dropped only one game during the regular campaign.

In the Sugar Bowl, Missouri shaded Florida 20-18. The Tigers rolled up a 20-0 halftime bulge, but quarterback Steve Spurrier, the game's most valuable player, passed the Alligators back into contention in the second half and still was throwing the ball with a chance

Matson Named Top Sportsman

DALLAS (UPI) — Randy Matson, the young Pampa giant who made a mockery of the world's shot put record, today was named the Texas Sports Writers Association's Sportsman of the Year for 1965.

The towering Texan, now a student at Texas A&M University, set the current world's record for the 16-pound iron ball at 70 feet 7 inches last spring in the Southwest Conference Track and Field Championships at College Station.

But, he had been exceeding the existing world records for months in both indoor and outdoor meets before he hit that peak.

His selection was by a wide margin over a lustrous field of nominees that included all to win with less than a minute left in the game.

America footballers Tommy Nobis of Texas and Donny Anderson of Texas Tech, Tech's head football coach J. T. King, auto racing kluggins Carroll Shelby and John Mecom and Houston's major dome of the Astrodome, Roy Hofheinz.

new leader of the Dodge Rebellion

Tired of looking at dream cars you can't buy? The cars you see at the Auto Show and never see again? Well, then, do something about it. See the one you can buy, right now, today, at your Dodge dealer's. It's Charger, a full-sized, fastback action car that's all primed up and ready to go. With V8 power. Bucket seats, floor and aft. Full-length console. Disappearing headlights that disappear without a trace. Rear seats that quickly convert into a spacious cargo compartment. Just pop the rear buckets down and watch the cargo space go up. That's Charger—breath-taking new leader of the Dodge Rebellion. Until you've seen it, you haven't seen everything from Dodge for '66. Charger, a brawny, powerful dream car that made it—all the way to your Dodge dealer's.

conference action, thinks to Plainview, who held Pampa to an 18-17 victory.

Kenneth McWilliams has and still does lead Pampa scorers for the season with a 14.0 mark but the 6'3 senior has only an 8.1 conference reading.

David Cain, the Harvester's 6'5 center is averaging 11.9 points per contest and 8.3 in the league while Mike Wise, 6'3 forward has an 11.6 season reading and 7.2 conference mark.

Pampa will step out of the frying pan into the fire by hosting once-beaten Monterey Friday in another league contest.

Tuesday night the Pampa Shockers will put their 10 game winning streak on the line against the Sandie B team, starting at 6:15 p.m.

Mrs. John M. Hutcheson was hostess to the annual Christmas party of the Alpha Lambda Chapter of Phi Sigma Alpha, recently.

A business meeting was conducted in regard to adding a deserving family recommended by the Welfare Index during the Christmas season. Each member will contribute canned goods and staple foods. Individual gifts, along with a prepared turkey and all the trimmings will be procured by the chapter and delivered to the family Christmas Eve.

A candlelight ceremony, using ten different colored candles, depicting the "Lords Prayer," was presented by Mrs. J. B. Woodington with Mmes. Wayne C. Couch, Clifford Wilson and John M. Hutcheson assisting. The white candle represented "Our Father," blue candle, "Who Art in Heaven," green candle, "Hallowed be Thy Name;" purple candle, "Thy kingdom come;" brown candle, "Thy will be done, on earth as it is in heaven;" yellow candle, "Give us this day our daily bread;" silver candle, "Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us;" red candle, "Lead us not into temptation;" black candle, "Deliver us from evil;" and gold candle, "For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory for ever and ever."

Christmas gifts were exchanged among members and refreshments were served during the social hour.

Members attending were Mmes. James Broxton, Wayne C. Couch, Kenneth Butler, John M. Hutcheson, James Lewis, Hugh Peoples, Marvin Silliman, L. K. Tomlin, Robert W. Harmon, Clifford Wilson and J. B. Woodington.

Card Games Bridge the Years

CHILDREN'S AMUSEMENT — Pleasure and challenge keep these grade school youngsters enjoying a winter's night by the fire playing cards. A bowl of apples helps concentration and the rule book is there to settle arguments.

By KAY SHERWOOD
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Whoever remarked something about old pleasures being the best may well have had card playing in mind.

Recently, when illness, bad weather and a broken television set conspired to upset our youngest child, I happened to bring home a slender volume, "50 Card Games for Children" published by the U.S. Playing Card Co. I had planned to put it on the shelf, but Tyler and I started reading it instead. What a trip down memory lane to my own pretelevision childhood that was! Here are the rules for all the good old favorites — "Slapjack," "Go Fish," "I Doubt It," "Crazy Eights."

Joined by the other children, we tried a round of "I Doubt It." Then "Fish." Before the afternoon was over, I had been soundly beaten, to the utter joy and gay laughter of my offspring.

I don't draw any psychological insight from this, but it is a heady thrill for the young ones.

Now, Tyler and her friends are playing cards like old timers, I think, from my observation, that it is helping to develop better sportsmanship — somebody wins and somebody loses but you don't pout or rub it in.

If you're trying to teach a card game, experts advise dealing and playing the cards, explaining the rules as you go. Another point I heartily agree with is to keep the rule book at hand. No parental authority on what the rules are is needed when they are printed.

On a winter's night, it is pleasantly nostalgic besides being fun to encourage the youngsters to play games of skill and chance. Music is a proper accompaniment to the shouts and laughter engendered by the contest.

One caution I have: Don't try to start a child on too difficult a game at first. Children 10-12 years old can be steered to "Casino," "Rummy," "Concentration," "Authors," "Thirteen to 15-year-olds enjoy 'Hearts,' 'Michigan,' 'Fan Tan,' 'I Doubt It.' These games can be played (and we do) by younger children, especially with their elder brothers and sisters. I don't mean to exclude board games from the roster. In my experience, board games such as "Monopoly," "Parcheesi," "Chinese Checkers" and a host of others are good fun for some youngsters.

The problem comes in keeping all the units, counters, dice or paper of a game together.

We have a shelf in a cabinet just for board games, but that doesn't guarantee all the elements needed to play will be in the box.

I would like to see bigger and stronger boxes for games that will be handled, or rather boy-handled. We keep the cards used by the children separate from our bridge decks. In fact, older bridge decks are handed down to the younger, rougher players.

The Doctor Says

YAYNE BRANDSTADT
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

There is so much misunderstanding about the pilonidal cysts that form at the lower end of the spine that I will attempt to clear the air. During your growth before you are born, your right and left sides come together in the midline and form an imperceptible seam. In a few persons some of the skin cells become buried below the surface at the midline near the base of the spine. This constitutes a pilonidal dimple which remains inactive until puberty when, along with a generalized stimulation of growth throughout the body, it may grow into a small cyst.

This cyst contains hair but it produces no trouble until a bump or some other trauma causes it to become infected. A small painful abscess then forms which must be opened and drained. This relieves the pain but, from that day on, the cyst will either discharge pus regularly or form a series of abscesses until the cyst is completely removed. This operation requires great skill because if any of the skin lining the cyst is left in place there will be a recurrence of the cyst.

One reader asks whether a pilonidal cyst can cause indigestion or aching pains in the thighs. Some other cause for these complaints should be sought.

Another asks whether standing on one's feet most of the day would aggravate a pilonidal cyst. The answer is: No, but bouncing around in the seat of a truck or a tractor would.

Q—When fruits that contain acids are put up in tin cans the inside of the can sometimes looks black. Isn't it dangerous to eat the fruit from these cans? Is it safe to keep food in opened cans in the refrigerator?

A—Canned meat, beans or corn (but especially meat) contain small amounts of sulfur which cause a black deposit of tin sulfide on the inner surface of the can. This is in no way a health hazard but, because it is considered unappetizing, these products are now usually put in cans with an enamel finish.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

FOR TUESDAY, JAN. 4
GENERAL TENDENCIES: Take care that you do nothing that can upset the general public and cause others to view you as one who does not keep promises. You have made or failed to be a good solid citizen. Most everyone is little nervous and touchy today and tonight, so steer clear of anything that could cause them to rebuke you.

ARIES (Mar. 20 to Apr. 19) — Stop going around in circles and get your feet squarely on the ground so that you rise above pettiness. Be particularly careful in driving. Forget about arguing or you can cause accidents to happen.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20) — Don't permit financial affairs to throw you for a loop now, whether from lack of sufficient funds, over-payments, etc. Calmly get figures easily organized in your mind. Obey the law of supply and demand.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) — Main, take an attitude of cheerfulness even though you feel you are not getting as much fun out of life as you would like. Get your specific talents working in the right direction. Be happy no matter what.

WOODY CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) — Take care you do not permit some problem to disturb your equanimity otherwise animosity is aroused against you. Although you have annoyances, keep smiling. Then all goes well.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Avoid those with loose tongues today or you get into trouble, and be very careful in all that you do and say. Social functions are particularly important. Act circumspectly at all times.

VERGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Be like Casanova's wife — above reproach — or others can ruin your good name, take advantage to give you trouble. Get creditors appeased. Don't run off to new ventures before finishing those at hand.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) — Getting into new interests is all right, provided you first complete any work on hand and are of assistance to friends who depend on you. Your ideas are quite clever. However, your first need more study, interpolation.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) — Forget those excuses where your responsibilities are concerned to every aspect of your endeavor, or you really get into hot water. Don't rely entirely on your intuition with others. Test as to facts first.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — An associate may spoil some rather unalloyed ideas today that are best forgotten, otherwise if you criticize, trouble will ensue. Don't be forceful with anyone. Show a kindly attitude with all.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — With all those duties facing you, no amount of fretting will get them done, so drive in with enthusiasm and they are soon behind you. Fellow workers aren't very cooperative either. Be independent.

Footnotes in Leather

ROUNDED TOE — The rounded toe is back in footwear for all occasions. Two-tone two-textured leather walking shoe (top) by Howard Fox is a combination of black suede with strap of gray-beige textured leather. It has rounded toe and chunky heel. Moccasin (at bottom) is by Golo in antiqued bronze leather. It has squared moc inset and open Puritan buckle effect.

By HELEN HENNESSY Women's Editor

Newspaper Enterprise Assn. NEW YORK (NEA) — The well-bred foot won't point this season. From moccasins to mules, every type of footwear will curve at the toe.

For daytime there are leather sling backs, strap-shoes and pumps sheared to a new shaping — low back and sides and foreshortened vamp.

The casual corner of your shoe wardrobe can be stocked with handsome walking shoes, moccasins and ties—all round at the toe.

Latest walkers include the shoes with lacings, ghillies and spectators and many feature combinations of leather textures, such as brushed leather and embossed trim or smooth finish with suede.

For evening wear, sandals, slings and slinky pumps are cast to delight the eye in soft pastels and jewel tones. Buckles, jewels and nailheads are used for tasteful trim and higher heels make a comeback.

The leathers shown this season combine beauty and pliability. Along with the tried and true textures — smooth, grained, suede, brushed and patent — there are new finishes. You will find a spory waxed finish, embossed and antiqued leathers, op-art prints and reverse calf.

The new colors are beautiful. Even their names reflect the splendor of fall. There are deep tones called red fox, avocado, marsh grass and squash. And on the pale side of the coin you will find pheasant, apricot, lichen green, gray and winter white.

Dear Abby...

You'd Better Believe There's a Difference

DEAR ABBY: I have a 15-year-old son who is a good boy, an honor student and has many friends. One young couple (his age) come here several nights a week and use my parlor for a lover's lane. These kids sit in the dark, hugging and kissing for hours. I am sure their parents don't know that this goes on. Once I heard the girl tell her mother on the phone that she was at a party with a "bunch of kids" at my son's house. (No one was here but her and her boy friend and my son, who stayed upstairs studying most of the time.) I am a widow and am invited out occasionally, but I don't like to leave those kids alone in my house. What should I do, Abby? Tell my son to ask his friends not to come over any more? Or should I tell them? Should their parents be told?

UNDECIDED

DEAR UNDECIDED: If you refuse the kids the use of your parlor, you'll only force them to find another rendezvous. Here is an excellent opportunity to help two youngsters who desperately need it. They are playing with dynamite and need to be warned against the dangers of too much togetherness charged up with natural emotions. If you can't (or won't) counsel these kids, then you'd be doing them a favor by telling their parents. Enlightenment is in order here, not punishment.

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow who plans to remarry in March. I have two teen-age sons who will keep their father's name as I feel they are too old to be legally adopted by my new husband and thereby take his name as I will. It always seems so strange to me when children do not have the same name as their mother. Would it be proper for me to keep my children's father's name (say it was Brown) and then add my new husband's name (say it was Smith)? I would then be Mrs. Brown-Smith, and therefore have something in common with my children's name.

NAME PROBLEM

DEAR NAME: No, it is not proper for you to keep your first husband's name, even though your children will retain it.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please permit me to sound off about a matter that is becoming increasingly disgusting? Tight pants for boys and men! It was bad enough when women started pulling those stretch things over their posteriors, revealing every curve. But these skin-tight trousers for men are the limit. To add to the problem, the cuffs are so narrow that they can't get the pants on or off without taking their shoes off. The days of buying a growing boy a pair of trousers with a little room for him to "grow into them" has passed. When they buy pants brand new, they are so tight-fitting that if the kid gains six ounces he can't get the pants back on with a crow bar. I won't even mention how terrible I think they look! Am I alone?

DISGUSTED IN SYCAMORE

CONFIDENTIAL TO "FEELING GUILTY" IN TROY: You are foolishly living with guilt because of ignorance and misinformation. What you don't know about how to live a normal, satisfying married life not only could fill a book, but it had. I recommend Dr. J. B. Trainer's "Physiologic Foundations for Marriage Counseling". Every person who is considering marriage, or who is now married, should read this book.

The Pampa Daily News

A Watchful Newspaper

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself no more, no less. It is thus consistent with the Human Relations Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Price Controls Coming Up

An individual with a limited understanding of the causes and ultimate consequences of inflation who has been reading these columns the last several years possibly wonders why we devote so much energy trying to explain the dangers to human freedom inherent in government profligacy and its twin sister inflation.

Vermont Royster, editor of the Wall Street Journal, recently devoted his column to a lucid analysis of just what is happening in this regard and though these remarks are a bit lengthy, we urge you to take a couple of extra minutes to read the observations of this latter day Ezekiel:

Next item on the agenda — Price controls.

You don't have to have an inside pipeline to White House secrets or Jeanne Dixon's mystic gift of precognition to be tempted to that prophecy. All you need is a bit of perception and a good memory.

As a matter of fact, being privy to administration council might be a hindrance to foresight. Quite possibly the phrase has never been mentioned, and almost surely, if it has, the idea of restoring to the paraphernalia of coercive economic controls has been rejected as politically undesirable and economically unnecessary.

President Johnson, having lived through two periods when the government tried to decide the wages of every plumber and the price of every handkerchief, is hardly eager to rush back into that maelstrom. His economic advisers, whatever also they may be lacking, are full of confidence in their ability to manage the economy with such a deft touch that inflation can be kept upon a perfect and joyous balance.

So an inquiry as to intent would bring a sincere denial of plans for government fiat to fix prices, wages, interest rates, import quotas, foreign exchange rates, tourist allowances or any other part of the paucity of economic controls. All the same, mark it down. Barring the unlikely event of a complete reversal in the Administration's economic policy, we shall likely soon see one or more of these put forward. And before we're through, we may see them all.

The portents aren't obscure. For years now, under several administrations, the government has been steadily counterfeiting money. In effect although modern techniques are much more sophisticated — it has been simply running the printing presses to "create" dollars out of pieces of paper. The process is in no wise different from the ancient one of alloying talents or clipping coins.

There is nothing obscure, either, about the historic results of that counterfeiting. Examples abound from the distant days of Diocletian to the modern times of Brazil.

With each depreciation of the currency the prices of goods and labor rise; that is, the sovereign's solemnly issued money is worth less today than it was yesterday. At first the change is slow and to the apparent prosperity of all. Then it proceeds more rapidly as the authorities find they must print more money to redress the imbalance from the higher prices caused by the earlier inflation.

Finally there is so much disturbance that these same authorities feel they must try to quash the consequences of what they have done. In Diocletian's

The Dead End Again

There was a time when the predominantly agricultural eastern part of Germany was known as the nation's breadbasket.

Today it is known as the Soviet Zone, sometimes mislabeled the German Democratic Republic, and far from being a breadbasket for all of Germany was recently forced to buy 3.4 million dollars' worth of wheat day they cut off the hands of "proffiteers" who asked a dozen denarii for a loaf of bread. In 18th Century France they hung the butcher.

But of course all this happened in ancient times or in distant climes. Things are different now, we are assured.

No one denies that we are enjoying the first stage of the traditional inflationary process. On the contrary, everyone in authority boasts of it. To inflation, and to their perspicacity in managing it, they attribute all our prosperity.

Their perspicacity was also to keep it in hand so that we would not have to pay any of the historic penalties for our happy levels. For a time they could point with pride, and quite accurately, that 10 years or so of inflation had brought only imperceptible increases in the cost-of-living index. Some prices, in fact, declined. Even now such things as household appliances and many food items cost less than a year ago.

However, not everything has been coming up roses. In the past five years that "slow" increase in the cost of living has raised the index from 103.2 to 110.4, a total rise that's quite perceptible. In the last year alone there have been some spectacular increases in many areas, notably in clothes, meat, education and medical care.

And in key areas elsewhere the pressures are mounting, the most publicized being steel, aluminum and interest rates. The last item, incidentally, is especially significant because it is the price of borrowing today's dollars to be paid back with tomorrow's dollars and so closely reflects the effects of currency depreciation.

So now what are we told? Why, the whole trouble is caused by those wicked steel makers aluminum and copper makers and bankers. All that's necessary to put everything right as rain is for them to voluntarily agree to restrain themselves. If they won't by Lyndon, they'll just get bashed over the head.

We have already, then, the first efforts at price control. The fact that it is selective, and doesn't yet touch the butcher and candlestick maker, or that the coercion is not by fiat but by threat doesn't alter the fact that the government is undertaking to control prices. The government is also, by the same device, trying to control other economic activity, such as decisions on foreign investment.

In short, we are right on schedule. The country has passed through the primary stage of inflation, in which the cheapening of the money has only happy effects, and into the second stage where those effects appear less happy and even begin to threaten other economic desires and objectives. The response of the authorities is also right out of the book.

It's true enough that the process could stop at this point. All the government needs to do is stop clipping the coins. But quite apart from the normal difficulties of kicking the habit, we have now an added factor. The peril of imprudent men is always the unexpected, and in this case it's a war — a long and costly war. The 1965 deficit will be billions bigger than anticipated, and after that in unknown figures.

How long it will take to reach the tertiary stage is anybody's guess. But don't be surprised when the agenda includes a debate on hanging the butcher.

from the United States to feed its own small population. It has been ever thus in every country, including the great homeland of the Soviet Union, where the Communists have imposed collectivization upon independent farmers.

U.S. Warns Allies of China Threat

By RAY CROMLEY

Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA) — Defense Secretary McNamara's estimate of a Peking nuclear ICBM by 1975 means the United States should now get on with missile defense.

Otherwise, Asia and the West will be open to Mao Tse Tung's nuclear blackmail.

For several decades, Red China's economy will be unable to support a major ICBM arsenal. Mao will be able to build only a few intercontinental missiles.

But the threat of these few being used, Mao undoubtedly calculates, would be enough to make the United States cautious about intervening in Asia.

This would lead Mao in the 1970s to reckless steps in India, Burma, Thailand, Formosa, Laos or Viet Nam.

McNamara's estimate that the Red Chinese could have an intermediate range nuclear missile by 1967 or 1968 raises other problems.

It puts pressure on India and Japan to develop nuclear weapons.

It means, some officials say privately, the United States and other nations may have to give some new hard guarantees to a group of non-nuclear countries to keep them from folding under Chinese pressure.

The immediate reason for McNamara's hard-hitting talk on China, of course, was U. S. concern over West Europe's shoulder-shrugging attitude toward the Viet Nam war.

Thirty-four nations have given or promised help to South Viet Nam. But aid by European members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization is microscopic.

Britain has sent 12 police instructors and teachers and some educational and technical equipment. The Netherlands has given antibiotics.

Italy has a 17-man surgical team on the spot. Greece sent medicine.

Germany has given 23 technical experts, 30 ambulances and some credits.

Canada has sent medical aid and some wheat. Denmark and Sweden a little assistance through the Red Cross.

Secretary of State Rusk and McNamara belittled the tiny European contributions as compared with the aid given by Korea, Australia, New Zealand, Japan, Nationalist China and the Philippines.

Korea has furnished 9,000 men, including the first increment of a 17,000-man infantry division. Korean combat engineers, security forces and a mobile army surgical hospital are in operation.

Australia has deployed a combat infantry battalion, an artillery battalion, engineers, combat advisors, aircraft and crews and medical, technical and civil action aid — 1,400 men in all. New Zealand has sent a 105-mm howitzer battery.

Nationalist China has sent 124 technical advisors (agricultural specialists and psychological warfare experts) and help in building electric power plants.

The Philippines sent 60 men, principally in medical and psychological warfare teams. Manila is discussing additional units.

Japan's contribution has been 80 technical and medical men, plus ambulances and radios and help in building electric power plants.

In behind-the-scenes talks, Rusk and McNamara have made it clear to the Europeans, that just as they expect continued U. S. military support in the defense of Europe we expect real co-operation in the defense of Southeast Asia.

The electric eel, which varies in length between 3 and 8 feet, has a powerful electric organ in its body which can discharge, in some cases, for the very brief duration of the shock, more than 500 volts at about 2 amperes to stun a man and, perhaps, kill a horse.

State of Union Message — So Far—Contains No Dramatic Surprises, No 'National Emergency' Proclamation

WASHINGTON — President Johnson will present his annual State of the Union message the same way he did last year—in a nationwide TV-radio broadcast at a night joint meeting of Congress.

The second session of the 89th Congress convenes next Monday. At this writing, the plan is for the President to deliver his address at 9 p.m. (EST) Tuesday.

In contrast to a year ago when most of the State of the Union message was devoted to the domestic field, this time the grim struggle in Viet Nam will be the predominant topic.

In its present draft form, the address contains no dramatic pronouncements.

The Joint Chiefs wanted the President to use this occasion to proclaim a national emergency. Such a declaration would have cleared the way for the activation of a number of "ready reserve" and National Guard units — which the Joint Chiefs strongly favor.

It is the Joint Chiefs' intent not to send these troops to Viet Nam. Instead, they would remain in the U. S. as replacements for regular forces dispatched to the combat zone.

After considerable inner council deliberation, the Joint Chiefs' proposal was shelved by the President as unnecessary at this time. However, it is very possible this urgent message may be reconsidered by June if the Viet Nam conflict continues to intensify.

Definitely certain to be included in the President's address is the assurance that he does NOT contemplate seeking a tax increase.

While disclosing that his new budget will exceed $100 billion, the President will contend the booming economy will produce sufficient revenue to meet the large additional expenditures.

WAR AND PEACE — While announcing his intention to expand U. S. forces in Viet Nam to "more than 300,000," the President will lay heavy stress on willingness to negotiate "unconditionally" at any time.

The troops destined for Viet Nam are to meet General Westmoreland's request for a combat strength of six divisions. He now has the equivalent of four.

The President also has approved adding several Air Force and Navy interceptor and light bomber squadrons. These considerable combat reinforcements will necessitate more logistic, medical, communications and other units.

The urgent need of this buildup is strikingly emphasized by two sinister developments:

—Navy Intelligence has reported that in the first 25 days of December, Russia delivered 230,000 tons of arms and other war supplies to Haiphong, main North Vietnamese port. This is the largest amount so far provided in one month. Of this record total 150,000 tons was transported by Soviet freighters; 80,000 by Polish ships.

A new method of conserving water has been devised by an Illinois botanical scientist who has successfully stopped plants from using water. Instead he feeds them chemicals to reduce evaporation which, when taken through the root systems, slow the transpiration of moisture into the atmosphere from the leaves and other exposed parts of the plant. In addition to saving water there is an added benefit since the system makes possible growing plants in colder latitudes. He believes the method may eventually be as big a boon to agriculture as the introduction of commercial fertilizer years ago.

CAPITOL EYE:

Free Society Strives for The Positive

By BRUCE-BLOSSAT

Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA) — Barry Goldwater's Free Society Association, actively led by his friend Denison Kitchel, is struggling with an old problem — how to shake off the negative image which handicaps conservative doctrine.

The dilemma is complicated by the fact that a considerable proportion of the leaders among the Republican party's traditional conservatives view "Goldwater conservatism" as excessively rigid and hence foreign to the political process, with its stress on compromise.

Kitchel appears to regard this view as incomprehensible. He sees "responsible conservatism" as all of a piece, and as fully understanding of the flexibility of politics.

He says the Free Society Association accepts the idea that a broad left-right political spectrum exists, and that the Republican party itself is inevitably stretched across the span of varying liberal to conservative attitudes.

What FSA is really up to, adds Kitchel, is not an attempt to make the GOP into a homogeneous "party of principle" according to Goldwaterite notions. It is, he insists, an effort to create a new "climate of thought" whose effect would be to move the whole national spectrum toward the right.

This is the reason the FSA avows nonpartisanship and declares it will have no part of active campaign politics. It asserts its function to be largely informational.

Kitchel is not the first to argue that the new Goldwater conservatism is just as flexible, just as cognizant of political realities, as the old. The conservative candidate for New York City mayor, William F. Buckley Jr., said this autumn that most of the conservative activists he dealt with were of the nonrigid type.

Yet politicians who encounter still-loyal rank and file Goldwaterites in their daily rounds contend that rigidity of outlook continues to be their hallmark. A good many talk the language of "rule or ruin."

Admittedly the strident voices of the radical right confuse the issue, since they invoke the name of Goldwater even more freely than do his more temperate supporters.

It is they, too, who reinforce the negative image that has dogged conservatism for so long a time.

According to Kitchel, a new idea of how to lick this problem has recently been born within the FSA fold.

Some in the organization are reasoning that "liberals dominate the national scene because they define the problems." The net of it, so it is argued, is that conservatives are forced into negative posture either by denying that certain problems exist or by suggesting answers which inescapably lack the bold force of the originally proposed "liberal solutions."

In this newly advanced view, then, the liberal establishment maintains its sway less by listening to the grievances of various groups than by telling them what they ought to want and how they can get it.

The lesson indicated by this thesis for conservative advocates is clear enough. They will begin to attract voting groups in significant, winning numbers when conservatives leap ahead and start defining the problems of the city, of labor, of the Negro and other minorities of the tangled foreign-front, before their liberal adversaries can get moving.

Kitchel recognizes how large an order this is for people who have spent much of the last three decades reacting negatively to the political initiatives of their aggressive opponents.

The test is in the doing, as he sees it. No cascade of scholarly conservative position papers is likely to have the necessary impact. Conservatism will get onto the positive side when it offers a big, dramatic initiative that somehow captures the country's fancy and suggests there is much more useful thinking where that came from.

TURNING THE OTHER CHEEK

The State Department continues to turn Uncle Sam's cheek to slaps from most every country in the world. But when upstart American youngsters start tweaking the national nose, it would seem fitting for the national spine to stiffen.

The House Committee on Un-American Activities recently published hearings on "Violations of State Department Travel Regulations and Pro-Castro Propaganda Activities in the United States." These hearings reveal the flagrant manner in which indolent, radical young American citizens have militantly supported Castro and defied the State Department ban on travel to Cuba.

A group of 73 young U. S. citizens visiting in Cuba during 1964 lent their voices to Castro's propaganda effort. Four students among this group issued a statement from Havana denouncing the "North American racist government," and stating: "We realize the United States government is the biggest farce in history and must be destroyed."

On wonders just what kind of evidence is required to prompt the Justice Department to invoke the laws of this country. Here we have U. S. citizens going to a Communist country, against the law, and joining the Communist dictator of that country in denouncing their native land; they advocate the destruction of the U. S. government; then they come back to the U. S. and flaunt justice, because its government is too timid to act.

This group travelled to Cuba after stating on their passport application they were going to Europe. The Student Committee for Travel to Cuba announced that it had "already shown that the American Government is powerless to stop American young people from traveling to Cuba," and that five more were announcing their intention to break the travel ban.

The State Department's meek effort to revoke the passports of these five un-American Americans, after they arrived in London, resulted only in more humiliation for the Department, and for the U. S.

A FUNDAMENTAL DOCTRINE (The Freeman)

Statism postulates the doctrine that the citizen has no rights which the State is bound to respect; the only rights he has are those which the State grants him, and which the State may attenuate or revoke at its own pleasure. This doctrine is fundamental; without its support, all the various nominal modes or forms of Statism and America — such as are called Socialism, Communism, Nazism, Fascism, etc. — would collapse at once. The individualism which was professed by the early Liberals, maintained that the citizen has rights which are inviolable by the State or by any other agency.

Television in Review

United Press International
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — I think I have discovered one of the main reasons that I like CBS-TV's British spy series, "Secret Agent," in which Patrick McGeehan stars so stylishly each weekend:

—There are hardly ever any youngsters prominent in it.

—This one-hour, Saturday night series is done strictly for the big boys and girls. There may be killings and gunplay and other everyday occurrences, but there is rarely anything as unpleasant as loud, significantly displayed, precocious youngsters.

—There are, instead, lovely slinky ladies, lovely elegant ladies, mean slinky villains, mean elegant villains—all of them dominated by the supremely cool, handsome and humorous character portrayed by McGeehan, who currently has no superior on network television when it comes to stylized acting.

Sympathetic Spies
 This past Saturday night was a perfect example, as McGeehan teamed up with—of all persons—a beautiful young Russian agent in a bizarre situation in which each of them needed the other to solve a problem.

Not only did McGeehan solve his problem, but he also provided a welcome respite from NBC-TV's merciless lineup of three consecutive New Year's Day football bowl games, an annual public service for fanatics.

By the time the final game, the Orange Bowl, came on following the titanic UCLA-Michigan State contest in the Rose Bowl—my mind was so dulled by NBC-TV's overabundance of public service that I was unable to keep up with who was playing. I cannot believe that anyone except friends, relatives and dear ones with a personal interest in the player, and perhaps students and alumni of the institutions involved, could have been in healthy viewing shape for the Orange Bowl after five television hours with the preceding games.

Several other diversions from the football contests were presented on Saturday night. One was a relatively unknown singer named Marilyn Maye, who appeared on ABC-TV's "Hollywood Palace," and will not be unknown for very long.

Even the host, Bing Crosby, made clear his respect for this unquestionably outstanding artist, in a testimonial rare to a performer who is yet to have a major name.

 Miss Maye sang only one song "Misty," and she is no glamor girl. But her singing pitch was incredibly fine, reminiscent of Jo Stafford at her best, though Miss Maye's style is a great deal more delicate, complex and sophisticated—yet unerringly direct. She is here to stay.

The other Saturday night diversion was a half-hour "ABC Scope" conversation with Brigitte Bardot, in New York, by reporter Howard K. Smith. These things are easy to jab at with distant certainty because they are invariably somewhat embarrassing for both interviewer and interviewee, but on the whole I thought that Miss Bardot came across rather amiably and with proper modesty about statements flattering to her. Likewise Smith survived in an almost impeccable chore. It really all depends on how much you care to know about a movie star.

I think Smith really got to her once when she declined to answer a question about whether she could understand how someone like Marilyn Monroe could have been unhappy. Miss Bardot's expression revealed more than it meant to. For the record, the actress, when presented with a quote by someone who said she was lazy undisciplined and wandered through her love affairs, replied cheerfully, "That's true."

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST

United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI)—As I was leafing through a volume of poetry the other evening, I was suddenly reminded that Congress soon will be coming back to town.

The line that switched me to this train of thought was penned by Ben Jonson. It began: "Broad-based, fronted, bounteous, multiform."

Maybe I need a vacation, but for a brief moment I was convinced that Jonson was writing about the annual "pork barrel" bill.

From that moment on, almost every page produced a passage that I associated with the imminent return of the lawgivers. "Grow old along with me" brought to mind the seniority system.

"Grow old along with me... And we'll committee chairmen be."

A poem by James Stephens fitted in with talk about a possible tax increase.

"And a naked man I go... (The income tax takes all my dough.)"

There was a Shakespearean reference to filibusters—Tomorrow, and tomorrow, and tomorrow." Also a number of other lines that could be construed as references to congressional oratory.

"Calm is the morn without a sound... (Senator Morse is out of town.)"

The overseas trips that members take after Congress adjourns likewise had a poetic allusion.

"On last year's junket I missed Spain."

But more than anything else, the poems contained reminders that 1966 is an election year.

"I wandered lonely as a cloud (The sound truck failed to draw a crowd.)"

"She stood breast high amid the corn... (It came from the candidate's P.A. horn.)"

"Behold! He watches at the door... (He's looking for a contributor.)"

"Farewell the tranquil mind (The latest poll shows he's behind.)"

"You wear the morning like your dress... (But by tonight you'll be a mess.)"

"Ay, tear her tattered ensign down... (And move along to the next town.)"

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—P. W. Brooks & Co. Inc., says that after the turn of the year we will have to face up to some unpleasant realities, many of them resulting from the Viet Nam conflict.

The firm says the possibility of higher taxes, imposition of government controls and military reverses could be serious deterrents to investor confidence. The firm says it would be timely to review one's holding, cut back equities to some extent and to upgrade portfolios from speculative issues to the most conservative.

The Alexander Hamilton Institute says some of the high-priced glamor stocks and low-priced speculations of dubious merit are due for substantial price adjustments but that standard quality issues should be in favor as institutional investors look for opportunities to reinvest year-end funds.

Ralph Rotnem of Harris, Upham & Co. says the most important factor in 1966 will be the trend of the Viet Nam conflict since it will affect tax programs and the activities of defense industries which will turn influence investors' decisions.

Bradbury K. Thurlow of Winslow, Cohn & Stetson Inc., says he sees the possibility of wild speculative blowoff to which the events since Labor Day may have been no more than a placid prelude.

Bache & Co. says it would not be surprised to see a revival of buying interest in some of the issues recently hit by profit-taking. However, the firm reiterates its belief that caution and selectivity will be key factors in successful trading in the next few months.

Goldberg Confers With Britian On Viet Settlement

By PATRICK J. HARDEN

LONDON (UPI)—U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations Arthur J. Goldberg met with British Prime Minister Harold Wilson Saturday night to discuss the chances of an honorable settlement in Viet Nam.

The meeting at No. 10 Downing Street began at 6:30 p.m. (1:30 p.m. EST), about three hours after Goldberg arrived here from Paris on the final leg of his diplomatic peace mission as a special envoy for President Johnson.

Prime Minister Wilson cut short a Christmas vacation in the Scilly Isles to meet with Goldberg. He returned to London less than an hour before he met with the ambassador.

Before the meeting British Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart declared that President Johnson's Viet Nam peace offensive made it clear "beyond any doubt" the United States wants to find a peaceful settlement of the conflict.

But Stewart declined to predict what the end of the present American diplomatic activity in world capitals would be.

The British prime minister is one of several world leaders with whom President Johnson's special envoys have discussed the Vietnamese war during the past few days. Goldberg had spoken earlier this week with Pope Paul VI and French President Charles de Gaulle. Another special envoy, W. Averell Harriman, conferred in Yugoslavia Saturday with President Tito and planned to fly next to New Delhi for talks with Indian leaders.

Goldberg said at an airport news conference his mission to Europe was designed for the simple purpose of keeping to developments and reaffirming the earnest desire of the United States government to settle the conflict in Viet Nam by peaceful means.

Wilson said on his return to London, "we are desperately anxious to try every means open to us to get the parties to the conference table."
