

Cotton Rises After Farm Board Bulletin

Oh, yeah!

We received a lot of pats and some slaps after sending Governor Sterling a message suggesting that he enlist cooperation of other cotton states governors in a drive to get southern farmers to plow up every other row of their cotton.

Today cotton opened $1.25 per bale up after the federal farm board had suggested every third row be plowed up and promised to hold 3,000,000 bales of its stabilization cotton a year if the method becomes generally practiced. The board asked all governors to cooperate.

Some fellows said they would hate to see the cotton plowed but thought it would be wise to pick it all and hold half of it.

The only way to keep cotton surplus from having an effect upon the market is to destroy it, not hold it. No matter whose hands it may be in, the cotton exists and so long as it does exist it's going to pound the price down.

Haven't we already witnessed the effect of the farm board's purchase of millions of bales? It can't be held forever and with the $100,000,000 carry-over, and a big crop coming up the only way out is to destroy part of the present crop.

Raising 15,000,000 bales at five cents would bring a total of $750,000,000. Ten million bales at 15 cents would gross $750,000,000.

The old capital down at Austin was a hard house last night. And the shack has seen a good many madhouses. In fact it is a madhouse a lot of the time.

The two laws enacted by the special session—the general oil conservation bill and the pipeline bill—will do the desired work, provided they are enforced.

The railroad commission will very likely issue a new order for East Texas in a few days. If the field continues to do as it has done issuing the order will do little or no good. If the railroad commission cannot enforce the laws then Governor Sterling should send troops down there to do it.

And he about the same as said that was what he would do. That oil field may not know yet just how close it came to being a military zone today. When you think the National Guard hasn't been informed to be ready to move into the Pine Woods you are mistaken.

Somebody has been throwing a lot of monkey wrenches into things down there. Don't get us wrong; we don't like to appear continually beating on the head of a guy who is supposed to be already down.

But Jim Ferguson is not down and won't be until the Angel of Death comes his graying brow.

Jim has his fence up in pretty good shape. A redistricting bill cannot be passed because of his opposition; he wants to run for congressman-at-large.

Whenever whoever happens to be in the governor's chair appears to be about to put something over that would help somebody else's political future, Jim gets busy and does all he can to nip it in the bud and then causes the administration for not putting it over.

His tactics may not be on the up-and-up in the eyes of many but he's got 'em anyway. Everybody that ever read this column much knows what we think of Jim Ferguson.

Harris' To Be Opened Friday

Unique and Beautiful Store Located At 113 East Third Street

One of the most beautiful and unique stores in West Texas will be opened formally Friday evening beginning at 7:30 o'clock when William Harris, veteran of the ready-to-wear business whose experiences here for the past eighteen months has made him a 100 per cent believer in Big Spring, opens his new establishment at 113 East Third street.

In a building erected only two years ago, and especially designed for just such a store as Mr. Harris has prepared, this place will offer dresses, coats, millinery, shoes, hosiery and underthings always at popular prices and in latest modes.

The Harris family has been in the mercantile business for a generation and more. For 25 years Mr. Harris has been continuously at work and has been successful with each of the nine stores he has opened in the past fifteen years. His wife and four daughters, Mildred, work with Mr. Harris at all times. They will have on the staff Mrs. Ray Craven and Nate Kaplan, shoe expert, who will arrive Sunday from Dallas.

Miss Harris is known to one of the most experienced women in her section with ready-to-wear, for she has literally been reared from childhood in a store.

Unusual connections, direct with manufacturers, materially aid Mr. Harris in offering the public real values, he declared. Some of the manufacturers with whom he deals are his relatives.

The store incorporates a special California "hangar" made originated in this section by Harris. The fixtures are finished in blue with black and gold trimming. Composition strings of a deep green hue cover the gables and the sashes alone, the sides and the back of the main section of the store. At the apex of each gable is the monogram "H" in gold on a cream background.

There are four specially furnished dressing rooms, an alteration room and, on the balcony, space reserved for a beauty parlor to be opened as soon as arrangements are made with a suitable operator.

Tomorrow evening during the opening reception there will be flowers for ladies, cigars for men and a number of other souvenirs.

One of the features "made on stock at this time is the wide variety of Empress Eugenie, Robin Hood and Derby hats.

Mr. Harris has arranged in the back of his store in view of every patron a blue and gold sign, in script, which shows the name of the store, flanked by these elegant "Truth in Advertising" and "The Newest First Always."

Henceforth the Big Spring woman will have occasion daily to note when Harris is the best at popular prices, has to offer.

Rep. Lawrence Westbrook, Waco, former Texas representative to the national cotton cooperative organization, charged in the house yesterday that Stokes and Williams lost $1,000,000 of the national and state associations' money gambling in cotton.

Westbrook also attacked Cahil Williams, cotton member of the general farm board, as being utterly unfitted for the post.

Each afternoon Coach Gordon "Oble" Bristow meets an eager group of lads at the high school and guides them through light workouts. Today he is requesting every boy in high school to see him this afternoon at 5:30 p. m. at the building and go into a series of drills. He is working men into shape preparatory to a training camp, proposed for August 18.

Only light work is on docket for those who rehearse daily at the high school. Punting, passing, and running are the big items. Loosening-up exercises to bring dormant muscles back into activity also are used. It is a preliminary process.

Bristow and his cohorts are illustrating the aid of citizens by raising money and material for a camp to be held on the Concho river beginning next Tuesday. If present plans go right, a site with adequate playing space, cook shacks, mess hall and water well has been obtained. All depends now on what the supporters of the high school team will do, said Bristow.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13 (AP)—Executive clemency was denied Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, serving a sentence of a year and a day in a New Mexico prison for accepting $100,000 as a bribe from E. L. Doherty, oil man.

The application was refused by Justice William Hitz, of District of Columbia court of appeals, who sat at the Fall trial. ### Magnolia Raises East Texas Crude Price to 25 Cents; Gov. Sterling to Watch Enforcement of New Law

A. M. Fisher's Re-Decorated

New Style Trends Being Seen In Popular Shopping Place

DALLAS, Aug. 13 (AP)—The Magnolia Petroleum company announced effective at 4 a. m. today a raised price for East Texas crude oil from 20 to 25 cents per barrel, flat rate on all grades.

Magnolia, the only company which had maintained a posted price for East Texas crude, was considered in local oil circles the leader in an early general upward trend in crude oil prices in that and other Texas areas.

Although lack of enforcement of the new oil conservation law, enacted last night, would, oil men agreed, leave the industry in the same chaos that has been inflicted upon it for several months they were convinced in most cases that the obviously determined stand of Governor Sterling in use the National Guard to enforce conservation laws and railroad commission orders, if necessary, together with a pronounced movement for a voluntary East Texas shut down, would thrust prices upward before the end of the month.

Meanwhile, refiners were finding a greater demand at a better price for their products.

Local plants which had been forced to take as low as two cents per gallon, and for quite a while around 2-1/4 cents were finding ready market at 3-1/2 to 3-5/8 cents.

AUSTIN, Aug. 13.—Governor Ross S. Sterling late last night signed the oil conservation bill passed a few hours earlier by the Texas legislature.

It thus became a law, and went into immediate effect. Simultaneously, C. V. Terrell, chairman of the state railroad commission, announced the commission would hold a public hearing here August 24 to determine its new anti-waste orders in the East Texas oil fields.

"This is much better than the old law," said the governor, smiling, as he put his pen to the bill. "This law has teeth in it."

He indicated the law's operation would be tested in East Texas, center of overproduction, in the belief it would cure the situation there.

Asked whether all threat of martial law for East Texas was now obviated, he replied:

"Certainly not."

"If those fellows get to cutting up over there we might send in troops at any time."

The governor had threatened, inferentially to send the militia to East Texas, should the legislature not make the steps he considered necessary to end over production and waste.

Terrell said no existing order of the railroad commission would be disturbed by the law, prior to the hearing on August 24, and the promulgation of new orders.

The senate adopted the bill of referred by a free conference committee by vote of 23 to 1, shortly after the house had taken the same action by vote of 125 to 12. The bill thus will become a law with the signature of Governor Sterling. The governor was expected to sign it soon.

Prevent Waste

The bill would give the state railroad commission authority to prevent all forms of physical waste in oil and gas production and would

Stone Urges Plowing Under Of One-Third

Board Would Hold Three Million Bales One Year To Aid Movement

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13 (AP)—Market reports showing cotton opening at $1.25 per bale higher were received with interest today as the farm awaited replies to governors of cotton states on the board's proposal that one third of the present crop be plowed under to increase prices.

Chairman Stone said prevailing low prices undoubtedly would lead farmers to abandon part of the crop but that destruction of a specified portion would have a better effect on the market.

The board promised to hold 3,000,000 bales of stabilization cotton off the market for one year if the plan is adopted.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12 (AP)—The farm board called on southern planters to destroy one-third of their crop now under cultivation, promising in return to hold stabilization surplus stocks from the market for one year.

Telegrams were dispatched to the governors of 14 cotton producing states, urging them to enlist cooperation of every available agency, including farmers and bankers, in this step to increase the price of cotton.

Board Would Hold Three Million Bales One Year To Aid Movement

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12 (AP)—The farm board called on southern planters to destroy one-third of their crop now under cultivation, promising in return to hold stabilization surplus stocks from the market for one year.

Telegrams were dispatched to the governors of 14 cotton producing states, urging them to enlist cooperation of every available agency, including farmers and bankers, in this step to increase the price of cotton.

Provision by Co-Op

They were signed by Chairman Stone, who conferred today with directors of the cotton stabilization corporation and the American cooperative association. Stone said if growers promised to plow under every third row of cotton now growing, the cotton cooperative would be asked also to withhold the 2,000,000 bales it owns from trade channels.

"This program," he asserted, "if fully carried out by southern farmers as well as by ourselves will mean reduction of total supply by at least 4,000,000 bales and withholding from this year's market of 3,000,000 bales more."

The action followed a few days after a government crop forecast in which the 1931 cotton harvest was estimated at 15,844,000 bales, more than 1,500,000 above last year. Cotton prices on every exchange immediately dropped.

The proposal to plow under every third row of cotton was advanced yesterday by Governor Billie of Mississippi.

Probable Carryover

Stone, in his telegrams to the governors of Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, New Mexico, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, and Texas, estimated the probable carryover a year from now under present climatic conditions would be about 11,000,000 bales.

The program would be put into effect September 1, and be completed September 15. The governors were urged to respond immediately stating their attitude on the proposal.

The suggestion was regarded here as the board's most important move since stabilization operations were attempted in 1924. At that time 1,300,000 bales of cotton were bought at an average price of $85 a bale in an effort to steady sagging prices.

Howard County Officers Raid Large Whiskey Plant

The pictures were taken Monday afternoon a few minutes after the Howard county sheriff's department uncovered a large store of whiskey, mash, a still and much paraphernalia in a Mexican cafe and dance hall building on the north side. Those in the top picture are Deputy Denver Dunn (holding a half gallon jar of liquor) Jess Slaughter Jr., the sheriff's son, Sheriff Slaughter, Deputy Andrew Merrick and Deputy Bob Wolf. They are in the "storage" room of the building. Those in the picture are, left to right, Joe Fields, Howard reporter, Sheriff Slaughter, his son, and Deputy Merrick. The place was entered through a secret opening located above Merrick's head. It was a place saved out of the floor of the room shown above. Two of the barrels were filled with liquor, the others pretty full. The still itself was located in the end of the room next to the reader, not visible in the picture. A bank of earth is seen at the right.

Chic Stockings Sheerer, Darker Is The New Rule

PARIS—Sheerer and darker is the new rule for chic stockings worn in Paris this summer and this promise to be the best one for next winter as well.

In spite of the fact that longer skirts are with us, stockings were never more exquisite, a more film of silky cobweb in nearly every case. Since only a mere tiny stretch of leg can be seen, it must be really beautiful, say the fashion-makers; hence, the very finest of covering.

Very smart for morning and town wear are the fine fishnet weaves which come in various meshes but are intended by the way, for only the hickies—sweeps with the very slightest of ankles—since this variety has a curious knack of making this part of the anatomy look thicker.

Dark beige shades are the most popular, nearly always darker than the sun and very often darker than the dress itself.

Although American women really get the stockings styles—France, inasmuch as—Paris, has always the most stylish coverings, many of them purchase them on this side of the water. Gloria Swanson, the film star is one of them and it is rumored she has been laying in a good supply, some of them, 'tis whispered, costing more than three thousand francs per pair—$120.

Sketch of Life of Empress Eugenie— Once Style Leader

The Empress Eugenie was born in May 1826 at Granada, Spain. Her father was a seaman who emigrated to the United States. His ambitious nature caused him to devote his life to politics. He eventually rose to the post of United States consul in Spain.

While in Spain he met the daughter of a high noble family whom he soon married. At this marriage they were blessed with a child and named her Eugenie.

Eugenie was reared at a Paris convent and when she blossomed into a young woman, she fell in love with the future Emperor Napoleon III. She was a beautiful and gorgeous dressed woman and was the most desired woman and desired by women of her class.

At this time, about 1851, when Louis Napoleon was just being crowned, Eugenie had reached 18, her hair was her crowning glory, and her charming dress was her number one.

Louis Napoleon fell madly in love with her and the Empress Eugenie became queen in January 1853 at Notre Dame.

The frivolous nature of Eugenie and Napoleon's desire for a brilliant court made their style the model for civilization. It seemed to be "Eugenie's" one dress—beautiful, costly.

One great feature of Eugenie's dressmakers' measure was her tight corset. Court functions felt away extravagance and elegance became known as the fashion leader of the time.

Thunder Does Not Cool Air, U. S. Forecasters Explain

By WILLIAM S. NEAL,
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12—Thunderstorms do not break heat waves, although this is a common expression.

And when the weather man says "generally fair" in his forecast in the morning he realizes it is quite possible that electrical storms will strike in some part of his forecasting territory.

These and other mistaken impressions are among the things that make life a little worrisome at times to the scientific men who forecast the weather in various parts of the nation.

They have grown sensitive to criticism, because they are sometimes wrong, but more often they feel that they are the victim of mistaken beliefs upon the part of their critics.

Weather forecasting, these earnest employees of Uncle Sam will tell you, originated primarily to protect life at sea. The forecasts were intended to cover vast movements of the air over hundreds of thousands of square miles.

But the service has expanded until there are local forecasts, and even more precise forecasts for the benefit of the aviators who dart about over the country each day.

The temperature may drop 15 to 20 degrees after a thunderstorm, but the weather forecasters object to anyone saying this breaks a heat wave. Their explanation is that as the rain falls in a thunderstorm much of it is evaporated. This takes much heat out of the air. Also the rain is cold when it begins to fall and this cools the air. Since thunderstorms usually occur in the late afternoon, the sun does not have a chance to warm up the atmosphere before night. But if a heat wave is on, it will be back with the sun next day, they explain.

The weather forecasters say that it is impossible to tell just where local thunderstorms will occur. They are akin to an explosion. Recently Washington was rocked by thunderstorms on three successive days but virtually no rain fell in Baltimore 40 miles away.

There are places in North and South Carolina where it would be just as well to have no forecasts at all of thunderstorms in the summer, said a weather bureau forecaster. "You just can't tell when or where they will occur."

Nevertheless the weather bureau is proud of its record. The bureau's report for the past four years in the harvesting of alfalfa. He wants to be assured that it will not rain for a couple of days when he cuts it, and in four years he has not lost any of the product.

The weather bureau's chief, in regard to accuracy, the forecasters explain, is impure in predicting widespread movements. When a cold wave is discovered in the northwest they usually can chart its course eastward. The same is true of storms and of hurricanes which sweep out of the Caribbean sea.

News About The Clubhouse Market And Receipts For Watermelon Preserves And Pickles

I am wondering if all of you know about the Saturday market at the club house. It has been open the past two Saturdays, and from all accounts, will be permanent. Farm products are brought to the market and sold to the town women.

The market is controlled by the women's home demonstration council, which locates foods to be sold. The city federation organizes the buyers. Last week, at the request of the federation, announcements were made in the men's service clubs. The members have called some of their friends, but as yet, of course, have not been able to reach everyone. However, there was a good representation of the town women at the market last Saturday.

The proceeds the first day were about $21, and last week, $28. There were calls for more chickens, eggs, butter and cream than the women brought in.

Attractive Foods Sell
In addition to these products there were corn, peas already shelled and snapped, string beans prepared for cooking, tomatoes, cantaloupes, watermelon, cakes, pies, brown bread, rolls, cookies, potato salad, cottage cheese, canned meats, chicken, canned peas and beans, corn relish and bread and butter pickles. The women have found that the most attractively prepared foods sell first.

Mrs. Bob Eubanks is bookkeeper and market manager. Two or more city federation women and as many farm women help each day. Ten per cent of the proceeds goes to the federation for the use of the building.

By the way, watermelon time is here in all its red and green glory. I am giving two watermelon rind recipes. Please save them. They are the hardest things in the world to find, if you lose them, because so few cook books carry them.

Watermelon Rind Sweet Pickles
7 pounds of prepared watermelon rind
3 pints vinegar
4 pounds sugar
3-4 ounces cloves (whole)
2 sticks cinnamon
1-2 ounces ginger root
Prepare 7 pounds of rind. Remove all pink and green of rind. Cut these pieces into uniform strips as illustrated for sweet pickles rind. Combine vinegar, sugar and spices, and cook until sugar is dissolved. Add the strips of rind and cook until clear and tender. Seal in sterilized standard containers 5 and 8 ounces size. Fill jars to overflowing. Pack rind firmly in jars and use a small bit of stick cinnamon bark for garnish. Clean jar and label. Store in cool dark place.

Watermelon Rind Preserves
4 pounds watermelon rind (prepared)
2 quarts sugar
4 quarts water
1 lemon sliced thin
Juice of 12 lemons
6-8 pieces of root ginger
Lime-water proportion:
2 tablespoons lime or calcium oxide
2 quarts water

The thick rind melon is preferred for preserves. Remove peel and any pink meat of the melon. Soak in lime-water overnight using proportions as given above. Next morning drain and allow rind to stand in fresh cold water for two hours. Drain, drop in boiling water, cook very rapidly for 10 minutes. Drain again, and add gradually to the syrup (made by boiling together the 8 cups of sugar and 4 quarts of water). Add the lemon juice and root ginger which has been cut into about 1-2 inch lengths. Cook until the rind is tender and transparent. About 15 minutes before it has finished cooking, add the slices of lemon. Avoid breaking or tearing the lemon slices.

Pack firmly into sterilized 5 or 8 ounce standard glass containers. Fill to overflowing. Garnish with one slice of lemon and a bit of root ginger. Seal and process for 15 minutes at 10 pounds pressure. Wash and label jars before storing. Only the small green 4-H labels should be used. Place label one-fourth inch from bottom of jar.

Town women are already responding to the cry for empty glass jars and will probably bring in many more to me during the next two or three weeks. They are also saving paper bags, egg cartons, and cake cartons to take to the Clubhouse on Saturday for the market.

Sincerely yours,
LOUILLIE ALLGOOD.

Shooting Stars To Be On Exhibit In Heavens Tonight

Star-gazers will have something to gaze upon this week for this is the time of the year for the Perseids to appear. They are shooting stars which leave yellowish trails behind them.

According to "Nature Magazine" August 12 - today - is the evening in which they are to be seen in the greatest number. They really will be on display most of the week.

Western star-gazers are more accustomed to falling stars probably than their eastern friends whose skies are cloudy so much of the time. But these Perseids are a sight for even hardened gazers. More than one a minute is supposed to shoot across the heavens at the time of their greatest frequency.

The particular hour is vague. Most likely it is late, about midnight. But lesser displays are expected earlier.

Meteors are said by the astronomers to be grains of dust heated to incandescence by the friction caused by their encounter with the earth's atmosphere. Most of them follow in the orbits of periodic comets.

They come quickly and disappear quickly and weigh only a few grains at most.

RETURN FROM VACATION
Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Patterson have returned from a vacation trip to Amarillo and Berger and Pyote, visiting their children. Their daughters, Mrs. F. T. Crews and Mrs. W. K. Mills live at Amarillo and Pyote, respectively. Their son, C. L. Junior makes his home at Berger. They say the country is in fine condition.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH PRACTICE
There will be choir practice Friday at the First Baptist Church. announces the choir leader.

MR. FRAZIER LEAVES
Bruce Frazier left Wednesday with his son, James Bruce for the Colorado Mountains. He met his mother and father in Sweetwater and they accompanied him. Mrs. Frazier and her mother and daughter plan to go to Mineral Wells for two weeks in the near future.

Louis Hiles plans to visit in Fargo, N. Dak., with a traveling companion before his return. He will probably be in Fargo tomorrow and his host will then come to Big Spring with him.

REBEKAHS INITIATE MEMBERS

The Rebekahs met Wednesday evening for initiation. Mrs. Euts Plumm was made a member of the order.

Mrs. W. D. McDonald and Mrs. J. B. Hodges are spending the day in Lubbock.

Advance Fall Fashions

Judging from the little hats that are coming from the child-moosies the autumn collections will certainly have clothes from the two periods they represent, those of 1870 and of about one century earlier.

And now that we have had every possible type of long skirt, short in front, short at the sides and even all around, it is more likely we will go back to the short-in-the-front phase. And this does not mean that legs and ankles will be on view, but frilly, fluffy lace petticoats instead.

Watch the Waistline
Waistlines too, will come in for watching. Not a few frocks seen at the recent race-meeting showed the waistline settling in the old familiar normal spot, or just a wee bit higher. Seches on maulin and organdie gowns give a quaint high-waisted effect which every woman must not and cannot wear.

Backs of evening dresses seem to be higher and wraps which match them are trimmed with fur.

Plants will make way for slight flares giving the silhouette a slim and slender line with a noticeable pinch at the waist.

More shades of blue are prophesied for autumn, veering on green. Coming in feather-velvet and wools for sport frocks and coats-dresses.

Leopard Jackets Win Fall Favor

PARIS (AP)—Leopard jackets, another style influence of the Colonial Exposition—promise to be one of the smartest wraps for fall wear. Most of them are no longer than waist length and fit snugly to the figure. They are worn with bright colored skirts.

Red In All Shades To Be Fall Color

NEW YORK (AP)—Red is the most talked of color for fall. The shades vary all the way from brick to dark carnation, including granium, magenta and bordeaux. A rich vine red promises to be the most fashionable tint.

Sailor Collar On Evening Gown

PARIS (AP)—Jack Tar's sailor collar is a new wrinkle on madame's new evening gown. Some of the newest white crepe or satin, dance and dinner frocks have matching sailor collars falling half way down the back of the gown. Necklines on such frocks are necessarily high.

Two Handkerchiefs Evening Fad

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two chiffon handkerchiefs, sometimes three, to carry out the color scheme of an evening costume are the newest wrinkle.

Rich Fabrics

Richness is the rule for early fall fabrics.

Following predictions of eighteenth century sumptuousness in the winter mode, materials for early autumn, so far shown, display quiet elegance and richness in weave and sheen.

Dull fabrics dominate the mode. New laces are seen, displaying a treatment of metal threads used as a discreet background for dull satins or crepes, instead of forming distinct gilded patterns as formerly.

Motives in heavy rich watered designs, woven to drape voluptuously to the figure, also promise to be part of the formal fall mode.

Many dull surfaced silks are patterned with figures of the same color but of another fabric.

Black is hailed as the outstanding winter color by one prominent couturier, while others promise favor for rich dark colors.

Old Juarez Jail May Be Torn Down

EL PASO, Aug. 13. (AP)—Scared with bullets, gray with age, the jail in Juarez, scene of many a bitter revolutionary fight, may be torn down soon and replaced by a modern prison.

An attempt of several prisoners to escape recently, frustrated by gun fire of sentries, has led authorities to consider demolishing the adobe building, more than 100 years old.

"The favorite indoor sport of prisoners, especially long termers, is to attempt an escape," said Abraham Arriola, chief jailer. "The walls are old and crumbly, and despite all vigilance there is a chance one of the breaks will be successful and someone shag."

In the most recent attempt, five prisoners dug a large hole in a wall and four passed through before being discovered. The sentries opened fire and drove the four back into the prison. A search disclosed a number of digging tools inside the walls.

Records do not show just how old the building is, but its age is unquestionably great. Fabricio Ferris, 86, more than 55 years on the police force, said it was old when he first came to Juarez. It was reconstructed in 1901 by Gov. Miguel Ahumada.

The walls bear many bullet holes as evidence of the battles between attacking and defending government or revolutionary troops. Like other public buildings nearby, it always has been a target for armies seeking to capture the town.

During wars, many military prisoners have been confined there, and even in times of peace its population usually is considerable, frequently added to by arrests of Americans, mostly for intoxication and disturbing the peace. All day long a military sentry with loaded rifle paces up and down before the entrance.

The prisoners have an organization, known as "pro-regeneration," 200 members of which recently denied they were guilty of crimes of which they had been convicted and asked to be freed so they might return to their families. They sought intercession of the chamber of commerce with the state and federal governments.

The jail is a favorite sight with tourists, and its picture on post cards is one of the best sellers with curio shops.

The society is the fun-making group of the American Legion and derives its name from the signs painted on French railroad freight cars in which American doughboys did much traveling during the World war.

Would Lift Duty On Automobiles Going To Mexico

BROWNSVILLE, Aug. 13. (AP)—As a step toward encouraging the tourist traffic into Mexico, the removal of all duty requirements on tourist automobiles going into that republic is sought by A. L. Rodriguez, general manager of the Mexican Automobile Association, which now bonds automobiles going into Mexico. He lives at Monterrey.

Rodriguez has been in communication recently with officials of the Comité Pro-Turismo in Mexico City, and with customs officials. The loss in revenue from removal of the duty will be made up by the new gasoline tax, he explained, and further expressed the opinion that the increased tourist traffic would greatly outweigh any loss from the customs duty removal.

At the present time a heavy duty is charged on automobiles, although tourists are permitted to take their automobiles into Mexico without duty, furnishing a bond guaranteeing their return to this country, or payment of duty. Recently the Matamoros chamber of commerce, opposite, was authorized to bond automobiles.

Rubber Glove In Canal Causes Stir

EL PASO, Aug. 13. (AP)—A dead man. The cry resounded through narrow alleys between adobe houses. A dead man in Franklin canal. Through the murky waters, one hand could be plainly seen.

Two squads of police rushed to the scene. Residents of the neighborhood joined them. For blocks they followed the hand as it swept rapidly downstream on the crest of a flood.

Then an unidentified man leaped into the water and made the "rescue." He pulled an old rubber glove safely to the bank.

The fingers had filled with air, causing the glove to float with palm outstretched, in all verity resembling the hand of a man.

WALKER SAILS FOR GERMANY

Mayor James J. Walker (left) of New York in all his sartorial splendor and ready wit, sailed for Germany for a five weeks' rest cure. Here he is with Police Commissioner Mulrooney who was on hand to bid him good-bye. He expects to spend the time at various German spas seeking to regain his health.

The Volga River in Russia, made famous by the song of the Volga Boatman, is the largest river in Europe. Tourists are now able to view its constantly changing banks from the decks of steamers especially built for this service.

Animals Sole Passengers On Express Plane

BERLIN—"D 32," an all metal monoplane, popularly called the "Flying Zoo," probably carries the oddest parties of air passengers on its regular flights from Berlin to London.

From monkeys down to gold fish, all sorts of animal passengers may book a passage on the "D 32," but human beings are strictly excluded, except the pilot and his mechanic.

The animal passengers do not pay a per head price for the flight, but are weighed in and charged accordingly. A minimum charge of 1.75 marks, which is approximately forty cents, is fixed for one kilogram.

That "D 32" deserves its nickname may be seen from the party the plane carried recently.

There was a gold fish by the name of "Henry." It was meant as a birthday present for Miss Marianne von den Brinken, London. Francis Drake Avenue 17, and the sender figured as "Daddy."

Snakes, all traveling to London as new acquisitions for the Zoo there, just as was Henry, beat the record of good behavior by sleeping peacefully throughout the flight.

A number of dogs and chickens, however, obviously were so delighted about the flight that their joyous barking and clucking almost drowned the roar of the motor.

A monkey addressed to Gladys O'Neill, a London actress, took the adventure in a highly dignified way, while his traveling companion a young marten got air sick and made a desperate attempt to escape a few thousand feet over Belgium. As a rule, animal passengers get less air-sick than their human brethren.

The Valley Box and Crata factory of San Benito has announced a plan to replace a machine with five men, paying the workers what ordinarily is required to operate the machine. The device supplied by manual labor can drive 24 nails at one time. The men are guaranteed at least $10 each weekly.

Miner Invented The Alphabet, Says Bedouin

The alphabet is of Semitic origin, not Phoenician, and its inventor was possibly a mine foreman who wished to keep records of operations. In this manner does Professor Martin Sprengling of the University of Chicago suggest a solution to one of the riddles which has puzzled modern archaeologists. His theories have just been published in a monograph of the University's Oriental Institute. According to Professor Sprengling's deduction, some Bedouin managing a mine for the Egyptians, devised the rudimentary alphabet in the half century between 1500 and 1800 B. C. In order to keep his records, the professor states in his monograph, the Bedouin took the complex hieroglyphic inscriptions of the Egyptians and evolved a simple system of 21 symbols, discarding entirely the picture element of the Egyptian language.

Professor Sprengling succeeded in translating inscriptions found in 194 by Sir Flinders Petrie in Sinai, which lies between Egypt and the northern part of Arabia, at the head of the Red Sea. It was at this point, supposedly, that Moses received the law from God. In the mountainous region to the south the Egyptians conducted mining operations for copper, turquoise and other minerals and stones. At that time the Egyptian empire was flourishing, and the industrial boom at Sinai attracted numerous Bedouins as laborers. There are fourteen known examples of the inscription and scholars have disagreed violently on their interpretation. Some have attempted to read into the markings references to Moses and his hostility to Egypt.

Professor Sprengling's translations are simpler than any other, and they check with the known historical facts. He has shown that most of the inscriptions are in the nature of dedications to Baalat, the feminine form of the god Baal. Most of the inscriptions, according to the professor, give thanks or petition for favors. The inscription which presented the greatest difficulty to archaeologists was one found in a mine. According to Professor Sprengling's translation, it reads: "I am the badger (miner)

Sahmilat, foreman of mineshaft No. 4." After he had made this translation, Professor Sprengling found a full account of the mining operations of the Egyptians, which pointed out that at this period mine foremen were honored and treated with royal courtesy, and that the mineshafts were named after them.

The translation of the dedicatory tablet, Professor Sprengling contends, is proof of this practice from Semitic sources and enables dating of the origin of the alphabet.

set up stringent court procedure for operators questioning or violating the commission's orders.

The conference bill adopted was a composite of administration views as embodied in a bill the house had passed and of anti-administration views as carried in the bill the senate had substituted.

Senator Walter C. Woodward of Sulphur, administration leader, said the governor had not read the adopted bill, so far as he knew, and that he was "certain" it met the governor's "full approval."

A long occupation of the entire oil industry occupied the legislature after it first was called into session. That finished the consideration of many bills began—a consideration that finally resulted in the house and senate bills brought together in the free conference.

The governor's first proposal, the creation of a new conservation commission, was decided in both houses. The conservation bill was the second half of his program.

Meanwhile the legislature had finally passed a pipeline bill designed to make market outlet more available to the independent or small producer. A graduated tax on crude production had failed, the senate refusing to accept the house bill, which had been passed there.

Three salient provisions were in the bill. They would: Empower the railroad commission, in an area where there was physical waste, to adjust or reduce production ratably among the wells in the offending zone. That provision, it was believed by leaders, would be applicable particularly to East Texas.

Further the commission to set the oil-gas ratio—the amount of gas used to raise a barrel of oil—and to compel adoption of such a ratio by the producer.

Provide a fine of $1,000 for each day of violation of a commission order and require any complainant of commission orders to post a bond sufficient to indemnify all neighboring operators who might in the county's judgment, be damaged by an excessive operation of the plaintiff. All actions against the commission would be brought in Travis county (Austin). The body's orders would be deemed prima facie valid "until otherwise shown."

The definitions of waste in the bill were broad and included waste incident to "excessive" operations of all sorts.

A tax of one-tenth of one cent per barrel would be levied on crude petroleum for purpose of enforcing the commission's regulations.

Supply and Demand The commission, under the bill would be specifically prohibited from considering economic waste in its orders, and likewise would be inhibited from making any effort to limit supply to demand. Oil-gas regulations proposed were qualified by the statement that the bill never should be construed to prevent storage except for prevention of physical waste.

Violators of commission orders would be subject to a fine of $1,000 "for each and every day of such violation."

It was provided that waste, in addition to its "ordinary meaning" should have the following definitions: "Operation of any well with gas-oil ratio exceeding that fixed by the commission.

"Drowning with water of any stratum capable of producing oil or gas or both in paying quantities.

"Underground waste caused by the premature intrusion of water into any producing well or wells producing methods.

Permitting any natural gas to wastefully burn.

"Wasteful use of gas.

"Wasteful utilization of natural gas; provided utilization of gas from well producing both oil and gas for manufacturing natural gasoline shall not be construed waste.

"Creating unnecessary fire hazards.

"Actual physical waste incident to or resulting from so drilling, equipping, locating, spacing or operating wells so as to reduce, or tend to reduce the ultimate total oil or gas.

Mrs. Schermerhorn Claimed By Death

Mrs. Robert F. Schermerhorn died at 5:20 o'clock Thursday morning in a Raton, New Mexico, hospital.

Friends here had not been informed definitely whether the body would be brought here. It was understood burial would be made either in Indianapolis, Ind., home of Mrs. Schermerhorn's mother's family, or in Minneapolis, Mich., where Mr. Schermerhorn's family home is.

Mrs. Schermerhorn was the only child of Mr. and Mrs. J. Drennan Ochsner, who resided here many years. She was returning from her wedding trip in the Hawaiian Islands, when she became ill in San Francisco. An appendicitis developed and failure to have an operation, according to physicians, led to acute peritonitis. An operation was performed early Wednesday.

City's Greatest Need Not Material Declares Lindley

Deeper consciousness of moral and religious responsibility in Big Spring's greatest need, declared Rev. D. R. Lindley, pastor of the First Christian church, in an address Thursday before the Kiwanis club.

Rev. Lindley's address was the feature of a program led by Virgil Smith. He declared that needs of the community are admirably numerous, as are those of any town of this size and nature. In spite of the great need for additional railroad facilities, better roads, continuing improvements in educational facilities and other lines, revival of moral and religious consciousness is paramount, he declared.

"Sometimes I think we have too many citizens who are on the fence between service and selfishness, religion and irreligion, progressiveness and reactionism, self and others," said Rev. Lindley. "Many times have fellows flocked to service clubs, lodges and churches and talked much about service when as a matter of fact in their hearts they were measuring the extent of what they could get out of being members of those organizations, by being associated with the men composing those groups."

Ray Wilcox, next week's program chairman, announced committee chairmen would be asked to review the duties of their respective committees, report on what they had done during the year.

Miss Katherine Sangster, D. R. Lindley and E. V. Spence were guests of the day.

A nominating committee to recommend members to fill a vacancy on the board of directors and in the vice-presidency was named by President G. R. Porter, as follows: Merle Stewart, Bernard Fisher, L. D. Invenport.

Edison Smith urged support of an effort to raise funds for a training camp for high school football players.

Wendell Beldieck asked support of the club in an effort to bring the 1932 convention of the West Texas Press Association to Big Spring. The organization meets in Lubbock Friday and Saturday.

All-Mexican Game Goes To Eagle Nine

In an all-Mexican affair the Brown Eagles, under the direction of Manager Mendez, triumphed decisively over the Tigers on Wednesday at Pacific ball grounds.

The Eagles, flushed with youth, got next to three Tiger batters and handled the entire trio in easy fashion, getting hits at will.

Y. Yanga started for the Tigers, but was chased to the showers in the fourth inning when the Eagles laughed everything he tossed up. Hernandez relieved him but soon followed the same route being relieved by Lopez who fared exceptionally well. Rotten support seen in a measure responsible for the poor showing of Yanga.

Seniceros, twirling for the Eagles, was entirely too much for the Tiger delegation. It was seldom that the opposition hoisted one of his slants out of the infield.

Score by innings: Tigers... 100 111 0—4 7 6 Brown Eagles... 001 11 00 0—12 16 2 whereabouts are unknown.

Contract To Be Let For Bridge Over Red River

VERNON, Texas, Aug. 13 (AP)—Members of the Oklahoma commission and Governor W. H. Murray are expected to sign the contract for the Vernon-Elmer Red river bridge, 20 miles north of this city, within a few days, County Judge J. V. Townsend said on his return from Oklahoma City. Judge Townsend obtained the contract at Austin and took it to Oklahoma City by airplane. Governor Ross S. Sterling has indicated he would sign the agreement as soon as the Oklahoma officials signed it.

The contract was jointly awarded in May to W. R. Crawford of Dallas on a bid of $122,501.44 by the Texas Oklahoma commission. Since that time, however, the contract has been delayed in completion by objections of Attorney General J. V. Alford to some terms.

Kumote Seat Will Be Taken To Court

BEAUMONT, Texas, Aug. 13 (AP)—Since its birth the kumote seat has been the target for jibes of joke-writers. Now it's going to court.

That undignified portion of a borrowed automobile plays an important role in a suit filed in Twenty-ninth district court here, wherein F. M. Albrecht seeks damages of $2,250 from G. K. Appelman, automobile dealer.

The plaintiff's petition alleges that he was forced to make a trip in a borrowed car while his defendant was in possession of the defendant, reasons not stated, and that repairs accompanying him had to ride to the kumote seat.

The heat was terrific and when it rained, the plaintiff was forth and the mental anguish and discomfort caused by the wetting of the kumote damaged the plaintiff to the extent of $1,000. Other claims for damages are, value of the sedan, $1,250 and loss of its use for 10 days at $10 per day, $100.

The sheriff, legal custodian of the court house and its environs, has been vexed by the southwest corner of the square where farmers hold forth with an unwelcome watermelon-peach-vegetable market, being daily cluttered from the residue from extemporaneous watermelon feasts.

Young Man Goes To Prison With His Parole In Pocket

AUSTIN, Texas, Aug. 13 (INS)—Charlie Elms, sentenced to prison on a liquor law violation charge, was en route to Huntsville today with his own parole in his own pocket, to deliver to prison officials.

Elms, 24 years old, thus gains the distinction of being the only prisoner to ever carry his own clemency from Governor Ross Sterling to prison officials. So far as Pat Dougherty, governor's secretary, knows, it's the first case on record; and Pat had served four years under Governor Moody before he became Governor Sterling's secretary.

The young man, Dougherty said, was a trusty in the prison and he such served as chauffeur to Mrs. Lee Simmons, whose husband manages the penitentiary system.

Tuesday Mrs. Simmons came to Austin, with Elms at the wheel of her car, and while they were here they stopped in to see the governor.

He is from Fort Worth. He has served two years of his three year term.

Mother Jails Four-Year-Old To Reform Him, Excites Town

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 6 (AP)—The principal of numerous runa ways, four-year-old Roger Perry, Jr., has set the whole town by the ears because his mother had him locked in jail overnight.

Police Commissioner Lee Waller reprimanded the mother, Mrs. Dorothy Tady Perry, and Chief of Police Richard Holliday. Mayor Walter E. Quisenberry said he would investigate, and a psychiatrist was retained by Mrs. Perry to study Roger's wanderlust.

"You can't use this police station as a reformatory," was Commissioner Waller's dictum.

"Why should not police, like doctors, do preventive work as well as curative?" was Mrs. Perry's rejoinder.

Roger's father, Lieutenant Perry, has been stationed on the U.S.S. Saratoga on the Pacific coast.

Last August, in Long Beach, Cal., the boy left home at 4 a. m. and was recovered at the police station three hours later.

"After that," Mrs. Perry says, "I tried straps and paddles to keep him within bounds, but he still had his wanderlust."

He had a yard to play in the many lots, but that was not enough. I never whipped him.

"In May this year he ran away three times. Once Chief of Police Holliday brought him back, dropping a vest. He had taken overcoats from a boat."

"Then the other day he was recovered from a railroad train. He said he was going to visit New York."

His nursery school teacher advised me to try a fake Al. I arranged with Mr. Holliday to lock him up the next time he ran away. The police found him in an electric car again headed for New York.

"They did not frighten him at the

Roger Perry's wanderlust may have been cured by a night in jail, but the police commissioner rebuked his mother.

'Dad' Williams To Renew Aid To Former Convicts

CLEVELAND (INS)—Sam S. Williams, with the aid of the Cuyahoga County Bar Association, is planning to resume his business of the last half century—that of helping paroled prisoners re-establish themselves in society—after a temporary suspension because of lack of finances.

"Dad" Williams, as he is more familiarly known, has aided thousands of men to regain their places in society and to maintain them.

For a number of years, the work was only a sideline with Williams. Then in 1922, he founded the Sam S. Williams Voucher Club, Inc., for the purpose of extending free loans to men released from penal institutions. Funds of the club became exhausted by the ever increasing demands from prisoners as the organization became more widely known. "Dad's" own life savings were spent as well as funds of the club, and the business came to a standstill.

With the assistance of the radio, the bar association men, organized to have "Dad" and some of his associates, been last talks about the Voucher Club's work in conjunction with the association's support on the suppression of crime. It was hoped this presentation of Williams' work would enlist the aid of influential persons who could loan him in continuing his work.

"One of the points made in the suppression of crime is the rehabilitation of those paroled from penal institutions," Attorney Mas-

Telegrams Urge Mobilizing Guard

AUSTIN, Texas, Aug. 13 (INS)—From every section of Texas and from a few bordering states, telegrams continued yesterday to pour in to Governor Sterling's office, urging him to follow the lead of Governor Bill Murray and call out the militia to stop oil production waste.

The telegrams, which started coming soon after the governor's public statement of Monday night intimating he would use martial law as a final resort, were from chambers of commerce, oil operators, associations of operators, private citizens. The tone of all was the same—follow Bill Murray's lead.

A few of the typical telegrams were:

"People here will heartily endorse action by you establishing martial law and enforcing production in East Texas. Outlaws in East Texas should not be permitted to invade Oklahoma territory with oil produced in violation of law." W. L. Evans, Fort Worth.

"Southwest Texas independents pledge you support in using militia. We don't think Texas should be turned over to Sinclair and his friends." Al Buchanan and F. B. LeFevre, San Antonio.

Within Powers.

"We believe it lies within vested powers of your office immediately to stop astounding loss and deplorable economic waste in all the producing areas of Texas. We urge you immediately stop this waste and if drastic measures are necessary let them come." Boll and Grady, Inc., Dallas.

"Shut down under martial law where oil production is getting labor and volume."

erts, R. F. Hefflin, A. B. Edwards, Houston.

"Plenty honest citizens ready to serve under your orders." Signed by eleven citizens of Lockhart.

"In view of cute situation in oil industry we respectfully urge you adopt Oklahoma plan for shutting down flush production. We see no other method for preventing complete destruction of independent producers by monopolistic tactics." Infield Petroleum Co. and a score of others, Brownwood.

"The people feel the legislature has failed them, and they are now looking to the executive for drastic remedy." Hugh Gill, Houston.

"Believe only martial law can secure just compensation for our oil." J. P. Maxwell, Henderson.

"Necessity of martial law evident. Trust you will act courageously." R. G. Butler, Henderson.

"Call out the militia. Will be with you to the end..." James Jeter, representing independent oil men, Shreveport.
