

Cocky William Haines At Ritz In "Just A Gigolo"

Haines Has New Girl In Latest Hit

Irene Purcell Takes Opposite In Comical Situation

Gigolo

William Haines, cocky gentleman of the screen is thrown in highly complicated situations with pretty Irene Purcell as his leading lady in "Just a Gigolo" at the Ritz today, Monday and Tuesday.

"Just A Gigolo," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's filmization of the Helms stage hit, "Dancing Partner," with the irrepressible William Haines masquerading as a gigolo in a European summer resort, is the new attraction which opens today at the Ritz theater for a three day stand.

Haines romps through a whimsical, comical situation that is varied with a few tense dramatic moments and a couple of heart throbs. Two members of the original David Belasco stage cast, brought from New York for the picture, help preserve all of the flavor of the original, while spectacle is added in an airplane element, scenes in replicas of famous spots in Europe, and other details.

Haines plays a young British nobleman with an American background, a role unique in his career. Jack Conway, who directed the star in "Alias Jimmy Valentine," and who recently scored with "Paid," directed the new Haines production.

Irene Purcell featured. Irene Purcell plays the role she did on the stage as the sophisticated heroine, and Charlotte Granville is seen in her stage role as the mother. The cast also includes C. Aubrey Smith, Lillian Bond, Albert Conti, Maria Alba, Ray Milland, Lenore Bachman, Gerald Fielding and Yola D'Arcy.

PRIZE WINNING HERD
OZONA, Texas, July 11 (AP)—Re-elected cattle of Joe T. Davidson, Crockett county ranchman, secured one of the most impressive triumphs in the history of cattle shows in Texas when the herd took all but one of the first prizes in the annual cattle show held in conjunction with the Crockett county fair, John Purus, secretary of the Texas Livestock Marketing Association, was the judge.

Custom Is Shattered In A Show

Unique Ending Climaxes Excellent Acting In 'Sin Ship'

Talking picture precedent is shattered in Radio Pictures' nautical melodrama, "The Sin Ship," coming to the Queen Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday.

"The first new thing since the birth of the talkies," advance notices declare.

For the first time in talking history, the handsome hero fails to win the girl as custom ordains. There is no handsome hero in the picture. The result is one of the most original and powerful productions to date.

One Woman Aboard
Mary Astor portrays the girl, thrown by circumstances into the grip of the captain and crew of a South Seas tramp schooner. The wide sea is between her and all human aid. There is nothing but her own sex and appeal as protection against.

Louis Wolheim, the captain, a British "lady killer,"
Jan Keith, the crook who got her drunk.
Alan Roscoe, sea-bitten and conscienceless.
Hugh Herbert, the mate, afraid of the captain, but ambitious.
And a motley crew, whose emotions consist of caligoes.

Victor For Love!
One of these men wins the girl! That this tremendously gripping story ends in a beautiful climax in spite of the grim characters involved, marks it as an artistic masterpiece of performance and direction. It is a great feather in the cap of Wolheim, for he directed as well as played one of the featured roles.

Post's Strong Physique and Ripe Skill Enable Him to Stay With Stick Through Great Air Dash

By LEON H. DURST
(Copyright, 1931, by The Associated Press)

Once he was over the Atlantic, a wandering world feverishly followed the flight of Wiley Post and the cream-colored "Winnie Mae." Through fog, snow and rain—fair weather and foul—flying sometimes low and others high, Post stoutly stuck to the stick while navigator Harold (Doc) Gatty sent through earpieces the tale his instruments told.

Names and people strange to the one-time Texas farm lad disappeared on the rapidly running curve the "Winnie Mae" was describing.

From a potent physique, the heritage of southwest pioneers, which work on farm, in machine shops and in oil wells had ripped with steel muscles, Wiley drew for the mighty energy necessary to fulfill his dream. Years at the controls as a test pilot, a national air derby winner, and a barnstormer brought ripe skill.

Careful
His loss of an eye months before he was given a pilot's license, a spur to him "to be particularly careful in flying," as well as his admitted "sense of fear" also contributed to the triumphant tour of the Winnie Mae.

With 14 great hops behind him and only about 35 hours of sleep, to his credit he rode out of the sun, to Roosevelt Field 5 days, 15 hours and 31 minutes after his Winnie Mae had left it.

He had eclipsed the earth-circling record of the Graf Zeppelin by 12 days, 15 hours, 33 minutes. The world record of Magellan's ship as set by the Navy's bark, the Santa Maria, gave him and Gatty a meager record only for 19th-century illustrious heroes. World renown signified by a framed newspaper clipping in landing the feat. Post and Gatty were the only men to set a record in crossing the globe in a single trip.

Gift of a World
The American won the first prize of a world war airplane. The Navy gave him and Gatty a meager record only for 19th-century illustrious heroes. World renown signified by a framed newspaper clipping in landing the feat. Post and Gatty were the only men to set a record in crossing the globe in a single trip.

To Oklahoma
Then to Oklahoma, he took of this. He flew with his navigator and one home team to have their say about the young man who would go to the moon. It was here that the legend of "Franklin" faced the world.

Who as a 16-year-old boy stood high in the ranks in high school, and later, came from the "Winnie Mae" expedition of 1931. He was the first to set a record in crossing the globe in a single trip.

He found the pot of gold. He may be even now scanning the western horizon for the glow of a "big" rainbow with gold even more glittering.

Friends say that Wiley is "built that way."

'3 Girls Lost' A Clever Show

"Dancing is the most important single factor in preparing for a screen career."

This is the opinion of Loretta Young, who plays the feminine lead in "3 Girls Lost," the Fox comedy romance opening Monday at the Queen Theatre.

"Few persons realize," Miss Young says, "how essential a good carriage and posture is to the aspirant for picture stardom. Any slight awkwardness in walking or standing that might easily be overlooked in ordinary life, becomes immensely magnified on the screen, and it is fatal to one's success. Had camera angles, voice defects and such handicaps may be remedied with a little care, but a graceful carriage is almost impossible to acquire unless one is trained from an early age, or unless one has it to begin with."

There is very little demand for dancing on the screen today, and the flexibility of figure that dancing training gives, is invaluable. In addition to that, dancing is excellent exercise, and gives one the physique to endure the often arduous requirements of picture work—requirements that may include day and night work for weeks at a time, and the hard ships of location trips into the hot desert, or among rocks and deep snow in the mountains.

Miss Young's own figure, which won her acclaim from many artists and beauty experts, is the product of many years of rigorous training. From the age of seven until she went into pictures as a dancer, she spent from one to three hours every day in studying and practicing dancing. Modern steps under the tutelage of Ernest Belcher, and classic dancing under Ruth St. Denis were the foundations of her work, in addition to innumerable hours at home, and so this background, the actress gives credit for much of her success. In "3 Girls Lost," Miss Young plays the role of a country girl who comes to Chicago in search of romance, and finds plenty of adventures along her path.

John Wayne who rose to stardom over night by his remarkable portrayal of the "great hero" in "The Big Trail" and "Law Code" have the leading male parts, with Joyce Compton and Joan Marsh as well as the model in the Women's other two "lost girls," and such favorites as Andre Bogner, Adolphe Menjou, Paul Fix and Dorothy Clark Ward in the supporting cast. Sidney Lanfield directed the production.

Plans are under way for a $100,000 Kansas City open golf tourney next year. Mrs. O. S. Hill won the title in the other two "lost girls," and such

THE Post-Glatty flight around the world seems more like a work of art than a scientific achievement.

EXIT by Harold Bell Wright

SYNOPSIS: Because the old Harry had loved Martin, he encourages the theatrical separation of Bruce and Ann.

Chapter 13: NO TIME TO LOSE: BOTH Martin and his daughter, Ann, remained speechless while Tony as if he were speaking lines in a play.

Ann spoke thoughtfully. "I tremble sometimes to think what Bruce's determination to be rich may lead him to."

Martin, cowed by the dignity of the old actor, but stung by his words, could only mumble. "You think you're somebody, don't you?"

Ann looked at her father. "I know I am," she said. "I feel you're a better person than I am."

Martin faced his daughter. "We all are fond of Bruce, but you don't seem to appreciate the situation."

Before entering the room he hung his coat and hat over the stair rail, calling out as he did so: "Supper about ready, Ann? I've got to go to Camden to-night—7:40 train. Get a move on, will you?"

Ann sprang to her feet. "My goodness, I forgot about supper! But you have plenty of time. There's no need for such a rush."

"Much you know about it," Bruce retorted. "Isn't Pierre leaving on the 6:15 train in the morning?"

"Yes," said Ann. "Yes," returned Bruce, "and I can't get a train back here before eight o'clock. If I talk business with Pierre I've got to do it to-night—see?"

Ann went into the kitchen and began preparing supper. Old Tony said, "How do you do, Bruce?"

Bruce answered with a cool stare and a grin. "Hello," then, pointedly turning his back, he said to Martin: "Our old boss would pick this evening to send me to Camden with some papers for Fuller, the president of the Farmers' National."

"It's business that has to be in Fuller's hands when the bank opens tomorrow, I suppose," returned Martin.

"Yeah," Bruce replied, "but outside of banking hours my time's supposed to be my own. The First National doesn't own me body and soul like it does you."

Suddenly Bruce turned to Ann and demanded imperiously: "Where is Pierre? I'm going to talk business with that would-be actor."

Tomorrow an ill-timed entrance by Bruce brings confusion to Ann and Pierre.

Car Owners Bought More Firestone Tires During April, May and June than in any like period in History

There are reasons for this—Firestone is now building the Greatest Tire Values in history, with the result that Firestone factories are operating 24 hours a day, 6 days a week, to meet public preference.

This is the year everybody is scrutinizing his purchases. This is particularly true in tire buying because of the many confusing and misleading statements made about tires.

To give car owners the facts, Firestone published comparisons showing quality, construction and prices. Then the public came in—made their own comparisons with cross-sections cut from Firestone tires—and from special brand mail order tires and others.

Big Spring was without electric power Friday morning for 38 minutes beginning at 10:35 a. m. Parts of town were not back on "live" lines for a few minutes longer than that.

only long one suffered in more than two years, was given in a statement by Carl S. Blomshield, district manager of the Texas Electric Service Company. Mr. Blomshield reported as follows: "I have just heard from our power dispatcher at Fort Worth in regard to the interruption in power service to Big Spring this morning, and the trouble was due to the breaking of one of the main power lines which served this part of the state. There are two of these lines which serve Big Spring and under ordinary conditions, the failure of one line would only cause a momentary interruption. However, workmen were making repairs on one of the trunk lines which supplies Big Spring, so this line was out of service. "After the line which had been in use failed, it was necessary to inform the men working on the other line in order that the current could be turned on, and this requires about thirty minutes. "Unfortunately, at the time of this break down, the Big Spring power plant was undergoing its yearly maintenance and was shut down for repairs, and it took about twenty minutes to get it back on the line, after which considerable of the city load was handled."

Those BACKLESS Evening Frocks...

They are here... enchanting frocks that dip daringly toward one's waistline... or pause halfway down. So lovely... if what they reveal is lovely... so brutal if they expose bumps and blotches on what should be a satiny skin surface.

ELIZABETH ARDEN'S famous preparations will fill unlovely hollows and clear your skin to fresh beauty. Ask for Miss Arden's book, "The Quest of the Beautiful," containing complete information.
