Spotlighting Servicemen

Vietnam Heroism Earns Four Medals of Honor

The newest chapter in the glory-filled annals of the Medal of Honor is being written now by American servicemen fighting in the Republic of Vietnam. Four men, including Army First Lt. Charles Q. Williams, have earned their country's highest military decoration for actions "above and beyond the call of duty" while serving in that Southeast Asian nation.

The chapter was opened by Army Capt. Roger Hugh G. Donlon in July 1964. He was the commanding officer of a Special Forces detachment in Nam Dong when a reinforced Viet Cong battalion attacked. Throughout a five-hour battle, Captain Donlon ignored four wounds to spur his badly outnumbered band into so fierce a defense of their camp that the enemy was routed.

In September 1965, Army Sgt. Larry S. Pierce of the 173d Airborne Brigade gave his life at Ben Cat to save the lives of the men in his squad; an enemy grenade was thrown into their midst and Sergeant Pierce instantly threw himself on it to shield his men. For his selfless act of heroism, he was awarded posthumously the Medal of Honor.

A similar deed by another valiant 173d paratrooper saved the lives of four American soldiers at Phu Cuong in October 1965. Army PFC Milton L. Olive III gave his life for his comrades and was given the second posthumous Medal of Honor for Vietnam action.

And the most recent narrative of dauntless loyalty and awesome courage was authored in June 1965, by Army First Lt. Charles Q. Williams, a Special Forces officer at Dong Xoai. His leadership and sacrifice during a 14-hour Viet Cong attack was true to those highest military traditions which are symbolized by the Medal of Honor.

IN TRAINING — Seaman Apprentice Richard L. Beckham, 1828 N. Zimmers, is stationed at the United States Naval Training Center in San Diego, Calif., where he is attending a six weeks' school of Basic Electricity and Electronics. This will be followed by a 24 weeks of Radio and Communication. He enlisted in the Navy April 28 of this year and was recently home on a 14-day leave.

Military Personnel Urged To Determine Voting Eligibility

All members of the Armed Forces, dependents and civilians included in the Absentee Voting Program who wish to vote this year are urged to determine their voting eligibility now. Army personnel are advised to read the section on their state in the DoD pamphlet, "Voting Information 1966," and inquire with their Army election officials on such matters as length of residence and the deadline for absentee voting application.

PCT President, Wife Attend State Convention

Frank D. Anderson, president of Pampa Classroom Teachers' Association and his wife, Mrs. Donna Anderson, were in Austin, during the past weekend, attending the fourth annual State Conference of Texas Classroom Teachers' Association.

More than 400 Texas teachers convened for discussion of developing quality in their profession. The conference provided teachers with the chance to exchange information and explore new ideas for encouraging professionalism in teaching.

"In Search of Quality" was the central conference theme. Teachers attended 15 sessions to exchange ideas on professional rights and responsibilities, legislation, teacher education and professional standards, welfare, professional relations between teachers, school boards, administrators and public relations.

Anderson is an instructor at Woodrow Wilson Elementary School. Mrs. Anderson teaches at Travis Elementary School.

Walter Rogers Reports:

Controversy Over Home-Rule Raging

The controversy over so-called "home-rule" for the District of Columbia continues to simmer in Washington but at this stage in the Second Session of the 89th Congress the issue appears to be dead until, at least, 1967. Tactics followed by advocates of home-rule have offended many members of the House and Senate and turned many citizens elsewhere in the country against any plan to remove the Federal status from the District of Columbia and turn governmental authority in the District from Congress to District residents. Since last year, those supporting home-rule in the District have pushed their campaign on several fronts. For one thing, Washington retail firms were boycotted — and picketed — in an effort to obtain the backing of store managements for home-rule. For another, homes of members of the House of Representatives — members who serve on the House District Committee — were picketed in an effort to force them to agree to compromises over House and Senate-passed home-rule legislation.

Rather than to win support for home-rule, actions of this type have alienated many persons who, while holding the conviction that Washington should remain the Federal City (as George Washington intended), were willing to support at least limited home-rule for the District of Columbia. Proposals for District of Columbia home-rule are many and varied. One Senate bill provides for an elected Mayor, a nine-member City Council, and a non-voting delegate in congress. One House bill calls for a Legislative Assembly and a Governor appointed by the President. Another provides for an elected mayor, council, and delegate to Congress. In the House and Senate are bills supported by the Administration calling for a 15-member Council, a Mayor, and non-voting delegate to the House of Representatives — all elected by the people on a partisan basis.

One of the more controversial proposals contained in the latter bills calls for the Federal payment supporting the District to be calculated each year according to a formula set forth in the legislation. Annual appropriations by Congress would not be required to assure this payment — and those of us who firmly believe that Congress should make annual reviews under the Constitutional appropriating process are firmly opposed to any such arrangement. A bill containing this provision and other features removing congressional control from the Federal City was passed by the Senate last year. In July, Late in September supporters of home-rule in the House of Representatives, through use of the so-called discharge petition (by which legislation can be forced out of the Committee of jurisdiction and brought before the full House), the matter was debated on the floor. However, the House passed a substitute version of the legislation providing that Washington voters would be asked in a referendum if they want some form of official government. An affirmative vote would result in the election of a charter board which would have 210 days to draft a charter giving a home-rule government legislative power over District legislative matters now handled by Congress, but reserving to Congress complete authority to amend the charter at any time and reserving to the President the veto power over any acts of the city government.

Every citizen of the United States has a direct stake in the manner in which the District of Columbia is governed. This is indeed the Federal City, created by the States which make up the Union, and to remove governmental control from the people's elected representatives in Congress would create a situation of "dual sovereignty," doing violence to the Constitution by establishing, in effect, a separate state. The phrase "home-rule" has a compelling sound, but the method of effecting home-rule, and the effect, are vitally important — and at this writing it appears that Congress is not in a mood to act this year.

Television in Review

By ROBERT MUSEL
NEW YORK (UPI) — George Schaefer views with benevolent skepticism the efforts of networks to lure back television writers who created the "golden age" of TV drama, and then moved on to the theatre and Hollywood.

The lure, is of course, money. CBS will pay up to $25,000, if necessary, for suitable scripts and NBC is ready to double or even triple that for modern masterpieces. ABC's Stage 67 is also offering unusually handsome rewards.

Schaefer is a man to listen to as American television seeks to retrieve its former unchallenged lead in originating major plays or adapting dramatic classics. The British networks, for example, now have the impudent idea that they pace the world in this prestige field of TV entertainment.

In a small office glittering with awards Schaefer is celebrating his tenth year as producer of the "Hallmark Hall of Fame" series which carried the banner of drama almost alone when the networks turned elsewhere in their restless search for bigger audiences.

"I don't think huge sums will tempt the writers back to television," he said. "If a playwright is interested only in money there are more lucrative outlets on the stage or in films. Many of them left because they were reduced to grinding out routine products. What might get them back is a chance to write about something they believe in, to write something that will have a direct impact in millions of homes."

He shut his eyes as he spoke concentrating. Schaefer has produced more than 50 Hall of Fame programs and there is nothing secret about the formula that has won the show and its production staff scores of awards since 1953. It is simply this: Find a good play, new or old, cast it powerfully, and a director who knows his business and persuade a network to give you a good time slot.

This season Schaefer is staging "Anastasia" with Lynne Fontanne, Julie Harris and that excellent English actor, Charles Grey. NBC, he said, has been "very cooperative and helpful" as usual in assigning a time period. He is also producing Maxwell Anderson's "Barefoot in Athens" with Peter Ustinov, Geraldine Page and Anthony Quayle.

"We've never worried about reaching the top ten in program popularity," Schaefer said, ticking off another plus. "Our constant aim has been to provide mature dramatic fare to the 10 or 15 million homes interested in it. This is not intended to go in one ear and out the other. People say they remember our shows of four and five years ago."

"It is the kind of television there should be more of in this country where in recent years we have made great strides in news documentaries and fallen sadly short in the wasteland of what used to be our drama."

PRISONERS EXCHANGED
JERUSALEM (UPI) — Four Israeli and six Syrian prisoners were exchanged at a border point north of Lake Tiberias Monday. One of the Syrians was identified as Mohammed Omer Arifa, said to have been an intelligence agent who was sentenced to 15 years in jail by the Israelis in 1964.

LOVE POTION
MATLOCK, England (UPI) — Golden eagles from Finland nesting in the Ribber Castle nature reserve are being given a love potion because the birds will not mate. Authorities say the potion is a vitamin extract.

THAT'S TOUGH — Engineer Bob Fox of United Technology Center at Sunnyvale, Calif., checks a six-inch diameter rocket casing made of some 40 miles of fine boron filaments. Boron, one of the strongest and stiffest structural materials yet developed, is 15 per cent lighter than aluminum but six times stiffer. It is expected to have wide application in space research where strength, lightness and stiffness of materials are of greatest importance.

Briscoe 4-H Member To Enter Tri-State Better Bake Show

WHEELER — Miss Helen Puryear, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Puryear of Briscoe, will represent Wheeler County at the District Better Bake Show during the Tri-State Fair in Amarillo on Sept. 17. She was recently crowned Wheeler County Better Bake Show queen.

Miss Puryear won the title by scoring 278 points out of a possible 300 following judging of Batter Rolls, two-crust pies and 4H foods records.

Placing second in the district show was Brenda McCasland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lindsey McCasland of Wheeler. Third was Mary Puryear, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Puryear of Briscoe.

Seventeen girls participated in the baking contest. Blue ribbon winners for rolls were Brenda McCasland, Wheeler; Mary Puryear, Helen Puryear, Brenda Horn, and Judy Finsterwald of Briscoe.

BOOMING BUSINESS
PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Andrew Bichey, supervisor of the Allegheny County Marriage License Bureau, reported booming business Tuesday and ascribed it to the widespread coverage of the Luci Johnson-Pat Nugent wedding. The bureau had its busiest day of the summer Monday when 60 couples filled out marriage applications and 41 more applied Tuesday.

White ribbons were given to Linda Verden, Joe Lee Smith, Tanya Henderson, and Carrie Holland and Cynthia Smith of Shamrock.

Blue ribbons for two crust pies were given to Brenda McCasland, Joe Lee Smith, Debra Henderson, Tanya Henderson, and Cindy Smith of Wheeler.

Red ribbons went to Luinda Verden, Sherry Richardson and Carrie Holland of Wheeler, Kathy Meek, Mary Puryear, Helen Puryear, Brenda Horn and Judy Finsterwald of Briscoe, Billie Ruth Smith, Cathy Johnson and Cynthia Smith of Shamrock.

Bake Show judges were Miss Gail Sims, assistant home demonstration agent, Pampa and Miss Leta Keys, Collingsworth home demonstration agent.

Panhandle Group Slates Historical Drama Play

PANHANDLE — Panhandle Community Theater will present a historical drama, "The Pioneers, a Pageant of a Panhandle City," written by Anthony Crone at 8:15 p.m. Friday in the Carson County Agricultural Building.

The pageant depicts the early history of Carson County through the lives of early-day Carson County families. Pioneer families, who came to the county before 1920, will be seated in a special reserved section. Material for the pageant was supplied by Mrs. Ralph E. Randal, president of Carson County Historical Association and from a "Time to Purpose," a forthcoming book of Carson County and its pioneer families.

The new agricultural building, where the drama will be presented, is located on the east edge of Panhandle just north of the Santa Fe tracks on US Highway 60 cut-off.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI) — If you are a sickly old man with a pale complexion, sweaty palms, clammy skin, low vitality and a fetish about bathing, congratulations.

You're the type of person least likely to be bitten by a mosquito.

Or so it says in this press release I recently received.

It says that mosquitoes are discriminating in their choice of victims. When confronted with a human smorgasbord, they will concentrate on the tastiest dish.

I had heard that before but I always thought it was an old wives' tale, mainly because it was first told to me by an old wife.

Sitting on Veranda

One evening when I was a child, an old wife and I were sitting out on the veranda. She was playing a mandolin and singing "Moonlight Bay." After a while she said, "Let's go back into the house. These mosquitoes are driving me crazy."

"They must be music lovers," I said, whereupon she smote me on the noggin with the mandolin.

Other evidence that mosquitoes have their likes and dislikes was supplied by a study made some time ago by Union Carbide Corp., whose products include an insect repellent.

It showed that mosquitoes go mainly for people who are healthy, young, active and temperamental; have dark complexions, dry palms, and warm skin; wear dark clothing and strong perfume, hair tonic or shaving lotion; and bathe no oftener than once a day.

On the basis of this study, the company drew up a test that people can take to determine whether or not they are mosquito-prone.

Rating Range

Anyone scoring between 85 and 100 would cause a mosquito to roll his eyes, lick his lips, and exclaim "c'est magnifique." For anyone in the 0-25 range, the reaction would be "yuck."

I took the test and scored a 65, indicating I am in the "yummy" bracket I am not entirely convinced, however, that this proves anything.

The study may have omitted the factor that is most likely to cause a mosquito to attack.

Despite my relatively high delectability rating, I went for years without being bitten. Then, last month I made a vacation trip to Florida.

I was visiting some people who live on a lake front and one night we had a cookout down by the shore. At the suggestion of an old wife in the group, we sang a couple of choruses of "Moonlight Bay." I haven't quit scratching yet.

Wall Street In Review

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tessel, Patric & Ostrau Inc., says traders may be on the alert this week for a possible beginning of a new intermediate rally. The firm says that since any market improvement is likely to be extremely selective, a continued policy of concentrating on the strongest stocks is advocated.

Kenneth B. Smilen and Kenneth Safian of Purcell, Graham & Co. say the market is likely to see a continuation of the pattern which has prevailed over the past several weeks—sharp breaks followed by a series of minor rallies and consolidations making up part of the decline but leaving a new loss before the next drop starts.

Thomson & McKinnon says it is somewhat premature to look for a new bull market but it does seem that a good deal of adverse news has already been discounted at this time.

Setze TNT Cache
BOLZANO, Italy (UPI) — Italian police Tuesday uncovered a cache of 7,260 points of TNT — 93 charges — near the Alto Adige town of Dobbiaco. German-speaking terrorists who want the Alto Adige returned to Austria to which it belonged before 1964, are believed responsible for a number of bombing incidents recently.
