

Six Election Races Hold Top Interest for Gray County Voters

By TEX DEWEESE
 Five local and district races and one statewide contest will be the principal magnets that will attract Gray County voters to the polls in Tuesday's general election.

18th District, state representative from the 84th Legislative District, county commissioner for Pct. 2, justice of the peace in Pct. 2, and the Gray County judgeship.

Malouf Abraham (R) for state representative, Clyde Organ (D) and W. C. Epperson (R) for Pct. 2 county commissioner, Bill Watson (R) and Ed Anderson (D) for Pct. 2 justice of the peace, Dee Miller (D) and Bob Price (R) for congressman, and Sherman R. Lenning (R) and Bill Craig (D) for county judge.

The battle between Price and Miller for 18th District congressman's post now held by Rep. Walter Rogers probably has stirred most interest during the campaign days.

name from the race a few weeks after he was nominated for re-election without opposition in the May primary.

district in 1964 gave Rogers 55,783 and Price, 45,433 — a margin of 10,350 votes out of 101,216 votes cast. Two counties have since been added to the district. They are Bailey and Lamb.

Craig and Republican Lenning, or the Pct. 2 commissioner race between Epperson and Organ, it is understood there has been a lot of campaigning going on behind the scenes.

CONGRATULATIONS — Mike Carr, president of the Pampa High School Key Club, extends his congratulations to Corporation Judge John Warner after he was presented the club's Adult Leadership Award. John Braly, president of the Pampa High Student Council made the presentation at the Key Club's eighth annual leadership award banquet held at Pampa High School Saturday night.

Key Club Award To John Warner

Corporation judge John Warner was recipient of the Key Club Adult Leadership Award at a banquet held last night in the Pampa High School cafeteria.

The award is presented annually by the high school club to an adult in the community, who, in the club's estimation, has made the most outstanding contribution to the youth of the community.

John Braly, student council president, in making the presentation, pointed out the award was based on the Teenage Traffic Court instigated by Warner soon after his appointment as corporation judge.

Instead of levying fines for traffic offenses committed by teenagers, the judge sentences them to writing a 1,000 word theme with footnotes and attending a lecture on traffic safety given either by the judge or a police officer.

The theme is graded for grammar, punctuation and originality. If it doesn't make a grade of 70 or better, the offender is "sentenced" to writing a longer theme.

In addition to counseling with young people on traffic safety, Warner teaches a Sunday School class of 16-year-old students in the First Methodist Church.

He is active in the Junior Chamber of Commerce having served as a chairman of the Youth and Sports Committee; vice president, treasurer and board director.

He also served as chairman of the Shopping Tour for underprivileged children, formerly sponsored by the Jaycees.

Warner was graduated from Pampa High School in 1954 and from Texas A&M in 1958. After his marriage in 1961 and after receiving a law degree from the University of Texas in 1962, he and his bride, the former Judy (See AWARD, Page 4)

U.S., Viet Cong Engage In Biggest Battle of War

Jungle Fight Rages For Key Supply Base

SAIGON (UPI) — A force of up to 12,000 U.S. troops Saturday fought off six Communist "banzai" mass attacks in furious jungle combat for a key Viet Cong supply base northwest of Saigon. U.S. spokesmen said it was one of the biggest actions of the Viet Nam War.

In the air, U.S. Air Force pilots guarding a reconnaissance plane shot down two MIG21 jets — fastest and deadliest fighters in the Communist air arsenal — in a dogfight over North Viet Nam Saturday. Off the coast of Viet Nam, a pair of U.S. destroyers exchanged blistering gunfire with Communist shore batteries.

In the big ground battle troops of a main force Viet Cong regiment lost hundreds of dead in two days of fighting and the battle still swirled early Sunday around Communist bunkers and pillboxes in War Zone C 55 miles from Saigon. U.S. infantrymen suffered at least "moderate" casualties when they rescued one of their companies cut off and pinned down overnight by heavy Red fire.

In Johnson City, Tex., Defense Secretary Robert McNamara announced Saturday a "slowdown" in U.S. troop deployment for South Viet Nam that will include lowered draft calls and reduced troops shipments next year. McNamara made his announcement after a two-hour meeting with President Johnson. He also said U.S. air operations in Viet Nam will level off in 1967 at their current rate of around 25,000 attack sorties a month. He forecast a further cutback in production of bombs and other air ammunition.

CCC PROBE SLATED TUESDAY

Local Grain Elevators Say Business As Usual

Although a Commodity Credit Corp. investigation is scheduled to get under way Tuesday into operations of Trans Con Grain Co. of Amarillo, nine other Panhandle elevators including three in Gray County owned by the same five-member firm, were operating with business as usual Saturday.

An investigation of Trans Con Grain is being conducted by the inspector general's office of the U.S. Commodity Credit Corp.

Donald E. Smith, director of CCC offices in Kansas City, said the probe came after discrepancies were found by a warehouse examiner during an annual routine inspection of the elevator.

Inspection of grain elevators are made every six months.

One federal examination had been completed and the state probe was under way on the day last week that Harold V. Murdoch of Amarillo, Trans Con general manager, was found dead in his automobile parked at the elevators in Burlington Industrial sites, east of Amarillo.

A coroner's verdict of suicide was ruled after an inquest.

A hose was found attached to an exhaust pipe of the automobile in which Murdoch died and "gas pills" used for killing rats in the elevator were discovered inside the car.

Smith declined comment on whether the inspection was before or after the 48-year-old manager's death.

John Cunningham, assistant regional director at Temple said: "The only thing I can say is that we are going to start an investigation next week. We'll have two men in Amarillo next Tuesday."

"We are just fact finders for the Department of Agriculture, and we don't make statements," Cunningham added.

He did say, however, that there is no current action being taken and that the Amarillo elevator or others owned by Trans Con Grain are not under any order to interrupt normal transactions.

EAST OF PAMPA Wildcat May Be Start Of New Gas Discovery

Report of a big gas gauge at a wildcat well brought in 20 miles east of Pampa may be the center for a new gas field in the local Panhandle area.

It was reported by Sun Oil Co. that gas was gauged at a rate of 12 million cubic feet on a drillstem test at the company's No. 1 Mary Helen Boston, located in an area where there has been greatly increased oil exploratory action in recent months.

When the well came in it brought oil to the surface for the first 10 or 15 minutes and then changed to gas flow.

Recovery was 1,200 feet of 32 degree gravity condensate and 90 feet of salt water. Initial shut-in pressure was 2,919

Soviets Strengthen Red China Border

LONDON (UPI) — The Soviet belligerent attitude on the Union was reported Saturday to Peking regime that is claiming large areas of the Soviet Far East. Kremlin anxiety was apparently heightened by the surprise development of a Chinese missile disclosed by a Peking last week when it was used to explode a nuclear warhead.

The reinforcements would bring to 21 the number of Soviet divisions reported along the Chinese border area—a greater concentration than along any other national frontier.

As of last month, experts in London said the Russians had 20 divisions in East Germany, previously Moscow's chief cold war front and 26 spread out through all of Eastern Europe.

Some recent reports have said the Russians were shifting troops from Eastern Europe to the Chinese border area. But diplomatic reports suggested the latest Soviet divisions were transferred from other parts of the Soviet Union, including Central Asia and European Russia.

In addition to the ground forces, Russia was reported to have about 100 submarines serving with its Far Eastern Fleet.

The Soviet reinforcing moves were said to have been prompted by the increasingly

While no military action was anticipated yet, informed sources said the Kremlin apparently is taking no chances. The reinforcements were believed designed to discourage what is termed "any possible adventurism" on the part of the new aggressive forces of the latest revolutionary policies of Peking.

Earlier there had been reports that Red Chinese "civilians had been massing on several occasions in areas along the 5,000-mile frontier with Russia, particularly along the Amur River. Anti-Soviet leaflets were distributed and Russians on the Soviet side intimidated.

The campaign renewed claims to sizeable portions to Russian Siberia and the Pacific Coast that the Chinese contend the Russians obtained under their Tsars by "illegal treaties."

DETAILS OF VOTING

Marking Ballot Is Only Half of It

All behind-the-scenes preparations necessary to expedite the general election Tuesday have been completed.

On Friday, Deputy Sheriff Shirley Nickols delivered ballot boxes, and election supplies into the safekeeping of the 14 election judges, who will preside in each of the precincts on election day.

Each election judge was given the number of ballots co-relating to the number of registered voters in his precinct. In addition to tallying the number of votes cast, additional bookkeeping is required of the election judge. The number of ballots used, and the number returned to the county clerk's office must jibe.

Gray County voters may go to the polls as early as 8 a.m. and not later than 7 p.m., when the polls will close.

It is necessary to have either a poll tax receipt or a registration slip. If it has been lost or misplaced, this shouldn't keep a voter away. Jack Back, county tax assessor, has a master list from which to check a voters' eligibility.

Voters will find the white ballots rather large, 18 by 23 inches, and the booths rather small, but there will be plenty of elbow room to scratch out all the names of candidates for whom they do not wish to vote, leaving only the name of their favored candidate legible.

In addition to 27 candidates, there are 16 amendments to the Texas constitutional to be considered for an eye nor hay vote. Here again the one not wanted must be crossed out.

Absentee voting in person was completed Friday at 5 p.m. with 484 ballots cast. This figure will be upped by 26 if all mail-in ballots that were sent out are returned by noon of election day.

What Makes Her Tick? Doctors Still Don't Know

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Doctors are trying to find out what makes Melvina Taylor tick.

The ticking sound in her head began about a year ago, the 42-year-old woman said Thursday.

"When it first started I only heard it late at night. Now all day, long it never stops."

Mrs. Taylor isn't the only one who can hear the ticking which resembles that of a pocket watch. Friends, as well as doctors at Kaiser Foundation Hospital, can hear it from as far as two feet.

"It goes away only when I'm talking, or moving my mouth, or, so they tell me, when I'm asleep," Mrs. Taylor said.

Her doctors have referred her to specialists; the specialists have consulted the most thorough medical record, and none has found a cure.

County Red Cross News

By LIBBY SHOTWELL, Executive Secretary ARC

A newsletter from the Combined Service Territory came this week with three dates that Red Cross volunteers should remember. They are: Nov. 15, when the Combined Service Territory will meet in Amarillo at the chapter house, 1800 S. Harrison, for the fall meeting; Nov. 19, when the Panhandle CST Youth Red Cross will meet in Borger for their regular meeting with Richard Barrett, president, in charge of the business session, and Dec. 1, as the date for fund raising training at the Amarillo chapter house with John Greenwood, regional director for fund raising directing the sessions.

The Red Cross Board will meet Nov. 8 at the Coronado Inn for their regular monthly meeting with Bob Parks, principal at Woodrow Wilson Elementary School, in charge of the program on Junior Red Cross. Miss Barbara Holt will tell of the work of the high school Red Cross. All directors, and chairman are urged to be present.

During the week of Oct. 17-22, Elmer Wood, assistant regional manager from St. Louis and Miss Beth Sprague, regional Director of the Blood Program, with Gilbert Bribble regional director of safety services, were in Amarillo for a review and discussion of programs for the coming year in the CST. Mrs. Libby Shotwell attended two of these sessions.

Mrs. Libby Shotwell, Service Officer for the American Red Cross, with Jack Graham, Service Officer for the American Legion and VFW organizations attended an all day session on VA work at the VA Hospital in Amarillo, Thursday, Nov. 3.

The sessions were geared to annual income questionnaire training with Bob Daniels, Chief Registrant of the VA Hospital in Amarillo, and Mr. Willima Stinson from Waco, giving the instruction. There will be cards enclosed in the December check mailed to veterans and their wives or parents who receive a pension check from the VA. Please fill out all of the parts of the card and mail back to the city on the enclosed envelope. Graham or Mrs. Shotwell will assist any veteran and his wife with this work if needed. New legislation was discussed and forms for filing for pension and compensation were given to the 20 Service Officers present.

A list of production needs have been received for federal hospitals and military installations are as follows: layettes, bathrobes, lap robes, bed socks, cushions and cushion covers, kit bags, bib for adult patients, spiral casts and walking. Any organization or club that is interested in making any of the above items, should contact the Red Cross office and material and directions will be furnished to make the above items.

Next week, the Nov. 7-11, will be Enrollment Week in the schools for JRC and High School Red Cross. JRC News and Red Cross Journals will be purchased for each room in the elementary schools and for the secondary schools on a membership basis. The Teacher Sponsors of each school will have charge of the enrollment and Red Cross pins will be given to each child who makes a contribution to this program.

Two birth announcements were sent through our Red Cross office last week. One of the announcements went to a serviceman in Viet Nam and the other to a serviceman in France. It is good to be able to bring a report as refreshing as a new son or daughter to our servicemen who are doing so much for us. Your contribution through the UF makes this possible.

Mrs. Majaunta Hills traveled to Canyon this week and held a class on care of the sick and injured. She will begin a class for the LN Class at Highland General Hospital Monday morning for the next 5 days. We are so very proud and we know that she will be busy training and teaching during this year and Red Cross.

We are still waiting for our new dresses from the Dilly Company at Houston. We feel sure that they will be shipped to us soon and then the "Gray Ladies" will become Red Cross Volunteers or "Blue Birds".

Housewives Tell Congress They're Tired of Gimmicks

SAN ANTONIO (UPI)—Several housewives Thursday told a congressional subcommittee investigating rising food prices that they were tired of "gimmicks and games" and want to buy food, "not toys."

Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, D-Tex., a member of the subcommittee of the House Consumer Affairs Committee, conducted the hearing. Several store officials also appeared.

Joe L. Brown of the H.E.B. food chain, said housewives would be able to economize more if they would take advantage of weekend specials and buy more foods in season when they are plentiful.

Charles Becker, of the Handy-Andy chain, was interrupted during his statement by Gonzalez, who asked the relationship between food costs and such promotional items as stamps. Becker said he had fought stamps since they were first introduced in another chain store in 1954.

Becker said stamps were wasteful but said other chain stores had to go along with stamps when one chain introduced them and showed a 40 per cent gain in customers. He said stamps resulted in a 2 per cent price increase in his store.

Mrs. Ross Walker, women's activities director for the Texas AFL-CIO told the committee that "women are tired of gimmicks, of 21 games, of horse race games, and any kind of games."

CANYON (Spl) — Three Pampa students recently represented West Texas State University in the Fall Forensics Tournament at Texas Tech. They are David Harmon, Linda Hubbard and Dennis Scott. Miss Hubbard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Brooks, 523 Red Deer, rated superior in extemporaneous speaking and was ranked second in a preliminary round of that division. The speaker of the evening, the Rev. J. W. Doke, pastor of the First Christian Church, keyed his talk around the title "Press Toward the Mark." Encouraging Key Club members toward continued Christian leadership in high school as well as college, Rev. Doke said, "We could not have a religion that is like us and made to order. It must enlighten us, ever making us aware of the difference between us and God, who transcends us. . . whose ways are not our ways. . . whose thoughts are not our thoughts. It must make us aware of what we are and at the same time what we may become. . . if we press toward the mark."

Mike Carr, president of the Key Club, presided with Robert Karr as master of ceremonies. Invocation was offered by Jan Farley with Kevin Frances leading honor to the flag. Dinner music was provided by Jerry Stephens. Presentation of special guests and recognition of student leaders and sponsors was made by Steve Walls and Greg Gunter. Grain

The Hoover Grain Elevator at 403 E. Tyng has been closed for the past week or 10 days. Rainey said that it would normally be closed at this time of year. "After the harvest season is over, we don't receive enough grain there to keep a man busy. At this time of year, we store all grain at Hoover or Heaton Switch," he said.

The Tyng Street elevator's closing is not in anyway related to the investigation, Rainey said.

FTC To Tell Smokers Content Findings

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Cigarette smokers should know early next year just how much tar and nicotine are in each puff. But the news might be filtered down to them somewhat indirectly. The Federal Trade Commission is presently setting up its special cigarette testing laboratory and expects to have the facility running full steam by January.

But an FTC official said today that the commission does not plan to make public its findings on tar and nicotine content. It will, however, turn over the tar ratings to Chairman Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., of the Senate Commerce Committee, and he probably will disclose the test results. Earlier this year, Magnuson attempted without success to gain congressional approval of a plan which would require cigarette makers to label each package with the tar and nicotine content. Once he gets the test results he may try again in the 90th Congress.

A VOTE FOR THESE HIGHLY QUALIFIED REPUBLICANS IS A VOTE FOR FREEDOM

REMEMBER...

THESE MEN ARE ALL LOYAL PATRIOTIC AMERICANS WHO LOVE THEIR COUNTRY...

They are honest, able and dedicated men and they will do you an outstanding job in their elected office.

ASK YOURSELF THESE QUESTIONS...

Do I want more, less, or about the same government spending and controls? Note: The national debt has risen from 10 billion to over 300 billion in the last 30 years.

Can I trust our elected officials with their controls over me and my children?

Should I take more of the responsibility of living my life upon myself, or vote away more of my freedoms for a little more controlled security?

If I give up my freedom and accept promises of a life of security and safety, can our elected officials guarantee that security?

If later I change my mind and wish for greater freedom, will I still have a choice?

BE AN INFORMED VOTER

You owe it to yourself and our children.

TO OUR DEMOCRAT FRIENDS

We urge your support for these highly qualified men. We ask that you forget party label and vote for America! Keep us a real two party district, because only under a two party system do we truly guarantee and preserve the kind of Freedom that our constitution provides for.

This Week In Business

By ANDREW X. MIKELSONS
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson ended his Far East tour with a bagful of mixed memories and a surprise announcement that he will undergo a double surgery later this month.

The operation for a ventral hernia was described as "minor" by his doctors. They said it was necessitated by a defect in the scar from his gall bladder operation a year ago. At the same time, a small polyp is to be removed from Johnson's throat.

Among his memories were hostile demonstrators that hurled eggs and insults at him at some of his Asian stops: one of the warmest and most tumultuous welcomes ever accorded a visitor to South Korea and an apparent feeling of unity with America's allies in Viet Nam.

Both domestic and international reaction to Johnson's trip was mixed. Abroad, newspapers normally hostile to the President remained hostile, while the friendly press said he had made new friends in Asia.

At home, the Democrats called Johnson's visit to seven Far East and Pacific nations a step forward in furthering international unity, while the Republicans denounced it as a vote-getting grandstand show in a difficult election year.

Johnson's enthusiastic welcome in South Korea was marred by one of the worst American-Communist border incidents since the formal cessation of hostilities in 1953. Six American soldiers died in a North Korean ambush near Pyongyang.

Military sources said the slaughter of the Americans followed an ambush and a bitter and heroic gun-battle on the 38th Parallel that divides North from South Korea.

Around The World
New York: Police swooped down on some 20 members of the militant right wing Minutemen, and claimed to have quashed a plot to blow up three privately owned camps in New York, New Jersey and Connecticut. Police said the minutemen were going to destroy camps grounds for left wing groups. A massive cache of weapons—including mortars, machine guns, recoilless rifles and tons of ammunition—were confiscated. The accused were held in a total of $81,000 bail and a hearing in criminal court was set for Nov. 22.

Housewives across the nation had been talking about the rising cost of food for a long time. Last week they decided to do something about it. Protest demonstrations and chain store boycotts spread like wildfire, spurred by an initial boycott of three supermarket chains in Denver, Colo. Sign-carrying homemakers paraded in front of their groceries, conducted forums and penned letters to congressmen demanding lower food prices. The protest against food stores was seen as a sign the American shopper blames retailers and wholesalers for the food price increases rather than inflationary spending by the government, a major Republican campaign contention.

Saigon: The fighting in Viet Nam shifted to the Mekong River in mid-week, as U.S. Navy patrol boats scuttled some 50 North Vietnamese sampans and junks in a two-hour battle. The Defense Department said the Communists had been ferrying a Viet Cong battalion across the Mekong River when the Navy patrol boats intercepted the fleet. In other Vietnamese action, Washington sources said the defense department was drawing up blueprints for an intensification of the air war—specifically, increased bombing of strategic targets near Hanoi.

Stockholm: An American and a French scientist received Nobel Prizes for their work in atomic and molecular research Thursday. Professor Robert S. Mulliken of the University of Chicago won the Nobel Prize for chemistry for his research in atomic and molecular structure. Professor Alfred Kastler of Paris was awarded the physics prize for his studies of the energy levels of the atom.

11 Lovell Will Have Less to Worry About on Gemini 12

Spotlighting Servicemen

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Danny T. Hill, whose mother is Mrs. Laura Cain of Broom, has been promoted to airman second class in the U.S. Air Force.

The airman is a 1965 graduate of Lefors High School. He is stationed in Camp Courage, South Viet Nam. Organ, assigned to the 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment, serves on a scouting patrol every day.

IN VIET NAM — Pfc. Richard B. Organ, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Ben Organ, 1101 N. Starkweather, is presently stationed in Camp Courage, South Viet Nam. Organ, assigned to the 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment, serves on a scouting patrol every day.

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — Veteran astronaut James A. Lovell Jr. will have plenty on his mind as he pilots Gemini 12 through space. But this time, at least, he won't have to worry about the possibility of becoming the first "space dad" in history.

Last December Lovell, 38, flew as co-pilot on the record-setting 14-day Gemini 7 mission. Throughout that flight he kept expecting word from the ground that his wife Marilyn had been rushed to the hospital by astronaut Charles (Pete) Conrad. Lovell's stand-in, for the birth of her fourth child. Although the baby—now a 10-month-old—youngester named Jeffrey Carl—was due in mid-December, Lovell won the race with the stork.

Gemini 7 was Lovell's first spaceflight. Had he become history's first space dad, it would have been just one more "first" for that flight. Other records set during Gemini 7 include the longest manned spaceflight, a marathon 330 hours and 35 minutes; first rendezvous of two maneuverable spacecraft, when Gemini 6 joined its twin and the two flew a foot apart; and many technical and medical records.

Plans for Lovell's second flight, the four-day Gemini 12 mission, promise to be more routine. Lovell entered the Naval Academy after high school and graduated with a Bachelor of Science degree. From there he went on to flight training, and served as a flight instructor and safety officer at the Naval Air Station in Oceana, Va.

Even before the first U.S. manned spaceflight, Lovell was trying to become an astronaut. He missed out on the first round of astronaut selection, but made it into the second group in 1962.

He says his wife, a childhood sweetheart from Milwaukee, Wis., and the children help him in his astronaut homework "by being quiet when I'm studying."

DETROIT (UPI) — Left winger Ab McDonald of the Detroit Red Wings was sent to the team's Pittsburgh farm club Friday. The Red Wings said McDonald's stay with the American Hockey League farm would be "a brief one."

Income Tax Questions, Answers

EDITOR'S NOTE—This column of questions and answers on Federal tax matters is provided by the Pampa office of the U. S. Internal Revenue Service and is published by The Daily News as a public service to taxpayers.

Q — I had to pay points to get the mortgage money to buy my house. Can I deduct this when I file my tax return?

A — No. Points, or similar fees paid to obtain a mortgage loan, are not deductible for federal income tax purposes. This expense should be included in the overall cost of your house. The interest you pay on the loan as part of your monthly mortgage payments is deductible, however. Real estate taxes on your house are another deductible item.

A — My husband died early last year. I know I can file a joint return for the year but what do I do about my withholding status where I work?

A — For withholding purposes you are considered married for the year of your husband's death; also for the two years following, provided you qualify as a surviving spouse.

A — I just retired on disability and receive a pension from my company. Is this taxable?

A — It all depends on the kind of pension plan your company has. Generally speaking, your pension would probably qualify for treatment as sick pay until you reach normal retirement age. Up to $100 a week may be excluded as sick pay.

Q — What are the biggest deductions taxpayers have when they itemize on individual returns?

A — Taxes was the largest single nonbusiness deduction claimed on returns filed last year. This item amounted to $14.1 billion. Other large items were interest paid — $12.5 billion, contributions — $8.3 billion, and medical and dental expenses — $7.1 billion.

Q — How long is the Interest Equalization tax supposed to continue?

A — Present legislation calls for this tax to end July 31, 1967, unless extended by Congress.

Q — When is an expense deductible as a business expense?

A — To be deductible, the expense must be both ordinary and necessary, directly connected with or related to your trade, business, or profession; or it must be for the production or collection of income, or for management of property held for the production of income; and the income must be taxable income.

Junior League Charity Ball Slated Saturday Evening

The Pampa Daily News

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1966

ONE OF PAMPA'S most gala social events of the season, Junior Service League's Fifth Annual Charity Ball, is slated next Saturday evening from 9 to 1 o'clock in Pampa Country Club.

PROCEEDS from the event, which is by invitation only, will go toward the League's Speech and Hearing Clinic to be conducted in the spring on children entering the first grade next September. Buddy Stevens, head of Amarillo Speech and Hearing Center, will conduct the tests. In addition to the testing program, the Junior Service League will use a portion of the funds derived from the operation of its Golden Eagle consignment store to provide schooling at the Amarillo Speech and Hearing Center for a Pampa child who has a 70 per cent hearing loss.

THE CENTER trains children with speech and hearing problems from infancy through grade school. Out-of-town children attending the school live in foster homes during the week and go home with their parents on weekends.

GUESTS AT the Charity Ball will dance to the music of Bobby Burns and His Orchestra from Amarillo amid a setting of green maline trees and other decorations created by JSL members. Materials for all decorations were purchased from local merchants. A local florist will further decorate Pampa Country Club.

ACCORDING TO Mrs. Bill Matejowsky, ticket chairman, all tickets, which are by invitation only and are obtained by making a donation to the League, are sold. Other Ball chairmen include Mrs. Vernon Watkins, general chairman, and Mrs. F. W. Power, decorations. Non-Country Club members attending the event may purchase 'chit books' from the club member in order to obtain refreshments for the evening. There will be no booths with items for sale as has been the case at preceding Balls. Miss Judy Neslage will be in charge of door prize ticket sales.

Sunday Passing Show

By PEGGY JO ORMONSON

HAVE ALWAYS said Pampa people were the friendliest to be found anywhere. Learned a week ago last Friday while attending the White Deer Bucks and Wheeler Mustangs football tilt that residents of our neighboring towns are just as friendly, through the hospitality of the ever congenial Felix Kyala was introduced to a number of White Deer residents who made us feel "at home". Among those met were Superintendent of Schools Dorman Thomas and his pretty and charming wife, High School Principal David Grayson, Ron Roach, John Morns, Mark Wadill and Bill Lewis whose attractive wife teaches in Pampa at Sam Houston School. Marching bands from both schools entertained at halftime, Wheeler's band, made up of sixth and seventh grade students who perform voluntarily and as yet receive no school credit for their efforts, gave an outstanding performance highlighted by the marching antics of their mascot, Richie Maley, three-year-old son of their band director. The 50-piece White Deer marching band, attired in beautiful blue uniforms, looked like professionals. Ruby Cone, White Deer High School mascot, probably works as hard at the ball games as any of the players or cheerleaders, as she is dressed as a white deer and wears a heavy deer head complete with antlers throughout the games. The game, which was well-played, could have been anybody's game until the closing seconds, with White Deer winning 12-6. The boys on both teams have not only been well-coached but well-bred as good sportsmanship was shown throughout the hard-fought contest. Also spied some Pampa folks at the game including the Vernon Mangels and the Charlie Wilkersons who were accompanied by Carl Rice of Amarillo. Have tried to keep clear of all politics in the column but heard a story concerning some Pampa visitors who did not know the story of our local candidates and their signs that is amusing. Mr. and Mrs. George Statler of Blackwell, Okla., who are planning to sell their home and move to Lovelock, Colo., since Mr. Statler's retirement from the postal service were driving through town recently with their hosts, the M. C. Hills. On seeing a "Price Is Right" sign in front of a house, Mrs. Statler urged her husband to stop and see what the price of the house was in order to ascertain whether or not they had their home in Blackwell priced accordingly.

PAMPA JAYCEE-ETTE and Junior Service League members are busy making preparations for their up-coming events. Gifts of Plenty Bazaar, slated for Nov. 18 and 19, in Coronado Inn, is keeping Jaycee-ettes going at a rapid pace getting things in order. Have you seen the window display in the old Tarpley Music Co. location on Cuyler St., of the bazaar? Jaycee-ette clubs from Borger, Vega, Canadian, Canyon, Amarillo, Follett and Fritch, along with eight local organizations and many individuals are preparing items to be offered at the bazaar. Included in articles to be sold will be tape paintings, Christmas decorations and arrangements, feathered flower arrangements, throw pillows and many other handcrafted items. Completing final plans for the Annual Charity Ball, set for Nov. 12 in Pampa Country Club, is keeping Junior Service League members busy. Understand that tickets, which are by invitation only, are all sold to the ball. Got a sneak preview of ball decorations last week at the home of Mrs. Ben Fallon. The clever Mrs. Richard Hankins designed and made the table decorations of green tulle. Have heard rumors from several directions of the enthusiastic "Hobo Party" given for the husbands of El Progresso Club members, hosted by Ethel and Jess Clay in their home. Tom Perkins looked anything but the suave druggist. Many failed to recognize Mrs. Ben Hamilton, Mrs. Charles Lanehart must have been fearful of "foots" as she wore her meatbone around her neck. The subject of "Women's Rights in Texas" was humorously presented from the male point of view by guest speaker Don Lane, attorney. Mrs. Elmer Fisher preserved the atmosphere of the evening in color snapshots. Pampa friends are missing the Jack B. McKay family who recently moved to Paris, Texas. Understand the Russell McConnells are having a difficult time adjusting to their departure and are especially missing the adorable granddaughters. A coffee honoring Mrs. Roy Schaeffer was given yesterday in the home of Mrs. Homer Johnson with Mrs. Boyd D. Taylor as co-hostess. The Schaeffers are newcomers to Pampa from Wichita Falls.

WANT TO KNOW how to become a woman executive? Look like a woman, act like a lady, think like a man and work like a dog. Several members of the American Association of University Women attended the District Conference held recently in the Bank of the Southwest in Amarillo. Attending from Pampa were Mrs. S. B. Flowers, president; Mrs. Lonnie Kenny, secretary; Mrs. Lalar Wilkerson, treasurer, and Mrs. O. M. Prigmore, cultural interests' chairman. Mrs. Kenny served as chairman of the public relations workshop. An AAUW travel consultant, Mrs. John P. Shannon of Billings, Mont., was the luncheon speaker. After the conference adjourned the visitors were treated to a tour of the new Bank of the Southwest Building, especially the Gold Tree Dining Room on the tenth floor. The Russell A. Chisum family practically held a family reunion at the Notre Dame-Oklahoma University football game Oct. 22 with family members going to Norman from New Mexico, Texas, Louisiana and Oklahoma. Mrs. Chisum reported that two games were going on in Owen Stadium simultaneously, the one on the field and one in the Notre Dame end zone called "Football, Football, Whose Got the Football?", similar to the old-fashioned game of "Button, Button, Whose Got the Button?" The fans seemed to consider their team of professional quality by using the pro rules of carrying off the footballs kicked into the end-zone stands. On a recent Sunday the Ralph Thomas had a group of friends in for dinner including the W. E. Jarvis, Irvin Coles and John Hesses. Mrs. H. T. Hampton spent last weekend visiting relatives in Lubbock. Mrs. M. S. McDaniel, who is a member of First Methodist Church Choir, was guest soloist recently for the Oak Lawn Methodist Church Choir in Dallas. The W. F. Yeagers were to return this weekend from Lafayette, La., where Mr. Yeager underwent surgery three weeks ago. The couple visited Mr. Yeager's mother in Waco en route home.

THE PANHANDLE Chapter of the American Society of Safety Engineers will sponsor Boys' Ranch Safety Day Tuesday. This is the tenth annual observance of the Society to conduct safety inspections at Boys' Ranch and provide needed safety equipment. Pampans participating in the activities will be Dave Redus, Bert Arney, Bob Reagen, Dick Andrews and Bill Ledbetter. In past years the safety engineers have presented safety classes, face shields, fire extinguishers, safety posters and other items dealing with safety to the Ranch. A lovely bridal shower for Jean Keagy, bride-elect of James Robert Fieldler, was given in First Methodist Church Parlor yesterday evening. Hostesses for the shower included Mrs. W. B. Jackson, Mrs. J. R. Poston, Mrs. Leon Taylor, Mrs. Elbert Walker, Mrs. Wendell Watson and Mrs. Albert Wagner. The wedding will be solemnized Nov. 26. The A. A. Schunemans returned last Sunday after spending ten days in California. The first part of the trip was spent in attending the National Bankers' Association Convention in San Francisco. Then the couple visited relatives in Southern California. The Glenn Radcliffs find the fall of the year the best time for vacationing. They were extolling the beauties of Colorado during the first two weeks of October. Mark Twain said "Grief can take care of itself, but to get the full value of joy you must have somebody to divide it with."

Conner-Dowell Vows Are Pledged

Mrs. William Randy Dowell
...nee Miss Janna Kay Conner

Miss Janna Kay Conner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Conner of 1165 Neel Rd., and William Randy Dowell, son of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Dowell of Hereford, pledged double-ring wedding vows Friday evening at 8 o'clock. Rev. T. O. Upshaw officiated the ceremony in Central Baptist Church. Darrell L. Garrison, organist, presented a program of appropriate nuptial selections and accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Sanders as they sang "Because" and "The Wedding Prayer." Classic white urns bearing arrangements of white mums, standing on fluted pedestals, centered the wedding scene. Emerald palms and fifteen-branched candelabra formed the background. Escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a formal gown of white nylon over taffeta. Chantilly lace motifs re-embroidered with seed pearls and miniature brilliants, enhanced the empire bodice, elbow-length sleeves, skirt front and chapel train. Her shoulder-length veil of illusion was secured by a coil of organza roses embellished with seed pearls. She carried a white Bible topped by a cascading arrangement of white roses. Mrs. Darrell L. Garrison of Canyon attended the bride as matron of honor while Miss Gwen Barnes of Wheeler, Miss Terry Edmondson of Canyon and Mrs. Jerry Itcockwell attended as bridesmaids. Dressed identically in cocktail-length gowns of fuschia pole de sole featuring empire waists, A-line skirts and elbow-length sleeves, each wore a matching coil with a brief veil. Fuschia slippers and wrist-length white gloves completed their costumes. They carried large white mums, tied with white streamers. David Dowell of Hereford served as his brother's best man. Groomsmen were Mack Casler and Jerry Curtsinger of Hereford and Gary Frazier of Wichita Falls. Jim Conner, brother of the bride, Joe Mack Hale of Hereford and Edward Turner of Borger served as ushers. Miss Tamra Taylor of Hereford, flower girl, attired as a miniature bride, dropped white rose petals along the bridal aisle from a white colonial basket glittered with silver. Fellowship Hall of the church was the setting for the reception held following the wedding rites. The bride's table, covered with a white net cloth, was centered with a white candelabra bearing white tapers and holding a white floral arrangement. Miss Pat Mannley of Wichita Falls served the five-tiered pink rose trimmed wedding cake which was baked by Mrs. R. E. Warren Jr. Presiding at the punch bowl was Mrs. Jim Lamb of Gruver while Miss Ruth Anne

19 Mrs. Crocker Receives Credit Award

Varietas Study Club Members Hear Program on 'Education' Presented

A program on "Education" was presented to members of Varietas Study Club when the group met recently in the home of Mrs. Luther Kirk at 1238 N. Russell.

Mrs. Luther Pierson, vice president, presided in the absence of Mrs. S. C. Evans, president. Those present opened the meeting by repeating the Club Collect.

Mrs. Lee Harrah gave an informative and interesting talk on "World Literacy Problems." "These problems," she stated, "have to do with kind of literature available and ability people have to read it." She mentioned that one author said "Because the world is in the condition it is in, in order to save ourselves from destruction we will have to use the greatest weapon we have — the weapon of knowledge." In addition, Mrs. Harrah gave these surprising facts, "Less than half of the children in the world receive any formal education. So it is estimated that 44 percent of the people in the world are complete illiterates. In U.S. a literate person is one who has completed four years of school. Frank C. Lauback, who has done so much to each people to read says that a literate person should have at least 6 years of schooling." Mrs. Harrah stated that the world's vast pools of ignorance are located in Asia, the Middle East, most of Africa, Central and South America. In India, Pakistan, Indonesia and Viet Nam, 80 percent are unable to read and write." She mentioned that churches and government have done much to further education, UNESCO has been entrusted with task of promoting the advancement of education. The years from 1960 to 1970 is being called the Development Decade. Already in Africa, Asia and Latin America, great programs for the development of formal education are being undertaken. In fact 70 countries plan to complete provisions for universal primary education by 1980 but she concluded, "They must work on adult education if they are to accomplish much."

Mr. J. R. Spearman then gave an interesting talk on "Library Service." "In the beginning," he said, "Important to the task of acquiring knowledge is knowing where to find it." She told of how ancient Babylonians made tablets of clay, cutting symbols into them. "After about 4000 B. C. the Babylonians and many others used these for keeping records, messages and these were then carried into Egypt. For many years some of these were buried but in 1853 a British archaeologist discovered a great public library which contained 10,000 clay tablets. All these contain history," she stated. Mrs. Spearman spoke of how the Chinese built libraries as early as 300 B. C. and that libraries were set up in America by explorers and colonists. She mentioned that Benjamin Franklin established the first library in Philadelphia in 1731, this being the first lending library in U.S. She said that this collection of books still exists. "Looking back over these findings," Mrs. Spearman stated, "we realize the increased need for knowledge in our changing world — knowledge about vocations, family living, human relations, national and international affairs so essential for development."

Mrs. Spearman mentioned the Adult Education program in Pampa, stating that the Pampa Adult Education committee, since 1953 has sponsored a total of 50-60 local programs. She further stated that libraries have more than books, they keep a collection of magazines, pamphlet, exhibits of arts and crafts and they are often asked to fill special needs.

In conclusion, Mrs. Spearman said, "The world of books is the most remarkable creation of man. Information today is transmitted at rates of thousand words a minute or more and there is a small side about two inches wide which contains every word in the Bible and the entire book can be read through a microscope. The only guarantee we have for our future is in the quality of mind we develop in our readers and in our students."

Refreshments were served to Mmes. H. H. Butler, F. A. Cary, Cecil Dalton, Lee Harrah, John Kelly, Luther Kirk, R. W. Lane, Otis Nace, Luther Pierson, Ralph Thomas, W. A. Wagoner and Sherman White.

Mrs. H. E. Crocker was named "Credit Woman of the Year" by Pampa Credit Women's Club at its installation dinner held recently in Cibola Room of Coronado Inn.

The award given annually by the group to a member rendering outstanding service in civic organizations and in the field of credit, was presented by Mrs. Gordon Bayless, in-coming president.

Others installed included Mrs. Glen Day, first vice president Mrs. Lillie Walton, second vice president; secretary, Mrs. Crocker; Recording secretary, Mrs. Charlene Rich, and treasurer, Mrs. C. K. McQuary.

Mrs. Crocker is a charter member of the club having served in the offices of; president, first and second vice president, treasurer, program chairman and publicity chairman. She is presently serving as corresponding secretary.

Presidents Hayes, Garfield Lives Discussed for TC Culture Club

Mrs. J. R. Donaldson and Mrs. Ross Buzzard presented a program on the lives of Presidents Hayes and Garfield at Tuesday afternoon's meeting of Twentieth Century Culture Club.

Mrs. W. L. Hase was hostess to the meeting in her home at 1704 Christine with Mrs. V. L. Hobbs assisting.

A brief business session was conducted by Mrs. J. L. Hase, president.

Mrs. Weldon Carter introduced the speakers for the day.

Mrs. Donaldson sketched the life of Rutherford B. Hayes, nineteenth President of the United States and his wife Lucy Webb Hayes. The speaker called the members' attention to the fact that Hayes followed Grant as president at a time when the Republican Party was split into two warring factions, stating one group demanded reform, the other wanted to continue policies as they were at the time. He was one of the most educated men of his time and completed his studies at Harvard Law School in 1845. One of Hayes' first acts was to keep his promise which had won him the presidency. On April 3, 1877, he withdrew Federal troops from South Carolina and on April 20, the last troops left Louisiana, and the hard reconstruction days were over.

In describing President Hayes' lovely wife Lucy, the speaker cleverly brought out the fact that she too was intelligent but that the President never realized this for he married her for her beauty.

Mrs. Buzzard painted the picture of President Garfield as a genial warm-hearted scholarly man who was elected to the presidency in 1880 and won back some of the respect which had been lost for the office during reconstruction days. "His father died when he was two years old and his mother, Eliza, proved her courage by running the farm and rearing her children. Garfield was always appreciative of the many things she did for him. They were also a religious family as well as desiring an education. Garfield could truly be called one of the great scholars of his day for he had a thirst for learning. His wife the former Lucretia Rudolph was also a student and he lovingly called her "Crete." Garfield's career tragically came to an end when he was assassinated by a man (See PRESIDENTS, Page 24)

Shower Honors Mrs. J. Bewley in Skellytown Wednesday

SKELLYTOWN (Spl) — Mrs. James Bewley was honored Wednesday evening with a shower in the home of Mrs. R. Evans in Skellytown.

Miss Lana Sue Brown assisted in recording the gifts and names.

Participating in the event were Mmes. James Bewley, Jack Evans, Garrett Bewley, Alta Boyd, Bonnie Davis, Bob Evans, Gene Lock, Lena Moore, Everett Huffines, Troy May, G. Ford Coleman, Jim McCann, Blackman, Orville Wimsatt, Bill Campbell and daughter Tamant, and Elbert Durham.

Mrs. Adair Presents Program On 'Roman Empire' to TC Cotillion Club

Members of Twentieth Century Cotillion met Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Buddy Cockrell, east of Pampa, with Mrs. Jack White, vice president presiding. Mrs. White announced that the club will be honored by the Opportunity Plan, Inc. at West Texas State University in Canyon on Nov. 15. The club presents the proceeds from its Annual Antique Show to this unique student loan fund at the university.

A new member, Mrs. Gene Hall, was welcomed by the club.

Mrs. Weldon Adair presented the program, "Ancient Rome," a study of their government as related to ours. Mrs. Adair stated, "The Roman Empire, at its height, included most of Europe, the middle East, and the northern coastal area of Africa. Its millions of people spoke many languages and worshipped many gods, but they were united by the military power and government of the Romans.

"Roman citizens were those who had been born or adopted into one of the original tribes of Rome, and never before or since has citizenship been so jealously guarded or so highly prized."

Mrs. Adair said that a citizen was liable to military service at call from his 16th to 60th year. He could not hold public office until he had served ten years in the army. The soldiers assembled in "centuries" who chose the magistrates, passed or rejected measures proposed in the Senate, tried all cases of capital crime charged to Roman citizens and decided upon war or peace.

"However," Mrs. Adair stated, "the Senate remained supreme. It was made up of 300 favored elders, selected by position and influence to serve a lifetime membership. They were considered a cast apart and they and their descendants were called Patricians.

"The Plebeians, or lower class, set up their own group and elected Tribunes whose main duty was to protect the individual plebian against arrest by patrician officials and to exercise this function in person and within the city."

Mrs. Adair related that "gradually, upon the demands of the Plebeians, led by the tribunes Licinius and Sextus, the legislative independence of the plebs was secured which ended the long struggle between the orders.

"Laws were inscribed on twelve brass tables which were fastened to the speakers stand in the Roman Forum. The writing of these laws developed the first legal profession in Rome. Ministers of justice presided at trials, jurors were selected, lawyers were permitted to advise clients and plead in court."

Mrs. Adair added that after the writing of the law more people learned to read and boys were required to memorize the twelve tables. News began to be published on large billboards and shops began advertising by painting names on the fronts of the shops.

"During the last years of the Republic many changes came about in Rome. Divorce became prevalent, larger and larger armies were raised, and the

Reception Marks Golden Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde M. Smith mark golden wedding date

An open house reception recently honored Mr. and Mrs. Clyde M. Smith of Wichita, Kan., former residents of Miami, on their golden wedding anniversary.

The event was held in the home of the couple's daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Weidner, 2111 Mary Ellen. Serving with Mr. and Mrs. Weidner as hosts and hostesses were the honoree's children, Mr. and Mrs. Bill W. Smith of Wichita, Kan., Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Smith of Salina, Kan., and Mr. and Mrs. Harold B. Smith of Oklahoma City, Okla.

The refreshment table, covered with a 50-year old white linen cloth which was a wedding gift to the honored couple, was centered with silver and crystal epergne bearing an arrangement of yellow spider mums, golden grapes and golden foliage, flanked by silver candelabra bearing yellow tapers. Miss Debbie Weidner and Miss Karen McKendree presided at the refreshment table. Guests were registered by the hostesses.

Mrs. Smith wore a yellow rose corsage and Mr. Smith wore a yellow rose boutonniere.

Some 90 guests from Dalhart, Miami, Amarillo, Skellytown, White Deer and Pampa called during the receiving hours to help mark the occasion. Of the honoree's 13 grandchildren 12 were present.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith were married on Oct. 29, 1916 in Williams-town, Mo.

Woman Battles The Ills of Oil Pipelines

ATLANTA, Ga. — Dr. Ivy Parker's title is research engineer, but the moniker only vaguely tells what this small, gray-haired woman does.

Dr. Parker is a specialist in the care of pipelines, those underground arteries that carry the nation's lifeblood of fuels.

Dr. Parker, who was born in 1907 on a ranch in Quay County, N. M., is a rust, or more properly corrosion, expert now with the Plantation Pipe Line Co., headquartered here.

She travels thousands of miles each year, checking a 3,200 mile ribbon of steel that stretches from Texas to Washington, D. C., carrying its daily burden of 350,000 barrels of gasoline, kerosene and other liquid petroleum products.

The research engineer has spent three decades doing battle against the insidious enemy of steel, searching for signs of corrosion which can be detected with specialized equipment at points where the line comes to the surface.

A pipeline is a demanding master. To run efficiently, it must be full at all times. Pumping stations along the way, across mountains and beneath rivers, push the products on their way. Batches of particular products are siphoned off from the main line for delivery at various points.

The pipeline follows a split second schedule that demands the utmost from men and equipment; a single error in judgment can snarl deliveries, result in the loss of thousands of dollars.

Pipelining is traditionally a man's domain, but Ivy Parker is an accepted and admired exception.

As she told the publication, Petroleum Today, "I've never asked or expected any preferential treatment. It's just as well. I never got any."

Petroleum Today, a publication of the American Petroleum Institute, calls Dr. Parker "the gentle pipeline" in a story on her.

The research engineer started out to study home economics, enrolled at West Texas State Teachers College, in Canyon. But she switched to a chemistry major before her freshman year was over. She holds a master's degree and a doctor-

Mrs. C. V. Forsman, class president, presided during the business period, and presented gifts from the class to Mrs. Allen, teacher; Mrs. Mack Harmon, past-president; Mrs. W. M. Castleberry, secretary, and Mrs. G. L. Wilson.

The next meeting will be a Christmas party the first Tuesday in December.

Philippines Benefits As Top Woman Whirls

By DON C. BECKER
United Press International
MANILA (UPI) — The best description of Imelda ("Melody") Marcos, first lady of the Philippines, is "wow!"

That's the sort of person who was on a visit to the United States recently with her husband.

Twelve years ago when then congressman Ferdinand E. Marcos, 37, first saw the 24-year-old Imelda, member of a prominent Philippine family, he promptly told her he intended to marry her.

Imelda's Spanish-inherited sensibilities were stunned but not for long. Eleven days later they were wed.

Marcos' decision obviously was as right as it was fast. When he won the presidency last year, the losing Liberal party claimed it was not war hero Marcos who won, but his wife.

"It was Imelda, she won a million votes for Ferdie," the Liberals lamented. Large as this assertion is, few Filipinos will argue the point.

Mrs. Marcos is an untiring hostess, has a fantastic memory for names and a keen political sense. Now a poised 36-year-old mother of three (Imelda, 11, Ferdinand, Jr., 9, and Irene, 6), she is as attractive as in 1953 when she was a beauty queen and being offered movie contracts. Her 36-23-35 figure of those days is virtually unchanged.

The "I" in Imelda is apparently for indefatigable. She can dance the "jerk" or "frug" until 3 a.m. and be bright-eyed for a breakfast meeting on social welfare four hours later.

As first lady of a land of 32 million people which is deeply infused with traditions from both the Spanish and American cultures, Imelda (as she is known throughout the Philippines), attacks her job with the same ferocity and vitality she generated during the 18 months campaign that led to her husband's election.

She is on the go 18 hours a day deeply involving herself in everything from affairs of state to her children's homework. She is currently spearheading a national drive to beautify the country (400,000 trees already are planted), has organized a privately sponsored integrated social welfare program and has started work on the nation's first cultural center.

Admittedly no expert on all the projects she is heading, Mrs. Marcos takes maximum advantage of the fact she has the best brains of the country at her disposal.

"We often sit around and have 'bull' sessions," she told U.P.I. "Sometimes we call them 'can' sessions — thinking of all the things we can do."

In an interview, she can be bubbly talkative and disarmingly candid about herself. "If anything, being First Lady has made me more humble, more aware of my responsibilities," she said. "I don't want to be set up on a pedestal. After all, I'm a human being with both feet on the ground."

"I cannot be talking all the time of integrated social welfare or beautification. I have to have some kind of release," she went on. "I don't play golf, I don't do so many things (drink or smoke among them). I can have exercise with the jerk or frug."

Only time will put the Marcos administration in the proper perspective but right now Imelda Marcos seems to be the most beloved of Filipino first ladies. As to what husband Ferdinand thinks of her, his photograph in her music room bears this inscription:

"To Imelda my love:
"No matter how dark the night, how dreary the day, however heavy the burdens of state and depressing the ways of friends, my soul lifts, my heart soars, and my face lights up at just a glimpse of you. Ferdinand."

Slaughterhouse Woman Busy in Union Packing Company

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — A 27-year-old veterinarian has been adding the feminine touch to a St. Louis meat packing house. Dr. Karen Group is the only woman meat inspector employed at the Union Packing Co.

"It's really quite an atmosphere," Dr. Group said, "I'm completely surrounded by men, machinery, and cattle."

Dr. Group is in charge of checking cattle before and after slaughtering to make sure no diseased animals are packaged.

"It's really quite a job when you consider cattle can pick up over 110 different diseases and transmit them to human beings," she said.

Dr. Group said that if a disease is localized she instructs the workmen "to cut it out." But animals with more serious diseases like tuberculosis can't be allowed by, she said, because any human who ate the meat would catch the disease.

Dr. Group said even though she's the only woman, she's had no difficulty gaining the respect of her masculine colleagues.

She said she never anticipated working in a packing house when she was attending veterinarian school at Michigan State University.

She said she heard about an opening for an inspector at the plant and it sounded like an unusual experience. "That was two years ago," Dr. Group said, "and I've been at it ever since."

Dr. Group said she doesn't know how long she'll remain in the meat business.

"But one thing is for sure," she said, "if I ever go into private practice I'll sure appreciate the size of the average alley cat after being surrounded by cows all day long."

Woman Boss In England Battles Many Prejudices

By FANCHON M. WATKINS
LONDON (UPI) — The woman boss in the United States is accepted as a matter of course.

Not so, though, in Britain, where a woman must work exceedingly hard to get anywhere near the top, must overcome quite a bit of male prejudice against females in the executive suite, and where she must be prepared to ear less than her masculine counterparts.

These were conclusions of a report from London's Junior Chamber of Commerce. It circulated 10,000 commercial and industrial companies to provide up-to-date information for girls leaving school or university.

But only 1431 questionnaires were returned, an indication of the massive indifference the majority of British firms feel towards the sex that operates the company typewriters, makes the worker's tea and marries the company's male executives.

The report has sad news for the ambitious girl with a mini skirt and smile for the boss but not much else. Feminine guile, it says, won't get a woman ahead, though it may help topple some of the barriers of prejudice against her.

A British girl in business also encounters stinginess. More than two-third of the women executives polled earned less than $4,200 a year, and only eight per cent get more than $7,000.

The women have comparable responsibility of male executives but very few men earn less than $4,200.

One firm observed: "We do not employ any women executive because all our buyers have to make frequent visits to extremem tropical climat which women would not be suitable."

Some of the firms also gave novel answers for not completing the questionnaire: Their type of business wasn't suitable for women; hey hadn't had any applications from would-be women executives; they employed women, but they wouldn't call them executives.

It appears that a woman can be her own worst enemy. In the second questionnaire, sent to already successful women executives, one-third answered "yes" to the question: "Is it your experience that the majority of able women prefer not to reach executive positions?"

Some women apparently "see" prejudice as one sees a mirage — a kind of defeatist thinking which justifies their own fears of inadequacy.

Most women, however, regard prejudice, where it exists as a challenge.

There are other solid obstacles in the path of the woman executive. A large majority of women interviewed did not consider that there is adequate, let alone plentiful, information available on careers for girls just finishing school.

Once she has decided to become an executive, a girl must lay out her campaign, says the report, writing to firms, inquiring about preparatory training, and aiming at higher education.

Although the survey found that higher education was not an absolute requirement, the trend seems heavily in that direction. Twice as many of the women under 30 had been to university as had the over 40's. Again, the higher the position the greater the amount of education.

Once she has found a job, a girl bent on an executive office should not be shy and retiring. Being "discovered" in British industry is as unlikely for a girl as it now is on the corner of Hollywood and Vine.

Finally, she should not worry about mixing marriage and a career. Forty per cent of the women interviewed were married and found that the two were quite compatible.

Dear Abby....

Wife's Problem Is A Dirty Husband

DEAR ABBY: This is my second marriage. I was a divorcee with four small children, but this time I got the best man who ever walked in shoe leather. I am 23 and my husband is 21, and his mother doesn't like me. She says her son isn't ready for so much responsibility. She told me to my face that she doesn't like small children, especially mine because they are not her grandchildren.

She said if I ever had her son's children. And she doesn't want my kids calling her "grandma." I don't want to come between my husband and his mother, but I don't want my children hurt either. What should I do?

male who has an interest in their daughter. Others are simply interested in a young man of another generation.

Ask your friend to get her husband to talk about his feelings with regard to his daughter and her boy friends. Sometimes the truth reveals itself when the problem is discussed openly.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MRS. K.: A lady should never tell an off color joke. The laugh she gets is temporary — and does not compensate for the loss of dignity — which is permanent.

How has the world been treating you? Unload your problems on Dear Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069. For a personal, unpublished reply, enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

NEW IN THE FAMILY
DEAR NEW: Stay out of her way. And do your children a favor and keep them out of her way, too. If you don't want to come between your husband and his mother, don't expect him to run interference for you.

A 23-year-old divorcee with four small children is lucky to get the "best man who ever walked in shoe leather." But you can't have everything. And your handicap is a mother-in-law who sounds like she could hunt bear with a switch.

DEAR ABBY: Married women are expected to wear wedding rings. I think all married men should wear something to indicate that they are married.

WILMA
DEAR WILMA: Isn't a five-year-old suit and a worried look sufficient?

DEAR ABBY: I have a close friend who has a 19-year-old daughter who is sweet, wholesome and respectful. She has ways entertained her friends at home and has abided by her parents' wishes. But the problem Abby is, no matter which boy the girl brings home, her father ignores him completely. In fact, he ignored them so completely, they all feel unwelcome in the home.

Her mother is at a loss. In fact she's become a nervous wreck due to his actions. This father claims he loves his daughter and would like to see her settled with a nice young man so he can't be jealous and trying to run them off for fear of losing her. He is friendly and fun-loving with all her girl friends, but when a boy calls, he acts like he is made of stone. Can you figure this out and offer some advice?

A FRIEND
DEAR FRIEND: What father says and how father feels may be two different things. Some fathers don't "trust" any FRESH FLOWERS are a sure sign of harvest hospitality. Your Thanksgiving table will be dressed in festive party trimmings with this colorful arrangement designed by Florists' Transworld Delivery experts. Bright blossoms and autumn leaves are combined for an elegant holiday centerpiece. A table arrangement or an autumnal bronze or yellow chrysanthemum plant make welcome gifts for your holiday hostess. FTD florists can send your floral Thanksgiving greeting anywhere in the country in time to celebrate the all-American holiday.

Three days of fun and feasting marked the first Thanksgiving, an all-American festival merged into one great day for gratitude and good times. The original feast and today's Thanksgiving celebration shared two ingredients of harvest hospitality — roast turkey and fresh flowers for the table.

When the Pilgrims celebrated the first harvest in September, 1621, turkey shared top billing on the menu with wild geese, ducks, lobsters, eels, clams, oysters and plenty of trimmings. Pumpkin pie became a holiday tradition in later years. Pumpkins grew in the New World, but the Pilgrims had not yet learned how to cook the vegetable.

Ninety Indians joined the settlers at tables decorated with wheat and wild flowers. From the start of the holiday, fresh blossoms were a sign of hospitality and today, the chrysanthemum is the favorite flower of Thanksgiving and the entire fall season. White "football" chrysanthemums, pompons or lacy spider mums are recommended by Florists' Transworld Delivery designers for the formal Thanksgiving table.

The white blossoms also will blend with any color scheme. Mixed yellow and bronze mums make a colorful November bouquet for informal family dining.

For a true harvest theme, ask your florist to design your flower arrangement in a horn-of-plenty basket or pumpkin shell.

Use the flowers as a centerpiece for your turkey dinner and later as a mantel or coffee table decoration in the living room.

For many, Thanksgiving is the start of a four-day week-end of entertaining, and fresh blossoms are the key to festive decorating. Fall floral arrangements or cut flowers also can be sent by FTD florists to families and friends away from home as a special "wish you were here" message.

The Pilgrims' celebration evolved into the first national holiday of Thanksgiving, but harvest feasts can be traced to ancient Greece, where three-day celebrations honored Demeter, goddess of the soil and everything that grew. Ceres, the harvest goddess, ruled over a similar Roman festival. Each year the prettiest girl in the village, chosen to represent the goddess, was presented with wreaths of fresh flowers and corn.

Ancient or modern, the Thanksgiving festival is a day when good friends gather, and your holiday celebration can be festive with all the right trimmings in food, fun and flowers.

Following Mrs. Walberg's talk, Mrs. R. F. Dirksen presented a speech on "Are Miniature Violets a Problem?"

Mrs. John Dellacrose was welcomed as a guest. Members attending included Mmes. V. N. Osborne, Holly Gray, Evan Jones, Marion Roberts, W. A. Greene, R. F. Dirksen, Norman Walberg and Da Glaxner.

The Society will meet next for a Christmas party on Dec. 13 in HIGHLIGHT HAIRDOS — Party hairdos for teen girls should look elegant but not elaborate or overdone. The styles above, from the November Seventeen, are just different enough to be special — and they don't even need setting. Top row left, a long straight fall of hair is pulled back with a bow; bangs are separated to show off party eye make-up; right high side ponytails are pinned up into tiny buns. Bottom, hair is pulled back and wrapped with a braided switch.

Quilting Keeps Sisters Together

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The former Kuhn sisters have been quilting together for years, even before they were married.

Five of the six sisters get together for quilting bees.

"We've been quilting as long as I can remember," said Mrs. Ruth Klingel, age 64. "I could not count the quilts my sisters have made."

Mrs. Theodore H. Mohr, who is 80, remembers life in the Kuhn family home. "The big quilting frame was always set up and we girls were kept busy around the quilting frame."

Mrs. Mohr said their mother had 12 children "and needed a lot of quilts." She learned to quilt at the age of 14.

Besides Mrs. Mohr and Mrs. Klingel, the other quilting sisters are Mrs. Edward G. Borne-man, 87, Mrs. Emil Dieball, 82, and Mrs. R. H. Krummenacher, 74.

The sisters said quilting "is a lovely way to spend the day." They talk about recipes, sewing and years gone by when they were home together.

Mrs. Mohr said "I wouldn't know an unkind word from a quilter."

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI)—One of the things that makes us Americans so lovable is our willingness to add victims of disaster.

When a major fire, flood, earthquake, avalanche, typhoon or other type of calamity occurs, the American public generously responds to appeals for help.

I personally can attest to the intensity of this charitable feeling toward strangers in distress.

When a catastrophe befell me recently, I was immediately befriended by a host of magnanimous benefactors, most of whom were previously unknown to me.

Untold Loss
The tragedy to which I allude was the loss of my priceless collection of disk litter which was inadvertently thrown away by a janitorial crew after the adjournment of Congress.

I call the collection "priceless" because it wasn't worth anything. Nevertheless, the loss was a great blow to me.

No man is an island, as the poet says, but unless his body is surrounded by litter he cannot function at peak efficiency. There is nothing more desolate and depressing than a bare desk.

But I shall not despair. Sympathetic citizens, touched by my plight, have been sending me copious quantities of new tribesmen.

material with which to clutter my desk.

Already my appointments calendar has disappeared beneath the rubble and my telephone is submerged up to the No. 4, or G11, dial hole.

I can't acknowledge all of the contributions to the litter renewal project, so I will simply mention some of the donations that are still visible in the bottom layer.

Nautical Dogs
A colleague in New York sent a department store advertisement featuring "his" and "hers" sailor suits for dogs. The one for "boy doggies" has a "bell-bottom look" and for girls, a "pleated skirt." They cost $13.50 each and look so cute they made me seashore.

—Author Sol Weinstein contributed a copy of his latest spy thriller, "On the Secret Service of His Majesty the Queen."

—The Travelers Insurance Co. donated a copy of a book by a janitorial crew after the adjournment of Congress.

Louis Zahn, a Chicago drug company executive, passed along a survey showing that in some areas 15 to 20 per cent of the men's cologne sold is bought surrounded by litter he cannot by girls.

These and the other cuts make splendid litter but they are only the foundation. After all, a sum isn't built in a day.

Toastmaster Competes in Speech Contest

Dave Jodie of Pampa represented Area 6 in the District 44 Toastmasters' annual fall humorous speech contest held in Lubbock on Saturday.

His speech, "That Industrial Institution Marriage," an insincere recommendation for marriage, won second place in competition with six other six Toastmaster Areas that comprise District 44. These six Areas, which cover the western half of Texas, include 35 Toastmaster Clubs with a total membership of over 600 men.

First place winner was Bill Burton of Lubbock representing Area II. His speech, "Gone, But Not Forgotten," was a satire on bald heads.

Third was Joe D. Hall of Plainview, Area 5 representative. He related childhood events in a light entitled, "What a Bright Boy You Have There, Madam."

From the first announcement, on Jan. 8, 1965, that South Korea would send 2,000 regular troops to South Viet Nam as "advisers," there has been apprehension that it would trigger a reopening of the Korean war.

For the South Koreans the apprehension was one of unease rather than one of fear. The South Koreans maintain a crack army of 550,000 backed by another 50,000 Americans.

In the intervening 22 months, the original advisory force has grown to around 45,000 men who, operating mostly in South Viet Nam's central coastal area, actively seek out and destroy the Communist Viet Cong and their North Vietnamese allies.

The South Koreans rate with the best of the "friendly forces" in South Viet Nam.

Ambush America

Eight hours before President Johnson's departure from Seoul at the end of his 30,000 Astor swing, a North Korean ambush from the truce line along the 38th parallel killed six American soldiers and a South Korean and wounded another American on an inspection patrol.

It was the worst, but by means the first, North Korean violation of the truce since the signing of the Korean armistice on July 27, 1953.

It is one which the North Koreans already may regret. It seems certain that the hand grenade attack on the American and South Korean patrol was timed with the Johnson visit, although the President himself was never closer to the truce line than some 12 miles.

Boys' Ranch Safety Day Scheduled By Area American Safety Engineers

Boys' Ranch Safety Day will be sponsored by the Panhandle Chapter of the American Society of Safety Engineers on Tuesday, Nov. 8.

The days activities will begin at 10 a.m., at the Ranch Headquarters. The group will be divided into teams to make a safety inspection of the Ranch facilities: Dormitories, dining hall, school, shops, barns, etc.

At 4 p.m., a course will be conducted on the use of dry chemical extinguishers to combat fires, for boys having the responsibility of being a member of the Ranch's fire fighting crew.

The group will have the noon and evening meals with the boys. Following the evening meal, a program of special music will be presented by students from Frank Phillips Junior College, under the direction of Mrs. Del Hubbard.

According to Dave Redus, area safety manager for Cabot Corp., all persons interested are invited to attend this days function.

Demo Brown, Reagan Both See Victories

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI)—Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown and Republican challenger Ronald Reagan each forecast victory Saturday in their long, bitter and costly campaign for California's governorship.

Brown, 61, said he had a "good feeling" and predicted a victory of slightly more than his 300,000-vote margin over former Vice President Richard M. Nixon in 1962.

Panhandle Water Conservation News

By FELIX W. RYALS
Amendment No. 11 to be voted on November 8, by the voters of Texas, means everything to the entire West Texas area including the Panhandle. We are going to need all the water that we can store above or underground.

Every organization in the State of Texas involved in the problem of providing water for the continued growth of the State, have gone on record as being in favor of Amendment No. 11. This amendment will raise the Texas Water Development Fund from $200 million to $400 million.

The people of Texas should be aware that this proposed amendment gives the first constitutional recognition to protecting water-users in every river basin.

For water short areas of the State, the Texas Water Development Fund can be the banking facility to participate in the financing of and the proposed amendment, for the first time authorizes use of the fund for construction of water treatment and transportation facilities for the movement of water. Without this authorization, local communities and regions of the State must depend upon their own resources to finance and construct reservoirs and transportation facilities to move water from one area of the State to another.

Increase in the authorized amount of the Texas Water Development fund will be required whether or not there is a viable Texas Water Plan. Political subdivisions unable to finance water projects through other sources can still borrow from the Fund. Expansion of the purposes for which the Fund may be used can reduce the cost of water users throughout the state where large-scale water treatment and transmission facilities can achieve economies not possible with piecemeal single purpose projects. Certainly, assurance of adequate supplies for future water requirements of each river basin is a laudable objective.

Thus, although the preliminary Texas Water Plan and Constitutional Amendment No. 11 are coincidental in time, each can be evaluated on its own. Objection to the Plan is not sufficient justification for rejection of the Amendment. All Texans can surely agree that what we need is more, not less, development of our water resources. The economic future of this State dependent upon water is too great a sacrifice simply to register an objection.

What Is A Farmer?

A farmer is a paradox — he is an overall executive with his home his office; a scientist using fertilizer attachments; a purchasing agent in an old straw hat; a personnel director with grease under his fingernails; a dieharden with a passion for alfalfa, amino- and antibiotics; a production expert with a surplus, and a manager battling a price-cost squeeze.

He manages more capital than most of the businessmen in town. He likes sunshine, good foods, State Fairs, dinner at noon, auctions, his neighbors, his shirt collar unbuttoned and above all, a good soaking rain in August.

He is not much for douths, ditches, throughways, experts, weeds, the eight-hour day, grasshoppers or helping with housework.

PUSH-BUTTON FARMING may not be such a farfetched idea if technology continues the rapid pace of recent years in lightening the farmer's load. A new development is a remote-control system for tractors consisting of a transistorized radio transmitter, held by the farmer at left, and a receiver mounted on the tractor. Called "Tele-tractor IV," it is being demonstrated by the Ford Motor Co. in rural areas of Switzerland. At right, the farmer pushes buttons to put the driverless tractor through its paces in the field.

Farmers are found in fields—plowing up, seeding down, rotating from planting to, fertilizing with, spraying for and harvesting. Wives help them, little boys follow them, the Agriculture Department confuses them, city relatives visit them, salesmen detain them and wait for them, weather can delay them, but only Heaven can stop them.

A farmer is both Faith and Fatalist — he must have faith to continually meet the challenges of his capacities amid an ever-present possibility that an Act of God (a late spring, an early frost, tornado, flood, drought) can bring his business to a standstill. You can reduce his acreage but can't restrain his ambition.

Might as well put up with him — he is your friend, your competitor, your customer, your source of food, fiber and self-reliant young citizens to help replenish your cities. He is your countryman — a demin-dressed, business-wise, fast growing statesman in stature.

Agriculturally Speaking

By FOSTER WHALEY

Ray Frazier, who farms 10 miles north of Pampa, dropped by our office last week to discuss a weed problem in his winter wheat. Frazier has received two or three good rains since he planted his wheat. The weeds are pepper and mustard winter type weeds. Normally the time to control winter weeds in wheat is in the early Spring after full tiller and before the wheat begins to boot. We called Dr. Allen Wiese, Bushland Experiment Station, and advised him the weeds were so plentiful they were actually stunting the wheat. In this case he recommended spraying this Fall. Under normal moisture conditions one-half pound of 2, 4-D per acre is recommended. We would advise stepping the rate up to three-quarters of a pound per acre due to the extremely dry surface moisture condition. Most aerial applicators are well aware of the rates that should be used under different conditions.

During 1966 a total of 1,229 cows from Gray County have been tested for Brucellosis as they enter packing houses for slaughter. Recertification of herds is necessary every three years. In times past this was accomplished by testing twenty percent of the foundation breeding herds. In addition, all herds had to be tested that had either suspects or reactors.

Through the use of the packing house test practically all of the on-premise testing can be eliminated. If the total number of cows (tested at time of slaughter) equals twenty percent of the foundation breeding herd of a County, the only herds to be tested will be reactor and suspect herds. We know many producers will be glad to know the extensive testing program required in the past has been simplified.

We have not had any recent word on when the Scabies inspection will start in Gray County. The inspection does not require the cattle to be corralled. It will be nothing more than a visual range inspection... all herds are to be inspected, so I'm told.

Huge Fertilizer Plant To Be Built In Area

Homer Young, president of Farmland Industries, Inc., Kansas City, Mo., has announced Friday it will build a 600-ton-per-day anhydrous ammonia fertilizer plant in an area that includes southwestern Kansas, western Oklahoma, southeastern Colorado and the Texas Panhandle.

Money needed for this entire plant is already available; therefore, no investments will be required from local cooperatives or farmers. Young stated: "The exact location of the plant, Young said, will be determined after consultation with representatives of member cooperatives within the above outlined area."

Farmland Industries, Inc. is a manufacturing and wholesaling cooperative formerly known as Consumers Cooperative Association. It is owned by some 1,800 farmer-owned local cooperatives in a dozen midwestern states.

Farmland Industries has just brought into production a 600-ton-per-day anhydrous ammonia plant at Ft. Dodge, Iowa.

"We are planning to duplicate this plant," Young said, "with possibly a few minor changes. In locating the plant, certain factors, such as the supply of natural gas and transportation facilities available, must be taken into consideration. We have this information at hand. It will be used at a series of meetings with managers and directors of local member cooperatives. These meetings will be called immediately. The purpose will be to decide where the plant should and will be located."

SCD Urges Passage of Amendment

AUSTIN — The Texas Soil and Water Conservation District Supervisors recommended the passage of Amendment No. 1 in the Nov. 8 general election during their annual convention here.

The amendment would provide that agricultural land be taxed according to its agricultural value.

Governor John Connally told the group they must be more active in telling the rest of the economy the story of agriculture.

"You've been taken for granted all these years," Governor Connally said. "You can no longer sit quietly by and assume everyone knows what you are do-structures on the watershed. The number will depend on the cost of the structures and the amount of water which will need to be controlled to safely protect the McClellan Creek Watershed.

Several of the site locations have stakes showing where the water lines will be on the adjoining property when the spillway of the structure is running at the expected peak flow in a 100 year frequency. We will be getting land rights maps which will show the amount of water and size of structure and all persons affected by the structure.

I will review these with the individuals affected. Then we can make definite plans as to each structure when we receive these maps.

Marilyn Maye Is a Girl With a Song in Her Heart

By WEBB TROUT
United Press International
CHICAGO — A furrow appeared between the wide-set hazel eyes. The lips pouted quizzically. Marilyn Maye was about to be profound.

"That," she said, "is a good question: Why don't people sing anymore?"

Miss Maye asks, and answers, the question with no small measure of authority. Her own singing has given a lift to the world of "good" popular music in the past year.

"The doomsayers must be causing all the gloom inside people," said the Kansas City redhead. "They're neurotic nuts and they want everybody to believe the world is a terrible, unhappy place."

"Sure, there's a war in Viet Nam, but think how much worse it could be. More people have more to sing about today than ever before in history. But many Americans don't seem to realize it."

"Marilyn, whose third RCA Victor album in a year was released recently, believes "everyone should open up his mouth and at the least try to sing once in a while. Lifting your voice can lift your heart."

A preacher of what she practices Marilyn Maye loves to sing and the personal, singing-right-at-you sound she produces obviously is part of the secret of her success on the night club and television circuit and records.

"Urge To Sing"

She said in a Chicago interview that "the urge to sing" is born in almost everybody but that many allow the day's "little problems" to stifle the instinct "and the vocal chords are used only to make unpleasant noises."

"It's tragic," she said, shaking her head. "Singing is great for the spirit... great do-it-yourself psychiatry... and you certainly don't have to have a trained voice to do it, or get paid for it, either."

Marilyn said "not everybody can be a professional, of course, but many who don't could be singing in the choir of their church, with the family around the piano at home, going to work, taking a bath, painting the house—any time!"

Quayle Goes From Comedy To Drama

NEW YORK (UPI) — From vaudeville comedy to the Shakespeare Theatre at Stratford-On-Avon is the unlikely route Anthony Quayle traveled in his rise to prominence as one of Britain's most eminent actors.

As a youngster, Quayle had studied at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts but ran away from school after only a year to join Bob Flanagan, a famed British comedian, in the early 1930s.

"I was his straight man, and it was a wonderful experience," Quayle recalled during rehearsal for one of his infrequent U.S. television appearances. He is one of the stars — along with Peter Ustinov and Geraldine Page — of the allmark Hall of Fame production of Maxwell Anderson's "Barfoot in Athens" that will be shown on NBC-TV on Nov. 11.

"After a few years in vaudeville, I had read the classics, particularly Shakespeare, and perhaps I became ambitious. I told Bob that I wished to leave his act and concentrate on serious theater. He said to me: 'I'd like to give you some advice. You are free to leave my act but my counsel is for you to forget the classics. Find yourself another good comedian and stick with it.'"

Quayle didn't follow Flanagan's advice, and the theater is richer because of it.

During the late 1930s Quayle did manage to distinguish himself in a few minor Shakespearean productions and in several minor movie roles.

For six years, during World War II, Quayle served as a cloak-and-dagger SOE agent (Special Operations Executive) for the British Army at Gibraltar and as an underground operator in Albania.

Following his discharge as a major, he returned to the theater and his real love—Shakespeare.

Julie Andrews Likes Movies Best of All

By PATRICIA DAVIS
United Press International
NEW YORK — Julie Andrews declares she has become "terribly staid and settled."

"I still do love to travel," the Academy Award-winning actress says, "but it is getting harder and harder all the time to leave my home."

"Home" for the British-born Miss Andrews is now the house she owns in Los Angeles.

"I can't really call England home any more," she says. With her busy film-making schedule, Miss Andrews says she "very seldom" gets back there. "My family has to come this way to visit me now."

One reason she prefers to stay home is her four-year-old daughter, Emma Kate, who recently started nursery school. Miss Andrews is married to British set designer Tony Walton.

Miss Andrews tries to take Emma with her whenever she has to travel, but now that the little girl is in school, she says it has become more difficult.

So she tries to make her trips away from home "as short as I possibly can."

Miss Andrews says Emma has inherited her love of singing... except that Emma's favorite song at the moment is "Batman."

Miss Andrews, who became famous on Broadway in "My Fair Lady" and "Camelot," would like to return to Broadway "if I had enough time free... a Broadway show takes a whole year out of your life."

Although she loves acting on stage, Miss Andrews says she really prefers motion pictures. "Movies seem fresher and newer. They hold my attention and are so exciting. It's like piecing together a complicated jigsaw puzzle."

Miss Andrews has made six movies in the past three years. She made her screen debut in "Mary Poppins" for which she won the 1964 "best actress" Academy Award. Subsequently she appeared in "The Americanization of Emily," "The Sound of Music," "Hawaii" and the yet-to-be-released "Torn Curtain" and "Thoroughly Modern Millie."

Miss Andrews entered show business as a child, accompanying her mother and stepfather, who were in British vaudeville, on tours. She made her stage debut at the age of three in a children's pageant in which she played "Nod" in "Winkles, Blinkers and Nods." A few years later she graduated to "Humpty Dumpty." She played the part of the egg.

Miss Andrews was really "discovered" when she was 22 years old, singing an operatic aria at the London Hippodrome.

'Texas' To Be Presented Again At Palo Duro Canyon Theater

"Texas," the spectacular production of music and drama and romance which plays in the Palo Duro Canyon of the Texas Panhandle, is to reopen next year on Friday, June 30 and run through Sept. 4, Labor Day. As before, "Texas" will run every night except Tuesday.

At the October meeting of the executive board of the Texas Panhandle Heritage Foundation, which produces "Texas," the executive vice president, Raymond Raillard, made the following reports:

The first was an analysis of 100 questionnaires which had been presented to the heads of families at the last few performances of the production asking how far they had come and where they had heard about "Texas." These were distributed at random. The replies reported hearing of "Texas" from all media and from as far away as Boston and New York.

Seventy-seven put word-of-mouth recommendation first. Newspapers, radio, TV, magazines, brochures and other media followed in that order.

Eighty-seven per cent said they made the trip especially to see the production. On the average, they had driven 195 miles — a round trip of 390 miles — to see the show.

The next report was on cars driven to "Texas." Nineteen thousand cars were parked, driving no farther than from Amarillo or Canyon each of these made a round trip of 50 miles since a check with the Park records reveals that only a few hundred cars each month entered the Palo Duro State Park early and remained to see the production. Almost all of the patrons entered the park after 6 p.m. when the free admission to the park for theatre patrons went into effect. At an average of 14 miles per gallon, counting a drive of only 50 miles, these cars drove 950,000 miles, they would not otherwise have driven. They used 65,000 gallons of gas, paying $19,000 to the filling stations for it and a state tax of $5,200.

According to the survey, however, the average trip totaled 390 miles. To allow for the few hundred already in the park and using 250 miles as a basis, the above figures can be therefore multiplied by seven using this figure. Gas purchases would amount to $135,000 and the tax for gas paid into the state treasury $37,800. In addition, the production paid $9,900 into the State treasury in commissions.

The third report was on out of state people who were asked to register and had opportunities to visit with the hostesses a they came in. About 2,500 people registered from the 50 states sent the most patrons to "Texas" in order of their numbers: Oklahoma, California, New Mexico, Kansas, Missouri, New York, Louisiana, Illinois, Colorado, Florida. People reported hearing of "Texas" from Boston and New York. Patrons from 53 different countries signed the guest book.

Campaign Costs Hit New Peaks

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Election campaign costs are climbing to new peaks in parts of the nation this year but the exact price for public office remains mostly hidden in a maze of state disclosure laws.

A survey by United Press International showed an increase—in some cases dramatically sharp—in campaign outlays this year compared to 1962, in the last previous non-presidential election year.

Joseph Dukert, Republican state chairman, said expenditures for statewide races in Maryland were running at least double the amount spent four years ago.

Party chairman Jim Holsbush reported that North Carolina Republican candidates are spending "more than 50 per cent more" Joe Basore, Democratic campaign manager in Arkansas, also foresaw a 50 per cent rise in his state.

Reasons given for the increased cost vary from state to state. In most cases, the bigger tab is attributed to efforts to swing close races and to the greater cost of television, radio and newspaper advertising.

An exception is the gubernatorial race in Rhode Island. Democrats there are pitting Horace E. Hobbs against Gov. John H. Chafee, who polled a record 87,000-vote margin in 1964 despite the fact that Democrats won all other state posts.

Frank D. Priebe, Houston, area superintendent for Cities Service Oil Company, pointed out that six different federal and state agencies exercise authority over petroleum operations in the bay areas of the Texas Gulf Coast, adding:

"All of these agencies have adequate means at their disposal for policing oil company activities designed to prevent pollution and contamination of the inland bay waters."

He noted also that the Corpus Christi City Council recently enacted a new drilling and producing ordinance with necessary police powers to prevent such operations in Corpus Christi Bay.

Luther F. Ellison, Dallas, division petroleum engineer for Sun Oil Company, described the mechanism of waterflooding to recover additional oil from a reservoir and explained that, while salt or brackish water can be used in many instances, there are occasions when fresh water must be used because of conditions found in certain reservoirs.

BRACKENRIDGE, 1920—Though first discoveries in the Breckenridge area had been made as early as 1916, by 1920, when this picture of oil field teamsters was made, it was a center of the intensive development which marked West Central Texas.

Oil Spokesmen Assert Drilling is No Threat To Water Conservation

CORPUS CHRISTI — A state legislative committee was told recently that oil field operations pose no threat to water conservation in Texas.

Spokesmen for the Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association testified before the Committee on Pollution and Multiple Use Study of Texas Waters that:

1. Water use for oil field operations, primarily to recover additional oil, accounts for only a tiny fraction of fresh water use in the state — a situation that will prevail for the next half century.

2. Curtailment of the relatively small amount of fresh water needed for additional recovery programs "would deny the citizens of Texas the maximum benefits that can be obtained from their vital petroleum resources."

3. Existing laws are adequate to prevent pollution and are being administered vigorously by the responsible agencies, including the Texas Railroad Commission.

The committee, under its chairman, Senator Culp Krueger of El Campo, has been conducting hearings across the state, looking toward possible legislative proposals. The two day Corpus Christi session is expected to wind up this phase of the study.

The Association represents some 4,000 members, accounting for more than 90 per cent of oil and gas production activity in Texas.

Paul R. Cunningham, a consulting-engineer on water supply, now with a Denver firm but located until recently in Fort Worth, reported to the committee the results of a fresh water use study in the West Texas region.

In 1964, he related, 97.6 per cent of the water withdrawn from the fresh water bearing Ogallala formation was used for irrigation, 1.2 per cent for municipal purposes, one per cent for industrial uses — and only two-tenths of one per cent for additional oil recovery operations.

"The use of fresh water for secondary recovery is only a drop in the bucket," Cunningham declared. "These may be rather startling figures if you have been led to believe that the oil industry is making serious inroads into the available water supply in that part of Texas."

Furthermore, he added, "For waterflood purposes, the economic gain through use of an acre-foot of water is more than ten times greater than that of an acre-foot of water used in irrigation."

William H. Abington, Dallas, general counsel for the Association, commenting on the efficiency of pollution prevention measures already under way, noted that the Railroad Commission has banned the use of open disposal pits — designed to impound salt water produced with oil and gas — in 41 counties and 226 separate oil fields.

He told the committee that the Commission now has actions pending in several other counties and will consider a statewide "no-pit" order December 6. He observed that the regulatory body also has enforced the proper plugging of 140 abandoned wells to prevent possible contamination of fresh water supplies.

Because of the industry's relative infinitesimal needs, Abington contended, "There is no sound water conservation reason for prohibiting or curtailing the use of fresh water for petroleum operations."

Frank D. Priebe, Houston, area superintendent for Cities Service Oil Company, pointed out that six different federal and state agencies exercise authority over petroleum operations in the bay areas of the Texas Gulf Coast, adding:

"All of these agencies have adequate means at their disposal for policing oil company activities designed to prevent pollution and contamination of the inland bay waters."

general election campaign. No one would say what Shapp's opponent, Republican Raymond Shafer, is spending. The estimate is about $2 million.

In California, the estimates are that Ronald Reagan and incumbent Democrat Edmund G. Brown each will be banked by about $2 million in their costs for the governorship. In 1962, when Brown won his second term, the Democrats spent $1.4 million while the Republicans laid out $1.5 million in behalf of former Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

In Illinois, where Republican Charles Percy generally is given the edge over incumbent Paul H. Douglas for a U.S. Senate seat, it is estimated that spending for all races will be about $2.5 million for the Republicans and $3 million for Democrats.

That would be down somewhat from the combined $6 million spent by both parties four years ago. This is due in part to the two-week moratorium on campaigning which followed the murder of Percy's 21-year-old daughter, Valerie.

Some candidates still run "shoestring" campaigns, including Lester Maddox, the Democratic candidate for governor of Georgia. Maddox expects to spend about $75,000 compared with an estimated half million for his GOP opponent, Howard Callaway.

Citgo Engineer To Speak Here

W. C. Koger, chief corrosion engineer for Cities Service Oil Co. of Bartlesville, Okla., will speak to the Panhandle Section of the Society of Petroleum Engineers of AIME Tuesday, Nov. 8, in Pampa.

The meeting will begin at 6:15 p.m. at the Coronado Inn. Koger's topic will be "Corrosion in Waterflood Plants and Associated Production Equipment."

Magnolia Pipe Line Co. Changes Name to Mobil

DALLAS — Magnolia Pipe Line Company has changed its corporate name effective Tuesday, Nov. 1, to Mobil Pipe Line Co. L. H. True, president of the company, which is a common carrier affiliate of Mobil Oil Corp., made the announcement.

Mr. True said the pipeline company's new name "is in keeping with the decision to focus attention on the word 'Mobil' in all company operations." Mobil Oil Corporation changed its name earlier this year from Socony Mobil Oil Company, Inc.

The pipeline company traces its origin back nearly 70 years. At first, the pipeline operation was a department of its parent oil company, but in 1925 Magnolia Pipe Line Company was formed as Texas corporation.

The company's first major projects began the crude oil lines — from Eldorado, Ark., to Beaumont, Texas, and from Luling, Texas to Miranda City, Texas.

Mr. True said, "We have come a long way since the days when screw-end pipe was bucked up with tongs, and lines were only a few miles long. Today, nearly 750,000 barrels of crude oil and petroleum products move through the 12,000-mile network of Mobil Pipe Line Company each day."

"The sophisticated telemetering equipment and automatic shut down devices considered standard in today's lines to control flow and pressure, would have been hard to imagine in the early days of the industry," Mr. True said.

Mobil Pipe Line Company is a pioneer in remote control of pipeline operations and the use of computers and microwave systems to control the flow of product through its lines.

In addition to operating Mobil Oil Corporation's domestic pipeline system, Mobil Pipe Line also plays an important supervisory role in a number of joint-interest lines.

AUSTIN (UPI)—Texas Republican statehouse candidates are banking on a strong endorsement for U.S. Sen. John Tower by Dallas and Houston voters to pull them into the legislature Nov. 8.

GOP leaders admit privately that they feel they can gain from 16 to 20 House seats if Tower scores strongly in his battle with Atty. Gen. Waggoner Carr for a new term.

The Republicans have fielded nine candidates in Dallas County and 11 in Harris, with seven of the Houston area—hopefuls running in a district with congressional hopeful George Bush. If the party is successful, it will mark the greatest gains in the Texas Legislature since Reconstruction Days, and the move would be made two years after the GOP was wiped out in the 1964 Lyndon landslide.

Cahoon Stood Alone
There were eight House members in the 58th Legislature, most ever by the party. After the 1964 election, only Frank Cahoon of Midland stood to represent the party in state government.

A big victory by the GOP would not be the only first to be scored on the 60th Legislature. The first Negro representatives will also be present.

There are four Negroes running, two from each party, and one is without opposition. Curtis M. Graves of Houston won the Democratic party nomination and has not been apposed in the general election for place six in the 23rd District.

The other Democrat is Joseph E. Lockridge of Dallas, who is reportedly running about 50-50 in his race with Republican Hank Gilliam in Dallas, one of the spots where the "how goes Tower goes the slate" idea prevails.

The other two Negro candidates are Mrs. Lois C. White of San Antonio, opposing Democrat James R. Nowlin and Conservative party candidate Bernard F. Rayburg, and M. B. Slaughter of Dallas, who is running against Democrat Griffith Moore as part of a GOP slate.

Observers feel the GOP has at least five candidates outside of the Dallas and Houston areas, who could cut into the vast Democratic majority.

The top hope of course is state Rep. Cahoon, who is opposed by Democrat John G. McMillian Sr. in Midland County, but expected to win again. Republicans Jack H. Hart of the 33rd District and Malouf Abraham of the 84th, both in the Panhandle, are also given a good chance at defeating their Democratic opponents. Hart faces Democrat Bill W. Barton and Abraham is opposing Seibert Worley.

Republican Jim Griffith in the 56th District is reported running a strong race against Democrat Gerhardt Schulle Jr. of San Marcos, as is Charles (Chuck) Scoggins in his fight with Democrat Al Gonzalez at Corpus Christi.

The GOP has fielded only 35 candidates for the 150 House seats, in what they call selecting the best spots for votes.

There are 92 incumbents on the ballot, including the lone Republican, but only nine of the 91 Democrat members have GOP opposition.

The minority Constitution party has 16 candidates, all in Harris County, and the minor Conservative party has 10, all in Bexar County.

The Constitution party slate is opposing two incumbent Democrats the Republicans chose to ignore and the Conservative list includes three battles against incumbents that the GOP passed.

Miniskirt Doesn't Go Far Enough?

OXFORD, England (UPI)—At Oxford, they don't skirt the issue. They debate it.

In a close decision Thursday night, the university's debating society voted 306 to 363 against a motion that the miniskirt had—excuse the expression—gone far enough.

More than 1,000 cheering, chanting, applauding undergraduates packed the hall. Another 100 outside boomed, but climbed walls to peer in windows.

The judges reflected the question—... this house believes the miniskirt does not go far enough.

Marina Warner, 20-year-old daughter of famous British cricket star Sir Pelham Warner, wore a silver miniskirt nine inches above the knee. She counted the yes votes.

Emme Rothschild, a member of the famous banking family, wore a granny-length mauve and cherry evening dress. She counted the no votes.

By tradition, most Oxford union speakers wear formal evening wear. But Leofranc Holford-Stevens, main speaker for the motion, was decked out in a Roman toga and laurel wreath.

One woman spoke. Miss Daphne Triggs, 20, called miniskirts "the vestment of harlots."

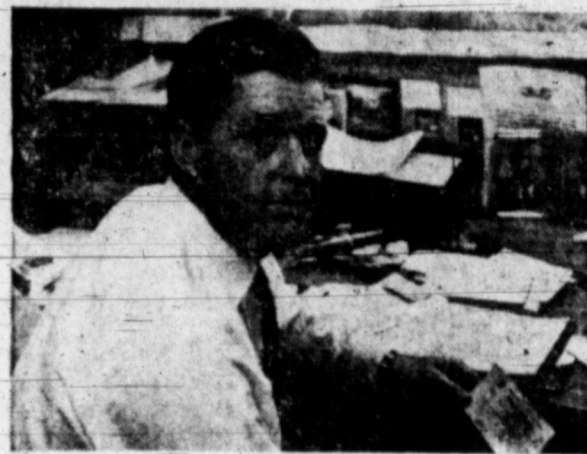

Even politics got into the act. Robert Jackson, chief speaker against the motion, praised India independence hero Mahatma Gandhi as the man who introduced the miniskirt. It was that kind of night.
