

Grocers Batten Down Hatches To Prevent War

By DORIS E. WILSON
News Staff Writer

Pampa's grocery stores were battering down the hatches today in preparation for a preventive war against boycotting by housewives of high food prices in their respective stores.

While there was no threatened boycott in evidence, local managers were taking no chances that the national trend started by a Denver, Colo., grandmother would not be sparked here.

Sampling opinions of local store managers and the Pampa housewife left this question: Are trading stamps... carrying out groceries... convenience packaging... cashing checks... gimmick promotions... the cause of higher food prices? Would cutting these factors out, lower food prices? You will find as many varied answers as the number of people talked with... depending upon whether they are the grocer or the housewife.

Carrying out the same policy as the other 70 Furr supermarkets in the southwest, Furr Foods, Inc., 1420 N. Hobart, was closed today... marking prices down.

Jerry Cansler, Furr store manager said: "We'll be open in the morning at 9 a.m. with prices down all over the store. We are going to quit the promotion 'Going To the Races', but will continue to carry out groceries and give stamps."

"Store hours will be changed from 70 hours to 58 hours. This change will not eliminate any employees, if our volume of business doesn't change," Cansler said.

Verl Hagaman, Ideal Store manager, said this morning: "Ideals' position on food prices is the same as it has been for 25 years. We will always offer high quality food prices as low as our competition."

"As far as the promotions are concerned, this cost is only one-third to one half of one per cent, which is so small we never have reflected this cost in our retail prices," Hagaman said.

"Paper bags cost about the same as promotion, and we do not plan to discontinue paper bags," he said.

With regard to cashing checks, Hagaman said: "We have suffered only a very minimum loss and plan to continue this convenience. We will have no reduction in store hours. We will always be open the necessary hours to accommodate our customers. We will still remain closed on Sunday."

Lynn Love, manager of Pig-gly-Wiggly here, didn't feel it was necessary to close their store today, but does plan to cut out the 'Magic Lamp' promotion.

"We are going to give them what they want," Love said. "We'll continue to carry out groceries, give service and cut off some of the fruits that cost."

Blake Laramore, owner of Blake's Food Market, 1945 N. Hobart, said he feels it would help food prices "if they would (See GROCERS, Page 3)

ATTENDING TRIAL — Among first row spectators at the opening of the Vessels rape trial in 31st District Court here today were his mother and two sisters, all of Fort Worth. Vessels' sisters are shown here escorting their mother, center, from the sheriff's office up the stairs to the third floor of the court house. Vessels' step-father also was seated with them in the courtroom. They declined to reveal their names.

Vessels Venue Change Is Denied; First Juror Seated in Rape Trial

The slow process of selecting a jury in the rape trial of 29-year-old Tom R. Vessels of Pampa began at 11:10 a.m. today in Judge Lewis M. Goodrich's 31st District Court here.

One juror, Lou Troja of Pampa, had been accepted when court adjourned at 12 noon today.

Five prospective jurors had been examined. Two were rejected by the defense and two were disqualified because they stated they had formed an opinion.

First prospective juror called for questioning was C. V. Smiley. He was rejected by the defense.

The second venireman called, Lou Troja, was accepted by both sides.

W. F. Langford and Don Bradford were disqualified as jurors when they indicated they had formed an opinion. Fred Vandenburg was rejected by the defense.

Only five jurors were called for examination this forenoon. The court adjourned at 12 noon until 1:45 p.m.

The jury selection began after Judge Goodrich overruled a defense motion for change of venue and a second motion by Bowers for a pre-trial conference to consider Vessels' plea for a second court-appointed attorney to assist Bowers.

Both defense motions were denied by Judge Goodrich.

Vessels, accused in the rape of a Pampa housewife in her home here last April 28, was brought into the courtroom at 10:02 a.m. clean-shaven and nattily attired in dark gray suit, white shirt and dark tie. He was in the custody of Sheriff Rufe Jordan.

Judge Goodrich asked District Clerk Helen Sprinkle to call the roll of the special venire. This took approximately 20 minutes, more more

After all the special veniremen were sworn in, Judge Goodrich excused about a score of them who exercised their right not to serve because they were over 60 years of age. They were dismissed.

Jurors were being examined one at a time. Members of the special venire were asked to wait on the second floor of the courthouse. The trial is being held on the third floor.

There were not many spectators in the courtroom today.

However, seated on the front row in the courtroom were Vessels' stepfather, mother and two sisters from Fort Worth.

Vessels was active during the

Cuyahoga Court Says 'Here We Go Again'

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The jury foreman's bow tie jiggled four times. "We have, your honor," he said.

The judge had just asked the five housewives and seven husbands if they had reached a verdict in the case of a young brain surgeon accused of opening his own pregnant wife's skull with 35 savage hacks of a weapon never found.

The jury had deliberated and argued five days — into the 10th week of the murder trial over the largely circumstantial evidence of 70 witnesses and 214 exhibits. Now, returning four days before Christmas, 1954, the jurors stared straight ahead, never looking at Dr. Samuel Holmes Sheppard.

The 30-year-old osteopathic surgeon was praying, eyes closed, lips working slightly, hands clasped in front of his throat.

A low concert of moans issued from the back of the courtroom as the judge read the verdict: "... guilty of murder in the second degree."

"Dr. Sam's" brows puckered to a scowl as he looked the jury back and forth. At the bench, he was asked if he had anything to say before pronouncement of the mandatory life sentence.

"I'd like to say, sir," he began in his high-voiced, precise manner, "that I am not guilty. And I feel (here he swung, eyebrows raised, and faced the jury) there has been proof presented in this court that has definitely proven that I couldn't perform this crime."

He stressed heavily on the word "couldn't." And he's been saying it for 12 years now, through lawyers in many courts.

Today, the County of Cuyahoga, smarting from having its wrists slapped by the U.S. Supreme Court for giving him an unfair trial 12 years ago, said here-we-go again to Sam Sheppard.

Common Pleas Judge Francis J. Talty ordered jury selection to begin in an effort to see whether a fair and impartial dozen could be sworn. If not, he said, the defense could renew its motion for change to another county.

Last June 6, the Supreme Court threw out Dr. Sheppard's conviction. It said the 1954 judge, the late Edward Blythin, had failed to protect him from the "inherently prejudicial publicity which saturated the community." Judge Blythin had denied a change of venue. The defense attorney, the late John J. Corrigan, has said pretrial news coverage was such that "We can't get a fair trial in Cleveland, or Ohio or in the United States."

CONTROVERSIAL CONGRESS

Arguments Linger Over Session's Merits

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The clatter of clean-up crews replaced the sound of debate in the corridors of the Capitol today, but the arguments lingered over the merits of the 89th Congress and its works.

President Johnson, roused from sleep in Australia to hear that Congress was ready to go home Saturday night, pronounced himself "very pleased" with the work of the 89th.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., described its two-year course as "extraordinary in every sense of the word."

But that was not the way the Republicans saw it. House GOP leader Gerald R. Ford, Mich.,

Students in Clash With Troops, Police

MANILA (UPI) — About 3,000 students clashed with police tonight in an angry demonstration outside President Johnson's hotel following the opening of the Manila summit conference during which Johnson pleaded for peace in Southeast Asia.

Fists flew and a least seven gunshots rang out as the students fought with about 150 Philippine army troops and police guarding the Manila Hotel where Johnson and most other conference delegates are staying.

At least one student bleeding profusely from a gunshot wound was rushed to a hospital by taxi. Student leaders said about 20 of their number were injured. Some police also sustained injuries from flying rocks, along with at least three U.S. newsmen.

The outburst was the most serious to confront President Johnson on his current Asian tour and marred an otherwise warm reception here.

Johnson told his Asian colleagues during a closed summit session earlier today that he hoped their deliberations would provide "new fuel for the cause of peace in Southeast Asia."

The President spoke at the end of the first day's meetings after a tough-turkey military briefing from Gen. William C. Westmoreland, U.S. commander in Saigon, who reportedly asked for more troops in Viet Nam.

The leaders of the seven nations fighting the Communists there met in five hours of closed sessions after a formal opening ceremony in which Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos called on North Viet Nam to accept the hand of conciliation.

Johnson, after listening to all the other leaders, said he regretted that North Viet Nam was not present. He said the Hanoi government thus far had been unwilling to "appear at any table or even to talk quietly or individually about the peace that could come if it changed its mind."

Red Guard Youths Storm Russian Embassy in China

TOKYO (UPI) — Thousands of chanting Red Guard youths stormed the Russian Embassy in Peking to protest the expulsion of Communist Chinese students from the Soviet Union, news reports said today.

Initial reports from Tass, the Soviet news agency, said that youths wearing red arm bands and shouting "Out with modern revisionists," massed in front of the embassy Sunday and prevented diplomats from entering or leaving the building.

"All this took place in the view of the police guarding the embassy who did nothing to stop the outrages of the Red Guards," Tass said.

It was the second demonstration by Red Guards in front of the Soviet Embassy in as many months and it placed fresh strains on the already tense ideological feud between the two Communist giants.

The demonstration was apparently in retaliation for the Soviet Embassy's rejection Saturday of a Chinese note formally protesting the Moscow expulsion order.

The Peking note said the Russian move was "deliberately engineered" by Moscow as part of a worldwide anti-Chinese campaign and "further worsened relations between China and the Soviet Union," according to a dispatch by the New China News Agency monitored here.

Russia on Oct. 9 ordered all Chinese students to leave the country by the end of the month. The move was an retaliation to a similar order by Chinese officials expelling all foreign students during its current internal upheaval. The Peking protest note said the 65 Chinese students in Moscow would leave by Oct. 27.

Viet Cong Attack US Marine Post

SAIGON (UPI) — North Viet command post and brought out the wounded.

The assault came as Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the U.S. Military chief in Viet Nam, told the Manila Summit Conference a major new Red offensive was expected before start of the U.S. elections in November. He was reported to have said more troops would have to be sent to Viet Nam to defeat the Reds.

The woman terrorist struck in a village 30 miles south of Saigon. She strolled into a peaceful Sunday morning market place crowd dressed as a housewife, pulled a pistol from a shopping bag and shot dead the police chief and a government Ranger lieutenant.

She cleared her escape route with a grenade and fled in a waiting river motorboat.

Her action coincided with the start of a series of a special kind of hide-and-seek clashes in which U.S. troops found and killed Communists Sunday and today in sampans, caves, tunnels, underbrush and rice paddies up and down the country. An Australian force "smelled out" and destroyed one force and its headquarters near Saigon.

The actions were aimed at cutting down the outbreaks of terrorism expected to accompany the monsoon offensive in the north. The woman's assault was part of a rising tide that began when reports circulated that President Johnson might come here from the Manila conference. Scores of men, women and children have died in the terrorist campaign.

Florida State Professor and Daughter Slain

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — The television set was on in the living room and music drifted in from a radio in another room. The lights burned brightly in the red brick home on the coolish October night. There seemed to be no cause for fear.

Such was the scene when Norma Jeanette Sims, 17, was driven home from babysitting late Saturday night.

Norma Jeanette, nicknamed Virginia, walked casually into the house. She noted that the television set was on.

Moments later she discovered a carnage in the master bedroom where she went to say goodnight to her parents.

Her father, Robert W. Sims, 42, a state education official and nationally known as a computer expert, was fatally wounded on the blood-spattered floor. Her 12-year-old sister, Joy, was dead. Her mother was barely clinging to life.

All were victims of a crime without apparent reason and authorities were left today "without suspect and without clue."

The three were tied by neckties and hosiery. Gags were in their mouths. Her father was dressed in pants and undershirt. Her mother was fully clothed and her sister was in her nightgown. All were barefoot.

Her mother lay with her head beneath the bed. Virginia said later she could see the tall 37-year-old auburn haired woman was still alive. She removed the gag from her mouth and ran to the phone to call an ambulance.

Mrs. Sims was in critical condition today and authorities kept an officer nearby on the slim chance she might regain consciousness and tell about the crime.

Tower To Be Here Tuesday

Sen. John G. Tower will make an extended stop here Tuesday in his bid for election.

Sen. Tower will arrive in Pampa at the Perry Lefors Airport where he will leave for the Coronado Inn for a public reception. He is scheduled to arrive at the Inn at 10 a.m.

At 11 a.m., he will leave for Borger where he will address the Rotary Club.

From Borger, the senator will go to Hereford for another public reception from 2:45 a.m. to 3:30.

He will end his day of Panhandle campaigning at Abilene.

Warren Fatheree, Gray County chairman for the Tower campaign, said Sen. Tower would be at the airport only long enough to get into a car and leave for the Inn. He advised people wanting to meet the candidate to come to the Coronado Inn.

Dear Abby... How Do You Look Upon Beauty?

DEAR ABBY: Your advice is usually pretty good, but this time I think you flopped. No, Abby, a pregnant woman is not beautiful. Unless you want to call a woman whose face is puffed up, and whose ankles are swollen to twice their normal size, and who appears to be concealing a 35-pound watermelon under her dress "beautiful!"

SEES MYSELF

DEAR ABBY: In 1914 a little 12-year-old boy named Harry watched his mother as she stood at the kitchen stove stirring a pot of oatmeal. Harry suddenly noticed an unusual radiance in his mother's face. Never before had she looked so beautiful. When he remarked on it, she only smiled.

A few months later the mother gave birth to a baby boy. Harry did not know at the time of his remark that his mother was expecting a child, but he couldn't fail to notice the exceptional radiance that fairly beamed from her face.

I was that boy, Abby. And no one will ever convince me that a pregnant woman does not have a special heavenly beauty about her. I saw it.

H. I. S. (DALLAS)

DEAR ABBY: I usually agree with you, but when you made the statement that there was a "beauty" in a pregnant woman, that's where you lost me.

Anything that is not normal is not beautiful. And the shape that a woman gets into (or out of) while she is with child is anything but normal. Granted, it is only temporary, but it's abnormal all the same.

I have been married for 12 years, have nine children with a tenth on the way, and I have been in that blimp-like condi-

MATURE PARENT

By MURIEL LAWRENCE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
Recently asked if parents were upset by the so-called "revolt" of young people, Dr. George Galluf, the poll expert replied:

"Not particularly. However, they are eager to be told how to raise their children properly. The simple truth is that the average parent doesn't know how to establish respect for authority and is ready to admit it. We find that not just a few people but something like 85 per cent seek help in this department of rearing their children properly. They would like guidelines to help them."

A bigger hoax was never played upon an intelligent people than the one played on American parents by those child training writers who suggest that it's impossible to "discipline" children, to "understand" them, to "love" them without self-discipline, self-understanding and self-love.

The truth is that psychoanalyst Erich Fromm has already given us the supreme guideline in establishing respect for our parental authority. He gave it to us when he wrote:

"Rational authority has its source in competence. Its acceptance depends upon its performance."

Yet whenever I use this column to suggest that it is action which demonstrates our competence — our better competence to make a bed than that of our 14-year-old daughter — and so re-establishes respect for our authority, I'm deluged by letters from furious parents. Apparently, our notion is that we should never be obliged to prove our right to that authority by making the bed not only better than she can make it but making it quietly and with self-possession as well.

Clearly, we think that, like Jesus, we should be entitled merely to send our word to the resisting child to heal her of her defiance of our will. It's very fancy of us because we are not Jesus and so are often required to refresh the child's respect for our authority by action, by performance.

No respect for our authority isn't gained for common mortals by merely sending our word of command for obedience.

No leader, be he office manager or an Army sergeant, could retain respect for his authority for 20 minutes without the willingness to constantly demonstrate his superior ability to do himself what he has told others to do. Like other people, children get sick of taking orders from people who never move to prove their right to them.

If we want guidelines for the discipline of children, we'd better ponder our abject dependence on what they do. It's our own doing that make us leaders.

School and You

By SUSAN LIGHT
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

(This column was written by my daughter, who continues to be an honor student in college.)

If studying is a problem in high school, in college it becomes a major dilemma. The work is more difficult, there's more of it, and more outside activities vie for your attention. But if you plan your study program for the semester ahead, the work will get done, with plenty of time left over for "good times."

As soon as you get your schedule, check the amount of free time you have during the day. Try to use this time for study so you'll have some time in the evening to spend at meetings, lectures or with your friends. If you have a class from 9-10 and another from 11-12, find some quiet place such as the library to study in between classes. If you have one whole free morning or afternoon, find a good study spot for that period.

Avoid your room; there are too many distractions such as the bed, the radio and the kids next door!

Certain times are useless for study, and you might as well block them out as "leisure time" right at the beginning. Examples are Friday afternoon, when the mass exodus "up-town" takes place and Saturday "date night."

In most colleges, Sunday is the big day for tackling long reading assignments, term papers, etc. You might block out Sunday afternoon for this purpose, and if you aren't a "church goer," Sunday morning as well. Remember, "God helps those who help themselves." Another time for a long stretch of study is Saturday afternoon (after football season).

Buying Hints For The Young Couple

By AILEEN SNOODY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

A young couple with their first child will spend a minimum of $500 decorating a 9 x 12 room and equipping baby with the basics.

Unfortunately, the new parents may not do a tasteful job of putting such a room together or get the most for their money.

This is the feeling of a suburban mother of five children who range in age from 2½ to 17½. In addition she has more than 20 years of professional experience as an interior decorator.

To capitalize upon the sad state of children's rooms, Mrs. Connie Shapse set up her own business in Englewood, N.J., six months ago. It is called significantly, The Sandman Company.

Mrs. Shapse says she wrestles with two set philosophies when hired to decorate children's rooms. There are the parents, she explains, who take the attitude that money is no object and buy furnishings to impress the neighbors. "They don't think about the child and his attitudes while he grows."

The other state-of-mind involves those who don't spend money because "the kids don't need good furniture now." Anything and everything is all right and "We'll buy better furniture when they are older."

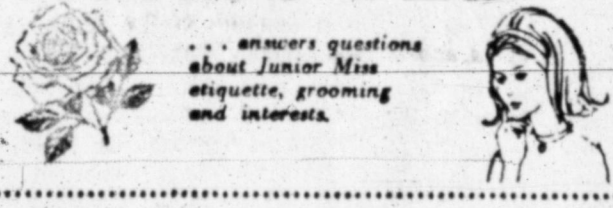

"I feel as a decorator and a mother that a child's room shouldn't contain only a bare, unmade crib and an unpainted chest. Parents save money in the long run when they buy furniture pieces of sufficient quality so they can be used through a child's growth."

She explains that except for a bathinet and the crib, furniture for such a room can remain in the room until the youth goes to college.

Her basic concept, she explains, is to decorate with good taste. "By this, I mean, not putting in too much, keeping it simple, the lines clean and leave off the jazz."

When buying furniture for a child's room, Mrs. Shapse suggests parents look for quality in finish, construction and function especially in a crib. "I would be willing to bet," she says, "that a family with three children bought at least two

MISS DEB

... answers questions about Junior Miss etiquette, grooming and interests.

Q. I'm too short. I know I shouldn't worry. But I'm shorter than any of my friends. I want to at least look taller. What can I do?

A. Think tall! It's all in the way you stand, the way you dress, and the way you wear your hair. Stand tall — head up, shoulders back, tummy in, and seat tucked under. Choose straight or A-line dresses and skirts, never full ones. Vertical lines make you look taller, horizontal lines the opposite. When you wear two-piece outfits, be sure they are all one color. More than one color divides you in the middle. Keep your hair short, slightly uplifted, and avoid bangs. You'll look taller and thinner too!

Q. Painting with water colors is my latest hobby. But it's so hard to paint without dripping colors or water all over my desk. What can I do?

A. That's easy! Simply cover the entire desk or table top with absorbent paper a few towels before you start. Keep a few more double-layer towels handy so you can mix colors or dry brushes on them. When you're through, wash and dry your brushes, put away your supplies, and discard the mess on the table with the towels!

Q. I just got invited to the greatest party? I can hardly wait! Except for one thing — I never know what to do when it is time to leave. I just sort of disappear. What should I do?

A. This party sounds extra special! When you're having a really good time, it's not easy to leave. Don't let the final moments ruin a great party. When it starts to break up, tell your friends good-by, thank your hosts, and tell her how much you enjoyed yourself. Then leave. You don't have to stay to the very end to show what a good time you're having! Still concerned? Call the hostess the next day to tell her, again, how nice the party was.

Scouting Scoops

By MRS. G. J. BOYD
Leaders, needing first aid training to accompany their troops on field trips, overnights, etc. should contact the Red Cross office. A course will take place as soon as the required number have registered.

Troop 214, new Cadettes, held their "girl-planned" rededication ceremony recently in connection with their Court of Awards. The families were invited to the impressive candle-lighting ceremony. Troop members earned eight different badges; Cyclist, Drawing and Painting, Housekeeper, Musician, My Home, Water Fun, My Camera and Our Own Troop's "Busy Traveler".

Leaders then presented the long-awaited 5 year pin to Debora Brumfield, Cathy Collinsworth, Jeannie Cox, Cynthia Hatfield, Cindy Hicks, Jeannie Maness, Darla Robertson and Carol Rose, who have been members of Troop 214 since the second grade of school. Refreshments were served by Darla Robertson and Virginia Schaeffer. The centerpiece of two crystal vases holding long stem yellow roses, was a surprise gift from the troop to their leaders, Mrs. O. C. Cox, Jr., and Mrs. Archie Maness.

This troop also conducted the flag ceremony for the United Fund banquet. Heard several favorable comments concerning the troop and their Cadette uniforms.

Mrs. E. B. Jackson reported that her Troop 41 has been quite busy working on their Active Citizen and My Community badges; making a visit to a radio station and the police station. Understand the girls thoroughly enjoyed being fingerprinted, each member receiving her fingerprints to take home. This is an idea for other leaders to plan. Members of Troop 41 are, Mollie Jackson, Debbie Welch, Deborah Ruth Lawley, Pam Allen, Toni Cox, Sandra Vance, Delores Riggs, Belinda Brooks and Dana Chisum. This troop is also planning a Troop Birthday event which the girls are making decisions concerning refreshments, program, etc. with the able assistance of leader Mrs. E. B. Jackson and Mrs. C. J. Welch.

Taking advantage of the "open-end" troop planning are members of Troop 219, consisting of Juniors and two Cadettes. Mrs. J. R. Newman is to be commended on using the method of crib because the first purchase was of a cheap crib that didn't stand up.

If parents insist on bare wood floors or using linoleum or vinyl, Mrs. Shapse encourages them to include a throw rug for the child to sit on since it provides warmth.

In her Englewood shop, Mrs. Shapse decorates the child's room vignettes with good art and carries this into jobs for her clients.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

The Panama News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself no more, no less. It is thus consistent with the Human Relations Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Your Right To Know Is Under Attack

For years, even decades but this is rather the exception now, the Press has been made the whipping boy by lawyers, judges, bar associations and various admixtures of dew-eyed pleaders for its pre-trial publicity that they say endangers a criminal suspect's right to a fair trial.

The Press, for its part, has dutifully recorded all of the outcries, the adoption of all the lawmakers' codes of criminal procedure and the lawyer's canons of professional ethics. At the same time, the Press itself has done a great deal of soul searching of its own.

Like the lawyers, however, the discussion has dealt almost entirely in generalities, freedom of speech versus the need to protect the rights of the individual accused of a crime. Too many fail or have no desire to understand that the Press and full publicity are the best means of insuring that an accused will, indeed, get the fairest hearing possible under the system and that, if the Press is ever silenced or appreciably curtailed, court proceedings will degenerate into inquisitorial, Star Chamber farces.

A voice of sanity in the prevailing tower of Babel is the statement made by a federal judge in a panel discussion before the Bar Association for the Seventh Federal Circuit in Chicago. Judge J. Skelly Wright is a member of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia.

Rights, No Special Privilege

One of the favorite subjects of political analysis these days is the likely effect of the so-called "white backlash" on the forthcoming elections. The backlash can be loosely defined as the feeling among whites, mainly fostered by civil rights disturbances that the drive for Negro equality is "going too fast."

There is no doubt at all that such a feeling exists, and is widespread. Talk of "black power" by hotheads among the Negro leadership, notably Rep. Adam Clayton Powell and Stokely Carmichael of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee, has been disturbing even to many who have championed the Negro drive for equal justice.

The Power of Fantasy

The man has the statistics to back it up, but we still can't quite bring ourselves to believe what he says. Doves flying in kitchen windows, washing machines growing out of the floor, a white knight on horseback attacking defenseless, dirty people — this is the kind of thing that sells products, say Warren F. Ambrose, an authority on television with a New York advertising agency.

Wit and Whimsy

Robert — So that distinguished-looking gentleman in the tall hat is your leading citizen, eh? Has he received many degrees from colleges?

New Yorkers know that Christmas is just around the corner when the folks at Rockefeller Center announce the selection of the famed Christmas tree. This year's holiday evergreen will come from Canada in recognition of the Dominion's 100th anniversary of its Confederation. It will mark the first time a tree has been sent to the famed site from outside the United States. At Rockefeller Center Christmas trees are selected two years in advance. They must be 60 feet in height or greater, so they won't be dwarfed by the giant buildings.

Today's smile: A mother was trying to persuade her young son to eat his spinach, saying: "It will put color in your cheeks." The youngster said: "Okay, but I don't think you'll like me with green cheeks."

"The Sound of Music" is now the top grossing movie of all time with a record total of $91 million from foreign and domestic showings. And to think when Rodgers and Hammerstein first presented the show on Broadway it got shot-shrift from the drama critics. All of which proves the public knows what it likes and will pay to see it.

Thoughts while shaving: One of the big insurance companies offers a cash discount of 25 per cent on automobile insurance to students who spend more time studying and less time driving. To qualify for the discount the student must prove he achieved good grades in the semester preceding his application. The discount applied to all makes under 25 in high school or college. A recent survey reveals the average Canadian investor is younger than his American counterpart and plays the stock market for a quick profit rather than a long-term gain. The study showed that 49 per cent of the investors on the two Montreal exchanges were under 45 years of age, whereas in New York 32 per cent of those working on the Big Board are under that age.

Low-Priced Housing Loans Funds Bottled Up by President; Senators Charge Serious Damage to Industry, Buyer, Economy

WASHINGTON — President Johnson is covertly barring the use of a major measure enacted by Congress several months ago to revive a severely sagging key industry — home building.

Before departing on his far-flung Far Eastern junket, President directed the Federal Housing Administration and the Veterans Administration to ignore $1 billion of special assistance funds voted by Congress for the purchase of mortgages on low-priced homes.

This backstage move directly contradicts the President's repeated assurances that soaring Viet Nam expenditures would not be permitted to impair the domestic economy or programs.

But it is very evident that this housing fund choke-off is to improve the administration's increasingly embarrassing budget deficit image.

That is bluntly charged by two influential senators of the President's own party — John Sparkman, Ala., ranking member of the Banking Committee, and Vance Hartke, Ind., a top member of both the Finance and Commerce Committees.

As Hartke sees it, the administration prefers to avoid the impact of the $1 billion of special assistance funds on the budget rather than to alleviate widespread mounting unemployment in the home construction industry.

Also in Hartke's caustic opinion, being crassly disregarded in this "financial ledger-main" is the modest home buyer who is unable to cope with the tight money market and high interest "policy."

"The administration's decision to defer the use of the $1 billion of special assistance funds authorized by Congress for the purchase of FHA and VA mortgages on low-priced homes is extremely regrettable," said Hartke. "Home building has experienced a tremendous setback this year, with commitments for new homes down 50 per cent or more in most areas of the country."

"This distressing condition is causing severe unemployment among building trades workers and allied fields. For these reasons, I think the administration's decision of not spending this urgently needed $1 billion, obviously a budgetary one is cutting expenditures at the wrong spot, at the wrong time and rather cold-heartedly."

Senator Sparkman vigorously echoed this criticism. "Congress adopted a program to help the man trying to put his family into a moderately priced home," he declared. "This need is pressing and widespread. Congress provided the means to do something directly and effectively about it. But absolutely no use is being made of this timely provision. This cannot be condemned too strongly."

FINAL PLEA — In the hope of inducing the President to lift his unannounced ban, Congress went out of its way before quitting to pointedly remind him of

The Doctor Says:

By DR. WAYNE BRANDSTADT
Doctor Can Pinpoint Why Sense of Smell Is Lost
Q — Recently I have not been able to taste. My sense of smell is also dulled. What causes this and what can be done for it?
A — The ability to "taste" flavors depends entirely on your sense of smell. Loss of the true sense of taste (salt, sour, sweet and bitter) is extremely rare.

Loss of the sense of smell is usually due to nasal obstructions from nasal polyps, chronic sinusitis or allergic rhinitis. It may be aggravated by excessive smoking or by the excessive use of nasal decongestants. Have your doctor determine which of the above causes applies to you and the proper corrective treatment can be prescribed.

Q — I have been having a salty taste in my mouth. What could cause this?
A — One cause is excessive smoking. Others include the action of an acid saliva on a metallic dental filling, sleeping with the mouth open and taking medicines that contain ammonium or potassium iodide or bicarbonate of soda. Even the excessive use of table salt in your diet may be the cause. In a few instances chronic emotional problems have been blamed but proof of this is hard to establish.

Q — I had shingles six months ago. I still have pains in my back. What can be done for it?
A — Shingles, which clears up in two to five weeks, is notorious for leaving a person with painful neuritis. The most effective treatment is to inject the involved nerve with boiling water or to cut it.

Q — I have had a chronic skin condition called sycosis for several years. How can I get rid of it?
A — This skin infection is usually due to a Staphylococcus. As with most chronic conditions, the longer you have had it the harder it is to get rid of. The antibiotic, nafcillin, taken by mouth may do the trick. This drug requires a doctor's prescription. If it doesn't cure you, there are creams that contain a combination of antibiotics that may be tried. As an added precaution you should use a soap that contains hexachlorophene.

Q — Will arthritis cause itching of the skin?
A — Although some of the rarer forms of arthritis may be associated with itching, some other cause for your itching should be sought.

Hunt for Truth

BY H. L. HUNT

POSITIVE PERSUASION
There is tremendous power in a positive attitude. Persuasiveness is weakened when based on negative arguments and a downcast frame of mind.

Awareness of this will develop the characteristics of speech and action which are enormous assets in the effort to preserve freedom.

Be optimistic and cheerful. Have confidence in yourself and the soundness of your cause. Keep in mind that those who love freedom have the truth on their side.

Freedom is a joyous idea and working for it can be sheer delight. Do with a glad heart whatever you can do best for freedom each day. Two-thirds of our people spending ten minutes daily in behalf of freedom would amount to 20 million hours per day in constructive, undisciplined effort. This knowledge will help us place a greater value on the effectiveness of what we are doing and keep our spirits high.

A person taking a stand for faith and freedom with a clear confidence and certainty of purpose which all can discern is obviously sure of himself and will find it easy to persuade others to work with him and share his goals.

Note the characteristics and attitudes of the kind of person who would be most likely to inspire and encourage you. Then be that kind of person! You will soon find that others will be more responsive to your efforts in freedom's behalf.

Working with others can prove satisfying and rewarding when a positive, purposeful outlook is maintained. Calm determination and wisdom can combine to give you and those around you incentive and confidence in helping the nation through difficult and trying times.

A thought for the day—Post Carl Sandburg wrote: "I am the people, the mass, the crowd, the mass. Do you know that all the great work of the world is done through men?"

SUPREME TEST is given Torginal Flooring at Fite Food Market, 1333 N. Hobart. This beautiful flooring can be viewed simply by visiting Fite Food.

Food Market Gives Torginal the Test

For centuries man has tried by one form of experiment or another, to develop a seamless floor covering. A covering that not only remains beautiful, but also carries a durability and proves to be easy to keep and clean for hospitals, schools, doctor's offices and the child's playroom.

Finally after much trial and error, Torginal was introduced to the public. It found immediate success. Not only was it durable but it resisted cracking and gave the housewife a floor wax-free and easy and inexpensive to maintain.

Through numerous laboratory tests, the technicians learned that Torginal was unaffected by most chemicals and proved to be impervious to oils, greases, animal fats and detergents. Its resistance to abrasions was amazing, outlasting other resilient flooring on the market.

What thrills for most homeowners wanting to install a seamless floor outside near the pool, Torginal has proved to be unaffected by normal weather conditions. This provides the homebuilder with confidence in the material and workmanship of Torginal flooring. This lasting quality was unheard of before the introduction of Torginal flooring. This flooring is installed by experts, giving you dependable service and workmanship unsurpassed plus a five year factory warranty.

Torginal flooring can make life easier and provide a wax-free floor and a cleaner mode of living. Give it a try. Call Towles Tile at MO 5-5075. You will be more than pleased.

Philanthropic Americans

NEW YORK (UPI)—American individuals, businesses and foundations gave away $11.3 billion in 1965, compared with $6.4 billion in 1955, nearly doubling over the decade, according to a survey by the Urban Institute.

Our word "ballot" comes from the Italian "ballota" for the ball used there in secret voting.

Celanese Reports Quarter Earnings

Celanese Corp. today reported earnings of $15.8 million for the quarter ended September 30, 1966, compared with earnings of $17.5 million reported for the third quarter of 1965, a 10 per cent reduction. This brought Celanese earnings for the first nine months of 1966 to $50.2 million, a 4 per cent increase over the $48.3 million reported for the comparable period of 1965.

Per share earnings for the 1966 third quarter were $1.10 based on the 13,307,594 shares outstanding. This compares with earnings of $1.39 per share on the 11,828,972 shares outstanding at the end of last year's third quarter. For the nine months ended September 30, 1966, per share earnings were $3.51 on the 13,307,594 shares outstanding, compared with earnings of $3.79 per share on the 11,828,972 shares outstanding at last year's nine-month period.

Net sales for the September quarter increased 8 per cent to $245.3 million from the $227.9 million volume in the similar three months last year. This brought sales for the first nine months of 1966 to $761.4 million, compared with $640.4 million for the 1965 period.

Medicare Questions and Answers

EDITOR'S NOTE—The following questions and answers were prepared by the Pampa Social Security office and are published as a public service by The Pampa News to aid persons who come under the Medicare program.

Q—I enrolled for Medicare and have received my card. However, I do not have anything to show what benefits will be covered. Why doesn't Social Security issue policies like insurance companies do?

A—The Social Security Administration has printed a Medicare Handbook that will list all covered benefits. You will not need to request a copy of the handbook. It will be mailed to you soon after you apply.

Q—I have signed up for both parts of Medicare. If a person eligible for Medicare gets sick in a foreign country after July 1, 1966, would Medicare pay for any of the expenses incurred in that foreign country?

A—No. If you become sick in a foreign country, those expenses would not be covered by Medicare.

Q—I understand that if a person signs up for the supplementary medical insurance, the plan will pay 80 per cent of all doctor bill expenses after the first $50 incurred in a calendar year. I'm aware that I am liable for payment of the first $50 and the remaining 20 percent that the plan does not pay.

My question is—Can the first $50 be an accumulation of smaller bills? For instance, could it be for 10 visits to my doctor's office at $5 per visit? Also, can bills from different doctors be lumped together or must I pay the first $50 from each doctor?

A—Probably the easiest way to understand the $50 deductible that is part of the supplementary medical insurance is to remember that you are liable for payment of your first $50 of doctor bills each calendar year. Medicare will not make any payment until you have paid or accrued at least $50 of doctor bills. This can be for one treatment or many visits. It can also be for one doctor or for more than one doctor.

Q—I am a retired school teacher, age 68. I have never worked under Social Security. Can I qualify for either part of Medicare?

A—Yes, you can qualify for both the hospital insurance benefits and medical insurance by filing an application. You must go to the Social Security office promptly. Bring some old proof of your age with you.

x BONN, Germany (UPI)—One of the most dangerous jobs in railroadings will be eliminated as a result of the decision of the International Railway Union to put automatic coupling gears on all West European railway cars. The new gear is to be installed on all railway equipment in Western Europe within 10 years.

Now, coupling is performed manually by trainmen who call it the most dangerous job in railroadings. In West Germany alone, 700,000 couplings and uncouplings are performed manually every 24 hours.

Oliver Wendell Holmes was the author of the phrase: "Taxes are what we pay for civilized society."

A FEW TOO MANY
LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The Los Angeles County Republican Finance Committee was reduced today over a letter it sent to some 700,000 county voters blasting Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown for "12 years of cynical machine politics."

Brown has been governor for only eight years. His predecessor was Goodwin J. Knight, a Republican.
