Probers Told Few Can Sell Insurance To GIs In Europe

CINCINNATI (U)—A congressional committee was told yesterday that only 14 life insurance companies, including 11 from Texas, are allowed to sell insurance to American soldiers and their families in Europe.

Mike Stern, European correspondent for Argus Magazine, testified before an open hearing of the House Armed Services subcommittee on defense activities.

Representatives of Texas companies disputed Stern's description of the condition of Texas insurance companies. Ralph Pittman, attorney for an organized group of Texas legal reserve companies, said a holder of a life insurance policy with a Texas company had "lost a dime" since 1929.

B. E. Godfrey, vice president and general counsel for the Trans-American Life Insurance Co. of Fort Worth and the Life Insurance Co. of America, Dallas, said he would prepare libel and slander actions against Stern and Argus on behalf of 20 Texas life insurance companies.

Stern said some of the Texas companies were capitalized on as little as $25,000 yet wrote policies totaling 10 million dollars.

"Texas, which places a premium on superlatives, has the worst insurance laws in the nation," Stern told the committee. "In the last 18 months, 10 Texas companies have gone broke and others are tottering. Ninety per cent of all insurance sold to GIs in Europe — and this amounts to 50 million dollars — is sold by Texas insurance companies."

Stern said the insurance companies doing business in Europe are:

- The American Investors Life Insurance Co., of Dallas; American Savings Life Insurance Co. of Fort Worth; American Standard Life Insurance Co. of Fort Worth; American United Service Insurance Co. of Houston; Bankers Life Insurance Co. of Dallas; Gibraltar Life Insurance Co. of Dallas; Great Northwest Life Insurance Co. of Spokane, Wash.; Great South-west Life Insurance Co. of Phoenix, Ariz.; International Fidelity Insurance Co. of Dallas; Life Insurance Society of Birmingham; Mid-continent Insurance Co. of Fort Worth; National Educators Life Insurance Co. of Fort Worth; Pioneer Life Insurance Co. of Houston, and Service Life Insurance Co. of Fort Worth.

Three Children Burn To Death

DALLAS (U)—Three young children burned to death last night in a fire which swept a frame home here.

The 13-year-old girl who had been left in charge of the six children in the house managed to rescue three of them. She was in Parkland Hospital early today in a hysterical condition.

The dead were Steven Joe Jacques, 3; Dwan Diane Jacques, 4; and Donald Wayne Jacques, 5, the children of Mrs. Goldie Jacques. Police said the parents of the dead children had left them with Jo Ann Holloway, the young rescuer, who was acting as baby sitter.

Jo Ann said at the hospital that the six smaller children were in the front room of the residence asleep and she was sleeping in a back bedroom.

"I woke up and smelled smoke," she related. "I ran up to the front bedroom. There was fire all over it."

She told of her rescue efforts. She said the little girl was crying and that Donald was standing against a wall trying to get away from the already raging flames.

"I grabbed Donald, Jo Ann said, "but he pulled away from me."

She was able to carry the rescued three to safety, but the flames were too fierce to go back for the others, she cried. Those she saved were James Holloway, 3; Charles Edward Holloway, 2; and Mary Louise Holloway, 1.

The two boys are the sons of Mrs. Zephyr Holloway and Jo Ann is the daughter of Mrs. Louise Holloway.

Bodies of the dead were taken to a funeral home for Negroes. Police said none of the adult members of the two families were at home at the time of the accident.

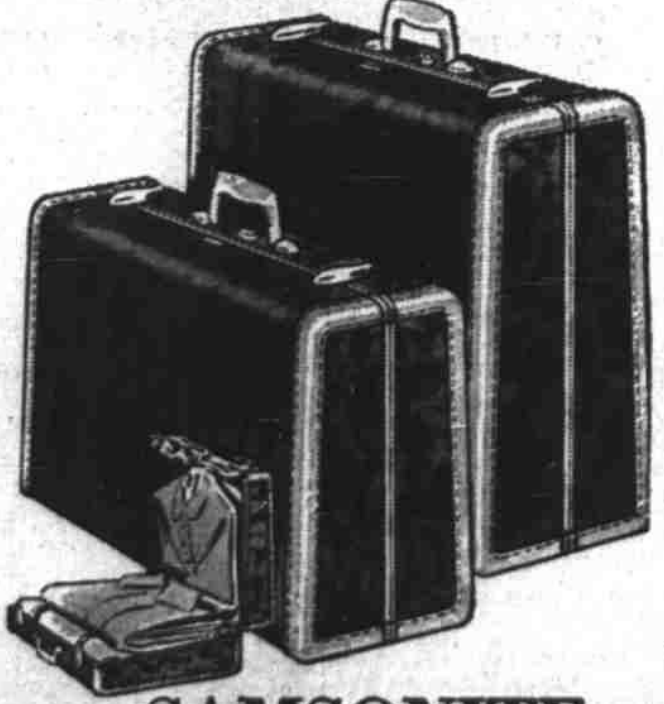

Scientists say a good diet included 11 parts carbohydrates, 2 parts protein and 3 parts fat.

McKay Finds Oil Frontier In Gulf

CHICAGO (U)—Douglas McKay, secretary of the Interior and petroleum administrator for defense, said today one of the newest frontiers of the oil industry lies beyond the tidelands in the Gulf of Mexico. McKay told oilmen attending the 24th annual meeting of the American Petroleum Institute the area known as the outer continental shelf off the shores of Louisiana and Texas includes an estimated 32,000 square miles of land covered with water.

He said development of the area will make "another strong link in the chain of our national petroleum industry."

The area has been marked off, McKay said, into plots of about 5,000 acres each. The Interior Department recently offered 180 of the plots for lease.

"The response was an overwhelming surprise to many," he said. "There were 528 bids submitted by 31 companies on 87 of the tracts. The high bids totaled almost 130 million dollars."

Rhee Not Happy With Plan For All-Korea Voting

SEOUL (AP)—President Syngman Rhee said today the Korean people want "no foreign government or foreign nationals" dabbling in elections seeking to unite the divided peninsula.

The 78-year-old President, commenting on a report the United Nations may soon consider a compromise formula for all-Korea Press:

"While we remain grateful to all friendly nations, we earnestly and sincerely appeal to them not to take up the Korean question unless they first consult us and receive our concurrence."

The new formula, sponsored by Canada and Great Britain, reportedly would call for free elections in Korea under "appropriate auspices." Diplomatic sources said these elections could be supervised by a mixed commission made up of representatives of South Korea, a Communist nation and a neutral. The United States reportedly agreed reluctantly to the plan.

Twelve U. S. states and the District of Columbia require the reading of the Bible in public schools.

About 9,250,000 U. S. wives now hold jobs outside their homes compared with a peak of seven million during World War II.

Cigarettes On Trial In Studies Of Lung Cancer Cases In U. S.

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

AP Science Reporter

NEW YORK (AP)—Cigarettes seem to be on trial. You are the jury.

The charge: Cigarettes are harmful, contributing to cancer and heart disease.

The defense: That isn't proven yet; others call cigarettes innocent pleasure.

The trial came to full public attention only within the last two years. Here are some main reasons:

Statisticians found an "alarming" increase in lung cancer, particularly in men over 45. They said the increase was worrisome even after allowance is made for the fact more Americans are reaching the older ages at which cancer becomes more common and that cancer nowadays is diagnosed more accurately than in the past.

These two things—increasing average age and better diagnosis—could account for some or much of the increase from 3,900 reported lung cancer deaths in 1939 to about 27,000 in 1953. A few physicians and statisticians say these two factors could account for most or all of it.

But the majority by far see a real increase in lung cancer deaths. Some find the rate doubling every 10 years, and predict 60,000 American lung cancer victims annually by 1960.

If there really is an increase, what is causing it?

From their own observations some physicians blamed cigarettes because most of their patients were smokers. Statistical studies of hospital patients added much weight to this view.

Cigarette sales increased sharply during the years when lung cancer was rising. This, to their view, was a pretty suspicious association.

Then came more than statistical evidence against cigarettes. One was the skin-painting experiments by Doctors Evaris Graham and Ernest Wynder. Concentrated tars from cigarettes smoked by machines was applied to shaved skin of mice. After a year of treatment, many mice developed skin cancers—evidence of a cancer-causing chemical or chemicals in the smoke.

Others still doubted. They said skin cancer in mice is not the same as lung cancer in humans. The tars concentrated from smoking machines might not be the same, anyhow, as tars collected by a human smoker. The speed and heat of burning cigarettes in the machines might yield different chemicals or distillation products than those the human smoker is exposed to.

The doubters could point to at least one experiment in which mice were exposed to daily, measured amounts of cigarette smoke, from adolescence until they died and were compared with other "non-smoked" mice. There was just one case of lung cancer in 132 "smoked" mice—not significant statistically.

But cigarette accusers could point to a similar experiment in which 19 of 22 mice exposed to smoke got tumors after a year's time. None of the tumors was cancer of the type occurring in humans, but this could be evidence of how smoke can alter living tissues.

Some scientists asked: Was the discrepancy due to some difference in the genetic strains of the mice used? Just what did it mean in regard to human smoking? How well can mice be compared with men?

Benzopyrene, a chemical which induces cancer in mice, has been identified by one scientific team in smoke and tars from the burning of enough cigarette paper to make 80,000 cigarettes—an 11-year supply for a pack-a-day smoker.

There is still some question, though, as to whether a human smoker might get enough of this to cause human lung cancer.

Benzopyrene also has been found in the polluted air of cities.

Some researchers suspect polluted air as a cause of lung cancer. Some say the rise in lung cancer might be coming from a combination of things, including cigarette smoking and polluted air.

Some studies find lung cancer more frequent in cities than rural areas. One explanation advanced is that city people smoke more. Another is that city air is less clean or pure.

Some scientists question whether people who smoke may be constitutionally different from non-smokers, more tense perhaps, with a different production of hormones. Hormones can influence cancers. But there's no evidence that really answers this question.

Sex and jobs are elements in the evidence.

Many women smoke, have smoked for years. But lung cancer is at least four to five times more common among men than women. Why?

Several explanations are advanced. One: Not so many women smoke. Another: Most women have not smoked as long as men have, and it is argued that it takes 10 to 20 years of smoking to induce lung cancer; that in the future the cancer rate in women will begin to rise. Yet another: There is a sex difference—men may naturally be more susceptible to lung cancer than women.

As for air pollution as a cause of lung cancer, it is argued that women breathe the same air as men. But it's also argued that men, commuting from suburbs into cities daily, get more city air than stay-at-home wives.

Men may be subjected to more cancer-causing chemicals or agents in their jobs than women. There is no doubt that a large number of chemicals to which some workers are exposed can produce cancer in animals.

In scientific and medical circles, there have long been questionings, evidences and counter evidences about the role of cigarettes in health. To the public, which could not be aware of all of the findings being made, some of the reports had to come with bombshell effects. (Tomorrow: Reports of heart disease hazard, and "how to quit smoking").

Automotive engineers have long known that friction and corrosion are the two major causes of engine wear. Now, from the laboratories of Continental Oil, comes America's first Double-Duty motor oil. It combines two exclusive discoveries (Oil-Plating and Acid-Proofing)* to conquer both major causes of engine wear.

The unique Oil-Plating additive conquers friction wear by actually fastening a thin film of protective oil to engine parts. Unlike ordinary motor oil, this film won't drain down even when your engine has been stopped overnight. Thus you get full-time protection against damaging wear due to friction.

Exclusive Acid-Proofing additive conquers corrosive wear three ways—it neutralizes acids, prevents rust, and gobbles up tiny particles of dust, dirt, and water and seals them safely in spheres of oil until the oil is drained. ## Texas Learned Its Lesson About Gas Leakage The Real Hard Way

Up in Oklahoma, a gas explosion seriously damaged the Allen school building, hurt 29 teen-age pupils and a teacher. Gas accumulated under the floor was ascribed as the cause of this near catastrophe. The superintendent discovered the gas by the not so novel means of striking a match. The reaction was enough to blow one entire classroom right into the ceiling. It was a miracle that none of the some 150 in the wing of the building affected were killed outright.

This, of course, calls to mind that horrible experience at New London, Texas approximately a score of years ago. There an electric switch was thrown to touch off gas accumulated from leaky lines. Before the last body was pulled from the mass of tangled masonry, the nation had written it up as one of its major disasters.

At least two reforms resulted from this. Texas laws required that gas be treated with a malodorant so that it could more readily be detected when leaking into closed spaces. Another was the requirement that all schools should have their lines tested annually. Design also carried lines into the roof area instead of underneath floors on the premise that if explosions did occur, they likely would be confined above the walls and above the heads of classroom occupants.

Every year tests have been made here. Occasionally leaks have been detected and repaired. While nothing gives perfect assurance, the precautionary routine so religiously followed here does make it extremely remote that such a thing could happen here. Texas learned its lesson the hard way.

Preservation Of Respect, Life Demands Airmen Protect Selves

President Eisenhower took occasion Monday to give reassurances that the outlook for peace is better despite Russian provocation. He had reference, of course, to the apparent wanton destruction of an United States RB28 at the hands of Russian fighters on Sunday.

In view of the trigger-happy foray by the Russian pilots, the President's statement comes at a time to allay great concern. It is significant to note that while he was calling Russian irresponsibility to the bar of world public opinion, Air Force authorities issued the grave warning that in the future U. S. planes thus attacked would fire back.

In retrospect, that is what should have happened Sunday. At the time of the incident, however, the commander of the plane thought that it would be possible to complete the mission since no one apparently had been injured while the plane was being riddled.

There is always the real danger that one of these incidents can flare into something bigger and might provoke major action. Yet, it has been established time and again that about the only language the Russians seem to understand is that of force. They seem to have a penchant for jumping unarmed transports or slower reconnaissance types of craft. Although these may not be a match for faster Russian fighters, adequate arming and matched with a determination to return fire if attacked may at least hold the murderers at bay. If that doesn't work, then escorting is not out of the question. While we certainly are not looking for anything, the time has come not to run from it.

Washington Calling—Marquis Childs

Senate Control Complicated By Advanced Age Of Many Members

WASHINGTON — The narrow margin of control in the Senate, whether with official records it is on the side of the Republicans or the Democrats, will put a heavy burden on the leadership in the upper house and especially on the leaders of the party that finally takes the majority and the committee chairmanships. That may be why some Democrats are suggesting they would prefer to have the Republicans take over.

The problem of control is complicated by the advanced age of so many members of the Senate. Nine Senators from eight states have died since 1952. The death of Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio in June of 1953 gave the Democrats a technical majority of one after Gov. Frank Lausche appointed Thomas A. Burke, a Democrat, to take the Taft seat. But the Democrats decided against taking over the Senate organization.

With nearly a third of the 86 members of the Senate over 70 years of age, it is likely that several vacancies will be created in the coming two years, and this could shift control from one party to another.

The number of deaths in the past two years caused wide discussion among Senators about the strain of office-seeking and office-holding. Yet, based on the average age of the 86, it would seem to be a healthy life. The preponderance of age is on the Democratic side and the most venerable Senators are from states with Democratic governors.

Senator Theodore Francis Green of Rhode Island has just been re-elected at the age of 87 from a state that has been preponderantly Democratic in every recent national election. The wry type, Green still plays tennis and rides the streetcar to work. His friends confidently predict that he will be running for another term six years from now.

Senator Walter George of Georgia, who will be chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee if the Democrats organize the Senate, is 76. Senator Carl Hayden of Arizona would be chairman of the Appropriations Committee at 77 if his party takes over. It was Hayden who suggested that the Democrats yield to the Republicans in view of the narrowness of the margin.

Senator James Murray of Montana, just re-elected to his fourth full term in the Senate, does not list his age in the Congressional directory. But it was widely advertised by the Republican opposition in the campaign to be 78. Montana has a Republican governor. Murray is top Democrat on both the Senate Labor and Public Welfare and the Interior and Insular Affairs committees, and presumably would have his choice of chairmanships with Democratic control.

The newly elected Senator from Kentucky, Alben Barkley, will be 77 years old on Nov. 24. He replaces a comparatively young Republican, John Sherman Cooper, who is only 53. While Cooper made no direct references to it, Barkley's age was widely advertised by the opposition and the Veep, as a consequence, felt the necessity to make an extra strenuous campaign in order to prove he was fit for office.

Senator Matthew M. Neely, of West Virginia, a Democrat, re-elected to his second successive Senate term, omits his age in both the Congressional Directory and Who's Who in America. Neely will be 80 years old next week. West Virginia has a Democratic governor.

One problem for the leadership with such a narrow margin is rounding up members to vote on crucial measures. In the absence of comfortable majorities the whips must see to it that when a key vote is coming up all members are on hand.

A shift of control in the Senate from one party to another during the two-year life of Congress could create a chaotic situation. Continuity of procedure must come from the work of committees that prepare legislation for final floor action. The power of investigation, so significant politically in recent years, would also shift as control is shifted. The investigators of one month might find themselves under investigation the following month.

The World Today—James Marlow

McCarthy Ties Fate Of Nation To His Own Future, Blasts Foes As Red Tools

WASHINGTON (AP)—The speech which Sen. McCarthy prepared for the Senate today—in his own defense against censure—goes far beyond anything he has ever said or claimed before.

This speech, which he released late yesterday, is a basic restatement of his attitude and tactics toward criticism of himself over the past four years. History may remember it as an extraordinary document.

The speech goes so far in its implications it is difficult to believe McCarthy can surpass it: he holds himself and those who go along with him as the country's chief defenders against communism and links the fate of the nation to his own fate.

Without using the word "martyr," he clearly suggests he is a man persecuted. Senate debate begins today on recommendations of a special committee created to consider charges of misconduct against McCarthy. This committee of three Democrats and three Republicans was headed by Sen. Watkins (R-Utah).

It investigated, held hearings, let McCarthy reply to the charges and recommended that the full Senate censure him on two counts: (A) that he ignored requests to testify made upon him by a previous committee which investigated him and (B) that he treated Brig. Gen. Ralph W. Zwicker abusively.

The first count termed contemptuous his treatment of the earlier committee. The second said, in effect, he had acted like a bully toward the general. On both counts the Watkins committee considered his conduct unfit for a senator.

This is how McCarthy reasoned in his speech: He brushed aside as inconsequential the Watkins committee charges, the same attitude he has taken toward all previous charges. "petty," he called them. Censuring him would be a victory for the Communists who want to destroy him, he said. He described himself as "hard" on communism and those opposing him as "soft" on communism. Who are they? In this group, which he called "ruthless," he included redio commentators, educators, writers, a majority of the press. (Earlier this week he had said the attacks on him had "emanated" from the White House.) Communist influence in shaping American thinking is enormous, he said, and now communism has extended "its tentacles to... the United States Senate." He declared the Watkins committee was playing the Communists' game in voting against him.

He didn't say the committee had knowingly played the Communist game, but that it was a "victim" of the Communist campaign. "And," said McCarthy, "having been victimized, it became the Communist party's involuntary agent."

"In the course of the Senate debate I shall demonstrate that the Watkins committee has done the work of the Communist party, that it not only cooperated in the achievement of Communist goals, but that in writing its report it imitated Communist methods—that it distorted, misrepresented and omitted in its efforts to manufacture a plausible rationalization for advising the Senate to accede to the clamor for my scalp."

There he made it plain the best he could say for the Watkins committee was that it was too dumb to realize it was playing the Communists' game; the worst, that it deliberately connived to get him.

But if the members of the Senate are too stupid to know what the Communists are up to, and protect the country from them, who in the United States can be depended upon to save the nation?

By direct implication McCarthy held himself up as one whose fate is linked to that of the nation in the anti-Communist fight. He said: "It is not easy for a man to assert that he is the symbol of resistance to Communist subversion—that the nation's fate is in some respect tied to his own... but I take it you would rather I'd be frank than coy."

By RELMAN MORIN (For Hal Boyle) NEW YORK (AP)—Diary of a New Yorker: MONDAY — Architect Frank Lloyd Wright, silver mane, opera cape and all, is back in town. He was 85 this year, but nobody could be more youthful in outlook. Says his formula for this is to "keep young people around all the time." Actually, it's more because of his tremendous enthusiasm. He personifies the observation, "Zest is the last gift of the gods." He has great zest.

TUESDAY — Went to a little shindy for Hildegarde, who was looking radiant. A very attractive girl, "Hildy," mainly because she has the same zestful quality as F.L.W. Did you ever know she possesses a fine collection of paintings, and is practically an expert in the field?

WEDNESDAY — Sat late and fascinated tonight listening to a discussion of Israel. It came about when Alfred Lillenthal blew in suddenly from the Middle East. He wrote "What Price Israel," a book that sets forth the reasons why anti-Zionists oppose a Jewish political state. An old Washington pal, Leo Margolin, has had considerable experience with these matters from the legislative angle. His views are about 180 degrees apart from Lillenthal's.

Anyway, we got together and it was a grand thing to hear the pros and cons from two brilliant guys with opposite feelings on the same subject.

THURSDAY — Speaking of books, it was hard to turn out the light tonight on "The Reason Why." This is a wonderful job on that famous incident, the charge of the light brigade—by a lady author, no less. In spots, it borders on being hilarious, but I couldn't help but suffer for the poor British Tommy quietly following such officers. The British soldier is a great guy.

FRIDAY — Spent all day working on a piece about Univas, the electronic brain. You may have seen it on television election night. To me, the interesting fact is that a whole new group of technicians has come into existence because of "the Brain." They are trained to translate problems into the "language" of the machine.

SATURDAY — Miss. Daria Shafiq, who is famous in Egypt, came in for a quick visit. She is the leading feminist in that fascinating country, and is trying to raise the status of women in the Arab world. She's here for a lecture tour and is then going on to Japan and India.

SUNDAY — Went to Central Park for the weekly horseback-riding. I am a high-spinner, myself, and while some landed as ringers, very few stayed there. About two, as I recall.

Since World War II, an average of 150,000 immigrants a year have come to the United States.

Scoutmaster Quailed, But Boys Couldn't See Fear In Darkness

The opinions contained in this and other articles in this column are solely those of the writers who sign them. They are not to be interpreted as necessarily reflecting the opinions of The Herald. — Editor's Note.

Can you remember the time or times when you were frightened worst? One stands out in my memory, and it happened at a time when I really tried not to appear frightened at all. Fortunately, impenetrable darkness helped me.

The incident occurred back in my days as a scoutmaster. We had read in our handbooks and in the Scouting magazine, as well as Boys' Life, that there was rare sport in hiking on pitch dark nights. This called up the best of one's woodman instinct, not that we had any woods to be instinctive about, and tested your ability to navigate by feel.

This, my boys agreed, would be rare adventure.

So the next time we went on a Friday afternoon hike, we deliberately picked a night when there would be no moon. We played games around the campfire, sang a few songs and spun a yarn or two. When the fire glimmered out, the night had settled down as thick as a hangman's hood.

Each of us, according to plan, got a short stick. As the bold leader, I stepped up front with a sort of staff in hand to shield me from barbed wire fences, cactus, etc. With my other hand I extended my short stick. The boy behind took this stick in one hand and extended his behind him, and so on until we had formed a chain for our nocturnal march.

We eased out of the flat up the slope and over an escarpment with nothing worse than a few slips and falls. Then we cut in back of about where the Scout hut is located in the City Park area and by sheer luck managed to estimate right where two barbed wire fences would be. These we crossed without mishap, walked rapidly across the flat where the Baptist encampment is now located, and hit a pass over an arroyo smack on the nose.

That put us high on the brow of a hill that would lead right down on the south anchor of the dam across the T&P lake. We struck up a song and in general were enjoying ourselves immensely, for now we knew the country like a book. Confidence was never higher.

As we neared the edge of the dam, and the lights of South Gregg lay glimmering ahead, I stepped into the middle-of-a-covey of broad.

Now in broad daylight the whirring of these creatures gives me a tingle. It seemed there in the darkness that all the nether regions had broken loose and had taken up my pants leg. The noise heeled seemed to freeze, but my heart did acrobatics in my throat.

In a twinkling, it came to me that I had simply stumbled into a covey of quail... nothing to be scared of, nothing at all. I composed myself and took bearings. My boys were still with me, and I don't suppose I had dragged them more than a quarter of a mile... As I say, it's a good thing for the Scouting program that they couldn't see through the dark.

Austin Recollections—Raymond Brooks

Political Playback

Dan Moody has an unbeatable memory. As district attorney, he could question 40 ventrmen, then when the 12 jurors were chosen, could call each accurately by name.

His memory is vivid as to a freight-train ride in June 1938 which led to one of the climactic events in his race for governor against Governor Miriam A. Ferguson.

On a South Texas campaign swing, he spoke Friday night at the Madisonville school closing. I was the only newspaperman along with him. The telegraph operator was chairman of the school board, and I had to wait until the commencement program was over to file my story. Moody planned to catch the I&GN train at Jewett, for Austin. He had a big speech scheduled in San Antonio Saturday night.

The unpaved road was muddy. We got to Jewett after the train had passed. We went to the little hotel. The manager had gone to bed and wouldn't get up. He yelled, "Find yourselves rooms down the hall."

Just as we got to bed, Moody heard a train whistle. "That's the freight," he said. "If it stops here, we can catch it."

We put on our clothes, hurried out to the tracks, and walked down the side of the long freight. We met the conductor, whom Moody knew, and he told us to get in the caboose. We did, rode into Taylor at daybreak. Moody borrowed the car of his sister, Miss Mary Moody, and we came on into Austin.

The Ferguson's had issued a challenge that if Moody were high in the first primary, they would quit the race, provided he agreed if they were high, to get out. At San Antonio that night, he accepted the challenge. It was the last either said about quitting the race. Moody went on to win.

I checked former Gov. Moody about details of that train ride, all of which he remembered. I couldn't recall whether it had been Jewett or Oakwood.

"There's some more to that story too," he recalled. "In our rush to catch that freight, we failed to pay the hotel. After the election, I ran into the Jewett hotel man, whom I knew. I told him what happened, and paid him for the rooms. "The Austin American still owes me $2 for your half that hotel bill."

Business Outlook—J. A. Livingston

Business No Longer So Fearful Of Democratic Party Policies

"People now realize that the Democratic party is the part of prosperity."

That's how Albert M. Greenfield, chairman of Bankers Securities Corp., chairman of City Stores Co., and head of Albert M. Greenfield & Co., giant real estate firm of Philadelphia, explains the Wall Street reaction to the election.

Greenfield's a Democrat and a business man who has prospered during the Roosevelt, Truman, and Eisenhower regimes. Consequently, he's not afraid of a Democratic Congress.

His attitude toward Democrats is similar to the attitude of many business men toward Republicans. They're men he knows, understands, and trusts. They're not going to engage in rash policies that will hurt business.

Perhaps Greenfield is right. Perhaps Wall Street and business men are getting over their fear of Democrats. Perhaps they discern the similarity between Republican and Democratic policies.

President Eisenhower has pursued an easy money policy. He has reduced taxes. He has run a deficit. When a hard-money policy threatened to accelerate a business decline, Eisenhower shifted to a soft money policy—a policy still in force.

On Social Security, President Eisenhower has advocated widening the coverage—even as Democrats might. In issuing government contracts, the administration has favored labor-surplus areas. The orientation of the administration has been toward economic expansion. In detail, the Republicans may differ from the Democrats. But in broad purpose—to maintain a high level of employment and prosperity—the party lines run parallel.

When Truman ran deficits, business men and bankers were convinced it was because the Democrats didn't care about balancing the budget. The Democrats talked balance and acted unbalance.

Then Eisenhower took over. He brought secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey, Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson, Budget Director Rosamund H. Hughes, Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks, Secretary of Labor James F. Mitchell — Men with business backgrounds, men whom business men know and understand — into government.

And what's the result? There's still a deficit.

core — about 85 cents out of every dollar go for defense, foreign aid, payments to veterans, and interest on debt. That's not easy to change rapidly.

And under Eisenhower, as under President Truman, we're still having trouble in dealing with the Russians. We still have to take cognizance of the feelings of our Allies — Great Britain, France, and other nations. In this, President Eisenhower's foreign policy isn't so different from Truman's.

All this bounces back. The business men have "their boys" in office. Yet, their boys don't act so differently from the Democrats. The business men know that Republicans don't act inconsiderately. When Humphrey runs a deficit, it must be because a deficit's unavoidable. When Secretary of State John Foster Dulles refuses a go-it-alone foreign policy, if he accedes to the British suggestion of let's-talk, it must be because that's a reasonable policy.

Thus, political horizons are broadened. Many Republican business men are now aware that prosperity not only produces profits but votes. They see that Democratic policies, once regarded as socialist — and anathema — have been accepted by Eisenhower. That tends to make these policies respectable. And it reduces fear of Democratic control of Congress.

Mossadegh Aide Dies Before Firing Squad

TEHRAN, Iran (U)—Former Foreign Minister Hossein Fatemi, firebrand of Mohammed Mossadegh's government, died before an army firing squad at dawn today for his part in the 1953 plot to unseat the Shah.

Fatemi was convicted and sentenced by a military court a month ago. An appeal to Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi failed.

The secret execution at Ghasr Barracks came as a surprise. Army sources said last weekend it would be delayed indefinitely because Fatemi was seriously ill.

Tehran's military governor, Gen. Teimour Bakhtiar, said Fatemi walked without trembling to the stake, where he was blindfolded and bound. He said "May God protect you" just before four volleys from the four-man firing squad crumpled him.

Tenement Blaze Claims One Life

NEW YORK (U)—A swift-spreading fire blocked the stairs of a five-story tenement yesterday, burned one man to death and caused injury to at least four persons.

Several persons jumped from apartment windows after finding the stairs cut off by fire. Others waited on ledges until rescue units arrived with ladders.

Chief Fire Marshal Martin Scott said the blaze apparently originated in the hallway of a double building at 214-216 W. 78th St.

Firemen found the burned body of an unidentified man in a top-floor bathroom.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

These baby pumas were born in Antwerp Zoo.

ANTWERP, Belgium — Ranking second in size among the cities of Belgium, Antwerp has a population of about 800,000. It is the chief seaport of the country.

The history of this city goes back more than 1,500 years. It was important during the Middle Ages, and became a rich center of trade. Four centuries ago the residents included more than 1,000 merchants from England, Italy, Spain, Denmark, Portugal, Germany and other lands of Europe.

Then came wars of religion. Spanish soldiers in 1576 plundered the city and slew 8,000 of the people. Nine years later all the Protestant residents were ordered to go elsewhere to live.

Those troubles, and others, caused Antwerp to lose its high place in Europe. During the past 100 years, however, it has kept growing in size and importance. It has more than doubled in population once each 40 years during that period.

The people of Antwerp think of two famous Flemish painters as their own. One of these, Anthony Van Dyck, was born in the city but spent the later years of his life in England. The other, Peter Paul Rubens, moved to Antwerp in middle life and lived there until his death. His home is pointed out to tourists.

The Scheldt River runs through Antwerp, and alongside the river are granite walls for a distance of several miles. The walls provide a firm base for the docks used by ocean-going vessels.

During my travels I have visited many zoos, but I never have seen one which took up such a choice section of a city as the Antwerp Zoo. This zoo covers a stretch of land at one side of the main railway station. Many acres of valuable property are devoted to beasts from various parts of the world.

At the front of each cage or pen in the zoo is a card with the name of the animal on display, and with a small sketch map. The sketch maps show the continents of the world in outline, and each one is marked with colored ink to show where the animals are found in their wild state.

THE GRUB LINE

With Franklin Reynolds

Any group or organization interested in seeing an unusually good wildlife film should call Marion Everhart at the Soil Conservation Service office (Dial 4-5331) and ask for a showing of "Bob White Through the Year."

It is a sound film in color and requires about 45 minutes. The film was made by the Missouri Department of Conservation. It cannot be released to an individual but must remain in the possession of, and be shown by, the USDA representative to which it has been shipped.

It will be available the balance of this week and through the weekend. Everhart must put it in the return mail Monday.

It is the year around story of quail, from hatching until they are taken by the hunter. There are

Man Is Acquitted In Trial For Killing Next Door Neighbor

PHOENIX, Ariz. (U)—William E. Demand, 35, was freed of a first-degree murder charge last night by a Superior Court jury that deliberated just 1 hour and 24 minutes.

Demand had been charged with the fatal shooting last July 27 of Vernon Donn (Jim) Frederick, 38, his next-door neighbor and long-time friend. The trial, marked by defensive fireworks, lasted 15 days.

"The Scottsdale Photo Shop will be open for business in the morning," Demand, a photographer and operator of the shop, said when the verdict was read. "I'll be there."

The defense held that Demand was at home asleep when Frederick was shot, that Frederick, a Scottsdale city councilman, was a philanderer and could have been killed by any number of jealous men.

The state contended Demand was jealous of Frederick's attentions to his wife, Faye, and shot Frederick while intoxicated. Mrs. Demand drove her car into an irrigation canal and drowned shortly after the slaying.

Turkeys Go Up In Flames In Truck Fire

WESTMORELAND, Calif. (U)—Some 28,000 pounds of frozen turkey, being transported in a truck and trailer, went up in flames yesterday. A wheel bearing froze, igniting a fire, and set off the blaze.

Firemen said several motorists stopped to grab turkeys and this hampered their firefighting.

Boy Dies In Cab-Train Accident In California

ALHAMBRA, Calif. (U)—Kenneth Schlada, 8, was killed yesterday when a train struck the taxicab in which he was riding.

The driver, Burton Dorway, said an auto ahead of him stopped, trapping his cab in the path of a freight train.

several close-up scenes of hawks and foxes catching quail, and a hunting scene that requires about five minutes shows two dogs, a Pointer and a Setter at work, and a pair of hunters who never miss a shot.

The film has already been shown to Truett Vines' agricultural class at the Senior High School; to R. E. Baumhardt's agricultural class of the Junior High School and to several of the classes at the Washington Place School.

Friday morning Everhart will show two conservation films to a joint gathering of Junior High School and Senior High School agricultural students at the Senior High School.

The first of these films will explain the principles and practices of up-stream flood prevention, while the title of the other one is "Strips and Curves."

This last one isn't nearly as snappy as the title might lead one to believe. It deals with "strip cropping"—not "strip teasing" and the "curves" are those of contour farming.

The local SCS office has made arrangements to draw any wildlife film, showing all forms of hunting and fishing, from the USDA's wildlife film library to show to groups and organizations requesting this type of information.

Randolph Clerk Found Guilty In Bribe Case

SAN ANTONIO (U)—A Randolph Air Force Base general court-martial yesterday found S.Sgt. Joel Graslum, 25, a personnel clerk, guilty of accepting a bribe to influence an overseas assignment.

The court sentenced Graslum, of Valley City, N. D., to a bad conduct discharge, confinement at hard labor for six months and forfeiture of $50 pay per month for six months. The sentence must be reviewed by the commanding general.

Actor's Sudden Fame Blamed In Separation

HOLLYWOOD (U)—Actor Edmund Purdom's sudden rise to fame is blamed by his wife for their separation yesterday.

"We had four years of poverty and misery and we clung together like babes in the woods," said Mrs. Tita Purdom, former ballet dancer. "But when Ed became successful, it all changed. Now he doesn't even want to be in the same room with me."

and interesting entertainment. If you have trouble preparing a club program, just give the SCS a call. They can help you out.

There will be a meeting of Glasscock County stockmen, and everybody else who is interested, at the Court House in Garden City, Thursday evening (Nov. 11) at 7:30 p.m., for the purpose of setting the date and making other arrangements for the annual 1955 Glasscock County Livestock Show.

Rules and regulations will be approved and suggestions for improving the show, sale and the accompanying barbecue will be discussed. Finances and other business will also be considered.

This show, sale — and barbecue — is the biggest and best event of its kind in West Texas and one that attracts hundreds of people each year. It is a countywide community affair with all the good folks down that way doing their best to make it a success.

When marketing quotas are in effect for wheat, that grown on acres in excess of farm acreage allotments is subject to quota penalties even if fed on the farm, says Claude K. McCan, chairman of the state ASC committee.

Many farmers have raised the question why wheat grown for feed, and not sold on the market, must be included under quota and allotment provisions.

The law is clear on this point and it is not a matter for administrative ruling, explains McCan.

Smaller producers, those with acreage allotments of less than 15 acres, do not come under the marketing quota provisions if their total wheat production on the farm does not exceed 15 acres. In these cases, the penalty for exceeding acreage allotments is only the loss of the wheat price support eligibility.

In other instances, however, all wheat produced on acreage outside the established farm allotment is subject to quota penalties.

About one mile north of Stanton, on the Gene Clements farm, there is some of the best soil-protecting stubble to be seen anywhere.

On this 80 acres, Clements raised two kinds of combine maize, which produced about 33,000 pounds of grain to the acre on the first cutting. He is waiting for the frost on the rest of it.

He plans to work this stubble over with a shredder to keep it in or on the top part of soil both for protection against wind erosion and to provide a mulch or organic matter and to channel more of the moisture expected during the winter down into the ground.

On his place three miles northwest of the Brown Community in Martin (in the northeast part of the county) Elmer Dyer has 20 acres of Blue Panic grass that has attracted the attention of a great many people in that area.

Some people have referred to this 10-acre patch as the sample that is going to sell that whole section on this grass. In spite of the drought, Dyer got a good stand of the Blue Panic and it has made a splendid growth, surprising everybody on what it can do on such a small amount of water.

Next spring Elmer plans on planting some more Blue Panic. He has also seeded some shinnery to Sand Lovegrass.

And while speaking of Blue

Panic, a visit to the Houston Ranch, managed by Bernard Houston, just south of the Martin County line in Glasscock County, will turn the bare-range stockmen green with envy.

On this ranch there is 105 acres of Blue Panic and 15 acres of Sideoats Grama that is easily running a cow and a calf to the acre, with plenty of grass left over.

Bernard says that mowing this grass back when it gets ahead of the cattle is giving him even more grazing, because when it grows back it is nearly all leaves with hardly any stems.

On Sept. 5, they mowed a part of this Blue Panic back even with the ground and then watered it once. Pretty soon now they are going to harvest the seed from this mowed-back-and-watered plot and the seed production is expected to run about 200 pounds to the acre.

Houston, it will be recalled, cleared more than 100 acres of mesquite and cactus around an old windmill, drilled a new well, put in a pump and a sprinkler irrigation system on wheels and started growing grass.

Big Spring (Texas) Herald, Wed., Nov. 10, 1954

Five Elevens Stand Out In Big Spring History

By TOMMY HART
Eighty-five years ago next Saturday, the first football game in America was played between Rutgers and Princeton at New Brunswick, N. J.

America has never been the same since. Every weekend, football teams the country over take the field and the populace goes slightly berserk.

Rain or shine, hot or cold, they descend upon stadia to root for their favorites. If the teams they back succeed in outscoring the opposition, they are oftentimes guilty of a department that would shame a juvenile delinquent but which, at a football game, is standard behavior.

Football didn't come to Big Spring until 1907 and the results of the first game were enough to discourage local gladiators to returning to play for two years.

Sweetwater shaded Big Spring, 22-0, in that inaugural game.

By 1920, however, Ernest Vaughn had arrived here and the local high school club began a systematic massacre of all its opposition. With Vaughn serving as star player and coach, the Big Springers in two seasons scored 425 points to exactly none for the opposition. It got to the point where teams were afraid to play Big Spring.

The 1920 club had such members as John Doyle, Gene Nelson, Harvey Williamson, Benny Erwin, Jack Williamson, C. W. Deats, Libura Coffee, Kirby Ralston, Brown Alexander, Eddie Henry and Homer Kirby.

John E. King, later a Washington correspondent, served as coach of the local club but Vaughn is credited with designing most of the plays.

Olie Cordill, Sr., was a member of the 1907 club. His son, Olie, Jr., was later to become one of the greatest players in Big Spring history.

The team was identified as the Jayhawks until Joe Ward arrived on the scene in 1924. He recommended that the nickname be changed to the Steers.

OLIE CORDILL JR.

changed to the Steers after his alma mater, the University of Texas.

Hungry Huggins, Alfred Collins, Dr. Frank Boyle and Bill Stevens were among the coaches who followed Ward here.

Stevens was hired primarily as a basketball coach and gave Big Spring perhaps its greatest cage teams.

Olie Bristow, now a state representative, arrived on the scene in 1921 and promptly imported several players from his native Oklahoma. That year, the Steers rolled up 396 points to exactly none for the opposition in its first eight games, yet failed to win the district championship.

The only touchdown scored against the Steers was by Sweetwater and the Mustangs made it stand up for a win. Sammy Baugh led the Furies that year. Later, Big Spring and San Angelo played to a 2-2 tie.

In 1924, Bristow gave the Steers a district championship with strictly native talent, before stepping aside for George Brown. Brown remained only one year.

Among the coaches who followed Brown here were Pat Murphy, John Dibrail, Herschel

Stockton and Carl Coleman. Coleman first served here as a junior high mentor in 1923 but later was to build district championship teams at Stamford and Pecos before returning here five years ago.

Dan Stalworth, now the head coach at Baytown High School, was here in the '20's but he was a junior high school principal and not a coach, at the time. He was a well known game official, however.

Big Spring's five greatest teams in history are generally conceded to be:

1921
1924
1940

In 1921, the Big Springers—led by Athal Porter—beat every team they played but Abilene.

Tack Dennis, Bill Flowers, Dave Hopper, Oscar Heblson and Howard Schwarzenbach were members of the great 1921 club that won eight times and played one tie in ten starts. Dennis scored 147 points for the Steers that year, a team record for one year that still stands.

Dennis was later to star at the University of Tulsa under Gloomy Gus Henderson. Flowers captained the Tulsa University club his senior year.

The 1924 club was led by two fierce defensive players in Bob and Gene Flowers and a great halfback named Olie Cordill Jr., later a star at Rice Institute. George Neel, a mighty mite, quarterbacked the club while Bobby Mills and Paul Coburn were among the line standouts.

In 1940, the Steers—under Pat Murphy—used a great defense to win the conference title. The club ultimately lost a wild decision to El Paso High in bi-district competition.

The team had its ups-and-downs until last year, when Coleman guided it into the state finals against Fort Neches. Frosty Robison and J. C. Armistead were the backfield stars of that club while J. W. Thompson, Wayne Medlin and Norman Dudley paced the line.

Stanton Ready For Big Test Friday Night

There's no doubt about the feature football game in District 4-A this weekend.

Stanton goes to Sundown and that's the one the fans have been waiting for all season.

Before the 1954 campaign, the Buffaloes and the Roughnecks were regarded as the conference's best clubs and the two have lived up to all expectations.

Sundown will carry the better record into the game, having won eight straight decisions, but Stanton has played the tougher teams and may be better equipped to stand the pressure than Sundown.

There's no doubt about the Buffaloes being ready for this one. Coach Melvin Robertson has prepared the Buffs all season for the Roughies, defending champions in the circuit. The Buffs have wanted another chance at the Sundown crew ever since they lost a narrow verdict to the champs last year.

The Buffs played under wraps last week in beating Morton, 25-7. Morton grabbed an early lead but there was no stopping Stanton once it got started.

Sundown annihilated Whiteface, 67-0, but proved nothing there. Whiteface has been kicked around by all 4-A teams.

Jimmy McElroy, a holdover from last year's famed Sundown backfield which had as its star Don Weigand, is the lad who makes the Roughie attack click. Charley Perkey and Wendell Phillips are other Sundown standouts.

Stanton will counter with a backfield composed of Jimmy Henson, Jimmy Butcher, Reggie Myrick and Conrad McCaskle plus a great line that has held some of West Texas' best teams to a total of 7 points.

The Anson Tigers must stop these two Friday as well as Hollis "Hoss" Gainey for a share in the 4-AA crown. Billy Bridgford, Colorado City, right halfback, clears the path of ballcarrier Bud Windham, Wolf fullback. Bridgford carried the ball for the first time this season against Rotan, but specializes in taking out opposing defenders. Windham has scored 48 points, and has picked up 866 yards this season for a 7 yard average per carry. (Photo by Goss, Colorado City).

Baylor's Gremminger Boosted As All-America Terminal

DALLAS (AP)—Henry Gremminger, Baylor's great wingman, has been pushed forward as a leading candidate for All-America from the Southwest Conference.

The regional board of the Associated Press decided that Gremminger, who reached his height in a fine season against Texas Saturday, should be a prominent contender for the honor.

The men previously nominated as leaders were not demoted; Gremminger merely was added to the list.

Dicky Moegle, Rice halfback; James Ray Smith, Baylor tackle; Bud Brooks, Arkansas guard; Billy Hooper, Baylor quarterback; and Hugh Pitts, Texas Christian center, still are tops with the All-America board of Dick Freeman, Houston Chronicle; Mark Batterson, Austin American; Louis Cox, Dallas Times Herald; Bud Sherman, WBAP-TV, and Dave Campbell, Waco News-Tribune.

But Batterson nominated Gremminger to become a member of the select group, saying "he seems to do nothing wrong, and everything better than right."

Sherman said Gremminger was the outstanding lineman in the conference last week but the presence of Smith was a psychological factor. "Texas scored away from his side," the TV sports expert commented. "Baylor scored over our side. I still believe he's tops in our area. Moegle lost no luster in a losing cause although Henry Moore and George Walker spearheaded a great team effort by Arkansas. I must go along with Smith and Moegle as the two tops in the conference."

Freeman recommended Moegle once more for carrying the ball 21 times for a net of 117 yards for Rice; also catching three passes for 27 yards and doing a fine job of punt returning, as well as on defense.

Freeman also cited Gremminger for his great play and James Ray Smith "who lived up to all the rave notices." And he added Ray Berry, Southern Methodist end, for his great game against Texas A&M.

Cox said Moegle "was an All-America Saturday if there ever was one. He was a constant threat to Arkansas, gaining 117 yards on 21 carries, catching three passes for 27 yards, returning four punts for 73 yards and returning a kickoff 48 yards."

Cox also pointed to the great day of George Walker of Arkansas, who scored three touchdowns, carried the ball for 53 yards, completed nine passes for 119 yards, returned a punt 73 yards for a touchdown, returned two kickoffs for 74 yards and had a 43.3 yard punting average.

Moore, the Arkansas fullback, continued to pound the line, gaining 85 yards on 25 carries and "when he didn't have a hole, he would dive over the Rice line for three or four yards," Cox observed.

The Times Herald sports editor also cited Brooks and Kenny Paul, Rice guard, "who was hard to budge. If a play gained over his position, it was because Arkansas' fullback, Moore, would dive over the pile-up."

Cox also considered Berry outstanding, crediting him with turning in the best end play of anyone in the conference. Berry made tackles behind the line of scrimmage, knocked down a pass thrown behind the line of scrimmage and called defensive signals, his calls prevented A&M from scoring a touchdown for the first time this year. SMU players also had a high regard for Elwood Kettler, the Aggie quarterback who stood out both on defense and offense.

Campbell said Gremminger, Smith and Hooper were his top choices for All-America consideration this week, particularly Gremminger and Smith. "Smith has been hampered by injuries all year, and yet he was the best blocker on the field," Campbell pointed out. "He was the main blocker in clearing the way against Texas' right defensive side as the Bears marched against that side in their second half comeback. Smith also made the key tackle of the game, the one on Delano Womack which prevented Texas from getting a first down on the Baylor 27 in the third quarter."

"Gremminger had a field day, covering two Baylor fullbacks, receiving two passes, consistently making the Texas passer so hard that the Longhorn serial game bogged down."

Porkers Await Last Challenge

Southwest Conference elevens, the season's end in sight and bowl games on the horizon, went through their paces at an accelerated pace Wednesday.

Up in the Ozarks, the undefeated, untied Arkansas Razorbacks need only a tie in Saturday's game with Southern Methodist to clinch the Southwest Conference crown and win a trip to Dallas' rich Cotton Bowl.

The Razorbacks, picked in pre-season predictions to finish last, worked behind a locked gate Tuesday. Coach Bowden Wyatt kept mum on what phase of the game the Hogs were concentrating on, but it was a safe bet they would continue to strive for perfection in the single-wing magic that has carried them to seven straight triumphs.

Their Saturday opponents, meanwhile, reported that they were played out by injuries. Co-Captain Raymond Berry and Doyle Nix, two first-line ends, suffered sprains Tuesday and were taken to a hospital for X-rays. Just how badly they were hurt was not reported.

Already, halfback Don McElbenny, a mainstay of the Pony attack was in bed with a bruised kidney. He will not play against the Porkers and is out for an indefinite period.

At Texas Christian's camp, where the Horned Frogs were getting ready for the Texas Longhorns, the story was different. Quarterback Ronald Clinkscales and tackles Ray Hill and Dick Laswell took their tender ankles—injured more than a week ago in the Baylor game—through an all-out offensive and defensive scrimmage without further injury. Second-unit halfback Ken Winsburg also went through the bruising, spritid drills with no ill effects to his injured ankle.

The A&M first team worked out again in sweat suits with quarterback Elwood Kettler, bruised in the SMU tilt last Saturday, missing from the squad. Guard Ray Barret was hospitalized with virus, but Coach Bear Bryant indicated both would be ready for Rice.

Blankenship Is Instructed To Vote 'For' Buckaroos

Trustees of the Big Spring school district said last night they consider it an honor to have Breckenridge in District 3A-1.

Breckenridge's perennially powerful football team represents a "challenge" Big Spring should be willing to accept, one board member said.

The officials voted unanimously to instruct Supt. W. C. Blankenship to vote to keep Breckenridge in the district at a meeting of the district committee in Snyder today.

The vote came after Blankenship asked trustees for an expression of opinion on the matter. The superintendent explained that a meeting of the district committee has been called to determine if Breckenridge shall remain in District 3A-1.

Breckenridge must be voted into the district each year because enrollment in its high school is not sufficient to qualify it for participation in 3A activities. The school has 440 students, and the 3A districts are made up of schools with enrollments from 550 to 1,200.

In addition, a new school Southside High of Lubbock, has been assigned to District 3A-1 for next year.

The vote of school representatives on Breckenridge's admission to the district was set for 10 a.m. today in Snyder. One negative vote would bar Breckenridge.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

By the time you read this, the executive committee of District 1-AAA will have decided the Breckenridge issue one way or another, for at least another year.

There is much talk of drumming the Buc out of the league, although nothing may come of it. Members of school executive committees are like any other voters; sometimes, they talk one way and vote another.

Those crusading to keep the Buc a part of the circuit include the following reasons in their arguments:

- PRESTIGE. The conference would be grading itself downward by expelling the Buc to Class AA, thereby admitting that Breckenridge is too tough for the other schools.
- BIGGER GATE RECEIPTS. The Buc has become the "Notre Dame" of Texas schoolboy football, in that they draw banner turnout, both at home and on the road.
- DEMEANOR. The Buc know how to accept defeat as well as victory. They don't sulk for their losses and they certainly don't rub salt into the wounds of the opposition, when they win.
- BETTER FACILITIES. The Buc have as good or better playing facilities than any other school in the conference.
- IMPROVED COACHING. Revolutionary ideas in coaching at Breckenridge keeps the other mentors on their toes and makes them better.
- SPIRIT. This, the backers of the Buc say, is what builds football teams. It's taught in the schools there that the youth who plays football gets the greatest break. Toddlers are dressed in football gear and taught to say "I'm going to be a Buc when I grow up."

Those arguing against keeping the Buc in the league cite the following reasons:

- FOOTBALL DOMINATION. The conference officials have committed themselves to the extent that they do not want any one school dominating football at the expense of the other members, that passing the championship around is the only way to maintain universal interest. Football, they add, has long been emphasized at Breckenridge at the expense of other sports and championships have been the rule rather than the exception there.
- SECRET TRAINING. Rumors keep circulating from one end of the conference to the other that the Buc held secret drills throughout the summer. Such stories, of course, cannot be substantiated. Officials are curious as to how a school can get hit so hard by graduation (as was Breckenridge), yet come back with a great club.
- THE RECRUITING HUBGABOO. Breckenridge has always insisted it does not move football families into the community but critics of the Buc counter with the argument that the city, which numbers less than 5,000, cannot put out championship clubs year in and year out without seeking promising players.
- PRESSURE. This has been a touchy subject with friends of schools and school boards alike for years. Some observers will tell you that delegations of influential Breck people make it a point to be on hand at school board meetings when the problem of voting for or against the school is brought up and combine charm with hints of reprisals if the vote goes against them.

If the executive board does reject Breckenridge's application to remain in the conference, it is due to take such action without reciting any of the above grievances.

They quite probably will point to the fact that Lubbock has a too high school which is to be added to the conference and it will be too big and bulky and cover too much ground with nine members.

But the grievances will be there, nonetheless.

SOPHS PLAY BIG ROLE IN TERPS' COMEBACK

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Maryland had struggled back to at least some of the country's best football teams today and Coach Jim Tatum attributes its return to three reasons, sophomores being two of them.

Improved tackles, development of sophomore quarterback Frank Tamburello and a familiar defense account for the late-season climb. Voters in the Associated Press poll returned Maryland to 17th place this week after virtually ignoring it since Oct. 9. That was the day it was tied by Wake Forest 13-13 on the heels of being beaten 12-7 by UCLA.

Since then Maryland trounced North Carolina 33-0, South Carolina 20-0 and North Carolina State 42-14. It also lost 9-7 to Miami, beaten for the first time last week and along with UCLA in the top 10 until then.

Besides hauling back into sight of the top 10, Maryland's hopes of going back to the Orange Bowl perked up after being virtually dead. It now has won three and tied one in its Atlantic Coast Conference, which furnishes one Miami representative, and can send a fourth victory by beating Clemson Saturday.

The development at tackle of sophomores Al Wharton of Sewickley, Pa., and Mike Sandusky, Bound Brook, N.J., and at quarterback of Frank Tamburello of Baltimore are credited by Tatum with two parts of Maryland's late success.

Tackle had been tabbed by Tatum from the start as one of the biggest gaps in last year's elected national champions. Wharton and Sandusky after the first four games shunted Ralph Baier, senior letterman, back to the third team. Tatum rates Wharton the best defensive tackle on the squad now.

Besides helping himself, Tamburello has helped Charley Boxold senior quarterback, get hold of himself, according to Tatum.

Villains Grab Tag Victory

The villains had their night of heroics at the Big Spring Wrestling Arena last night.

Frankie Hill Murdock of Waxahachie, Texas, and Turkey's All Bey teamed up to deal out misery to the combination of Gory Guerrero and Pepper Gomez.

The Guerrero-Gomez team started out well enough. Gory used a back bender to dispose of Bey in about 15 minutes but the temporary setback fused a new understanding between All and Murdock. They vowed to lend each other more cooperation. While first Guerrero and then Gomez appealed to Referee Billy Weidner for the privilege of entering the ring, the Turk and the Texan reasoned they didn't need any such sanction.

Bey evened matters by bouncing Guerrero in 15 minutes and Murdock then forced Gomez to yell "uncle" with a leg strangle.

In the first match of the evening, Guerrero and Bey went in a 15-minute draw while Gomez beat Murdock in the second preliminary with a knee lift and top body pin.

Joe Cushman won 69 races during the 45-day Atlantic City race-track meeting in 1950.

How About Smoking?

Dear Miss Brandow: As a person of taste and common sense, please give your opinion of the new jeweled pipes for women. We are a group of teen-aged girls, all allowed to smoke, who are very style conscious and wish to be chic and attractive. We would like to own these new lady's pipes, but our parents won't allow it.

Personally, I think the little jeweled pipes are here to stay, much more attractive than cigarettes and they certainly smell better than the cigars some women have switched to.

However, assuming you are interested in boys and dates, as indicated by your desire to be chic and attractive, let me cite an incident that happened to me recently.

A very smooth Peter Lawford sort of person offered me a cigarette. After my "No thanks" he said:

"I didn't think you smoked." Surprised, I asked "Why?"

"You smell like talcum powder and cologne," he observed.

He probably didn't realize it, but he started me to thinking. I'll bet ninety per cent of the sweet smelling things with the alluring titles that women buy are bought to impress some male. But how can a subtle aroma survive that tobacco smell?

Really and truly, all of us girls are a "crazy mixed up" lot. We buy potent perfumes, plunging necklines, waist nippers and spike heels to play up our sex.

Then we turn right around and don a pair of slack hanging slacks, or a shapeless poppy shirt, and dangle a cigarette, cigar, or pipe from our mouths and expect the boys to think we're a dish of dream stuff.

A nightmare is more like it. Here's a lesson in elemental biology. Do you know why boys like girls? It's because girls are different, and it's that difference they find alluring. Any girl who thinks it's because of the similarity has her head screwed on crooked. Opposites attract.

How would you like to date an effeminate boy? No sir. You want broad shoulders and plenty of muscles. Your nature calls out for a male who looks and acts like a man.

He, too, seeks his opposite. His nature calls for femininity. Simply diagramed, that means curvaceous fitting dresses that swirl, the aroma of perfume and powder enough of tobacco, and hair long enough he can run his fingers through it. Fashion does a lot of dictating, but if you want to adopt the qualities that are sure fire man bait, it's vice is difference.
