There were no Pampans lined up in the County Tax Assessors, office this morning registering to vote in this year's elections. But there should have been a line if the remaining 7,000 voters, who were registered last year, want to cast ballots this year.

In fact, between now and the Jan. 31 registration deadline. 148 would have to register every day - 18 every hour, or three every minute to catch up with previous years' registra-

"It's not going as fast as it should at all," Jack Back, county tax assessor said this morning. Back said his office is remaining open during the noon hour through Jan. 31 for the convenience of registrants.

A local beer distributor is also contributing to voters' convenience by leaving application blanks at local grocery stores. Blanks are being included in customers' sack. All the customer has to do is fill it out and mail to the tax office.

Under the new voters registration law, passed last year. booths cannot be set up outside of the courthouse by civic clubs as has been the procedure in other years. Applicants must come to the tax office or said. mail in the application blanks.

Two elections of local interest have been set for April of this board members wil be selected for the expiring terms of John lected by local voters.

Dodgers Waited and Waited but Koufax Retires

NEW YORK (UPI) -This is the final straw. It's the one which really breaks the Dodgers' hearts, but they can't do anything more about it.

They tried. They gave it one last shot, but didn't make it.

The extent to which they went and the vain hope they continued to hold out all is contained in an official 10-word notation from the Commissioer's office which is due to reach the 20 major league clubs

That notation reads: Transferred to Voluntarily Retired List -By Los Angeles

11-18-66-Sanford Koufax.

The fact this becomes a part of baseball's official record two months after Koufax announced his retirement is rather unusual. Quite unusual, in fact. Normally, the paper work is attended to much more quickly.

"We were hoping he would change his mind," frankly admitted Dodger vice president Buzzie Bavasi over the phone from Los Angeles.

"I thought that maybe if he had a little layoff he'd find his arm felt better and he might be able to resume. There was always that slight chance. We carried him (on the roster) through the draft so what it amounted to was that we wasted a space. But that's a chance we took and we knew

When a major league ball player announces his retiremet, the procedure doesn't end right then and there. He must then make an official application to be placed on the Voluntarily Retired List which Koufax did on Nov. 18.

The Commissioner's office here received that application but none from either the Dodgers or the National League, which also are required.

Bavasi kept thinking Sandy might change his mind, but he saw virtually all chance of that disappear when Koufax joined NBC one day before the New Year. Still the Dodgers held off filing his application. "We couldn't do anything about Koufax' perition for retirement until we heard from the National League President," explained a spokesman in the Commissioner's office.

The Dodgers finally made application for Sandy's retirement on Jan. 9, only nine days ago, and after it was sent to the N.L. office, Warren Giles certified it and sent it along to the Commissioner's office. According to baseball law, Koufax' application for voluntary retirement only means he can not play for the first 60 days of the season.

Believe it or not, there are some skeptics who still believe the left - handed 31 - year-old, brand new TV executive will return to baseball one day in the future, but Bavasi isn't among them.

"If it was any other boy in baseball," Buzzie says, "I might look on the retirement with some reservation. I'd have my doubts. But with Sandy, it's an entirely different story. He means what he says. I see no reason to think he'll never pitch again."

But for argument's sake, just suppose he did? And suppose he did this year? How would he

"He'd win 20," Bavasi shot back. "With his right arm."

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its olessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself no more, no less. It is thus consistent with the Human Relations Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.
