

BOMB DAMAGE in a Hanoi residential district allegedly was caused by a U.S. air raid. North Vietnamese Communist officials claim the raid destroyed 13 houses and took five lives.

Russians Will Double Aid to North Vietnam

Soviets Trying To 'Outdo' Red China

LONDON (UPI)—The Soviet Union will double its assistance to Communist North Vietnam this year with increased supplies of planes, rockets and radar installations, diplomatic sources reported today.

The reports said Russia's East European allies are to share in an increased military and economic aid program agreed to in a series of recent bilateral exchanges between the Russians and North Vietnamese leaders.

The Russians were understood partly motivated by Communist pressure to outdo Red China, which recently claimed to be supplying 70 per cent of all military aid to North Vietnam.

East European nations have been drawn into the discussions between Moscow and Hanoi and have had to agree to participate in the expanded aid scheme.

All arrangements were said to be on a bilateral basis with Hanoi. The idea of a joint, Russian-led agency to coordinate and channel aid to North Vietnam apparently has been dropped, partly because of resistance from the smaller Communist nations, notably Romania, to any "supra-national" organization in which Moscow could order its allies what to do.

Red China has been supplying the bulk of small arms to Hanoi as well as made-in-China MIG 19 jet fighters.

Peking also is doing much of the repair work in North Vietnam with the help of a "technical army" estimated at some 40,000 men who repair railway tracks and are building strategic supply roads from Red China into North Vietnam.

Peking also is supplying some of the food for Hanoi.

Russia is the chief source of supply of sophisticated weapons. She has given Hanoi anti-aircraft rockets, supersonic MIG 21's and radar equipment, all for use against American bombers.

What Johnson said was: "We expect to submit a supplemental budget. The precise amount will be given in the State of the Union message, but it will be somewhere between $9 billion and $10 billion additional for fiscal 1967 in expenditures."

The key to that statement is in the last six words. Administration officials contend that Johnson was talking only about spending during the current fiscal year—not the total of the entire supplemental appropriations bill.

Anything beyond the $9-$10 billion would be used during the next fiscal year, beginning July 1.

Scotland Yard Recovers Art

LONDON (UPI)—Scotland Yard today announced recovery of $8.4 million in art treasures stolen by a "thin man" burglar Saturday in history's biggest art theft.

Scotland Yard said the masterpieces—including three Rembrandts and three Rubens—were actually recovered Monday night. The announcement apparently was withheld until today for investigative reasons.

Recovery of the loot climaxed a massive operation of raids, searches and questioning throughout southern England.

Eight masterpieces in all were stolen from the Dulwich College art gallery by a burglar or burglars who drilled a hole in a door.

The paintings were said to be only slightly damaged. All were found in London, some in the Streatham Common area in the suburban southern part of the city where the Dulwich Gallery is located.

One report said Scotland Yard Inspector Jack Friend recovered the bulk of the paintings early today following an anonymous telephone call to police saying a parcel had been dumped in a small public garden at Streatham.

Friend was said to have found the paintings dumped behind some bushes.

The recovery announcement came amid mourning for the eight masterpieces might have been irreparably damaged or even removed from Britain.

Shortly before announcing the paintings' recovery, Scotland Yard said it could not confirm or deny "at this stage" a French newspaper report three of the works had been recovered.

Scotland Yard later today revealed that only three of the paintings were found Monday. They said secrecy was maintained to prevent the thieves from destroying the others.

Car Makers Say Standards Will Bring Shutdown

DETROIT (UPI)—The four major U.S. car makers warned Tuesday the auto industry faces possible shutdowns if all of the proposed federal safety standards are put into effect for 1968 models.

The next move in the car safety campaign is up to the National Traffic Safety Agency which will study the reports from the auto makers and issue final standards.

Ford Motor Co. and General Motors Corp. told Dr. William Haddon, administrator of the safety agency, that they cannot possibly meet five of the 23 proposed standards.

Chrysler Corp. said it would be unable to comply with 10 and American Motors listed eight standards which the company will be unable to meet.

"Certain of the proposed standards, if made effective in their present form, would prohibit the company from marketing its 1968 models," said E. W. Bernitt, AMC vice president.

The other three companies echoed AMC's statement. Chrysler warned that some of its suppliers could not meet the demands of changing products to meet production schedules.

"A failure in this area could shut down our assembly lines very quickly," said Harry E. Cheesebrough, Chrysler vice president.

The car makers, in documents filled with engineering drawings, charts and other data, said they endorsed the government's concern for car safety. But, they said, some of the standards, as written, are impossible to meet.

Those jailed at Key West include four Americans—Joe Garman, Martin Casey, Paul Thonore and William Heusler. Also jailed in the nation's southernmost city was Cuban exile Auria Poggio, the lone woman in the force and designated as "quartermaster."

Along with the invaders the federal agents seized a "mountain of arms."

Egyptians Charge British Collusion

CAIRO (UPI)—The government-owned Cairo newspaper Al-Ahram today accused Saudi Arabian King Faisal of "continuing collusion" with Britain.

The accusation heightened a crisis gripping the Middle East that threatens to pit Arab against Arab in open conflict.

The charge followed by a day the announcement from the extremist Cairo-based Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) that it planned to mount a wave of violence at the palace of Jordan's tough young King Hussein and the homes of his cabinet ministers.

Hussein and Faisal are considered the moderates of the Arab world and have been under increasing attack from leftist elements—notably the PLO, Gamal Abdel Nasser's United Arab Republic, and Syria—for not acting firmly enough against Israel, which the Arabs are vowed to destroy.

Along the tense Arab-Israeli borders, two more brief exchanges of fire were reported Tuesday—making a total of four since Sunday.

Al-Ahram, a favorite vehicle for U.A.R. attacks against Arab moderates, cited a letter allegedly written by British Foreign Secretary George Brown to Faisal.

The newspaper said the letter thanked Faisal for aiding Britain in the United Nations with plans to give independence to British South Arabia before 1968.

It said the letter "proved full coordination between Faisal and British imperialist plans in the Arabian Peninsula." It said the alleged letter was seen and copied on Faisal's desk in his capital of Riyadh.

Powell Plans To Fight Chairman Ouster Efforts

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y., confident his House colleagues will not deny him his seat, plans to meet head-on any effort to strip him of his committee chairmanship.

The controversial Harlem congressman has sent word from his vacation hideaway in the Bahamas that he will attend a caucus of House Democrats Monday to fight any effort to depose him as chairman of the Education and Labor Committee.

C. Sumner Stone, Powell's top aide, said Powell is no longer worried that he might be denied his seat when Congress convenes Tuesday.

But Powell is well aware that his chairmanship may be in jeopardy at Monday's pre-session caucus. Stone said in an interview. He said Powell plans to fly back to Washington over the weekend to attend the closed-door meeting.

Observers feel the House would be reluctant to depose Powell, since the voters in his district appear ready and willing to re-elect him as many times as he is unseated.

But House Democrats could "discipline" their colleague by taking away his chairmanship and dropping him down the seniority ladder.

Critics of the high-flying Powell were handed new ammunition Tuesday. House investigators fired his estranged wife from her $20,578-a-year job and questioned Powell's taxpayer-financed trips with a former beauty queen.

Blood Clot Cause Of Ruby's Death

By United Press International—Officials at Dallas' Parkland Hospital disclosed Tuesday that Jack Ruby, slayer of accused presidential assassin Lee Harvey Oswald, died of a blood clot of the lungs. He was 35.

His body was flown to Chicago early today. Funeral services will be Friday.

Ruby was taken to the Dallas County Jail cell Dec. 9 when he complained of a bad cold and chest pains. Widespread cancer was discovered and his condition became worse day by day. His weight had fallen from 167 to 147 pounds in the hospital.

It was Parkland Hospital, where both President Kennedy and Lee Harvey Oswald were pronounced dead a little over three years ago.

Ruby insisted to the end there was no conspiracy in the slaying of Oswald. He also disclaimed he was part of a plot to kill Kennedy.

Ruby was taken to the hospital to be treated for pneumonia. Tests were taken and it was found Ruby was infected with cancer of his lungs, pancreas and several other parts of his body.

Doctors said a blood clot detached itself from Ruby's leg and traveled to his lungs and elsewhere in his body. They said it was extremely doubtful they could have saved Ruby from cancer even without the blood clot.

"We say the man died of a blood clot in his lungs," Dr. Earl Rose, Dallas county health examiner, told a news conference after an autopsy.

Pentagon Defends U.S. Bombing Raids

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A concerted North Vietnamese effort to place military targets among its population makes civilian casualties impossible to avoid, according to the Pentagon.

The Defense Department said Tuesday U.S. pilots are operating in combat with unparalleled skill to keep such casualties low.

"In view of the great strength of U.S. airpower, it is patently obvious that the civilian damage would be very much greater, and indeed, unmistakable, had the United States deliberately attacked any civilian target in Vietnam," the department said.

The department's latest defense of the civilian casualties in air strikes over North Vietnam came in response to Rep. Ogden R. Reid, R-N.Y.

Reid is the ranking GOP member of a House operations subcommittee which plans an inquiry into administration candor in reporting such casualties.

The Pentagon position was stated in a letter to Reid from Paul G. Goulding, Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for Public Affairs.

He said Nam Dinh, where 89 civilians reportedly have been killed, contains four major military targets against which more than 50 attacks have been launched, and that the city is defended by more than 500 anti-aircraft guns.

"We have no possible way of ascertaining whether the figure of 89 killed is an accurate one," Goulding said. "Even if we were to accept it as accurate, which we do not, we would have no way of knowing how many of those 89 civilians might have been workers in the railroad yard, the trans-shipment facility or other military targets."

"But those two do accept the figure as legitimate must acknowledge the care taken by the United States to avoid damage to civilian areas if no more than 89 persons had been killed during more than 50 raids against military targets in and around a city of 90,000 persons, heavily defended by anti-aircraft weapons."

Goulding described as "without accuracy" a dispatch from Hanoi by New York Times correspondent Harrison Salisbury on Dec. 27 that "no American communique has asserted that Nam Dinh contains some facility that the U.S. regards as a military objective."

Viet Cong Free Three Prisoners

SAIGON (UPI)—Two American civilians and a Filipino woman were freed today, more than six months after they were kidnapped and placed in a Viet Cong prison camp.

U.S. spokesmen said the three—released in a Communist "good will" gesture—were "not in too good of a shape." The American men were employees of an engineering firm. The woman was the widow of an Air America employe who died in Viet Cong captivity last week.

Air America is a cargo airline supported by the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency.

The three prisoners were released about 40 miles east of Saigon and found by Vietnamese soldiers. The Americans were Thomas R. Scales, 44, of Matamoros, Pa., and Robert W. Monahan, 41, of Brooklyn and Bellport, N.Y.

The South Vietnamese government announced, meanwhile, that it plans to release an unspecified number of North Vietnamese war prisoners next month in connection with the start of the Asian new year (TET). But there was no reply to a Viet Cong proposal for an eight-day Tet cease-fire.

U.S. Military sources disclosed today that fighter-pilots have been given a go-ahead to more actively pursue Communist MIG jets. Pilots were told they could attack any of the Soviet built planes sent aloft over North Vietnam, but MIG bases themselves remained "off limits."

"The rules now say we can hit them (the MIGs) the instant their wheels leave the runway," one official said. "so you can look for more of this sort of thing."

U.S. F4 Phantom jet pilots downed seven of the sleek MIG21s Monday in dogfights in which there were no American losses. The MIG21s are the most advanced Soviet jets, and only 15 to 20 were believed among North Vietnam's fledgling air force of some 200 jets.

U.S. officials revealed today, however, that one F4 Phantom was damaged when it flew through the debris of a MIG disintegrated by a Sidewinder missile.

U.S. Navy Air Force pilots flew 80 missions against North Vietnam Tuesday, hitting highways, fuel dumps and supply areas, spokesmen said. The raiders also reported damaging or sinking 11 sampans and cargo junks and leaving a North Vietnamese torpedo boat lying dead in the water.

American fliers reported spotting one Mal Northwest of Hanoi, but there was no shooting. "The MIG turned toward a flight of F4s, but when the F4s turned on him, he just scooted off," a spokesman said.

The Filipino was identified as Mrs. Onelia Baza, wife of an American pilot. (See VIET CONG, Page 3)

LBJ's Call For Extra Funds May Total $4 Billion

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson will ask Congress this month for extra funds to cover Vietnam war costs totaling $1 billion to $4 billion more than originally indicated last month.

The bigger price tag on the Vietnam supplemental appropriations bill may come as a surprise to many. But Johnson—troubled by what his critics call a "credibility gap"—may not necessarily be to blame.

At a Dec. 6 news conference at the LBJ ranch, it was reported that Johnson said the supplemental bill would be between "$9 billion to $10 billion."

Now, however, administration officials say it will be more. The best congressional estimates place the price tag at between $12 billion to $14 billion.

Why an announcement of $9-$10 billion when the figure will end up larger?

According to one administration source, it was thought the $9-$10 billion figure was "enough of a jolt." Others say newsmen should have spotted the distinction the President made at his news conference.

What Johnson said was: "We expect to submit a supplemental budget. The precise amount will be given in the State of the Union message, but it will be somewhere between $9 billion and $10 billion additional for fiscal 1967 in expenditures."

The key to that statement is in the last six words. Administration officials contend that Johnson was talking only about spending during the current fiscal year—not the total of the entire supplemental appropriations bill.

Anything beyond the $9-$10 billion would be used during the next fiscal year, beginning July 1.

New 25th Amendment May Be In Constitution Within Weeks

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The new 25th amendment—to cover emergencies arising when a President is unable to handle the duties of his office—should be written into the constitution within a few weeks.

A total of 31 states already have ratified the amendment, which was passed by Congress in July, 1965. Seven more states will bring the number to 38, three-fourths of all states, the number needed to make it a part of the constitution.

Fifteen of the state legislatures that have not yet acted on the amendment are convening this month. Since it has not run into any serious opposition so far, it appears to face a smooth ride once the legislatures are cranked into motion.

In addition to outlining the steps to take in case of presidential inability, it also provides for filling the office of a vice president who succeeds to the presidency. The new president would nominate a vice president, who would take office if approved by a majority vote of both house and senate.

Proposals for dealing with presidential inability rattled around in Congress for years before President Dwight D. Eisenhower's three serious illnesses during the 1950's revived serious interest in the problem.

President Johnson, the late President John F. Kennedy, and Eisenhower all have had written informal agreements with their vice presidents about handling government affairs in case of disability.

The Senate approved an amendment in 1964, but it died in the House. Then at the urging of Johnson both Houses agreed on a proposed amendment within six months in 1965.

Price Attends GOP Briefing in Washington

Congressman Bob Price of Pampa arrived in Washington yesterday and today attended Republican briefing sessions in advance of the convening of Congress next week.

The congressman will attend another briefing session tomorrow. He plans to install his office staff and be ready for the opening on Jan. 10.

Mrs. Price and their children plan to remain in Pampa until the end of the current school term before moving to Washington.

Highlights and Sidelights

By VERN SANFORD
Texas Press Association

AUSTIN. — Come Tuesday, Texas legislators will be back in session at the state capitol.

Pressing money matters and certain new taxes head the "worry list" confronting the lawmakers. But a broad montage of other problems on the agenda promises an interesting, high-voltage session. It is sure to be one that will continue through the full 140-day period and may even go into extra sittings.

Gov. John Connally in his "state of the state" message to the solons later this month will outline spending recommendations which will require more than $100,000,000 in new taxation. Included will be his own $911,500,000 budget.

Numerous tax proposals are expected to be offered. These include expansion on the sales tax, a one-cent-per-gallon boost in gasoline taxes, a franchise tax raise and many other proposals.

Growing cities, with finance problems of their own, will occupy much of the Legislature's attention. Mayors will plug for a one-per-cent local option city sales tax. (Governor Connally prefers a rebate of gasoline tax revenues for street purposes.)

While most legislators apparently are prepared to vote for new taxes, few indicate they will support a $44,000,000 raise in state college tuition.

Headline topics before lawmakers this year will include: —Teacher pay raise — teachers want raises ranging from $61 to $100 a month. This would cost the state some $68,000,000 a year. A majority of lawmakers are committed to some form of increase. Connally is expected to recommend much less.

—Constitutional revision—the governor and the State Democratic Party advocate revision by convention. Lt. Gov. Preston Smith favors a more-cautious approach.

—Legalized sale of mixed drinks and horse racing.

—Annual legislative sessions.

—A long-range plan for water pollution control.

—A 20-per-cent pay raise for all state employees.

—Driver safety legislation: increasing the minimum age for drivers to 16 and requiring periodic re-examination of all drivers.

Among other measures to be considered are: a minimum wage bill; an industrial safety act; increased workmen's compensation benefits; reconsideration of some provisions of the new code of criminal procedure; daylight saving time (should Texas accept it or pass a special act to retain standard time?); and a $75,000,000 bond-financed, 12-year program advocated by the governor to acquire and develop new state parks.

LIQUOR, SI; BETTING, NO —An Associated Press survey of Texas senators and representatives indicates what while horse-race betting again doesn't seem to have a chance in the 60th Legislature, legalized mixed drinks may.

In 1965 the Legislature let the horse-racing proposition die in a subcommittee. And the liquor-by-the-drink bill — which has been up in every session since World War II — was killed in committee.

Judging from its early answers to a questionnaire, AP concluded that mixed drinks have gained support, while betting seems to have lost some of its appeal. Some legislators said they would not vote for either issue and expect neither to pass. Both will again be hot issues.

On another section of the questionnaire, approximately three-fourths of the senators and representatives figured that new taxes will be in order for the 1967 session. But there was no unanimity as to what kind of taxes.

Only one senator — Henry Grover, Houston Republican — said he would vote for few or no more taxes. No member of the House said he would vote against new taxes. However, several legislators did say they were undecided.

GOVERNOR'S GARDEN — A statewide campaign has been launched for funds to convert the grounds around the Governor's Mansion into a garden area.

Mrs. Perry R. Bass of Fort Worth is chairman of the Mansion Subcommittee of the Texas Fine Arts Commission. She says plans call for a formal rose garden with colonial arbors, a gazebo, pools and fountains framed and surfaced with brick patios and retaining walls.

Mrs. John Connally assisted a Dallas firm in drafting plans for the garden. Project was approved by the Fine Arts Commission and members of the Texas garden clubs have pledged their help with the fund-raising. Contributions may be mailed to Mrs. Connally at the Mansion in Austin.

The Mansion has been the official residence of Texas governors since 1856.

OATHS TAKEN — Atty. Gen. Crawford C. Martin and several members of the judicial branch of Texas government had to work Sunday — they took their oaths of office at the Supreme Court Building on the Capitol grounds.

Judges John F. Onion Jr., Wesley Dice and Ernest Belcher took their oaths as judges of the Court of Criminal Appeals. Dice and Belcher had served as commissioners to the court until a Constitutional amendment passed in November made the court a five-member body. Governor Connally is expected to name one of the five as chief justice this week.

Associate Justice John C. Phillips of the Third Court of Civil Appeals in Austin took the oath of chief justice of that court.

APPOINTMENTS — Attorney General Martin has announced these heads of divisions within his office.

Enforcement — Bob Lattimore, Hidalgo County District Attorney.

Highways — Watson Arnold of Waco.

Bonds — John W. Painter of Austin.

State and County Affairs — J. C. Davis (holdover).

Taxation — John Grace of Austin.

Oil and Gas — Houghton Brownlee Jr. of Austin.

Water Division — Roger Tyler of Austin.

Opinion Committee — Hawthorne Phillips of Harlingen.

STEVENSON HONOR DUE — A Texas historical marker will be erected in Junction soon honoring former Gov. Coke R. Stevenson.

Marker is the third in the "modern Texas statesmen" series being erected by the Texas State Historical Survey Committee. Earlier markers commemorated public service of former Govs. William P. Hobby and Allan Shivers.

Stevenson, born March 20, 1888, was the first Texas governor to serve more than two terms (1941-47). He is a lifetime resident of Kimble County.

WHITMAN'S INSURANCE — Group Life and Health Insurance Company of Dallas has asked a district court to rule who should receive the benefits of a $10,000 life insurance policy on the late Kathleen L. Whitman.

She was the wife of Charles J. Whitman, the UT Tower Sniper.

Mrs. Whitman was stabbed to death by her husband before he began his shooting rampage on August 1. Numerous claims have been filed against Whitman's estate as a result of his shooting spree. He had been named beneficiary under his wife's policy.

Insurance company is ready to pay but wants the court to say — to whom.

AIRPORT AID — Increased responsibility for the development of Texas air-transportation systems will be placed on the state government, says Charles Murphy, director of the Texas Aeronautics Commission.

This because the federal government is reducing its aid. Murphy made his statement after studying details of the federal aid program for 1967 as announced recently by the Federal Aviation Agency. Allocated was $72,500,000 in matching funds for improvements at 341 civil airports. That's $120,000 less than for 1966. Of that total, $5,680,389 will be available to 29 cities and towns in Texas.

"It has been obvious for some time that the federal government will concentrate on giving assistance for the development of airports in cities that are linked with the national air commerce system and is withdrawing support from small cities that are not in the national air commerce plan," Murphy said.

BAYTOWN BANK ASKED — An application for a charter for a proposed Bank of Baytown has been filed with the Texas Department of Banking.

No date has been set for the application.

SHORT SNORTS — George Christian, White House press secretary and longtime aide to Governor Connally and former Gov. Price Daniel, is recuperating here from back surgery to correct an ailment from which he has long suffered.

Trend to Use of Steel Sets High Pace for 1966

By ROGER M. BLOUGH
Chairman, U. S. Steel Corporation

The story of steel for 1966 can best be told in terms of nationwide steel consumption. During the past twelve months, Americans put into use a record ninety-nine million tons of finished steel products. And the trend of steel use in this country seems somewhat higher as we move into 1967.

During 1966 almost all major steel-consuming industries scored solid gains. Agricultural requirements and business spending for plant and equipment grew markedly. Machinery output and industrial construction rose more than 10 per cent. Steel for containers continued its long term upward trend, exceeding 1965 by nearly 5 per cent. The principal exceptions to an almost uniform pattern of growth in steel usage were the automobile industry which eased moderately from an all-time high in 1965, and residential construction which was adversely affected by a number of factors.

While steel consumption by the aircraft and ordnance industries doubled in 1966, the defense total still is only a small part of domestic steel demand — probably about 3 per cent. Neither steel nor the economy yet seem to be heavily dependent on war-induced stimulation for their growth.

Aggregating all of the pluses and minuses, steel shipments appear to be trending moderately upward at year-end and for the early months of 1967.

Periodic fluctuations in steel demand are to be expected. Despite these fluctuations, a growing aggressiveness in both research and marketing should mean that the longer term market for steel will continue to expand. Even contemplating a possible reduction in steel for military purposes, it is interesting to note that the strongest and most balanced output in steel gains came in those more recent years (i.e., 1963 through 1965) in which the defense budget was a declining share of total national spending. It is productivity — creating investment and the resiliency and vigor of the private economy which are the ingredients of a rising standard of living and a long term increasing demand for steel.

In spite of an ingot production which broke all records by reaching approximately 134 million tons, steel shipments from domestic mills in 1966 totaled about 90 million tons or about 2.5 million tons less than in 1965. This difference in trends was mainly accounted for by need to reestablish mill inventories depleted in the earlier year.

For the future, two of the more important considerations affecting steel producers are the trends in imports now supplying about 10 per cent or more of the domestic market, and the impact of tax policies on capital investments. The dual need for redress against current dumping practices and for equalizing the conditions of entry of foreign steel into our domestic markets with those applicable to our steel exports seeking entry into foreign markets remains unresolved. Equally important is greater recognition of the continuing heavy investment requirements of the domestic steel industry if it is to achieve technological superiority. Such superiority over the long run can well provide the lasting answer to the challenges of competition from whatever source.

A general tax increase would compound these problems. In the light of leveling out in the economy, it could only be justified by a necessity to finance a sharply escalated war in Vietnam or other defense efforts after a severe curtailment of domestic government non-defense spending. A general tax increase now would appear to involve risks greater than any benefit that might flow from it as a tool employed for restraining the economy or for reallocating the burden now borne respectively by fiscal and monetary restraints.

EARL L. WILBUR visits rotary club

Rotary Governor Pays Visit To Pampa's Club

Earl L. Wilbur, of Dalhart, governor of Rotary District 573, was in Pampa today winding up an official visit to the Pampa Rotary Club.

Wilbur addressed the club membership at its noon meeting today in Coronado Inn. Last night he met with Rotary Club officers and committee chairmen at a business session in the Southwestern Public Service Co. hospitality room.

The district governor also conferred with Lee Fraser, president of the Pampa Club, and Paul Payne, secretary, on matters of club administration and plans for future service activities.

In his speech, this noon, speaking of the global growth of Rotary, Wilbur said, "Rotary is the pioneer of the service clubs and today numbers more than 12,400 clubs with a combined membership of nearly 600,000 business and professional men. Spread throughout 133 countries in all parts of the world, Rotary clubs meet every day of the week and conduct activities to improve their communities, aid youth, elevate business standards, and further international friendship and understanding."

Referring to the program of Richard L. Evans of Salt Lake City, Utah, president of Rotary International for 1966-67, the Rotary governor said, "President Evans has urged Rotarians everywhere to be concerned with youth, employment and education, health, safety, and respect for law as a broad community action program, and to acquire friendships and personal contacts in many parts of the world for the development of international points of view in general and the exchange of youth across the national boundaries in particular."

During his visit in Pampa Wilbur was given additional information on some of the local Rotary club's activities.

Boyd Taylor, Cabot Corp. attorney, will be installed as president of the Pampa Kiwanis Club at its 37th annual installation banquet tomorrow night in the Starlight Room of Coronado Inn.

Taylor will succeed outgoing president Jack Nichols.

Installing officer will be George Blackwell, lieutenant governor of Division VI of the Texas-Oklahoma District of Kiwanis International.

Other officers to be installed include Jack Nichols, immediate past president; Joe Fischer, first vice president; Weldon Trice, second vice president; Jerry Davis, secretary-treasurer; and June Allen, executive secretary.

New club directors for 1967 will be Royce Laycock, Cletus Mitchell, Carlton Nance, Bob Parks, Ed Vicars and Larry Wall.

Special presentations will be made by Tom Beard. Entertainment will be furnished by Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Sanders. Bob Allford will give the invocation. Weldon Trice will lead the pledge of allegiance, Mack Hiatt will lead group singing, J. W. Doka will introduce guests and Don Lane will be master of ceremonies.

The banquet is scheduled for 7 p.m.

Pampa Students Nominated For Academy Study

Two Pampa-High School seniors are among the 25 young persons named by Walter Rogers, retiring congressman of the 18th District, to receive principal and alternate nominations for appointments to the U.S. Air Force, Army and Naval Academies.

Myron J. Porter Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Myron J. Porter Sr., 1616 N. Hobart, was named first alternate nominee for an appointment to the Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, Colo.

Richard Louis Tarrant, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Tarrant, 1000 Huff Road, was named first alternate nominee to West Point Academy in New York.

Bond of $500 Set for Charge

Bond of $500 was set in Gray County Court Tuesday for Estanislado A. Sanchez, 35, 813 S. Barnes, on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

Sanchez, who pleaded no guilty, was, according to a Pampa police report, observed by officer C. L. Wallace in the 1000-1200 blocks of S. Barnes and 100-200 blocks of W. McCullough about 1:55 p.m. Saturday.

School Men Leave For TASA Meet

Dr. John D. Dameron, superintendent of schools, and James Trust, assistant school business manager, left today to attend the Texas Association of School Administrators' advisory conference in Austin.

Over $500 worth of damages to windows at Robert E. Lee Junior High School and Stephen F. Austin Grade School have been reported.

According to a Pampa police report 12 windows have been broken out of Robert E. Lee with damage estimated at $140-81 and 21 windows were reported shot out with a bb gun at Stephen F. Austin with damage estimated at $374.52.

Obituaries

Mrs. Cleve Hohlaus
HIGGINS - Funeral services for Mrs. Cleve Hohlaus, 76, will be held at 2:30 p.m. tomorrow in the First Methodist Church conducted by the Rev. Kiel Quesenberry, pastor of the Higgins Church.

Mrs. Hohlaus died at 12:05 p.m. yesterday in the Hemphill County hospital after a brief illness.

Born Jan. 7, 1891 in Alabama, she had lived in and around Higgins since she was 10 years old.

She was married to Herman Hohlaus, who survives, on Dec. 30, 1914.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by two sons, Kenneth of San Acacio, Colo., Lawrence of San Antonio; two brothers, Talmage Abney of Dalhart, Temple Abney of Texline; five sisters, Mrs. Hattie Bateman of Amarillo, Mrs. Maggie Hefley, Miss Willie Abney, Miss Anna Abney, all of Texline; Mrs. Ernestine Temple of Childress, and six grandchildren.

Burial will be in the Higgins Cemetery under the direction of the Duenkel Funeral Home.

Palbearers will be Vester Smith, Buel Barton, Dee Phelps, Carl Goetsche, P. H. Ridgeway and Kenneth M. Adoo.

PIF Schedules Friday Meeting

E. L. Green Jr., president of the Pampa Industrial Foundation, Inc., said this morning a meeting of the group has been called for 10 a.m. Friday in the Pampa Chamber of Commerce offices.

Green said agenda items include election of officers for the year 1967 and formulation of work plans for the year ahead.

The Hubbard Medal is the National Geographic Society's highest exploration award.

Tree-Burning Ceremony Set Friday Night

The annual ceremony "burning of the greens" is planned by St. Matthews Episcopal Church for 6:30 p.m. Friday at the Pampa High School practice field west of the Harvester football field.

Rev. Sam Hulsey, St. Matthews rector, will conduct a service on the "Harvester" field and in the church following the ceremony.

The public is invited to attend. Hulsey said the "burning of the greens" signifies the end of the Christmas season and is held on the 12th day after Christmas. "It also symbolizes the light of the star that led the wise men to Bethlehem," he said.

Piston Ring Is Reported Stolen

A brass piston ring, valued at $65 was reported stolen this morning to Pampa police.

Bob Watson, manager of Geophysical Service, 440 W. Brown, said the theft apparently occurred sometime between Dec. 18 and Jan. 1 but that the 40-pound piston had not been reported stolen because he thought a crew might be using it.

Police could find no signs of break-in at the building.

Longtime Pampa Pipeline Employee Is Now Retired

Anthony J. Martin of Pampa, who has completed 39 years of service with The Texas Pipe Line Co., has retired from the Wichita Falls Division of the company at Pampa, effective Jan. 1, it was announced today by W. T. Palmer, division manager.

Martin is a native of Dundalk, Ireland. He came to the United States in 1926 and entered service with the company shortly thereafter as a laborer at Burk Burnett here in Texas.

Subsequently, he worked on pump stations as fireman-gauger and oiler-gauger in various areas including the Panhandle, East Texas, Central Texas, North Texas, and became a district gauger at Parks and Graham in 1937. He transferred to the Panhandle District again in 1950 as a district gauger, the position from which he retired. Mr. and Mrs. Martin reside at 1315 N. Russell.

'Giant Fireball' Is Never Found

Pampa police were busy answering calls Tuesday night and investigating "a giant fireball that appeared to crash to earth about one mile east of Pampa."

Three persons called the police station between 9:30 p.m. and 9:40 Tuesday to report seeing the ball of fire fall to the earth. One report said it appeared to have crashed near the city dump.

A Pampa Highway Patrol unit found nothing as did a Pampa policeman, answering the call to the city dump.

Investigation By Police Pays Off

A Pampa police officer's determination paid off today and a Pampa college student will have to go to court Saturday.

Officer C. L. Wallace had little to go on when he started investigation of a hit-run accident that occurred Tuesday afternoon.

A 1959 Ford, belonging to Mrs. E. L. Emerson, 217 N. Sumner, was parked at the curb in the 900 block of W. Decatur when a unknown vehicle slammed into the right side of the Emerson car, knocking it over the curb and inflicting approximately $350 in damages.

The driver of the other vehicle sped away, thinking that no cities had been left behind.

There wasn't much to go on, but Wallace found a piece of an emblem that fell off the unknown vehicle.

The Pampa officer checked all body shops in Pampa today and finally found his unknown car about 10:15 a.m.

The owner of the vehicle is a Pampa girl, attending college at West Texas State University in Canyon.

Charges of failure to leave information at the scene of an accident after hitting a parked vehicle are expected to be filed Saturday against the young lady.

FOR 5 FULL YEARS

The Lighter Side

By DICK WIST
United Press International
 Early last Saturday afternoon my wife, who couldn't care less about football, paused in front of the television set and propounded a familiar question. "What time will the game be over?"
 I broke the news to her as gently as possible.
 "Sometime late Monday night," I said.
 Actually, of course, the game didn't last three days—it only seemed that way.
 There were eight different games over the long New Year's weekend, but after awhile they began to blend into each other. Besides that, I didn't want to confuse her with details.
 Football announcers make a big thing about teams exercising ball control. Believe me that is nothing compared to what it takes to control a television set over an eight-game weekend.
 At my house, we operate under the principle of squatter's rights. Once a person relinquishes control of the set, he automatically forfeits his program selection privileges.

 There were three games Saturday, the first of which I viewed with only token opposition. But during the second game, my children went into man-to-man coverage.
 Using the free substitution rule to spell each other at frequent intervals, one of them was constantly poised near the set ready to change the channel in case my eyeballs dropped out.
 I would never have made it through the third game without the aid of my father, who, though 83 years old, can still watch up to six hours of televised football before going blind.
 Sunday, with only two professional championship games scheduled, should have been a breather. But I was in a weakened condition as a result of a New Year's eve party and barely made it out of bed in time for the first kickoff.

"If you ask me, that's a vulgar display of affluence—they've thrown out an ARTIFICIAL Christmas tree!"

Secret Tape Recording Made Of Jack Ruby Is Announced

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A secret tape recording in which Jack Ruby denies any conspiracy in the slaying of Lee Harvey Oswald was announced yesterday by a recording company, according to the Los Angeles Times.
 The Times said it had received information that the recording was arranged by Capitol Records of Hollywood and was announced in New York.
 "The recording, in which Ruby implies the slaying occurred during an emotion-triggered blackout, was made within the last few weeks at Parkland Hospital in Dallas where Ruby is dying of cancer."
 An unwitting Dallas policeman was in the hospital room and two were outside the door when the recording was made.
 Spoke in Yiddish
 "The policeman did not know what was happening because Ruby's brother, Earl, told Ruby in Yiddish. . . "Jack, in the briefcase, the tape recorder is hidden there."

 The Times story said Ruby, speaking haltingly in English, gave a lucid account of the events of Nov. 24, 1963—two days after Oswald killed President John F. Kennedy.
 On that day, Ruby walked past police guards into the basement of Dallas city hall. Then—as millions of television viewers watched Oswald being transferred to another jail—Ruby stepped forward and fatally shot him.
 In the interview, according to the Times, Ruby said, "all I did was walk down there, down to the bottom of the ramp and that's when the incident happened—at the bottom of the ramp. . . it happened in such a blur that before I knew it I was down on the ground. The officers had me on the ground."
 His Memory Fades
 Ruby is heard on the recording saying "I can't recall what happened from the time I came to the bottom of the ramp until the police officers had me on the ground."
 A questioner is heard asking, "did you ever know Oswald before?" Ruby's voice answers, "Never have known him or seen him before." To another question he denies in the recording that Oswald ever had been in his Dallas nightclub.
 The Times story said the interview was arranged through Ruby's brother Earl, who lives in Detroit, and their attorney Elmer Gertz of Chicago, both of whom were present during the recording session.

CINCINNATI (UPI)—Patrolman Clifford Lauderdale delivered a baby Tuesday, the seventh time he had done so. A 6-pound, 4 1/2-ounce boy was born in a car in the parking lot of the police station where Lauderdale was on duty. Mother and son were reported doing fine.

LEATHERHEAD, England (UPI)—The lights have gone out at the cigarette lighter factory here, and so have the 700 workers. They walked out when the management fired Francis Cosgrove for taking "a 10-minute nap" on company time after "a Christmas beer with my mates."

In 1905, Soviet forces at Port Arthur, Manchuria, surrendered to the Japanese, ending the last major military engagement in the Russo-Japanese war.

Foreign News Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst
 Peoples of the Free World depend for the great bulk of their information on an equally free press, radio and television. And it often has been said that, limited only by their own curiosity, no people in the world have a greater opportunity to be well informed than do those of the United States.

In pursuit of truth as guaranteed by the First Amendment to the United States Constitution are thousands of hard-working newsmen, including war correspondents whose efforts sometimes require both blood and sweat, backed by budgets running into hundreds of millions of dollars.

Yet, unfortunately, constitutional guarantees and blood and sweat sometimes are not enough.

When a Pentagon spokesman declares, as happened early in the John F. Kennedy administration, that naturally the government seeks to "manage news, it leads inevitably to public distrust of the credibility of any public statement.

Credibility Gap
 And finally it leads to the "credibility gap," a phrase increasingly in popular use, especially as it deals with official Washington pronouncements on the war in Vietnam.

Any correspondent who has dealt closely with that war can cite examples.
 Not much can be hidden in tiny Vietnam, but the official attitude now and then trickles down through the military. Not long ago, U.S. soldiers put their cigarette lighters to a Viet Cong village. A UPI reporter witnessed it and an NBC cameraman got pictures. But despite the visual evidence, the official version was, it didn't happen.

It is a failure of managed news if a government spokesman is forced to reverse himself on a denial of bomb casualties among North Vietnamese civilians. It is true that such casualties probably are fewer in this war than in any other.

But the "credibility gap" widens.
 And it must widen anew with publication of preliminary findings of a press freedom survey being conducted by the Freedom of Information center of the University of Missouri.

Press Freedom Lacking
 In the survey the U.S. ranked sixth behind the Netherlands, Switzerland, Finland, Norway and Sweden in freedom of the press. Out of a possible perfect score of plus 4, the U.S. ranking was 2.71.

Among European nations, Communist Yugoslavia, with a score of plus 0.09, ranked above both Spain and Portugal.

It is noteworthy that in Spain on Monday a writer was sentenced to six months in jail for criticizing Spanish censorship. In Yugoslavia, another well-known writer a sentence him for criticizing the Tito regime.

He is Milevan Djilas, once regarded as a possible successor to Tito.
 Nor included in the Missouri survey were the Latin American nations.
 In the continuing world-wide attacks on or infringement of press freedoms, one of the harshest laws yet soon is to go into effect in Brazil.

Goodrich To Stay 'In Harness' As Substitute Judge

Former District Judge Lewis M. Goodrich, who retired from the bench here Dec. 31, is planning to remain active.

In a conversation with a News reporter yesterday, Judge Goodrich let it be known he is not one who wished to spend his retirement loafing and fishing. "I expect to be on the circuit down in the southern part of the state," Goodrich said.

He stated he had been offered an appointment to fill vacancies and act as a substitute judge in courts in the Houston area and would accept it.

Goodrich said he was going to take a short vacation and rest for awhile before "getting back into harness."

The jurist currently is recovering from a severe cold which he battled during the final week of his 31st District Court jurisdiction.

Judge Goodrich suffered from the cold all during the two-day hearing on a motion for a new trial in the Tom R. Vessels rape case last week and his subsequent winding up of court business before leaving office.

OLD PROBLEM of barnacles on seagoing ships may be partially solved with a new experimental antifouling paint. A steel plate coated with the paint shows almost no attachment of barnacles in this test, while an identical plate not coated is encrusted with the little animals. The project is part of marine research being done by Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co.

Dear Abby....

Mother Not Being 'Fair' to Her Son

DEAR ABBY: My sister has a 12-year-old son who was born with one deaf ear and about one-third hearing in the other ear. His doctors have informed my sister that in the very near future the boy will be totally deaf.

Don't you think the mother is being extremely unfair to hide the truth from her son? She is a college graduate and a prominent socialite and she seems almost ashamed of her son's handicap. She said she couldn't bear the thought of his wearing a hearing aid or studying and reading so young.

She thinks highly of your advice, Abby, so please answer.

DEVOTED AUNT

DEAR AUNT: That mother is doing her son a shocking disservice. The boy should start preparing immediately to live in a silent world. It will be much more difficult for him to learn after he has suffered a total hearing loss.

Urge your sister to talk to her son's doctors and to follow their recommendations. And I hope for the boy's sake she acts at once.

DEAR ABBY: I am 13 and a boy I know who is 14 asked me to be his girl and I said yes. Then he asked me if he could kiss me on the lips. Abby, I told him that I had never let a boy kiss me on the lips and I wasn't going to let him either. Well, then he said he was sorry, that he guessed he was just a little bit more grown up than I was, and he would have to find someone more grown up to be his girl.

Well, I didn't really care that much about him, so there was not too much heartbreak. But, Abby, I am still confused. Should I have let him kiss me on the lips?

PRIVATE NAME

DEAR PRIVATE NAME: I think you used excellent judgment.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is dead and I had two enlarged pictures of him nicely framed and I keep them in my living room. The other day a neighbor came in and saw them and she said personal pictures did not belong in the living room.

Abby, I haven't had much education and I would appreciate it if you would tell me if I am wrong to keep his pictures there.

I get a lot of pleasure out of looking at his pictures in the living room, but if they really don't belong there, I suppose I could put them somewhere else. Thank you.

JUST DUMB

DEAR JUST: Personal pictures should be enjoyed. And they "belong" wherever they afford the most pleasure.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "WITS END WIFE": Yours is the curse of being married to a man who appears to be younger than his wife. Don't for goodness sake, try to let people know in some "subtle" way that he is really older than you. It is bound to create the opposite impression.

How has the world been treating you? Unload your problems on Dear Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069.

For a personal, unpublished reply, enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1.00 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069.

Arabian Nights ... At Lunch in the Waldorf Astoria

By HELEN HENNESSY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK — Had 40 burmoosed and torbooshed thieves jumped from 40 huge jugs in the Empire Room at New York's Waldorf Astoria recently, the luncheon audience would simply have yawned. So transported in an Arabian dream were the guests that their only question might have been, "Which is Ali Baba?"

The occasion was a fashion show of native costumes held by the Arab American Women's Friendship Association. The models were the wives of diplomats. And a genie's magic may have been at work when each of these women, who had arrived in chic western clothing exchanged it for the rich, jeweled, fairy-tale garb of her native land.

Mrs. M. Dey Ould Sidi Baba, wife of the ambassador from Morocco and permanent representative to the United Nations, was gowned in a jeweled caftan. Worn in Morocco for formal occasions, dinner parties or at home in the evenings, the costume was of black velvet beaded in silver and gold in the shape of a flower and centered with precious stones. Hand embroidery in pure silver and gold thread trimmed the front and edged the sleeves. Every woman in the room mentally relegated her own at-home wardrobe to fashion's limbo.

Mrs. Said Basrawi, wife of the consul general of Saudi Arabia and delegate to the Saudi Arabian delegation to the United Nations, looked like a princess. Insaif Basrawi, whose first name means "justice" in Arabic, wore a breath-taking shade of Burgundy red silk encrusted with beaded designs. Embroidered in heavy gold and silver in a wide band, the full tentlike sleeves also serve as a head covering. This "tobe" is worn by upper-class, pampered ladies. At times they wear modern designer clothes under the tobe.

Two "Druze" costumes were interesting. ("Druze" denotes a secret religion known only to initiated members of the Druze sect.) One was worn by Mrs. Alaf Hanoun of Lebanon and the other by Mrs. Rafic Jouejati, wife of the counselor of the Syrian Arab Republic. Mrs. Jouejati's costume was Druze from the southern province of Syria, called the Mountain of the Arab.

From the torboosh on top of her head gold coins fell to her forehead, extending around her neck to show that the more gold "she" wears the more she is thought of by her fiancé. The dress had a voluminous skirt and featured a "Mamlouk"—an apronlike wisp of sheer fabric to protect the dress.

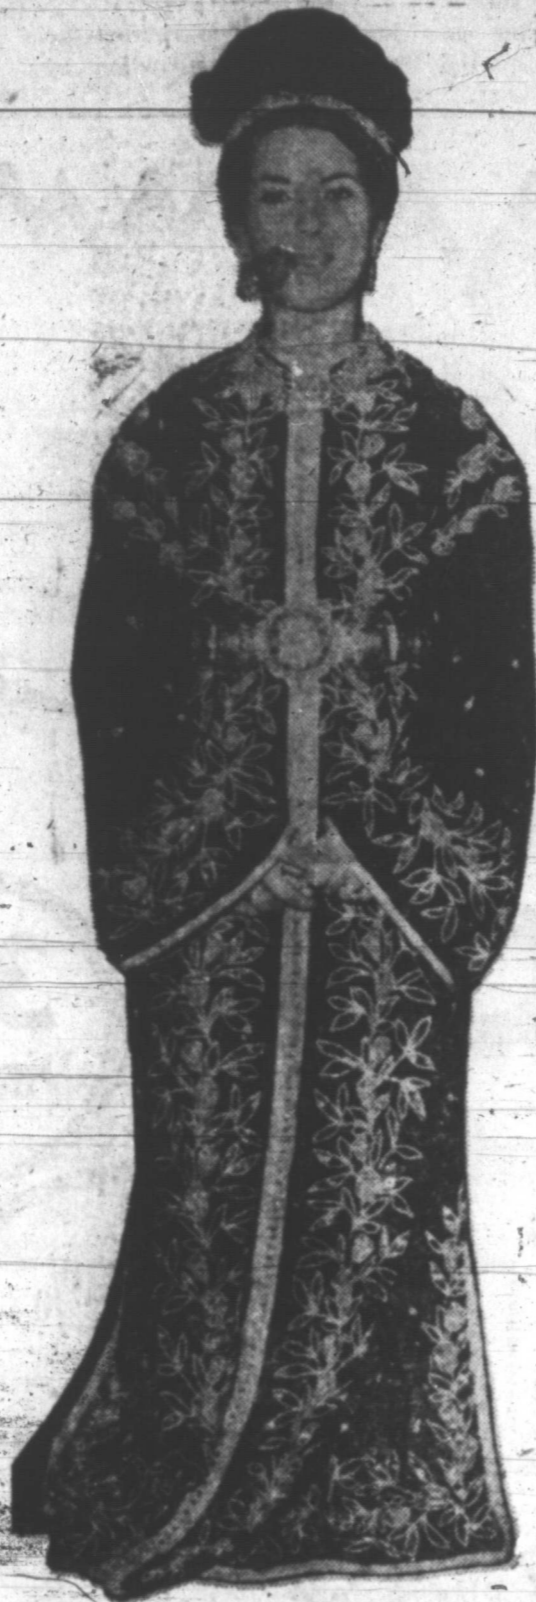

Mrs. Hanoum's Lebanese Druze costume was one worn before the turn of the last century. Snug-fitting blue brocade trousers and a tuniclike coat closed in the front to the waist and left open from there. Her red shoes were denoted with gold coins.

The ohs and ahs from the audience had become a constant chant as the diaphanous, silken and brocade treasures were paraded before us. There's nothing like gold, silver, jewels and silks to tug at a girl's heartstrings.

Mrs. Rashid Al-Rashid, wife of the ambassador of Kuwait (all that oil, you know) and permanent representative to the U.N., wore an outer garment of sheer ormanza edged with wide bands of beads, sequins and silver and gold. The folds of one sleeve of the voluminous costume were designed as a veil to cover the face and show the eyes seductively. But holding up an arm whenever you want to be sexy might become tiresome.

Mrs. Rashad Mourad, wife of the ambassador and head of the Arab State delegation in N.Y. from the U.A.R., wore a modern version of the old Pharaonic motif, the lotus flower, on a gold tissue silk garment. The headdress, shaped like a serpent head, is a copy of the one worn by Cleopatra.

The ladies came in dazzling array—Miss Arsnadel Hilmy, daughter of Ambassador Amin Hilmy II of the United Arab Republic, was a smiling paragon of fashion goodies in her black and gold costume. And Mrs. Mona Shaker, daughter of Mohammed Award Al-Kony,

MRS. M. Ould Sidi Baba, wife of the ambassador of Morocco, is gowned in a jeweled caftan of lustrous black velvet, beaded in silver, gold and precious stones. It is also hand-embroidered in silver and gold thread.

OVERHANGING chandelier lights from a crown for Mrs. Said Basrawi, wife of the consul general of Saudi Arabia, as she models an exquisite Burgundy silk and gold costume.

M. I. S. Arshmodel Hilmy, daughter of Ambassador Hilmy, Deputy Representative of the United Arab Republic, models a dress worn by the young peasant brides of Modern Upper Egypt after the Pharaoh's time.

Ironing spots and stains frequently will set them in the material.

Fasten a paper bag to your sewing machine. It makes a good disposable container for sewing scraps.

Cook artichokes in boiling salted water to which you've added some lemon juice or vinegar to preserve the 'chokes color and a little oil to make the leaves glossy. For 4 artichokes use 2 tablespoons of lemon juice and a tablespoon of oil.

Two tablespoons of finely chopped pimiento and 1 tablespoon of anchovy paste stirred into a cup of dairy sour cream makes a delicious dip for hot or cold artichokes.

Nation's Girl-Watchers Due Surprise In American Spring, Summer Fashions

By PATRICIA McCORMICK, United Press International
NEW YORK (UPI)—Designing types who call the fashion tune for American women have spring and summer surprises in store for the nation's girl-watchers.

Unveiling their newest during 11 days of shows for the nation's fashion scribes in New York, pace-setting designers proved that they haven't forgotten the old-time appeal of anatomy accenting clothes.

The fashion event, sponsored this week by the New York Couture Business Council and women good during spring and summer. Dresses and coats have belts, sometimes two—including half belts, belts through broad loops, belts at the hem and belts bosom high. Stoles and scarfs, meanwhile, also are very much a part of the upcoming fashion scene. You will see for yourself as many of the clothes will be in stores later this month.

Hair pieces make the headiest fashion news. Models wore falls, little hair piece and some huge ones done up in waist length pigtails. The fun season for hair via hair piece trickery definitely reaches maturity this season.

Enter, too, the sleeveless coat and the short-sleeved coat. Designers also are strong on the dress with its matching jacket or coat.

Typical of these was one in the Jeunesse collection. The middle of the sleeveless black dress featured horizontal strips of pink, white and black all around. The jacket, short, repeated the striped effect.

But the costume, like so many, geared for the split level life many women lead. With jacket, the outfit is good for business or a committee meeting.

Without jacket, plus a change of jewelry and gloves, the dress is ready for a cocktail party or a dinner in a place where the lights are low.

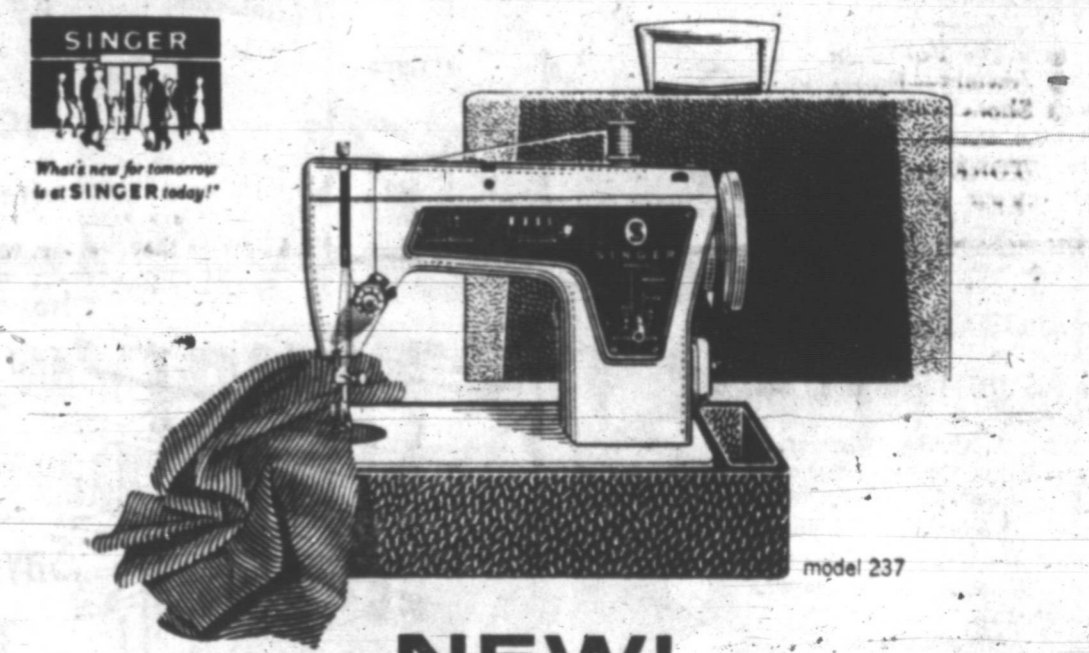

Colors for the new season tend to the clear, paint-box tones. Prints and patterns are so loud, meanwhile, they almost can be heard.

Alumnae of Alpha Delta Pi Entertain At Holiday Coffee

Alumnae of Alpha Delta Pi entertained with their annual holiday coffee recently in the home of Mrs. Fred Neslage with Miss Judy Neslage as co-hostess. Active guests and mothers were honored guests.

Refreshments were served from a table covered with a white net cloth trimmed in gold and centered with an arrangement of red carnations.

Those enjoying the event included Miss Martha Patillo, Mrs. J. C. Patillo, Miss Kathy Larsen, Mrs. Glen Larsen, Mrs. Ron Graves, Mrs. A. J. Carubbi, Mrs. David Holt, Mrs. A. W. Skewes, Mrs. Hugh D. Barton, Mrs. C. C. Fitzgerald, Miss Sheila Conlin, Mrs. John R. Conlin, Mrs. Joe Dicosimo, Mrs. J. Foster Elder, Mrs. Frank Shaeffer, Mrs. Bruce Pratt and Misses Marion and Patsy Neslage.

Furniture Polish Threatens Tots

CHICAGO, Ill. — One of the most dangerous substances in your home—to toddlers—is also one of the most innocent-seeming: Furniture polish. Two radiologists, Drs. John P. Jimenez and Richard G. Lester, reported recently that all liquids imbibed by young children—liquids such as kerosene, lighter fluid, turpentine, and insecticide—furniture polish causes the most severe lung damage.

Reporting their findings in the "American Journal of Roentgenology, Radium Therapy and Nuclear Medicine," the doctors noted that because of the furniture polish's low viscosity (the molecules do not stick together, making flow easy) and low surface tension, it moves quickly from the digestive tract through the blood to the lungs.

A new year lies ahead of us with resolutions made which may or may not be kept. No doubt, many resolutions revolve around the use of time, since time is what we want most but use worst.

Life moves by so fast that many times we don't pause to enjoy it to the fullest, to take time to look at and to know each other, to appreciate the rain and wind as well as the sunshine. A stupendous Creation surrounds us—infinite form, infinite variety, infinite beauty. The more intense our awareness of this vast complexity, the more alive we are.

We must not let our senses grow dim or our minds dull and unresponsive to the miracles that surround us. Our resolution for the new year should be to open our eyes and our hearts to this fulfillment of Life.

The beginning of a new year could be compared to Daniel Webster's thoughts on the morning.

"The morning itself, few inhabitants of cities know anything about. Among all our good people, not one in a thousand sees the sun rise once in a year. They know nothing of the morning. Their idea of it is that it is that part of the day which comes long after a cup of coffee and a piece of toast. With them, morning is not a new issuing of light, a new bursting forth of the sun, a new waking-up of all that has life from a sort of temporary death, to behold again the works of God, the heavens and the earth; it is only a part of the domestic day, belonging to reading the newspapers, answering notes, sending the children to school, and giving orders for dinner. The first streak of light, the earliest purpling of the east, which the lark springs up to greet, and the deeper and deeper coloring into orange and red, till at length the 'glorious sun is seen, regent of the day'—this they never enjoy, for they never see it.

"I never thought, that Adam had much the advantage of us from having seen the world while it was new. The manifestations of the power of God, like his mercies, are new every morning and fresh every moment. We see as fine risings of the sun as ever Adam saw; and its risings are as such a miracle now as they were in his day —and, I think, a good deal more, because it is now a part of the miracle, that for thousands and thousands of years he has come to his appointed time, without the variation of a millionth part of a second. I know the morning—I am acquainted with it, and I love it. I love it fresh and sweet as it is—a daily new-creation, breaking forth and calling all that have life and breath and being to a new adoration, new enjoyment, and new gratitude."

LONG DISTANCE RATES NOW REDUCED

on most station-to-station calls within Texas

ON January 1, long distance rates were reduced on most station-to-station Long Distance calls within Texas.

The reductions, which apply on most calls of more than 56 miles, vary from 5 to 15 cents for three minutes, depending on the distance. Reductions are even greater for calls over three minutes.

Users Help Make Cuts Possible

In addition, all station-to-station calls within the State of Texas which are made after 8 p.m. and all day Sunday get the lowest night rate—a maximum charge of 80 cents, plus tax, for three minutes to any point in Texas. In the past, only station-to-station calls which were prepaid (charged to the number placing the call) and credit card calls got this low rate.

Much of the credit for making possible these reductions in Long Distance rates goes to telephone users themselves. The cooperation of customers in placing calls by number, using area codes, and taking advantage of Direct Distance Dialing where it is available has helped to make possible the operating economies that led to the reductions.

Tenth Reduction Since World War II

This is the 10th reduction in Long Distance rates for Texas telephone users since the end of World War II. In this time when almost all prices are going up, we are glad to be able to reduce the cost of telephone service and bring these savings to our Texas customers.

Telephone service in Texas is a bigger bargain than ever before.

Tascosa Keeps 3-4A Lead

Area Teams Eye Cage Tournament In Canadian

By RON CROSS Sports Editor
Frustrated would be a good word for the Pampa Harvesters today. That's what they were last night against Tascosa.

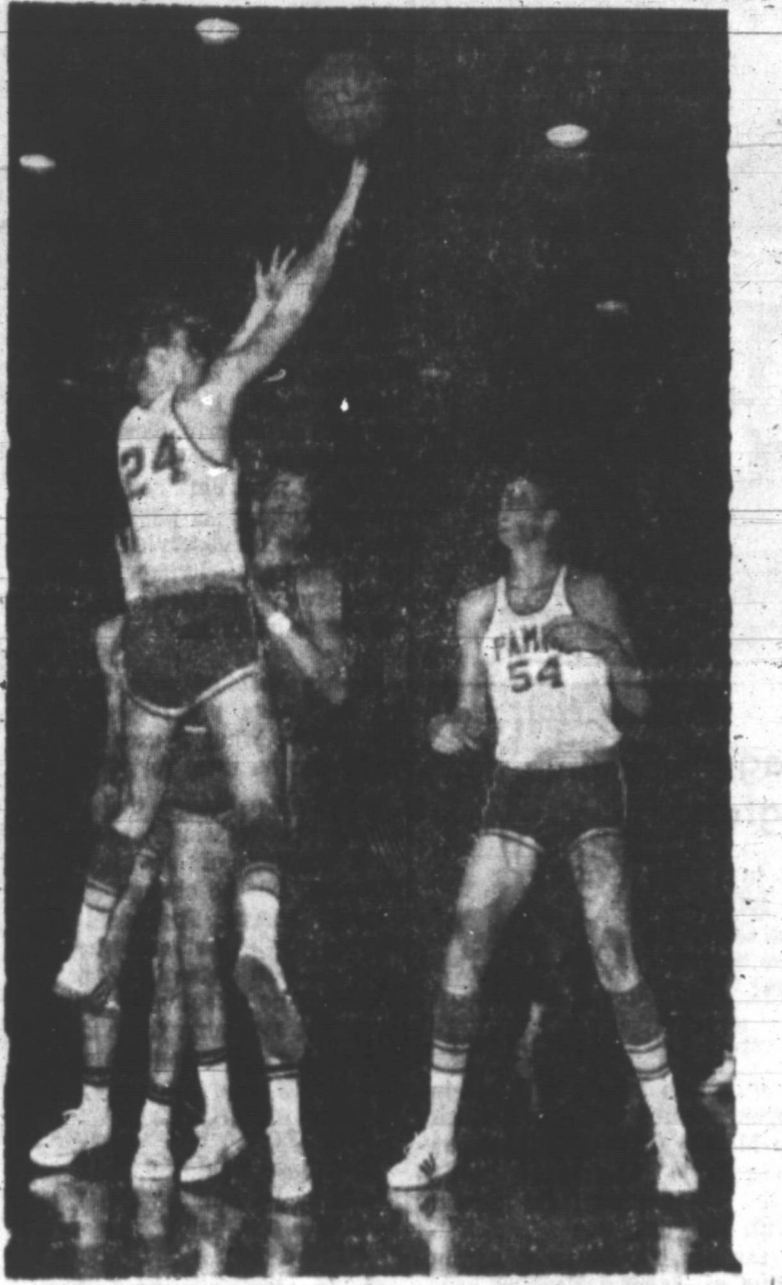

abundance Tuesday when the Tascosa Rebels kept a tight hold on first place in the district 3-4A chase with an easy, 59-49 victory over the Harvesters.

Amarillo stayed in second with a 53-52 decision over Lubbock. Monterey and Pampa dropped to third with a 4-2 mark. The Sandies are 5-1.

Pampa led only twice against the senior-laden Rebels and never forged in front after the first period.

Duke Rolls On Despite Players Being Suspended

United Press International
Bob Verga represents a majority of one at Duke. Verga, the sharp-shooting senior guard, was singled out before Tuesday night's game against Penn State by the process of elimination and then proceeded to further distinguish himself by scoring 38 points in the Blue Devils' 89-84 victory.

The Rebels kept atop the league standings in first half play with a perfect 6-0 mark, while the Harvesters were 1-5.

The Harvesters hit 43 per cent from the field but the Rebels were even better canning 51 per cent of their field goal tries.

The Rebels jumped to a nine point lead, 26-17 with 5:25 to go in the half and led by 10 at 29-19 with three minutes to go.

The third quarter wasn't much better although senior Steve Williams pulled the Harvesters to within three, 37-34 with 5:13 left in the period.

The Tascosa stall kept working in the final period, forcing Pampa mistakes and the Rebels built up 10-point margins several times and led 49-39 with 4:35 left and 52-41, their biggest lead with 1:54 to go.

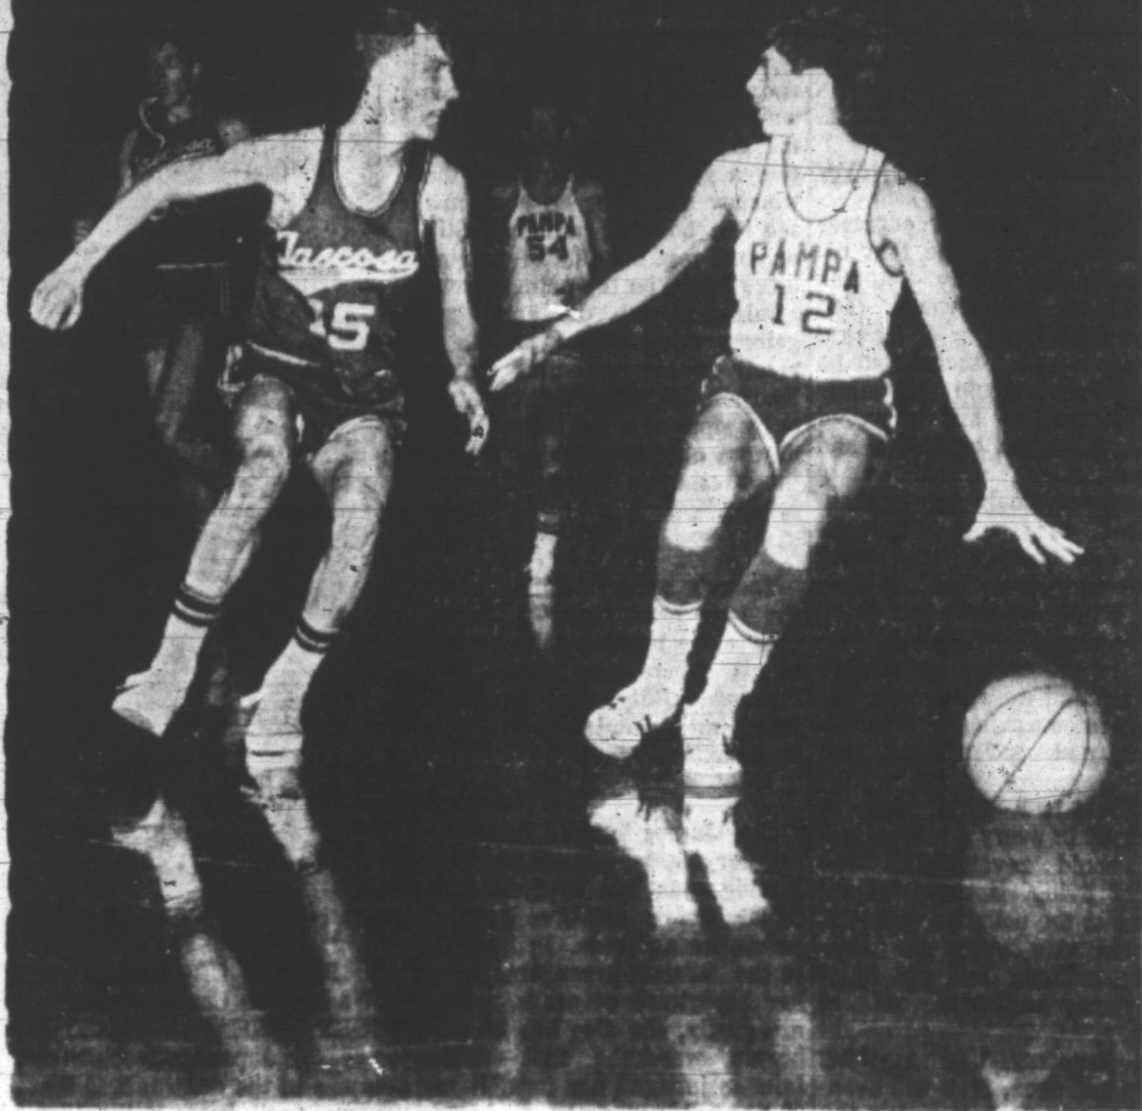

Pat Estes was a thorn in the Harvesters side all night and ended up leading all scorers with 24 points, 18 coming in the first half when he didn't have Williams guarding him.

Bo Lang paced Pampa scoring with 16 points. Williams added 14 and leading scorer George Bailey had his poorest night of the season and tallied on 11 points.

The Pampa Shockers won their 13th game in 14 outings, 56-51. The Harvesters go back into district action Friday night when they meet Lubbock's Westeners in a 7 p.m. contest in Lubbock Coliseum.

IN RUNNER-UP BOWL

Colts Tackle Eagles

BALTIMORE (UPI) — When the Colts meet the Philadelphia Eagles in the Playoff Bowl at Miami Sunday it probably will be the last time many will appear in Baltimore uniforms.

In the last three years the Colts have won a Western Division championship and finished second twice, but the margin between first and second has been increasing and the handwriting on the wall is clear.

The great Baltimore Colt team of the past may now be too old to win titles and the proud Colts will settle for nothing less.

Johnny Unitas will play a couple more seasons but Gary Cuozzo, who has been standing in the wings, can't wait any longer and may get his wish to be traded.

Lenny Moore is at the end of a brilliant career and during the season did nothing more than return kickoffs. Jimmy Orr and Raymond Berry, who used to leave defensive backs talking to themselves, are finding difficulties in outrunning defenders.

The Colts must make changes and they have already begun. Alabama star receiver, Ray Perkins, was signed by the Colts and he will replace either Berry or Orr.

Instead the Colts need a running back and at least one good offensive lineman. A trade may be developed along this line, if it hasn't already.

Several years ago a great football team was assembled in Baltimore but the city's glory days will be over unless that team is now broken up and new faces added.

Fabled Hawks Up for Auction

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—The St. Louis Hawks, once the nemesis of the National Basketball Association's Western Division behind the front line of Bob Pettit, Clyde Lovellette and Cliff Hagen, Tuesday were put on the auction block.

At a press conference at which the club's only stockholder—owner Ben Kerner—was absent, Attorney Michael Aubuchon told newsmen the club was "for sale to local interests or otherwise," despite the fact the Hawks showed a $243,925 profit last season.

Kerner, who brought the club here from Milwaukee 12 years ago, molded the team into the Western Division's most successful team, winning five division titles—more than any other Western Division club—and finishing second four times.

In 1958 the Hawks, won their only NBA playoff title, defeating the Boston Celtics in seven games.

Aubuchon said Kerner's health was a factor in his decision to sell.

Mr. Kerner has an arthritic condition which prevents him from devoting full time to the operation of the club," Aubuchon said.

Another element is Mr. Kerner's unique position in the realm of professional sports... he is the only individual owner or operator in the National Basketball Association—and probably the only one in all major league professional sports," Aubuchon added.

The operation of an NBA team now demands "more than the attention of just one man," he said.

Speculation that the Hawks would leave St. Louis has been circulating for the past two years here. However, Aubuchon said there are "no definite plans of relocation."

But he added that if "the people of St. Louis are interested in the Hawks, now is the time."

The team made almost $244,000 last season and a comparable profit is expected this season," Aubuchon said.

However, next season the Hawks will face competition from the National Hockey League's new franchise here, the St. Louis Blues, and professional soccer for St. Louis appears to be just around the corner.

MAYOR'S TROPHY
NEW YORK (UPI)—The fifth annual Mayor's Trophy game between the New York Mets and the New York Yankees will be played Wednesday night, July 12, at Yankee Stadium, it was announced Tuesday.

All proceeds from the game, played the night after the major league All Star game at Anaheim, Calif., will be divided between the two clubs' charitable foundations, which benefit sandlot baseball.

The 23-year-old Wolverine star scored 27 points in 11 games this season.

TODAY'S ATHLETES

Getting Bigger All the Time

By BUD WILKINSON
A friend of mine said recently that it's easy for him to understand that football players are getting bigger all the time. "So are the spectators," he pointed out.

This is true. Medical science tells us that Americans, with each generation, are becoming taller and heavier. Too many, of course, who watch too much and exercise too little are carrying much more weight than the normal evolutionary process would produce.

This is one of the curses of the best-fed society in history. Obesity is a major medical problem. But this society also has blessed us with the greatest athletes in history. They are bigger, and very few of them are obese. They also are stronger, faster, better coordinated and have quicker reactions.

Although athletes today are naturally bigger to begin with, this total development is not solely the happenstance of heredity. It is also the result of better coaching, more and better competition, better diet and vastly improved training methods.

Athletes have more self-confidence, too, and a greater will to win. They most likely are born with this, but the intense competition they are subjected to nurtures these qualities and brings them to full bloom. It is small wonder that such a disproportionate number of athletes go on to assume roles of leadership in every walk of life.

Obviously, size alone — with which nature generously endows so many young men today — is not enough. The refinement of the good athlete demands training. This may begin as early as grade school in regular health and physical education classes. There, young students begin to learn the values of proper diet and rest, and the importance of caring for their health. Through vigorous physical activity and organized team sports, they start to develop the muscle tone, coordination and competitive spirit that all of us desire all of our lives.

British Racing Driver Killed In Crash Today
CONISTON, England (UPI) — British racer Don Campbell who set world records both on land and water was killed today when his jet-powered boat Bluebird crashed in an attempt to set another speed mark.

Campbell was running the Bluebird at an estimated 300 miles per hour when it slipped through the air, exploded and sank at Lake Coniston where several of his records were set.

The pipe-smoking daredevil was strapped into the cockpit of the craft. His shoes, helmet and oxygen mask later floated to the surface.

"There is no hope," said frogmen who dove to recover the body.

Where Nature Leads, Man Will Follow

Engineers talk about "lead time" — the weeks or months needed to get an idea from drawing board to production line, from mind into metal.

In nature, "lead time" is reckoned in the hundreds of millions of years — the time it has taken for evolution to fashion all the varied and specialized forms of life that fill the world.

Engineers are beginning to realize that any animal that has survived evolution's slow but certain lead time must be pretty well-designed for the particular niche in nature it occupies. In fact, a young branch of science called "biometrics" is the study of how nature has solved certain engineering problems.

For instance, a German engineer who spent a vacation watching tuna fish has concluded that current aircraft design "is running grossly contrary to (what) nature has developed as optimum." By building the same length of fuselage in tuna shape instead of a long cylinder, it would be possible to triple the passenger capacity of a jet liner, he says.

Have I Made Myself Clear?

Words — they're wonderful. Used by experts, they can come out so simply, so clearly, so articulately that their meaning is unmistakable.

Used by others just as expert, they can be so vague, so obtuse, so circuitous that they successfully fuzzle up whatever meaning the genius who used them might have had to convey if he hadn't used them instead of words which would have tipped off his audience to what he was really saying.

This art of frank and honest double-talk is at its best with public officials and others who have frequent occasion to wiggle off a hot spot.

A fair example of how a real pro can handle a sticky situation like this wash offered recently when Treasury Secretary Henry H. Fowler addressed the U.S. Savings and Loan League in New York.

Fowler was letting his audience in on the goals of U.S. fiscal policy in 1967. And he gave it to them straight and hard — no punches pulled, when he said: "Although specific measures can help achieve these results, the most fruitful approach would seem to be to shift the mix of policy so as to permit some easing of monetary policy."

Juvenile Crime Solution

"Only the soaring ascent of governmental spending is comparable to the nation's rising crime rate," is the comment of the Daily Oklahoman of Oklahoma City. The editor was commenting on the FBI's uniform crime reports which show a 10 per cent increase in crime during the first nine months of this year. "Like governmental spending, the increase in crime is made from a level that was an earlier record-breaker itself," said the Oklahoman.

A great deal of the rising incidence of crime "is the increasing involvement of young people, since they account for a disproportionate share," we are told.

"A circumstance often mentioned in this connection is the influence that enforced idleness is having on the upsurge of youthful crime. It's still true that the devil finds work for idle hands to do. The laws which began with the laudable aim of protecting children from exploitation have reached the point now where it's risky to hire a young person for any kind of job."

Because of a reduced demand for common labor, the unskilled young people now are a drug on the market, says the Oklahoman. "Thus the city streets are congregating places for idle young people who often come from deprived homes and are easily swayed toward crime."

It says gainful employment is the obvious answer, but that "even when no legal obstacles occur, the jobs that are available now to uneducated youngsters are few and far between. The real challenge is to find Different people have different ways of judging Bourbon, but the owner of a Kentucky distillery tells us there are five ways that are infallible. He suggested you shake a bottle gently and watch the bubbles rise and break. The higher the proof, or alcoholic content, the richer the head and the longer it lasts. He also suggests pouring a jigger half full, then slowly swirl the glass and watch the droplets gather; the richer the whiskey the more it clings to the glass. Another method, letting a glass that contained the whiskey stand for an hour and see if a bouquet remains. Still another test consists of pouring a few drops on the palm of your hands next, rub the hands together, and finally smell. A heady aroma indicates a good bourbon. He adds that best test is by sipping it for taste. Someday we plan to make all five of those tests just to see which one is best.

Joni James tells us that staging her night club act and costuming runs into thousands of dollars before she ever appears before an audience. In addition to the musical arrangements of her repertoire of songs, which are costly, she also has an elaborate wardrobe that never fails to intrigue her fans. It includes full-length gowns of Russian ermine, Russian sable, chinchilla and French-beaded chiffon and crepe dresses. The wardrobe was created especially for her by Helen Rose, the famous designer.

Thoughts while shaving: One of the nation's airlines is building business and good will through "flub stubs." They are worth $1 and are given to any passenger who complains about dirty rest rooms, or other laxities in service. Still another airline does just about the same thing issuing coupons to complainants that are good for cocktails, golf balls, cosmetics and other things. Maybe if you complained enough you could ride free.

A parking meter manufacturer has come out with a new model that permits an overtone parker to pay his fine on the spot. An envelope attached to the parking ticket permits a violator to deposit his fine in a curbside box. Supposing he isn't guilty or the meter is broken, what happens then? Chances are he'll go before some judge and have the book thrown at him for coming into court. . . . Shopping on New York's Madison Avenue we saw a life-saving device for an automobile that should be great for a turnpike driver. WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The Great Seal of the United States was first adopted by the Continental Congress June 20, 1782, and by the federal government Sept. 16, 1789, says The World Almanac. Found on all $1 bills, it is inscribed with three Latin mottos: ANNIUIT COEPTIS, meaning He Has Favored Our Undertaking; NOVUS ORDO SECLORUM—A New Order of the Ages; and E PLURIBUS UNUM—Out of Many, One. The secretary of state is the custodian of the seal.

Close Ties Bind U.S. and Japan

By RAY CROMLEY

Washington Correspondent TOKYO (NEA) — "One major reason Japanese stock markets are in the doldrums is that traders don't know if the Vietnam war will end soon. They believe the end of the war will mean a drop in Japan's exports to the United States and jolt the Japanese economy."

This was the thought expressed to me in a long personal talk with a Japanese stock market official. It was echoed by other Japanese businessmen.

The Japan of today is not the Japan of 20 years ago. The Japan of 1966-67 is tightly tied to the U.S. political-economic system and the U.S. economy.

A boom in the United States reflects itself in a Japanese business boom. A slowdown in the United States results in a setback in Japan.

What this means to Americans is a growing export market for U.S. goods. It means increasing competition with Japan's high-grade manufacturers that will force quality up and prices down in a list of U.S. consumer products. It means a Japan, whatever the Tokyo and downs of politics in the U.S., that will have basically the same interests in Asia and worldwide as those of the United States.

The American occupation of Japan after World War II built into Japan a craving for U.S. products and U.S. industrial systems. Numerous Japanese firms have invested jointly in subsidiaries with U.S. companies. The number of these joint investments will increase. Japanese industries would like to expand this joint co-operation through the Far East and in other continents.

Japan has a large domestic market, with a population of more than 100 million. Consumer incomes are moving up at a steady pace. The standard of living and the purchasing power per family are high.

Japan has the technical ability to produce goods the American consumer will buy. Japanese industry now has the know-how to turn out high-quality goods — in television, radios, advanced electron automobiles and trucks, textiles, cameras and other optical lines, scientific and medical instruments, china, typewriters and office equipment, Japanese industry is looking into advanced computer and laser technology.

More Japanese manufacturers are becoming sub-contractors for American firms, producing parts to be used in a variety of U.S. machinery and equipment. This combination — the Japanese desire to buy in America, the large Japanese domestic market and the dollar earnings from increasing Japanese exports to the United States — means that Japan will be a growing market for U.S. exports.

Japan needs increasing amounts of U.S. capital equipment to continue to modernize her industry. She needs, for example, to import equipment to help build her planned national

President Host to Russia
"Bridge" to Reg Countries or Message to Soviet Leaders?

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — President Johnson is trying his own hand at building those bridges to communist countries that he has been advocating.

Brushing aside the objections of his security guards, the President personally gave red-carpet treatment to Vitaly Petrusenko, a Tass News Agency correspondent, on a tour of the LBJ Ranch, followed by a leisurely lunch at the ranch house.

Petrusenko is the first Soviet newsmen to cover the President on his home base. On this assignment the Russian spent nine days in Texas.

In this personally conducted tour of the ranch, Petrusenko accompanied the President in his car, which he drove himself. The Secret Servicemen followed in another car.

At one point, during a stop to look over some of the President's grazing cattle, he noticed that Petrusenko's clothing was covered with dust and sand. Jokingly the President brushed it off saying, "I'll bet your government never furnished you this kind of valet service."

With a grin the Russian reporter replied, "I do all right." In the Washington press corps, Petrusenko is reputed to have one of the biggest expense accounts among foreign correspondents. He dresses in expensive tailored clothes and is a regular patron of the most expensive dining places in the capital.

A LOT OF MYSTERY — The extraordinary hospitality extended to Petrusenko has given rise to much conjecture as to its real purpose — whether the President was merely going out of his way to be friendly, which seems improbable, or actually was using the occasion to convey a personal message to the Kremlin leaders.

Neither the President nor the Tass correspondent, has given the slightest hint of what took place when they were by themselves and out of earshot of the accompanying Secret Servicemen.

Also, as of this writing, nothing has been published by Tass or any Soviet paper of Petrusenko's talk with the President. However, of possible significance is the fact that immediately after Petrusenko's unique visit with the President, the Russian sought and obtained permission to fly to Mexico.

Such authorization is necessary in order to return to the U.S. Immigration sources say the State Department approved Petrusenko's trip following a telephone call from the White House.

nuclear electric power network. Japan's growing population requires increasing amounts of imported food. U.S. mechanized farms can produce rice and other agricultural and animal products at costs lower than can the Japanese farmer.

All in all, these closer ties are going to be profitable for both countries.

The Doctor Says:

By DR. WAYNE BRANDSTADT

Wide Variety of Reasons For Having Shaky Hands
Q—Could extreme nervousness, manifested by shaking of my hands, be caused by a vitamin deficiency? I am 35 and in good health otherwise.

A—The shaking may be due to anxiety, exposure to cold, extreme fatigue, excessive use of alcohol, tobacco or various drugs, poisoning with mercury, lead, manganese or bismuth, toxic goiter, low blood sugar, paralysis agitans or Parkinson's disease, multiple sclerosis and other disease of the nervous system. I have omitted congenital causes and causes affecting the aged. Vitamin deficiency would cause tremors only after it had resulted in extreme debility.

Q—My husband is 75. His hands are very shaky, especially when he eats. What treatment would you suggest?

A—In addition to the causes of tremors listed in the preceding answer is the tremor sometimes seen in elderly persons and attributable solely to age. There is no treatment for this except to keep as physically fit as possible by observing the rules of hygienic living — adequate rest, balanced diet and moderate exercise.

Q—My husband was diagnosed as having progressive bulbar palsy. What can be done for it?

A—In this disease there is a slowly progressing weakness with wasting of the involved muscles but no change in the sensory nerves. The onset usually occurs in persons who are over 40. The cause is unknown. Although no effective treatment is as yet available the National Institute of Neurological Diseases and Blindness in Bethesda, Md., is doing research on it.

Q—What would cause my hands to go numb when I am holding a pen, using a broom or steering a car?

A—In some persons with arthritis the swelling in the joints presses on the sensory nerve and causes numbness which is most noticeable when the joints are being used. Other possible causes are anemia, diseases of the circulation, Raynaud's disease of the nervous system. When the case is determined appropriate treatment can be prescribed.

Q—In its first stage could syphilis be transmitted from one man to another sleeping in the same room in separate beds?

REPUBLICAN OPPOSITION — Senate Republican Leader Everett Dirksen, III, is forecasting defeat for one of President Johnson's most important East-West "bridge building" proposals.

In phone conversations with other GOP leaders from his Florida vacation retreat, Dirksen is saying there now are enough votes in the Senate to block ratification of the U.S.-Soviet consular treaty.

This long-stalled agreement, signed early in 1966, will be submitted to the Senate later this month. It was shelved last year after FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover voiced strong disapproval of the pact, and private polls showed it had less than a 50-50 chance to obtain the required two-thirds vote of the entire Senate.

Dirksen claims his latest survey revealed that "30 Republicans and 12 Democrats are definitely opposed to this treaty." With 67 senators out of 100 needed for ratification, Dirksen points out the opposition already has nine more votes than the minimum required to block approval.

The veteran GOP leader also is indicating that other administration proposals to relax East-West trade barriers are in serious trouble.

"There is strong opposition among Republican senators to the President's proposals to increase trade with the Soviet bloc," Dirksen told one GOP leader. "I doubt they can be passed. Several members are urging me to make a 'trading with the enemy' issue out of the President's proposals."

The jailing of Buel Wortham, former Army lieutenant from Little Rock, Ark., for changing a small sum of money on the black market and taking a statue of a bear from a Leningrad hotel, isn't helping the administration in its efforts to improve East-West trade.

Representative Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the powerful Ways & Means Committee, which will consider the administration's proposals, has served notice that he will resist even holding hearings as long as Wortham is in prison. He received a three-year sentence, which has been appealed.

Would a blood test show syphilis 5 years after a suspected exposure?

A—The disease would not be transmitted in the manner described. The blood test is the most reliable means of diagnosis after the first stage is past.

PUBLIC OPINION AND THE "POVERTY WAR"

"Bold new programs" by government are usually launched with a tremendous outburst of enthusiasm and propaganda. Congressmen and voters are carried away with crusading fervor. The "good cause" is seen as so important that no one has time for criticism of details, however well-founded, or predictions of future trouble, however well justified by past experience.

So it was with the "war on poverty."

But then, as the "bold new program" goes into effect, the same old familiar evils appear. There is corruption, favoritism, nepotism, and inefficiency. There is enormous waste of the taxpayer's money. Idealism comes crashing down and we find ourselves face to face with another gigantic bureaucratic puzzle palace.

So it has been with the "war on poverty."

No one has put this disillusionment with the poverty program better than Congressman Paul Fink of New York (ADA-42) in a recent statement: "Two years ago when I voted for this anti-poverty program, I firmly believed that we had found a vehicle for improving the lot of the poor. . . . But I was wrong. . . . I have become completely disenchanted with this whole concept. . . . I am disgusted with these glamorous-sounding programs that have and will continue to produce confusion, hate, bitterness and misuse of our taxpayers' money."

Public opinion now seems to agree with Congressman Fink. The failure of the poverty program is generally recognized, yet Congress goes right on voting new billions for it. It is strange these programs must continue indefinitely even after forfeiting all public confidence.

Fire Chiefs Join To Help Shrine's Burns Institutes

CHICAGO, Ill. — Fire chiefs from 29 countries, those who know first hand the tragedy of burns wounds, have voted to help support three new Shrine Burns Institutes, according to Orville F. Rush, Imperial Potentate of the Shrine.

The 8,000-member International Association of Fire Chiefs adopted a resolution at its annual convention in Boston which will make the group a regular annual contributor to the hospital-research centers. Shrine's opened the first institute in Galveston, early in 1966; a second will begin operation in Cincinnati soon, and a third, at Boston, is under construction.

The IAFC resolution was adopted unanimously. It calls for an annual assessment to be paid by each member. Funds will then be transmitted to the Shrine's Imperial Council, which is located here.

"Our Burns Institutes are the first of their kind in the world," said Rush, titular head of the 850,000-member fraternal organization. "They were begun because highly respected members of the medical community and knowledgeable lay leaders told us that the burns field is virtually the last unexplored medical frontier."

The Shrine also operates 19 orthopedic hospitals for children in the United States, Canada and Mexico. Last year, members of the order spent $31 million to aid physically disadvantaged youngsters of all races and creeds.

An enterprising Paris salesman offers a list of car parts which friends and relatives can buy as wedding gifts. When everyone's signed up, the salesman delivers a car—and an easy payments bill to the young couple for the parts nobody contributed.

Ruby Prophesized Time Was Running Out, and It Did

DALLAS (UPI) — "My time is running out," Jack Ruby blurted to reporters gathered around him in a Dallas courtroom March 31, 1965.

"I am breathing toward my last breath," Ruby went on. "I was set and tried the moment I walked down that ramp." He meant the ramp into the basement of Dallas Police Headquarters where he killed Lee Harvey Oswald Nov. 24, 1963.

Was Ruby being prophetic or melodramatic in the courtroom in March, 1965? He looked pasty-faced and bored and during one legal debate it seemed as if he might doze off. That was the last time Ruby talked to reporters. He could not be interviewed at a later hearing in June, 1965, at which he was found sane.

Ruby's life was lived on the fringes of the underworld, although he was never a real part of it. Oswald was the only man he ever killed.

Ruby was born near 14th and Newberry Streets in Chicago in 1911. There apparently is no birth certificate recording an accurate date.

His father was Joseph Rubenstein, an immigrant ex-soldier from the Czar's army. His mother, like his father, was born in Poland. It was 1947 before he changed his surname from "Rubenstein" to "Ruby."

Ruby had seven brothers and sisters, at least four of whom took part in his defense: Earl Ruby of Detroit, Sam Ruby of Dallas, Mrs. Eva Grant of Dallas and Mrs. Eileen Kaminsky of Chicago.

His mother had a violent temper and his father was a drinker. When Ruby was 11 the Jewish Social Service Bureau referred him to the Institute for Juvenile Research in Chicago for "truancy and (being) incorrigible at home."

A psychiatric report from the institute said he was "quick tempered" and "disobedient" and recommended that he be put in a home where he could receive supervision and discipline.

Ruby lived in various foster homes and finished eighth grade at 16. He learned to defend himself with his fists in the tough Chicago neighborhoods in which he lived, "scalping" tickets and selling novelties for pocket money.

Later, 1933 to 1937, Ruby sold "tip" sheets at a racetrack and newspaper subscriptions door-to-door in San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Ruby went to New York via Chicago to sell patriotic novelties, and later of his after-working hours activities there, the Warren Report on the Kennedy assassination says:

"Ruby with several friends, frequently attempted to disrupt rallies of the German-American Bund. One acquaintance reported that Ruby was responsible for 'cracking a few heads' of Bund members."

He was drafted May 21, 1943, and after service in the Air Force at various bases in the South, was discharged in February, 1946.

Ruby came to Dallas in 1947 to help his sister Eva run a nightclub. He went into business for himself in Dallas with the Vegas and Carousel clubs, both of which featured strip tease dancers. He barely managed to stay ahead of bill collectors, even—with loans from his brothers and sisters.

He was arrested eight times by Dallas police between 1949 and Nov. 24, 1963, on charges that ranged from disturbing the peace and carrying a concealed weapon to selling liquor after hours.

Ruby never married, although he went out for almost 11 years with Mrs. Alice Reeves Nichols, a blonde divorcee two years younger than he.

Ruby was a dapper man, who took diet pills to prevent his eating too much and who constantly exercised. The Warren Report noted that Ruby may have had a practical reason for exercising; he needed to be physically fit because he acted as his own bouncer in his night clubs.

In any event, Ruby was a man not unused to violence when Oswald shot Kennedy. At the time Oswald fired the shots, Ruby was in a newspaper office taking out advertisements for his nightclubs.

The day Ruby killed Oswald, he went to a telegraph office near police headquarters to telegraph $25 to a stripteaser in Fort Worth who had not paid her rent.

From the telegraph office, he walked to city hall, where the Dallas Police Department has headquarters. Detectives were moving Oswald from city jail to county jail, down the street. It was about 11:30 a.m. CST.

Without being challenged, Ruby slipped into the basement of police headquarters through a crowd of police and reporters. As Oswald left the city jail office, handcuffed to one detective and with a second detective holding his arm, Ruby fired a .38 caliber bullet into Oswald's abdomen.

Millions of Americans saw the shooting, as it happened, on television. Enraged detectives collared Ruby and rushed him from the jail office upstairs to city jail.

Ruby's trial started Feb. 17, 1964. His lawyers—Melvin Belli, a famous "toro" specialist from San Francisco; Joe Tonahill of Jasper, Tex., and Phil Burleson of Dallas—vainly tried to get the trial moved from Dallas.

Dist. Atty. Henry Wade's star witness was Det. Sgt. P. Dean who supplied a motive and testimony about premeditation.

The jury, in two hours and 19 minutes of deliberation, rejected a defense contention that Ruby acted under the influence of an obscure mental condition called "psychomotor epilepsy," found him guilty of murder with malice and ordered him to be electrocuted.

An appeals court, on Oct. 5, 1966, granted Ruby a new trial on the grounds that Dallas was biased against Ruby, that the trial should have been moved out of Dallas and that Dean's testimony was inadmissible.

Dist. Judge Joe B. Brown, who had presided at Ruby's murder trial, was now out of the case. Dist. Judge Louis Holland, a visiting jurist from Montague County, Tex., in November, 1966, ordered a second trial held in Wichita Falls, 130 miles northwest of Dallas.

Judge Holland said the second trial probably would begin in February, 1967.

On Dec. 9, Dr. J. M. Pickard, the Dallas County health officer, ordered Ruby moved from the Dallas County jail cell he had occupied for three years to Parkland Hospital for treatment of a pain in his chest.

Physicians quickly determined that Ruby's pain in the chest was caused by cancer that had riddled his body.

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW
United Press International

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The latest national television ratings seem to verify the increasing suspicion that viewers are growing weary of imbecilic little series, and are seeking out special programs more than ever.

It is true that the pre-holiday period covered in these ratings is known for its added number of specials, but the audiences for the one-shot broadcasts were still impressive—and no one forces viewers to watch, no matter what the season.

Perhaps most impressive was the fact that even among the top regular series listed, viewers sought out the special talents — Red Skelton, Lucille Ball, the late Walt Disney, Jackie Gleason, Dean Martin, Andy Williams.

Only a relative handful of the run-of-the-mill situation comedies were well up in the statistics. In fact, most of the worst junk ground out weekly by the film factories was pretty well down in the ratings, which might make certain key network executives ponder a bit on past programming clichés. Are they behind their audiences?

As for one favored branch of "special" broadcasting—movies the ratings substantiated the continuing popularity in this area, with four of the five weekly network motion pictures finishing among the top 31 shows—a strong public endorsement.

Bonanza On Top

With "Bonanza" ranking No. 1 again, the second-rated show was a special that was also seen last season, "A Charlie Brown Christmas," based on the characters of the "Peanuts" comic strip.

Next in the rankings was a Danny Thomas special—his third annual edition of "The Wonderful World of Burlesque." And following his program in the ratings was the Frank Sinatra musical special.

Another one-shot broadcast, "Dr. Seuss' how the Grinch stole Christmas," came in sixth in the ratings. And a Bob Hope comedy special from Acapulco finished 12th.

Disenchantment with the regular series of the new season was indicated again when the highest-rated weekly freshman show, "Family Affair," came in 24th among all entries, the next highest new series, "Rat Patrol," which ranked third early in the season, finished in the 30th position this time out.

But "Mr. Magoo's Christmas Carol," a holdover special from past seasons, was No. 27; a National Geographic documentary about insects, "The Hidden World," was No. 28, and a first-run holiday outing entitled "Christmas with Lorne Green" was No. 33.

Perhaps, though, the most interesting statistics were those that indicated that quality specials—or at least those that try to be of quality—needn't finish at the very bottom of the ratings even though they may not rank at the top.

No Fluke

For example, of the 106 programs listed in the ratings, the drama "The Glass Menagerie" came in No. 60, which actually is a heartening development—and seemed to prove that the success last year of "Death of a Salesman" was no fluke.

Furthermore, a perun of "The Nutcracker," the baller with Tchaikovsky's music, was No. 63. And "The Hallmark Hall of Fame" production of "Blithe Spirit" was No. 65—and this series often in the past has finished much further down.
