Dear Abby... Teacher May Hold Key to Problem

DEAR ABBY: I have tried to solve my problem myself, but it has gone too far for me.

I have a 13-year-old son who is an only child, and my husband babies him to death. Anything Ronnie wants, Ronnie gets.

Well, Ronnie has been out of school going on the fifth week. He says he doesn't feel well and his father believes him and lets him stay home. I know Ronnie could go to school if he wanted to, because the minute the bus is gone Ronnie feels better. He spends the day watching TV, eating and fooling around.

If I try to make him go to school, his father says I am being "mean." I am not mean, Abby, I am only trying to do what's best for the boy. Can you help me?

"MEAN" MOM

DEAR MOM: Let a doctor examine Ronnie and decide whether or not he is well enough to go to school. Then go a step further and find out why Ronnie doesn't want to go to school. A conference with his teacher might be the key to the whole problem.

DEAR ABBY: I just married the greatest girl in the world but she's a terrible cook. So far I have been telling her her meals are terrific, but she is not getting any better and I do not know how much longer I can stand it.

DEAR G. E.: Tell your bride that you've been trying to be patient about her cooking but her batting average hasn't improved. A few cooking lessons—and a loving pinch (of care) in the kitchen might help.

DEAR ABBY: My question is, "How many baby showers is one person entitled to, anyway?"

I have a cousin who has had a baby every year for the past nine years and somebody in the family has promoted a baby shower for each one. The only time I ever hear from anyone in that tribe is when they want a gift for someone.

Isn't there a rule of etiquette that says you aren't supposed to give a baby shower for the same person more than three times? Let me know.

SHOWERED TO DEATH
DEAR SHOWERED: The only rule I know covering showers is that everyone who gets tapped, gets soaked.

DAR ABBY: What, in your opinion, motivates people to go into teaching?

DEAR CURIOUS: I can't generalize about what "motivates" teachers. But thank God for it.

to some martin colonies. Bird baths normally play no role in attracting martins to a yard.

"Neither will putting out bird feed; martins normally live only on flying insects. Sprinkling bits of egg shell in the yard will help, however. This is a convenient and economical way to provide the minerals that martins cannot get in their regular diet of insects."

"When one does attract martins, he will find that they are well worth whatever time and money he put into the effort."

By THELMA BRAY

Mrs. Harry Guill, 1715 Williston, has a most interesting story to tell about her experience with Purple Martins last year. She had erected a Purple Martin house which had been taken over by sparrows. When the Purple Martins arrived on Sunday, May 13 to move into their house, the sparrows objected strongly; but the Purple Martins did manage to get it. After a short time the sparrows recruited extra help and came back for the battle to determine who would inhabit the house.

Mrs. Guill says the Purple Martins left and didn't come back, but this year she plans to cover the entrance holes to the house until time for the Martins to arrive, which she says is about the middle of May in Pampa.

Mrs. Guill's experience should be profitable to others who are interested in attracting the martins. Her description of the delightful musical chatter of the Purple Martins when they arrive is something to look forward to each year.

J. T. Crouch, 516 N. Wynne, has built many bird houses and is willing to help anyone who needs some ideas on how to build the Purple Martin house. He also subscribes to a newspaper devoted to news about the martins and has said he will share his paper with anyone interested.

For those interested in the location of the martin house the following information is taken from J. L. Wade's book, "What You Should Know About the Purple Martin": One of the most important considerations in attracting martins is the location of the house; they are free-wheeling flyers, usually on the move. When they are not darting and swooping after insects, they are soaring about their houses. Birds of this type need plenty of air space around their homes.

"Ideally, the house should be —

Preacher Gets Plane With 15 Million Trading Stamps

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — An Oklahoma flying Baptist preacher turned in the equivalent of 15 million trading stamps Monday and got an airplane for use in missionary work in the jungles of Brazil.

The project started in May of 1965. Rev. J. Gerald Price, 30, of Ada, Okla., told Gold Bond Stamp Co. in Dallas he wanted a plane.

Rev. Price traded the equivalent of the stamps Monday to Duly Butler, division manager for Gold Bond and got in exchange a check for $24,310.

The check will buy a 1967 Cessna 180 lightplane. The plane has been modified to carry six passengers, equipped with

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jerome Ballan of Shearson, Hammil & Co. says that from a technical viewpoint stock prices should continue to advance, short of a limited consolidation, since investor sentiment does not seem to be losing any of its buoyancy.

But the analyst believes there is very little to justify a protracted upswing. He feels a significant advance from present levels almost demands the judgment that the nation's major economic, monetary and political difficulties—have already been discounted and that these difficulties will be substantially cleared up within a relatively short time. Based on current evidence, the analyst does not believe such a judgment is warranted.

Newton D. Zinder of E. F. Hutton & Co. says with the market having risen rapidly and strongly in the first three weeks of the year, pauses to consolidate and digest gains have to be expected. But the analyst does not see a perceptible sign that the advance has run its course.

BFUS Trying To Get World Champs To Play in U.S.

By BUD WILKINSON
Despite the fact that basketball is an American game, the world championships never have been played here. The reason is simple. The organization which represents this country in international competition has never sought the tournament. In all probability it could have had it by merely asking.

The organization which is our representative to FIBA, the International Amateur Basketball Federation, is the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States (AAU). It has maintained this position of authority ever since basketball became an international sport.

On The Sports Front
Bud Wilkinson

But its hold on the United States' seat in world basketball councils was substantially weakened four years ago. This year it could be changed even more. A new organization is making an excellent case, here and abroad, in attempting to prove it is the true representative of American basketball.

The new group is the Basketball Federation of the United States. Its members include the National Junior College Athletic Association, the National High School Federation, the YMCA, the National Basketball Coaches Association, the Women's Basketball Association, the nation's physical educators and the NCAA, representing the nation's universities and colleges.

The Federation says the strange absence of the world tourney here is only a symptom of the problem. It claims the AAU, with only a small handful of teams and coaches, virtually no facilities and only a token attempt at national and international competition, could not possibly represent basketball in this country.

time, belonged solely to the AAU. In a precedent-shattering decision, FIBA favored the Federation. It was given permission to arrange certain international events, thus breaking the domination the AAU long had held on U.S. involvement with any foreign team, here or abroad.

The result was dramatic improvement in the quality and number of our teams going abroad, and of foreign teams playing here. Particularly significant was the improvement in the caliber of U.S. teams willing to host games with foreign foes.

Recent visitors under federation sanction have included national champions from Mexico, Sweden, Australia, Yugoslavia and Japan. They've played teams like Boston College, Alabama, Wichita, Bradley, Colorado, Oklahoma, TCU, SMU, Oregon, Oregon State and Brigham Young.

In the past two seasons the Federation has sent abroad teams like Kentucky, Florida, Kentucky Wesleyan, San Jose, Michigan, St. Joseph's of Philadelphia, Brigham Young, Washington and MIT, which played in Yugoslavia.

This new activity cannot be denied, and it will be an important consideration when FIBA meets again in May in Uruguay. The Federation's temporary sanctioning privileges expire at that time. And FIBA must decide to renew them, cancel them, or perhaps name the Federation the successor to the AAU as this country's rightful basketball voice.

Any of the three courses might be taken. But this much is clear: cancelling or curtailing the Federation's privileges in any way would be a severe blow to U.S. involvement in international basketball.

And one more thing—the Federation promises to correct the oversight that has kept the world championships out of this country.

Sophomore Pivot Paces Cincinnati By Centenary

By United Press International
Cincinnati's antidote to Westley Unseld has produced unpleasant after effects in each of the Bearcats' opponents this season.

Rick Roberson, Cincinnati's 6-foot-9 sophomore whose primary task in life this season is to neutralize Louisville's great center, has made some contributions above and beyond the call of duty as the Bearcats have taken hold of the No. 8 International ratings.

Noted mainly for his defensive tenacity, Roberson staged an impressive offensive performance Tuesday night in Cincinnati's 100-76 rout of Centenary. The soph pivot connected on 12 of 19 shots from the field and nine of 13 from the foul line for a total of 33 points as the Bearcats ran their season mark to 13-3.

Roberson already has encountered Unseld once this year and held his own as Cincinnati upset Louisville 59-58 and kept alive the conference race. The Bearcats trail the Cardinals by a game in conference competition.

In that confrontation last Saturday, Roberson limited Unseld to 16 points and 14 rebounds, below his average, and collected 10 points himself. He also helped to foul Unseld out of the game with three minutes remaining. The two teams meet again in Louisville on Feb. 4.

Gordon Smith, the Bearcats' outstanding soph guard whose two jump shots in the final 39 seconds beat Louisville, missed the game with a cold. Larry Ward led Centenary, now 5-8, with 31 points.

Philly Loses At Home Finally

By United Press International
Home may never be the same again for the Philadelphia 76ers.

Philadelphia, the bully of the National Basketball Association, had established itself as the most inhospitable host in league history by roughing up its guests at a record rate.

But the proud Boston Celtics finally brought the 76ers up short Tuesday night by inflicting a 118-106 defeat on Philadelphia, its first regular season home court loss after 36 consecutive victories.

A stunned capacity crowd of 11,927 at Convention Hall saw Sam Jones score 38 points and the Celtics, completely overshadowed by the spectacular play of the 76ers this season, rally from a 93-89 deficit early in the fourth period to hand Philly only its fifth defeat in 51 games.

In other league action, Cincinnati overpowered New York behind the 37-point performance of Oscar Robertson, Detroit drubbed Chicago 108-95 as Dave Bing dropped in 32 points and Rick Barry's 35-point effort paced San Francisco to a 146-125 rout of Baltimore.

Boston's victory was its third over the 76ers and its first regular season triumph at Philadelphia since December, 1964, a span of nine games. The Celtics, however, whipped Philadelphia twice last year in the Eastern Division playoff finals. Boston, which still trails Philadelphia by nine games in the standings, went ahead to stay at 96-95 on player-coach Bill Russell's field goal with 9:05 remaining. John Havlicek contributed 23 points for the Celtics while Hal Greer scored the same number to pace the 76ers.

Robertson connected on 14 of 25 field goal attempts and paced Cincinnati on a 9-1 spur at the outset of the second half that broke the game open. Adrian Smith tallied 28 for the Royals and Jerry Lucas scored 21 points and grabbed 21 rebounds. Willis Reed led the Knicks with 21 points.

Detroit raced to a 12-point lead after 12 minutes of play and coasted to its fourth win in seven games with the Bulls. Five Pistons tallied in double figures with John Tresvant emerging as second high scorer with 18. Guy Rodgers took team honors for Chicago with 21 points.

Barry scored 19 of his points in the third quarter, as the Warriors opened a 110-91 bulge. Nate Thurmond pulled down 28 rebounds and rookie Joe Ellis hit his first eight shots and finished with 20 points as San Francisco stretched its Western Division lead to 10½ games over idle St. Louis. Gus Johnson and Kevin Loughery led the Baltimore scoring with 23 and 22 points, respectively.

Medwick, Ruffing Expected To Be Top Vote Getters

BULLETIN
NEW YORK (UPI)—Former St. Louis outfielder Joe Medwick and ex-Yankee pitcher Charles Red Ruffing failed to gain entry to baseball's Hall of Fame today by a mere seven votes necessitating a second vote by the membership of the Baseball Writers' Association of America in the next 10 days.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Joe Medwick, slugging outfielder of the St. Louis Cardinal Gas House Gang, and Red Ruffing, winner of 273 major league games, are expected to be leading vote-getters today in Hall of Fame balloting by the Baseball

Writers Association of America. Medwick, who had a .324 lifetime batting average, and Ruffing, one of the New York Yankees' all-time World Series heroes, each was named on more than 60 per cent of the ballots in 1966 but fell short of the 75 per cent required for election to the baseball shrine.

Roy Campanella, Brooklyn Dodger catcher who won three National League most Valuable Player awards; Ralph Kiner, Pittsburgh Pirate outfielder who led or tied for the NL home run lead seven times; Lou Boudreau, a star shortstop for the Cleveland Indians, and former Cardinal stars Enos Slaughter and Johnny Mize also are expected to rank high in the balloting.

A player must be out of baseball five years and must be named on 75 per cent of the writers' ballots to be elected. Players who retired before 1947 are voted on by a special Old Timers committee. There are now 106 players, managers and officials in the Hall.

At the height of his career, Medwick was considered the National League's best right-handed hitter since Rogers Hornsby. Medwick batted .319, .353, .351, .374, .322 and .332 in successive seasons from 1934 through 1938. His league-leading .374 average in 1937 has been surpassed only once since then and during his six-year peak he led the league in runs batted in and doubles three times each; in hits twice and tied for the lead in homers once.

He is one of 10 players to win the triple batting crown, achieving that honor in 1937 with his .374 average, 31 homers and 154 runs batted in.

He was traded to the Dodgers in 1940 and one of Branch Rickey's famous deals and was "beamed" early in the 1941 season. His career started downhill after the "beaming" although he had five more seasons.

National Window

By LYLE WILSON
United Press International

President Johnson's recommendations for legislation to deal with strikes which threaten irreparable damage to national interests are about 12 months overdue. The President committed himself to such legislation in his annual message to Congress a year ago. Since then from the White House: Nothing!

This situation of much promise and no action is an invitation to congressional Republicans to protect the national interest with legislation to deal with unbearable strikes. LBJ did not mention legislation of that kind in his annual message to Congress a fortnight ago. There were other notable omissions in that message.

The President did not repeat last year's request that Congress repeal Section 14-b of the Taft-Hartley Act. The mood of the new 90th Congress is not friendly to repeal, and that may have been Johnson's reason for ducking that issue in his annual message.

He can reverse the field at any time, of course, by means of a special message. There will be organized labor pressure for repeal.

The National Right to Work Committee, with headquarters in Washington, D.C., contributed much last session to the process of educating the voters on the meaning of Section 14-B. The committee is satisfied now that there is no early possibility of repeal. In that confidence, the committee has developed a positive program of its own, four proposals for federal laws to limit compulsory unionism in all of the states.

No. 1 of the four and the proposal likely to be most controversial would deprive compulsory labor organizations of their exemption from income tax. Voluntary unions would retain the exemption.

Labor unions are forbidden by the corrupt practices act from spending for political purposes. Lenient courts have determined however, that when a union spends to elect or to defeat a political candidate, the expenditure is educational, not political. The unions enjoy a protected position.

Coveted Rank Awarded Scouts

The coveted rank of Eagle Scout was awarded two members of Boy Scout Troop 14 in a special court of honor held Tuesday evening in the First Presbyterian Church.

Jay Loshier, age 14, and Tom Neslage, also 14, were conferred the rank of Eagle Scout in an impressive ceremony conducted by Rev. Don Hauck, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, sponsor of Troop 14.

Jay, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Loshier, 1821 Fir, is a ninth grade student at Robert L. Lee Junior High School. He is an instructor in Troop 14 and has received the God and Country Award and Order of Arrow membership.

Tom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred

Neslage, 2005 Charles, is the fifth son in the Neslage family to attain the rank of Eagle Scout. A ninth grade student at Robert A. Lee Junior High, Tom is assistant senior patrol leader for Troop 14 and is a candidate for the Order of Arrow.

The other four Neslage sons, who had previously attained the rank of Eagle Scout are Fred J. Jr., 26, stationed with the Army in Lafayette, La.; William E., 24, of Amarillo; Robert L., 22, studying for a Masters' degree at West Texas State University, Canyon, and John Edward, 20, student at Texas Technological College, Lubbock.

Two other sons are coming up through the scouting ranks on their way to becoming Eagles:

Richard Terrence, 10, who has just finished cub scouting and will go into Boy Scouting in May; and James Timothy, 8, who has just started out in cub scouts.

Two daughters of the Neslages, Judy and Marion, have attained the highest honor in Girl Scouts — that of the curved bar.

Jay and Tom qualified for the award based on merit badges earned, leadership in troop, school and extra-curricular activities, and character.

Rev. Hauck, in charging the new Eagles with the responsibility of the rank said, "The first responsibility of an Eagle is to live with honor, a foundation of all character. Character is what one really is down deep inside, not what someone thinks one is."

Other characteristics listed by Rev. Hauck included loyalty, courage, and leadership.

Steve Odom, Adobe Walls Council scout executive, continued the charge of responsibility with "Your position is one of honor and responsibility. Build America on the solid foundations of clean living, honest work, unselfish citizenship and reverence for God, and whatever others may do, you will leave behind you a record of which every scout may be justly proud."

Other adult scout leaders participating in the ceremony included Warren Fatheree, chairman of the Santa Fe District; Voris Johnston, Troop 14 committeeman; Joe Daniel III, Eagle Scout; Bill Gething, assistant Troop 14 scoutmaster, and Tom Neslage, assistant senior patrol leader.

Following the court of honor in the church, the group adjourned to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Don Loshier, where a miniature Eagle Scout pin was presented to Mrs. Loshier, who was unable to attend the court of honor ceremony.

A FAMILY AFFAIR — Boy Scouting is a family affair since it takes the cooperative efforts of all its members to successfully bring a boy from Cub Scouting to the highest rank a Boy Scout can attain. At a special court of honor Monday evening in the First Presbyterian Church, upper photo, Tom Neslage, with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Neslage, was awarded the rank of Eagle Scout. Lower photo, later in the evening, a special ceremony was held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Don Loshier, 1821 Fir, at which time Mrs. Loshier received a miniature Eagle Scout pin from her son, Jay.

Learning to spell usually requires a carefully planned program. Although some students seem to have a natural ability to spell, most need an organized method for studying.

There are various plans which can be used. Most all are based upon a series of steps which should be taken in order to learn how to spell a word. The following ten steps can be used as a sample procedure:

1. Look at the word
 2. Say the word aloud
 3. Write the word correctly in a sentence
 4. Look at the word
 5. Say the word aloud by syllables
 6. Spell the word aloud looking at it
 7. Close the eyes and spell the word aloud
 8. Check the way the word was spelled
 9. Write the word and check the spelling
 10. Cover the word and write it several times, checking the spelling each time
- If a mistake is made you should go back and repeat the earlier steps. Remember that variations of this plan are perfectly acceptable. However, reducing the steps should only be done when the results are still successful.
- Many times similar organized systems are suggested by the teacher or the textbook which your child uses in school. If such a system is suggested, it is advisable to use it so as not to confuse your child.
- A quick look at the various steps of any system should show the use of the eyes, ears and hands. These are the three major ways in which children can learn. Some children learn better by seeing while others learn — best by hearing — or touching. The use of all three methods is advisable since each will usually add support to the others.

Another important part of learning to spell particular words is the continued use of these words. It is not enough to learn to spell a word regardless of what system is used. It is necessary to use the word regularly in writing and speaking or very likely it will be forgotten.

For this reason it is a good idea to review the words periodically. Parents can help in this procedure in a number of ways. First, they should provide the opportunity for children to use the words. This might be in writing letters, notes or stories. There are also many games which involve spelling.

Reading is probably a useful means by which children can become acquainted with new words and review old ones. The more ways in which students become familiar with words, the better their chances of learning to spell them.

Minnesota Firm Now In Control Of Trans-Texas

HOUSTON (UPI)—Minnesota Enterprises, Inc., a Minneapolis holding firm, bought controlling interest in Trans-Texas Airways Inc. for $10 million Monday.

Minnesota Enterprises and TTA, with headquarters in Houston, announced the transaction simultaneously.

The Minnesota firm bought 400,000 of 731,000 shares of common stock. The price was $25 per share, which is about the same as the current price.

The 400,000 shares included all the holding of TTA board chairman R. Earl McKaughan and most of the stock held by members of his family. It does not include the 20,000 shares owned by his son, R. E. McKaughan Jr.

The elder McKaughan will remain as chairman of the board and the younger McKaughan will continue in the presidency. The sale was effective April 6, contingent on approval by the Civil Aeronautics Board.

TTA serves Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana, Tennessee, Mississippi, New Mexico and Monterrey, Tampico and Veracruz, Mexico. It was founded in 1947 and has 2,000 employees and 44 aircraft.
