

V.C. Ambush Paratroops

SAIGON (UPI)—A company of U.S. paratroopers was ambushed by Viet Cong and suffered perhaps the heaviest casualties sustained in a cease-fire attack, military officials said today.

U.S. spokesmen said about 200 men of the 173 Airborne Brigade were attacked Wednesday by a smaller but firmly entrenched Communist force which struck with a barrage of some 100 grenades, claymore mines and countless volleys of small arms fire.

Spokesmen said the Americans took "moderate" casualties in the four-hour battle

Johnson Wishes Vietnam Truce Could Extend

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson has expressed the "wish" that the four-day Vietnam truce could be extended, but he left unclear just what terms the United States would attach to any extension.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk was expected to discuss this at a 3 p.m. CST news conference today.

Johnson's statement came in reply to a new appeal from Pope Paul VI that the current four-day truce be extended to pave the way for possible peace talks.

The President did not, in so many words, propose an extension of the truce or accept the seven-day cease-fire the Communists have been talking about in his message to the pontiff Wednesday night.

"I devoutly share your wish that the suspension of hostilities over the (Buddhist) lunar new year may be extended," he told the Pope, "and may open the way to negotiations for a just and stable peace."

He said the United States and South Vietnam, "together with others, are devoting extensive efforts to this end." The Chief Executive did not spell out these efforts.

The Viet Cong has declared it will observe a seven-day cease-fire. South Vietnam, the United States and their allies said Jan. 17 that they would observe a four-day truce, but were willing to talk to North Vietnam about extending to "seven days or longer on a properly agreed and supervised basis."

Bobby Urges Formation Of China Policy

CHICAGO (UPI)—Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y. Wednesday night urged the formation of a definite policy toward China instead of reacting to mainland Chinese actions "with unremitting hostility."

Kennedy spoke to the University of Chicago's China conference and criticized the U.S. for failing to formulate an effective policy toward China based on understanding particularly in "this a time of unique opportunity" brought about by China's internal problems.

"We have striven to isolate China from the world and treated it with unremitting hostility," he told his audience of 400-500 young persons.

"That, however, is not a policy. It is an attitude founded upon fear and passion and wishful hopes," he said.

"Ever since the Korean war, the American public has heard estimates of China's aggressive potential that were often widely exaggerated."

Kennedy said while China could not be ignored as simply a paper tiger, "we will never have a sound policy, if we assess Chinese power in anything but unrealistic terms."

"We should not, in order to arouse others to a real threat, exaggerate that threat to a point where our statements are simply not credible to those we wish to influence." He cited what he called inflated population claims and forecasts of military might in what is "after all, a poor nation."

meaning deaths or wounds were numerous but not drastic enough to destroy the effectiveness of the company. The paratroopers operating in War Zone D fought back with small arms and grenades and finally forced the communists back with artillery and air support.

The attack was but one of scores—86 by count—during the first 30 hours of the Asian New Year (Tet) cease-fire. The toll was possibly the worst of not only the current truce, but earlier holiday cease-fires.

In another incident today, spokesmen said U.S. 1st Air Cavalry troops at a coastal airbase were hit by a 17-minute barrage of Communist grenades and heavy automatic weapons fire.

Spokesmen reported meanwhile that U.S. battle casualties in six years of Vietnam fighting have officially topped the 50,000 mark—59,529, including 8,790 dead and 41,739 wounded. A total of 503 Americans now are listed as missing in action.

The toll last week included 117 GIs killed, 920 wounded and 12 captured by Communists or missing in action, spokesmen said. It was estimated also that U.S. manpower in Vietnam was now at 410,000 men.

On the other side of the war, spokesmen reported today that three Vietnamese Red Cross workers and a hospital patient were released Wednesday night by the Viet Cong. They had been missing since Feb. 3.

Spokesmen said the four were en route from a German hospital ship in Saigon to Long Thanh when they took a wrong turn in a road. The Viet Cong captured them. Authorities said the three workers—carrying their patient in a litter—were found walking on a road 30 miles southeast of Saigon.

Satellite Goes Into Orbit Around Moon

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)—America's camera-carrying Lunar Orbiter 3 circled the moon every 3 hours and 35 minutes today in the next-to-last stage of its mission to photograph potential landing sites for Apollo astronauts.

Scientists at Caltech's Jet Propulsion Laboratory placed the 820-pound satellite into an elliptical orbit Wednesday by firing its retrorocket for 9 minutes, 1 second, slowing the moon probe's 4,300 mile-an-hour speed by 704 meters per second.

A JPL spokesman said the vehicle moved smoothly into orbit with a low point of 131 miles and a high point of 1,118.

"We're in good shape," he said, after examining preliminary data on the deboost, or slowing maneuver.

On Feb. 15, Orbiter's retrorocket again will be fired to bring it to within 28 miles of the lunar surface, at its low point. During the next eight days it will snap 312 photographs of possible landing sites in the moon's Sea of Tranquility, Ocean of Storms, and Sinus Medii.

Kosygin Backs Scrapping Of All Nuclear Weapons

Premier Presents View of Russians

LONDON (UPI)—Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin called today for scrapping of all nuclear weapons and destruction of nuclear stockpiles.

Kosygin said if the nuclear question was not solved in this century it would have to be solved in the next.

The visiting Soviet official made the remarks at a news conference carried live to the United States via Telstar communications satellite.

Kosygin submitted to questions in the unusual transatlantic news conference shortly after Prime Minister Harold Wilson paid a surprise visit to the Russian's hotel suite.

Reliable sources said the two, attended only by interpreters, discussed Vietnam and other international issues.

Their previous talks on Vietnam were reported to have gotten nowhere. Britain was reported urging a joint London-Moscow effort to bring about a Vietnamese peace.

Addressing more than 500 newsmen Kosygin did not give a direct answer when asked whether he favors an agreement banning defensive nuclear weapons. But he said the real question is that of banning nuclear weapons altogether and said the Soviet Union favors a ban on all nuclear weapons and total destruction of nuclear stockpiles.

"If we do not solve this problem now," he said, "it must be solved in the next century."

He said recent talks have shown the world must come to an agreement to ban the spread of nuclear weapons to other countries that do not possess them now.

Speaking Russian, with his remarks being translated into English, Kosygin said that West Germany must agree to such an agreement whether Bonn wants to or not.

Mao Supporters Fired Upon By Opposing Troops

HONG KONG (UPI)—Wall posters in Peking said today dissident army troops opened fire with cannon and machine guns on supporters of party Chairman Mao Tse-tung in Communist China's mountainous Honan province.

The Peking correspondent for Ming Pao, an independent Hong Kong newspaper indicated continuing stiff resistance in areas previously claimed by Peking to be under firm Mao control.

Reports from the Chinese capital in recent days have told of only scattered incidents between pro and anti-Mao forces. These were the first reports of fresh clashes in China's raging power struggle.

At the same time, Chinese Communist authorities called for all-out efforts to increase agricultural production and said it was vital for the Communist war effort in Vietnam.

A broadcast by Peking radio also called for more "austerity" in China's already barebones economic system and even told Red Guards to cut down the size of their armbands and flags to save cloth.

The broadcast acknowledged again that China was facing serious economic problems as a result of its internal upheaval. Only Wednesday, Mao was reported to have ordered millions of Red Guard youngsters to return to their home provinces because they are adding to the chaos.

Japanese correspondents, meanwhile, reported that Marshal Chu Te, 88, known as the father of the Chinese Communist army, was under attack for failing to toe the Mao propaganda line.

HemisFair Funds Stalled for Week

United Press International AUSTIN (UPI)—Final action on $5.5 million more in state funds for San Antonio's HemisFair apparently will be delayed at least until next week.

Sen. Ralph Hall of Rockwall, Senate sponsor of the House-passed bill, indicated he would give up his efforts to get final passage of the emergency appropriations measure until Monday.

Opponents, led by Sen. H. J. Blanchard of Lubbock, succeeded Wednesday in blocking any action on the bill after Hall got the measure up for discussion.

"I'm not going to hold up the Senate here over the weekend on this issue," Hall said today. "I'm now thinking of having the bill printed and perhaps laying it out Monday when we can get down to business on it."

The bill, in addition to the $5.5 million for HemisFair, has other emergency funds for the Coordinating Board on Higher Education, the attorney general's office and the State Water Development Board.

Wednesday, to get the proposal up for debate, Hall won by a margin of 25-3 on a mo-

Church Roof Collapses On Top of 120 Persons

BALTIMORE (UPI)—The snow-covered roof of a Roman Catholic church collapsed today on top of 120 persons attending a morning Lenten service, 100 of them children.

No one was killed. Thirty-four persons, nearly all children, suffered injuries. Fifteen of them were admitted to hospitals for treatment.

"It's the miracle of the century in Baltimore that no one was killed," said the Rev. James Perry, pastor at a Methodist church nearby.

Everyone quickly got out of the church.

The congregation, attending an Ash Wednesday service delayed by the East Coast blizzard, was led to safety by the Rev. Francis O'Brien and a nun.

"I heard something rumble and everything started to shake," Father O'Brien said. "Then the roof came in."

When the slate roof of the stone and concrete church began to tremble and sent out a groaning sound, Father O'Brien and the nun quickly gathered the parishioners in front of the altar.

'National Fast' In Second Day

By United Press International Thousands of U.S. Christians and Jews united today in an appeal for world-wide peace without food for the second of three days of a "national fast for the rebirth of compassion."

The three day demonstration to express and dramatize concern—but not necessarily condemnation—of the war in Vietnam began Wednesday on an organized basis in more than 100 cities and on an informal basis in an estimated hundreds of smaller communities.

A group calling itself "clergy-men and laymen concerned about Vietnam" planned the start of the demonstrations to coincide with Ash Wednesday, the start of the Buddhist new year and the beginning of a Vietnam new year's cease fire.

"We will be showing our concern with the continued bloodshed in a war which has questionable ambitions," said the Rev. Carl Dudley of St. Louis, Mo. "We are fasting for peace and for a national rebirth of compassion."

Prayer vigils were held in a number of cities in connection with the demonstrations. Churches and synagogues were opened to especially receive the fasters who wished to meditate.

"We hope that three days of self-denial will help to sensitize American consciences to the suffering of the people of both North and South Vietnam in a war in which civilian casualties outnumber military casualties," said a spokesman for the sponsoring group.

Communist China Charges Russia With Betrayal

TOKYO (UPI)—Communist China today charged Soviet leaders with betraying Leninism to negotiate "big deals" with the United States.

In Moscow, the Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda accused China of "serious provocations."

The Communist New China News Agency, quoting a commentary in the official Peking Peoples Daily, said the Soviets had to step up their anti-China and counter-revolutionary activities "in exchange for their dependence on U.S. imperialism."

The commentary said the "big deals" with Washington included American-Soviet agreements on peaceful use of outer space and... on fishery.

It said attacks on Chinese students and the Peking Embassy in Moscow were other events revealing the Russians as "notorious traitors of the revolutionary people and kneeling vassals and pawns of imperialism."

The commentary declared U.S. "imperialism" was fading and "cannot save the Soviet revisionists from their doom. U.S. imperialism is a paper tiger, and so is modern revisionism. A paper tiger plus a paper tiger is still a paper tiger."

The Pravda accusation that the Chinese Embassy was "the initiator of serious provocations staged in Moscow" followed a Radio Peking warning that Russians at the Soviet Embassy in Peking faced "doomday."

The charge by the official Communist party newspaper indicated three straight days of anti-Chinese demonstrations in Moscow would continue.

The protesting outside the walled Chinese Embassy has been tightly controlled to avoid giving the Chinese an excuse to step up the 11 days of Chinese student rioting around Moscow's Peking Embassy.

Johnson Presents Foreign Aid Program

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson asked Congress today to approve a $3.1 billion foreign aid program that emphasized assistance for those countries willing to help themselves.

Claiming he had "recommended no charity" in the appropriation request for fiscal 1968, the President said the program was based on the principle that "self-help is the life-blood of economic development."

The request included about $2.5 billion in economic aid—of which $550 million would be for South Vietnam—and almost $600 million for military assistance.

The total is below the $3.4 billion that Johnson requested a year ago but higher than the $2.9 billion that Congress granted. His request is expected to encounter the usual House and Senate resistance.

But Johnson, in a special message urging approval of his requests, said that "nothing could be more short sighted and self-defeating" than to cut it back on the basis of "needs at home and the costs of the struggle in Vietnam."

"This country—the wealthiest in human history—can well afford to devote less than seven-tenths of 1 per cent of its

Driving Is a Bore to World's Champion

By BOC COCHNAR and DAVE BURGIN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn. NEW YORK (NEA) — Jack Brabham has a kind of Gary Cooperish way of making astounding statements sound like comments on the weather.

He was in New York recently to promote "Grand Prix," the MGM Cinerama film in which he has a brief role. During a quiet, shoes-off session in his hotel room he walked to his window to watch the beginnings of a typical New York traffic snarl.

"You know," he said to nobody special, "driving is such a bloody bore. I'd much rather fly my plane than take my family on a 'pleasure' drive."

This statement, coming from anybody else, might be understandable. But Jack Brabham happens to be the World Champion Driver for 1966 who makes a tidy sum piloting a car of his own design around track.

Better not ask him why he drives, either, because Jack doesn't like questions like that. "Why do you write?" he's liable to say. He also isn't pleased with questions like: "How does it feel to be the Grand Old Man of racing?"

"I don't think 40 is especially old," he'll say. "It all depends on how old you feel and how well you drive. Besides, Juan Fangio didn't win a world driving championship until he was 40 and went on to win four more before he quit. At 47."

This naturally brings Brabham to another question he does not like to answer: "Do you plan to beat Fangio's record?" And Jack will say, "I'll drive as long as I feel competitive and can drive safely. I don't know how long that will be." He has already won three titles.

Jack Brabham would much rather talk about his cars. He happens to be the world's largest manufacturer of racing cars and the first driver, outside of the movies, who ever won a world championship in a car of his own manufacture and design.

"Our little firm," he says with a well-deserved smile, "takes great delight in trying to beat the big companies like Ford and Ferrari. They spend millions of dollars; we do it on a shoestring."

And that is no understatement. Brabham and his crew of mechanical wizards last year were somehow able to take a standard Oldsmobile V-8 aluminum block, perform a few miracles, campaign it against the complex V-12s and V-16s of BRM, Cooper-Climax and other competitors and win the French, British, Dutch and German Grand Prix — enough to assure him the 1966 title.

Brabham's big advantage over his competitors was his car's simplicity. It needed fewer pit stops, less detailed maintenance. His tires helped, too. Working with Goodyear, Brabham developed an unusual all-weather tire.

While other drivers had to pull to the pits and switch rubber to accommodate track conditions, Jack raced merrily along on his wet - or - dry tires. "If you haven't got good tires," Jack says, "you can be out of the race." Jack had good tires.

Brabham is planning to run an all new engine in 1967. It will debut on Jan. 2 at the South African Grand Prix. Contrary to rumors, he won't increase cylinders. "We still feel simple formula for his success as a driver, too, and he offers it patiently in that incredibly unflappable way of his: "Experience teaches you how to cope with hazards but you must also know your limits and the limits of the car you are driving. And discipline and concentration. That's all you need."

Ah, yes. Now all you young

Mrs. Elaine Ledbetter, Pampa High School science instructor, said this morning 173 entries had been received in the 1967 Pampa Science Fair.

The fair is planned for Feb. 23, 24 and 25 in the Pampa High School girls' gym.

She said a breakdown of grade-level entries indicated there were 23 entries in the primary grades, one through three; 96 in the intermediate grades, four through six; 19 in the junior division grades seven through nine, and 36 in the senior high division.

HOLDING WALLET
DENVER (UPI) — Police are holding a lost wallet, but they think they will have to go looking for its owner rather than waiting for him to come to them.

They said the wallet, complete with identification papers, was left behind by a careless gunman who robbed a bus depot of $403.

d.e.w. tell!

HE WAS a man "who passed this way" and added happiness with his rare wit and wisdom to the lives of those who came to know and love him.

HE WAS an unselfish man... interested in others and in the worthwhile affairs of his community... his interest extended far beyond the time most mortals are genuinely interested and concerned about others.

UNCLE BILLY Frost died quietly in his sleep around eight o'clock Monday night. He was 104 years and 23 days old when death released him from this mortal span. His kind and generous heart had finally give out. He was buried in Fairview Cemetery yesterday afternoon beside his wife, Effie Jane, who died 77 years old.

DURING THE past 10 or 11 years, reams of copy have been written about Uncle Billy... some of which were accepted by wire services and by "big city" newspapers... not because of the way they were written but because that rare spark that was Uncle Billy's showed through in the written word.

UNCLE BILLY became a celebrity all over the Panhandle area and was decidedly the "Pet o' Pampa"... not just because of his age but primarily because of his outlook on life... he could not be identified with any particular group or clique... On the day of his funeral, a friend, Fanny Oliver, who lives at 1034 S. Gray, called the newspaper office to ask where she could take food to his family... A banker, an oilman, a radioman, a church custodian, a county employe and a dispatcher for an oil fuel company were among his pallbearers.

PERHAPS those who will mourn Uncle Billy the most, besides his immediate family, are those Red Cross Gray Ladies, who use to take him to and from Senior Center parties on Thursday afternoons.

HE WILL be missed by many! LIFE GOES on... and Uncle Billy would be the very first to say "By golly, it should!"

THAT WAS a gay supper the families of St. Matthew Episcopal Church provided for pancake eaters Tuesday evening in their parish hall... decorations were so colorful, everyone at one table agreed it was the second best thing to attending the genuine Mardi Gras in New Orleans... colorful streamers formed a canopy over head... serpentine streamers, masks, and balloons decorated the walls as guests dined by candlelight... but there was just light enough to see that John Hessey renege on the calories and brought along his own no-cal syrup... emerging from the affair as super salesladies were Penny Timms... Nadalie Reeve... Kim Taylor... Marsha Meador... and Chip Taylor... all of whom sold the most tickets... Penny sold $104 worth!

FELIX RYALS of White Deer told this one on District Judge Grainger McIlhany at the water conservation luncheon Monday... and it must be true... for the judge only smiled... It seems a Dallas girl once asked Judge McIlhany where he lived when he answered "Wheeler", she asked "Where is that?"... "Oh," replied the judge, "it's halfway between Mobeetie and Twitty."

COOK'S TOUR

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor

WESTPORT, Conn. (UPI) — Can an actress who appears regularly in a television soap opera find happiness and success as a real-life restaurateur? Tune in Haila Stoddard, a Broadway actress and producer, the active partner in a suburban restaurant near here and, since 1954, a member of the cast of a daytime live television serial, Secret Storm.

"I love to cook and decorate, and I had been saying for so many years how things should be done in a restaurant," she said in an interview.

"A friend called my bluff. She found this carriage house after I'd said I wouldn't think of opening a restaurant in anything else."

The friend became one of two partners in the enterprise which Gradually add milk and heat, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a boil. Reduce heat; add cheese and stir until melted. Add ham and mushrooms. Serve in warm patty shells. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Miss Stoddard runs — or more accurately, produces, as if it were a play.

She decorated the converted carriage house on the Boston Post Road in suitable theatrical style. The Tiffany room has tulip-shaped Tiffany glass lamp shades and vintage photos of famous stage and opera stars. The main dining room is decorated with a crystal chandelier and a wrought iron spiral staircase. The restaurant lighting system has dimmers, just like theater lights.

Miss Stoddard, in private life the wife of actor Whitfield Conn, says she's also found time to teach her cooks to prepare food from her own recipes, which she tests first in her home in nearby Weston.

"I've always been fascinated by food," she said. "I taught myself to cook when I was eight years old."

She added that her first attempt was a recipe for cake to which she added cream with the butter and sugar. "The result, which was like pudding and (See COOK'S, Page 7)

Food Buying Guide

EDITORS: The following guide to the nation's food shopping buys for the coming weekend was prepared by the U.S. Departments of Agriculture and Interior for UPI.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—If you can reach your local markets, through rain, hail, sleet and snow, you should find a good assortment of meat, vegetables, and fruits.

In beef, rump, rib and chuck roasts and steaks are reported in good supply in most areas. Pork's picture continues rosy, with bacon, chops, and hams available. Also, on the pork counter, loin roasts and shoulder cuts are wise buys, according to the consumer and marketing service.

Lamb prices showed a decline in many areas. Check with your local market for weekend specials.

Broilers-fryers remain a good and wise budget buy.

Pole beans start off the vegetable list for this weekend, followed by cabbage, carrots, celery, lettuce, green onions,

For Parsnip Fans

Serve parsnips with a mustard glaze. Place 8 boiled fresh parsnips, each cut into 8 wedges, in a greased casserole. Dot with 2 tablespoons of butter or margarine. Sprinkle with 2 tablespoons of brown sugar mixed with 1/2 teaspoon of powdered mustard. Bake in preheated 400-degree oven 20 minutes, or until glazed and browned. Makes 4 servings.

small peppers, potatoes, radishes and tomatoes. The list of plentiful fruits includes apples, avocados, grapefruit, oranges and pears. Nationally, canned salmon is in good supply for weekend shopping.

8 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 tablespoons flour
1/2 teaspoon salt

Braised Veal Is Enhanced With Bread Stuffing

Skip the starchy vegetable or food when you're serving meat with a bread stuffing. Veal Rolls, for instance, with their delicately seasoned bread stuffing, need only a vegetable like quickly cooked cabbage wedges, perfection salad and coconut or lemon pie for a delightful menu.

Onion, sage and nutmeg are all the seasoning the stuffing requires for veal is a delicately flavored meat. There's nothing to be gained by overpowering its flavor either inside or out.

Braising, that is, browning the rolls and then cooking them lightly covered, with a small amount of water, says meat expert, Reba Staggs, develop their flavor fully.

VEAL ROLLS
2 pounds veal steak or cutlets, cut 1/2-inch thick
2 1/2 cups bread cubes
2 tablespoons grated onion
1/4 teaspoon sage
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1/4 cup melted lard or drippings
Salt
Pepper
1/4 cup flour
3 tablespoons lard or drippings
1/2 cup water

Remove bone from veal steaks. Cut in pieces 5 inches long and 3 inches wide. Combine bread cubes, onion, sage, nutmeg and melted lard or drippings. To make rolls, spread mixture thinly on center of each piece of veal. Roll individually and fasten with wooden picks. Season. Dredge with flour and brown in lard or drippings. Add water. Cover tightly. Cook on low heat 45 minutes or until tender. 6 servings.

cake, didn't discourage her.

She still changes recipes, but with considerably better results. Recipes she has evolved from standard ones include onion soup made with chicken instead of beef stock, plus dry vermouth; baked stuffed potatoes in which the potatoes are creamed with butter, egg yolks and whipped egg whites instead of butter and cream or milk; and cream-filled angel cake roll made from batter baked in jelly roll pans instead of tube pans.

All are on lunch or dinner menus at her Carriage House Comestibles, which also features such fare as cacon pot pie, plain and curried omelets, pork chops with lingonberries and scampi Perch, which are large shrimp cooked with anise-flavored liqueur. Eight versions of steak, with or without sauces, and a creamy, well-seasoned liver pate also are house specialties.

Miss Stoddard's original venture was a take-out service for the plate and some other fatty foods. She began serving lunch about a year ago to meet customers' appeals; six weeks after that, in response to customers, she opened for dinner three nights a week. Now lunch and dinner are served Tuesday through Saturday on a reservations-only basis "and it looks as if we're going to have to open on Sunday, too."

Why does an already busy actress and producer get involved in another project that's as demanding as show business?
"Well, I just wanted to do something that didn't close Saturday night," she quipped.
"But I just found out that the theater is not the riskiest business, according to actual figures. The restaurant business is."

Dear Abby....
Consult Husband Before Purchasing

DEAR ABBY: Please help me. I'm in terrible trouble and I'm just sick about it. Yesterday a salesman came to my door, showed me his product and, before I knew it, I had signed a contract to buy it. I have two years to pay, but now I'm afraid to tell my husband about the monthly installments.

I don't know what got into me, Abby. I really don't need that product, and we certainly can't afford it at this time.

Is there any way I can get out of it now? I would appreciate any help you can give me. SIGNED WITHOUT THINKING DEAR SIGNED: Your only hope is to call (or write) to the company and explain that you signed the contract before you had time to think it over carefully. Tell them that you neither need nor want the product, and you cannot afford it.

Some companies have been known to do the merciful and generous thing and have released hasty signers from their contracts. Others will hold you to it, regardless. (A note to other wives: Discuss all purchases with your husbands. If you're afraid to tell him, the chances are—you shouldn't have it.)

DEAR ABBY: I am a 14-year-old girl. Recently my parents were separated, and my father moved out of the house. Every Sunday he comes to visit us kids. (There are six of us. I am the oldest.)

When he comes here, Mom goes out, and if Dad is still here when she returns, she goes right to her room and stays there until he leaves. Dad always asks how Mom is, if she's "happy," and how her health is.

He really seems interested in her. After Dad leaves Mom asks how Dad looked and what he said. Abby, I think they still love each other and I would do anything to get them back together again, but I've been told to live my own life and to let them live theirs. How can I help?

LOVES THEM BOTH DEAR LOVES: If your parents parted without seeking professional help in resolving their differences, beg them to give it a try for their own sakes as well as for yours. But if they have, the advice you received was good.

DEAR ABBY: I am 46 and the man I am going with is 52. I love him very much and he says he loves me, and I guess he does but I don't know why

This man is an engineer and he has had a very good education. I never went beyond fifth grade. When we are with his friends, I don't know what they are talking about. I'm always afraid I'll say the wrong thing, and I will show everybody how dumb I am and my gentleman friend will be ashamed of me. He says I am fine and shouldn't worry about what to say. By the end of the evening I am sick with fright, nervous, and tied up in knots. How can I get over this feeling? Folks tell me I'm pretty, but that's not enough. Can you help me? NERVOUS

DEAR NERVOUS: If you can write, you can read. And if you can read, you can learn. Read your newspaper and keep up with the current events. That's a beginning. And don't be afraid to speak up.

If your gentleman friend were "ashamed" of you, he would not invite you to be in the company of his friends. Even with your limited education, you are probably a lot brighter than you think you are.

How has the world been treating you? Unload your problems on Dear Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069.

For a personal, unpublished reply, enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1.00 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069.

You, Your Child And School

By DAVID NYDICK UPI Education Specialist

Should a child be spanked or would another method of punishment be more effective? Experts disagree on just what form punishment should take.

In the schools, teachers are normally not permitted to use physical force as a punishment. They are ordinarily allowed to use force to protect other children, adults, or themselves.

Laws and rules vary between different states and sometimes within a state. The best way to find out about local rules is to ask the school administrator.

The courts have had a role in this issue. In some states they have decided that the teacher is the local parent. This would mean that the teacher has similar rights and responsibilities as do parents.

Let's look at this problem without relation to the law. What is proper educational procedure?

Physical force is usually unnecessary unless it is to protect another individual. Parents generally resort to spanking in order to relieve their own anger.

There are certainly more effective and appropriate punishments. Adults should consider the nature of the child's misbehavior and then design a punishment which as a relation to the wrong action.

Children Imitate Children tend to copy adults whom they respect. If a parent uses physical force as a punishment, it is not unusual for the child to use force with his friends.

This is not meant to imply that physical force is always wrong. Force is necessary in some situations in order to protect individuals and property from injury.

Several rules regarding punishment should be followed. Do not use physical punishment as a result of your emotions.

It is not wrong to punish a child. It is wrong to allow improper behavior without taking action to correct it.

Foreign News Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM UPI Foreign News Analyst

Even as mendied in the war in Vietnam, subversion threatens Thailand. Laos exists in a state of unsatisfactory neutrality, there is heartening proof that other men in Southeast Asia can dream and even build toward the future.

In Vientiane, administrative capital of Laos, 20 nations have just concluded the 31st meeting of the Mekong Co-ordination Committee...

Organizers of the committee under United Nations sponsorship are these four nations. All together 21 nations participate in a project budgeted for more than $3 billion in the next nine years.

The project already has borne fruit.

In 1966, the King of Thailand presided at ceremonies marking the completion of the second of two projects along Mekong River tributaries.

This is the Mekong: Half of the population of Thailand, Laos, Cambodia and South Vietnam live in its lower basin which stretches 1,500 miles from the Burmese border to the China Sea.

It is the longest unbridged river in the world and one of the least utilized. In South Vietnam's Chau Doc Province during the rainy season, lily pads ripped loose from Cambodia swamps drift downstream and foul the propellers of river craft. As the flood waters rise they bring ruin to rice and sugar cane crops and force peasants from their homes.

For while the Mekong, one of the world's 10 mightiest rivers, is the lifeline of the delta, it also is a destroyer.

Upriver, at Vientiane, in the dry season the Mekong falls 15 feet below the level of its banks and sandbars reach far out toward midstream.

The salty Plain of Reeds stretches from just south of Saigon in South Vietnam northwest into Cambodia. It encompasses some five million useless acres which, with the help of the Mekong, could be drained and made fertile.

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW

United Press International HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Starting this fall, a weekly Sunday night broadcast ranging from two to three hours will give the nation a practical sample of programming offered by a non-commercial, public television service.

This series, to be shown live by the National Educational Television Network, is of particular interest because of the major proposals of the Carnegie Commission and the Ford Foundation for a public video service that could be a landmark in American broadcasting.

The fall series will generally represent the concept of the Ford Foundation because of its approach of an interconnected network of stations transmitting on an instantaneous basis. The Carnegie Commission suggests more local option and autonomy in programming, with apparently only occasional network broadcasts put together whenever deemed necessary—a concept which pleases commercial broadcasters who do not feel it represents the stifling competition.

Foundation Finance Series The series, in fact, is being financed by the Ford Foundation, and will evolve from an experimental broadcast laboratory at Columbia University in New York. The Executive producer of the series is Av Westin, formerly of CBS News. There are about 125 stations affiliated with the National Educational Television Network.

As now conceived, the series will be journalistically oriented, and will deal with major events of each week, whether they be of a military, political or economic nature or concern science, education or the arts. The aid of universities around the nation will be solicited, not only for guests, but for untapped research that might be news in itself, and for interpretive backgrounding. So, too, will the local affiliate stations be asked to contribute as the "eyes and ears" of the network—an answer to those who maintain that network and local autonomy cannot coexist.

But, says Westin, the series is not limiting itself to any special circle of participants—not just universities and stations. "We are open to suggestions from anyone at any pace," he says, maintaining that there will be no "establishment" exclusivity as regards dominance of the series. He says he wants ideas shuttling back and forth between the stations and the network. "They might call us about a story they did or think should be done." He also says the series will be done in color even though many of the stations don't have the facilities yet.

In a memo of last December, Westin wrote: "The theory underlying this broadcast is that everything of interest to people is news... we are going to demonstrate with this unique broadcast what responsible, intellectual persons can accomplish, given free rein to their editorial and critical judgments."

Story Ideas In a section entitled "story element treatments," he wrote: "Imagine — it is the week the 1968 cars come out. The cars are in the studio along with their designers and, let's say, the head of UCLA's safety study center and Ralph Nader. The discussion, using the cars for demonstration purposes, is about the safety design of the new cars. The next week, new television sets are examined by experts."

By LYLE WILSON

United Press International The Republican governors of New York, California and Michigan are offering their party meaningful examples of what can be done about the enormous cost of state government.

The governors are: Ronald Reagan of California, George Romney, of Michigan, Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York. Reagan wants to spend $4.7 billion in the next fiscal year, Romney $1.15 billion and Rockefeller $4.6 billion.

Reagan's philosophy is conservative and hard-boiled. So Reagan is a taxer and an economizer. It follows naturally that within short weeks after his inauguration Reagan now is embattled with California's soft-boiled Republicans and with the state Democratic party generally. As so often happens in these clashes, the more agile liberals got a quick advantage by making free public education the headline issue and making Reagan the black hat villain who would inject politics into California's university system.

That smoke screen obscures the fact that Reagan was appalled by financial condition of the state of California as he took over from Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown. Reagan's budget cut back was by about $250 million from last year's spending level under Brown. That's a reduction of about 5 per cent.

Reagan also has demanded that most state agencies reduce spending by 10 per cent, now. Even so, Reagan estimates that revenue will fall short by about $250 million of irreducible expenditures. So Reagan has promised new tax recommendations before April. Reagan thereby is committed to cutting costs of government, to a balanced budget and to higher taxes to achieve the latter.

Rockefeller is a moderate or soft-boiled Republican. He plans to spend $640 million more this year than last. Rockefeller avoids new taxes but does propose to balance his budget by means of a state lottery, accelerated income tax collection and by borrowing through the large-scale sale of bonds. The income tax and bond proposals are devices to spend tomorrow's income today, a notable factor in Democratic policy.

Romney is the middle man of this trio. His new spending program is up by about 12.5 per cent over last year, a spending policy typical of the soft-boiled Republican elements. But Romney proposes also to balance the budget the hard way, with an unpopular tax. His proposal is for a 2.5 per cent personal income tax. This would not be a graduated tax but would apply the same rate of taxation from top to bottom.

Romney sweetens the proposal by claiming the income tax revenue would permit reductions in sales taxes and real estate taxes. There is great public outcry in Michigan against an income tax applying the same rates to rich and poor. Romney will have trouble ramming his tax plan through the legislature. If he fails, his position in the 1968 presidential sweepstakes will be reduced. The choice offered the Republican party by these three governors of great states are the choices which were available to the Democratic party midway in the Roosevelt regime when the U.S. economy had sufficiently revived to be capable of paying the cost of government with increased taxes.

FDR chose the easier, credit card way of life, spending this year the income which is expected to be available some years hence. This political gimmick has been successful in maintaining Democrats in public office. It has been so successful as to persuade Republican leaders, notable the soft-boiled Republican leaders of the East, to borrow and seek to benefit from a system in which the politicians buy the citizens' votes with the citizens' own tax money after it has been paid into the U.S. Treasury. The Republican party is supposed to be against such monkey business.

Building Boom

It's always interesting whenever private enterprise pitches in to spur employment through concentrated building programs. Recently, the Rockefeller brothers of Wall Street and the Cyrus Eaton family, of Cleveland, formed an international corporation to build hotels and factories in the European Communist countries.

Cyrus Eaton is the multi-millionaire who has long serenaded us on the wonders of the Soviet Union, has been a frequent visitor to that country and entertained Khrushchev when the erstwhile "statesman" visited this country. The Rockefellers are well known to all of us.

This newly-formed combine is already building a 600-room luxury hotel in Yugoslavia and is arranging the financing for a $6-million hotel in Budapest. Hotels in Warsaw, Prague, Sofia and Bucharest are in various stages of planning or negotiation, according to a spokesman for the corporation.

This building boom, coupled with plans for 10 rubberwood plants and at least one aluminum plant, will obviously help the unemployment problems in these Communist countries.

That new hotel in Yugoslavia, for example, will have to hire at least 300 security-clearanced maids and porters, and another 100 waitresses, waiters and cooks. There will have to be elevator operators, desk men, night clerks, handy-men, pool cleaners, bartenders, barbers, shoeshine men, entertainers, cigar stand operators and a myriad of other functionaries—all police-screened, of course.

Added to this already imposing list of new employment possibilities is the fact that the Communists will have to assign a great number of people to keep the guests under surveillance. It takes five gumshoes to keep effective tabs on one guest for 24 hours. In a 600-room hotel that adds up. And, the new hotel will also mean employment for all those people who will have to monitor the tape recorder microphones secreted in most of the 600 rooms. When you consider it, that's quite an employment opportunity for specially trained technicians.

The factories and other hotels the Rockefellers and Eatons will build for the Communists may well drain the labor pool, at least of all those that the secret police have trained. Ethics aside, we can't help but marvel at the ingenuity of it all.

Jekyll And Hyde Farming

Uncle Sam is playing Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde with such perfection that even the farmers are confused.

On one hand, as Dr. Jekyll, Uncle Sam pays farmers for keeping land out of production. On the other hand, as Mr. Hyde, he simultaneously ships millions of tons of food to support tottering governments in India and elsewhere around the world.

This, of course, drains our food supply at the same time that farmers are paid a premium to refrain from growing foods.

Is it any wonder that our food supply is out of balance, that prices are going up, that our surpluses are gone?

Don't be naive enough to think that government looks at its problem as clearly and simply as that. Bureaucracy is too complicated to think of anything but more bureaucracy. So Uncle Sam "remedies" the situation by paying farmers a parity subsidy on produce grown on land they are permitted to farm, for the purpose of stimulating production.

The consumer pays for the "soil bank", parity subsidies, and foreign aid of free or low-priced food to other countries. And the consumer pays for the increased market prices, too.

Then, of course, there's the situation where one agency of government, the Department of Agriculture, subsidizes tobacco raisers; another agency, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, spends tax money to tell us not to smoke, and another agency, the State Department promotes American tobacco sales in foreign lands.

All of the costs are paid with taxes and higher prices. Is it any wonder some folks are shaking their heads in wonderment at what goes on with what Reg Manning used to refer to as the Wonderful Wizards of Washington.

...Not into Perturbation

Any auto thief worthy of the name can get into a locked car if he wants to. But why make it easy for him?

In more than 40 per cent of the hundreds of thousands of car thefts reported each year, the motor was left running or the key was left in the ignition.

While motor vehicle registrations increased 45 per cent nationally from 1955 to 1965, vehicle thefts rose by 122 per cent. According to the National Institute of Municipal Law Officers, owner carelessness was a big factor in the latter figure.

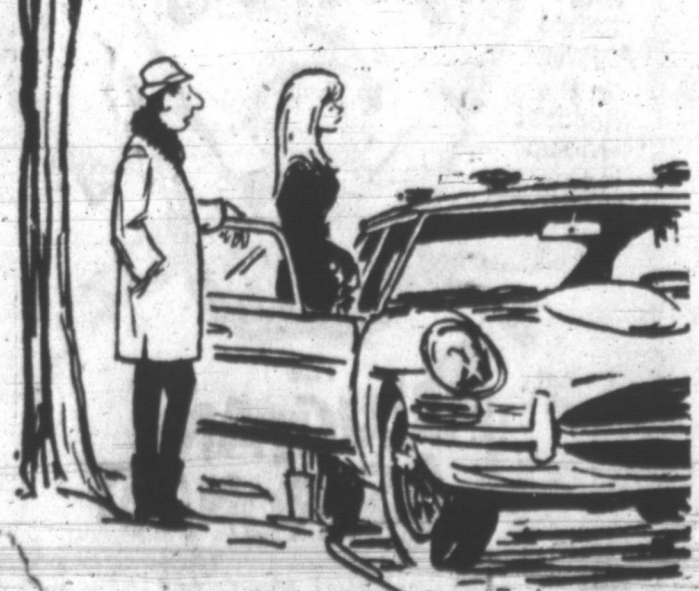

More and more communities are adopting a model ordinance proposed by the institute. This permits police to pick up and hold keys left in automobile ignitions. When the keys are claimed by their owners, they face a fine.

Any professional can get into a locked car and jump the ignition. But last year, 65 per cent of all persons arrested for auto theft were under 18, most of whom acted on impulse and for a thrill.

What could be a greater temptation to impulsive car theft than a set of keys left carelessly dangling from the ignition switch?

Straight Talk

General Benedict Arnold
General Delivery
Hell, Earth 97358
Dear General:

Since the postal service is in such a hell of a fix, you probably have not yet received my last week's letter; but I'm writing again anyway.

By today's standards, General, you're a mini-traitor. Your main trouble was that your timing was bad and you didn't think big enough.

The Great Society, formerly known as the Johnson Administration, is now "building bridges" to the main enemy, Soviet Russia. Russia supplies the Viet Cong with most of the planes and material to kill our boys.

Vice President Hubert Humphrey announced a few days ago that President Johnson now thinks the Cold War is over. If the Cold War is over, we lost it. If Russia is our ally, we have surrendered. Part of our surrender plan is the so-called Consular Treaty, which the Administration is now trying to ram through the Senate. Consulates are offices maintained here by foreign countries for the transaction of commercial and tourist business. At least, that's what free and friendly nations do in their consulates. But as that great American J. Edgar Hoover has warned, the main function of the Soviet consulate is espionage. Russian consulates are all spy nests. According to the FBI, more than 400 Soviet espionage and intelligence agents would be assigned to proposed consulates in New York, Chicago, Detroit and Los Angeles. And, by the terms of Article 19 of the so-called Consular Treaty now before the U.S. Senate, the spies swarming in and out of these consulates will be immune from prosecution by any American authority, state or federal. Chief ramrod of the spy treaty is, naturally, one Nicholas Katzenbach, who President Johnson moved from the Justice Department to Katzenbach's present post as Under Secretary of State as part of the Administration's friendship with the enemy program. As J. Edgar Hoover has reported, the ratification of the Consular Treaty is "a cherished goal for the Soviet Intelligence services". . . . and one which "will make the job of the FBI much more difficult."

Seven thousand American fighting men have already died in this undeclared war which we have no intention of winning. For what? What is the goal? Why are we there? Who is the enemy? After we lose or win or draw, what do we do? We give the enemy foreign aid. We surrender to the United Nations.

Article II, Section 4, of the U.S. Constitution says "civil officers of the United States shall be removed from office on impeachment for, and conviction of, treason. . . ." Treason involves "giving aid and comfort to the enemy." So the question is simple: what is aid and comfort and who is the enemy? I'm for forming a committee of the House of Representatives to consider charges against all officials of our government, from Caesar-Bird on down, who have and are giving aid to the enemy. Most members of the Supreme Court have voted with the Communists in most decisions involving Communism (the Court ruled just recently that a state cannot require teachers to take a loyalty oath to the United States). Don't that make even you lose your cool, General?

But the minimum wage idea has been tried time and time again and always hurts the very people it's intended to help; in fact it hurts everybody because it greatly reduces production. It also discourages the individual and increases crime. Idleness breeds discontent and the energy must be spent in some way and if it cannot be used productively, it will be used destructively.

Everybody must earn what he gets and wages should be just as high as they can be so that everyone who wants to work can get a job; then production will go up and what is produced will be distributed in order to benefit its owner. The arbitrary minimum wage is one of the greatest farces and chicanery practiced on the American people and has done untold harm and will continue to do untold harm until we crash.

Old machines have been brought up to proper standards (a law in most states) by being fitted with filters and metal cones. Danger has been further lessened by use of fast film which reduces exposure time.

It's true that X rays, which have power to destroy cancer cells, also have power to produce them. And it's true, also, that since we're continuously exposed to "natural" radiation in the atmosphere, as well as fallout from nuclear bomb tests, additional radiation from any source could be harmful. Even small doses of X rays can cause mutation of body cells.

"Scatter rays" are something else. When an X ray is taken, not all the rays are on target. They travel in straight lines, but some of them shoot out in uncontrolled directions.

These off-target rays can be harmful because certain body tissues, such as gonads and embryos, are especially sensitive to radiation.

It's obvious, then, that some form of protection should be provided for pregnant women, children and all people who are in their reproductive years. When dental X rays are needed for these people, it is suggested that their bodies be covered with a leaded apron.

Russia's Confession

(Chicago Tribune)

A Soviet court has imposed heavy sentences on two young Americans who confessed buying rubles with dollars on the Leningrad black market in violation of Soviet-currency laws. One youth, who was accused also of stealing a souvenir from his hotel, was sentenced to three years' hard labor. The other was fined 1,000 rubles.

By making such an issue of a relatively trivial offense (the black market deal involved a total of only $76), the Soviet government has made what amounts to a confession of its own regarding the state of the Russian economy and the value of its money. Specifically, it has admitted that despite all the talk about the thriving economy, Russians are still all too willing to sell rubles for 28 cents apiece, or about one-quarter of their official value.

We remember the fanfare back in 1960 when former Prime Minister Khrushchev, by a sort of double play, established the new ruble worth 10 old rubles and thus camouflaged the fact that he was actually devaluing it. Ten old rubles has an official value of $2.50 in our money; the new ruble was pegged at $1.11, just enough to sound better than the dollar.

Mr. Khrushchev hoped that Russia's growing economy would enable the ruble to stand on its own at this figure and that exchange controls and currency laws could then be abandoned. He predicted that the new ruble would be "the hardest currency in the world"—that is, the most readily convertible into gold or dollars.

All this talk must now be discounted as so much hot air, along with the boasts that Russia would overtake the American economy by 1970 or whenever it was supposed to be. The ruble, worth 28 cents on the black-or-free-market, has a long way to go before anybody will pay $1.11 for it voluntarily.

Question Box

(We invite questions on economic and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

QUESTION: "How can raising minimum wages from $1.24 to $1.40, which went into effect Feb. 1, help produce jobs and prosperity?"

ANSWER: The idea of raising minimum wages by law or edict is contrary to all the natural laws. It is contrary to economic principles, and the politicians who do it, do it solely for the purpose of being popular and fooling the public and making them think they are helping the underdog, they act from pure economic ignorance.

The reason they don't work is because if a man must be paid more than he produces he cannot get a job. And a young man or an old man that can't produce very much or the young man that is learning, is certainly not worth $1.40. If you pay him more than he's worth to start with, it gives him the wrong idea of his value, and he expects an increase when he does become worth something.

A man working on a typesetting machine isn't worth anything until he can set 600 lines a day, which is required to pay for the use of the machine. Above that he is producing and earning something. The typist isn't worth anything until he can type with enough speed to produce a certain amount of work. Some kind of work that isn't complicated, a man possibly could earn $1.40 an hour to start with.

But the minimum wage idea has been tried time and time again and always hurts the very people it's intended to help; in fact it hurts everybody because it greatly reduces production. It also discourages the individual and increases crime. Idleness breeds discontent and the energy must be spent in some way and if it cannot be used productively, it will be used destructively.

Between the Bookends

"DISCRIMINATION"

"Discrimination" is, unquestionably, a good word — one for which we have absolutely no substitute. If it has taken on the appearance of being "dirty," it is because it has been flagrantly misused, by those who are ignorant of its real meaning.

This is Robert F. Hackett's approach to the word in his book "Discrimination Is A Dirty Word, Or Is It?" (published by Carlton Press, New York, N. Y.; 59 pages; $3.00).

This short volume has a great deal of penetrating logic in it concerning the broad issues of "civil rights" and its bedfellows. The author takes on all of the clichés and labels of the day and attempts to break them down to their component parts.

For example, "To be recognized as a 'first class citizen' — be one — it is just that simple."

He points out that discrimination is a natural function of life, that could not be outlawed, eliminated or condemned. When a car advertisement refers to its product as being "for the discriminating buyer," is it calling its customers a dirty name?

"Are we again attempting to substitute coercion for choice in personal matters, as we did with the 'Prohibition Law'?" And, are we accomplishing the same negative results, for the same reasons? Is it possible that a basic issue at stake in this 'Discrimination' problem is choice vs. coercion — mores vs. laws? Are we still willing to go on believing that laws are the real answer?"

For a healthy dose of common sense, this book is a good pick-me-up.

—Harry Browne

A thought for the day — President Lincoln once said: "There is no grievance that is a fit object of redress by mob law."

A Bed of New Design Wards Off Bedsores

One of the greatest hazards of prolonged confinement in bed is the bedsores that develop as a result of continuous pressure on shoulder blades, hips or heels. In persons whose circulation is none too good to begin with these sores often develop in spite of frequent moving of an invalid from one side to the other and efforts to keep his skin clean and dry. If the invalid, because of impaired bladder or bowel control, involuntarily soils himself the problem is greatly aggravated.

Since the weight of the body when floating in water is distributed uniformly over the entire supporting area no pressure sores would develop while the body was thus supported. With this thought in mind Drs. James D. Weinstein and Barry A. Davidson, working at the Rehabilitation Institute, Tufts-New England

Medical Center in Boston, devised a bed embodying the principle of total flotation.

Their earliest model, although successful, had the disadvantage that it weighed 1,700 pounds. Now sure that they were on the right track, they went back to the old drawing board and came up with a water mattress that weighed less than 250 pounds.

It not only eliminated the necessity of turning the patient frequently but also made it possible to roll him out of bed instead of lifting him out. The mattress contains a foam rubber support shaped to fit general body contours, a space into which water is introduced and a plastic outer layer.

When in use, two thicknesses of woolen blanket are placed between the invalid and the mattress to prevent loss of body heat. Although this device was designed chiefly to prevent bedsores it has also been of great value in promoting healing of bedsores that have already developed.

This mattress, sold under the trade name, Total Flotation Therapy, is made by the Scott Paper Co.

PRESERVING VS. DESTROYING

Group Research, Inc., which denounced anyone opposing Communism a few years ago, is relatively inactive now. During the 1964 campaigns National Council for Civic Responsibility, announcing a $500,000 bankroll, started a radio-TV program called SPOTLIGHT, to expose the twin evils of patriotism and anti-communism.

In their crusade Group Research published two or three books defaming patriots. Later the movements directed against those with patriotic instincts of a right-of-average philosophy either folded or subsided.

Apparently an organization for which Rev. Dr. Everett C. Parker speaks, has seized the torch and intends to make it very uncomfortable for any person or entity not "slanted slightly to the left."

Most likely to suffer by "mistaken identity" with this new organization is the devoutly scriptural Church of Christ, one of the fastest growing religious bodies in the U.S. The Church of Christ has never been favorable to Communism in any form. That the good name of this Church should be usurped by an organization of diametrically opposite purpose is only another example of pink plundering.

Americans must realize that those who would destroy our freedom work at it unceasingly, in every conceivable manner — and some inconceivable to people of decent instincts. To destroy the freedom of a Christian society such as ours takes diligence, dedication and deceitfulness fully applied. The enemy has all three in large measure.

Frequently the difference between a TV program favorable to freedom and one that isn't are communications indicating approval or disapproval. Sponsors and advertising media airing pro-freedom broadcasts deserve the support of people who love our country. Wholesome programs which are never slanted, such as the Pat Boone TV show, deserve the support of grateful Americans. The enemy's efforts to destroy must be matched by ours to preserve.

Efficiency Expert—Mr. Jones, what do you do here?
Jones — Nothing.

Efficiency Expert — And Mr. Martin, what do you do here?
Martin — Nothing.

Efficiency Expert — Hmm. Duplication.

Mistress (to butler) — Why is it, John every time I come home I find you sleeping?
Butler — Well, ma'am, it's this way: I don't like to be a-doing nothing.

She spent the whole afternoon balancing her checkbook. When her husband came home, she handed him four neatly typed sheets, with items and costs in their respective columns.

He read them carefully: "Milkman, $11.25; cleaners, $4.67, and so forth." Everything was clear, except for one item reading "ESP, $24.89."

Husband (warily)—What does ESP mean?
Wife (smiled) — Error some place.

Pat — Are mosquitoes religious.
Sue — Yes. They first sing over you and then prey on you.

The eligible girl's answer to the gift problem for the man who has everything: Encouragement!

An expert is a person who can take something you already know and make it sound confusing.

Ann — Which travels faster—heat or cold?
Amy — Heat, because you can catch cold easily.

Fat Man (in a movie to a little boy sitting behind him) — Can't you see, little fellow? Little Fellow — Not a thing. Fat Man — Then keep your eye on me and laugh when I do.

Professor — If there are any dumbbells in the room, please stand up.

A long pause and then a lone freshman stood up.
Professor — What, do you consider yourself a dumbbell?
Freshman — Well, not exactly that, sir, but I do hate to see you standing by yourself.
