Two Millions Spent Biennially For Maintenance Of Lobbyists In Austin

"Who Runs Texas?" Correspondent Begins Series Of Articles On Size And Methods Of State's "Third House"

Who runs Texas? Do the people of Texas run their state, or does somebody else? Roscoe Fleming, staff correspondent of the Fort Worth Press, discusses lobbyists, the "third house" of the Texas legislature, in a series of articles written for the United Press. Thirteen men according to his census of informed opinion, have as much power on many vital issues as all the rest of Texas citizens put together.

The articles do not "muck rake," and are not an expose. They present the constructive side of the lobby as well as other aspects. The first of Fleming's series, presenting the background in which the powerful "third house" works, is carried today.

AUSTIN (UP)—It is the moment of a final vote on an important bill in the Texas house of representatives. The crowded noisy, day-lighted hall in one wing of our big red granite capitol is hushed for the moment. The electric scoreboard upon which house votes are recorded flashes in red and blue lights.

"Have all voted?" shouts Speaker Coke Stevenson. His sartorial face grim, he leans for a moment over the electric indicator on his rostrum. The house is tense.

The vote being 63 for and 71 against, the bill falls of agreement. Mr. Stevenson may announce, "The vote being 71 for and 62 against, the bill passes to engrossment."

Whichever it may be, there is the gray hue of disappointment and

New Wildcat Is Under Way

Sudderth and Morris Spud In On C. D. Road Section 47

Sudderth and Morris have spudded in an unusually interesting wildcat oil test in eastern Howard county one and one-half miles north of nearest production in the Denman-Dodge pool and on the C. D. Road land.

The test was spudded Sunday. It is located 330 feet east and 660 feet north of the southwest corner of section 47, block 30, Texas & Pacific railway company survey. It will be replaced by a standard rig when 15 1/2 inch casing is set.

Preparations For Speaking Contest Made

West Texas high schools have been asked to enter a student speaker in the Annual My Home Town contest at the Fifteenth Annual Convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce in Big Spring, May 11, 12, and 13.

The entry blank and rules of the contest were received this week by superintendents at the various schools from C. M. Caldwell, chairman of the contest.

Contestants must be high school students and each town may select its contestant in any way it desires. The speech must be original and about the home town of students. The rules provide it shall not contain poetry, and shall not be over five minutes long.

A new loving cup is to be offered to the winner this year at Big Spring, the Thos. Etheridge cup having been won three times by Joe Witherspoon, Jr., of Wichita Falls, who becomes its permanent owner. Witherspoon will not be a contestant this year according to Chairman Caldwell. In addition to a loving cup, the high three contestants will each receive a substantial cash prize and the winner will be given a choice of a number of college scholarships.

The Home Town Contest has been a feature of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce conventions for the past ten years and the final contest is held before the entire convention on the last morning.

Big Spring will not enter a speaker, since she is host to the convention this year, it was announced.

Sweetwater Tees Off At Top Of Golf Leaguers

Sweetwater jumped into a good lead Sunday in the first skirmishes of the Sand Belt Golf League by administering a 30-10 beating to Snyder.

Colorado's 23-12 triumph over Odessa gave her second place. Lamson, with her 20-14 win off Stanton, took third position.

Midland placed fourth by beating Big Spring 22-15, but the local points were enough to place a good fifth with Slaton, Odessa and Snyder beneath.

Thirteen men, in the opinion of those who should know, have almost as much combined power on the legislature itself, if they put all that power to hauling together.

Only Four Rescued After Giant Craft Drops Into Sea In Storm Off Jersey

Admiral Moffett Among Missing; Second Officer Tells Of Catastrophe; Small Dirigible Crashes While Hunting Wreckage

NEW YORK (AP)—The navy dirigible Akron, caught in a violent electrical storm, fell into the sea with 76 men aboard 20 miles east of the Jersey coast at Barnegat shortly after midnight Monday.

Eight hours later the wreckage was sighted 25 miles east of Atlantic City.

Four were rescued, one of whom died. They were taken aboard the German tanker Phoebus soon after the accident.

Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the navy's aeronautics division, was among the missing, as were Commander F. T. Berry, commander of the naval air station; Commander H. B. Cecil, also of the aeronautics bureau, and Col. A. F. Masury of the Ordnance Reserve Corps, United States army.

Lieutenant Commander H. V. Wiley, second in command of the Akron, was among those saved.

Richard Deal, M. E. Erwin, Robert W. Copeland and Wiley were picked up by the Phoebus which was attracted to the scene by what it thought was flares. Copeland died shortly after being taken aboard. Deal was taken to a hospital as soon as the Coast Guard destroyer Tucker arrived at Brooklyn. His injuries were slight.

Airplane and ship rescue efforts were hampered throughout the day by poor visibility and a flying ceiling close to the sea level.

The number believed drowned makes the disaster the worst in the history of lighter-than-air flying craft.

A naval court of inquiry was assured and congressional investigation seemed probable.

The Asbury Park coast guard station reported receiving the Akron's SOS signals. The air was filled with static and the signals were not heard elsewhere. The German tanker Phoebus saw the flare in the darkness.

NEW YORK (AP)—A message signed "Wiley," who was second in command and one of four rescued, stating that the naval dirigible Akron crashed about six minutes after midnight Tuesday was given out by the coast guard at Staten Island Tuesday. After describing the weather and position early in the night the message said:

"Surrounded by lightning at light (presumably Barnegat light). Night atmosphere very turbulent. Run east course until about 11 p. m. then crossed to west at midnight. Ship began to descend rapidly from flying altitude of 10,000 feet. Dropped ballast. Entirely surrounded by lightning. About 12:03 a. m. ship began to descend rapidly. Three minutes later seemed in center of storm. Ship began to shift about violently. Ship commenced to descend. Stern inclined downward. Rudder control carried away. Descent continued to water. Ship demolished upon impact. In lightning flash I saw many men swimming. Wreckage drifted rapidly away.

Akron Submitted To Severe Test Over West Texas

Craft Buffeted Last May From Angelo To Border To Pecos

The Akron, ill-fated Queen of the Skies, which plunged into the sea off the New Jersey coast Tuesday morning with a crew of seventy-seven aboard, met its sharpest test prior to the fatal one with the elements here in May 1932.

Off on its maiden transcontinental voyage, the silver monster of the air was unleashed at Lakehurst, N. J., and proceeded southward, passing over Macon, Ga., from Macon it glided to New Orleans, then veered over the gulf and entered Texas near Beaumont.

With good flying weather it reached San Antonio and cut in a southwesterly direction. Confronted with bumpy weather it turned to follow the Big Spring-San Antonio airway beacons. Over San Antonio it encountered a terrific thunderstorm that lashed at the giant craft. Blinding rain punctuated with violent displays of lightning added to worries.

Here radio operators could hear the ship's operators calling, calling for news of gap in the storm that would enable the dirigible to slip out west and to the Pacific coast.

Static would not permit communication although operators flashed many messages.

Dazzled by the sudden viciousness of the weather, the Akron floated back over San Antonio and hovered over the airport. An ex-serviceman interpreted light signals to mean the craft wanted ground crew to help land. One was enlisted but the ship pulled away, southward over Eldorado. Later it was seen battling the wind last night.

Sun sets today 7:57. Sea rises tomorrow 1:32.

WASHINGTON By Paul Mallon

Morgan—The deep-seated purpose behind this investigation of J. P. Morgan is to put him and the other private bankers under some kind of control.

That is the order passed down to the Senatorial investigators confidentially from the White House itself. The investigators are going after evidence with a vengeance. All they have to prove is that the Morgans have a bank. They are going to show that you must have a balance of something like a million dollars to keep a checking account there.

Having proved that, Congress will pass a law putting this free-hand style of banking under federal supervision.

Up to now the Morgans and the others have been run like exclusive clubs rather than banks. They answer only to God. No examiners, state or federal, dare touch their books. They run their business as they jolly well please and file no reports anywhere. Their constant plea has been that they are not a bank.

The evidence will show that there is at least a dispute about that.

How they were able to get away with it so long is a good inside tale in itself. They were nearly caught 15 years ago. The New York legislature conducted an investigation of private banking—not the Morgans but those fly-by-night shops in the Jewish and Italian section which were mulcting poor people out of money. Legislation was framed which would have caught all private bankers in the net. But at the last minute the legislation was altered so as to affect only those private banks which advertise that they are private banks.

That is the reason you never see the name J. P. Morgan and Co. advertised anywhere. They do not even have a sign on their door.

Nobody here suspects the Morgans of having any Hariman or Mitchell skeletons in the closet. The senate sleuths are not looking for scandal. They realize they are up against the most conservative and the greatest private banking institution of the western world. They know also that no one ever investigated the Morgans before and came out on top. The only reason they dare to hope this time is that they have Mr. Roosevelt quietly in the background patting them on the back.

The fact that Mr. Morgan has John W. Davis as attorney for the defense shows it will be no easy fight. Davis has been the best business lawyer in the United States since Charles Evans Hughes went to the Supreme Court. His record as Democratic presidential candidate in 1924 might give him enough prestige with a Democratic administration to pull the fat out of the fire in ordinary times. These are no ordinary times.

New Deal Is Sermon Topic

Large Monday Evening Congregation Hears J. D. Harvey

One of the largest Monday evening crowds the church has ever had at a revival meeting heard J. D. Harvey of Colorado preach at the Church of Christ, Fourteenth and Main streets. The congregational singing, led by Ted Merton of Sterling City, added much to the service.

Melvin J. Wise, the local minister, announced time of evening services during the meeting, which will continue through Thursday of next week, would be changed beginning Tuesday from 7:45 to 8 p. m. Morning services open at 10 o'clock.

Mr. Harvey announced that he would speak Tuesday evening on "Our Standard For Authority In Religion."

Monday evening his topic was "A New Deal In Religion." He declared that pure science and pure religion do not conflict. Proper use of the Old Testament by Christians was stressed. He declared value of the Old Testament rested on five points: (1) as a history of mankind; (2) as a record of God's dealings with men; (3) as a source of courage, confidence and hope found in the proof of fulfillment of God's promises; (4) as a record of shadows and types of good things to come, and (5) as a 'schoolmaster' to bring men to Christ.

"We may abuse the Old Testament if we are not careful," he said. "Do not try to answer a New Testament question with an Old Testament answer. Jesus Christ warned against juggling of the scriptures."

Jesus Christ is the author of the religion that is always new, said Mr. Harvey. His religion is a system of faith enacted in life. He draws a plain line between pure and false religion. He set up a new covenant opening the way to salvation for all men, Jew and gentile alike.

"The Old Testament prophesied a new covenant that would write laws in the hearts or men. Superiority of the new religion established by under the new covenant is shown in Hebrews 8. Jesus Christ is the mediator under that covenant, Moses was the mediator under the Old Covenant. We are told that 'the letter killeth but the spirit giveth life,' a comparison between the old and the new.

"I say this is a new deal in religion, the very latest—always new because it was established in the last will and testament of the Lord. The last—there has been none since. It is just as new tonight as the day it came from the hand of

Big Spring got a new deal in building during the month of March, a check on permits issued by the city showed Tuesday.

Twenty-three permits totaled $2,063.25. Nine were for structures costing more than $100 while four of this number went above the $200 mark. The total figure was far above the one for February but slightly under January.

Postal receipts, while showing a decline over February totals, recorded a gain for March over the same month a year ago. Receipts for the first quarter are well above those for the same period in 1932.

Receipts for the month amounted to $2,981.05 as against $2,879.35 a year ago. February showed a total of $3,047.52, under that of January which was $4,050.79.

First quarter revenue for 1933 is $10,079.36 compared with $9,411.79 for the same period last year, or a net gain of $667.57, according to Postmaster H. L. Bohannon.

Got a big kick out of hearing Mr. Coades say what he did about proration. One oil man, at least, has the same idea about it that your humble servant has expressed oftentimes in this column. Not that we claim to know anything much about the oil business. But, we just can't figure out that proration has ever helped anybody or how it can ever be made to accomplish the real purpose for which it was devised—to raise crude oil prices.

The statutes in Texas for fifteen years have provided that no oil or gas well can legally be operated in such manner as to cause waste—and that means physical waste. The law empowered the railroad commission to prevent unnecessary waste of oil and gas.

That is sufficient. That is as far as it should go. When artificial plans and devices substituted for the natural law of supply and demand are taken away and all fields are allowed to blow the hills and the miseries that have beset the industry for five years under proration will be terminated with little delay. If proration, or what is known as proration, continues as a part of the public policy, the misery will be continued.

It is true, of course, that many oil men would be forced out if all governmental regulation of production were lifted. It is true that the oil market would quickly fall to nothing. But it also is true that those who were forced out at first would before long be able to come back and that the market would rebound very much more rapidly after flush production had been automatically regulated by natural economic process than it can under proration. Thirty-cent oil is what

Life Is Pleasant In Small Town

When Louis T. Stone, the newspaper writer whose freakish, Munich-like little "nature studies" made Winsted, Conn., famous all over the country, died the other day, it was revealed that here had been one man to whom the fame and fortune offered by the big city were no attraction whatever.

Stone, it seems, had been offered jobs frequently on metropolitan papers. But he had always refused, preferring to stick in Winsted, and remarking, "I'm just a small town man—I'd get lost down there."

In that remark there is a good deal of sound sense—sense of a kind which good many of us never quite had the wit to appreciate.

For generations it has been the tradition in this country that the really able man is going to gravitate, sooner or later, to the city. The city can pay him more money, it can give him a wider field to work in, it can flatter his ego and fatten his bank balance at the same time; and so, year after year, ambitious young men have been drained out of the small town and dumped into the vast hopper of the metropolitan—often enough, their own bewilderment and disillusionment.

But this man wasn't fooled. He said, "I'm just a small town man," and in that saying there was not so much modesty as a realization that life in a small town can be more satisfying and wholesome—can, in short, be more fun—than life in a big city, for the man who is generally to be found in a big city.

For the small town man escapes a lot of grief. He escapes crowds, he escapes the depressing sight of those miles of identical apartment houses and "two-families" which constitute the waste lands of our great cities; he has the open country at his elbow, his life is set at a more leisurely pace, his nerves are not put under a constant strain, he has more chance for friendship, for recreation for plain loafing if he likes.

All of us know this, when we stop to think about it. But most of the time we don't stop to think. We chase success down city streets, going after it so fast that we seldom have time to wonder why life is no longer as the kick it used to have. How much better off some of us would be if we, too, had had the sense to say—"I'm just a small town man."

CARRIES ALL-BRAN ON EVERY VOYAGE

Seaman Finds This Delicious Cereal Relieves Constipation

Here is an unsolicited letter from Mr. Darragh:

"I have been going to sea for the past fourteen years. Every trip, I underwent severe headaches, nervousness, and sleeplessness. Tried all sorts of remedies, and received only temporary relief.

"So hearing about Kellogg's ALL-BRAN thought I would get a box, which I did. That was six months ago, haven't been without it at home, and when I go to sea a box of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is always with me."—George D. Darragh, 1914 82nd Avenue, Oakland, California.

Tests show ALL-BRAN contains two things for common constipation: "Bulk" to exercise the intestines; vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN also supplies iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of lettuce. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes.

How much pleasanter this is than taking pills and drugs—so often harmful. Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily will correct most types of constipation. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Serve as a cereal or use in cooking. Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Ashford Has Large Crowd

Incidents of Ark Related As Basis For Monday Sermon

Rev. W. C. Ashford preached to a practically full house Monday evening at the East Fourth Baptist church on "Getting Ready for the Great Rain." He based his discussion on the incidents of the ark as related in the sixth chapter of Genesis. He pictured of the exceeding sinfulness of mankind and God's selection of Noah, out of the millions, as a man of faith to build the ark. He spoke in part as follows:

"1.—The building of the ark and why. The ark was built by only one man and only one ark was built. There was only one way for the people to escape the flood and that was by this one ark. There is only one way of salvation and that is by Jesus Christ. The ark was built of poplar wood, a tree found in the drier regions. In Isa. 53:2 we read that the coming Lord was prophesied as 'a root out of dry ground.' The ark was covered with a pitch, a resin from the gopher tree, called kaphar, a corresponding word to the New Testament word atonement. Christ is our atonement for sin. The ark therefore is a type of Christ.

"2.—Figures learned from the ark. No one was forced to enter the ark, but all were privileged to accept the protection of the ark. No man is forced to accept Jesus as their savior, but all men are invited to come to Him. The ark was entered before the flood came. Man is saved before baptism. The ark was submerged in water, a type of baptism. The ark landed on Ararat. The word itself signifies holy grounds. It also landed on the 17th day of the month, the same as the resurrection of our Lord. The dove represents the Holy Spirit. The olive branch, which puts forth the first blossoms of the spring, typifies the resurrection.

"3.—Truths learned from the story. God had complete charge of the ark. There was no need of a steering wheel. God closed the door of the ark and kept all within secure and safe. We are kept by the omnipotent power of Jehovah. Like the occupants of the ark we will be kept through his divine power. As Noah trusted the divine plan of God so we must trust Jesus, the way of escape from the penalties of sin. The floods descended on the ark and beat upon it. The floods of sorrow came upon our Saviour, but he withstood them all for our redemption. Noah made everything safe before the storm. Our Saviour has made everything safe for the sinner. It remains for him to accept the plan as completed by the Saviour."

Lower Taxes Battle Cry In Many States

Legislatures Being Pressed To Lower Costs Of Government

CHICAGO, Ill. (AP)—Tax reductions is the battle cry in the several State Legislatures and apparently the State taxpayers can look forward to reductions approximating at least $100,000,000.

In some States, however, the tax structure remained untouched; in others, new forms, particularly sales and beer taxes, have been voted to reduce other taxes, and in a few, the taxpayer will be harassed to meet unbalanced budgets.

A survey of tax legislation showed:

New York—Increased gasoline taxes, sales tax, higher gross income tax and lower income tax exemptions considered because of $100,000,000 deficit.

Illinois—Three per cent sales tax effective, beer and licensing tax voted. Economies expected to reduce other forms of taxes.

Iowa—Ten million dollars already saved and $15,000,000 additional reduction sought.

Michigan—Plans Sales Tax Michigan—Proposed to cut down $12,000,000 annually on the budget and to reduce school and property taxes through substituting sales tax.

North Dakota—Biennial budget halved to $5,000,000; 2 per cent sales tax and 2 per cent scrip stamp plan enacted; tax levy to be set by board of equalization later.

Georgia—Cigarette tax automatically fell off from 20 to 10 per cent April 1 by previous legislation; sales tax defeated; au mobile license fees reduced to save about $3,500,000 through Governor's order.

New Jersey—Mandatory appropriations by municipalities and counties repealed with estimated savings of $7,000,000; additional $5,000,000 expected to be saved through a law permitting towns in 1933 to appropriate only half their school budgets.

Maryland—Assembly early today clipped State tax from 25 to 22 per cent $100 assessable property because of savings in lowered budget.

Wisconsin—Budget $15,254,000 below previous biennial figure and Luckies Please!

In every corner of the world, both here and overseas, wherever you find joy in life, 'tis always "Luckies Please!"

You want character as well as mildness in a cigarette... Luckies have both!

Everywhere you go—at cosmopolitan Havana as in our own homeland — discriminating smokers prefer Luckies. Why?

For one thing, because of their fine, fragrant Turkish and domestic tobaccos—carefully selected, perfectly blended. People the world over want a cigarette that has character.

Second, and all important, because these fine tobaccos are "Toasted"—that scientific process which creates true mildness. For these two reasons—character and mildness—"Luckies Please!"

CHAPTER XXV

Dinah had begun to descend over the street in the gray light Janet looked up into Jeff Grant's startled face. She was remorseful. "I meant to tell you before," she said, "only I've been so busy!"

"Where are you going?" Jeff asked.

Janet smiled. "Not very far," she told him. "You see, I have a new job and I'll have to live out there."

"Then you're not leaving town?"

"Why, of course not!" The girl laughed. "Did you think I was? Oh, no, I'm not leaving Lancaster but it's just about as much work to pack as if I were. We've been awfully busy at the office, too. This new job is different from anything I've ever done."

"She told him all about it. She was still talking when they reached the entrance of the rooming house. Janet, looking up at the sky.

"I hate to go in," she said. "It's a lovely evening, isn't it?"

"Yes it is. We could take a drive somewhere if you weren't so busy."

Janet lingered in the doorway. "I've got an idea!" she exclaimed suddenly. "Have you had dinner?"

Jeff said that he had not.

"Then if you'll go back to the delicatessen and get some sausage, I'll cook some eggs and make toast and we can have a sort of picnic supper. I have part of a cake and enough lettuce for salad. Do you want to do that?"

"Sure! That's a great idea!"

When she arrived 15 minutes later Janet had the table set. She wore a gingham apron and had pushed her sleeves above her elbows. The coffee pot was sizzling and its fragrant aroma filled the air.

Jeff had made other purchases besides the sausage. He exhibited a box of luscious looking strawberries, a bottle of cream and a box of cheese.

"Why, we'll have a feast!" Janet exclaimed.

She planned another apron about Jeff and set him to hulling the berries while she scrambled eggs and cooked the sausage. By the time they were ready to sit down at the table both of them were laughing. Jeff had been describing his efforts at cooking on a boyhood camping trip.

Janet poured the coffee and handed a cup to Jeff. Heat from the stove had curled the soft tendrils of hair against her cheek into a tight curl. The heat had brought color into her cheeks, too, and her eyes were shining.

"Isn't this fun?" she said.

"I'll say it is! And the best meal I've had in weeks. Say, she had packing to do, departed. She saw him several times during the rest of the week. It had been arranged that since Janet would be through at the Every Home office Saturday noon she should move to Mrs. Curtis' home that afternoon and have Sunday to become acquainted with her new surroundings. Then Monday morning she would begin work.

Jeff offered to drive her out to her new home but Janet declined. It would be more correct, she thought, to arrive in a taxi. Her trunk and traveling bag had been turned over to the transfer company early Saturday morning.

When the time came to say good-bye to her friends at the Every Home office—to the dreary box-like room in which she had worked for two years—Janet found herself strangely moved. She hadn't expected to feel that way. She was sorry to say good-bye to Mr. Hamilton, of course. She would miss him, his trades, and unreasonableness as much as the other times when he was considerate and kind. She would miss Mr. Hamilton because she was accustomed to working with him and because she admired him sincerely. But Janet was surprised to find—now that she was saying good-bye—that even Madeline, the switchboard operator, and the Dennison girls and others to whom she seldom said more than "good morning" or a few words about the weather seemed to be old friends. They were all part of the life she was leaving behind.

She told them all good-bye, at last. She ate a hurried lunch and then rode out to the brick house with the dormer windows, set among all the other impressive houses. This time Janet walked to the door more confidently. She rang the bell and waited.

"You're Miss Hill, aren't you?"

"Come in."

It was the maid in the gray uniform who opened the door. "Mrs. Curtis won't be back until time to dress for dinner," the maid said. "Your trunk's here and I'll show you to your room."

It was a room at the rear of the house on the second floor. It was not very large but it was attractive. The walls were covered with flower-sprigged wallpaper and the woodwork had been painted pale green. There was green chintz about the dressing table

The Davis Cup, Blue Riband of lawn tennis, is going to England this year, even if the British team does not win it. . . . The Federation Francaise de Lawn Tennis has promised to lend it to an exhibition of national sporting trophies in London, where it will be next to such trophies as the old brass urn containing "the ashes" which England recently won the cricket test with Australia.

Eddie Flynn, Olympic welterweight champion who has held eight major amateur titles and won 144 amateur and three professional fights without a loss, was whipped to a frazzle in New Orleans last week by one Curtis Mullens, erstwhile bouncer for a New Iberia, La., gambling house. . . . Mullens said he trained four days for the bout. . . . A blind man was captain of the Oxford University chess team which recently beat Cambridge five points to two. Conference
Hull is trying to wheedle a reciprocal tariff agreement out of Great Britain.

So far the negotiations with the British have been very lopsided. But Hull has hopes.

The administration strategy seems to be that Hull wants at least a tentative tariff understanding with Britain before the World Economic Conference gets underway.

It is quite obvious that the incessant talk you hear about the conference cloaks the real inner discussions on war debts and tariffs. Those last two subjects are taboo as long as Congress is around.

The underlying reason the British are not taking to the Hull tariff arguments is that Britain is a debtor country. Also there are the Empire trade agreements.

For the same reasons neither can she see the argument that she should return to the gold standard.

The new kingdom or family of God knows no race, no nationality, no state or bondage or freedom, no sex. The Lord laid down the rules by which one may be added by God to His family. He did not tell how we can join his church or get religion, but how we may obey Him and thus be added by Him to His people. When we have complied with those things we go forth to "walk in newness of life."

April 30 Is Last Day For Seeking Loan

Farmers Given Final Directions By Federal Field Supervisor

John S. Andrews, field supervisor for the southwestern crop production loan office, emphasizes in a statement that April 30 will absolutely be the last day for farmers to apply for government loans for crop production purposes, and farmers who still wish to apply for loans may apply to State National Bank here to have their applications properly made out. The law forbids any change being made for help in the preparation of the loan applications, but such fees as that of a notary are allowed.

A loan may not be approved for the amount applied for, and if it is reduced, the proper reduction will be made on the forms filled out at the time the application is made. In the event the loan is not approved, the note and mortgage will be returned to the applicant, the application and voucher being retained by the C.P.L. office. The loans this year are not only limited to $200, but the regulations require that borrowers reduce the acreage of their cash crops 30 per cent under that grown in 1932. The regulations provide a fine of up to $1000 and imprisonment up to six months for material false representation made to get a loan.

As in the past, the borrower must give a first lien on his crop. Loans bear 5-1/2 per cent interest, are due on or before October 31, 1933. The regulations make it unlawful for any person to dispose of or assist in disposing of any crop given as security for any crop loan, except for the account of the Secretary of Agriculture and provide for fine and imprisonment for violation of the regulation. Each borrower must agree to plant a garden for his home use and to plant sufficient acreage to furnish feed for his livestock.

Mr. Andrews further emphasizes that the borrowers not wait until the last week or day to make application for his loan, as something might happen that will prevent him to get the necessary valuers, if any, signed by their landlords, or whoever holds a prior mortgage crop lien, as the government is requiring an absolute first lien on all crops grown or to be grown by the borrower in 1933.

Cotton and corn are considered cash crops in this territory and the borrower must agree to reduce acreage to these cash crops 30 per cent under that grown in 1932. The borrower can plant the balance in feed or any soil building crops he so desires.

The government wants to help all deserving farmers who are in need of this money, and those who are wanting to borrow, are requested to come on and get same while the getting is good, Andrews said.

Any one who wishes any further information regarding this loan, either see or write John S. Andrews, field supervisor, Midland, Texas, whose office is on the third floor of the Midland county court house.

boats searched the waves from 1 o'clock until 6 o'clock Tuesday morning without results.

Four men were rescued, among them William Copeland, who was unconscious four hours and then died.

Daldorf reported he gave coast guard destroyers the approximate position of the accident and finally continued on his voyage at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning "after the cruiser Portland left."

Daldorf's message said: "Rescued four men, Moody Erwin, Richard Deal, Lieutenant Commander Wiley and William Copeland, the last unconscious four hours. Treatment failed for Copeland. Gave rescued men and body to destroyed Tucker. Two lifeboats searched from 1 a. m. to 6 a. m. without results. With a sink already stamped on it, the Akron added to its misfortune when it sought to land at San Diego. Just as it seemed a large ground crew had the craft under control, it boomed heavenward, carrying three men dangling on a guy rope.

While thousands gasped one of the tiny specks slipped, and plunged to death on the field below. Moments later another roke loose and dropped to destruction. While women screamed and men wept, the lone dot clutched at his rope. Two hours later the Akron crew hauled Bugs Cowart through the hatch, unharmed.

A month afterward, the pride of the United States navy soared back across West Texas in calm summer skies. It roared over this city without a semblance of the struggle it had made on its trip to the coast.

Both the Akron and the Shenandoah passed over Big Spring on transcontinental cruises. Today both are tragical bits of aeronautical history, victims of the elements.

Mid-Week Lenten Service At St. Mary's Church
The mid-week Lenten services at Saint Mary's Episcopal Church will begin Wednesday night at 8 o'clock. The lectures are on the Ways and Teachings of the Church. Careful consideration will be given Wednesday night to two important questions that have been submitted since last week's services.

Question 1—"What are the most certain warrants of Holy Scripture which require a belief in the resurrection of the fleshly body?" Question 2—"What are the certain warrants of Holy Scripture proving that Christ took his earthly flesh into Heaven, and we do not?"

Question 2 is based on Article Four of the Articles of Religion of the Anglican, and the Episcopal Church which reads: "Christ did truly rise again from death, and took again his body, with flesh, bones, and all things appertaining to man's nature; wherewith he

One purseful of opportunities . . .

THE opportunities, to which we refer, are the daily bargains to be found in every shopping area. Some people find them quite by chance . . . stumble over them blindly . . . and acquire them with astonishment. Others never seem to be in the right store at the right time; If there's a 25% marked-down sale of shoes at Smith's, they are buying at Brown & Co. . . . If a grocer three blocks away is clearing out his canned goods at half price, they are at the corner store making routine purchases.

But—there are some people who always find these opportunities. Their money buys them more—and better—merchandise than their neighbors'. Why? Not through good luck, you may be sure; but simply because these people read the advertisements in their daily newspapers.

This advertising is NEWS. It tells WHAT . . . It shows WHERE. Those who read it every day are informed. They save themselves time, trouble, and DOLLARS . . . District School Meet Soon To Be Held In Abilene

The district interscholastic League meet will be held in Abilene April 7-8 and 14-15 according to announcements received here.

The tennis tournament will be held on Simmons University Courts on Friday and Saturday, April 7 and 8. Tennis contestants will report on the University courts not later than 10 o'clocks Friday morning, April 7, where play will begin immediately.

Coch Wayne Mathews has entered three players in tennis, two boys and one girl. Harry Jordan and Joe Davis will team together in the boys division, while Doris Smith will attempt to uphold the feminine section. Big Springs will not have an entry in the girls doubles. Doris was eliminated in the second round at the district meet last year.

Mathews expects Jordan and Davis to go places this year, providing Joe doesn't break another leg. Harry and Joe have shown splendid form this season, and with plenty of practice in high winds, they will enter the meet as favorites.

The literary, track and field events will be held April 14-15. Only first and second place winners from each county in each track and field event, Class A and Class B, will be permitted to compete in the district meet, due to the fact that there are sixteen units in District B.

But the glare of the klieg lights did not blind Jimmie to the possibilities of radio. He brought his own inimitable style to the microphone and the show astant success. His movie, stage and night club experience gave Jimmie a fine background and the showmanship he learned in these fields has been of great aid to him in presenting his radio programs.

Makers Of Tires Changing Policy

AKRON—The Hood Tire Corporation, Akron, Ohio, has announced change in policies governing the distribution and sale of Hood tires effective March 31.

Only two lines of automobile tires and one truck tire line will be sold by Hood, making possible substantial economies in distribution and inventory costs and generally simplifying the business for both the corporation and its distributing organization, according to company officials.

The program was adopted, Hood executives said, after careful consideration of the many problems now confronting the tire industry and in the effort to permit dealers to stock two complete lines of tires in all sizes, a practice now almost impossible.

The Hood statement said that in the opinion of the company's management, the consumer public was generally confused by the many tires offered bearing various brands of widely-differing quality and that the new plan would clarify tire buyers' understanding of both price and product.

Revisions in price will now be possible on a sound economic basis due to the direct savings resulting from this constructive merchandising reform, Hood officers stated.

Flewellen's Service is local dealer in Hood Tire Corporation products.

MAGNOLIA FOUNDERS' MONTH Petroleum Paves the Way for The March of Transportation. It is a far cry from the first ox-drawn sledge to the fast, luxurious transportation of today. In between has been a long era of slow horse-drawn land conveyances and wind-blown boats. It remained for petroleum, discovered in 1859, to completely revolutionize transportation within one brief lifetime. Petroleum has made it possible to build small, compact motors of tremendous horsepower. Petroleum has permitted man to overcome the devastating friction of metal parts moving at fearful speeds. Petroleum, in no small way, has been responsible for today's automobile, airplane, street car, railroad and steamship. When the founders of the Magnolia Petroleum Company purchased the first oil in Texas at Corsicana in 1896, and two years later established the first refinery in the Southwest, they released a source of potential motive power great enough to supply the world's transportation with gasoline, motor oil and grease. Today, you find Magnolia Stations and Dealers everywhere in the Southwest waiting to smooth your journey with Mobilgas, Mobilgas Ethyl and Mobiloil... the culmination of more than thirty-five years in the refining business. Drive in and enjoy these up-to-the-minute petroleum products.
