

Pampa Gets .08; Storms Hit State, Oklahoma

Rain, that wonderful something that Panhandle residents haven't seen too much of so far this year, fell over Pampa and other Panhandle points early this morning.

However, while only a small thunderstorm that dumped .08 of an inch of much needed moisture worked here, other parts of Texas and Oklahoma weren't so lucky.

Pampa had a high of 70 Sunday while the overnight low reached 49 after the rain began to fall about 3 a.m. today.

According to the Amarillo Weather Bureau, skies will remain mostly cloudy tonight and Tuesday although temperatures are expected to reach the upper 70s Tuesday.

Thunderstorms brought much-needed rain to wide areas of North Texas again today, the aftermath of a storm system that roamed the Red River Valley Sunday, unleashing a tornado which struck a ranch north of Vernon Sunday, smashing a barn and several other farm buildings. A second barn was swept away in the funnel.

No injuries were reported as the twister dipped on the R. S. White Farm.

A. K. Coker, a neighbor of White's, said he watched the tornado from his front porch. "It lifted my barn into the air and away," Coker said.

The tornado and accompanying rainstorm knocked out power in the Wildcat Community near Vernon.

White said he was fishing when the twister struck.

Winds of 60 miles an hour were reported in Wichita Falls. Much of North Central Texas was under a severe weather forecast Sunday afternoon, Oklahoma, however, got the brunt of the turbulence.

Thundershowers were expected again today along the Red River and in most of Northwest and extreme West Texas. Cooler temperatures were forecast along the Red River and a little warmer in the Panhandle.

Early morning temperatures ranged between the mid 40s in the northern Panhandle and the mid 70s in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

It got hot over most of Texas Sunday.

Presidio, in fact, was the hottest place in the nation at 99 degrees, Laredo and Cotulla (See PAMPA, Page 3)

City Truckers Hit by Strike

In spite of the nationwide Teamsters Union order to shut down truck freight operations, Pampa has not been affected as completely as other cities without independent trucking firms.

Two national trucking firms, with offices here and employees or schedules affected by the strike, are Lee Way and Santa Fe Motor Freight lines.

Regular route carriers, such as Lee Way Motor Freight Inc. and Santa Fe Trail Transportation Co., either have employees out of work or have not received shipments that usually arrive on schedule.

Aubrey Spralls, Santa Fe Trail Transportation Co. agent here, said that by midmorning, no trucks had come in from Wichita Falls, Amarillo, and other points west.

"Usually, when not on strike, trucks going east had stopped here by 10 a.m. Another is due in at 10 p.m., but we haven't received any word about it. Santa Fe trucks handle less than car loads (LCL)," Spralls said.

Four Lee Way Inc. dock employees here and four in Borger are off duty today because no local deliveries have come through. The Pampa office manages operations here and in Borger.

"Lee Way Inc. will not accept or receive anything until notice is given from the general office in Oklahoma City, Okla.," Bob Bartley, office manager here, said.

Pampa trucking firms with direct shipping throughout Texas will still continue operations, because their employees are under separate contracts, not affected by the strike.

Merchant's Fast Motor Lines has not been affected directly in its shipments throughout Texas, but freight the company was to collect from interstate shippers is still on the docks in Amarillo and other Panhandle cities, Harold Burris, terminal manager, said.

"Our service is still wide open," he said, "but we won't get the line freight from major carriers with employees in the teamsters' union," Burris said.

Locally owned trucking company officials couldn't predict how long the interstate trucking strike might last, but "when" (See STRIKE, Page 3)

Oscar Awards On Tap Tonight

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI) — Hollywood's brightest spectacle—the annual Academy Awards presentation—will play tonight and probably to an eleventh hour television audience estimated at 67 million.

Tentative settlement early today of the 13-day-old strike by the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists against the three major networks apparently cleared the way for ABC to telecast the 39th renewal of the Oscar ceremonies from the Civic Auditorium here.

The agreement was to be submitted for ratification this afternoon to AFTRA's national board.

The network holds a $15 million contract with Eastman Kodak Co. for the live telecast of the production. Of that amount, $700,000 will go to the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

Pending approval of the new pact, ABC will beam the show beginning at 9:30 p.m. CST.

Many of the performers nominated for awards or scheduled to present them had indicated they would not cross AFTRA picket lines if ABC had tried to broadcast the pageant while the strike was still in effect.

Among those who would have stayed away was the show's perennial emcee, comedian Bob Hope.

Arthur Freed, president of the academy, had asked AFTRA for a special waiver to permit its members to perform. But he also announced the show would go on as scheduled whether it was televised or not.

Details Not Given In Reaching Accord

NEW YORK (UPI) — A tentative agreement was reached early today in the nationwide strike against three major radio and television networks by the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists.

The agreement was to be submitted to the national board of AFTRA by this afternoon, and if it is approved, the 18,000 members of the union would return to work immediately.

The strike has seriously hampered network radio and television programs across the nation for 13 days.

Details of the "tentative understanding" which came after nearly 24 hours of continuous bargaining presided over by federal mediators, were not disclosed.

The 84 member AFTRA National Board will meet, union spokesmen said, in three sections—in New York, Chicago and Los Angeles.

The apparent reason for the speedy submission of the proposed agreement to the board was to permit national live telecast of the Academy Awards tonight from Hollywood.

ABC was slated to telecast the awards. A source from another network said the union negotiators were heading immediately by plane to Chicago and Los Angeles to present the tentative agreement to the AFTRA board sections there in hopes of getting the green light for ABC to telecast the annual Oscar presentations.

If the board accepted the tentative agreement, the proposal would then be submitted to the rank and file.

The strike was called against ABC, CBS and NBC over the issue of wages for 100 network newsmen in Chicago, Los Angeles and New York. The union had demanded a base pay of $325 a week, with newsmen receiving 50 per cent of commercial fees.

The networks had offered $300 weekly, and 13 per cent of commercial fees during the first 18 months of a three year contract, and 25 per cent over the second half of the pact.

The walkout had mostly affected news programs, live entertainment and coverage of sporting events. Management personnel for the three networks suddenly found themselves before microphones and in front of television cameras, filling in for the striking newsmen.

A Leukemia Fund drive was underway today with A. A. Schuneman, executive officer of the First National Bank, authorized as receiving agent for donations.

A fund account has been set up in the bank for the convenience of contributors. All donations authorized for the fund will be deposited there, according to Mrs. Clint Caylor, acting chairman.

She said money given this year will be used for further research and production of the newly-discovered drug, L-Asparaginase, which hopefully will cure or cause remission of the dread disease leukemia.

The drug was used recently to bring a Dallas boy's leukemia under complete remission, according to Dr. Joseph M. Mill, institute director of Wadley Institute in Dallas.

Mill said the new drug stops diseased cells from using the amino acid L-Asparagine, which is necessary for the cell to live. The diseased cells starve, but healthy cells are not affected, he explained.

A musical benefit given for the Leukemia Fund last year in Pampa under auspices of Mrs. Grundy Morrison raised funds for the purchase of a microscope, which was instrumental in the discovery of the new drug, Mrs. Caylor said.

Plans are under consideration to hold a Bridge Benefit in the near future with all proceeds to be given to the fund.

Serving on the local drive are Mr. and Mrs. Jim Leverich, Mr. and Mrs. Don Morrison, Mr. and Mrs. Clint Caylor, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Bourland.

Students Back to Classes

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Negro students calmly returned to classes today on three riot-torn campuses ignoring the empty cartridge cases that marked the riotous gun battles with police that left two persons wounded.

Peace returned at dawn to a 30-block area of Negro colleges and residences that were rocked by two nights of rioting. The students, especially at Tennessee A&I College, scene of most of the shooting, appeared at ease.

The topic of the day was the riots, and many students said it was "just a way to let off a lot of steam."

"They (the white community) have been doing us wrong," one student said.

At least 17 other persons were injured in the two-day melee, and 54 others were arrested in the first major outbreak of racial violence in the nation this year.

Several students indicated they participated in the riots "just to have a good time."

The campus at A&I was littered with the empty shell casings. The sporadic fire continued until early today as Negro youths apparently took aim at cars, largely police and newsmen who were driving through the area in the northwest section of the Tennessee capital. During the night police fired shots in return.

The gun battles broke out after leaflets appeared at the schools denouncing "wild cowboy cops."

"No longer will we submit to the mad men in uniform," the leaflets said.

Dr. W. S. Davis, president of A&I, was unavailable for comment on the riots Saturday and Sunday.

Earlier this morning, police raided two houses near Fisk University, one of three predominantly Negro institutions where rioting has occurred since Saturday night, and arrested six Negro youths and two girls. Officers said they would be charged with inciting to riot. They said Molotov cocktails apparently were being made in the houses, and that a carton of soft drink bottles filled with gasoline and rag wicks was thrown through a window as police swarmed into one house.

Speck Trial Nearing End

PEORIA, Ill. (UP) — The prosecution is winding up a case it hopes will send Richard Speck to the electric chair by tracing his steps from the time eight nurses were murdered to his capture.

In a methodical, non-sensational manner, Prosecutor William Martin is building on the testimony of Corazon Amurao, the 23-year-old nurse who survived the slaughter of eight young women and named Speck as the killer.

As the eighth week of the trial began today, the state was ready to call its 33rd witness and was expected to finish its presentation against Speck by midweek.

Martin is attempting to trace, by way of sworn testimony, how Speck allegedly spent the two days following the slaughter in a Chicago south side townhouse on a drinking binge that took him in and out of the city's skid row areas and bars.

Speck was arrested when a doctor treated a slashed wrist noticed a tattoo which read, "Born to raise hell," one of the identifying marks publicized by police in the "manhunt of the century."

The 25-year-old wanderer from Dallas had been found in a skid row flop house, lying in his own blood after a suicide attempt and was taken by police, who did not recognize him, to the county hospital.

Public defender Gerald W. Getty, expected to begin presenting witnesses by midweek, failed to get Miss Amurao to contradict her statement that Speck was the killer.

Bill Skaggs of Pampa, district president, presides and will compete in the state officer nominee contest.

During the day, boys from 17 area schools will enter a public speaking contest, select district nominees for area and state office, and vie for other FFA awards and scholarships.

Doc Cornutt of Pampa is a contestant in the district public speaking contest. Judges are Foster Whaley, Gray County agent, and David Heath, high school speech teacher here.

Boys must prepare their own speeches for judging. District winner will enter the area contest in May.

Advanced degrees include top awards for best high school students in their first, second, and third or fourth year of agriculture.

The third or fourth year degree is for the state farmer award. Each student who applies is judged on his entire agricultural program for three years, his leadership, projects, contest participation and other records.

Bill Skaggs and Andy Cole of Pampa, will apply for the state farmer award, the highest award presented by the state FFA association.

Fred Vanderburg Jr., a sophomore animal husbandry major at Texas Technological College and a farmer near here, will apply for the American farmer award, the highest award FFA presents.

To qualify for the American farmer award, the applicant must have been out of high school a year.

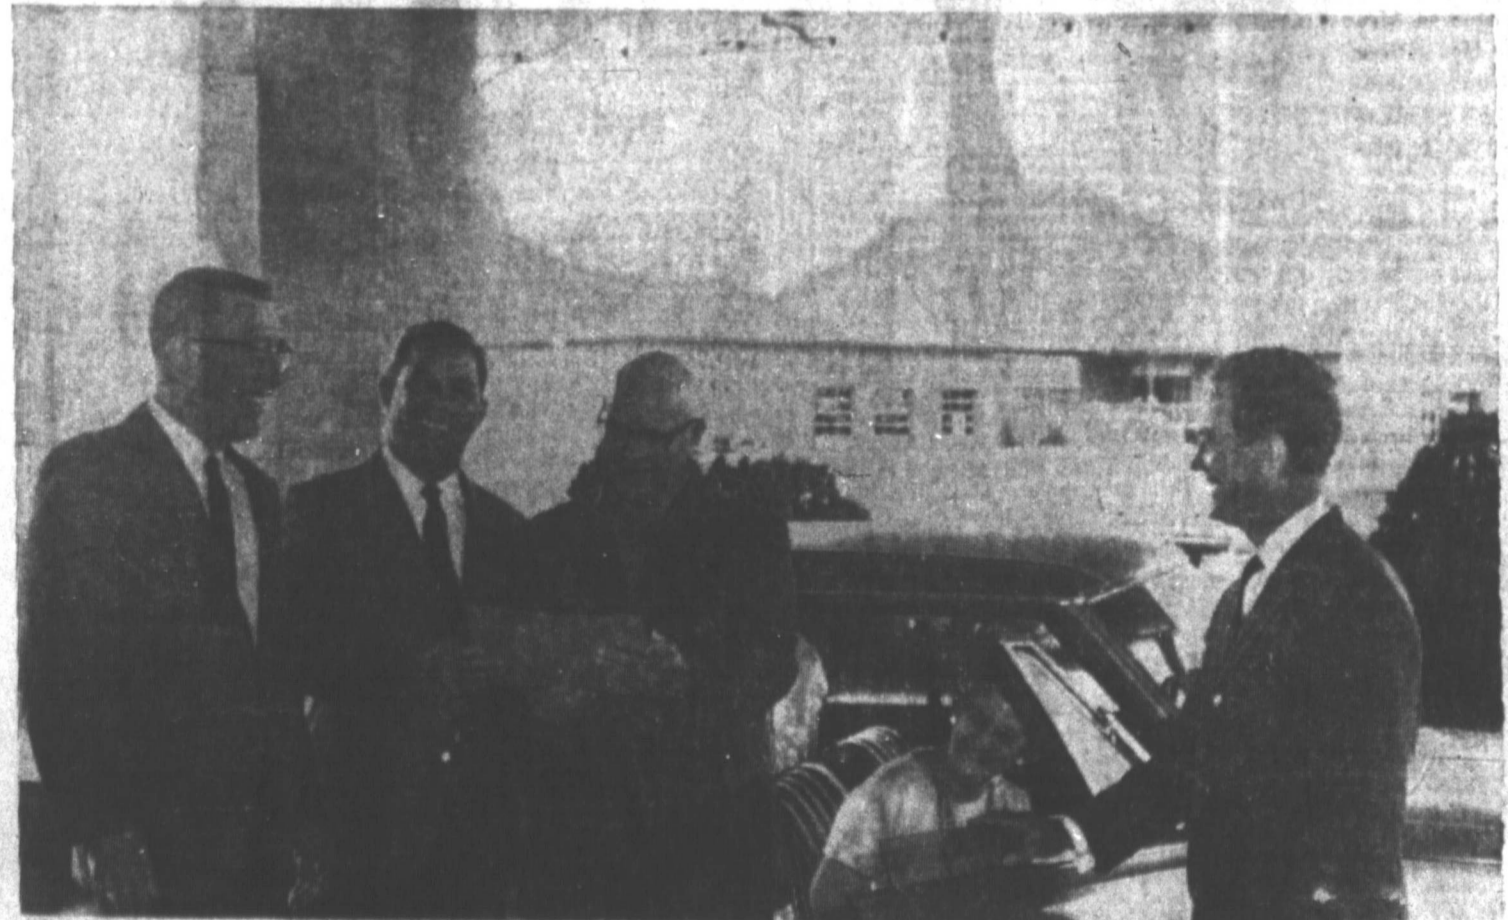

Students who win in district contests will compete May 13 in Amarillo at the Area 1 events.

They will select area 1 officers, conduct sweetheart, talent and public speaking contests, and select candidates for the advanced degrees, farmer awards and scholarships.

Ann Monroe of Pampa will represent Top O' Texas district in area sweetheart contest.

The state FFA meeting is slated for July 19-21 in Dallas.

School And You

By SUSAN LIGHT

Newspaper Enterprise Assn. DEAR MRS. LIGHT: Our son, a sixth-grader, has always been a top-notch student. Until this year all of his teachers have told me what a wonderful boy he is. This year's teacher—a man—seems to be vaguely dissatisfied with him. He says that Jim (not his name) is extremely intelligent but not very creative. I've asked him what we can do to help Jim at home, but he doesn't seem to know. Do you have any suggestions, Mrs. Light?

DISAPPOINTED MOTHER ANSWER: Recent studies indicate that there isn't much relationship between I.Q. and creativity. The chances are a 17-50-50 that a child with superior intelligence will also be creative.

The happy part, of course, is that a child with an average—or even below—average—I.Q. may outstrip his brighter classmates in coming up with original ideas. Let's not begrudge these children their opportunity to shine in at least one facet of school life.

In Jim's case the wellsprings of creativity may have been dried up by the very things that have made him a straight-A student. Children who are high in intelligence and low in creativity tend to be unwilling to take chances. Learning facts and single right answers is their stock in trade. They'd rather be right than anything.

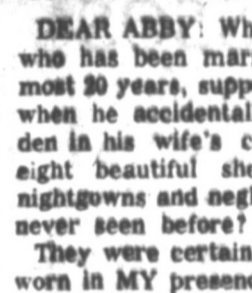

Such children are usually somewhat reserved in relations with their friends, though a bit unpopular. Their fear of error makes them pursue paths that are least open to criticism.

Husband 'Wonders' If Wife Is Wandering

DEAR ABBY: What is a man who has been married for almost 30 years, supposed to think when he accidentally finds hidden in his wife's closet six or eight beautiful sheer, shortie nightgowns and negligees he has never seen before?

They were certainly not over worn in MY presence. Perhaps that explains why she slips her luggage in and out of the house when making increasingly more frequent out-of-town trips—alone.

Please answer in your column, as I am beginning to WONDER DEAR WONDER: Either your wife is taking in laundry, or you have caught her with evidence that anyone can see through.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for 30 years and have two married children. While they were growing up my husband took me on business trips, family drives, and week-end trips. As soon as the children left home he stopped taking me places.

Now he goes out alone several nights a week, and he plays cards and bowls on week-ends. I am never invited, and if I ask to go with him, he stays home and sulks all evening.

A widower who lives in our neighborhood enjoys driving and would like my company on short trips to scenic areas around our city. Should I go?

"I'm on the floor and I need help!"

These were the first words Mrs. Myrtle Allen heard when she answered the call on her switchboard. A telephone operator in Dallas, Mrs. Allen tells what happened next: "He could hardly talk," she recalled, "but it was evident he was stricken, on the floor helpless and had managed to dial 'Operator' for help. I told him to stay on the floor and not to worry because I wouldn't leave him."

With practiced efficiency, Mrs. Allen swung into action. Using another line, she called for an ambulance, alerted the man's next-door neighbor and notified his nearby relatives.

All the while, she kept the man on the phone, cautioning him not to move. An ambulance arrived and rushed the man to a hospital. After being assured he was taken care of, Mrs. Allen returned to her normal work routine.

Later, the man, who had suffered a heart attack, called the telephone company and told how he had been helped. "Had it not been for that operator, I would have died," he said. "She was insistent that I keep quiet on the floor. The doctors told me it saved my life."

"It was thanks enough to me that he got help on time," said Mrs. Allen. "Any operator would have done the same thing."

We're proud of Mrs. Myrtle Allen. Her actions in a time of trouble exemplify the highest ideals of the spirit of service of telephone people.

MALOUF ABRAHAM REPORTS Representatives Come From All Walks of Life

I have had a resume worked up on the House that I thought would be interesting. Our 150 members range in age from 23 to 78 years. The youngest being Charles F. Fennell from Holliday and the oldest being Col. John E. Blaine from El Paso.

We have 61 lawyers, 18 farm-ers, 16 Catholics, 16 Presbyterians. All the other denominations are represented in the remaining members.

We have 61 lawyers; 18 farmer-stockmen, and the other members represent about all types of businesses and professions.

From these figures you can see that we have a good cross section of the residents of Texas — including all ethnic groups.
