

Chinese Defector Says Quote From Mao Gave Courage to Flee

NEW YORK (UPI)—Communist China's leading musician, who defected to the United States with his wife and two children, is thankful to one man for giving him courage to escape the terror of Mao Tse-tung's "cultural revolution."

Ironically, that man is Mao Tse-tung himself. Ma Si-tson, 54, the former director of Peking's Central Conservatory of Music and vice chairman of the Union of Chinese Musicians, told of his persecution and escape from Red China during a news conference in a Manhattan apartment where he has been staying since December.

Ma said he and his family were grateful to Chairman Mao for having written the words which brought him the strength and determination to get out of China and seek asylum in the United States.

The quotation from Mao: "Keep your resolve, do not fear any sacrifice and sweep away all the difficulties in order to achieve victory."

The soft-spoken concert violnist said he "achieved victory" after being kept for 103 days in a "dreadful hideout for devils and demons."

Ma said he was the victim of public degradation and attempted brainwashings, a part of the "cultural revolution" sweeping China before his escape. He called the upheaval a "disastrous blow to culture."

The disclosure of Ma's flight to the United States came from the State Department Wednesday. A spokesman refused to say anything of the circumstances involved in the defection, only that Ma had sought and received asylum.

Later, Ma met with newsmen in the 3-1-2-room apartment of his brother, Ma Si-hon, a naturalized U.S. citizen and also a concert violinist. The brother acted as translator for Ma, who speaks little English.

The defector refused to give any details of his escape from the Chinese mainland, saying he feared for his wife and two grown children and "it involves the safety of many people."

Exiled Chinese intellectuals had been aware of Ma's defection for at least a month, according to Columbia University Prof. Chou Wen-chung, a Chinese-born musicologist.

"Obviously he was helped by someone in the government who wanted to save him from the Red Guard," said Chou. "He (Ma) was too prominent. I doubt that he could have just disappeared and taken his family with him."

Ma said there was "no hope for people like me" in Communist China.

"The existing conditions in China," he continued, "the cultural revolution in which people were being persecuted... made it difficult for people to go on doing what they want to do."

Asked about his own politics, he replied: "Although I was never a Communist party member, I believed that the Communists would lead China to prosperity and democracy."

Ma, described by Prof. Chou as a composer who attempted to blend Western and Oriental music forms, said: "The Red Guard branded me an authority of the reactionary capitalist class."

Ma said he had last seen his brother when he left for the United States in 1948. The next year he left Hong Kong for Peking and the same year became a co-founder of the Central Conservatory in the Red Chinese capital.

He escaped from the main- (See DEFECTOR, Page 3)

U.S. Ending Aid Program to India And Pakistan

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States is ending its massive military aid program to Pakistan, once a pillar of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization, and to rival India, in hopes of averting an arms race between the two nations.

The State Department, in announcing the decision Wednesday, also disclosed that restrictions are being lifted on the sale of spare parts for combat equipment already in the hands of the two countries.

The move will enable Pakistan to buy badly needed replacement parts for U.S. supplied tanks and jet aircraft which have been out of commission since the 1965 Indo-Pakistan fighting over Kashmir.

The U.S. emphasized, however, it will sell the spare parts on a "case-by-case basis" and will "continue to keep its military sales policy under careful review to insure that it is not contributing to an arms race between India and Pakistan."

Pakistan has received an estimated $2-billion in military aid since 1954. India, which began receiving assistance in 1962, wound up with about $200 million worth of military equipment.

Military aid to both countries has been suspended since fighting broke out in 1965, and an embargo on spare parts for combat equipment has also been in effect since that time.

The U.S. military assistance group in Pakistan and the U.S. military supply mission in India will be closed down by July 1, the State Department said.

Officials said the decision not to resume military aid to the two nations followed an extensive review of U.S. policy.

Other nations, including potential arms suppliers, are being asked to cooperate in holding down the sale of military equipment to India and Pakistan.

U.S. officials do not believe the termination of military aid to Pakistan will force the closing of an American listening post at the south end of the Khyber Pass.

Pampa Rotary Club Marks 40th Year

Two charter members and three wives of charter members were specially honored yesterday when the Pampa Rotary Club held its 40th anniversary celebration in the Coronado Inn.

The local club was organized in April 1927 and became charter number 2492 of Rotary International. Rotary is now composed of more than 10,000 clubs throughout the world.

Longtime local Rotarian Travis Lively Sr. recognized the 40 years of service to the club and community by C. P. Buckler and DeLea Vicars. Both served the club as president.

Another charter member, Rev. James Todd was unable to attend. Each was given a desk set.

Wives of deceased charter members, Mrs. A. H. Doucette, and Mrs. Lynn Boyd, along with Mrs. DeLea Vicars were presented orchid corsages by Lively.

Rev. Harry Vanderpool gave a short resume of the organization, "A Look Back at Rotary," and Dr. Ed Williams served as master of ceremonies. Fred Neslage introduced the guests.

Following the program a 40th Birthday cake was served.

Pampa Rotary Club projects through the years include contributions to Boys Ranch, Girl Scout House, Little League, City Park Wading Pool and Park equipment, City summer recreation program, student scholarships, as well as the American Field Service program.

Lee Fraser is the club's president and David Tucker is president-elect.

State Paints Sordid Image Of Coppolino

NAPLES, Fla. (UPI)—The Coppolino murder trial jury is being lectured on an abstract level about chemistry, but the picture that state envisions is sordidly concrete: a murderer holding a woman down with one hand while he injects a paralyzing poison with the other.

A chemist with a folksy air, but with a bewildering array of technical names and mumbo-jumbo process for laboratory sleuthing was the witness today in the state's attempt to prove that Dr. Carl A. Coppolino killed his wife with a drug injection.

Dr. Charles J. Umberger, the graying, bow-tied director of the toxicological laboratory of the New York City medical examiner's office, is telling the all-male jury in almost occult detail how he found components of a drug hitherto thought untraceable in the exhumed body of Carmela Coppolino, 32.

The jury pays him a decent amount of attention, but in the back of his mind must be the words of Umberger's boss who preceded him to the stand, Dr. Milton Halpern, 64, New York's Chief Medical Examiner. Halpern is prepared to say flatly when he resumes the stand that a king-sized shot of succinylcholine chloride killed Carmela on Aug. 28, 1965.

Before he stepped aside for the technical testimony Wednesday, Halpern, a grandfatherly type who had the jurors hanging on his words, told how he performed an autopsy three and one-half months after Mrs. Coppolino died. She had been a healthy woman, he said he found.

Freezing Weather Is Predicted For Tonight

Temperatures May Drop to 27 Degrees

Pampans may not believe it's Spring tomorrow morning when they wake up to freezing temperatures predicted here by Pampa area forecasters.

The Amarillo weather bureau forecasters predicted late this forenoon temperatures will drop as low as 27 degrees before tomorrow morning. If the mercury slides that low it will nip fruit trees, already budded out, and call for the covering of recently planted Spring flowers to keep them from being killed.

In thunder and lightning showers last night Pampa received .25 of rain. Added to the 1.65 received here since Tuesday morning, that makes 1.90, a "real drought-breaking" rain, as some farmers have said.

Skies are predicted fair through tomorrow, but cloudy Saturday.

Northwesterly winds 10 to 20 mph are expected tonight.

Temperatures could warm up to the middle 60s tomorrow afternoon, and stay warmer Saturday.

Yesterday's high was 78, dropping to 40 for the low temperature here last night.

An advancing cold front set off tornadoes and damaging winds in Texas today, left snow clinging to the mountain scrub brush in West Texas, and gave some areas more rain in the storm than they had had all year.

Winds tore down a church steeple at Tyler, destroyed a garage, uprooted trees, caused much roof damage to homes, and overturned house trailers. The damage was in Tyler and to the southeast.

The sheriff's office had a tornado report at Lake Tyler. Winds gusted in downtown Tyler up to 40 miles an hour.

The Fort Wolters helicopter school reported damage to some 100 Army TH 55A trainer helicopters at Downing Army heliport southeast of Fort Wolters.

Reds Blast Key Bridge

SAIGON (UPI)—Communist forces bombarded the heart of Quang Tri City with mortar attacks today, hitting a U.S. military advisory compound. In coordinated attacks they blew up four coastal bridges used for transporting American war supplies.

Quang Tri, a city of 15,000 just below the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) was attacked only a week ago by a force of several thousand Viet Cong and North Vietnamese who have infiltrated in strength across the border into the northernmost province of South Vietnam.

There was no immediate word on U.S. casualties in today's attack.

The attackers blew up two bridges on the city's southern outskirts and two further south in a series of coordinated attacks over an 80-mile stretch of the north-south coastal highway which supplies both U.S. and South Vietnamese forces.

The most important bridge blown up by Viet Cong "river rat" forces was the one linking the big Marine base at Da Nang to a major oil storage area. This was the main link between the Da Nang Marines and Leatherneck units operating in the jungles to the north.

One of the bridges—a 30-foot span about 14 miles south of Da Nang—was hit just as a convoy of Vietnamese armored cars moved across it. No car was separated by the gaping hole from the others and the guerrillas opened fire on it from three sides, inflicting some casualties.

Quang Tri is just nine miles below the DMZ and DaNang is 75 miles to the south. A spokesman said the guerrillas fired more than 100 rounds of heavy mortars into the city, hitting both U.S. and Vietnamese installations. Targets included government offices and the jail.

The blown bridges were considered so important engineering units immediately began installing pontoon bridges to handle the vital military traffic at a time the Communists were ominously increasing their activities in the area.

The big one just south of Da Nang handled both rail and road traffic. It was hit by guerrillas who floated down the river under cover of darkness and attached explosives to the center supports.

Meanwhile in Saigon U.S. officials reported 177 Americans were killed and 1,345 wounded in combat last week and U.S. troop strength in South Vietnam rose by 3,000 to 438,000. They said 1,478 Communists were killed in fighting last week while the South Vietnamese suffered 284 men killed and other allies lost 16 men.

The attacks came a week almost to the hour after about 1,500 guerrillas in six coordinated attacks slashed into Quang Tri City in the last daring Viet Cong offensive in months. They killed or wounded almost 300 (See BLAST, Page 3)

Pampa Airfield's Homing Facility To Be Dedicated

Four Federal Aviation officials from Albuquerque, N. M., will be in Pampa tomorrow for dedication of the newly-installed low frequency homing instrument and approach facility at Perry Lefors Airfield.

The ceremony will start with a 12 o'clock noon luncheon in the Quivira Room of Coronado Inn.

FAA officials in attendance will be Paul Cannon, supervisor of the Albuquerque area office; James King, district chief of airway facilities; Dave Bussey, chief of air traffic; and R. G. Discamp, district engineer of the FAA Airport Branch.

Local officials will include Mayor Jim Nation, District Judge Grainger McElhany, County Judge S. R. Leming, Jr.; Wynn Veate, chairman, George Cree Jr. and Ernest Wilkinson, of the chamber of commerce aviation committee; E. E. Shelhamer, chamber president; and Capt. Ralph Prock, chief pilot for Cabot Corp.

The homing device was installed at the Pampa airfield through the combined endeavors of federal and local agencies.

Through efforts of Congressman Bob Price, the FAA installed the radio transmitter. Gray County provided for the monitor and antenna and installation and maintenance.

Prock worked with County Judge Leming in obtaining the device through cooperation of the Albuquerque FAA office.

Chamber president Shelhamer will serve as master of ceremonies at tomorrow's luncheon, following which the luncheon guests will go to Perry Lefors (See AIRFIELD, Page 3)

Debate Resumed By Legislators Following Pause

AUSTIN (UPI)—After a legislative pause due to the death of Rep. James A. Hairgrove of Lake Jackson, the House resumes debate today on a plan to let farmers levy fees on themselves for research and promotion.

The 41-year-old Hairgrove, serving his first term in the House, was found dead shortly before noon Wednesday in his Austin apartment. A justice of the peace said he died of a heart attack.

Both the House and Senate adjourned abruptly when they learned of the death of Hairgrove, who owned radio station KBRZ in Freeport.

Members were debating a bill by Rep. Delwin Jones of Lubbock on the farmers' levy for research when they adjourned Wednesday.

Prosecution Rests Case in Speck Trial

PEORIA, Ill. (UPI)—The defense today tries to prove Richard Speck, on trial for his life on charges of killing eight nurses, is the innocent victim of outraged public sentiment.

Gerald W. Getty, an attorney who has defended 402 capital cases and has never had one executed, has to cut through a web of testimony and evidence presented by the state which wants the jury to send the 25-year-old drifter to the electric chair.

It was believed there was an even chance Getty would call Speck to testify in his own defense.

The state has built a case based on the words of Corazon Amurao, the 24-year-old Filipino who said she survived the slaughter by rolling beneath a bed.

The prosecution wound up its presentation Wednesday after calling 42 witnesses and offering 32 pieces of evidence over a period of eight days.

Getty said in his opening statement that he planned to show the jury that Speck was arrested and charged with killing the young women because he was in the area and the city of Chicago demanded someone be named as the perpetrator of the crime.

Getty said then he believed Speck had been sleeping off a drunk the night of July 13-14, the hours of darkness when a man-emerged the South Side Chicago apartment that was home to eight young women who were murdered one by one.

LBJ Promises Aid to Latins

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (UPI)—President Johnson today promised Latin American nations he would ask Congress for a "substantial contribution" to help them set up a common market.

Declaring that "the clock is ticking" and the hemisphere must move swiftly toward social and economic gains, Johnson said in a speech prepared for delivery at the 19th Inter-American summit conference.

"The time is now. The responsibility is ours. Let us declare the next 10 years 'the decade of urgency,'" Johnson said he had already said before Congress a program of future aid that would include transition into an integrated regional economy.

Without citing the aid increase figure of $1.5 billion over five years contained in his March 13 proposal to Congress, the President reaffirmed its conditional commitments. He did so even though the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, prior to his departure from Washington, rejected a re-orientation he requested which would have given specific advance backing to his promises.

Listing Latin American needs ranging from schools and hospitals to "cleaning out red tape and acting with the sense of emergency our times require," Johnson told his summit colleagues:

"I pledge to you today that I will do all I can, in my time of leadership, to help you meet these challenges."

Speaking as "a ready partner" in Latin America's efforts to lift itself by its own bootstraps, Johnson pointed to the summit meeting's major goal of economic integration through a common market that would tear down the trade barriers which have stalled (See LBJ, Page 3)

Senate Ethics Committee Is Asked to Reopen Dodd Case

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Four former aides who rifled Sen. Thomas J. Dodd's files are asking the Senate Ethics Committee to reopen its inquiry into his financial affairs to get at "the heart of the Dodd case."

James Boyd, Marjorie C. A. repper, Michael V. O'Hare and Terry Golden, who removed thousands of documents from the files of their boss, told the ethics committee in a seven-page letter they felt it had excluded "more than a score of serious matters" from last month's hearings.

But Sen. Wallace F. Bennett, vice chairman of the ethics committee, said today the panel "investigated all of the charges" against the Connecticut Democrat and decided not to hold hearings on claims substantiated solely by "documents stolen from Sen. Dodd's files."

"We had eminent legal counsel that advised us we could not use any of the material in those documents," Bennett said. "They were tainted because they were stolen."

He said the committee came to grips with the more serious charges "which were capable of being proved by evidence we could gather outside."

Bennett said no further hearings were planned.

"We have enough to base our decision," he said. There was no firm indication when the committee might issue its report.

In their latest letter to the panel, Dodd's four ex-staffers accused him of exploiting his office by:

- Accepting cash contributions and expensive gifts from firms and industries under investigation by senate committees of which he was a member.

AFTER 32 YEARS

Memory of Pampa's 1935 Duster Remains Sharp

By WANDA HUFF
News Staff Writer

It's been 32 years since Pampa has been blacked out completely by a rolling, gritty dust storm like the "big one of '35," but Pampa residents have not forgotten.

They haven't forgotten the "whopping big blizzard" of '37 either, but as Mrs. Katie Vincent, resident here since 1903, said, "After those came in, I never worried anymore. I just let them pass."

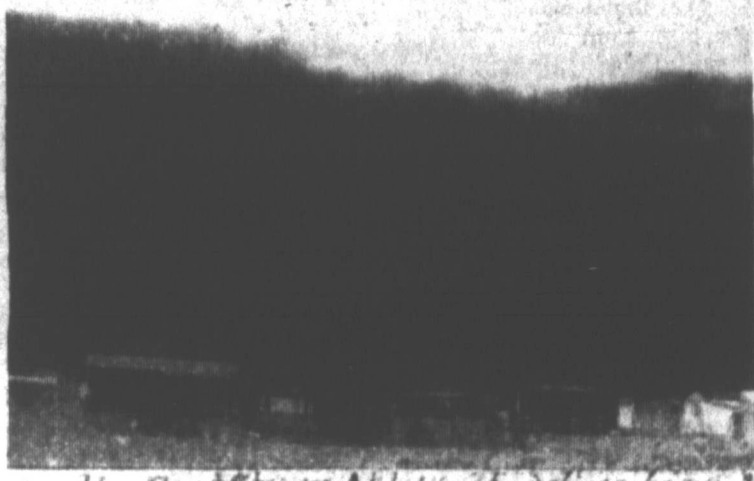

The dust storm of 1932 rolled in across the prairies without warning late one Sunday evening on April 14.

It disrupted church services, "messed up house cleaning" for months, and "scared some folks into thinking the world was coming to an end." Mrs. Vincent and Tracy Cary, founder of the Pampa Genealogical and Historical Society, said

The duster was described as an ominous looking black cloud that boiled in from the northwest, and left behind tubfuls of dirt in every home in the city, Cary said.

"It was so bad we had to put wet cloths over our faces to breathe. I heard that people sitting in cars downtown couldn't see the outline of the person sitting next to them," Cary said.

Mrs. Vincent declared the dust storms that blow in now could ill be compared with those that storm dark enough to black out the sun periodically through the 1930's.

"That big one of 1935, some day and had just finished cleaning my house from the front room to the back I was sweeping the dust out the back door, the lights on our car that's looked up and saw another one coming. The houses were not so tight then, and dust sifted in everywhere," Mrs. Vincent said.

People whose family has lived early in the afternoon on that here 60 years or more, the April day, 1935, you wouldn't Cary's say in this area you can have thought even a "dust devil" was about, much less a not compare with those that storm dark enough to black out the sun periodically through the 1930's.

"One freakish day about two years ago, it was clear in the morning, till about 9 o'clock, began to mist rain by 11, was blowing snow like a blizzard at noon and by 2 p.m., the sun came out, melted the snow and dried up the rain. By 5 p.m., you couldn't tell we had even had a storm," Cary said.

Cary said his father, the late C. E. Cary, former county judge and justice of the peace here, ascribed confused weather to meteors that fell in the year of Haley's Comet.

"I remember one year it was so hot in January we had the windows open and so cold in July we wore overcoats to the July 4th picnic," Cary said.

Two years after the 1935 duster, Pampa was hit by a blizzard that blew in black long drifts high as two story houses, he said.

Before the norther of 1937 Pampa area residents toughed out adverse weather and "didn't dismiss school, but after so many school buses were stranded, more people started paying attention to all kinds of severe weather alerts, Cary said.

Cheerleader Tryouts Set For Friday

Two special events are slated at the high school field house tomorrow afternoon; tryouts for five high school cheerleaders posts and installation of student body officers.

To qualify for cheerleader tryouts, a student must have an 80 overall average, be of sophomore or junior classification and cannot have failed more than one academic subject during the semester preceding the election.

Students will vote at 1 p.m. on 25 candidates for cheerleader posts. Mrs. Terry Cully is sponsor.

Out of the five selected tomorrow, students will select a head cheerleader in a later election, John Braly, student body president, said.

After cheerleader election, Cameron Marsh, high school principal, will install new student body officers.

Officers to be installed are Dwight Rogers, president; Tommy Rose, vice president; and Mary Jane Rose, secretary.

Outgoing officers, Braly and Billy Hawkins, vice president, will make talks to students and faculty members attending the programs.

Truck Strikes Gas Pumps

Approximately $700 damage was sustained by two gas pumps at a service station in the 200 block of W. Brown Wednesday night.

A 58-year-old Pampa man, J. P. Henderson, was treated and released from Highland General Hospital as a result of the accident.

According to a Pampa police report, a pickup driven by Robert Carroll Aycock, 32, of 1213 E. Frederic, pulled into the station and struck the pumps.

Aycock reportedly left the station and traveled east on Brown, then stopped and called an ambulance for Henderson, a passenger in the pickup.

No charges have been filed in the incident.

City Commission To Release Units In Paving Project

City Commissioners will meet in a called session at 8:30 a.m. tomorrow at city hall to approve release of the first six to 10 blocks of Pampa's 140-block street paving program.

City Engineer B. M. Wofford said today Beryl Street is expected to be the first to be paved Monday when the paving contractor arrives to start work on the $750,000 project.

High Plains Pavers of Dumas are contractors.

More than 800 of the 1,400 property owners involved have signed up in the city improvement project.

Paving units released tomorrow include six to 10 blocks of a street where 100 per cent of the property owners have signed up for paving work.

The Top O' Texas Racing Pigeon Club flew its fourth race of the season from Garden City, Kan., recently.

Pigeon Race From Denver Scheduled

Fifty-two pigeons were released in overcast weather and southerly winds, according to Jim Cantrell, club member.

On the homeward journey, the birds encountered winds up to 50 mph, and because of this, results were poor, Cantrell said.

The first five pigeons arriving belonged to the following: Ed Pennington, Phillips, first; Gordon Miller, Pampa, second through fifth.

The club will fly its next race from Denver, Colo., Saturday, a distance of 370 miles.

Items Taken From Garage

Canned goods, chairs and tools have been reported stolen from a garage, according to a Pampa police report.

Caughy Worley, 1322 Charles, told police that he had been out of town for the past five months and someone had taken a board off a south window of his garage and taken the items.

Man in Skirt Is Arrested For Robbing Dallas Grocery

DALLAS (UPI) — The moral of this probably is that a man who dresses like a woman with criminal intent ought to take a change of clothes with him.

It started at 8 p.m. recently when the operator of a drive-in grocery in Northwest Dallas reported to police that a 30-year-old Negro woman in a mini skirt had robbed him.

Within 30 minutes police had arrested a suspect in a mini skirt with a bouffant hairdo and high button shoes. Only the suspect was a man and not a woman.

The police put the man, still in mini skirt, high button shoes and bouffant hairdo, in the m.w.'s section of city jail.

Came the police lineup today. After a line of men arrested for various offenses, in straggled a knobby-kneed figure in mini skirt, high button shoes and bouffant hairdo.

After the lineup and the laughter, the suspect went back to jail for investigation of armed robbery, still dressed as a woman.

Tennessee House Votes to Repeal 'Monkey Law'

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — The Tennessee House voted overwhelmingly Wednesday to repeal the state's controversial "monkey law" that insigated one of the most famous trials in American legal history.

After heated debate, the repeal measure was passed 52-27 and sent to the Senate.

A number of similar bills had been introduced in the legislature over the years, but it was the first time that one had been approved by the house.

Watched by a caged monkey, brought in by a sergeant-at-arms as a "guest out of order," Rep. Jack Smith led off the repeal bill he sponsored.

Smith said the measure would "remove a law which has caused trouble in Tennessee." He referred to the 42-year old statute which was the basis for the 1925 Scopes "monkey trial."

The law prohibits the teaching in public schools of any evolution theories conflicting with the divine creation of man.

John T. Scopes, a high school biology teacher at Dayton, Tenn., agreed to test the law in court and told his students about Darwin's theory that man may have descended from the monkey.

Charged with violating the antievolution law, Scopes was tried in a carnival-like atmosphere that captured national headlines. He virtually was lost in a classic legal battle between famed attorney Clarence Darrow, aiding the defense, and former presidential candidate William Jennings Bryan, helping the prosecution.

Scopes was convicted and fined $100.

Rep. W. A. Richardson, in opposing Smith's bill Wednesday, used much the same arguments as Bryan did in 1925.

"The word of God Almighty and the teachings of Jesus Christ have left the world more than the teachings of Darwin. I don't believe in fable, but I do believe in the Bible," he said.

Tomorrow Is Deadline For Hearing Test

Deadline for registering pre-school children to be tested in the Junior Service League Speech and Hearing Clinic is tomorrow, April 14.

Tests are scheduled for April 18-19 in the First Presbyterian Church by trained staff members of the Amarillo Regional Hearing and Speech Center.

Earlier this month, approximately 600 letters and appointment cards were mailed to parents of pre-school children by the Junior Service League. The letters contained cards to be filled out and returned in order to expedite testing, which can be done by appointment only.

The appointment cards should be returned by tomorrow.

Anyone who did not receive a letter and an enclosed card, but desires an appointment, may contact Mrs. George B. Cree Jr., 1912 Charles, clinic chairman, or Mrs. W. L. Arrington, 2111 Dogwood.

The Junior Service League is underwriting the costs of the free testing clinic with proceeds netted from the Charity Ball given last fall.

hour hit the helicopter facility early today and the damage was estimated at $400,000 to $500,000, ranging from minor to major among the aircraft. The steeple of the Pleasant Hill Baptist Church was toppled and limbs were torn from many trees nearby.

The Wichita Falls area got 4.5 inches of rain from the storm, which was more than it had gotten all year.

Winds ripped the roof off a chicken house near U.S. 190 and dropped the wreckage on the highway. At Tom Cochran's property nearby all trees were uprooted and his porch suffered wind damage.

In the Childress area, winds believed to have been a tornado demolished an abandoned brick school house in the High Point community south of Childress. There was no injury and residents found out about the damage when they awakened around dawn.

The Walls Manufacturing Co. warehouse under construction at Cleburne was blown down by winds. Walls already erected were toppled.

Some areas got record low temperatures out of the storm, which added a finny look to Spring.

Bittery winds, heavy rains and, in some places, hail, announced the arrival of the cool air today.

A line of thunderstorms that stretched from Oklahoma City to Central Texas moved slowly eastward.

SEEING RED
MADISON, Wis. (UPI)—Mrs. R. V. Anderson emphasized her campaign to get the legislature to legalize sale of colored oleomargarine by wearing a yellow dress every day.

Tuesday she appeared in a red frock to testify at a hearing on a bill to ban sale of obscene material to minors. She explained the change by saying, "red is for pornography."

KNobby KNEES
DALLAS (UPI)—A mini-skirted bandit robbed a grocery but when the suspect was brought in police pointed the way to the men's section of the jail.

Police said it was the suspect's knobby knees showing up in the lineup that tipped them off that the bandit—who wore a bouffant hairdo and high-button shoes—was a man.

Pilots Involved in Accidental Bombing Fined
SAIGON (UPI)—A U.S. military board today fined and grounded three Air Force officers for carelessness that helped cause the worst accidental bombing of the Vietnam war.

The special board of inquiry said both human and mechanical errors resulted in the killing of about 100 men, women and children and the wounding of 175 more March 2 at the village of Lang Ve.

The board investigated the four officers who manned the two F4C Phantom jet fighter-bombers that bombed Lang Ve. They found three of the four at fault.

The board ruled the bombing accidental. It ordered the trio to forfeit half their pay for up to two months for carelessness. They also ordered the three grounded until another board tests their ability and decides if they should fly again.

Names of the three were not released pending an appeal.

The board said faulty navigational equipment was partly to blame.

A CAPTIVATING KIND OF CAKE

Here's a perfect choice for dessert at home or away: mellow, moist Prune Cake made with buttermilk, spices and nuts. Top while hot with a tangy sweet glaze and serve with icy-cold milk.

Fresh Cake With Frost Milk Delicious Anytime, Anywhere

A slice of cake fresh from the oven and a frosty glass of milk make wonderful eating any time milk make wonderful eating any time. It's a good snack, a delightful dessert, a fine finale for a meal or a picnic. The change-over to summer style eating provides many opportunities to enjoy a treat like this, so it's a good time to try some new cake recipes.

This particular new recipe harks back to some old-fashioned spice cakes that utilize buttermilk, always available on farms in the days when farm wives did their own churning. Nowadays delicious cultured buttermilk, always uniform in flavor and quality, is sold in food stores everywhere. A favorite beverage for its thirst-quenching qualities, buttermilk contributes homespun flavor and valuable milk protein to this delectable glaze-topped cake. There's a fragrant trio of splces in this Prune Cake, cinnamon, nutmeg, all-spice; yet the spiciness is never overwhelming. Along with the buttermilk, chopped prunes help make it tender and moist. Nuts add their pleasing crunchiness. No frosting is needed on Prune Cake but you can top it with a slightly piquant glaze that adds a lot. It's a simple blend of buttermilk, sugar, and corn syrup lightly seasoned with vanilla, and it goes on hot so it permeates the still-hot cake with luscious sweetness.

You'll find this cake an ideal dessert to carry to picnics or potlucks. Serve it with plenty of refreshing cold milk.

- 2 tablespoons drippings or other fat
- 1 small onion, sliced

- 1/2 green pepper, chopped fine
- 2 cups cooked or canned tomatoes, or
- 2 1/2 cups raw tomatoes, cut in pieces

- 3/4 cup sugar
- 1-3 cup buttermilk
- 1 tablespoon light corn syrup

Cook prunes according to package directions; cool, then chop finely. Set aside. In a mixing bowl cream butter; gradually add 1 cup sugar and beat until light and fluffy. Beat in eggs, one at a time. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla. Sift together flour, baking powder, baking soda, cinnamon, nutmeg, allspice and salt; add to creamed mixture alternately with 1 cup buttermilk, beginning and ending with dry ingredients. Stir in prunes and nuts; turn into a buttered 9-inch square pan. Bake in a preheated 350 degree oven 40 minutes. To prepare Glaze: In a small saucepan heat 3/4-cup sugar, 1-3 cup buttermilk, corn syrup and 1/2-teaspoon vanilla to boiling point. Place cake pan on wire rack; pour hot glaze over hot cakes; cool. Makes 12 servings.

Food Additives Enhance Flavor

By GAYNOR MADDOX Newspaper Enterprise Assn. Q — I'm told that there are a lot of additives in everyday foods. Just what do they mean by "additives"?

A — Food additives today include flavors, flavor enhancers, preservatives, emulsifiers, artificial sweeteners, vitamins, colors, anticaking compounds, anti-foaming agents and so on. Without them, most of our new food products would be impossible — or at least inferior by present standards, according to a report in Chemical and Engineering News.

The report states that today we use 3 pounds of additives per person a year and quotes the Arthur D. Little Co. as estimating that by 1975 their use will be almost double the 1965 consumption.

Q — I see a lot of new toppings in my grocery that look like whipped cream. What are they made of?

A — All that glitters is not gold, nor are all those toppings in tubs and pressurized tubes or cans the same as good old-fashioned whipped cream. Today's whipped products can be made from vegetable oil — based liquids in pressurized cans, dry vegetable oil-based liquids, evaporated milk and nonfat dry milk. Of course, pasteurized heavy cream, with at least 1 per cent milk fat, has been traditionally used for whipping. Its primary advantage is its flavor, which most people agree is not usually matched by the non-cream new whipped toppings.

Manners Make Friends

Vindictive letters about a company hurts the individual more than the firm.

Chicken Goes Delectably Oriental

Picture-pretty and party-perfect describes Sweet-Sour Chicken, a delectable dish whispering a hint of the Oriental. Simmer the chicken pieces in a sauce of pineapple preserves or orange marmalade (try one, then vary the dish next time by using the other) and vinegar. The Cantonese touch, a soy sauce-cornstarch thickener, goes next, then green pepper and onion. When the sauce is clear and thickened to your liking, the glazed, Sweet-Sour Chicken is ready to be served atop well seasoned rice.

- Sweet-Sour Chicken
- 2 tablespoons cooking oil
  - 2 tablespoons soy sauce
  - 1 clove garlic, minced
  - 1 (3-pound) frying chicken, cut into serving pieces
  - 1 teaspoon salt
  - 1 jar (12 ounce) pineapple preserves or orange marmalade
  - 1/2 cup vinegar
  - 1/2 cup water
  - 2 tablespoons cornstarch
  - 1 large green pepper, cut into 1-inch pieces
  - 1/2 cup sliced green onion
  - 2 cups hot seasoned cooked rice
  - 2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
  - 2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley
- Heat cooking oil in large skillet. Add garlic and heat. Add chicken pieces; brown well on all sides, turning pieces as needed. Sprinkle with salt. Combine preserves and vinegar; pour over chicken. Cover and cook slowly until chicken is tender, 30 to 40 minutes. Combine water, cornstarch and soy sauce; mix well. Pour over chicken. Add green pepper and onion; heat until sauce is clear and thickened. Combine hot seasoned cooked rice, butter and parsley; mix well. Spoon onto serving dish and top with chicken and sauce. Yield: 4 servings.

Gala Dessert Takes Time But Worth It

By GAYNOR MADDOX Newspaper Enterprise Assn. We're getting nearer the season for announcement parties, weddings and graduation celebrations. So here's a beautiful and luxurious dessert to climax a gala party.

It does take a bit of doing but anyone who can make a custard and whip up a meringue should have no difficulty.

The rich custard filling is layered and circled with imported French champagne biscuits which have first been sprinkled with a mixture of liqueurs. When the mold is chilled and firm, it is covered with meringue and baked until lightly brown, a la baked Alaska.

BOMBE ANGERIENNE

- (Makes to 8 servings)
- 5 egg yolks
  - 1-3 cup sugar
  - 2 cups milk
  - 1 cup light cream
  - 2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
  - 1/2 cup cold water
  - 1/2 cup heavy cream, whipped
  - 2 teaspoons vanilla extract
  - 1 pkg. (6 1/2-oz.) champagne biscuits
  - 1/2 cup Cointreau
  - 2 tablespoons brandy
  - 5 egg whites, stiffly beaten
  - 2-3 cup sugar
  - Bar-le-duc preserves

mixture coats the spoon. Do not boil. Stir gelatin into cold water. After 5 minutes stir gelatin into hot custard. Cool and then chill until slightly thickened. Fold in whipped cream and vanilla. Sprinkle champagne biscuits with Cointreau mixed with brandy. Use some of the biscuits to line the bottom and sides of a charlotte pan. Spoon layers of custard and biscuits into mold. Chill until firm.

Unmold and put on a heat-proof platter or board. Beat egg whites until stiff. Gradually beat in sugar, 1 tablespoonful at a time, until meringue is stiff and glossy. Spread meringue over the top and sides of the mold. Using a large star tip on pastry bag, pipe rosettes of meringue on top and around the bottom of mold.

Bake in a preheated hot oven (400 degrees) for 10 to 12 minutes or until lightly browned. Garnish top of mold with bar-le-duc preserves. Serve at once, cut into slices, with candied violets.

You, Your Child and School

By DAVID NYDICK
UPI Education Specialist

During recent years there has been a rapidly increasing pressure upon students due to the competition for seats in college classrooms. Some parents of kindergarten students are already planning their children's college "careers."

Concerned parents are most active in their efforts to provide for their children. They are constantly pushing for higher grades, more interest in school work, better schools, and more advanced instruction. In their serious attempts to help their children, it is the child who often receives the least consideration. Although not intentional, this can be the result of the many pressures.

Balances Out
It is natural for proud parents to feel that their child has above average ability. Unfortunately this cannot always be true. Some of the children must be at or below average and others above average. Fortunately an individual can have varying abilities in different areas. A child can be a talented musician and a poor reader. He can be an outstanding reader and a weak mathematician.

The most important thing for parents to understand is that their child has many interests depending upon his age, sex, and individual desires. He should not be forced to concentrate all his efforts in the academic area. He needs to develop his social, physical and cultural abilities. He needs to learn how to be a human being.

College Important
College is important. A good college is important. This does not mean that everyone must attend Harvard, Yale or Princeton. A good college is one which is suited to the interests, abilities and ambitions of the particular student.

Parents will find that their children generally do better in a relaxed atmosphere rather than under a constant pressure. This does not mean to eliminate what might be considered normal parental interest. It does mean that you should not constantly push a child to perform beyond a level which is comfortable for his ability.

Be realistic about your expectations. A child who is pushed too far can become frustrated. He can lose confidence because he feels he is never successful in your eyes. He should know that you are pleased with him as long as he tries his best.

Do not accept laziness but also do not expect miracles. Common sense should prevail. Consider the child's capabilities and help him to perform at a realistic level. You will find that a reasonable, relaxed approach usually results in better performance.

INSTANT X RAY is possible with a new film that provides a full-sized, sharply detailed radiograph just 45 seconds after exposure. Shown here with a sample X ray taken with the Polaroid film is Boston radiologic technologist Marilyn Smith. The new process could have particular application in emergency room situations or surgical operations where speed is vital.

It's The Law In Texas

SNOW SUITS

Over the past few months, winter sports have yielded their usual crop of collisions, contusions, and concussions. The medical consequences, as a rule, are painfully plain to see. But what of the legal consequences? Who is liable for the damage done?

There are several basic principles of negligence law that are likely to provide the answers.

One is that the management of a recreation area must set rules that will keep danger within reasonable bounds.

For example: Act one winter playground, sleds and novice skiers were allowed to mix freely on the same slope. A girl skier, felled by a careening sled, sued the management and collected.

"It is common knowledge," said the court, "that courting sleds are not easily controlled, while novice skiers are notoriously unable to direct their own movements. The location of these runs made serious accidents not only possible but probable."

A second principle is that the equipment provided for public use should be in good working order. Thus, a court held that a skier could collect for injuries traceable to a faulty ski a ski tow.

On the other hand, the sportsman too must show a sensible concern for his own safety. Take this case:

A determined young couple kept right on taking rides on their toboggan, even though the path ran dangerously close to a tree. Sure enough, they finally hit a tree. The girl was injured, and in due course filed suit for damages.

But the court ruled that she herself was guilty of negligence for continuing to toboggan in defiance of the obvious danger.

Furthermore, the very fact that you ski, skate, or toboggan means that you voluntarily accept those risks that are inherent in the sport.

A court emphasized that point in turning down the claim of a skier who was thrown off balance by a minor irregularity on the slope. Like any skier, said the judge, "the plaintiff was not seeking a retreat for meditation. He took the chance of such a fall."

And the judge added: "To hold that a ski trail down a mighty mountain, with snow conditions that constantly change, should be kept level and smooth, free from holes, would be to demand the impossible."

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—William R. White of Hornblower & Weeks, Hemphill, Noyes & Co. says the stock market has become cautious because of such fundamentals as shrinking sales volume, narrowing profit margins and thinner dividend protection. He says this caution has been reflected in the market's retreat from the March recovery high.

The analyst believes this behavior is probably only temporary and, before too long, experienced investors should begin to place more weight on more bullish economic factors such as the sudden influx of surplus funds and the rapid easing of credit restrictions.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The laser produces the sharpest, clearest and most intense light scientists have ever been able to create, says The World Almanac. The light from the laser burns many times brighter than the light on the surface of the sun. Ordinary light from a bulb shines in all directions and at many different wave lengths. A laser beam, however, travels in a straight line and at the same wave length for long distances. Laser is an acronym for "light amplification by stimulated emission of radiation."

By CARROLL RIPLEY

FOR FRIDAY, APRIL 11
GENERAL TENDENCIES: You certainly are not to get involved in all sorts of unpleasant conditions unless you see the care and caution that is essential when difficult problems do face you—such as this day and evening. By so doing you could put you very behind the eightball.
ARIES: (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) — Care must be exercised in spending money, especially partners, otherwise you could get into trouble. Check over all figures. Some error could be very costly.
Taurus: (Apr. 20 to May 20) — Try to appreciate your money properly or you can get into all kinds of difficulty. Keep a budget, let it be streamlined. Precision is very important. Suppose all other assets requires much care as well.
GEMINI: (May 21 to June 21) — Don't be forgetful with those in social life because you want to get ahead in that fashion, since diplomacy will be far more effective. Discharge your obligations wisely. Then take time for relaxation you need.
MOON CHILDREN: (June 22 to July 21) — You are feeling frustrated, so get busy on small duties that have to be done sometime, and you find you are soon on a keel again. Don't argue with loved one. Avail a better day for pointing out what you think is an error.
LEO: (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Don't endeavor to discuss your good qualities, some excellent ideas you have, since they are apt to be very busy. Await a better day. Quietly plan social events for the days ahead. Avoid persons who are not really your friends.
VIRGO: (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Some vexatious problem can hurt your reputation, if you permit, so be very careful in dealing with a higher-up. Be sure you look into inventive gadgets that will save you time and energy in your work. Increase efficiency.
LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) — You think that if you start new interests you will get rid of your problems quickly. Nothing works out that way, so sensible. Do something constructive about them first. It does not harm to listen to what a new contact has to say.
SCORPIO: (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) — Although you want to criticize one who has hurt your feelings, cool off and await a better time to state your ideas diplomatically. Get busy with obligations at hand. Be sure of what you are doing.
SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Concentrate on how to deal with associates more intelligently and harmoniously and show consideration so that you don't make opponents of them. Don't be forceful. Let situations develop and do something about them.
CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Many tasks are before you and if you plan your week and schedule your time, you find you get all handled well. Don't criticize co-workers because you feel irritated. Be sure to be ready tonight.
AQUARIUS: (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — You want to be extravagant with money at this time, but it is better to think of the future when you may need it. Put some special new skill to work instead. This could be for your own good.
PISCES: (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) — Stop being so difficult at home by losing your temper and leaving a bad example. Gain their respect instead. Find better ways to increase security and you find all ameliorated for you.
IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be a veritable human dynamo of action and could prove quite a handful for those who have him, or her, in their charge, or give the heart of sports, chess or prisms, etc., early in life. The field of selling is ideal for your progeny, and much money can be made at this, since your progeny has the perseverance and gift of gab necessary as well.

Airlines, ranging from large transcontinental carriers to small feeder systems, have registered the sharpest percentage increase in intercity passenger traffic during the past two decades. ## Investigators Charge Electrical 'Rats' Nests' In Fatal Apollo 1

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House investigators summoned the Apollo contractor today to answer charges that the wiring resembled "rats' nests" in the space capsule where three astronauts perished.

Top officials of North American Aviation, prime contractor for the moon ship, were called to testify before the House Subcommittee that oversees operations of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA).

The competency of North American's installation of the wiring on the ill-fated Apollo 1 capsule was called into question Monday in a new volume of appendices to the NASA board of inquiry's report, made public at Cape Kennedy.

Investigators said some areas of wiring looked like rats' nests "because of the dense, disordered array of wiring. In some instances excessive lengths of wires were looped back and forth to take up the slack. Also there were instances where wires appeared to have been threaded through bundles, which added to the disorder."

The House panel was shown a picture of wiring believed to have been the source of the spark that touched off the fatal fire. The cable ran beneath a small door and through piping. "It looks like a great big Rube Goldberg puzzle to me," said one member, Rep. James G. Fulton, R-Pa.

Maxime Faget, a member of the inquiry board and director of engineering and development at the manned spacecraft center in Houston, Tex., said such an installation was not considered good practice by NASA.

Youth Beat

THE NATIONAL REPORT ON WHAT'S HAPPENING

JEANS LOVE TEENS AND TEENS LOVE JEANS: Alarmed by the worldwide mounting tide of miniskirts, YOUTH BEAT has hurried to check the state of that long-time apparel love of guys and gals — jeans. Have no fear! Two of the top outfits, Levis (Levi Strauss started it all, using tent canvas in the 1849 California gold rush) and Blue Bell (Wranglers) swear on their wholesale honor that 1967 will be the biggest and best year ever for jeans. As always you'll be "out" this year if your legs are not "in" this world-favorite costume that's practically the uniform of jean-agers. Over 150 million pairs were sold last year — enough to cover more jeans-age legs than there are in the United States. So what's new this year? Among boy jeans the trend toward the fancier continues to whip up — new weaves (hopsacking) . . . colors (black, green, this year's plaids and summer whites) . . . and finishes (permanent crease — by fall the new "fortified" permanent process, just like the new shirts, will carry your crease right through even a steam laundry). Furtive scouts inform us that in Ivy League colleges men are struggling off new trends and reverting (must they always be different?) to the old-time navy blue papa-jeans, in surprising numbers. . . . And these hold on as the biggest sellers of all, nationally. Girl legs in jeans will be walking all over the place. A new touch is that waists will drop this year and hip-huggers will cling low and trimly to young lovelies. . . . and a new denim (you guessed it — but it will rise only two inches above the knee) miniskirt will come in: Jean cut will be on the slim — side — though some girls will unstick and taper them more (ouch!). Solids and prints will be big, but outshone by new colors. "bronze" (a gold) . . . raspberry . . . and bayberry (light mint-green). Starting, but rolling toward popularity is the new railroad stripe, swiped from the RR trainmen's overall. . . . Fearlessly, YOUTH BEAT jumps in to the furious cauldron of clothes fashions and prognosticates — Everyone will wear jeans this year. This will put you in the company of astronauts (who water ski in them) . . . politicians (who ride in them) . . . and assorted world leaders, such as President

Johnson, England's Princess Anne, France's Brigitte Bardot, the Beatles and Elizabeth Taylor (who will wear them for the same reason you do — they like to).

YOU'RE NOT A GENIUS — So maybe you are a genius! Stanford University reports that IQ tests and creative intelligence can add up to two different things. Studies of younger boys showed some with average IQs scored as geniuses in creativity. . . . while some high IQs were more comfortable learning facts and single answers than coming up with all sorts of solutions to problems. The solution for you is a cinch — just score at both.

HOLY HARMONY, HERE'S THE HARMONICA: Playing the harmonica is an old American habit that teen guys and gals share with the pioneers of the West. You're quick to pick up and try out that little tin music box — one of the few that fits into a pocket. Invented (by Matthias Hohner) only a little over a century ago, harmonicas have been carried and played by: Abe Lincoln, Jesse James' brother, Wyatt Earp, Billy the Kid, Mark Twain, Steven Foster, Calvin Coolidge, John Steinbeck, President Eisenhower, Bob Dylan, the Beatles, Rolling Stones, Dave Clark Five and astronaut Walter Schirra (the first musical instrument ever played in outer space). Some of the best folk and country music was born by working stiffs blowing on the harmonica. Two to three dollars will start you with a simple one — a diatonic (no sharps or flats) — that will quickly give you the hang of "mouthing the music." For more advanced "corn clobbering" you buy harmonicas tuned in different keys, and for real complicated music there's the sophisticated chromatic harmonica. You will join the harmonica host (mostly young adults) that has doubled sales over a decade. . . . jumped them some 20 per cent last year. . . . and will buy over $3 million worth as they tumble off the factory assembly lines this year.

LATE JEAN FLASH! International popularity is reported to have spurred manufacture of blue jeans in global spots like Hong Kong, Morocco, Japan and France — complete with fake U.S. label!

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI) — Newsmen Mike Eitherton of radio station KJEL heard a burglary call on his police radio as he returned home Wednesday.

The address given was his house.

Arriving at his home the same time as the police, Eitherton surprised a 23-year-old man ransacking the house. Then, he gave an in-depth report of the crime to police — and his listeners.

NFO Official Says 4-H Youths Milk Is Being Watered Down Will Enter Rifle Events

DENVER (UPI) — Oren Lee Staley, president of the National Farmers Organization, charged Tuesday the American housewife was buying milk that was heavily watered.

"This could turn out to be the scandal of the century," Staley said. "The American public is being cheated in quality, where the farmers' prices are being beaten down by unscrupulous milk producers by adding water."

Staley made his accusation before a meeting here of the U.S. Agriculture Department. His organization was the leader in a 25-state dairy farmer milk holdback earlier this year.

The Corning, Iowa, farmer said milk processors increased the addition of water to milk during the holdback. "but it was going on even before."

"In at least one state it was found that 10 per cent water was added to the milk in one area," Staley said. "Other samples are showing a butter content of only 2 per cent, compared to the 3.2 to 3.5 per cent requirement."

The farm leader said NFO members were being asked to pick up supplies of milk from various supermarkets and to take them to laboratories where official tests can be made upon the contents.

"We want to put the pressure on local health officers, state health officers and the federal pure food and drug administration to make better tests," Staley said.

"During the milk holding action, when milk was held on the farm, it was almost impossible to get local state and federal health enforcement officers to investigate the quality of milk."

National Window

By LYLE WILSON United Press International

Too much emphasis probably is being placed on Vietnam as the source of President Johnson's political troubles and of the brighter promise of big Republican gains in next year's elections.

High taxes, wasteful government spending and crime are close seconds to war in the list of Johnson's major problems.

To write that many Americans are strongly inclined not to believe the administration about anything is not much to exaggerate a dispiriting state of the public mind. Much of this must surely be charged to the war in Southeast Asia and to the public relations policies of the Pentagon as established by example if not by direct order of Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara.

Is that a way to run a Defense Department? It is not. Neither is snoving the public on the business of government a good way to maintain a president and his administration on terms of mutual trust with the voters who put all hands in office.

Details of presidential promises and policies are blurred and finally lost in the passage of time. But there remains, for example, a sufficiently distinct impression that LBJ was campaigning against Barry M. Goldwater three years ago with charges that the Republican presidential nominee was a frigger happy wildman who would send our American boys to Southeast Asia to do the dirty work Southeast Asian boys should be doing. American voters did not want any such wildman as that in the White House so they chose LBJ over BMG by the biggest margin ever. And look at us now.

And there were those Johnson economy charades: snapping off unneeded lights in the ladies' powder room, cutting off power from enormous chandeliers, promising to cut back and to hold back federal civilian employment. LBJ must have been holding the people in some degree of contempt for their intelligence when he began to play for them his now-you-see-it-and-now-you-don't budget games.

These games involved deliberate leaks from the White House and elsewhere that the next spending budget figure would be enormous, beyond belief. These leaks would continue, the spending figure fluctuating, until popular attention had been caught by the idea that LBJ would spend an enormous sum in the next fiscal year.

Then would come the actual budget. The spending figure would be large, enormous, almost beyond belief. But it would be less than the various figures which had been leaked over the previous weeks. Thus, a public conditioned by hocus pocus for catastrophic spending would be relieved to know that by LBJ's dextrous economies the proposed spending would be merely calamitous.

If Americans are as intelligent as they believe themselves to be, that whammy will not work any more. That, of course, is not of vital importance. What is important is that the Johnson administration has been tagged with the phrase "credibility gap" to describe the condition of doubt and suspicion now existing as between the American people and their chosen leaders. That is unfortunate for all concerned, both public and President.

Apollo Builders Suggest Grissom Kicked Wiring

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An official of the company that made the ill-fated Apollo 1 moon capsule has suggested that astronaut Virgil I. Grissom may have accidentally kicked loose an electrical connection to spark last January's fatal fire.

Dr. John McCarthy, a vice president of North American Aviation, Inc., prime contractor for the program, put forward the "hypothesis" Tuesday during questioning by members of a House subcommittee investigating the Jan. 27 disaster.

The panel today called for testimony from other executives of North American, which holds nearly $3 billion in government contracts for the space program, as well as officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

A special NASA review board reported Sunday that the fire that killed Grissom and astronauts Edward H. White II and Roger B. Chaffee may have been caused by sparks from a bundle of wires under Grissom's seat.

The report said there was no chafing guard to protect the bundle from contact with the edge of a small door under which it passed on that side of the capsule.

But no clear determination could be made, the board said, since the intensity of the fire had burned away the wiring and even the bottom of the door.

"As a hypothesis," McCarthy said Tuesday, "Grissom may have kicked loose a chromatograph (an electrical device in the spacecraft), thus exposing it to friction and a resulting spark." He did not elaborate.

Rep. William Pitts Ryan, D-N.Y., another member of the panel, angrily brushed aside McCarthy's suggestion, lashing out at North American and NASA for "negligence."

"I take exception to your trying tonight to place the blame on someone not here to speak for himself, a courageous American," Ryan snapped.

"I feel here was real negligence on the part of both the contractor (North American) and NASA. You both have an obligation to the nation to straighten out this program immediately," he said.

PHS Students Receive Safe Driving Book

Pampa police chief Jim Conner, chairman of the Kiwanis safety committee, said today that rules on the "Code of the Road" were passed out Wednesday to all Pampa High School students.

A two-page booklet featuring "Willie Survive and his code of the road" was received by Conner Tuesday.

"If the students will read all the rules in the booklet carefully and follow them, then they will be safe drivers," Conner said.

There are 12 rules for the code of the road: 1.—I obey the Golden Rule—treat other drivers as I wish to be treated. 2.—I don't drink liquor and drive and I do not ride with those who do. 3.—I am not a speeder; the time I save isn't worth the risk of death. 4.—I respect all traffic signs—especially those which say "yield". 5.—I watch out for pedestrians, especially children playing on the street. 6.—I keep my seat belt fastened whenever my car is in operation (and so do my passengers). 7.—I don't try to beat the lights; the other fellow may get there at the same time. 8.—I stay in my own lane except when I can plainly see room to pass safely. 9.—I keep every part of my car always in a perfectly safe driving condition. 10.—I am teaching my children to be safe drivers—not showoffs. 11.—I work for and support all safety efforts in my community. 12.—I drive defensively; I watch out for the other guy.

Foreign Commentary

By DANIEL SOUTHERLAND United Press International

SAIGON (UPI) — Underlying the current debate between South Vietnam's military junta and its constitutional assembly is the tacit assumption that the military will remain the country's executive power even after elections.

A presidential election is to take place by next October, and the junta has let it be known it will nominate a single candidate for the presidency.

Air Vice Marshal Nguyen Cao Ky, 36, currently premier in the military regime, is a possible candidate. So is Lt. Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu, 44, chief of state and chairman of the junta. Either would be hard to beat.

No Organization
On the civilian side, several politicians are considered potential candidates. But so far, none has emerged with anything resembling the organization, backing or finances needed to win.

The generals have not yet organized a political party as such. But with only one exception, the country's influential province chiefs are all military men, and they could be expected to support a military candidate. The more than 200 district chiefs are military men, and the national police chief is a general and one of Ky's supporters.

Civilian politicians talk about forming political organizations to bring regional and religious lines but have yet to do so.

No Popular Figure
It is not a question of who has widespread popular appeal. There is no group in the country — with the exception of the Communists — which has a grass roots political organization. Many people in rural areas still don't know who Ky is. And none of the civilian politicians can be called a popular national figure.

As a result, organization is of the utmost importance. The military has it. The civilians don't.

The military regime has demonstrated it can provide security for a national election and turn out the vote. It was the military which organized last September's elections for the constitutional assembly.

In the end, the two sides are expected to work out a constitution whereby the assembly will share the responsibility for overseeing the presidential election.

Dear Abby.... Philandering Pal Is No Friend

DEAR ABBY: This problem isn't exactly mine. It's my husband's. He is a doctor. One of his colleagues has taken to playing around quite a lot, and his wife has started to check up on him.

She calls my husband a "dick" and "ass" or taking his calls last night. So far my husband has covered for him, but he just isn't used to lying, and so he gets nervous, flustered, and upset.

When he's upset, I get upset, so please tell me if I should call up this woman and tell her to quit calling and questioning my husband?

UPSET NOW

DEAR UPSET: Don't call the wife. But tell your husband to advise his philandering colleague to find himself another party because he's "covered" for him for the last time.

DEAR ABBY: A widow in our town who is getting on in years is becoming a real problem. She is a gossip and has no real friends.

As soon as she hears that someone is sick — even people she hardly knows — she "calls" on them. She does this in the name of mercy and kindness, but she really visits them because she has nowhere else to go, and she can visit the sick without an invitation.

She never brings a book or a flower, but she eats all the refreshments in sight, and she stays and stays until mealtime hoping to be invited for supper.

We hate to hurt her feelings, because she's probably not "all there," but something must be done about this obnoxious pest. But what?

ly. Only in this manner can she be discouraged.

DEAR ABBY: I do not want to be a meddling mother-in-law, but how can I impress upon my new daughter-in-law that it is important for her to acknowledge her wedding gifts within a reasonable length of time?

Abby, she is a darling girl, and I don't want to hurt her, but I have hinted so many times I hate to mention it again. Many of my friends have asked me if she ever received their gifts? Please tell me how to get her to write her thank-you notes. We are quite well known in this town and it is getting embarrassing.

EMBARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED: You would be doing your daughter-in-law a kindness to tell her in plain language that people have been asking YOU if she has received their gifts. Tell her if she needs any "help" in writing her thank-you notes, you are available. Short of writing them for her, there is nothing more you can do.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "STUPID QUESTION?" No, it is not a stupid question. It IS possible for twins (fraternal) to be conceived on two separate occasions. And by two different fathers.

Troubled? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abby, Box 6700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069.

NO NAME, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: Someone should tell her that she should not visit without telephoning first. And if she phones she could be told that the patient is not receiving visitors at that time. If she appears at the door without warning, she could be given the same treatment — courteously, of course, but firm-

If you dry the laundry outside, locate the clothesline in a shady area if possible. This will help prevent sun fading of color. Before hanging the wash, make sure the line and clothespins are clean. It takes only a minute to wipe the line with a sudsy cloth.

Movie Star Has Choice Of Two Other Careers

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — If Sylvia Sidney ever wanted to quit acting, she could work in two other disparate fields. One is in needlepoint art; the other, as a laundress, playing in real life the role which abated her movie career considerably. The actress, back on Broadway from whence she began her career 40 years ago, has developed needlepoint painting — most often of animals, including the pug dogs she raises — to such a refinement that she does needlepoint on point for a three dimensional effect.

A specialty florist's shop on fashionable 57th Street in New York sells Miss Sidney's "paintings" for $300 and up. Another owner of pugs, the Duchess of Windsor, is among the society prominent who have bought Sidney needleworks.

"I think I was born with a needle in my hand," said the actress. "All my family did some kind of handwork."

She's self-taught — I never studied anything formally, not even how to live."

The petite, brunette actress started making items designed by others then "timidly" began painting her own designs. "I figured," she said, "that if others paint, so could I."

As for that laundress role, the actress laughs with that familiar hearty laugh Sidney fans have heard for years. She played luckless heroine after luckless heroine in her long movie career and recalled, "I was always ironing somebody's shirts. I was the highest paid laundress in the world."

"The studios graduated me from ironing my father's shirts, to ironing my brother's, my boy friend's, husband's, and eventually my movie son's," she said.

"If there had been a laundromat in those days, I wouldn't have had a movie career."

Currently, Miss Sidney is playing the role of Mrs. Banks in the comedy, "Barefoot in the Park," in which she previously toured.

Along the way, there were three marriages, all ending in divorce. Husbands were Bennett Cerf, Carlton Alspop and Luther Adler. She has one child, Jody Adler, 27, a mathematics instructor at the University of Massachusetts.

The Mature Parent Sometimes We Have To Walk Alone

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Once, when two almost simultaneous deaths in my family had plunged me into deep grief, I was required to survive the harshest cruelty I have ever experienced. So I could not cry. Between my shocked resistance to the cruelty in death and the cruelty in people, weeks of daze went by and still I could not cry a single tear of acceptance.

Then, one day, a doctor friend asked me to drive with him into the country where he had to make a professional call. While he visited his patient, he left me in a chair on a wide green lawn.

I was sitting there, still lost in my daze, when a tiny ant, intent on some personal business, walked up my forearm. Straight unswerving and direct, he marched up my arm and I began to cry. I cried and cried and cried. On the drive home, I cried again. And so I felt obliged to tell my friend about that straight-walking little ant. He is a psychiatrist as well as my friend. He stopped the car and said, "Muriel, you are crying because you have stopped walking in your own direction. You are crying with envy and admiration of that ant."

He was right. No one has ever been more right.

It is lovely, of course, when we can share the same direction with other people. Sometimes we cannot. Then, like the ant, we have to walk in our own direction, alone. And that is true, too.

It's been hard for me to write about that ant, small messenger that he was to me. But no harder, I expect, than it's been for a reader to write me a letter which says:

"My husband has treated me yellow and mean for 24 years. I cannot leave him as we have a sick girl and I don't know how to earn a living. He tries to show me up in a bad light to our neighbors by doing jobs for them without pay and getting them to favor him. He spends our household money doing these favors for them. I love everything you write. I guess you'll say I need a psychiatrist."

Maybe you don't. Maybe you do. Maybe just a friend is what you need.

One like mine, one who will remind you that sooner or later we all have to continue to walk in our own direction. Whether we're compelled to this lonely walking by the death of people or the death of kindness, in the end it's what we all have to do.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Hidden Pill in Food Fools Ailing Canine

By POLLY CRAMER

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

DEAR POLLY — My Pointer is for dog owners who may have trouble getting their dogs to take medicine. I keep a jar of baby food on hand, preferably meat. When I have to give my dog a pill, I just bury it in a teaspoon of the food. He gulps it down without knowing he is taking medicine. Often when one tries to stick a pill down a dog's throat, he will spit it out.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — I have two irons. I bought the second one because the first one had burned stuff on the bottom. I had tried everything and nothing would clean it. The same stuff is now on the second iron. This is really a problem to me. I do hope someone has an answer.

—MARY

DEAR POLLY — Saturday afternoons at grandma's are a lot smoother since I bought cheap bedroom slippers to fit all my grandchildren. We keep the slippers in a box in the hall closet. The children slip them on when they arrive and leave them there when they go home. This saves soiling socks by walking around without shoes, and I am saved much scrubbing and wiping up after they have gone home. Their snow boots are left neatly by the front door.

—MRS. D. G

DEAR POLLY — When my child outgrows his pajamas with feet in them, I simply cut off the feet where the elastic is around the ankles. This leaves nice house slippers for baby when he is sick, or just for running around the house.

DEAR POLLY — I have an easy but effective solution for Flower Lover's problem of clay pots that are stuck together. Fill a plastic bag with ice-cold water and put this inside the inner pot. Set the two pots in a sink or container filled with hot water. The cold pot contracts and the hot one expands, so they are easy to separate without breaking.

Alan (Hal) Woodard really isn't an 'Oke' after all. He is a true-born Texan who only went to Oklahoma to live for a while. But Woodard is back in Texas now and much to the dismay of district 3-4A hitters, Friday Woodard will be making his first start of the season when the Harvesters host Lubbock Coronado in a 4 p.m. game at Optimist Club Park. Saturday at 1 p.m. Pampa is scheduled to meet Plainview.
Woodard pitched in the first Pampa game of the season, in relief, and worked two and two-thirds innings last week against Palo Duro and got his first win of the year.
About 10 minutes after the opening Woodard sliced his finger and was inactive for three weeks.
In the five innings he's pitched the junior hurler has given up no runs and only two hits and has struck out 10 batters.
He's a southpaw with one of the better curve balls any high school youngster deserves to have.
The Harvesters will lay their 16-1 season and 4-1 district mark on the line in Friday's clash.

Aspromonte Gets Houston Off to Winging 2-0 Start

By United Press International
Happiness for Bob Aspromonte is playing third base at Houston.
The 28-year-old veteran is the only regular third baseman the Houston Astros have ever had—but last year he seemed on the verge of becoming the first player ever to be booted out of the Astrodome.
Aspromonte was on the trading block all winter long and was a better bet three months ago to be playing for the Indians or Mets than the Astros. But the deals fell through. Aspromonte won his job back in spring training and seems ready to keep it for a long time.
His sixthinning, two-out single Wednesday night scored Rusty Staub from second with the winning run in the Astros' 4-2 victory over the Atlanta Braves. It was the Astros second straight victory over the Braves and put them on top of the National League with a 2-0 mark.
"I worked out real hard during the winter at a health club because of the challenge I had and I went out this spring and proved that third base is mine," Aspromonte said after the game. "I've had it for six straight years and I wasn't going to give it up."
Manager Grady Hatton admitted, "He's swinging the best bat on the team right now."
Average Slipped
When his average slipped to .252 last year after his high of .280 in 1964 and he seemed to be unable to hit in the clutch, Aspromonte became the target of the boo birds in the Astrodome and his future seemed short-lived in Houston. When he wasn't traded, his future with the Astros seemed dim since they had highly touted rookie Doug Rader, the most Valuable Player in the Texas League last year, coming up and had obtained veteran Ed Mathews from Atlanta.

But Aspromonte was the team's leading hitter in spring training. Mathews was switched power—he hit just eight home runs all year.
In the other National League game Wednesday, the Philadelphia Phillies turned back the Chicago Cubs 5-4 in 11 innings.
Aspromonte came up in the sixth to face Braves' starter Ken Johnson with two out, the score tied 2-2 and Staub, who'd walked and moved up on a groundout, at second.
"I hit a letter high knuckle ball," Aspromonte said. "He wasn't going to throw me anything good because first base was open. He threw me three straight knucklers and I got ahead of the third one."
The result was a line drive into leftfield, a foot fair, that scored Staub with the winning run.
Ironically, Staub pulled a hamstring muscle rounding third on the play—the same kind of injury Mickey Mantle suffered two days ago—and will be sidelined until next week.
Larry Dierker pitched a seven-hitter for Houston to gain the victory while Johnson was tagged for the loss. Dierker gave up two runs in the first inning but was in control the rest of the way.
Tony Taylor scored from third base in the 11th inning when relief pitcher Bill Hands uncorked a wild pitch with the bases loaded and two out to give the Phils their victory over Chicago. A single by Taylor off losing pitcher Rich Nye and two straight walks after two were out loaded the bases and set the stage for the wild pitch.
The Phils tied the game in the seventh when Dick Groat singled and Richie Allen hit a two-run homer.

BOB ASPROMONTE good start to first and Rader was sent down to Oklahoma City for more seasoning. It added up to the starting job for Aspromonte, who was one of the original Astros obtained in the 1962 expansion draft from the Dodgers when the club was formed.

Aspromonte also said he'd gone back to his normal bat with a bigger barrel this year after switching last year in an ill-fated attempt to get more

Life in Army Doesn't Bother Donny Anderson

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI)—Donny Anderson sat in the plush office of his insurance company and gave the comparison that was just too obvious to avoid: How Army basic training compares to Vince Lombardi.
"Coach Lombardi isn't as mean as everyone thinks," the Green Bay halfback said, closing a heavy ledger he had been studying with hurried concentration. "He just wants you to work hard and I always made it a point to do just that."

And the Army? Outside of a two-day stretch of KP that marked the first week of his basic training, that hasn't bothered the former Texas Tech All-American much either.
Anderson, who got $711,000 for signing with Green Bay, was in the spotlight from the moment in January he stepped into the recruiting station at Ft. Campbell, Ky., just two days after the Packers disposed of Kansas City in the Super Bowl.
"You know who that guy is?" somebody asked a first sergeant.
"Sure I know. Shook, we get all of them here," the first sergeant snapped back. "First it was Elvis, now Donny Anderson. I guess next it'll be Cassius Clay."

From then on—except for the KP—Anderson on himself professed not to have had it overly tough, although he still has nearly a month left before his four-month stint of active duty is over.
He broke away from the training routine often enough to make 10 speaking engagements, and it was not unusual for him to be seen in the presence of a flock of bird colonels, with a general or two sprinkled in for good measure.
"I was in excellent condition when I got there and that probably helped," he recalled while in Lubbock on leave.
"The main thing that bothered me was the late hours, like when I was on KP. I'd been used to going to bed at nine every night. Sometimes I could barely hold my eyes open."
Because Green Bay halfback Paul Hornung went to New Orleans, Anderson is in a position to make a big bid for fulltime action next year. But he doesn't begrudge Lombardi for allowing him only spot duty last campaign.

IT'S ALL OVER NOW

Governors Nix Fight

CHICAGO (UPI)—"It looks like it's all over now," Thus spoke Cassius Clay after two governors banned the scheduled fight between the champion and Floyd Patterson from their states.
Clay's manager, Herbert Muhammad, said it was useless for him to accept offers from promoters who wanted to handle the fight, kicked out of Las Vegas Tuesday by Gov. Paul Laxalt, who feared "a black eye" for Nevada, and out of Pittsburgh Wednesday by Gov. Raymond P. Shafer, who said Pennsylvania didn't need the fight, either.

Muhammad cancelled the fight Wednesday, which had been scheduled for April 25. Clay has an April 28 date with the U.S. Army, and it appeared he would not fight before then.
"Yes," Muhammad said. "We have some offers. But it's useless to match anything at the present with Patterson. Several people were calling and I stopped talking."
"I think right now the climate is bad for a match between Ali and Patterson because of what the governor (Laxalt) did," he said. "We don't want to get into a situation where one governor and judge will do what the next one does."
Muhammad said the fight was cancelled in Nevada because, "They don't have very much faith in Patterson after the whipping he took the last time (administered by Clay)."

Would Clay fight again? "I think he'll fight again. Oh yes, he'll fight. Why don't you ask him?"
"It looks like it's all over now," Clay said with a moan in his tone.
"I didn't need the fight. I'm just working to stay active, fit, give him (Patterson) a chance and make a few dollars, but it looks like that's it."
"I think," Clay said, "he could have put up a better fight than the rest of them—he's faster."

Randy Breaks Baylor Shot Mark

WACO (UPI)—World record holder Randy Matson, who has been throwing the shot put over 70 feet regularly lately, was short of that mark Wednesday, but still was good enough to break the Baylor Stadium record.
Matson heaved the shot 68 feet, seven inches, breaking the mark he set two years ago of 67-3/4.
In the discus throw, the Texas A&M star fell short of the stadium record of 201-5/8, which he also set, but won the event with a throw of 189-5.
It was only last Saturday that Matson threw the shot 70-5/8 twice and hit a new American distance mark of 213-9/16—just two inches shy of the world record—in a triangular meet at College Station.
Baylor won the dual meet with the Aggies, 82 to 56 as sprinter Wayne Brandt scored 12 1/2 points by winning the 100 and 220-yard dashes in 9.4 and 21.8, taking third in the javelin and running a leg on the sprint relay team.
Joe Ratliff of Baylor set a new stadium record of 53.2 in the 440-yard hurdles despite the strong winds, while Henry Rollings of A&M took the pole vault with a 15-0 leap. Jerry Cross of Baylor won the javelin at 207-3/4, Walter Reyna of Baylor took the three-mile in 14:58.3 and Steve O'Neal of the Aggies the 120-yard high hurdles in 14.4.

Youth League Tryouts Set

Tryouts for the Pampa Optimist Club Youth Leagues have been set, according to Buddy Thornton, publicity director.
Nine and 10-year-olds will have two workouts, April 17-18, beginning at 5:30 p.m. at the Optimist Park.
Ages 11 and 12 workout three times April 19 at 3:30 p.m. at the Park.
In the nine and 10-year-old bracket the boys have to make at least one to be eligible to play and youngsters out for the 1112 bracket have to make two of the three trials.
All equipment is furnished, except for shoes and glove and the only cost to a boy is a $2 insurance fee.

COACH RESIGNS

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Joe Heyer, 28-year-old head basketball coach for Lasalle College during the past two years resigned Wednesday after he had been offered a "considerable increase in salary."
Heyer led his teams to 10-15 and 14-12 during the last two seasons. He formerly played guard for Lasalle from 1958-60. Heyer plans to continue coaching and teaching at Cardinal Dougherty high school.

District Meets On Tap for PHS Athletes

District meets loom for spring sports stars at Pampa High School this weekend in Lubbock and Amarillo.
District golfers will be out to better their sixth place standings when the fifth and final round of district action is played over Tascosa Country Club in Amarillo Friday.
Friday and Saturday district track meets go to Amarillo for the 3-4A track meet and Pampa will be primed and ready after a third place finish last week in the Bulldog Relays.
Also Saturday Pampa's tennis team is in district action on the courts at Lubbock.

DATE CHANGED

NEW YORK (UPI)—The $25,000 added Priors Stakes for three-year-old fillies will be run on April 26 it was announced Wednesday by racing secretary Thomas E. Trotter.
The Priors was originally scheduled for April 5 but was cancelled because of the horse man's strike at Aqueduct. Trotter also said that the Excelsior Handicap had been cancelled and that all nominating fees would be returned.

NEW JOB

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Tom Young, head basketball coach at Catholic University resigned Wednesday to become an assistant under new Maryland cage coach Frank Fellows.
During his 10 years at Catholic, Young compiled a record of 134-88 and led his team to the Mason Dixon Conference championship in 1964.

CHARITABLE YANKEES

By United Press International
Even for Washington, it was a giveaway program of magnificent proportion.
The New York Yankees, humbled and torn before the ravaging decay of time, still found it in their hearts to be charitable to a poorer neighbor Wednesday night.
The Yankees handed Washington a prize gift of nine unearned runs with three errors in a single inning to present the Senators with an easy 10-4 victory and their first success of the young season. It was a harsh comedown for New York, which had looked like anything but last year's cellar team in routing the Senators 8-0 Monday.
The Boston Red Sox nipped the Chicago White Sox 5-4 and the Detroit Tigers defeated the California Angels 6-3 in other American League games. The scheduled contest at Kansas City between the Athletics and Cleveland Indians was postponed because of wet grounds.
The score was tied 1-1 in the second inning when the bottom rose to greet the Yanks. A total of 15 Senators went to the plate against Fritz Peterson and Jim Bounton with Ken McMullen providing the big blow, a grand slam homer.
John Kennedy, obtained from the Dodgers a week ago to fill a defensive gap at shortstop, booted McMullen's leadoff grounder to start the bizarre Dodger pepperpot.
"Well, we came within two days of winning the Pennant last year," he said. "Now what am I gonna do, break up my white ball club by getting rid of a Clemente, a (Willie) Stargell or a Clendenon?"

9 Unearned Runs Cross for Sens

Barker then threw wildly on Doug Camilli's potential double play ball, placing runners on second and third.
Two walks forced across one run and Fred Valentine singled across two more. Left fielder Tom Tresh bobbled the ball for New York's third error as Valentine went to second and Ed Brinkman to third.
Damage Done
A two-run double by Cap Peterson and McMullen's grand slammer completed the damage.
Joe Coleman Jr. was the beneficiary of the Yankee benevolence, gaining credit for his fourth major league triumph without a loss. The son of the former Philadelphia Athletics pitcher was relieved in the ninth inning by Dick Lines. Peterson was the loser.
Rico Petrocelli drove in four runs with a single and a three-run homer to enable the Red Sox to beat the White Sox for the ninth consecutive time at Fenway Park in the season opener for both teams. However, the eventual winning run scored in the sixth inning when Jose Tartabull came home to Ron Hansen's throwing error.
Stops Rally
Chicago, trailing 5-1, got to starter Jim Lonborg for three runs in the seventh but John Wyatt came on to stop the rally and Don McMahon retired the White Sox in the ninth. Lonborg was the winner and John Buzhardt was the loser.

Walker Wasn't Talking for the Exercise

SPTS 680 WALKER
NEW YORK (UPI)—Harry Walker knows some of his ball players said he talked too much last year.
"It doesn't bother him one bit. I wasn't talking for exercise," the Pittsburgh manager answers the charge. "I talked to my players because some of them needed telling. Who wants to harp on the same thing all the time? I hope I can say whatever has to be said only once this year and be done with it."
Some baseball managers talk and leave their listeners with nothing.

Whenever Walker talks, he generally has something to say. Roberto Clemente, the National League's MVP in 1966, wasn't among those who felt his manager was on the soap box too much.
"When he talks, I listen and I learn," says the Pirate right fielder. "I respect his knowledge. He knows what he is talking about."
If Walker is one of the more talkative managers around, he also is one of the more open-minded. When he gives you a chance to answer back. And if he thinks he can learn by listening, he'll listen.

"I don't think anyone is smart enough to know all the answers," he says. "If anyone has anything in the way of help to do is speak up. That goes for a veteran, a newcomer or anyone."
It particularly went for analytical-minded Maury Wills when he first reported to the Pirates this spring. He had a number of good ideas and broached them.
Walker accepted them in a hurry.

"You weren't worried about Wills becoming an assistant manager or something like that?" someone asked.
"Worried?" Walker repeated incredulously. "I was delighted. If a fellow like Wills or anyone else can help me in any way, it makes my job easier. He was a revelation this entire spring."
"We had a little bit of a seminar out on the ball field a couple of times in Florida and I turned it over to him completely, going from home plate right around the bases. He talked to (Matty) Alou and (Donn) Clendenon about sliding. He talked to a couple of others about taking leads. He talked to me about bunting . . . he was, well, just great."
To get Wills from the Dodgers, Pittsburgh had to give up Bob Bailey and Gene Michael. How much had Walker actually wanted the former Dodger pepperpot?
"Well, we came within two days of winning the Pennant last year," he said. "Now what am I gonna do, break up my white ball club by getting rid of a Clemente, a (Willie) Stargell or a Clendenon?"

"Sometimes a manager wants a ball player so much he blinds himself to what he must give up to get him. I wanted Wills if we could make the right deal. I didn't want to give up Bailey necessarily but nobody gives you anything for nothing. They never have and they never will in this game."
And now that everyone else had picked his Pirates to win this year, did Walker want to get in with his prediction?
"Sure," he said. "I pick us, too."

Generic Prescriptions Can Kill You

There's an old saying, "What you don't know can't hurt you," which, although having gained credence by repetition down through the years, is one of the most false and dangerous ideas unthinking people can entertain.

The driver of an automobile, unaware that its brakes are faulty or its tires are wearing thin, is headed for trouble.

The occupants of a house, ignorant of the fact that a prowler has gained entry in the dead of night or that the house itself is on fire, are in deadly danger.

The American draftee in Vietnam, unaware that a Viet Cong or North Vietnamese draftee is looking at him over the sights of a rifle, stands a good chance of departing this world.

The individual citizen, not knowing that elected and appointed officials are concocting additional taxes and regulations, is in immediate danger of losing more of his income and freedom to live his life as he thinks best.

Obviously, what you don't know can seriously harm or even kill you. . . and often does.

As it is with faulty brakes and worn out tires, the prowler, the house on fire, the rifle aimed at your heart or head, the planning bureaucrat; so, too, is it in the world of medicine and medical care.

All of which brings to mind a phrase, "compulsory generic prescribing," which, until now, we had never heard before. Chances are, the person reading this hasn't either. Nevertheless, according to the pamphlet, "A Peril to Our Health Care System," published by the Pharmaceutical Association, 1155 15th Street, Washington, D. C., . . . there is a movement afoot to compel doctors, BY LAW, to prescribe drugs in generic terms; that is, by the common or established name, and to require pharmacists to dispense so-called generic drugs even if the doctor orders a specific brand or designates the product of a particular manufacturer.

Moreover, according to the pamphlet, legislation to that effect was introduced in the last Congress by Senator Russell Long and others in the Senate, and by Representative T. P. O'Neill in the House of Representatives.

New Formula Counts Crowds

The quadrennial presidential election campaigns are not only a time for inflated speeches. They also herald a return of that phenomenon known as inflated crowd estimating—or deflated estimating, depending upon which party you listen to.

Now a new development may throw some honesty into the latter preoccupation of politicians.

Herbert Jacobs, a lecturer in journalism at the University of California, has devised what he calls "Jacobs' crowd formula."

The Irreplaceable Ones

Some, possessed of youth, health, every advantage, give up and quit before the climb begins. Others, possessed of a lust for life and blizzing courage, laugh at obstacles and, through indomitable willpower of the human mind, defy the march of Representatives. The Long Bill (S.3614) is expected to be taken up by the 90th Congress.

Boiled down to its essentials, "generic prescribing" would compel the doctor to prescribe, not in accordance with his professional skill, knowledge of the particular patient, conscience, and experience with a particular product which would dictate, but in accordance with the dictates of bureaucrats who wouldn't know the patient if they met him face to face.

Summarizing its objections to "generic" prescriptions, the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association argued: "Those who advocate compulsory generic prescribing overlook the fact there can be important variations between medicines containing the same active ingredients."

"These variations often produce important differences in medical results. Variations cannot be avoided when drug products are prescribed without identifying the manufacturer because the generic name identifies only the active ingredient in the medicine and does not specify the finished drug product desired."

"A brand name or trademark identifies a specific medicine. The physician thus knows exactly what drug preparation his patient has taken. He can assess its value and chart his future treatment of the patient accordingly."

"If the physician is compelled to prescribe by generic name, he would have no control as to which product is provided to his patient."

"Requiring prescriptions in generic terms would not necessarily result in lower prices to the consumer but it could and probably would bring about deterioration in the quality of medical care - through the wide sale of sub-standard products by discouraging the struggle for excellence which has marked the astounding progress in the pharmaceutical field - and by impeding drug research on which future progress depends."

turn with his wife, will pay just about $4,300. So the money he pays in taxes will run the government for about one second.

Another example: It takes the taxes of approximately 86 thousand people to run the government for a day. This is based on average taxes paid on an average income and average exemptions and deductions.

One of the smaller items in the Administration's huge spending budget is $280,000. That is the cost of printing the $135,000,000,000 budget.

Terror Is Staple Diet For Cubans

By RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA) — If you live in Cuba, you never know from day to day what will happen to you. You may be jailed with no trial or explanation. Your arrest will come suddenly and without warning. You won't know where you're going. You won't know how long you are to serve. Your release may come just as suddenly — without explanation. You may never know why you served the sentence.

This correspondent met the other day a man we will call Jose Ortega. He had just arrived in the United States. We met at the home of his brother-in-law.

Ortega lived in Cuba near Santiago, in a house he had built himself near the beach. He was an engineer and had just completed his final examination in night school for a degree. He was 41 years old, married and with a family.

Then Ortega applied for permission to come to the United States. The night school thereupon tore up his final examination without grading it and refused to give him his engineering degree.

A short time later, on July 7, 1966, a military man arrived at Ortega's house on a motorcycle. The man brought Ortega a telegram saying he must go in the army for three years. He was supposed to report at military headquarters the next day with his clothing and a toothbrush.

Ortega was surprised. Military service was required for men aged 15 to 27. So he went to the military office the next day and said "I am 41." The man he talked to said "Go back home; this must be a mistake."

But that night a man in shabby olive-colored uniform came to his door. It was difficult to say what he was. He said to Ortega "You have to come with me right now to the Military Committee." This man wanted Ortega to get on the back of his motorcycle and come.

Ortega, however, said he would go himself. He went immediately to the military headquarters. They again told him to go home. They didn't say what for. They wouldn't tell him anything.

Shortly, a truck appeared. With Ortega, it had four prisoners aboard and a guard with a machine gun. One man had been at home taking a bath. They gave him time to get on some clothes.

Ortega asked the driver where they were going. The driver said: "None of your business." They drove all night. The next morning they picked up 12 more men, ranging in age from about 20 to 45.

After this they headed for the country. Then Ortega figured they weren't going to the army but to a concentration camp. At a Plantation Central in a small Camaguey Province city, they stopped for uniforms — a blue cap, blue shirt and trousers and high yellow shoes for each prisoner. It began to rain and the Russian truck bogged down.

The prisoners, now guarded by four soldiers, were ordered to walk the rest of the way.

Two miles later, they came to a barbed wire enclosure, 12 feet high and about 200 or 250 yards long. Overhead the barbed wire extended inward three feet. It looked like the Nazi concentration camps Ortega had seen in moving pictures. There were two military-type barracks.

The 16 prisoners were ordered through the gate and into the barracks. where they turned in their civilian clothes. Inside the barracks were long rows of two-decker bunks, stacked close together so you couldn't move between them. About 300 men slept in the 75-yard long room.

The prisoners were told that any of them who came within six feet of the barbed wire fence would be shot.

Each day the prisoners were ordered up at 4 a.m., given 10 minutes to get into formation. (They had no dressing problem. They lived, worked and slept in the same clothes all the time they were there without a change and without washing them.)

They ate, then marched off under guard two miles for seven hours work in a cane field. The farmers living around the plantation camp area had been weeded of uncertain elements, given arms and instructed to shoot any prisoner attempting to escape. After the 7-hour cane cutting, the prisoners marched back to the barracks for a lunch of black beans and rice.

After lunch each day the inmates marched in a column of fours for four hours under the command of a noncommissioned officer. Dinner of black beans and rice was followed by two hours of indoctrination in communism.

Sunday was slightly different. An NCO would say: "This is Sunday. Anyone who doesn't want to work today voluntarily, let us know." Then they all marched off to work as usual. Ortega was paid 23 cents a day.

STRAIGHT THINKING
For the past 12 years, Tom Anderson has been creating an impact on the national scene. He is a clinch to fill the house when hired as a public speaker; he is now heard on a regular radio commentary program; and his famous "Straight Talk" newspaper column is carried by over 100 newspapers (including this one).

His wit has brought a grin to the face of many a sad conservative, depressed by the rapid rush to the welfare state. For example, his famous barb: "Norman Thomas has said that TVA made a 'Garden of Eden' out of a desolate wilderness; just shows you what God could have done if he'd had the money."

Some of the best Andersonia of the past 12 years has been brought together in a new book, entitled appropriately "Straight Talk" (published by Western Islands, Belmont, Mass. 02178; $4.95). Going back to 1955 and working forward, the publisher has selected a series of gems from Anderson's editorials and speeches.

In 1957, Anderson proposed the following: "Ever thought of a cow bank? Here's how it would work: Let's say you are an average dairyman milking six cows. The government would pay you for drying up your 'excess' cows (but would allow you to 'plow' them). Under the same price and production allotment program on cows, which has been so 'successful' on burley tobacco, you would end up with 2.2 cows on the program. You milk the two whole cows, of course, but the .2 of a cow is an odder story. So you put the .2 in the government milk bank along with the 3.8 cows you've dried up and are plowing. Instead of plowed-under cows, you have plowed cows eating your surplus grain.

"No more need for your old milking machine. You now have the world's greatest milking machine, the federal government sending you checks for not milking. After a few years there might be humanitarian protest against plowing the cows. Then they'd probably be set aside to rest permanently, as a conservation (or cud) reserve, or maybe restored to free range and allowed to stroll down town and lie around the square, just like in India. Holy cow!"

From "The UN is the most over-sold thing to hit New York since the Brooklyn Bridge had its first buyer" to "A person who aims at nothing has a target he can't miss," Tom Anderson's wit and wisdom provide insight and chuckles on all the fronts of modern living.

The American Way

By HARRY BROWNE
"Abraham Lincoln freed the slaves." So goes the cliché that is repeated in children's history books.

Yet, in the real world, 100 years after Lincoln:

1. Young Americans are drafted, against their will, to fight in a war in which they have no interest.
2. Businessmen are forced to keep records for the government — Without any compensation.
3. Anyone who wants to work is forced to join the government's bankrupt Social Security system.
4. Farmers must have the permission of the government before they can plant crops on their own property.
5. American citizens who have bought and paid for gold with their own resources see their gold confiscated from them without compensation.
6. Unmarried persons and childless couples are forced to devote a part of their earnings to the education of other people's children.
7. Voluntary exchanges between willing buyers and agreeable sellers are outlawed by the government.
8. Employers are forced, against their will, to open up their own plants to union organizers and NLRB agents who will conduct elections to tell the employer what to do with his own property.
9. Americans must pay tribute to the modern Caesars — in the form of tariffs, income taxes, license fees, etc. — in order to go about their own peaceable businesses.
10. Homeowners are uprooted involuntarily from their proper ties to make way for the Federal Urban Renewal bulldozer.

When the Welfare Stater mocks you by asking "What freedoms have you lost?" you can point to a few of these for openers.

It would seem that a good, precise definition of slavery is needed. The historians must believe that slavery means "Involuntary servitude of members of the Negro race by white southerners prior to 1870." For it would appear that similar forms of involuntary servitude do not qualify.

Slavery is any act in which a man is deprived from using his own life and property in ways of his own choosing.

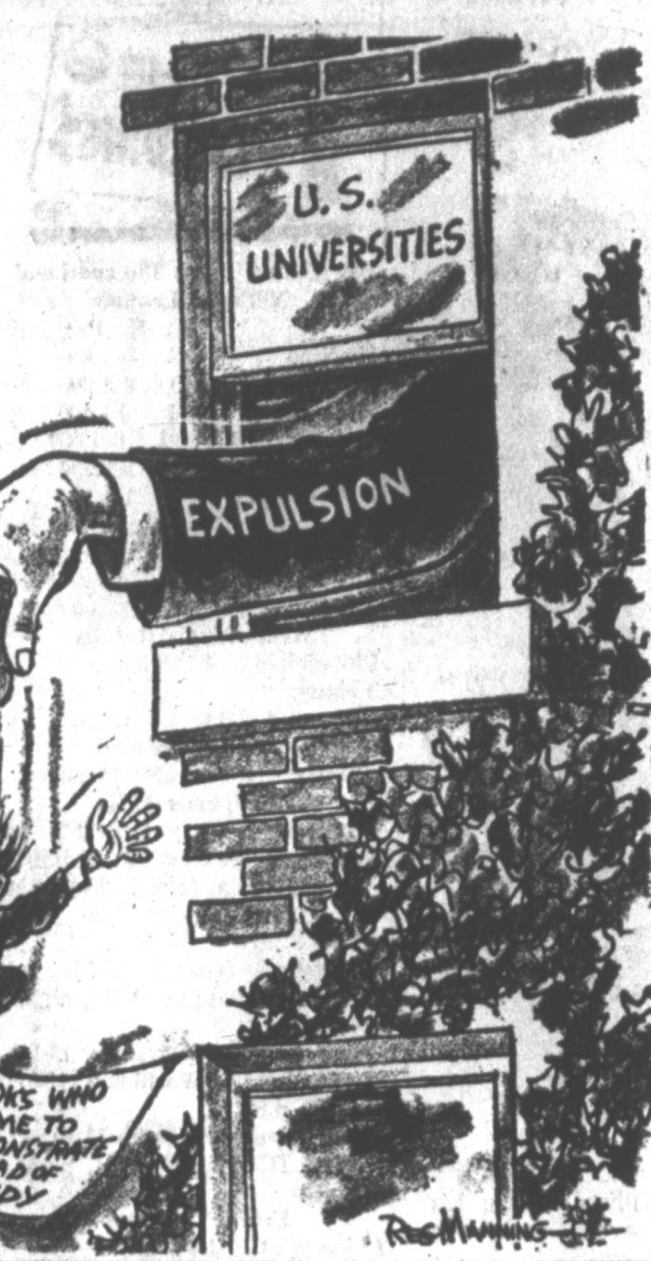

And slavery does exist today in a big way — 100 years after Abraham Lincoln supposedly cleaned things up.

"Help I'm a slave in an American poverty program!"

Grover A. Whalen, New York official greeter for many years, was called the founder of ticker tape parades.

The Doctor Says:

By DR. WAYNE BRANDSTADT
Shaving is Best Method of Removing Facial Hairs
Q — I have stiff, ugly hairs growing on my chin. What causes them and what can be done to get rid of them?
A — This is a common problem. If the color of the unwanted hairs nearly matches that of your skin they would not be conspicuous, and hence not too bothersome. If the hairs are darker than your skin they can be bleached with hydrogen peroxide. Short-wave diathermy has been used to remove these hairs but the results are usually disappointing. The simplest treatment is to shave them off. This will not, as was once believed, cause the hairs to become coarser.

Chemical depilatories irritate the skin and, if left on for more than a few minutes, may cause a dermatitis. For this reason, it is better not to use them on your face. The only way to get rid of these hairs permanently is with an electric needle. Battery-operated needles for home use are not recommended because it takes an experienced operator to gauge how deep to insert the needle, how strong a current to use and how long to use it.

Q — Are hair dyes harmful if used for a period of years? Can they cause brain tumors?
A — The hair dyes and bleaches now sold or used in beauty parlors have been approved by the Food and Drug Administration. They will not cause brain tumors but will irritate the skin of some persons who are allergic to them. For this reason, a patch test with a weak solution of the dye should always be performed before the dye is applied for the first time.

Q — I lose a lot of hair every time I comb it. Vitamin E has not helped any. Is there anything I can do for it?
A — Often women who worry about their hair falling out are guilty of overindulgence in rinses, wave sets and hair sprays. Any rollers or curlers that make even a slight, steady pull on the hair can loosen it. Brisk brushing will stimulate the scalp and this is good but it is sometimes difficult to say when healthy brushing ends and excessive tug-of-war with your hair begins. It is, therefore, wise to avoid vigorous combing or brushing or the use of a brush with sharp synthetic bristles.

It is doubtful that vitamin E would benefit your condition. Avoidance of the aforementioned factors is important. Female hormones may help to stimulate hair growth but the dosage must be carefully controlled. Creams for external application that contain these hormones have been disappointing.

emplane for the front lines without having had lunch with the editor.

"No book is written, no play devised, no magazine article finished unless the author has a weekly lunch conference or two with his patron.

From the looks of the highways, automobiles are designed at lunch and manufactured before supper.

And over lunch each day at people earnestly discussing products in which neither has the slightest interest.

To our mind, it is only logical that veteran lunchers spend more money on their heads than most other people's ears.

We have no desire to turn the clock back: 1940 is all right with us. But there is something to be said for the old days when dinner was civilization's meal.

True enough, these dinner eras had their own excesses. The Romans spent too much money on their feet; Henry VIII spent too much on his stomach. The Renaissance spent too much on its bottom.

On the other hand, they did manage to civilize the world, separate church and state and build some nice chairs and couches.

It's hard to do that sort of thing when your society is out to lunch.
