

Stalin's Daughter To Go Into Seclusion And Write a Book

NEW YORK (UPI)—Seeking the freedom denied her in the Soviet Union, Josef Stalin's only daughter will spend the coming months in seclusion, working on her book and, perhaps, falling in love with the United States.

Svetlana Alliluyeva, asked if she would seek American citizenship, replied:

"Well, I think that before the marriage it should be love. So if I will love this country and this country will love me, then the marriage will be settled. But I cannot say now."

Stalin's comely, 42-year-old daughter who defected from the Soviet Union appeared Wednesday at a nationally televised news conference. In answer to questions, she:

—Accused high Russian Communists still in power of being equally as guilty of "horrible things" as her late father.

—Denied rumors Stalin had been assassinated, saying it was "evident he was sick and his death was the natural result of illness."

—Disclosed that she had her autobiographical book smuggled out of the Soviet Union through India after the conviction of two Russian writers on charges of "high treason."

—Discounted the possibility of reprisals on her children, both of whom she left behind in Moscow, saying, "I don't think something bad might happen with them there, because they don't deserve it."

Questions had been submitted in advance of the heavily guarded news conference. Mrs. Alliluyeva's first public appearance since she arrived here from Switzerland last Friday.

Photographers were frisked and reporters were carefully checked at the doorway of the plush Terrace Room of the Hotel Plaza in mid-Manhattan.

Private detectives and public relations men mingled with newsmen.

Mrs. Alliluyeva, a freckle-faced, red-haired woman looking smart in a blue silk suit, was seated to the right of two attorneys, who poured through about 300 written questions that had been collected at the door.

Many of the questions asked her dealt with her conversion to Christianity, her political ideas, her resentment over Soviet treatment of her late Indian husband, and her experiences in the Soviet Union.

The widow said she had a growing interest in religion and revealed that she had been baptized in the Russian Orthodox faith in 1962.

She described herself as a non-political person, but left no doubt that she had left her homeland because of repressions and restrictions on her freedom, particularly as a writer.

She said a writer "needs freedom to express what he likes and that person should be sure that his books will be published. This is what I could not—as many other writers—which I could not have at home."

1603 RINGS AGAIN—The bell from Santa Fe steam engine 1603 was dedicated in religious ceremonies this morning at St. Matthews Episcopal Church. The bell used for almost 40 years as a warning device on the engine which was scrapped, will now be used as a call for worship. Participating in the ceremonies were (left to right) Jackie Curtis; K. House to Decide State Criminal Code Rules

Prosecutors, Bar Hold Opposite Views

AUSTIN (UPI)—The House was to decide today whether to follow the advice of prosecutors and police or of the State Bar Association on oral confessions.

The 35-page revision of the controversial 1965 Code of Criminal Procedure is the House's top order of business. The major question is on restrictions on oral confessions.

The bill written by the House Jurisprudence committee contains the State Bar recommendation on confessions, but Rep. Bob Armstrong of Austin planned to try to substitute the version sought by prosecutors.

The Texas District and County Attorneys Association has called the State Bar version "a device, the sole purpose of which is to aid criminals and hinder law enforcement."

Defense lawyers claim the oral confessions rule sought by prosecutors does not provide unscrupulous police who might rate the confession.

The rule sought by prosecutors would permit admission of any confession that meets requirements set forth by the U. S. Supreme Court.

The version proposed by the bar and revised slightly by the Criminal Jurisprudence Committee includes the Supreme Court restrictions.

But it also provides that any oral confession obtained during police questioning may be admitted only if it leads to other evidence—such as a weapon or booty—that tends to corroborate the confession.

The Senate earlier this week wrote the prosecutors' version (See CODE, Page 3)

Committee Okays Open Meeting Bill

AUSTIN (UPI)—The Senate Education Committee unanimously approved today a bill to require all governmental bodies in Texas to hold open meetings.

The action climaxed a six-year battle by backers of an "open meetings" bill in the Texas Legislature. It was the first time a Senate committee has approved such a bill.

The proposal, by Sen. Chet Brooks of Pasadena, forbids all public agencies—either state or local—from holding closed or secret meetings, with only a few exceptions.

"I believe we have an excellent chance of passing it in the Senate now," Brooks said following the brief meeting of the committee today.

Brooks said his bill has written into it three exceptions to cover some objections in the Senate during previous sessions.

Exempt from the provisions are hearings on personnel, discussions pertaining to the acquisition of additional real property and meetings dealing with security.

Senators voting with Brooks on the Education Committee today included A. M. Adkin; Sen. Criss Cole of Houston; Chairman of the committee; Sen. H. J. Blanchard of Lubbock; Sen. Bruce Reagan of Corpus Christi and Sen. Joe Bernal of San Antonio.

Cole and Blanchard attempted to pass a similar bill in the Senate during the last session of the legislature.

It was part of a long struggle dating back to 1963 for Brooks. He is a former newsmen who gained House passage of similar legislation in the lower chamber in both 1963 and 1965, only to see both measures killed in the Senate.

Since Brooks has been in the Senate, Rep. Bill Rapp of Raymondville, owner of the Willacy County News, took up the battle in the House. He has already received favorable committee action.

Canada's Expo '67 World's Fair In Opening Day

MONTREAL (UPI)—Expo '67, Canada's $750 million World's Fair, opens its doors today for the tilled and the elected. The public will begin pouring in Friday.

About 7,000 guests were invited to watch the colorful official opening ceremonies today on St. Helen's Island, one of the two islands on which the 1,000-acre exhibition dedicated to "Man and His World" was constructed. The other is Ile Notre Dame. The islands lie in the middle of the St. Lawrence River.

The most lavish among the exhibitions entered by 62 nations on five continents is the $15 million Soviet Union building. Its curved roof shelters replicas of Russian space vehicles and models of other technical projects.

The United States exhibit is connected to the Soviet Union's by a "peace bridge." Inside (See FAIR, Page 3)

Powell Lawyers Devise Legal Plan To Get Seat Back

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Adam Clayton Powell's lawyers have devised a legal plan they hope will get their client back into the House and at the same time bypass a bruising collision between the courts and Congress.

The attorneys intended to elaborate on the proposal at a hearing today before the U. S. Court of Appeals here.

The court is considering Powell's suit to overturn his March 1 "exclusion" by the House and to order Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., and other House officials to readmit him.

Federal District Judge George E. Hart Jr. threw out the case on grounds that he could not order Congress to do anything and the separation of powers doctrine barred him from trying.

New Greek Program Promises Reforms

ATHENS (UPI)—Greece's new military regime, cautiously blessed by King Constantine, today plunged ahead with an ambitious program for a "true crown democracy." It promised sweeping reforms benefiting virtually everyone, including "the misguided Greeks."

The 26-year-old monarch threw his support behind the new government Wednesday, five days after a bloodless army takeover which army-installed Premier Constantine Kollias said had thwarted a "satanical" revolution plotted by leftists.

The young king was quick to urge the "return to parliamentary government as soon as possible." Kollias said the military regime would "take all pains to bring this about."

Political Promises
Kollias said "The government promises a cutdown in extravagant expenses, adjustment of the country to its obligations toward the European Common Market, equality in taxation, a healthier state machinery and an increase in the rate of economic growth."

He said the government would "apply a program of social welfare for the people, turning all its interest and efforts toward the villagers, toward the youth, toward the misguided Greeks."

King Constantine's implicit vote of confidence ended speculation he opposed the military coup. Kollias claimed "complete order and quiet is now prevailing all over Greece. The smile of peace and security has returned to the faces of the people."

OVER VIET POLICIES

Johnson Answers Harsh Critics

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson, target of some of the harshest criticism yet by opponents of his Vietnam policy, says that he wants "more than any human being in the world to see the killing stopped."

"I want to negotiate. I want a political settlement. . . . But I can't negotiate with myself," the Chief Executive declared in impromptu remarks following a brief speech before an audience of scientists Wednesday night.

"Maybe somewhere, some how, some day, someone will sit down and want to talk instead of kill," he said, the emotion behind his words plainly marked on his face. "If they do, I'll be the first one at the table."

Johnson made no mention of one accusation that has been leveled at him and his administration, that of attempting to "stifle dissent."

But even as he spoke, Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., was charging the administration with practicing "political blackmail" to silence critics of its Vietnam policy.

"What kind of men have we at the helm of government who would deliberately coerce the public into accepting their policies on the threat of being branded traitors? These are the tactics of tyrants," he said in a speech before the Yale Political Union.

The Oregon Republican also accused Gen. William C. Westmoreland, U.S. commander in Vietnam, of "joining in the effort to silence the opposition."

In a speech Monday, Westmoreland said the antiwar demonstrations encouraged the Communists.

Johnson's speech to the American Physical Society banquet Wednesday night was his first comment, however indirect, on the bitter debate that has wracked the Senate since the escalation of the air war over Vietnam this week.

He was greeted with applause as he walked to the podium, but just before he began to speak, Dr. Howard Weisberg, a 27-year-old physicist from the Lawrence Radiation Laboratory at Berkeley, Calif., jumped to his feet and held up a homemade placard with just one word on it: "Vietnam."

The company feels, however, beyond any temporary pause, that the improving fundamentals in the economy and technical market indicator would suggest "little alternative to a bullish position over the months ahead."

Bache & Co. says it continues to believe that some sort of rest period will be needed before a decisive assault on the 900 area of the Dow Jones industrial average is launched. The company does not overlook the possibility, however, of current upward momentum, carrying the index to a test of this barrier in the near future.

Pastor Says Anti-Viet Demonstrators Have Succumbed to Red Propaganda

DALLAS (UPI) — Dr. W.A. Criswell, pastor of the world's largest Southern Baptist Church, said today anti-Vietnam war demonstrators have succumbed to Communist propaganda, and the ministers among them are dabbling in treason.

"Communism is a denial of God," said Criswell, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Dallas. "A minister who flirts with Communism is a traitor."

Criswell said anti-war demonstrations "persuade the enemy that America does not have any real fiber. This naturally lengthens the war, and the blood of American soldiers is laid at the door of these demonstrators."

Criswell said the demonstrators are "half-brains" and "left-wingers."

"I just can't describe the contempt I have for these writers, marchers and draftcard burners," he said. "If I had my way I would jail every last one of them, including the preachers and the professors."

Local Industrial Art Students to Compete

About 35 industrial arts students from Pampa High School and Robert E. Lee Junior High School will attend the annual West Texas State University Industrial Arts Student Fair tomorrow and Saturday at Canyon.

Fair activities, sponsored by WTSU Industrial Education Club, are financed by the club and by both fees from exhibitors.

Both Pampa schools will have 13 students competing.

Pampa students will enter six of the 17 divisions, woodworking, leather, art metal crafts, plastics crafts, descriptive geometry and architectural drafting.

Students from both public and private schools will attend the fair, with about 350 students in grades seven through 12 entered in competition.

Projects will be taken to WTSU today for judging tomorrow. All projects were completed during the school year and will be judged for excellence in design, utility and craftsmanship, according to Earl Deaver, Pampa High School industrial arts teacher.

Thomas Oliver, an industrial arts teacher in Lubbock, will be guest speaker at the awards luncheon at noon Saturday in the Rex Reeves Elementary School, Canyon.

Oliver was recently named the outstanding industrial arts teacher in Texas by the Texas Industrial Arts Association.

The university's Industrial Education Club members will arrange projects for judging by industrial arts teachers in Texas colleges and universities.

Projects will be displayed in the WTSU Student Union Building Saturday.

Awards include plaques for the grand and reserve champions and each of the 17 division winners.

Division winners in first, second and third places will receive ribbons. The senior who exhibits the best project will receive two semesters tuition paid to WTSU.

The senior and junior high school with the highest number of winning students will receive a school championship trophy. Each school will be judged only on its first 15 projects entered.

Students who place high in the Canyon fair may enter state competition May 5-6 at Texas A&M, College Station. The Texas Industrial Arts Association sponsors state competition.

Pampa High School students competing include Billy Forman, Bob Frazier, Ervin Hall, Lonnie Richards, Larry Adams, Scotty Davis and Larry Young. Other high school entries are by Tom Teague, Jerry Jelinek, Everett Gray, Larry Shaw, Nathan Killough and Lloyd Larkin.

Robert E. Lee Junior High School students competing include Dennis White, Dale Parks, Randy Reeve, Max Miller, Barry George, Chris Johnson and Bob Curtis.

Other junior high entries are by Virgil Neil, Terry Jennings, Charles McFarland, Robbie Valerius, Billy Nidiffer and Eddie Reames.

Task Force Says Nation's Farmers Being 'Wiped Out'

WASHINGTON (Sp) — Congressman Bob Price, a member of the House Republican Task Force on Agriculture, said today: "If present inadequate farm prices and increased imports continue, then we can expect to see a continued decline in the number of farms in this country. The Task Force will analyze the farm scene in order that anti-agriculture maneuvers can be corrected."

"Total farm debt last year went up 10 per cent," Price said. "Prices that farmers now receive for their commodities are substantially below those received last fall. The number of farms dropped 12 per cent from the previous year and the Department of Agriculture now predicts 82,000 more farms will be wiped out in 1967. Obviously, the farmer is alarmed with good reason."

"There has not been a farm message sent to the Congress this year nor is there any indication that the many anti-agriculture maneuvers will be halted. In fact, agriculture rated but one short sentence in the President's State of the Union Message."

"Because of the serious economic plight of American agriculture, we on the Task Force will persevere in our efforts to rectify this situation whereby farmers are being short-changed by administrative tactics," Price concluded.

Lodge Schedules Speaking Contest

Pampa Lodge No. 480 Knights of Pythias will sponsor the annual public speaking elimination contest at 7:30 p.m. today at Pythian Hall, 317 N. Nelson.

Ten contestants will speak on "A Moral and Ethical Code for Teenagers."

Local contest winner may advance to the 22nd Knights of Pythias national contest in Miami Beach, Fla., in August, where $8,000 in scholarships will be awarded the winners.

Knight Floyd Sackett is in charge of the Pampa program.

In so many words, they have proposed that the courts merely declare that the House action was unconstitutional. There would be no need for any orders, they argue, if the House would "respect and abide by this court's judgment."

What is not in the legal briefs is the lawyer's contention that, should the court issue such a "declaratory judgment" in behalf of Powell, the House would be under a moral obligation to comply.

(Continued From Page 1) significance for her, Mrs. Allifuyeva responded: "I believe that in modern world, in 20th Century to which we belong, in the century of atom bomb and space flights, the idea of class revolution which can bring people to progress has lost its significance."

She said another factor in her decision to leave the Soviet Union was the treatment accorded her and her intended husband. Their request to be married was denied by "the party and the government."

"I think this is not the business of the government at all," she said, "and the whole thing finished quite tragically because my husband died in Moscow and his death made me absolutely intolerant to the things to which I was rather tolerant before."

Asked about the future in Russia, she said, "Perhaps those students who are now 18, 19, 20 years old in Russia, when they will become grown up and when and if they will become social leaders in the country, they will bring something more modern and more democratic, I hope so."

Fifty percent of the persons located who are heirs to estates never knew the person who left the money.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I have a neighbor who works from 3 p.m. to 11 p.m. She leaves her boys, 9 and 11, home alone.

The other night I heard cries and screams coming from her house so I ran over there thinking maybe the boys needed help. Soon as I rapped on the door, asking if I could be of any help, they quieted down. As it turned out, the boys were having another of their fights, but from the sound of the yelling I thought someone was being murdered. The next morning when I was on my porch getting my mail, their mother came out and told me that she didn't want me or any other neighbors "bothering" her boys while she was working. I only wanted to help. Why on earth would she take this attitude?

GOOD NEIGHBOR
DEAR GOOD: She was embarrassed. Like all people who bury their heads in the sand, your neighbor believes that what she doesn't see is no one else can. She forgets of course that one who assumes that position presents an excellent target.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have a rare coin collection. Recently we noticed that four half dollars were missing. Their total value is more than $200.

The only person who has been alone in our house is a 14-year-old neighbor boy who sits with our children. This boy's parents are good friends of ours and we wouldn't want to lose their friendship over this.

My husband says we should hide the collection and keep quiet about the missing coins. I say we should confront the boy's parents. I am sure the boy doesn't realize the value of the coins he took. What should we do?

COIN COLLECTORS
DEAR COLLECTORS: Whether the boy is under the impression that he took $2 in coins or $200, is beside the point. The boy himself should be confronted.

ed. Leave his parents out of it.

DEAR ABBY: Kindly transmit the following message to S.S.R., the surgeon who wrote about getting his right hand crushed by men who, when they shake your hand, want to impress you with their power and friendliness:

This can be avoided by a simple technique. Place the forefinger and middle finger high up on the other person's wrist, and as the handshake is concluded, bring his hand downward, using the forefinger and middle finger as a fulcrum. This breaks the power of the grip, so he cannot possibly squeeze your hand hard enough to hurt it. Try it. It works.

"If we had not gained victory in 1917-18, then there would be no free world or free United States today, according to the spokesman.

During the meeting, it was brought out that on the Golden Anniversary of World War I in 1967 and 1968, that a grateful nation should honor these men who gave their lives, as well as remember those survivors who are still among us.

TAKE CARE OF EYES — Eyes come just two to a customer, and since they bring up 80 per cent of all knowledge and guide more than 90 per cent of our actions, tender care is essential. You should have your eyes checked at least once a year. Jeff Doughton, band instructor, directed the band in several selections. He extended an invitation to parents to attend the Spring Band Concert to be held in the high school fieldhouse on April 27 at which time all school bands will be presented in concert.

Miss Lagay Williams, Pampa High School Junior, read a poem she had written about God followed by a short talk to parents with a plea for them to teach their children about God and His love for them.

During a business meeting, conducted by Mrs. Lawrence Paronto, president, the resignation of Mrs. Dale Butler as secretary was accepted with regrets. Mrs. Charles Jefferies was elected to fill the vacancy. Mrs. Lonnie Paraley, Mrs. Jeffries and Mrs. Charles Davis were appointed to an auditing committee.

It was announced a representative from the Houston Space Center will be guest speaker in Lamar Assembly on April 25. May 11 will be Fine Arts Day at Lamar. She said the West Texas State Symphony Orchestra will be in Lamar School all day visiting classes and having lunch there and play for the P-TA unit meeting in the afternoon.

Mrs. Ray Jackson, reporting on the District 9 Spring Conference held recently in Pampa, said Lamar unit had 11 members present and that the unit received three superior ratings and one excellent.

Mrs. Harriet Maddox, sixth grade teacher, expressed appreciation to the unit for the filing cabinets presented by the unit. Four teachers drew for them this year; more will be given next year.

Mrs. Paronto was presented a Life Membership Award for outstanding contribution to Lamar P-TA.

Austin Ruddick's room won the room count by having the most parents present.

Mrs. Mary Walsh, a teacher, won the door prize: a cake baked by Mrs. Jack Robertson.

It was announced the next meeting will be May 11, when mothers of next year's new students will be honored at a tea.

TC Culture Hears Eisenhower Story

Continuing with Twentieth Century Culture Club's study theme for the year, "The Parade of Presidents", Mrs. V. L. Hobbs spoke on the lives of President Dwight D. and Mamie Eisenhower, 1953-61.

The meeting was held in the home of Mrs. Jack R. Hood with Mrs. Doyle Osborne as co-hostess.

Mrs. Hobbs traced the lives of Dwight D. and Mamie Dowd Eisenhower from the time of their boy and girl romance through his career in the army and World War II.

She told of the death of their first child, Dwight II and the birth of their second son, John and their interesting life as they traveled from army base to army base.

"In 1947," she said, "he became the world's first citizen when he became the army chief of staff."

"After returning home to the United States in 1948, they bought their first home in Gettysburg," she said. "This was the home they had dreamed of for 35 years. In 1953, he was elected President of the United States and these two brave and interesting people started still another career."

Mrs. Hobbs sprinkled her talk with humor and down-to-earth stories of the Eisenhowers.

Refreshments were served preceding the meeting.

Mrs. Mathers Has Anonymous Club

RASPBERRY APPLE CROWN — Make Mother the Queen of the May with this Raspberry-Apple Crown, a light, luscious and easy-to-fix combination of canned pie-sliced apples and raspberry gelatin.

8 THE PAMPA DAILY NEWS THURSDAY, APRIL 27, 1967 60TH YEAR

Lettuce Bread Will Make Guests Guess

As a special treat, serve an unusually delicious bread to accompany the salads. Your guests will be intrigued by our Specialty of the House for the month of May, for who would guess those emerald green flecks in your tasty batter loaf bread would be finely chopped western iceberg lettuce?

"Lettuce Loaf Bread" has a fresh flavor everyone will enjoy. It's crunchy with chopped walnuts and lightly spiced with ginger and mace. An accent of lemon rind rounds out the delicate flavors and makes "Lettuce Loaf Bread" an excellent mate for fruit salads.

Or serve it with cheese as a teatime or evening snack. What a conversation-maker this delightful bread will be at your luncheon — it's sure to keep everyone guessing until you reveal your secret.

LETTUCE LOAF BREAD
1 head western iceberg lettuce

- 1 1/2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon ground mace
- 1/4 teaspoon ground ginger
- 1 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup corn oil
- 1 1/2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
- 2 eggs
- 1/2 cup chopped walnuts...

Core, rinse and drain lettuce; chill until crisp in disposable plastic bag. Finely chop enough to measure 1 cup; chill remainder for use in salads. Sift flour with baking powder, soda, salt and spices. Combine sugar, oil and lemon rind; mix in flour combination and chopped lettuce. Add eggs, one at a time, heating well after each addition. Stir in walnuts. Turn into greased and floured 8 1/2 x 4 1/2 x 2 1/2-inch glass loaf pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 55 minutes or until pick inserted in center comes out dry. Cool in pan 15 minutes

Here Comes The Bridegroom's Cake: Golden And Fruit-Filled

Although this recipe was developed with wedding day festivities in mind, the cake is so good that it should not be limited to only one occasion. The cake is rich and moist with a wonderful blend of dates, apricots, raisins and toasted almonds.

As with all successful baking, high quality ingredients are the secret to baking this golden groom's cake. Margarine with a soft sweet flavor is creamed brown sugar and honey. The margarine is the same fine spread homemakers choose for table use.

The home economists in the Martha Logan Kitchens have worked out several time-management possibilities to facilitate the baking and serving of this elegant groom's cake. For example, dried fruits which have been in the freezer for a short time, or until firm but not brittle, will cut more easily and will not stick to the knife.

Cakes may be baked as much as a month ahead and wrapped either uncut or sliced for freezer storage. The uncut cakes would be sliced and individually boxed the day before the reception.

then invert and cool on wire rack. Sprinkle with powdered sugar if you wish. Makes 1 loaf of this moist specialty bread.

If the cakes are sliced into box-sized pieces and foil wrapped individually before freezing, the boxes could be filled right from the freezer. This would be time-consuming the day the cakes were baked but would greatly speed up the boxing when minutes count.

Storage tests also indicate that the cake may be baked two weeks in advance, wrapped tightly in foil and stored at room temperature. The day before the wedding, the cake is sliced and put into the individual boxes for the guests at the reception. The texture of the cake is moist and the good apricot flavor has mellowed. The color of the cake will be somewhat darker than it was just out of the oven.

GROOM'S GOLDEN CAKE
Yield: Four 2 1/2 pound cakes.
1 pound (2 cups) margarine
4 cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon allspice
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 pound (2 1/4 cups) packed dark brown sugar
1 cup honey
10 eggs
1 cup apricot nectar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1/2 cup cream
2 pounds pitted dates, sliced
2 pounds dried apricots, sliced

1 pound toasted almonds, chopped
1/2 pound seedless golden raisins

Sift together flour, baking powder, salt, and spices. Cream together margarine, brown sugar, and honey. Beat until mixture is smooth and fluffy. To the creamed mixture add the eggs, beating well after the addition of each. Add 1/2 of the sifted ingredients to the batter and beat until thoroughly blended. Combine the apricot nectar, lemon juice, and cream. Stir into the cake batter. When batter is well mixed, fold in chopped fruits and nuts, which have been dredged in the remainder of the flour mixture. Pour the cake into four 9 by 5 by 3 inch loaf pans rubbed with shortening and floured. Bake in a very slow oven (250 degrees F.) for 3 hours. Cool in pans before removing.

NOTE: Dip knife in water before slicing to prevent cake from crumbling.

Soak Those Split Ends
If hair splits are a problem, try soaking ends in baby oil and sitting under a dryer for 45 to 60 minutes. Wash hair until it's squeaky clean and follow with a mild cream rinse. Now your hair is ready for setting and drying and no split ends.

Make Mother Queen of The May With Edible Crown On Her Day

Oddly enough, the Greeks DID have a word for a holiday which is the counterpart of our Mother's Day. We don't have the Greek letters on our typewriter to tell you exactly what it was, but ancient Greek celebrations honoring Cybele as mother of the Gods far pre-date the relatively modern observation of Mother's Day on the second Sunday in May.

We don't know what the Greeks served at their Mother's Day feasts, but we can't think of a more appropriate or delectable dessert than today's Raspberry-Apple Crown. This fetching concoction combines several very modern time-savers — lb. cake, raspberry gelatin, and those versatile canned pie-sliced apples, which you may have used only for pies up till now — and it's ideal for make-ahead preparation so Mother has her whole Sunday free to enjoy family visits.

Pound cake squares set on the diagonal in a spring-form pan create the "crown" outline. The filling is a creamy raspberry gelatin mixture enhanced with the taste-tempting apple slices. Thanks to their special processing, these canned pie-sliced apples don't turn brown on exposure to air so they're well suited, also, for the special garnish topping the crown. To complete the treat, "ice" the sides with whipped cream before serving.

RASPBERRY APPLE CROWN
1 6-oz. pkg. raspberry gelatin
2 cups boiling water
1 1/2 cups cold water
1/4 cup sugar
1 lb. 4 oz. can pie-sliced apples, well drained
1 10-oz. loaf pound cake
1 cup (1 pint) heavy cream...

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Stir in cold water. Set aside 1/4 cup gelatin in skillet. Chill remaining gelatin until thickened. Add sugar to gelatin in skillet. Add pie-sliced apples and simmer about 5 minutes or until apples are glazed. Drain off any remaining syrup. Dice apples, reserving 12 slices for garnish. Cool. Cut pound cake lengthwise into 7 slices. Cut each slice in half. Whip 1/4 cup heavy cream until stiff. Fold cream and diced apples into thickened gelatin. Place pound cake squares on bottom and around sides of a 9-inch spring form pan to form crown. Pour in gelatin mixture. Chill until firm. To serve, remove sides of pan and place on serving dish. Whip remaining cream and spread on sides of crown. Garnish with reserved glazed apple slices.

Round Steak Goes Swiss In Minutes

The other day we heard a young shopper ask the butcher for a Swiss Steak. Chuckling, he explained that one starts with round steak and tried valiantly to tell her a recipe: Looking brave and determined, she asked for round steak.

Young lady, wherever you are, now there is a new canned Complete Cooking Sauce specially blended for Swiss Steak. Instead of having to measure and chop, shed tears over onions, saute and simmer and lay in a supply of special herbs and spices, all you do is pour a 13-ounce can of Swiss Steak Cooking Sauce over browned round steak, cover and forget until dinner. And all you have to wash is one skillet.

Driving Champion Graham Hill Given New Challenge

By BOB COCHNAR and DAVE BURGIN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
NEW YORK (NEA) — "You know," Graham Hill admitted as he poured himself a glass of beer, "I never knew how difficult it is to say, 'Hey, look who's here' without sounding like a bloody fool!"

Graham is concerned about such things because he is an admitted perfectionist who was given that line and a few others for his role as driver "Joe Turner" in "Grand Prix," MGM's spectacular film about racing.

His other words were similarly straightforward. One was "congratulations." And he particularly enjoyed one scene in which he had to slosh a glass of beer over a fellow driver.

But this champion Formula 1 driver and 1966 Indianapolis 500 winner wasn't too happy about the film's ending. Seems an American driver (James Garner) driving a Japanese car finishes a race just a foot or two ahead of a British driver (Brian Bedford) in a British car and wins the world championship.

"It's a blow to my national pride," Englishman Hill announced. "Besides, it never happens that way in real life." And Graham Hill should know. At 37, he is one of the world's consistently fine drivers who has seldom finished a race out of the money, although he made a big decision at the end of last year's racing season which may have a lot to do with his performance in 1967.

After seven years as a member of the BRM racing team, he switched to Lotus and a new partner, Scotland's ace Jimmy Clark. "I guess it was the seven-year itch," he explained. "There's absolutely no ill feeling with BRM. I was sad about leaving after being so long a part of the team, but I'm happy about my decision and regard it as a fresh challenge — something good for any driver."

It wasn't an auspicious beginning for the new arrangement. At the recent South African Grand Prix, mechanical problems forced Hill out on the sixth lap. Clark made it to the 22nd when his care quit.

Lotus has high hopes for the Hill-Clark (or Clark-Hill) capable of finishing each race spite the poor start in South Africa, that he has a fleet of cars the circuit and maintains, de- entered.

Graham Hill is his toughest critic. He is still searching for the "perfect" race and is convinced that one day he'll find it. "Some times I feel I've driven a race well even if I don't win it," he says. "And if I don't, there's always the next race."

"I guess I'm something of a perfectionist, but I don't necessarily think that's a failing. I have never been completely satisfied with my work. I want everything to be right. These are personal standards, true, but I ain't out on a circuit to please the crowd."

Hill, with his pencil mustache and, veddy-English demeanor, is everybody's very model of a modern racing driver. But he doesn't speak with the cliched bravado that is often a cover-up for the very human fears to which all drivers occasionally succumb. He is willing to discuss his profession objectively.

"Nobody ever forgets about self-preservation when he squeezes into the cockpit and roars off the grid," he says. "And self-preservation does logically lead to great tempta-

GRAHAM HILL, the actor, gets script pointers (for the movie "Grand Prix") from John Frankenheimer, the director. Hill says now, "I think that I shall be far better remembered for my race driving."

wholly irrelevant — reasons and nobody would know. You can get away with a lot of things in the name of self-preservation. You also lose a lot of races this way."

Graham Hill and 11 of his Grand Prix colleagues will be racing at Indianapolis on Memorial Day. This is the largest Formula 1 contingent ever to fly down the brickyard and expose themselves to what is probably one of the world's riskiest races.

Hill won $100,000 at Indy last year. And that does, so, ten risks.

AUTOMATION AGE

Synchro-Mesh Brawn for Brown

HOUSTON (UPI) — Conley Brown, Rice University's brilliant quartermiler, belongs to the automation age. He has synchro-mesh muscles.

Brown, a sophomore, anchors Rice's mile relay team, the best in the nation. The team is unbeaten in eight starts and ran a 3:06.6, the fastest in the country this year, to beat the top teams in the Midwest and Southwest in the Kansas Relays last week.

This week, Brown and his Owl teammates will try to establish their superiority over the East's best in the Penn Relays. They hope to get down in the 3:05.

Brown, a 5-11, 150-pounder, ran a 45.7 leg at Kansas after running the first half in a quick 21.5. It was his fastest time, but he thinks he can do better.

His fastest open quarter time was 46.5, which he has run twice already this spring. He thinks he can cut it to 46.3.

Brown is enjoying his best season since he started running track in the seventh grade and it's mainly because he hasn't suffered any pulled muscles.

That's because they are synchro-meshed. Because of his history of pulled muscles, he started last October lifting weights with his legs and he worked on both the front and rear muscles.

"When you're running, you lift your leg with the front muscles and push off with the back muscles," trainer Eddie Wojewicki said. "So if one set is stronger than the other, the weaker ones tend to pull under strain. If you strengthen both sets, they're synchronized."

Sonics Up League Lead

By United Press International

Pitching was momentarily forgotten Wednesday night as Amarillo increased its lead by beating El Paso 10-4 and Albuquerque bombed Arkansas 18-3.

Austin moved into a second-place tie with El Paso by beating Dallas-Fort Worth 6-3.

Amarillo dropped El Paso 1 1/2 games behind by collecting 16 hits off four Sun King pitchers. Amarillo's only home run was a bases empty blast by Brock Davis in the first inning. Aurelio Rodriguez hit one for El Paso.

AAU Planning New U.S. Games

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Amateur Athletic Union has announced plans for the John F. Kennedy International Memorial Games, an Olympic-type annual winter and summer games to be held in the United States.

According to Col. Donald E. Hull, executive director of the AAU, the first summer games have been tentatively set for the Los Angeles Coliseum on May 30, 1968. Winter games are planned for Lake Placid, N.Y., in December.

Hull said Wednesday he hopes to bring together the world's top amateur athletes for traditional Olympic events, with the possible addition of such non-Olympic sports as golf, tennis, bowling, water skiing and polo.

"In effect," Hull pointed out, "each event will be an Olympic final."

The JFK Games, to be held on a Thursday through Saturday each year, start in 1968 despite the fact it is an Olympic year. Hull said he had talked with international amateur officials who emphasized they will endorse the games with complete enthusiasm.

Drysdale Turns To his 'Cousins' To Help Record

By United Press International

Don Drysdale, playing a solo since Sandy Koufax' retirement, turned to his old "cousins" for support of an aching pitching record.

With visions of a career in show business after his baseball days end, the big righthander played his part to perfection

Wednesday night in edging Atlanta 2-1 for his 29th career triumph over the Braves.

Drysdale had his lines down pat when he alerted Los Angeles manager Walt Alston after the seventh inning that he had about had it.

"It was cold out there and I knew I was losing a little on my fast ball," Drysdale admitted. "I told Alston and Lefty Phillips (Dodgers pitching coach) I would try to stick it out until we got down to Mack Jones. Then Ron Perranoski could get him."

Allows Singles

The drama was stark in the eighth inning as Drysdale, who had allowed only two singles through seven innings and carried a 2-1 lead into the eighth, gave up singles to Denis Menke and Hank Aaron. Then with two out, Perranoski, a southpaw, came in to strike out lefthand batting Jones.

St. Louis defeated Houston 7-2 and Cincinnati beat San Francisco in other National League action. The New York at Chicago and Philadelphia at Pittsburgh games were postponed by inclement weather.

In the only American League game to foil the elements, Chicago routed New York 5-1. Postponed contests included Minnesota at Cleveland, Boston at Washington, California at Baltimore and Kansas City at Detroit.

Drysdale, who allowed an unearned run in the fourth when Bob Bailey dropped Felipe Alou's liner in left field, was backed with the winning run in the seventh on Lou Johnson's double and Ron Fairly's single that broke a 1-1 tie. Los Angeles scored its other run in the third on three walks by Wade Blasingame and Fairly's infield out.

St. Louis stayed on top of the NL by a degree of percentage points as Lou Brock led the Cardinal attack with a triple that marked the 10th consecutive game in which he has hit safely. The loss was Houston's 10th straight, tying a club

BORGER SATURDAY

Harvesters Tackle Palo Duro Friday

Palo Duro, a team that gave Pampa all kinds of trouble at Optimist Club Park, will play host to the Harvesters in a 4 p.m. consolation game Friday.

Pampa won the first game of the two-series set, 11-6 with a five-run rally in the sixth inning.

The Harvesters, 7-3 in district 3-4A and 19-3 for the season can look for the Dons, 3-8 and 9-15 to be even tougher at home.

Saturday Pampa hosts Borger, 5-6 and 7-12 in Optimist Club Park. The Harvesters have beaten the Bulldogs six straight times.

Allan Woodard got his first and only win of the season against the Dons in relief, pitching two innings.

In other Friday games Amarillo hosts Lubbock Coronado while Lubbock High hosts Tascosa. Caprock plays at Monterey and Plainview hosts Borger.

In Saturday games Plainview hosts Amarillo while Monterey and Tascosa play at Lubbock in a battle for first place. Palo Duro hosts Coronado and Caprock plays at Lubbock High.

Pampa put their hitting and pitching back together Tuesday to down Amarillo for the second time and Rick Foster still leads the club in hitting despite drawing the collar the past two games.

Pampa, in third place in the district standings still has a shot at the championship if Monterey fails to get by Tascosa. The Harvesters still have a pair of games left with the Rebels and also two left with fourth-place Caprock.

The two contests that have been rained out have not been rescheduled as yet.

Pampa coach Bobby Stephens announced Wednesday that two players, pitchers Dickie Henley and Al Gomez had been dropped from the squad for breaking training.

Kolff Eyes Cage Career

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Bill (Fitch) Van Breda Kolff has finally decided to make basketball a business.

Van Breda Kolff, who brought a new era to collegiate basketball with the help of Bill Bradley during his tenure as Princeton coach, will be introduced to the press today as head coach of the Los Angeles Lakers.

Van Breda Kolff's resignation from Princeton was accepted by Tiger Athletic Director R. Kenneth Fairman Wednesday and Van Breda Kolff immediately flew to Los Angeles, where he will formally succeed Fred Schaus today.

Schaus, who has differed with owner Jack Kent Cooke on some of the team's policies, is expected to replace the ailing Lou Mobs as the team's general manager.

Last March, when Van Breda Kolff was questioned about the usual way he ran the Princeton team with such things as free throw shooting contests during practices, he said, "I have to have some fun at this because I'm not making enough money or it to be a business."

Van Breda Kolff, 44, has posted a 307-108 record in his coaching career at Lafayette, Hofstra and Princeton.

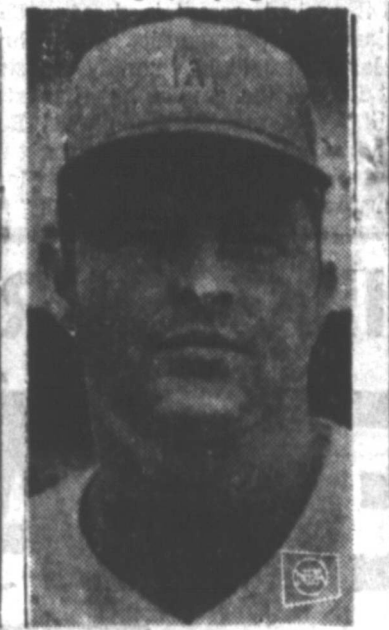

Last Appeal For Clay Today

HOUSTON (UPI) — Cassius Clay's latest appeal to stay out of the army was to be heard in U.S. District Court today—less than 24 hours before the heavyweight champion's scheduled induction into the armed forces.

Clay's induction is set for 10 a.m. EST Friday in Houston. Today's hearing is on a 67-page petition asking for a temporary injunction keeping him from being inducted on the grounds he is a Black Muslim minister.

Judge Allen B. Hannay has also agreed to hear a motion by government prosecutor Fred Drugula today to throw out Clay's bulky petition.

Drugula, who planned to fly to Houston from Washington for the hearing, said Clay's petition should not even be read because it does not contain any news facts that would alter past court decisions.

89ers Keep First Place

By United Press International

Batters in the Pacific Coast League made a run at the record book Wednesday night but the assaults fell short.

The Vancouver Mounties took a shot at the consecutive home run mark of three held by 10 teams—and would have broken it had Gerry Reimer hit one out of the park.

Joe Gaines started it with an inside-the-park poke and Randy Schwartz followed with one over the barrier but then the best Aimer could do was sky to left.

Sal Bando then lost one over the fence to make it three-out-of-four. The homers powered the Mounties to a 5-1 win over Portland with Roberto Rodriguez supplying the pitching by scattering four hits and striking out nine.

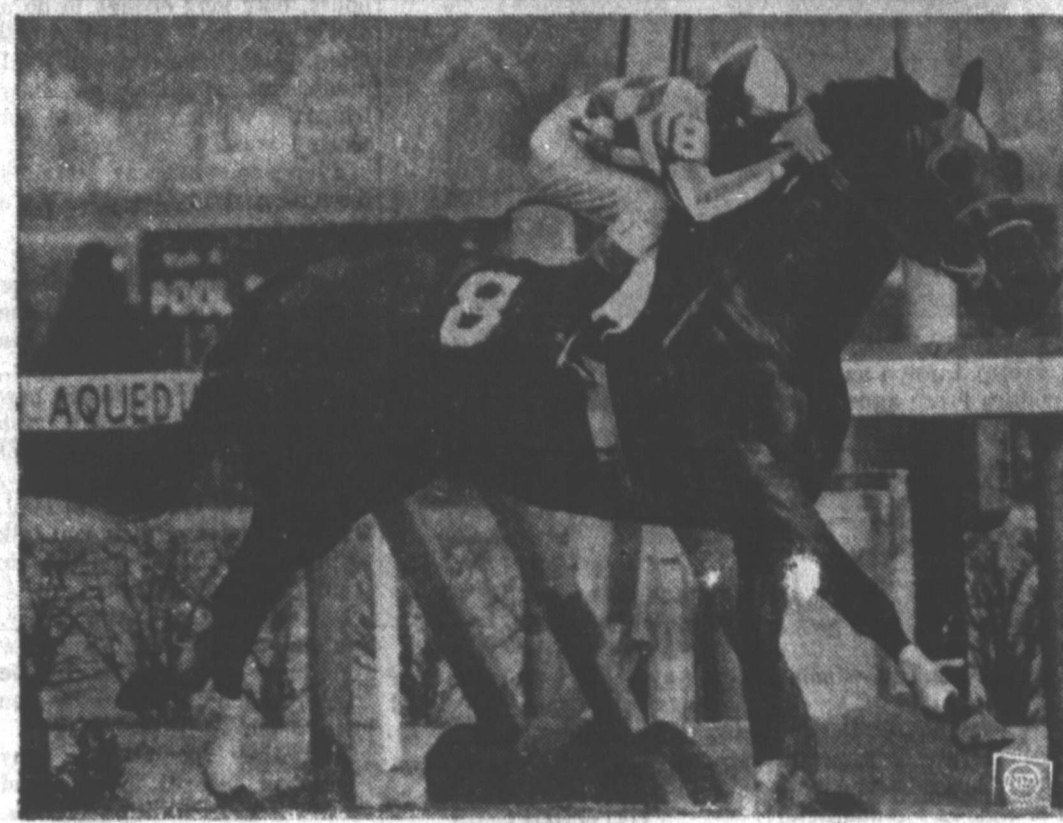

The Tacoma Cubs strung together four consecutive doubles—one shy of the record set by Spokane two years ago—in snapping the Indians' six game winning streak, 5-1.

George Pena, Alan Gallagher, Bobby Mitchell and winning pitcher Jim Ellis rapped the two baggers during a three-run uprising.

Ellis, who pitched to all but one batter, picked up his fourth win against no defeats.

In a pair of extra-inning contests, Tulsa downed Phoenix, 6-5, in 14 innings and Oklahoma City topped San Diego, 4-3, in 12. The second game of the Phoenix-Tulsa game was postponed because of cold weather.

Seattle defeated Hawaii for the second straight time, 4-2, and the Denver-Indianapolis game was postponed because of rain.

A DAY AT THE RACES for Braulio Baeza begins with a check of the bulletin board to scan the entries for each race. Then it's on with the silks, a word with the other jockeys and the afternoon's first mount.

Casper Heads Texas Field

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)—Billy Casper, four members of touring golf's current top 10 and a host of lesser lights start a four-day preview tour of next year's PGA championship site in the opening round of the $100,000 Texas Open today.

The top attractions among the golf elite—Arnie Palmer, Gay Brewer, Doug Sanders, Jack Nicklaus, Julius Boros and Gary Player—were conspicuous by their absence despite the fact this year's edition of the nation's oldest tournament would provide them with a competitive look at the tough 7,138-yard Pecan Valley Country Club layout.

In addition to National Open champion Casper, making only his second start on the tour following a six week's layoff, the field here is headed by No. 6 money winner Bert Yancey, who won the $20,000 first prize in the Greater Dallas Open last Monday.

Also around the bidding for a similar payoff here are the Nos. 8, 9 and 10 money winners—Dan Sikes, Bob Goaly and Frank Beard. Beard also happens to be one of eight former Texas Open champions in the field.

Defending champion Harold Henning of South Africa, who played some of the best golf of his career on the Texas swing a year ago, also is back.

SWITCHES LEAGUES

DETROIT (UPI) — Leonard Julians, a veteran center forward from London, signed Wednesday as coach of the Detroit Cougars of the United Soccer Association for their 1966 season.

Julians, currently player coach for Millwall in the English league, signed a two-year contract in London with Cougars President John W. Braddock, the first of four Arkansas pitchers, was the loser.

Austin picked up three unearned runs for their margin of victory over the Spurs. John Stewart was the winner and Dean Burk the loser.

Today's schedule has Arkansas at Albuquerque and Amarillo at El Paso.

Card's Brock Off and Running

United Press International
HOUSTON (UPI)—Lou Brock, the swift St. Louis Cardinals leftfielder, is getting "more bounce to the ounce" from his bat this season.

Brock, known mostly for his base stealing ability, leads the majors in batting with a .448 average. He also leads the majors in almost all hitting departments—home runs with six, runs batted in with 18, hits with 26, total bases with 49, stolen bases with 6 and is tied in runs scored with 13.

His five stolen bases also place him near the top in that department. He led both leagues in thefts last year with 74.

Stan Musial, the Cardinal general manager and seven-time National League batting champion, said he thought Brock had a chance to win the batting title.

"He can do everything," Musial said. "He can hit, he can run, he's strong. And he's cut down on his striking out a lot."

Brock set a club record last year by striking out 138 times. His determination to whip this problem brought the switch which put him on the road to success.

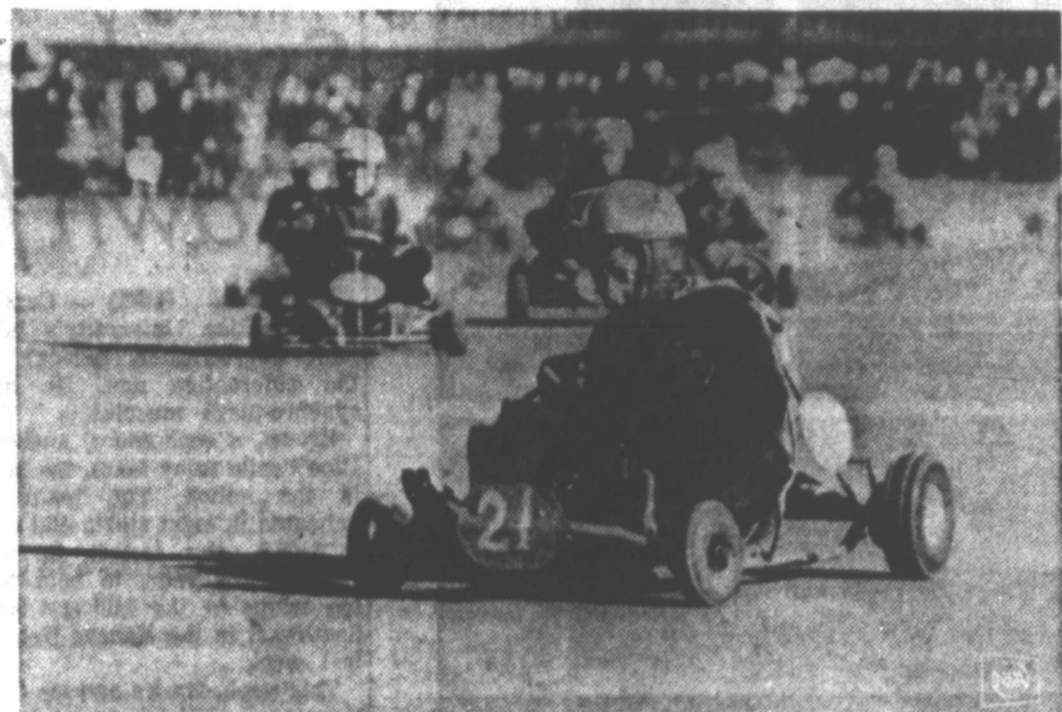

After averaging about a strikeout a game the first half of last season, Brock switched from a 33-ounce bat to one weighing 35 ounces and choked up about five inches just to try to meet the ball.

It paid off as he raised his average from less than .250 to .296 and hit safely in 42 of 45 games in one stretch. When he came to spring training this year, he was 10 pounds heavier than last season and, because he was stronger and fresher, he started holding the bat at the end.

"You might say I get more bounce to the ounce this way," he said, referring to his six home runs.

TENNIS CHAMP
HOUSTON (UPI)—John Newcombe upset Tony Roche Sunday to win the 33rd annual River Oaks Invitational Tournament in straight sets.

Newcombe took only an hour and 25 minutes to score the 6-2, 7-5, 6-3 triumph over his fellow Australian.

A FEMININE LEAD is taken by Natasha Todorova, first girl go-cart racer in the Soviet Union. Natasha is a member of a group known as E.L.M.A. (Experimental Laboratory of Micro Autos) in Russia, for youngsters from ages 12 to 17, who apparently enjoy the sensation of speed shared by American youth.

BANK ACCOUNT BULGING

Nieporte Leads 'Unofficially'

NEW YORK (UPI)—Tom Nieporte has a bank account bulging with "unofficial" money but his checks never bounce.

The year is made for the lanky golf pro, now back on his home acres at a Long Island country club where he'll give lessons all summer and maybe play a couple of times a week with beautiful thoughts of all that loot scrounged out of the winter tour.

The Big Daddy with a wife and eight kids won the Bob Hope Desert Classic for a $17,600 jackpot and showed well on the Caribbean circuit.

There's some $30,000 of it, delightfully spendable, utterly tax-free and technically non-existent in the eyes of the Professional Golfer's Association.

Golf pros, to the confusion of many innocent bystanders, play for four kinds of money—official, unofficial, absolutely unofficial and fringe benefits including endorsements, exhibitions, etc.

There are good, substantial reasons for this chaotic state of affairs though the point frequently is lost while scanning those weekly money-winning lists put out by the PGA.

The PGA rankings of the top 10 are but there are separate columns of figures for unofficial money and total earnings. Absolutely unofficial money, like that earned in filmed television shows, and fringe benefits are ignored.

At any rate, through this year's Dallas Open, Arnold Palmer was No. 1 on the list in official money and in the totals with $81,285 so far this year.

But Gay Brewer, who was second in official money, was third in the totals behind Doug Sanders, who was third in official winnings.

Neat trick, hey? The PGA has gone to considerable lengths to explain the differences between official and unofficial loot—and why there is a difference.

The "why" protects the regular tournament sponsors on the tour. The top 60 winners of official money for the year automatically are exempt from qualifying for all PGA tour events the following year.

That keeps all the top players firing away to protect their standings in the money list and tournament sponsors are assured of good fields every week.

FOR CASSIUS

Moment of Truth Here

NEW YORK (UPI)—The moment of truth has come, Cassius, old boy, and if you've still got any doubts between going to jail and the Army, pick the Army. It's a lot better. I know. I've been in both. I was in jail a couple of hours, only long enough to do a story on the prison baseball team, and before going in I made sure of getting an okay from the warden to let me out when I wanted.

Even so, it was terribly depressing, Cassius. You wouldn't like it.

Feeling of being Free
I'm sure you wouldn't because I once got up at 5 in the morning to watch you do roadwork at Chicopee, Mass., and I remember you saying how much you loved the clean fresh air and the wonderful feeling of being free.

You won't be free in jail, Cassius. And any man you talk to in there will tell you the air is much better outside.

One thing about the army, you get a pass to go out now and then and talk to people freely, which is something you love to do.

But they don't give any passes in federal prisons and there's a strict limit on visitors. And the only way you can talk to them usually is through a drab perforated partition.

Record Now Clean
Can you ever see yourself doing that, Cassius? I can't.

You've always been so proud of the fact that your personal record is clean and that you've never been in jail. I think that still means a whole lot to you. Religion means a great deal to you, too. Not only yours, but others also. I know because I've heard you say that. Maybe you've forgotten but you once said, "show me a religion that is better than mine and I'll join it."

No one can really show you that. There are some things you'll discover for yourself though.

Joe Louis's Decision
The other day, for example, you said:

"I belong to Allah. I'm sure he's on my side."
Well, back in World War II,

when you were still a little boy, another fellow said:

"I'm sure we're in the right because God is on our side."

That fellow was heavyweight champ at the time also. And he was wearing the uniform of his country. His name was Joe Louis. You always said you could've beaten him. You never will be going to jail.

All By Yourself
Most of those who claim to "know" already are betting you the other inductees when they call your name in Houston, Friday.

It'll be the same thing as when the bell rings for that first round. You're going to be there all by yourself and it'll be strictly up to you whether you stand up or fall down.

There's far more riding on this one than in any other fight you've ever been in.

Up to now, Cassius, every thing has been perfect for you and if it'll help, you might be interested in another athlete who faced a major crisis in pursuit of perfection.

Couldn't Just Fight
His name was Don Larsen, he came down to the last pitch and if he chose the right one he would achieve the first perfect game in all world series history.

"I knew I had to throw the ball," Larsen says now, 11 years later. "I couldn't stand there and faint."

He threw it and it was perfect.

I know you won't faint either Cassius.

Good luck... and remember, I've been in both.

ALL'S WELL THAT ENDS WELL

Ditka Goes to Oilers

CHICAGO (UPI)—All's well that ends well.

Mike Ditka had the Houston Oilers' money in the bank and a Philadelphia Eagles uniform at the tailor's today.

The six year star tight end of the Chicago Bears had been traded Wednesday to the Eagles for quarterback Jack Concannon, 24 year old veteran of three seasons.

Neither player seemed ready to weep for ripped roots. Ditka had bridled under Coach George Halas, who owns his team and don't you forget it. Concannon had showed remarkable stamina on the bench—behind King Hill who was behind Norm Sneal.

It was Snead the Bears were believed to have been dickered for with Ditka, 225 pounds of sure handed toughness who was rookie of the year in 1961 and four times an all pro in the National Football League as a back.

Ditka had complained of a "clash of personalities" with Halas, and said he "simply did not fit into the empire he has built." Last season, he played out his option and accepted a $50,000 bonus to sign with Houston of the American Football League.

Oiler General Manager Don Klosterman said Ditka called him Tuesday and told him he wanted to play in Philadelphia.

Ellis Jumps Back to Bullets

BALTIMORE (UPI)—Leroy Ellis, a 6-foot-10 product of St. John's, may have launched professional basketball into a price war similar to that which gave professional football a black eye a few years ago.

The big center, who made headlines last week when he became the first player to jump from the National Basketball Association and sign with the rival American Basketball Association, rejected his agreement with the ABA's New York entry Wednesday and signed a second contract with the Baltimore Bullets of the NBA.

Ellis' action, which undoubtedly will spur court bait brought back memories of similar incidents by football stars such as Billy Cannon and Ralph Neely and indicated the two professional basketball leagues may be headed for a "bonus war."

if the deal went through—and asked that the Oilers release him from their agreement.

Klosterman said Bud Adams, owner of the Oilers, "felt that in the best interests of pro football, we relieve him of all contractual obligation that he signed prior to the merger (of the AFL and NFL)."

Klosterman said Adams felt than ever with the merger and he wanted "to keep harmony among the owners."

Keeps Money
"Ditka will keep his bonus," said Klosterman.

Ditka, expressing it as if he were knocking down a defensive halfback said:

"The Oiler contract is down the drain, but the $50,000—what's left after Uncle Sam—belongs to me."

Concannon said he was surprised when Eagles Coach and Manager Joe Kuharich told him of the trade, because he thought either Snead or Hill would go. But who can get homesick for a bench?

"I am looking forward to playing in Chicago where there are opportunities not available in Philadelphia," Concannon said.

Sweden Cracking Up

Sweden, the highly touted "Socialist Paradise," is coming apart at the seams. Held together, like the United States, by what remains of the free market place, the greed encouraged by its "social security" and other "something for nothing" schemes is fast destroying what remains of its productive sector. After all, if one is to be rewarded on the basis of "need," and those producing are to be penalized to reward those who don't, why should anyone exert themselves? The answer is, most won't!

The sad tale is related in the article, "The Dilemma in Sweden - A Sad Experience With Social Security," in the April 24 issue of U.S. News and World Report. U.S. Social Security Actuaries, and local planning groups preparing the way for a massive invasion of federal funds and controls, please note.

Sweden, whose socialistic program is being copied by our own bureaucratic dreamers, endeavored to provide cradle to grave security; including housing subsidies, rent rebates for low-income groups, free hospitalization, subsidies for doctors' bills and drug bills, free care in childbirth, cash allowances for maternity, free higher education, sick pay, unemployment insurance and old age and disability insurance.

Results? Read on. After 20 years of building the Swedish "Great Society," most of the country's problems not only remain unsolved but, in some cases, are growing greater.

The costly welfare and educational "reforms" have not curbed crime, alcoholism and drug addiction. Sweden's crime rate has doubled since 1950, with juvenile crime making up most of the increase. Homicides and robberies are up 80 percent in three years. Rape, in the same period, climbed 56 percent. Acute alcoholism and drug addiction, in the age group 15-24, are assuming epidemic proportions.

Government control of housing has discouraged the private building of homes, with the result that Sweden's housing crisis is more severe than 20 years ago.

Demand for medical and hospital treatment under Sweden's compulsory health insurance plan has expanded faster than anticipated AND incoming funds. Waiting time for a bed in a hospital is as high as a year. Seriously ill and dying people have been shunted into "something for nothing" flood.

And who pays for it all? The Swedes, to their amazement, are finding that they do themselves; with the upkeep of the burgeoning bureaucracy adding to the tab.

Total taxes (and it is doubtful this represents the full cost, since the Swedes, like us, have their share of hidden taxes) now amount to 40 percent of the gross national product - up 31.3 percent since 1960. A general sales tax, introduced at 4.2 percent in 1960, has now grown to a whopping 11 percent. Taxes represent two thirds of what a Swede pays for a gallon of gasoline, 80 percent of the price of a package of cigarettes, 90 percent of a bottle of liquor.

And now, signalling the crumbling of the Swedish economy, wage inflation is beginning to undermine the competitive position of industry and Swedish products on the world market. And what do the Swedes propose to do in their hour of crisis? Just what our own bureaucrats are doing as our own economy is beginning to falter: Administer more of the same poisonous socialistic medicine. Instead of freeing the market place and individual initiative and letting them dig the country out of its bureaucratic mess, the government can only think of more controls and heavier taxes.

The following excerpt from the U.S. News and World Report article is typical of the bureaucratic mind's inability to think: "The Labor Government hopes to arrest the trend... by making 'radical' moves. One recent example is a Government plan for a state-run bank to facilitate and control industrial development. In a move to spread the tax burden, capital-gains taxes have been boosted."

With that kind of "thinking" prevailing, the Swedes, like the regimented British, have had it. As for the United States, the moving finger writes. We ignore its message at our peril.

Purer Air? Tune Car, Drive Fast (?)

A small ray of sunlight has pierced the gloom surrounding the automobile air pollution problem.

Studies by University of California Prof. John T. Middleton show that "pollution created by the motor vehicle is roughly inversely proportional to speed."

According to Middleton, director of the Statewide Air Pollution Research Center, an increase in speed from 10 to 30 miles an hour reduces hydrocarbon emission by about 30 per cent. A change from 20 to 40 cuts the pollutants in half.

Have we reason to hope that with average auto speeds going higher by virtue of the new freeways, the reduction in pollutants per car might just keep pace with the increasing auto population?

But there is something every car owner can do right now to help reduce air pollution and improve longevity and performance of his car at the same time. This is to keep his engine tuned.

Findings by two other university professors, Franklin Flower and Joseph Soporowski of Rutgers, indicate that a properly tuned car burns most of the hydrocarbons in its fuel and turns them into harmless carbon dioxide and water. Unfortunately, they say, few cars on the highways have properly tuned engines.

"A car with one bad spark plug can emit 25 times more hydrocarbons than a tuned engine at ordinary highway speeds," says Soporowski in an interview in Rodale's Health Bulletin. Tuning is especially important for trucks, which contribute more heavily to pollution because they are used more constantly, often by different drivers.

The professors list these steps motorists can take to lessen their contribution to pollution: 1. Have carburetor adjustments checked periodically; 2. Have faulty fuel lines and gaskets replaced; 3. Check timing and spark plugs at regular intervals; 4. Have the engine overhauled if it is burning excessive oil; 5. Change oil and filter at regular intervals; 6. Avoid "jack rabbit" starts and quick stops; 7. Avoid unnecessary idling of the engine.

Today a tuneup is a matter of choice and common sense. Tomorrow it may very well be a government regulation.

A thought for the day: British poet John Dryden once said: "Pains of love is sweeter far than all the other pleasures are."

No Roses-Are-Red Guff Today

NEW YORK (NEA) - The weather having turned balmy at last, the streets in the evenings are now filled with young couples walking hand in hand.

Sometimes it is a long-haired boy walking with a short-haired girl. Sometimes it is a long-haired girl walking with a long-haired boy. Sometimes it is a long-haired boy walking with a long-haired girl. Sometimes it is, well, whatever it is, we take it as a piece of good luck that the number of possible combinations is limited.

At least it is limited so far. We have a profound respect for what modern man has been able to accomplish with his arts and sciences.

That spring still comes around at all is a bit surprising. But we simply cannot believe that old-fashioned romance makes much sense to today's young couples.

So, in the interests of true love - whatever that phrase may mean nowadays - it seems to us that this country is in urgent need of some new love lyrics in the modern idiom.

Naturally, a set is provided below, which we worked out the other evening with a fellow named Robert Herz, to whom we are related by a marriage in trump.

Question Box

(We invite questions on economic and the proper functions of government which will not miss anyone.)

QUESTION: Taxation at the point of a gun or with the threat of imprisonment is indeed theft. Is it not also true that one sanctions this theft by the very act of paying the tax?

ANSWER: Paying tax under the threat of imprisonment, loss of property or other penalty is no more sanctioning the act than one sanctions robbery by a thug on the street when he gives up his money rather than his life.

Each individual, however, must make his own choice. Thus, some individuals regard their money or other material goods as so important that they will attempt to overcome the gun-holding robber by force, thus risking death or injury. Others will accede. We know some individuals who say they would prefer going to jail to paying certain taxes. Others believe they can do more good by Something that started as a spoof on the Roaring Twenties may turn into the biggest attraction on the summer theater circuit this year. When the New Vaudeville Band made its hit record, "Winchester Cathedral," in England everyone noticed the similarity of the vocalist to Rudy Vallee, the first of the crooners. An American record firm suggested that Vallee made a platter of the song and that, too, became very popular. Now Vallee and the New Vaudeville Band have been engaged to make the rounds of the tent theaters. It will be a fun-filled nostalgic evening with wide appeal for the teen-agers, who do to the New Vaudeville Band, and their parents, who remember Vallee when he was the biggest thing in show business.

Today's smile: A young wife, visiting her family in a distant city, called her husband long distance to learn how he was making out in her absence. The telephone rang when he was looking frantically for tea bags in the pantry, and his first question was: "Where do you keep the tea bags?" Her answer: "On the first shelf in the pantry for a tin that contained coffee."

Despite the disintegration of the Empire the British Civil Servants still maintain the red tape of officialdom. The flight of a French plane from London to Melbourne, Australia, was held up for a considerable time recently because the plane's cargo included a 2,000-year old Egyptian mummy, bound for a museum Down Under. The British customs officers demanded a health certificate for the mummy. And, by Jove, they got it before the plane took off.

Thoughts while shaving: The infallibility of computers was successfully demonstrated recently at Las Vegas where an electronic brain was used in an experiment to see if it could beat the "house." Against professional gamblers the machine won $380 in less than an hour. We could use one of those machines whenever we gamble, which isn't often because we invariably lose. . . . The one job, they tell us, that will never be wiped out by automation is the letter carrier. That's good to know, but in the meantime it would be nice if Uncle Sam fed his mail carriers pep pills to speed up deliveries. Despite today's electronic wonders in handling the mail, it frequently moves from where it's posted to its destination at about the speed of paying the tax and seeking to get the laws changed to reduce the taxes.

Others are like John Galt, the fictional leader of the producers in Ayn Rand's novel, "Atlas Shrugged," who quit producing for the tax-eating looters and disappeared from the scene. We believe there are more "John Galts" than there are individuals willing to go to jail for refusing to pay the taxes.

No Cause for Worry About Kidney Stone Formation

Q-Is it true that some kidney stones do not show up in X-ray films even though they are large?

A-Stones that contain calcium oxalate or phosphate are radiopaque and will be seen on an X-ray film made without any special preparation. Uric acid and cystine stones are nonopaque and can be seen only if an opaque substance is introduced into the kidney pelvis to produce contrast.

Q-Will calcium pills taken daily to prevent leg cramps or bicarbonate of sodium cause kidney stones?

A-These drugs may favor the formation of stones in persons who are known stone formers only if the victim fails to keep the urine acid.

Q-What causes renal calculus? Is there a cure for it?

A-A renal calculus is a kidney stone. Although a persistently alkaline urine favors the formation of calcium phosphate stones, a persistently acid urine favors the formation of uric acid stones. There is, therefore, not much point in worrying about the reaction of your urine unless you are a known stone former. In most persons the reaction fluctuates between acid and alkaline. An infection often marks the beginning of stone formation. A vitamin A deficiency also favors this process.

Q-My niece, 17, has chronic glomerulonephritis. Is there any cure for it?

A-The longer a person has any chronic disease the harder it is to cure. No simple formula for cure can be recommended because each patient is different. A salt-poor diet, low in protein, may help one patient with this disease and harm another. Good results have been reported in some patients with the use of azathioprine (Imuran) and in others with the use of prednisone. Before any treatment is tried, however, a careful study of your niece by a kidney specialist should be made.

Q-What is fibromyositis? Is X-ray used to make the diagnosis? What is the best treatment?

The pony express. . . Many New England towns retain positions in their local governments that date back to colonial times. For example: most villages and hamlets boast a "fence viewer," who serves as arbiter in settling disputes between neighbors over the height and type of fence to be erected on a property boundary line. His opinion on such matters is considered "expert testimony" by most judges. Another odd title is "Measurer on Wood, Bark and Lumber." . . . The Augusta (Ga.) CHRONICLE reported in a story: "The accounts subcommittee acted behind closed doors after a heated session." Don't they always?

DEEPER THAN YOU THINK
Writer-lecturer Leonard Read has just released another in his series of thought-provoking books. "Deeper Than You Think" is an exploration of the causes that underlie the social ills we face today (the book is published by the Foundation for Economic Education, Irvington-on-Hudson, N.Y. 10533; $3.00 clothbound, $2.00 cardcover).

Read's thesis is that the answers to our problems are more deeply embedded in the nature of man than you might think. Superficial solutions that treat superficial effects will merely aggravate the problems.

In his search for truth, the author points up the need for humility in dealing with world problems. He cites Ludwig von Mises' famous answer to the question: "I'll agree, Professor Mises, that we are headed for a troublesome time; now, if you were the dictator of these United States and could impose whatever corrective measures you think wise, what would you do?" Von Mises' answers: "I would abdicate."

As Read puts it, "Were my ideas to govern the nation or the world, the situation would be tragic. No such wisdom exists in any person, and it seems unlikely that it ever will."

In the course of his probing he coins some very quotable statements regarding the nature of coercion: "Erecting a Taj Mahal in the name of love with forcibly extorted funds or enslaved labor, or compulsorily expropriating people's income to build hospitals or art centers, are no less coercive than compelling Negro slaves to hoe one's cotton, or forcing workers into unions, or robbing others at the point of a gun."

And who practices this coercion? Is it the government? the mob?

"It isn't the mob that strings up Joe Doakes; only individuals commit crimes; the hanging is done by each member of the mob. Nor is it the association that takes money from everyone in the nation to finance the local plaza; it is a coercive act on the part of the association's members - each one of them! Individual abolition is not to be achieved by collectivization."

"Deeper Than You Think" is another winner for Leonard Read's probing, idea-stimulating approach. Since he covers a wide landscape, he is bound to run into something you won't agree with. But don't be afraid Philippines, Indonesia, Malaya and in the Pacific Islands. Today the Air Force men are performing the same service in Vietnam. The number of pilots who don't come back is high. Considerable numbers have been imprisoned.

Men argue about the damage done. But as one Vietnamese captain put it to this reporter near the Cambodian border: "When my men go out, we're continually attacked in our own hamlets. We have little chance to fight back. It's hard to take being hit at home all the time and never getting to attack the men up north who hit you. These raids on North Vietnam give us the confidence that we are not just taking it. They help keep us going."

be of great service to the people if they would publish something, for or against, a change in the Electoral College System. It is a subject vital to the people and affects the prestige of the Nation throughout the world. The U.S.A. could set a fine example for free world nations by presenting the most sensible plan for the campaign and tabulation of the votes cast for the top men in their government. The communists prefer a dictator; give the world a picture of an alternative.

That the present system needs reforming is beyond question. Action is needed before the Legislatures adjourn. President Johnson, the American Bar Association, League of Women Voters, and the American Legion in resolutions in 1956 and 1957, and a vast number of other organizations have called for Reform. Resolutions from 34 States are needed. Twelve Legislatures have already passed resolutions, but should probably enact new ones to attain uniformity.

There are many ways a Crusade can be started. Any bank can become a greater bank by working through its contacts for RECS. Any Chamber of Commerce will become far better known by starting a movement among other Chambers and similar organizations. An insurance company, a Governor, Secretary of State, farm organization, magazine, newspaper, college, prep school, grade school, City Manager, State Legislators, Members of Congress, are among scores who have a golden opportunity to gain a reputation for pleasing 68 per cent or more of the people.

Can Food Supply Keep Pace With Population Growth?

By DR. KARL BRANDT

(Dr. Brandt is senior research fellow, Hoover Institution on War, Revolution and Peace, Stanford University. His comments were presented at the 50th Anniversary Conference on Planned Parenthood and World Population in New York City. His talk is reprinted by permission of the American Institute of Economic Research, Great Barrington, Mass.)

"Many practical, logical, ethical, and moral arguments can legitimately be advanced in support of more responsible use of man's power of procreation through planned parenthood by voluntary individual decision. However, a progressively and singularly over-used argument is the one on which General Draper has honored me with the invitation to comment. I reject this argument as illegitimate and invalid. It claims that the accelerating pace of population growth is overtaking the rate of growth of food production and that therefore disastrous famine of abhorrent proportions is almost inevitable unless population growth is throttled.

"As I shall prove, the famine projections are neither a sound nor a legitimate argument for population control because the world's existing agricultural capacity gives abundant leeway to produce adequate food supplies for the growing population. Therefore, using famine alarm to justify support of government action toward birth control can only weaken the initiative to promote recognition of the importance of responsible parenthood.

"I also believe that even if worldwide famine were, indeed, an otherwise inescapable imminent calamity it could not be avoided by planned parenthood because this complex cultural change in mores and modes of living does not lend itself to successful progress by a crash program but requires, on the contrary, a steady long pull.

False Hope

"Furthermore, by offering the false hope of quick relief of allegedly imminent food shortage through a planned parenthood crash program this argument evades the real issue. All governments have the duty to adopt and administer policies which give farmers the freedom and incentive to expand food production more than population growth and growth of income per head. If governments of developing countries accept such responsibility they will accomplish what planned parenthood cannot do.

"Finally, global generalizations about the extremely diverse dynamics of food supplies distort the facts. In recent years some of the most densely populated areas of the world have increased food production beyond all expectations and against the worst odds.

"The judgment that famine is unavoidable is demonstrably false — so far as the availability of all needed resources and the feasibility of their use are concerned. The director General of the FAO (Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations), B. R. Sen, and all agricultural experts agree on this.

Food Potential Unlimited

"Since the end of World War II the world's technically and economically feasible food production potential has expanded at more than geometrical rate. This is the result of a combination of factors which not Malpas, Ricardo, Justus von Liebig, Marx, Engels, Lenin, Gregor Mendel, Alfred Marshall, Pigou, Walras, Keynes, Henry Wallace, nor even Lord Orr in 1944 could have anticipated.

"For example, Rockefeller Foundation agronomists have developed a new variety of plant in the Philippines that is expected to yield eight to nine times as much rice per crop as plants now used. Because three crops per year can be grown, instead of one, use of the new plant would multiply output of the widely used food 25 times.

"The mile of disastrously false projections of the 1830's and 40's, what has ultimately expanded the growth of the world's food production capacity beyond all boundaries is the most recent emergence of over-abundant sources of energy like water, wind, or tidal power, coal, lignite, petroleum, oil-shale, natural gas, uranium, plutonium. Combined with diminishing costs of pipeline transports, and unloading of food commodities in bulk, the increased size of ocean-going vessels, the perfection of storing staples and preserving perishes has revolutionized the mobility of agricultural production factors, as well as of agricultural products. Hence the international exchange of farm needs, such as engine fuel, fertilizer, feed, pesticides, machinery and implements, and of farm products involves less time and less cost per unit than ever before — unless governments prevent their citizens from benefiting from this.

"Knowledge about the entire up-to-date technology of food production, processing, and distribution is available in any part of the world, free of charge wherever nations are willing to get and use it. Moreover, nearly all countries have within their own boundaries modern, up-to-date large scale agricultural enterprises which are geared to the domestic as well as the world market.

Transport Industry

"Agriculture is the world's greatest transport industry. It moves implements up to 35 times a year over every square foot of 350 million acres in the U.S. The combustion engine, particularly the Diesel engine, made tractors, trucks, and automobiles available to farms. But the development of smaller and smaller 2-cycle engines and the availability of liquid fuel at declining costs has given small farmers motor scooters, motor tricycles, small trucks, and rototillers, multiplying the productivity of farm labor.

"Overabundance of energy has made the most crucial and scarce of all plant and animal nutrients, nitrogen, potentially abundant everywhere in the world at declining costs. One ton of pure N mined from the air requires the energy equivalent of 4 to 5 tons of bituminous coal. Used properly as fertilizer for crops one ton of pure N will yield from 15 to 20 tons of grain equivalent, provided the necessary moisture is or can be made seasonally available or its excess drained off. Farmers can mine nitrogen from the air by leguminous green manure plants. Factories can mine nitrogen fertilizer wherever energy is available in any form. Such fertilizer factories are increasing in number. Where they are missing, international and farm supply trade will bring nitrogen fertilizer to farmers at even lower prices.

"Moisture, another crop production factor in seasonally or annually limited supply, has now also become available in many areas at declining costs by the new abundance of energy, by little 2-cycle engine-driven irrigation pumps, and aluminum sprinkler pipes. Since they are mutually interdependent, less expensive and abundant plant nutrients and irrigation water are jacking up the population-carrying potential of land. The same small pump and pipe units drain swamps and open wet land in humid climates to intensive cultivation.

"While decreasing costs of nitrogen and of irrigation water make it a paying proposition to increase the yields of crops, the petrochemical industries also provide powerful means to curtail the high losses of food in the field and in storage. Highly effective weedkillers eliminate brush and a flora of voracious thieves of precious plant nutrients and moisture. Pesticides destroy predators, wild ruminants, birds, rats, mice and other rodents, and control insect pests and bacterial or fungus diseases.

"The overabundance of energy, the automation of loading and unloading of food commodities in bulk, the increased size of ocean-going vessels, the perfection of storing staples and preserving perishes has revolutionized the mobility of agricultural production factors, as well as of agricultural products. Hence the international exchange of farm needs, such as engine fuel, fertilizer, feed, pesticides, machinery and implements, and of farm products involves less time and less cost per unit than ever before — unless governments prevent their citizens from benefiting from this.

"Knowledge about the entire up-to-date technology of food production, processing, and distribution is available in any part of the world, free of charge wherever nations are willing to get and use it. Moreover, nearly all countries have within their own boundaries modern, up-to-date large scale agricultural enterprises which are geared to the domestic as well as the world market.

Needed: Freedom To Improve

"Irrespective of its degree of literacy, the agricultural population of technically retarded countries is capable of applying better techniques wherever the market grants it freedom to improve. If new production factors become available at remunerative prices and if prices of farm products offer an incentive, farm people will increase production, providing there is a reasonable degree of security and stability of income and savings.

"If famine should occur in the scarcity of natural or man-made resources nor the rate of population growth offer valid excuses. Even natural calamities like drought, floods, or pests do not necessarily cause famine in any properly organized society.

"If famine should occur in some countries — as it will may — it will be primarily 'government made' by policies similar to those that initially resulted in the starvation of 5 million people and have prevented for nearly 40 years any proper expansion of food production in Soviet Russia and have cost uncounted millions of lives in Red China. Such policies squeeze a major part of the capital for industrialization out of farm income by the wide-open scissors of high prices for all manufactured goods and low prices for farm products.

Farmers Appointed

"In too many agrarian countries, radical industrial protectionism exploits farmers by raising to prohibitive levels the prices of farmers' needs (including high-grade seed, fertilizer, pesticides, fuel, machinery, and spare parts) and by fixing the food prices in industrial cities at the expense of the farmers for political rather than economic reasons. (The Japanese farmer buys 1 pound of nitrogen fertilizer with 1 1/3 pounds of rice. A farmer in India buys it with 5 pounds of rice.) Discrimination against private supplies of production credit and the trade in farm commodities stifles farm production by bureaucratic red tape. Currency inflation caused by reckless public deficit spending creates additional insecurity and dries up investment capital for agriculture, while leaving no funds for commercial imports to close the widening food deficit.

"Policies prone to contribute to 'government-made famine' in many countries also include incessant propaganda for 'agrarian reform' with neither a definition of precise measures to be taken or a time table for the beginning and end of such 'reform.' The general assumption of the wealthy and the poor alike that it will amount to confiscation of property in land and farm inventories destroys confidence in any capital investment in agriculture. The threat of agrarian reform creates such insecurity that all parties concerned convert their assets into liquid form. The result is general capital flight from agriculture, which inevitably further diminishes farm production.

Fewer People — or More?

"Many Latin American and African countries have enormous unused land resources for food, feed, and fibers, and their development will require more farm people. It makes no sense to generalize and say that population growth must be stopped. The warm heart of the American people endorses enormous gifts of food to countries like India, where 83 per cent of the people — or 409 million — live as farmers or craftsmen in villages. But, most regrettably, such generosity has the detrimental effect of contributing unwittingly to the prospect of real famine there while weakening the U.S. dollar. Such gifts allow the Indian government further leeway to continue ill-advised policies which subsist in bureaucratic red tape the initiative of their farmers, their wholesale and retail food trade, and their auxiliary farm supply trade. Those absentee bureaucracies at federal and state levels sit tight on an enormously long end of the ass. The order of magnitude of food deficits they continue to create is so enormous that with all charity and foreign aid we and the other industrial nations cannot possibly compensate for them.

To Prevent Famine

"If we really want to prevent famine we better use a cool head in dealing with governments that pressure for food relief — and assume a hard trading stance on behalf of their majority of farm people. The American people have a keen interest in getting valid assurances that mice, rats, birds, leucists, and a score of other pests are not permitted to devour the indigenous food faster than American 'Food for Peace' can be shipped in at very high expense. Beyond that we should use our warm hearts when, by privately administered charity, we can reach the invalid, the sick, the orphans, and the hungriest among the poor."

Wit And Whimsy

Mack (to a friend) — I met my wife at a travel bureau—she was looking for a vacation, and I was the last resort.

She (at comedy) — Are they putting that poor man out for laughing?

Hicks Attending Dental Course

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (Sp)—Dr. E. T. Hicks, 710 West Francis, Pampa, is here attending an unusual course outlining the unique role the dental specialist can play in the rehabilitation of facially disfigured patients and the techniques used.

The five-day workshop is being held all this week, through Friday by the Indiana University School of Dentistry in Indianapolis.

The course has been arranged and is being directed by Dr. Varoujan Tchalian, D.D.S., assistant professor at the I. U. School of Dentistry, who holds degrees from the University of Sorbonne, Paris, France, and Indiana University. Participants in the program, which has a limited enrollment, are from 20 states and Washington, D. C., as well as Canada and England.

Representatives of ten medical and dental specialties are serving as faculty members for the workshop, which explores the techniques of design, and methods and materials used in fabrication and application of artificial jaws, eyes, ears, noses, and other prosthetic devices.

In 1933, Adolf Hitler abolished labor unions throughout Germany and set up a so-called "labor front" to control all workers.

State Engineering Jobs Listed In New Directory

PRINCETON, N. J. — Texas job opportunities for qualified graduating and experienced engineers are described in a new reference book just published by Resource Publications Inc. of Princeton, N. J. The directory, entitled the "Texas Index of Engineering Opportunity, 1967," presents comprehensive full-page profiles of engineering employers in Texas that are currently seeking engineers. In addition, the booklet includes an informative section entitled "Texas in Profile," describing the economic, educational, and cultural attractions of the state. Cross references by occupational specialty and geographical location guide the reader to specific employers.

Each of the employer profiles informs the reader of the nature of the organization's business, the opportunities for engineers, the requirements for positions, and the specific features that make the company attractive to a prospective employee.

The "Texas Index" is one in a complete series of twenty-two similar directories that cover opportunities for engineers in all parts of the country. Overall, there are profiles of more than 1,000 different employers, including over 200 members of the "Fortune 500" list of top industrialists; more than 90 federal, state, and local government facilities; over 50 utilities; 100 consulting engineering firms, and numerous smaller research organizations. To date, the "Index" is the most complete source of job information in engineering available.

If a man weighing 150 pounds on the earth could be carried to the sun, he would weigh nearly two tons.

Rancher Denies 'Slavery' Charge

ALBUQUERQUE (UPI) — A Sandoval County, N.M., rancher denied in a court brief Tuesday he had intimidated a ranchworker and held him in virtual slavery for 33 years.

Joe Montoya, owner of Cubazon Ranch, was named in a $40,000 suit by Abernicio Gonzales, who claimed he was beaten and held in fear of his life when he attempted to leave the ranch. Montoya denied all the charges in an answer to the suit filed in District Court in Albuquerque.

The illiterate ranch worker, who placed his age at 47, claimed he was held in peonage since he was 13. He sought back payment of wages, figured at 50 cents a day for 33 years, according to an oral contract he claimed he made with Montoya's father.

Gonzales said he went to work for the late Elias Montoya in 1933 to repay $50 his mother had borrowed to finance an older brother's wedding. When that debt was repaid at the rate of 75 cents a day, Gonzales claimed the elder Montoya made the 50-cent a day and upkeep arrangement with him.

Yet, the worker contended, he never received the money, nor was given an account of it.

Montoya denied the charges of intimidation and said he believed the statute of limitations had expired on most of Gonzales' claim. He said he had no knowledge of the agreement between his father and Gonzales, adding that he operated the ranch for his mother after his father's death and inherited the ranch in 1960 from his mother.

Texas' constitution gives it the right to form four new states within its borders.

El Paso To Remain In Time Zone

AUSTIN (UPI) — The federal government has agreed to let El Paso stay in the Mountain Time zone—at least for the time being.

State Rep. Ralph Scoggins of El Paso told the Texas Legislature that El Paso will not be forced to observe Central Daylight Time—as the rest of Texas—until Congress acts on a bill by Rep. Richard White, D-Tex.

White's bill would exempt El Paso from the Federal Uniform Time Act.

El Paso, at the extreme western tip of Texas and almost 1,000 miles from the eastern edge of Texas, observes Mountain Standard Time.

When the Texas Legislature failed to exempt Texas from the Uniform Time Act, El Paso was faced with a two-hour time change as compared to a one-hour change for the rest of Texas.

The reprieve means El Paso will operate on daylight time but will stay in the Mountain time zone.

Gov. Connally Urges Private Business To Encourage Visitors

SAN ANTONIO (UPI) — Gov. John Connally today urged private businesses and communities to join hands in encouraging tourists to visit Texas.

"Texas needs well-placed dollars privately invested in tourist attractions if we are able to attain our potential as the foremost destination in the land," the governor told a meeting of the South Texas Chamber of Commerce.

Chronic Respiratory Diseases Taking Big Death Toll

NEW YORK — The chronic respiratory diseases loom increasingly larger as a cause of death, according to statisticians of Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. These lung disorders now account for more than 83,000 deaths annually in the United States. More than ninety per cent of these deaths occur among persons 45 years of age and older, during which age period these diseases take more than 2 1/2 times the toll from diabetes and more than 11 times that from accidents.

The overall death rate from the major respiratory diseases rose 12 per cent in the 14-year period from 1951-1965, despite an 80 per cent drop in mortality from tuberculosis. The one killer is cancer of the lung and bronchus, which accounts for more than half of the total mortality from chronic respiratory diseases; its death rate increased 86 per cent in the 1951-64 period.

Excluding cancer of the lung and tuberculosis, the toll from the other major chronic respiratory diseases just about doubled in the 14-year period. This group of diseases includes asthma, bronchitis, bronchiectasis, emphysema and other chronic interstitial pneumonias.

The mortality figures tell only part of the story, say Metropolitan statisticians. "These figures understate the case because the number of deaths of officially attributed to asthma, bronchitis and allied diseases has been estimated as only 40 per cent of the number in which they contributed to the fatal outcome."

Mexico Studies Heat Wave Causing Death

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — The federal government anti-disaster committee today studied a nationwide heat wave that has caused five deaths of children during the last week and resulted in hospitalization of more than 1,300 others.

The five deaths were reported in Monterrey, where the thermometer reached 101.3 degrees Tuesday.

That same northern city reported 1,300 children sent to hospital and clinics, suffering from dehydration.

Mexico City's temperature was relatively cool—86.

You, Your Child and School

By DAVID NYDICK United Press International
There are many skills involved in studying which can help students to approach their studies in an efficient and organized manner. Too often the learning of these important techniques is left to chance.

Many school systems attempt to teach these skills as part of other subject areas. Listening is taught through the reading program. Observation is often involved with science. The use of a table of contents and index is included in the social studies course.

When this indirect approach is used, there is too often a lack of emphasis on the study skills themselves. The student is often unaware of the fact that a particular skill is involved. The result may well be a limited knowledge in the skill and limited use of the skill in other appropriate situations.

Useful Skills
Study skills are applicable to all areas of learning. They are useful regardless of the particular subject matter. It would appear that greater emphasis should be given to the learning of such skills. There is sufficient material in this area so that it might be taught as a separate subject.

This is not to say that the use of these skills should be eliminated from other subjects. Actually, this would be impossible as well as undesirable. Once a skill is taught, it is best reinforced and understood when it is involved in a useful exercise or operation.

It would seem that a student in the intermediate grades (4-6) should have developed a degree of proficiency in study skills or at least should have been directly introduced to them.

Perhaps parents and teachers assume too much when they think that this has been done. Students who are having difficulty with their school work may need assistance in this area. Although problems appear to be related to a specific subject, further investigation might indicate a general weakness in how to study.

Tutoring Helps
Most children who receive tutoring receive it in particular subjects such as reading or math. Although tutoring in study skills would not be the answer in all cases, it would certainly be worthwhile investigating as a possibility.

What kinds of skills are we talking about? The techniques for taking notes on a lecture or discussion are very important. The information in the lecture is often the basis for future discussions and activities. It is necessary to review this material on many occasions including preparation for an exam. If notes are inadequate and poorly

No One Laughs As Man Calls Robbery Try 'Joke'

HIGHLANDS, Tex. (UPI) — A lone gunman tried to hold up the Highlands State Bank Wednesday, and when caught off guard and disarmed, he tried to pass the whole thing off as a joke. No one thought it was funny.

The gunman, who police said was about 50, entered the bank in this Houston suburb shortly before noon and pulled a gun on bank vice-president K. E. Oldham. The bandit told Oldham he wanted $3,000. Oldham told the man he would have to go to the vault, where the cashier was eating lunch, and get the money. When the cashier returned with the $3,000, Oldham caught the gunman by surprise and grabbed his gun hand.

Two customers, one wielding a knife, disarmed the man and held him in the bank until sheriff's officers arrived.

Foreign News Commentary

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG
 BONN (UPI) — President Johnson's meetings with European leaders at Konrad Adenauer's funeral may have injected a little new warmth into relations with America's allies in Europe. But they brought no spectacular changes. The informal Western summit conference that had been predicted failed to materialize. Aside from one business session with West German Chancellor Kurt-Georg Kiesinger just before he flew back to Washington, Johnson had no serious political discussions. Rather, he had a series of short, fairly informal meetings with other leaders, during which some political matters were touched on but not in any depth. In particular, the eagerly awaited get-together with French President Charles de Gaulle never took place. The two Presidents talked briefly before a luncheon for the principal mourners at the home of West German President Heinrich Lübke Tuesday.

Both U.S. and French spokesmen insisted their talk amounted to little more than an exchange of pleasantries. During it, each appears to have expressed polite hopes of a visit from the other some time either in Washington or in Paris. But reports of a formal invitation by Johnson to De Gaulle to visit him in Washington in July when the French leader goes to the Montreal Expo 67 World's Fair were thrown down by spokesmen for both Johnson and De Gaulle as greatly exaggerated.

In fact, nothing indicated the crusty old French chief of state is in any hurry to sit down with Johnson to thrash out their differences across the conference table.

It was only on the problems that have beclouded U.S.-German relations of late that Johnson had any really serious discussions in his two-hour session with Kiesinger Wednesday.

Even so, this was more in the nature of a preliminary curtain-raiser to prepare for the visit already planned by the West German chancellor to Washington soon.

Johnson said as he left the chancellery that no decisions

Employer Obligations Reviewed In Summer Training for Guardsmen and Reservists

DALLAS — More than 40,000 National Guardsmen and military reservists living in Texas soon will be ordered to summer encampment for their annual two-week training period — and a government official here has a word of advice for them and their employers.

Regional Director Forrest Richter of the Labor Department's Office of Veterans' Re-employment Rights, at 411 North Akard Street here, said the principal legal requirements for summer trainees and employers are:

Reservists and guardsmen called for duty must (1) request a leave of absence for training from their employer, and (2) report back to work promptly when it is over.

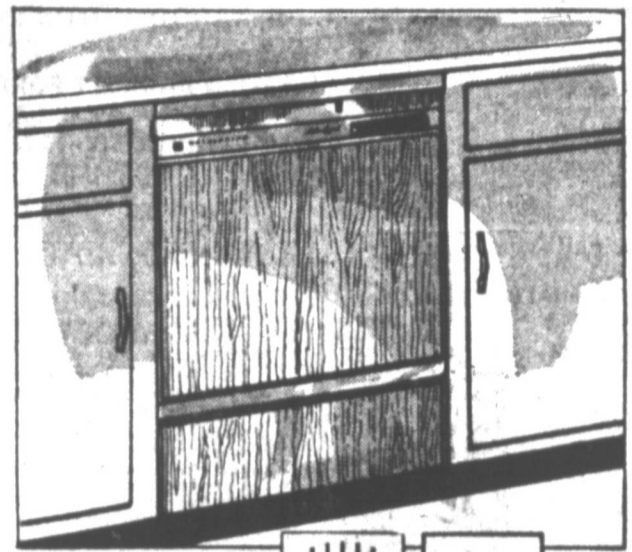

Employers must (1) grant leave for official training duty, and (2) reinstate the employe on his return without any loss in seniority, status, rate of pay, and vacation rights.

"Under reemployment rights laws, summer trainees do not really leave in the sense that job vacancies exist", Richter explained. "While most employers continue the pay of men on short training duty as though they remained on the job, the law makes no provision for this, and absences for training may not be charged to an employe's vacation time, or to other types of paid leave he may earn while actually working."

The Saluki breed, known to have existed as long ago as 7000 B.C., is known as the "royal dog of Egypt."
