ON ENERGY CRISIS

Congress Hastens To Grant Powers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate leaders urged their colleagues today to move with haste and approve a bill to grant President Nixon emergency powers to meet the energy crisis.

"This is an antifreeze bill," Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, said at the outset of debate on the measure. "The big thing now is to get going so we can get wheels rolling in this country and get the heat we need."

Amendments were prepared by both Republicans and Democrats to the bill that would give Nixon power to conserve energy by such means as imposing lower highway speed limits, suspending clean air requirements and ration fuels, including gasoline. Scott urged that the amendments be to the point, with a minimum of talk.

The first such amendment, which would call on the President to give special consideration in fuel allocations to those states or regions depressed economically, with high unemployment or lacking adequate transportation for fuel delivery, was adopted by voice vote.

A bill passed by Congress earlier this week authorizing construction of the Alaska pipeline will be signed by Nixon at 10:30 a.m. Friday.

Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, who has been critical of what he said was Nixon's slowness in reacting to the energy crisis, also urged haste. He noted that the last tanker carrying Mideast oil prior to imposition of the Arab oil embargo would arrive at an American port next week.

Mansfield said there may be no more Mideast oil "for months." But he said the energy crisis would have occurred regardless of what happened in the Mideast.

Mansfield opposed suggestions for a stiff tax on gasoline to discourage automobile travel, saying it would put the burden of taxation on the poor. He said rationing was a better alternative.

Despite proddings of the leaders of both parties, a bipartisan effort to solve the crisis ran into some problems.

Republicans on the Senate Interior Committee issued an angry minority report saying they were not allowed to write any provisions increasing the energy supply into the emergency bill.

They said the bill as written by the Democrats deals only with conserving energy.

One GOP committee member, Sen. Dewey F. Bartlett of oil-producing Oklahoma, said the bill, which incorporates many of President Nixon's proposals, is "a camouflage for no action . . ." and demonstrates again the reluctance of Congress to address the real problem — lack of sufficient domestic energy supplies.

Delegation To Attend PEP Meet

A Pampa delegation will attend the fourth annual meeting of the Panhandle Economic Program in the Activities Center of West Texas State University at 9:30 a.m. tomorrow.

Dr. L.I. Watkins, president of West Texas State University, will bring the welcome address followed by an address by State Senator Max Sherman of the 31st senatorial district speaking on the regional water council.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe will speak at 1:30 p.m. The governor will be introduced by Rex McAnelly, president of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, who is a member of the PEP executive board.

Agricultural task force meetings will be held during both the morning and afternoon, dealing with the following subjects: "The Outlook for Beef Cattle," "The Outlook for Grain," "Money Management," "Foods and Nutrition" and other matters related to agri-business and economics of the region.

Attending the meeting from Pampa will be McAnelly; Foster Whaley, Gray County agricultural agent; E.O. Wedgworth and Harris Brinson, of the Chamber of Commerce; and others. The meeting will be open to any interested persons, according to officials of the PEP program.

Model Legislature Leaders Instructed

Enthusiasm ran high as 38 persons crowded into the City Commission meeting room last night for a student leaders' orientation for Model Legislature II, John Warner, chairman, said. The project will take place Saturday at the high school.

With Milton Saltzman serving as moderator, the Jaycees demonstrated a legislative committee meeting for the students. The students received instructions in parliamentary procedure and ideas on how to get their ideas accepted in committee and on the floor of the House and Senate.

Richard Peet, Pampa High School government teacher, assisted.

Panhandle Equipment Co. Plans Facility Expansion

A $100,000 industrial building expansion was announced today by officials of Panhandle Equipment Co., Inc., of Pampa, with the awarding of a contract to Pam-Tex Corp. for a 24,000 square foot addition to the company's present facility on a 65-acre tract a half-mile west of Price Rd. on the Borger Highway.

The addition will be a pre-fabricated metal structure 120 by 200 feet.

Panhandle Equipment, a home-owned and operated industry, is engaged in the sale and overhaul of pre-owned gas engine compression equipment. The company is reputed to be the world's largest dealer in that type of machinery.

Officers of the company are Harvie Furrh, president; W.R. Milliron, vice president; Ed Myatt, vice president; Doyle Beckham, vice president in charge of sales, and Jim Gardner, secretary-treasurer.

Started just eight years ago, the company now operates in approximately 25 states, Canada and Mexico, doing business with all major gas companies.

Since its inception Panhandle Equipment Co. has been involved in helping to overcome the energy shortage through proper engineering, design, overhaul and fast delivery of needed equipment.

The local company currently employs 30 people and when the new addition is completed in January, an additional dozen employees will be needed, according to Vice President Myatt.

It also maintains yards or storage facilities in Tulsa, Okla.; Los Angeles, Calif.; Charleston, W. Va., and a sales office in Houston headed by Gene Inklebarger.

Panhandle Equipment's sales so far in 1973 total approximately $3-million with annual wages in the Pampa area estimated at $300,000.

Other top personnel with the company include Russell Holloway, chief engineer; Hurschel Cantwell, shop foreman, and Wayne Furrh, purchasing agent.

Officers of the Chamber of Commerce and Panhandle

Industrial Foundation were among a group of Pampans who toured the vast office and shop facilities of the company yesterday afternoon.

They included Rex McAnelly, chamber president, E.O. Wedgworth, chamber manager, Harris Brinson, assistant chamber manager in charge of industrial development; Fred Neslage, PIF president, and Kay Pancher, chairman of the chamber's Industrial Committee.

They expressed appreciation to President Furrh for the company's choice of Pampa as location for one of the world's largest operations of its kind.

Company officers in turn expressed "pride in our interest, both economically and physically, in Pampa and especially on being a part of this area."

President Pledges To Complete Term

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon told an audience of 4,000 today, "I was elected to do a job. I'm not going to walk away until I get that job done."

It was the same message in essence that the President delivered to 78 Republican congressmen at a White House breakfast session, as well as to three previous groups of senators and House members who had been invited for Q-and-A sessions at Watergate.

Speaking at the convention of the National Association of Realtors at the Sheraton-Park Hotel, Nixon was interrupted six times for applause during a 30-minute appearance.

Mostly, he reviewed his 1973 accomplishments in both the domestic and foreign fields, and turned to Watergate only toward the end.

Some mistakes were made by "overzealous people" in his behalf during the 1972 presidential campaign, he said.

"Mistakes were made, mistakes I would not have approved of, mistakes I would not have tolerated but mistakes for which I must accept responsibility."

He declared: "As far as the President of the United States is concerned, he has not violated his trust and he is not going to violate it."

House members and senators who attended White House meetings came away with reports of Nixon's absolute insistence that he would not resign. Many said Nixon expressed confidence that once the people understand the whole story of Watergate, they will not hold him responsible.

By United Press International
Egypt and Israel began exchanging their prisoners of war today in a first small step toward an eventual Middle East peace agreement. At the same time Israel turned over checkpoints on the Cairo-Suez road to the United Nations and relief convoys reached blockaded Suez City.

Implementation of the ceasefire accord signed last Sunday by Egyptian and Israeli army officers is expected to lead to a peace conference in Geneva early in December, but the differences between the Israeli and Arab viewpoints were so vast that political observers said peace may be a matter of years instead of days.

Today's exchange involved 26 Israeli prisoners and 412 Egyptians, many of them wounded. Nine of the Israelis had been captured during the 1970 war of attrition along the Suez Canal, the rest in the 17-day October Middle East War. Cairo reports said the nine had had an easy POW life, including a tour of the pyramids.

Egypt is believed to have captured 245 Israelis and Israel 8,400 Egyptians. The exchange, which will last over a period of a week or eight days, did not apply to the 175 Arabs captured by Israel on the Syrian front and the 100 Israeli POWs believed held by Syria.

However, Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said today Israel had made "far reaching" proposals to Syria for an exchange, including an offer to permit 15,000 displaced Syrian villagers to return to their homes on the captured Golan Heights.

Syria Uncertain
Whether Syria would accept the offer was uncertain. Syria reported an exchange of tank and artillery fire along the Golan Heights frontier today. Last week Syria reported three Israeli cease-fire violations.

The POWs were flown aboard Swiss commercial planes chartered by the International Red Cross. The flights between Tel Aviv and Cairo were the first direct commercial flights between those two cities since Israel became a sovereign nation 25 years ago.

Many problems of the Egyptian-Israeli ceasefire agreement remained to be worked out and Egyptian Maj. Gen. Mohammed Gemass and Israeli Maj. Gen. Aharon Yariv met "informally" again today at Kilometer 101 on the Suez-Cairo road where they achieved their breakthrough Tuesday, U.N. Maj. Gen. Ensio Siilasvuo met with them.

A U.N. spokesman said today's meeting was informal and that a plenary, or working session, would not be held before next week.

Check-points Surrendered
U.N. spokesman Rudolf Staudahar told newsmen in Cairo today that "troops of the U.N. Emergency Force (UNEF) have taken over the check-points on the Cairo-Suez road." He declined to give further details.

But his statement indicated the Israelis were going along with the compromise agreement worked out at the Wednesday meeting between Egyptian and Israeli military representatives under U.N. auspices.

The original agreement the Israelis signed with the Egyptians Sunday required the prisoner exchange to start "as soon as the U.N. checkpoints are established on the Cairo-Suez road." But after three days during which the Israelis impeded the U.N. takeover and kept control of the highway, the Egyptians agreed to have the two moves take place simultaneously.

Under the agreement, the Israelis also were required to permit nonmilitary supplies to pass along the highway and across the Suez canal to some 20,000 troops of the Egyptian 3rd Army in Sinai. They also were required to permit the evacuation of wounded 3rd army soldiers and wounded civilians from the port city of Suez, at the southern end of the canal.

The first Israeli prisoners landed in Tel Aviv at 11:35 a.m. and were welcomed by Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan and other officials.

The wounded soldiers were handed flowers and then given immediate examinations by 100 waiting Israeli doctors. Ambulances rushed them to Tel Hashomer hospital for further medical checks and emotional reunions with their waiting families.

Among the the Israelis released were nine men held since the so-called War of attrition in 1970.

SHARING FUNDS USED

County Gives Approval To Pay Raises, Budget

By CLAY LIVELY
Gray County commissioners this morning approved a budget for 1974 totalling $1,467,289.15. That compares to $1,303,004.10 for this year and incorporates a 5 and one-half per cent pay raise for county officials and employees.

The increase in pay for county employees should be taken care of by revenue sharing funds, County Judge Don Cain told the commissioners.

Gray County will receive approximately $200,000 in revenue sharing funds in 1974, according to an estimate made by the county auditor.

Judge Cain also said if the revenue sharing funds should for some reason not be forthcoming, the county should still have a surplus of $198,000 left at the end of 1974, even with the pay raise.

In other business, the commissioners addressed themselves to the request President Nixon made of governmental units to help in the conservation of fuel and energy.

The commissioners decided to request county employees to voluntarily drive county vehicles no faster than 50 mph, to use only necessary lighting and to keep thermostats in county buildings at 68 degrees.

Pete Styner, representing El Paso Natural Gas Co., told commissioners of plans by the company to replace pipelines under five county roads to meet federal safety standards.

Styner said the replacement pipe would be heavier quality pipe than the existing pipes. The replacement is necessitated by increased pressure in the lines. The replacements will be made in Precincts Three and Four in the county.

The commissioners also accepted bids for a pickup truck and a tractor truck for Precinct Two. Only one bid was received on each vehicle.

A bid of $2,932.46 (including trade-in of a 1961 Chevrolet pickup) was accepted from Harold Barrett Ford for the pickup.

A bid of $2,700 for a used 1964 tractor truck (including trade-in of a 1957 tractor) was accepted from Johnson, Inc. The bid was for an International truck.

Commissioners also continued discussion of the federal government's proposed decertification of medicare at McLean General Hospital.

The proposed decertification has come about because of a shortage of registered nurses at the McLean facility.

Cain said efforts are being made to find nurses for the hospital but finding them is difficult because of a statewide shortage of registered nurses.

He also said efforts are being made to have the federal government waive the requirement for a certain number of registered nurses per hospital day.

Waiver of certain requirements can be made in rural areas, according to the Burleson amendment to the Medicare bill, Cain said.

Failure to gain the waiver and the subsequent decertification of Medicare at the hospital

IN ALLOCATION PLAN

Agricultural Producers Gain Help With Needs

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Office of Oil and Gas is taking action which Congressman Bob Price of Pampa says should help to relieve the diesel fuel shortage being experienced by agricultural producers.

Representatives of the OOG told a special meeting of the House Agriculture Committee Wednesday afternoon that Mandatory Fuel Allocation Program would be published today in the Federal Register, Price said.

Some suppliers have misinterpreted the program and are refusing to adjust monthly allocations to meet this year's exceptional requirements, the House committee was told.

The OOG stresses in its clarification that a section of the program regulations state, might cause the McLean hospital to be closed, Cain said.

In routine business, the commissioners paid bills recommended by the county auditor, authorized transfers of funds and several time deposits, also recommended by the auditor, and approved the treasurer's report and the county welfare report for October.

A total of $2,078.11, in aid to 34 families, was spent on county welfare during October.

The commissioners also canvassed the results of the Nov. 6 constitutional amendments election and authorized payment of election expenses.

At press time, the approval of partial payment for a Precinct One steel building of $20,331.99 to Pam-Tex Co., Inc. and of $1,129.55 to Merriman and Barber Consulting Engineers, Inc., from revenue sharing funds had not been acted on.

The commissioners also had to act on the approval of easement and right-of-way between Verla Payne Holland, et al., and the county for a law enforcement communications tower.

After the regular session commissioners were to convene in executive session to discuss the appointment of a Gray County Veterans Service Officer to succeed the late Jack Graham.

PLANNING SESSION — Milton Saltzman, center, gives instructions to Jaycees who will serve as parliamentarians for Model Legislature II Saturday at Pampa High School. From left they are Edd Rowntree, Philip Kimbley, Richard Sohl, Saltzman, Bennie Horton, Denny McDougall and Paul Peoples.

Amarillo Slates 'Arts In Action'

A Pampa girl will be among participants from a three-state area providing exhibits for an "Arts in Action" display Saturday and Sunday in the Amarillo Civic Center.
There will be 150 artists, craftsmen and performing groups entered in the show.
Peggy Palmitier of Pampa has entered some of her drafts for the event.
The show will be open to the public from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday and from 1 to 6 p.m. Sunday. There will be performing groups on stage throughout both days.
Some of the arts and crafts to be exhibited will also be for sale.

Nixon To Sign Bill On Pipeline

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon will sign Friday legislation clearing the way for construction of an oil pipeline across Alaska, it was disclosed today.
The White House has said earlier this week that Nixon was studying the matter, because of opposition to an extraneous amendment giving the Federal Trade Commission broader power in the consumer field.
The President plans to sign the measure at a White House ceremony at 9:30 a.m. CST Friday.

John C. Calhoun is the only U.S. vice-president to resign, in 1832.

Price To Tour Mid-East Area

Congressman Bob Price of Pampa has been appointed among a 21-member special House Armed Services subcommittee to study the military situation in the Middle East and to make a fact-finding visit to both Israel and Egypt during the Thanksgiving congressional recess.
The subcommittee hopes to talk to leaders of both countries and to visit recently contested areas.
Committee Chairman F. Edward Hebert, who appointed the subcommittee, said:
"This is a fact-finding mission. This situation has enormous implications for our national security and our defense costs. We want to get the necessary information firsthand."
Price was the only Texan named to the subcommittee, which will depart for the Middle East tomorrow and return Nov. 24.

Cabot Might Obtain New Rotary Forge

WASHINGTON — Officials of Cabot Corp., which operates a gun tube manufacturing plant near Pampa, argued the merits of placing a new $8 million rotary forge at the Pampa plant, before the House Armed Services Research & Development Subcommittee Wednesday.

The subcommittee hearing was arranged by Congressman Bob Price, a member of the subcommittee.
The new rotary forge, which the Department of Defense has decided to purchase, is the only one of its kind in the United States, Price said. He said there are only a few similar forges in the world.

W.D. Manly, Cabot vice president, said location of the forge at the Army's Watervliet, N.Y., arsenal would cost the government $4 million to $5 million for related equipment. He said such equipment already is located at the Cabot plant in Pampa.
The Cabot plant here manufactures gun tubes.
Manly told the subcommittee that Cabot produces oil and natural gas at a facility adjacent to its Pampa plant.

Price told the subcommittee locating the forge in Pampa would make it "strategically less vulnerable in the middle of the United States than on the coast."
During recent years, Cabot's Pampa plant has supplied about 75 per cent of the gun tubes purchased by the Department of Defense for artillery pieces and mortars.
Price commended Cabot for its "outstanding 31-year history of providing excellent quality" gun tubes.

President Fighting To Regain Control

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon is struggling once again to regain control over the wildly careening forces that threaten his effectiveness. His official spokesman promised a massive campaign to clear his name and re-establish confidence in his ability to govern, including a series of news conferences, presidential statements, addresses to the nation and meetings with Congressional leaders.

Before the week's end, Nixon will have met personally with all 234 Republicans in Congress and some of the Democrats.

The President has decided to beef up his legal staff, now consisting of nine full-time lawyers and two consultants, with additional attorneys who will provide Judge John J. Sirica with the information he needs for the Watergate grand jury.

The staff of lawyers also will track down, compile and refute all the various allegations that have appeared in public print about Nixon, his friends and his family, according to Press Secretary Ronald T. Ziegler.

"We are going to beef up the legal staff and we are going to address these matters, case by case, head to head, with those people who are developing many of the erroneous theories and providing to the public many of the erroneous charges," Ziegler said earlier this week.

"The President is determined not to allow the charges that are being put forth, to allow the various theories that are developed by various investigative organizations—which are then provided in some cases to the public—to overwhelm us."

Among the "erroneous charges" to be addressed, Ziegler said, aside from Watergate, were:

—That improper financing was used in the purchase of Nixon's estates in Florida and California.

—That a $1 million private investment portfolio was managed by Nixon's friend,

C.G. (Bebe) Rebozo, on behalf of the President.

—That milk producers were rewarded for a large political campaign contribution with an increase in milk price supports.

—That the International Telephone & Telegraph Co. was similarly rewarded for a large campaign contribution with a favorable ruling in a government anti-trust action.

—That Rebozo's handling of a $100,000 campaign contribution from billionaire industrialist Howard Hughes was improper.

—That the President's daughter, Tricia Nixon Cox, failed to pay proper taxes on her share of the profits in a Florida land deal.

—That the President took advantage of the tax laws to obtain a massive deduction for himself which has resulted in him paying virtually no taxes on his $200,000 annual salary.

The key question is whether the President has waited too long to respond to the allegations.

Taking A Job? Get S.S. Card

Planning on going to work or taking a job soon? If you are, Howard L. Weatherly, of the Pampa Social Security Office, suggests that the first thing you should do is check to see if you have a social security card.

If you have lost your card and have the number, you can get a new card in about a week. But, if you do not have the number nor have never had a social security card, it will take about six weeks before a card can be issued for you.

With this in mind, Weatherly suggests that people should file for their social security card well in advance of the time when they will need them.

Weatherly adds that to obtain a social security number, you must complete an application form and submit it to a social security office. These forms are available at your nearest post office or social security office.

If you expect to have a need for a social security card in the near future, be sure and file for one well in advance. For further information, call your social security office.

Local Man Named To Hospital Board

CORPUS CHRISTI — A Pampa man was elected here last week to a major position on a Texas Baptist board during the annual meeting of the 2-million-member Baptist General Convention of Texas.

Jerald D. Sims, vice president of the First National Bank, was re-elected as a trustee on the Board of High Plains Baptist Hospital, Amarillo.

BACK TO CHILDHOOD

NEW YORK (UPI) — In recent years, Christmas card publishers have found there's a steadily increasing demand for Christmas cards with Santa Claus designs for grown-ups to send.

People are nostalgic for the dimly-remembered but happy days of their own childhood when Santa's long-awaited visit was the glorious climax to the Christmas celebration. People have recognized that Santa, possibly better than any other symbol, epitomizes the warm-hearted spirit of Christmas.

Thrifty shoppers cause shortages Processed fruits, vegetables dwindle down to precious few

By Eliza Paul

WASHINGTON, D.C. — (NEA) — Bargain-hungry shoppers are gobbling the nation into a processed foods shortage that could cause such staples as canned peas and frozen peas to disappear from the supermarket by next spring.

Investment Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Wall Street analysts generally agree that the oil exporting Arab nations of the Middle East hold the immediate solution to halting the stock market's sharp decline in recent sessions.

The oil embargo decreed by the Arabs until the Middle East confrontation with Israel is settled to their satisfaction has focused attention on the energy crisis and compounded it, creating uncertainties about the economic future not only of the United States but also of Western Europe and Japan. Analysts have blamed the market's decline on these uncertainties and say stock prices could rebound significantly as soon as the Arab oil embargo is lifted.

The Spear Market Report believes the market will have a "monumental" upsurge once the embargo is ended.

While the possibility of a further moderate decline cannot be forewarned, it said, "diplomatic maneuvering to end the oil boycott (sic) is almost certain to accelerate in the days ahead, bearing with it the seeds of a monumental rally."

"The market is slowly divesting itself of its illusions—and one of the big ones is that the Arab oil weapon will just go away," said Larry Wachtel of Bache and Co.

"The market is seeking a bottom, perhaps in the $50 to $60 area" of the Dow Jones industrial average, he said. "But very shortly, I would expect a violent technical rally followed by backing and filling until the winter."

Saul Smerling of Standard & Poor's said the market currently is at a testing level. As to what will turn it upward again, he said: "A realization that perhaps the Arab embargo is not going to go on forever."

The Lord's Prayer in Esperanto begins: "Patro nia, kiu estas en la cielo, sankto estu via nomo"

Other processed foods in perilously short supply: canned beefs, carrots, green beans, tomatoes, peaches, cherries and canned and frozen corn.

The Administration's price controls program, responsible for shortages in many other sectors of the economy, is only partly to blame for this one, according to processors and retailers. Indeed, the controls seem only to have aggravated an already tight situation caused by a general trend toward convenience foods and a poor crop year.

The real pinch began last year when floods in the eastern part of the nation wiped out a substantial part of the fruit and vegetable crop and production dropped sharply.

During last summer's Freeze II, processed food prices were held down while those for fresh fruits and vegetables were allowed to fluctuate wildly. The uncertainty of fresh produce prices and a general desire to hoard food drove many consumers from the vegetable bins to the canned and frozen food sections of their grocery stores.

In addition, the meat shortage caused housewives to pour increasing amounts of prepared vegetables into stews and casseroles in an effort to stretch food budgets.

The crops are generally packed only once a year and products that run out won't appear in the supermarket again until the fall. The past summer's heavy buying left canners and freezers with record low carryover supplies, meaning there is almost no reserve to draw on in a production year one canner describes as a "general disaster."

The New York state and West Virginia apple crops were hit by a freeze at blossoming time that also took a toll of the cherry crops in those areas. The Midwest apple crop was also cut by bad weather and growers estimate the canning crop may be only half of last year's.

Similar natural disasters befell the pea, sweet corn and tomato crops — all of which were already in short supply.

Edward Brown, chairman of the board of Michigan Fruit Canners, states flatly,

"We won't be able to meet demand this year. By late spring or early summer there will be quite a pinch in apple products." Michigan Fruit, which makes Rustic and Dolley Madison brand products, also anticipates shortages in its supplies of cherries, green beans and peas.

When shoppers see canned food stocks dwindling, they traditionally turn to frozen foods and this is expected to wipe out the supply of frozen peas well before next year's packing season.

Frozen pea supplies dropped to near zero this year, and processors, faced with another poor crop, are pessimistic. "There is a shortage and it's critical," says an official of a major frozen foods distributor.

According to a spokesman for Safeway Stores, the nation's largest retail food chain, the switch to processed foods and the ensuing shortage is the result of simple convenience and not the economics of price controls. "If people really want fresh fruits and vegetables, they'll pay the extra price," he maintains. "But the fact is that fewer and fewer people want to bother preparing them."

Food retailers, aware of the current supply problem, admit there isn't much they can do but offer shoppers alternatives to goods in short supply. "We can only try to guess what consumers will substitute," the Safeway spokesman says. "If peaches are short, for instance, we'll probably buy extra pears."

DON'T LIGHT A MATCH
MENA, Ark. (UPI) — If a gas leak is suspected in the home, don't strike a match to check for it. Fire authorities say a good way to check is to mix liquid detergent with water and brush it on the area where you suspect the leak to be. If gas is leaking, bubbles will occur over the leak.

Culture Guest Day Topic Is White House Brides

The Twentieth Century Culture Club held its Guest Day Tea in Lovett Memorial Library on Tuesday, Nov. 13. After a brief business session conducted by Mrs. Ross Buzzard, president, Mrs. Glenn Reeve introduced Mrs. Glenn Reeve of Friona, Tex., who gave the program on "The First Ladies." Her theme centered around the White House brides. "There have been 16 White House brides," she stated. "The first was Lucy Payne, who was married in 1812, and the last one, of course, was Tricia-Nixon in 1971-72 were married inside the White House, and one, Tricia Nixon Cox, was married in the Rose Garden.

Most of the brides were relatives of the presidents, usually daughters or nieces. There were seven Episcopal weddings, four Presbyterian, one Methodist, one Quaker, one Catholic, and two of unknown religion.

Mrs. Reeve demonstrated the 16 brides with a collection of dolls she had dressed herself to resemble each bride in her wedding dress. The styles varied with the times, most were lovely white or ivory formal gowns, but the two who had been widows, were dressed in colors, and one, Louise Gill Macy, who married Harry Hopkins in 1942, wore a military dress.

Mrs. Reeve gave the facts of interest about each bride's wedding, etc. as she described them. Mary Ann Eston (Polk) in 1832 bought her wedding trousseau in Paris and was considered quite extravagant. Nellie Grant's dress cost $5,000 and her wedding gifts totaled $75,000 in value. Three of the White House brides were of Woodrow Wilson's family — two daughters and a niece.

Lynda Byrd Johnson Robb's wedding was covered by a press corps of 500, the largest press corps of any of the White House weddings.

Tricia Nixon Cox's wedding was distinguished by its location in the beautiful rose garden at the White House; also by a special guest in attendance, Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, who was herself a White House bride in 1906.

Mrs. Reeve displayed a framed letter she had received from Mrs. Longworth concerning her wedding dress description; also framed color pictures she had received from the Johnson and Nixon families showing their bridal couples in wedding attire, together with the press release of each event.

Hostesses for the tea were Mmes. J. L. Chase, Jr., M.K. Griffith, R. L. Cooke, Paul Turner and J. R. Donaldson. Mrs. J. M. Stallings registered guests.

Members present besides those mentioned were Mmes. A. E. Berry, Fred Brook, Milo Carlson, G. L. Craddock, E. W. Hogan, Rufe Jordan, Wyatt Lemons, Myron A. Marx, Jr., B. R. Nunn, Doyle Osborne, R. B. Rogers, E. E. Shalhamer, and L. J. Zachry.

Guests attending were Mmes. Harold Justice, C. B. Haney, Iva Mullins, Ralph Esson, Bill Matejovsky, J. B. Maguire, Jr., J. B. McCrery, H. C. Weidner, Ruby Smith, Floyd Watson, W. E. Hinton, J. F. Powell, Dorothy McMurtry, Elaine Waters, Charlotte Edmondson, H. H. Boynton, D. A. Caldwell, Sally Carruth, Virginia Kelly, Grace Watson and Mary Reeve, sister-in-law of the speaker.

Painted Bricks Make An Ugly Fireplace

By POLLY CRAMER

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — We have run into a problem while redoing our old farmhouse. The brick fireplace is a mess as the bricks have been painted, first with a maroon color, and then with white paint on top of that. Does anyone have any good suggestions for removing paint from bricks? — PHYLIS

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve concerns today's lack of manners. Today "Thank you" and "Please" for fetching and doing tasks in the home are absent. Children and parents do not respond with more alacrity when these words are used. Time and time again I have seen a woman sail through a door held open by a man with no acknowledgment made of his courtesy. It takes such little effort to nod, smile and, offer a word of thanks. Is the pace of living so accelerated and are we as people so hurried that we have no time for such amenities? Take time! Good manners are infectious and a plague of them would make life more pleasant for everybody. — GRANDMA B

DEAR POLLY — Pat wanted to know how to make her 9x12 living room rug lie flat on the floor. She should use double faced adhesive carpet tape, the kind used on wall to wall carpeting. I have had good results using this to anchor runners to the floor. It can be removed any time. — MRS. L. P.

DEAR POLLY — Fat could make her rug lie flat by taping masking tape down the center (sticky sides out), and placing strips of this at intervals along the underside of the rug. I used this method when I made a room-size rug out of carpet samples for my daughter's bedroom. When something is spilled on this rug I merely remove the soiled sample and replace it with a new one. Such a rug is most satisfactory where there is danger of accidents. — MARY JEAN

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

FRIDAY, NOV. 16
Your birthday today: Flexibility is the quality you develop in this year of normal growth and confirmed moderate progress. Career or business challenges you to revise your thinking, perhaps your long-term goals. Today's natives display rare personal gifts, a strong desire for wealth and power.

Aries [March 21 - April 19]: Discipline that natural impulse to clear off the work week with a buying spree. Someone near you is overly interested in your cash.

Taurus [April 20 - May 20]: Legal moves run into a nagging, endless discussion which largely misses the point. Do what you see as necessary without waiting to be told.

Gemini [May 21 - June 20]: Wishful thinking is one component of your view of the world today. Little progress is achieved without your personal supervision.

Cancer [June 21 - July 22]: You learn to allow all things to happen in their own good time. A short, smart answer may be regretted.

Leo [July 23 - Aug. 22]: You are at a peak of personal energy but this does not mean that others automatically agree with you or can keep up with your pace.

Virgo [Aug. 23 - Sept. 22]: Your natural caution in spending comes into good stead as some old issues arise for consideration.

Libra [Sept. 23 - Oct. 22]: Be willing to try something you hadn't before. In discussion of past facts, take care not to reopen a settled issue.

Scorpio [Oct. 23 - Nov. 21]: Step right up with a straightforward statement of what you feel is reasonable; then take responsibility for your own actions.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22 - Dec. 21]: Signals are misleading. Those who offer help are not necessarily interested in the same results you are, particularly if you aren't well acquainted with all facts.

Capricorn [Dec. 22 - Jan. 19]: Almost anything you do, including doing nothing, has its drawbacks or side effects. Consult those you care about. Heed advice.

Aquarius [Jan. 20 - Feb. 18]: Where things run smoothly, it's an achievement on your part. Formulating ideas so that others grasp them easily is the most difficult chore.

Pisces [Feb. 19 - March 20]: Overdoing brings no immediate tangible benefit, doesn't change the unappreciative attitude of most people. Do only what you consider essential.

The difference between a cuckold and old kook

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I write a syndicated newspaper column titled "Bernstein on Words." Recently I received the following letter:

Dear Mr. Bernstein:
While celebrating my 45th wedding anniversary, I recalled that 40 years ago my wife had an affair with another man. My question: Was I, or am I a cuckold?"

Abby, all that came to my mind was that juvenile jingle, "How much wood would a woodchuck chuck if a woodchuck could chuck wood," with a variation something like, "Just how old is an olden cluck when an olden-cuckold's he?"

However, since this question seems much more up your alley than mine, how would you answer it?

ED BERNSTEIN:
CONSULTING EDITOR, NEW YORK TIMES

DEAR TED: If the wife had only one affair—even briefly—her mate was a cuckold briefly. If she had another one, he's a cuckold for sure. If she's had them off and on over the years, he's not a cuckold—quite the reverse. He's an old kook!

DEAR ABBY: My problem is nothing new. It's my mother in law. My husband and I are the proud parents of a new baby, and I have returned to work part-time. Since we didn't know a reliable sitter, I asked my mother in law if she would babysit while I worked half days, and I offered to pay her. To my surprise, she accepted!

Abby, most grandmothers would be insulted if they were offered money to stay with their grandchildren. This is her first grandchild.

My husband and I have been fighting about this ever since it came up, and he says I am wrong—and if I don't feel right-handing his mother money, I should just stick it in her purse and not make a big deal out of it.

Abby, do you think I'm wrong? I wonder just how many grandmothers accept money for taking care of their grandchildren?

WORKING MOTHER:
DEAR MOTHER: You failed to mention an important factor. How well off is your mother in law? If she must work in order to support herself, obviously she can't afford to sit gratis. In any case, you'd have to pay another sitter, so why gripe?

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a chaser. I knew it when I married him, but nobody's perfect, and besides he has a lot going for him. For instance, he's a good provider and he's not stingy with his money. And he's also a wonderful father to our seven children, he's devout in his religion, and hasn't missed mass in 13 years, no matter how hung over he was.

His last fling was with a girl who used to call here and try to disguise her voice, but I always knew it was her. She'd say it was a "business call."

Once this girl called and talked to me. She said she was in love with my husband and he was in love with her, and she asked me why I didn't give him up. I told her I'd give him up, but she'd have to take our seven kids, their ages are 2, 3, 5, 7, 8, 10, and 12. She hung up. (I think she must have fainted.) That's the last time she called here.

Just thought this might be helpful to other wives with my kind of problem.

MARY SUNSHINE:
DEAR MARY: Thanks, but it's risky to make an offer you'd never honor.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "TIGHT LIPPED AND EXASPERATED IN DETROIT": Whether you sell your kisses for a dollar apiece or a hundred dollars is beside the point. The principle is the same. Kiss that Lochinvar goodbye, with a handshake.

Back in the '30s cartoonist H.T. Webster used to draw a daily comic panel. Upon occasion he drew some about bridge. One showed a tepee. The voice coming from inside said, "Ugh! Lone Elk bid one more psychic. I scalp him."
North, a well known psychic bidder had promised his teammates he would not open psychics but the temptation of this hand was too much for him. The words: "One notrump" came out of his mouth. East's two spades, South's four hearts and West's double followed naturally as did a seven trick set and a near stroke of apoplexy by South.

North pointed out that South was only down 1300 and that East and West could bid six notrump and score 1440 but South was not mollified.
Neither were their East-West teammates. The hand occurred in an important team match and six spades became the contract at the other table. South led the ace of hearts and gave his partner a ruff to set the slam and win the match for his team.
His teammates couldn't scalp North. That just isn't done in the American Contract Bridge League but they did the next worst thing. They never let him play with them again.

Pendleton's women's sportswear also is a marriage of traditional and updated styling. In presenting the holiday collection, Dick Poth, manager of fashion and style development said, "We have taken our cue from a highly successful fall season and are offering a select number of color groups — earthy brown and navy combinations, giant blanket plaids, casual checks and heather mixes, chiefly."

The softer suit look is here with no fewer than eight skirt styles to be worn with a variety of blazer, shirt jacket or tunic tops.

In outerwear, city cape and tie-wrap topper are meant for pants. A slim-fitting coat, belted in back, is worn over a dress. Country clothes feature an apple-bright group of holiday red, gold-and-navy often combined in a striking block plaid. And there is an Alpine blue collection in a beautiful group of blue, green and creme tones.

"In color and styling," Poth said, "we are offering fresh contrast to earlier fall
throughout our line."

The bright MacPherson plaid jacket (left) and matching durable press slacks are available as separates or together. They are a perfect foil for the pale soft honey flannel pantsuit with tie belt. All are in pure wool. He is wearing a gray and maroon glen plaid jacket with Western detailing (right) such as yokes in front and back and leatherette piping on the pockets. He has chosen matching slacks but solid coordinating slacks are also available. The pert companion on his arm is outfitted in an Alpine-blue check shirtwaist and a fine gauge, long sleeve mock turtleneck sweater. (These are Pendleton designs)

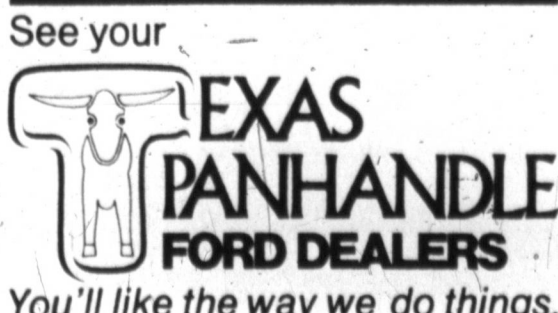

An important message from your Texas Panhandle Ford dealers.

5 QUESTIONS TO ASK THE MAN WHO'S TRYING TO SELL YOU A '74 MODEL CAR.

If you're about to invest in a new car, the gentlemen at your Texas Panhandle Ford dealers believe you ought to have straight answers to some pretty basic questions—about the car you're looking at, and about the dealer you're talking to.

- 1 How do I know this is the right car for me?
The right engine, options?
The gentlemen in sales at your Texas Panhandle Ford dealers know the cars they sell, backward and forward. Once they have some idea of how you use a car, they'll be more than happy to make suggestions about size, body style, engine and options. The choice is yours, of course. The point is, we want to see you in the right Ford, not just any Ford.
- 2 How about service after the sale?
This question catches a lot of salesmen off guard, because all too many are interested only in moving cars. But not the gentlemen at Ford. We know you're vitally interested in our ability to service your car. So here, you'll find total car care service: the tools and equipment, plus a shop staff with the know-how and the willingness to help keep your Ford rolling smoothly for as long as you own it.
- 3 What are the full terms of the warranty on this car?
At your Texas Panhandle Ford dealers, you'll get more than just broad generalities. We'll hand you a copy of the warranty, give you time to read it, then give you straight answers to any questions you might have about it.
- 4 How can you help me with financing?
Just a few quick questions, a reference or two, and chances are we can arrange for the money you need in a matter of minutes — and at the best possible rates available.
- 5 When will the car be ready for delivery? And will it be ready?
We'll give you a realistic delivery date, and do all we can to make it. More important, when you do take delivery, the car is going to be just the way you want it. Because we'll spend the time and effort it takes cleaning and polishing, tuning and adjusting — to deliver a car you'll be proud of. A car you'll be proud of.

This hungry world Prosperity: the foolproof contraceptive

Hysterical hordes of desperate people — black, yellow and brown people — flooding across the earth, multiplying frantically, massing at the barricades, pounding at the walls — demanding food.

By Ross Gelbspan
(Third in a series)

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Too often this is the fantasy that surfaces in Western minds when the "population explosion" — and the resulting depletion of world food supplies — is mentioned.

And, while it is true that an expanding world population is overtaxing the food stores of the planet, it is a problem that too often evokes simplistic and inhumane solutions.

It is a fact that the world's population is expanding at a rate which is unprecedented in history. In the next 35 years, the population of the planet will double from 3.5 to 7 billion people. And the increase is occurring almost exclusively among the poorest two-thirds of the world's population, where nutrition levels are already low and falling.

This means that every week enough children are born to populate a Detroit-sized city. In India alone, a million babies are being born every month. In Asia, by 1986, there will be another billion people.

These facts have led several outspoken American experts to conclude that the only way to prevent widespread starvation is through a massive global program of birth control. Such men have advocated policies ranging from voluntary birth control programs to enforced sterilization in poor areas of the world.

But this approach ignores the human realities in the underdeveloped world where birth rates are highest. It is an approach which, in the opinion of most of the world's population experts, is doomed to fail.

The science of demography — population — is complex and difficult. The only fact about population size which seems to be true is that birth rates fall as standards of living rise.

To explain this phenomenon, the late Dr. Josue de Castro, a Brazilian agronomist, observed that, like other species, the human organism multiplies more rapidly when it perceives that its survival is threatened. A mother in Gabon, West Africa, for instance, will bear 10 children to ensure that at least four survive into adulthood.

Consider the inhabitants of the Indian village of Manupur. The Rockefeller Foundation and Harvard University set up a system of birth-control clinics in the Manupur area where they dispensed free contraceptives. The program failed because the people refused to use them. When an American graduate student, Mahmood Mamdani, spent a year in Manupur interviewing residents, he discovered that their reasons for wanting large families were, in fact, very intelligent ones.

Mamdani learned that for the vast majority of residents, the more children they raised, the higher their family income. Moreover, the more children who could contribute to their support, the greater was the parents' chance of surviving into old age.

As one water-carrier, and a father of eight, told Mamdani: "They are trying to convince me in 1960 that I shouldn't have any more sons. Now, you see, I have six sons and two daughters. They are grown up and they bring me money. They told me I was a poor man and couldn't support a large family. Now, you see, because of my large family, I am a rich man."

The point is that large families are not poor because they are large. Large families are large because they are poor.

High fertility, according to Senegalese demographer Landing Savanne, is "a defense reaction of the poor, deprived as they are of the benefits of education and technology. The peasant avails himself of cheap and abundant labor (children) to increase his productivity; and the prolific urban dweller nourishes the hope that at least one of his descendants will find a job or look after him in his old age."

For these reasons, a head of the Family Planning Council in Kenya, Dr. Yusuf Ali

Eraj, explains that "experience has shown that propaganda for birth control or family planning programs do not (by themselves) play much part in lowering the birth rate."

This is not to say that continued population growth is a good thing for India or the world. But it does suggest that to impose any kind of population control would have the brutal and inhumane effect of punishing a man for doing what he must do to ensure his own survival. In fact, a mandatory population control program might well have the effect of condemning the poorest 40 per cent of humanity to higher levels of misery, increased malnutrition and earlier death.

How, then, to reduce the birth rate in the poor two-thirds of the world before the planet's population outruns its food-growing capacity? The only answer, according to an overwhelming majority of the world's demographers, lies in a rapid and massive increase in global standards of living.

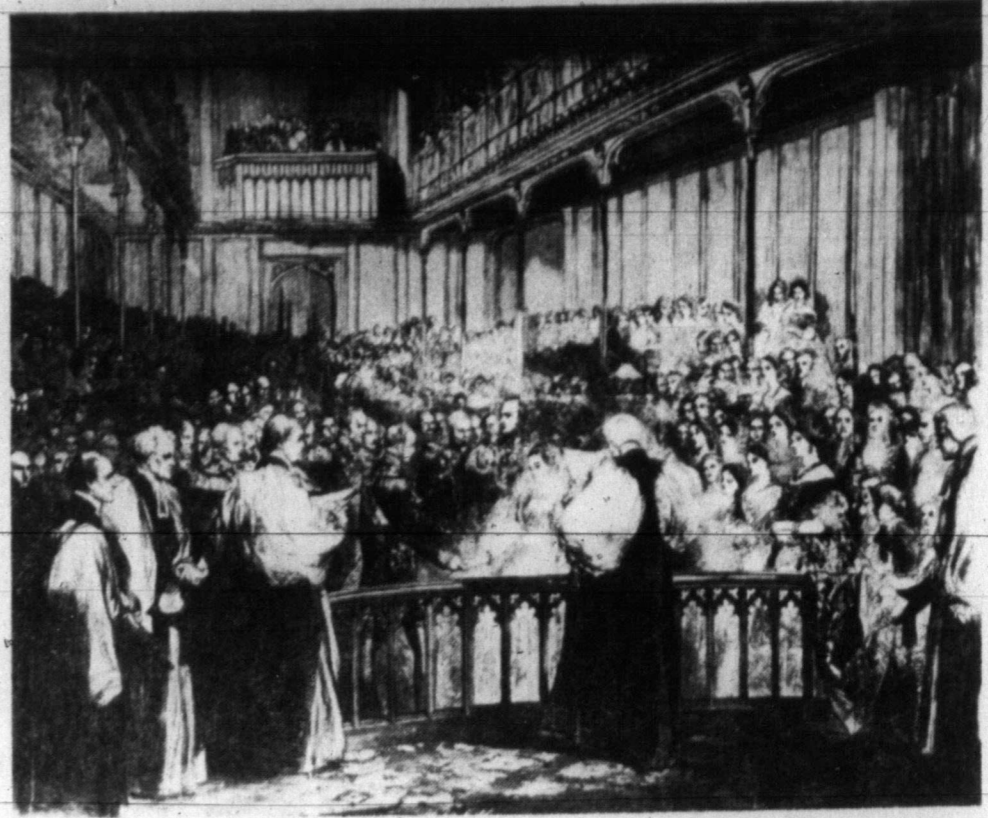

When the majority of the world's people, who presently live below the global poverty line, see around them an explosion of agricultural jobs and of local industries to provide money and food for their own survival, then they will begin to cut down the size of their families.

Lacking this, no amount of contraceptives will do the job.

are an old story for the British. Princess Anne's marriage to Capt. Mark Phillips is the latest in a long line of illustrious unions, some truly history-making. A drawing, right, from "The Illustrated London News" depicts the 1858 marriage of Princess Vicky, Queen Victoria's daughter, to Prince Frederick-William of Prussia. TO INSURE SAFER PRODUCTS

Insurance Companies Should Become Involved With Clients

DALLAS — If for no other reason than recently passed legislation, insurance companies must get involved with their clients to provide safer products and services according to Texas State Senator Oscar H. Mauzy at the recent seminar on "Consumerism and the Product Hazard."

Sen. Mauzy, himself a member of the Texas Trial Lawyers Association, warned the assembled insurance executives, corporate risk managers and agents the Consumer Product Safety Act has recognized a need for both government action and private lawsuits.

The Consumer Products Safety Commission will, according to the Senator, bring new information on compensable injuries to the attention of private lawyers.

And, he added, as new rules are made by the Commission, new causes of action for damages will be provided through private litigation. Sen. Mauzy also warned that since the Act provides for public disclosure of any of its findings, lawsuits are bound to increase.

The influential Texas Legislator pointed out that based on changing social attitudes — mainly consumerism — court decisions have held that, in some cases, an entire industry and perhaps even that industry's trade association may be held responsible for an unsafe product.

Citing the case of Chance v.

E.I. DuPont DeNemours & Co. (345 F. Supp. 353 (E.D. N.Y. 1972)), Sen. Mauzy gave evidence that the consumer movement in the court system has not slowed.

In that case, it was held that a child injured by an exploding blasting cap of unknown manufacturer could sue all companies that produced the caps and their trade association which formulated a voluntary common safety program.

"This case suggests that an entire industry may someday bear the cost of injuries caused by the manufacturer of a defective product, a significant expansion of the legal concept of liability," he added.

Turning to the Deceptive Trade Practices Act enacted by the State of Texas in 1973, the Dallas County Legislator reminded his audience that the insurance industry was included in this act, a departure from previous Texas law.

"This new law changes the exempt status of insurance people and hopefully will eliminate any insurance fraud by licensed insurers or insurance agents."

Through this bill, the consumer victimized by deceptive trade practices may consult either the county attorney, district attorney or State Attorney General for help or retain a private attorney and file a suit for triple damages with the prospect of recovering the attorney's fees if successful, Sen. Mauzy said.

In the field of Workmen's Compensation, Sen. Mauzy outlined how the recently passed law in Texas makes it mandatory that the insurance industry provide loss prevention services.

"As a consumer advocate in the legislature, I think it was a big step and hopefully insurance companies will voluntarily improve their loss prevention services in areas outside Workmen's Compensation."

The changing history of altering tapes What you say—or don't say—may be used against you

By Tom Tiede

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The Germans of World War II had a clever way to protect Adolph Hitler. Recording the Führer's speeches on magnetic tape, they played them simultaneously from various locations in the nation, thereby reducing the chances of assassination.

Today, magnetic tapes are once again protecting a national leader. This time by not playing at all. And though recorded reels are the only similarity between the two periods of history, the political life of Richard Nixon is also surely at stake.

It is of course ironic that something so ingeniously trivial as a brown ribbon could play such important roles in history. Magnetic tape is only 30 years old, commercially, but besides protecting both Fascists and Republicans it has influenced almost everyone in the world to some extent or other.

Much of the influence, like the tape itself, has been fabricated. Five hundred and forty-one million dollars worth of pre-recorded tapes were sold to Americans last year, most of them ending up on cheap Japanese recorders which trumpet from Maine to Malibu the wails and whines of agonized young musicians who mistake energy for entertainment. Four hundred and twenty-five million dollars worth of this was in the form of eight-track tape, meaning each instrument has a space on the tape to dramatize its own ability to go off key without spoiling anything.

Yet some of the influence of magnetic tape has been more serious and occasionally deadly serious. Good libraries stock cassettes which record books for the blind. Schools have utilized tape recorders as inexpensive and often excellent teaching aides. In some nations tapes of The Masters' voices are provided to radio stations for the benefit of the masses. In at least one country, Vietnam, in 1965, a tape recorder played the national anthem during a humid pre-dawn day and when the song ended an allegedly convicted criminal was executed by a firing squad.

And a great deal of the influence, good, bad or indifferent, is orchestrated not so much by the orchestras but by tape altering technicians. Tape alteration, says British electronics expert Adrian Hope, is as old as tape itself. The Germans altered Winston Churchill's speeches during the World War II for home front consumption. Prisoners of wars of the last three decades have been subject to tape editing and word substitution—men who did nothing else but tell the enemy about their families have wound up recorded as anti-American. In early radio the blips and bloopers of programming were all deleted before airtimes.

Today, tape alteration is high and important art. Musical recording technicians often are as important as the recorders. In one popular album, "Count Basie - Super Chief," the song "Love and Love Tonight" has been spliced 171 times. In the album "Concert for Bangladesh" one musician's microphone malfunctioned during play and his part had to be dubbed in the following morning. The editing usually is no secret, some record jackets describe the alteration processes as if the customer is getting more for his money.

Yet despite the history of tape alteration and the benefits of it (who wants to hear a news program interviewee belch?), there remains something odorous about the process. When Neil Armstrong became the first man on the moon, he said: "That's one small step for man, and one giant leap for mankind." He meant to say "one small step for a man" and at the time it was suggested that the better wording be dubbed into the historic tape. It wasn't, it shouldn't have been, the gaffs of history being as important as the facts of it.

To be sure, if Armstrong's tape would have been altered it would have been undetectable. Technicians today boast they can do almost anything with a recording and do it invisibly. To prove this, a New York acoustical research firm recently put together a tape of selected words from President Nixon's speeches—which, in Nixon's own voice, says: "I had prior knowledge of the Watergate break-in. I authorized subordinates to engage in illegal campaign tactics. I shall continue to subvert the institutions of government by unlawful means." The tape, two minutes long, has 145 splices, only three of which are easily heard.

Actually, such a splice job—145 in two minutes, is probably impossible to do perfectly. I. S. Teibel, who made the altered Nixon tape, says that the ratio of splices to tape time is crucial. Too many chances for error in too short a time.

But perfection is possible under more normal circumstances, says Teibel. If, for example, a 45-minute presidential discussion was recorded, and perhaps two paragraphs of conversation deleted, "it would be relatively simple," and detection "one in a million."

Experts agree there are difficulties involved with the undetectable alteration of recordings. The quality of the tape, for one thing, influences the quality of the editing. Then too, with ordinary people, conversations tend to be slurred rather than distinct and it is difficult to break up words of slurred speeches.

Most importantly, there is the possibility that background noise will interfere with alteration. Recording engineer Tom Dowd says that the drone of an overhead plane, for example, is most difficult to interrupt. A laboratory oscilloscope, which translates electrical impulses of sound into green wavy lines, would detect interruption immediately. The before-break and after-break portions of the plane wave would simply not match up.

Yet all the difficulties apparently have solutions. The interruption of the plane drone, as example, might be masked by inserting a cough or sneeze or the slam of a door at the splice. Besides this, says another acoustical expert, Mark Randall of Syn-tone Research Inc., some tapes, as apparently the presidential tapes, are voice activated. That means they go on or off at the level of speech. "So if Nixon's tapes have a suspicious break, the claim might be that voices were lowered and the tape just shut off."

All of this, of course, is a far cry from the Germans trying to protect their Führer. In those days, actually, magnetic tape was not even magnetic tape—just paper ribbon with red oxide paint. And perhaps even today, the argument of sophisticated protection by sophisticated tape may be outdated. Many say Richard Nixon has become so ensnared in his historic filament that, at this point in time, the only thing on the tapes is his swan song.

DAD ASKS 10-YEAR-OLD Daughter, Can I Use Your Car?

TACOMA, Wash. (UPI) — Joe Shensky may be the only father in America who will be asking his 10-year-old daughter if he can borrow the family car.

Suzanne Shensky came up with a winning name for a new ice cream and now the fifth grader is the proud owner of a brand new automobile six years before she can qualify for her driver's license.

She also won a trip to Disneyland and $500 in cash. It all started six months ago. Suzanne's mother read a newspaper announcement about a contest sponsored by the Carnation Co. offering prizes for the best name of a new ice cream.

They All Gather 'Round The Shensky family, including Suzanne's eight-year-old brother and three sisters, aged 21, 19 and 14, gathered around the kitchen table to "brainstorm" a name for the new product.

"It has a lot of different colors," Suzanne said. "There was chocolate, vanilla, strawberry, rocky road — all different kinds. It sort of looked like little pieces of colored paper. I said it looks like the stuff you throw at parades and Mom said, 'You mean confetti.'"

Suzanne named the ice cream "Confetti Carousel," filled out and mailed the entry blank. Suzanne and her family had all but forgotten about the contest until a representative of the dairy firm in Los Angeles telephoned.

Shensky, who answered the call, was told his youngest daughter was the winner of the first prize.

But Suzanne was out picking raspberries and it wasn't until two hours later she found out. "Everybody in the family was all excited and wanted to know if they could use the car, even Joey," she said.

Cattle were introduced into the territory of New Mexico by the Spanish in 1596.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The year is 1980. Little Lobelia, age 6, leans into her father's lap, cracking two of his ribs in the process, and says, "Tell me some more about what it was like in the old days, Daddy."

"O! Daddy Longstream shades his eyes and peers into the distance. "See that building out there behind the house? The one where the horses are stabled? That's where we used to keep the automobiles. We called it a two-car garage."

"Did you really and truly have a horseless carriage, Daddy? A real one like the one you took me to see in the Smithsonian?"

"I'm not putting you on, baby cakes. Everybody had a car in those days. Even teen-age kids not much older than you."

"If you wanted to go somewhere, you would just hop in your car and take off?"

"Wonderment of It All Little Lobelia shakes her head in wonderment. "And tell me again about those things hanging down from the ceiling."

"Those are called chandeliers. They used to be a type of lighting fixture."

"You mean like candleholders?"

"Not exactly. See that little button over there on the wall? That is a light switch. If you flipped that switch, the chandeliers would light up the whole room."

"You didn't use matches or anything?"

"Not a thing. In those days, the primary light source was electricity."

"Gee, Daddy, we studied about electricity in our kindergarten history lesson. Do you really and truly remember that far back?"

She Examines Grillwork
AS OF Daddy Longstream makes his way to the hearth, little Lobelia examines the metal grillwork along the baseboard. "What was this for, Daddy?"

"That is a heating vent. In the old days we had a gas furnace in the basement that blew warm air through the vents."

Little Lobelia laughs. "You sure did things in a funny way back then. When is Mommy coming home?"

"She should be in on the next stagecoach. Let's hitch up the backboard and go meet her."

"Did you travel by stagecoach in the old days?"

"No. This is hard to explain, but have you ever noticed those long concrete trails behind the Wells Fargo office? Well, those were called runways and."

Sorry, please pardon the interruption folks. I'm getting choked up with nostalgia.

Rx for burst pipe: quick, cool action

By Mr. Fix

High up on the list of emergency situations that call for fast repairs is a burst water pipe. A stopped drain is a nuisance and messy but you can stop, think about it and gather necessary supplies. A broken window can be covered temporarily. A damaged storm door can be tied shut until the wind dies down, then removed and repaired at leisure.

But a water pipe that bursts has to be tended to right now. Not a little while from now.

This is no time to panic, however. Move quickly and turn off the water supply. Obvious? You might think so but people have been known to desperately wrap tape or rags or anything else they can get hold of while the water spurts out.

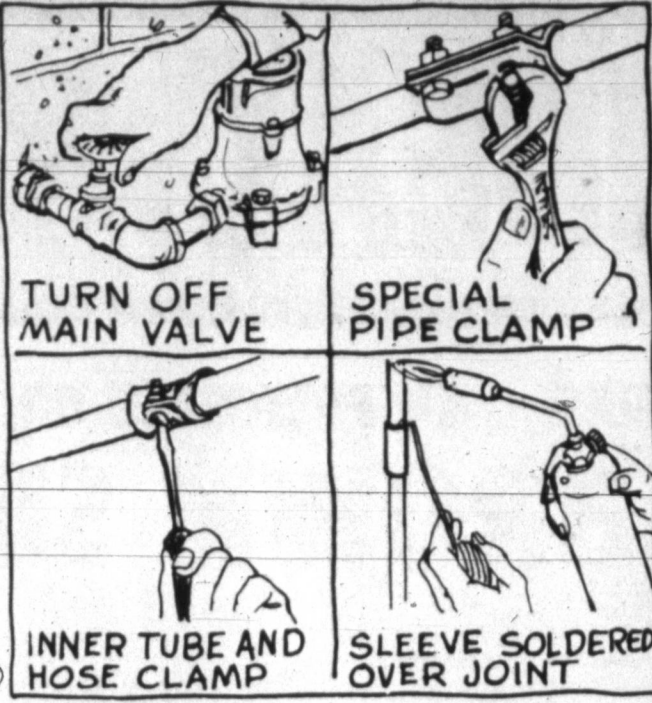

First choice is the shut off valve for the affected line. If it doesn't have one, or you can't spot it right away, turn off the main valve. This is found where the water line enters the house.

With the right equipment most emergency repairs will last indefinitely. It isn't likely that you will have the right equipment on hand and pipes don't seem to burst at convenient times.

If you have the time to get one, however, buy a special pipe clamp made just for your problem. The clamp consists of two metal halves that are lined with rubber. These fit around the pipe and are held together with nuts and bolts. Tighten these as much as you can once the clamp is in place.

A piece of rubber (a piece from an inner tube or an old hot water bottle for example) can be placed over the hole and held in place with a hose clamp. A piece of garden hose slit and wrapped around the pipe and held with a clamp is even better.

If you don't have a clamp use wire. Twist it tightly around the patch using pliers and placing a piece at each end of the patch.

Something you are likely to have around the house is tape. Use electrician's tape, plastic or friction. Wrap tightly around the leak. Try using layers wrapped in opposite directions. This is a temporary repair that will hold until you can get what you need.

Another temporary repair is using a plug. Use a wood screw or any self tapping screw. Insert it in the hole and tighten until it holds. A little pipe compound, if you have it, on the threads or even some glue will make it a better patch. A wood peg, shaved to a point, can be used the same way. Wrap with tape.

Make certain your patch is as secure as you can make it. Then turn on the water. It may leak a little but this isn't as bad as water squirting all over the place. Wrap rags around the patch to absorb the slight drip until you can remove the patch and replace it with a better one.

Joint leaks can sometimes be repaired by coating the joint with epoxy waste. Otherwise re-solder the joint. Melt the old solder with a blow torch then clean the ends and the fittings of all the old solder before re-soldering.

Threaded joints should be taken apart, coated with pipe compound and then put back together.

The best repair in a copper pipe is made by cutting the pipe at the leak. Re-join the ends with a copper sleeve that you fit over the joint. Then solder.

Senate Okays Allocation Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate passed Wednesday and sent to the White House a bill requiring President Nixon to allocate crude oil and petroleum products so that the neediest users will get what they need during the energy crisis.

It was the second major energy bill that Congress has sent to Nixon in two days. Authorization for the Alaska pipeline won final congressional approval Tuesday.

The bill requires the President to prepare and publish priorities for the allocation and distribution of fuels which are or may be in short supply and then implement the program to protect the public welfare, maintain public services and essential agricultural operations and provide equitable distribution.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Contrast Walter Morrow with the Chicago editor when they saw the first week's cases of this "Worry Clinic." Then send for the "Employer's Test" and rate your boss. See if he is a "dynamic" executive or a timid "static" type, afraid of his own judgments.

CASE Y-570: Walter Morrow was one of the topnotch Scripps-Howard editors of a generation ago.

"Mr. Morrow," said the salesman of Hopkins Syndicate, "we are launching a new column."

"It is called 'The Worry Clinic' and is written by Dr. George W. Crane, Northwestern University psychologist and psychiatrist."

"Dr. Crane tries to PREVENT divorce, delinquency and the many other human maladjustments due largely to ignorance."

"So why not test it in your Akron newspaper?"

DYNAMIC EDITORS

"Let me read a week's releases," Walter replied.

Fifteen minutes later, he pounded the desk top and exclaimed:

"This is exactly what I have been wanting for a long time."

"It brings psychology down out of the clouds to the home and school and factory and farm."

"Our Scripps-Howard papers have too long ignored the everyday personal problems of readers."

"So sign me up at once for 'The Worry Clinic.'"

The salesman did so, but made this surprising request:

"Mr. Morrow, since you recognize the reader appeal of this new column, would you care to write an endorsement of it for me to use?"

And do you know what happened?

Mr. Morrow answered with a "Certainly!"

Then he stuck a sheet of paper in his typewriter and wrote a strong testimonial, even before he had run it in his newspaper.

Later he put it into other Scripps-Howard newspapers, as at Columbus, Ohio, Denver, etc.

And his quick judgment was amply vindicated, for "The Worry Clinic" always pulls the most mail and rates FIRST among women-readers, if it is run side by side with any other advice column.

But contrast Walter Morrow with the editor of the Chicago DAILY NEWS.

When he saw the same original daily cases, he said: "This is a unique column and has a lot of human interest value."

"But Dr. Crane is too frank, for he criticizes lazy preachers for putting their parishioners to sleep."

"He also attacks professors who lazily coast on tenure. And he needles fat, stodgy wives, so I'm afraid of the kick-back from readers."

come back to me and I'll sign up, too!"

Which of these two editors illustrates the dynamic executive who knows his stuff and is unafraid?

Which was the man who couldn't trust his own judgment but had to wait till figuratively the 'seal of public approval' was placed on the merchandise before he'd buy?

William R. Hearst, Sr., was like Walter Morrow, for he knew what had human interest value and didn't wait for outside approval.

Like many other pioneer publishers who really built our great newspaper chains, he actually relished debate.

"Needle the fat, stodgy wives," he urged me, "for then they'll write redhot letters demanding that we drop your column."

But we'll publish those letters and thus stimulate a violent debate, which will swing pro and con and soon become the best read page of the Hearst newspapers."

Send for my "Tests for Employers," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents and see if your boss is a dynamic executive like Walter Morrow and Mr. Hearst!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Worry Clinic, Hopkins Bldg., Melrose, Indiana 47538. Enclose a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents in cover to pay for printing costs when you order one of his booklets.)

And do you know what happened?

Top Engagements On Tap All Around Nation; Hoople Picks Penn State, Texas, Michigan

By MAJOR AMOS B. HOOPLE
Peerless Prophet

Egad, friends, from east to west, north to south, up and down and across the breadth of this glorious land of ours, there are thrilling football matches in store for you this Saturday — um-kumph! Yes, no matter where you reside there's a pigskin treat on tap — kaff-kaff!

In the east, Penn State, rolling along toward a certain Bowl bid, will entertain Ohio University, and Yale and Princeton will tangle in an important Ivy loop encounter. The Hoople nod goes to Penn State by a 49-16 count, and to the Old Blue over Princeton, 35-8 — Boola-Boola!

Down south, Alabama and LSU, looking ahead to their showdown battle Thanksgiving Day, meet Miami (Fla.), and Mississippi State respectively. The high-scoring Crimson Tide had best pay attention to what's going on or they could be surprised by the Hurricanes. We predict an Alabama victory 37-20. LSU should have an easier time of it turning back the Bulldogs, 27-10.

In the southwest, the powerful Red Raiders of Texas Tech meet Baylor and the Texas Longhorns engage TCU. Our Texas operative sees big wins for Texas Tech 47-14, and for the Longhorns 38-7 — hak-kaff!

In the far west, UCLA and Southern California, warming up for their Pac-8 title clash next week, will come through unscathed. The rough and ready Uclans will polish off Oregon State, 44-23 — kaff-kaff — and the Trojans will outscore Washington, 35-12!

At Salt Lake City, Utah will entertain Utah State in the 72nd repeat of their annual classic. The Utes lead in this traditional affair with 46 victories, 21 defeats and 4 ties, and when the smoke has cleared on Saturday they'll have their 47th win. We make it Utah 22, Utah State 20!

The mid-west boasts of four eye-catching attractions, two in the Big Ten — Michigan

Alex Delvecchio Given Contract For 3 Seasons

DETROIT (UPI) — Alex Delvecchio has a new three-year contract to coach the Detroit Red Wings. Delvecchio took over the National Hockey League club three games ago and has coached Detroit to a trio of victories. The Red Wings were 2-9-1, which is why Ted Garvin was fired.

Sandy Koufax is the sole baseball pitcher to receive the Cy Young Award three times—1963, 1965 and 1966.

Only Peach, Fiesta Bowls Still Undecided On Opponents

By United Press International
There are 11 post-season bowls which cater to major college teams, and of those, only two—the Peach Bowl and the Fiesta Bowl—seem to be in doubt about prospective opponents.

The Peach Bowl, which will be played in Atlanta, wanted very much to pit North Carolina State against Kansas, but those two clubs have apparently opted instead for the Liberty Bowl at Memphis, Tenn., leaving Peach Bowl officials in a quandry.

A representative of the Peach Bowl is flying to Dallas this Saturday to watch Arkansas in action against Southern Methodist, and if the Razorbacks can defeat the Mustangs then they will be extended a bid. If the Razorbacks lose, however, then it's going to require some heavy thinking on the part of the Peach Bowl people to fill their bowl.

South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Maryland, Kentucky and Pittsburgh are other teams under consideration for a Peach Bowl bid.

The Fiesta Bowl committee isn't faced with as difficult a task. One berth in that bowl goes to the winner of the Western Athletic Conference, which will be either Arizona or Arizona State. Arizona currently leads the league, but the Sun Devils could tie for the championship and if they do then they would get the Fiesta Bowl bid.

Pittsburgh, which plays Army Saturday, is expected to be the visiting team in the Fiesta Bowl if it beats Army.

The other bowl pairings have been pretty much decided. Rose Bowl—The winner of the Pacific Eight against the winner of the Big Ten. Eighth-ranked UCLA and ninth-ranked Southern California are currently tied for the leadership of the Pac Eight and they will meet on Nov. 24. The Big Ten race will likewise be settled on Nov. 24 when top-ranked Ohio State meets fourth-ranked Michigan.

Cotton Bowl—The Southwest Conference champion, probably Texas, against 10th-ranked Nebraska. Third-ranked Oklahoma, which leads the Big Eight Conference, is ineligible for post-season play because of recruiting violations, and Nebraska has the second best record.

Sugar Bowl—Second-ranked Alabama against fifth-ranked Notre Dame.

Orange Bowl—Sixth-ranked Penn State against seventh-ranked Louisiana State.

Gator Bowl—Tennessee against Texas Tech.

Sun Bowl—Auburn against Missouri.

Astro-Bluebonnet—Houston against Tulane.

Tangerine—Miami (Ohio) against East Carolina.

Reggie Wanting $150,000 Pact

OAKLAND (UPI) — Reggie Jackson, the Most Valuable Player in the American League, says he wants $150,000 for playing with the Oakland Athletics next season.

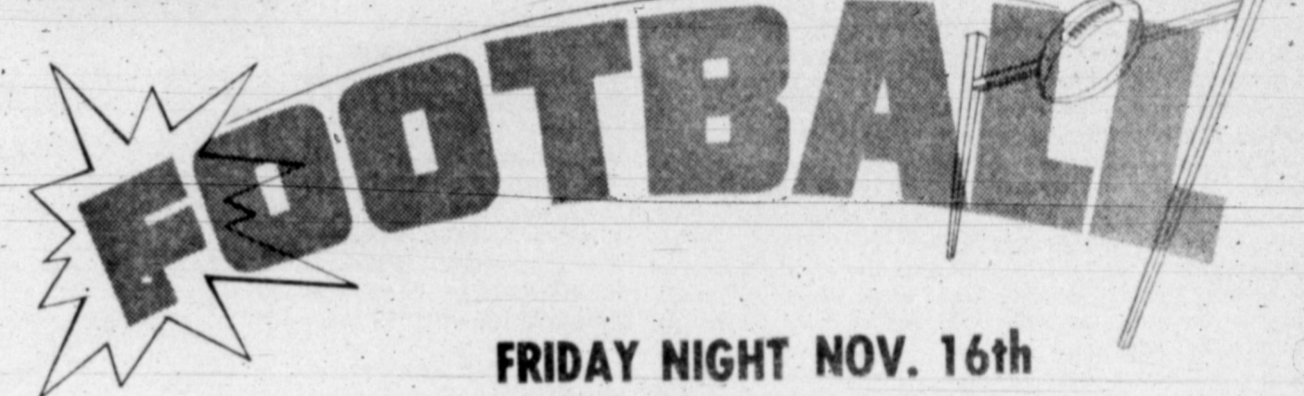

After it was announced that the slugger outfielder was a unanimous choice for MVP Tuesday, Jackson said he would ask his business partner and agent to start negotiations at $150,000 with owner Charles O. Finley.

Jackson said he expects to bargain somewhat with Finley but won't go below $125,000.

"I suppose I could ask for $200,000 if I were playing in New York," said Jackson. "But this is Oakland and we're never going to draw two million here, so I'll have to lower my sights and settle on something less."

Reggie said he expects 21 game winger Jim Hunter to ask for $100,000.
