Rookie Skylab Astronauts Rocket Into Smooth Orbit

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Three rookie astronauts rocketed smoothly into orbit today on the final flight in America's ambitious space station project—a holiday-time voyage that could last a record three months.

Skylab 3 commander Gerald P. Carr, physicist Edward G. Gibson and pilot William R. Pogue, on the nation's last scheduled space voyage until 1975, raced toward a late afternoon rendezvous with the orbiting lab.

"Good smooth ride, Houston," Carr reported as the astronauts' Apollo command ship soared into a 95-mile-high orbit at 9:11 a.m. EST. "This is really great."

The Saturn IB rocket, plagued by structural cracks and a fuel tank problem during the last weeks of checkout, worked flawlessly. Launch director Walter Kapryan admitted he was "scared to death" when the space machine went through the period of maximum aerodynamic stresses but he said all studies showed the rocket would work as well as it did.

The astronauts' Apollo, packed with extra food, film and repair gear, pulled away from the spent second stage of the Saturn 25 minutes after launch and Carr reported the maneuver went smoothly.

The pilots then settled down and made the initial navigation measurements designed to help their on-board computer direct the way to Skylab during a five-orbit chase.

The first of five maneuvers leading to the rendezvous came at 10:23 a.m. CST when the pilots fired the main engine of the Apollo for the first time for two seconds. This raised them into a higher orbit and narrowed the gap between Apollo and Skylab.

"That was one heck of a kick in the pants," Carr said.

The astronauts plan to sleep in Apollo tonight and enter the space station Saturday morning. Doctors advised them to move cautiously in the first days in space to avoid the motion sickness problems encountered by the last crew.

All three astronauts, however, appeared to be in great shape in orbit and enjoying their first exposure to prolonged weightlessness.

"I'll tell you it's neat, it's really neat," Carr said. "You've got three happy rookies up here."

"It's a great world," Gibson said in an enthusiastic burst of communications with the ground.

"We can't hardly take our eyes away from the window," Pogue said. "There's already nose smears on the windows."

The big space station has been circling earth unoccupied for seven weeks since the Skylab 2 astronauts' record 59-day journey that proved man can withstand long weightlessness. The Skylab 3 crewmen plan to remain in space at least 60 days.

Nixon Sends Message

Once the pilots were safely in space, President Nixon sent the space agency a message praising the Skylab project.

"The final manned flight of the Skylab program should bring to a close the single most productive program in the history of man's quest for knowledge about himself and his world," the President said.

Prepared to Extend

Carr and his crew were prepared to extend their flight to 84 days to increase the scientific yield from the 86-ton space base. They will close down Skylab after this mission although NASA hopes it will be visited again sometime in the next 7 to 10 years it is expected to stay in orbit.

The Skylab 3 launch was delayed six days for emergency repairs on tiny cracks discovered in the seven-year-old Saturn IB rocket. The space station was on its 2,685th orbit about 267 miles above the North Atlantic Ocean with Carr, Gibson and Pogue took off. They were America's last spacemen until a joint flight with the Russians scheduled in mid-1975.

The countdown rolled smoothly through its final hours while partly cloudy skies and temperatures in the low 70s prevailed over the seaside firing site.

After a traditional breakfast of steak and eggs, the crew climbed into their bulky white spacesuits and chief astronaut Alan B. Shepard said the pioneering space pilots were in a "light and jolly" mood.

Relaxed and declared in top physical condition, the crew will continue the scientific endeavors of the first two Skylab crews and have a special Christmas bonus to watch — Kohoutek — the most spectacular comet of the century.

FROM SUEZ CANAL AREA

Israel Steps Up Efforts To Move Armies Back

By United Press International

With the Israeli-Egyptian prisoner of war exchange in its second day Israel stepped up efforts to get back POWs held by Syria and prepared to submit to Egypt a three-part plan to pull both armies back from the Suez Canal. The plan would set up a U.N.-controlled buffer zone on each side of the canal.

It would be the second stage of a Middle East settlement leading to a peace conference in Geneva. But there were indications that the Arab world was in disarray and that both a proposed Arab summit conference and the Geneva peace conference might be postponed before the early December date mentioned earlier.

since the 1970 war of attrition along the canal.

The evacuation of 400 wounded civilians from the port city of Suez started under the ceasefire agreement signed on Sunday by Israeli and Egyptian generals. Israel had blockaded the city for three weeks before relinquishing checkpoints on the Cairo-Suez road to U.N. troops Thursday.

Israeli government sources told UPI Correspondent Joseph W. Grigg that the new Israeli offer is expected to be discussed next week by Israeli Maj. Gen. Aharon Yariv and Egyptian Maj. Gen. Mohammed Gemassy at Kilometer 101 on the Cairo-Suez road. It was reported to have three major parts.

—Both sides would withdraw to their positions as of Oct. 5, the day before the war broke out. That meant the Egyptian 2nd and 3rd Armies would pull back to the Egyptian side of the canal and the Israelis would give up the 625 square miles of Egypt they now hold.

—A 10 kilometer (six mile) strip would be set up on each side of the canal and be administered by the U.N. peace-keeping troops.

—The Egyptian 3rd Army would be permitted to cross back into Egypt unmolested but would not be allowed to take along its heavy armaments.

Whether Egyptian President Anwar Sadat would agree to the proposals was problematical. He rejected them earlier when Mrs. Meir first mentioned them in a speech to the Knesset (parliament) last week.

Students' Model Legislature II To Get Underway Saturday Morning

Model Legislature II gets underway tomorrow morning at Pampa High School.

"Students may begin picking up information packets and getting their committee assignments at 8 a.m.," Kiwanian John W. Warner, general chairman, said. "Those who have not registered may do so then."

The Model Legislature will meet in joint session at 8:45 a.m. to hear addresses from State Rep. Bryan Poff of Amarillo, serving as President of the Senate, State Rep. Phil Cates of Pampa, in his role as Speaker of the House, and PHS student body President Wayne Bruce, who will be governor.

At 9:30 a.m. the students will meet in joint legislative committees to hear witnesses and draft proposed legislation. During the lunch hour Jaycee — Ettes will re-type the bills adding all amendments and changes so that students will have copies of the final drafts before them during the afternoon session.

The House will meet in the auditorium and the Senate in the cafeteria for floor debates of the bills beginning at 1:15 p.m. Model Legislature II will close with another joint session of the delegates at 4:45 p.m. for evaluation.

"We would appreciate all witnesses coming about 9 a.m. so that we can go over general procedures and answer any questions," Kiwanians Jerry G. Davis and Paul Simmons, witness chairmen, said. More than 20 witnesses are scheduled to testify to the legislative committees concerning ten proposed bills.

Larry Hollis and Clyde Carruth will testify regarding a bill to require all meetings of governmental bodies be open to the public. Hollis, Elizabeth Hurley and George Wallace will discuss whether or not newsmen should be able to keep confidential their sources of information.

Mrs. Treacia Saltzman and Cletus Mitchell will have opposing viewpoints on whether retailers should be required to date containers of milk, eggs, and meat when these items are first offered for retail sale.

"Bryan Poff and I could practically write a book about the Texas Constitution Commission and the bill regulating campaign expenditures and contributions in political elections," Rep. Cates said. They will testify about these subjects. Richard Peet and Jack Skelly will also testify about appropriations for the Texas Constitution Commission.

Walter Davis and Dr. James Malone will provide different points of view on whether or not a teacher should have a work free lunch period. J.J. Ryzman, John English and Shirley Mums will talk about legislation on making privileged information transmitted by students to school counselors.

Rex McAnelly and Dr. Kenneth Roysse will present opposing sides on whether cattle owners should have 30 days to have their cattle dipped for scabies when being shipped into a quarantined area.

Bob Rittenhouse from Borger will present the union's point of view as to whether "agency shops" should be allowed in Texas. D.W. Bond will support the position that a worker should not be required to belong or pay dues to a labor union as a condition of employment.

Red Weatherly and Mrs. Bob Tinney will present information regarding whether nursing homes should be required to have one trained nurse-aid for every eight patients.

Serving as student chairmen of the legislative committees are Melodie Miller, Glen Blacnet, Jimmy Staus, Sandy Sims, Suzanne Bond, Don Morrison, E.B. Ellis, Billy Parson, Stacy Boddy, Neta Eads and David Weaver.

Student-vice-chairmen will be Tonya Lewis, Noel Hansen, Phil Schaub, Paula Richmond, Phil Gage, Kayle Waterbury, Janet Smith, Brenda Lee, Dexter McKay and Peggy Morris.

Key Club members serving as sergeants-at-arms are Patrick O'Conner, Billy Hagerman, Richard Lane, Terry Neslage, Vincent DiCosimo, Don Campbell, David Skoog, Tommy Washington, Clifford Stephens, Mark Warren and David Griffin.

Members of the Tru-Teen Service Club will act as secretaries to the legislative committees. They are Sherilyn Hedrick, Susan Morrison, Cheryl Williamson, Sherry Miller, Jacque Kilcrease, Brenda Winters and Debbie Lamer.

Jaycees assisting as parliamentarians will be Philip Kimbley, Richard Soh, Edd Rowntree, Thomas Auwen, Paul Peoples, Benny Horton, Denny McDougall, Calvin Lacy, Richard Morris and Milton Saltzman.

Model Legislature II is a combined project of the Pampa Kiwanis Club, Key Club, Tru-Teen Club, Jaycees, Jaycee — Ettes, PHS Student Council and PHS Government Department.

President Tells Everyone He's Ready For Fighting

WASHINGTON (UPI) — From breakfast through dinner, President Nixon made clear to all who would listen that he won't resign; and he is about to "come out fighting" on Watergate.

Rep. Paul N. McCloskey, R-Calif., no admirer of the President, said that was the message the Nixon conveyed at breakfast with 78 GOP congressmen Thursday. Rep. Richardson Preyer, D-N.C., said it was the "impression" Nixon gave to 40 Democratic congressmen in a three-hour White House dinner.

In between were 4,000 members of the National Association of Realtors, who cheered when Nixon told them he had not violated any "trust" and that "I was elected to do a job (and) I'm not going to walk away until I get that job done."

He was meeting with another group of House Republicans today and planned a series of appearances in Florida, Georgia and Tennessee in the next few days.

As the President continued his week-long series of private meetings with legislators on Watergate, the House of Representatives Thursday voted 367 to 51 to give its Judiciary Committee $1 million, above its usual budget, to continue its study of possible impeachment of the President.

There Was Some Carping

There was some carping about the meetings with legislators. Sen. Charles M.C. Mathias, R-Md., called the one he attended "a sort of get-acquainted meeting... after we've been doing business for five years."

"I suppose," Mathias said, "historically it ranks with the meeting of King John and the barons of Runnymede when they were trying to tell him how to reform the government." That meeting led to the signing of the Magna Carta in 1215, which put the king under the law.

Preyer said Nixon gave the impression "he was going to come out fighting." But he added, "I was a little disappointed in that I hoped there would have been some recognition of things gone wrong."

The substantive lines of the President's fight have not yet emerged. He told the realtors "overzealous people" in his 1972 campaign made "mistakes I would not have approved of, mistakes I would not have tolerated, but mistakes for which I must accept responsibility." But he gave no information not already made public.

Will Answer Questions

On Saturday at an Associated Press managing editors convention at Disney World in Orlando, Fla., Nixon will submit to questions before television cameras. He'll speak at Mercer University in Macon Sunday and meets privately with Republican governors in Memphis Tuesday.

Nixon Signs Pipeline Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon today signed the Alaska oil pipeline bill into law, saying environmental considerations would have to take second place to short term efforts to solve the nation's energy crisis.

"In the long run, we can have both," Nixon said after signing the bill in a ceremony in the Oval Office.

The ceremony was attended by 17 members of Congress, including all those who served on a House-Senate conference committee that worked out differences between the House and Senate bills.

The measure grants a right-of-way for the 789-mile pipeline to carry oil from the frozen north slope of Alaska to the ice-free Port of Valdez for reshipment to West Coast refineries.

Nixon said environmentalists and the Environmental Protection Agency would "have to cooperate" in efforts to deal with the immediate energy crisis.

The goal is for the nation to achieve national self-sufficiency by 1980, he said.

Nixon said he was signing the bill because of the urgent need for the Alaska oil despite what he termed "a couple of clinkers" added to the bill by the Senate. He had announced the day before that he would sign the bill.

The administration objected to an unrelated amendment to the bill, giving the Federal Trade Commission stronger powers to protect consumers against unfair business practices, and provisions requiring appointments of heads of the Office of Energy Policy and Office of Mining Health and Safety be subject to Senate confirmation.

Local Businesses Urging Conservation Of Energy

By CLAY LIVELY

Unlike some parts of the nation, and even some places in the state, the energy situation in Pampa for the upcoming winter is not expected to reach the "crisis" stage.

Despite that, spokesmen for the two major utility companies in Pampa urged city residents to conserve both natural gas and electricity by getting along with less heat and without unnecessary lighting.

Several Pampa merchants and private citizens also said they have taken steps to comply with President Nixon's request to conserve energy.

James McCoy, manager of Pioneer Natural Gas Co. in Pampa, said PNG does not anticipate any problem this year and has an adequate supply of gas for the area it serves.

McCoy said Pioneer Natural Gas actually has an increased supply of gas over last year at this time.

He said his recommendation for citizens is to comply with Nixon's request to cut thermostats to 68 degrees and that although there is no shortage of natural gas here.

"We need to be conservative with what we have."

A spokesman for Southwestern Public Service Co. here said the company's recommendation to people it serves is to "use whatever you need but don't waste electricity."

Ken Plotner, manager of Dunlap's said the thermostat in the store has been cut back to 68 degrees during operating hours and to 60 at night.

Unnecessary lighting in storage areas in the store has also been eliminated, he said. A letter urging employees to use car pooling when feasible has also been put out, Plotner said.

Ken Shearer, manager of the C.R. Anthony store in Coronado Center, said the thermostat in the store has been set at 68 degrees and he plans to cut electrical consumption in the store by 20 per cent.

Shearer also said that, until two weeks before Christmas, both Pampa stores would be open until 8 p.m. this holiday season instead of 9 o'clock as in year's past. At that time, he said, the stores will resume the later closing time.

In another matter concerning the energy crisis, State Representative Phil Cates of Pampa has announced he will be attending an energy crisis meeting in Houston Tuesday.

The meeting will include a briefing by the U.S. Department of the Interior on the energy situation.

The meeting will be conducted at the University of Houston.

Subcommittee Okays Funds For Research

The U.S. House Livestock Grains Subcommittee has approved a bill to assist the state in conducting animal health research by providing federal funds to veterinary medicine schools and state agricultural experiment stations. Congressman Bob Price of Pampa reported today.

"The bill was recommended to the full House Agriculture Committee for passage. Price is both a co-sponsor of the bill and a member of the subcommittee."

"Animal health research efforts can be greatly expanded under this bill," Price said, "and, there is an urgent need for increased animal health research. If we are able to give a high priority to meat production, we must be able to protect livestock against disease."

"This is particularly important in Northwest Texas, where a significant share of the nation's beef supply is produced."

In Texas, some 4.8 million head of cattle will have been fed during 1973, and about 3.3 million of those are in the Texas Panhandle. In the previous November - through January period, more than 147,000 head of cattle died in Texas for a combined loss of more than $30 million.

"The death rate in feedlots last summer was more than four per cent, about double the previous year, a phenomenon veterinarians do not seem to be able to understand or correct," Price said.

Among the schools and research centers the bill would assist are Texas A&M University research center in Bushland and Lubbock, the Texas Tech University research center in Amarillo, and the West Texas State University veterinary medicine school at Canyon.

Scouts To Get New Atomic Energy Patches

AMARILLO — The coveted AEMB Seminar 1973 patches and certificates will be presented tomorrow to some 585 Boy and Girl Scouts of the Texas Panhandle during a Court of Honor ceremony. The award ceremony will be conducted at 7:30 p.m. at the Amarillo High School in Amarillo.

Receiving awards will be scouts from Pampa and 21 other Texas cities who have successfully completed the comprehensive seminar program. Also receiving awards will be 100 scouters, counselors, scientists, engineers and technicians who volunteered their time and effort toward the success of this program.

The Yae Tae Hae Chapter of the Order of the Arrow, Boy Scouts of America will conduct the opening and closing ceremonies. Feature attraction of the Court of Honor will be a presentation of the slides and movies which were taken during the four weekly sessions of the seminar and during the field trip to Albuquerque and Los Alamos, N.M.

The 1973 Atomic Energy Merit Badge Seminar has been sponsored by the United States Atomic Energy Commission and was accomplished through the combined efforts of the Amarillo Area Office of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, Mason & Hanger Silas Mason Co., Inc. and Sandia Laboratories.

Seminar sessions included atomic history, detection of radiation, protection from atomic exposure, nuclear reactors, the peaceful uses of atomic energy, and careers in nuclear energy.

As part of their lab work, the scouts actually built cloud chambers, electroscopes, geiger counters, model reactors, and other test apparatus. The field trip included a visit to the Field Command Museum at Kirtland Air Force Base in Albuquerque.

Weatherfords To Perform At Fellowship

The famous Weatherford Quartet is scheduled to sing at the Fellowship Baptist Church, corner of Francis and Warren Sts., Monday, Nov. 19 at 7:30 p.m.

Earl, his wife, Fern, Ken Williams and Fulton Nach, with Heiskell Cooley accompanying at the piano, better known as "The Singing Weatherfords," travel coast-to-coast presenting their music in song.

Rev. Earl Maddux, pastor, states that since other church activities will be at a minimum, a large attendance is expected. For an evening of good Gospel singing, an invitation is extended to the public at the Fellowship Baptist Church.

Bill Would Limit 'House' Spendings

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Tex., introduced a bill Thursday he said would limit federal expenditures to only one of the president's private homes, and only those expenditures specifically requested by the Secret Service or the General Services Administration.

Brooks' government operations subcommittee said recently more than $10 million had been spent on Nixon's home at San Clemente, Calif., and key Biscayne, Fla., and at his daughter Julie Nixon Eisenhower's home in Bethesda, Md. The White House said most of the expenditures were for security reasons.

Jury Finds Cain Guilty Of Murder

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The jury that found former Dallas patrolman Darrell L. Cain guilty of murdering a 12-year-old boy he was interrogating in a police car must decide today if the shooting was an accident or if Cain meant to kill the boy.

The Texas Penal Code, written in 1856, allows a judge to instruct a jury that it can return a murder verdict if it finds the defendant committed an accident during an unlawful act. If this is what the jury believes, Cain must be sentenced to a minimum of two years in prison.

If the jury believes Cain committed intentional murder with malice, the sentence would be two years to life, without malice, the sentence is between two and five years in prison. The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals ruled on July 10 juries determine malice during the punishment phase of its deliberations.

Defense attorney Phil Burleson, who never contested Cain killed Santos Rodriguez but who tried to convince the jury it was an accident, said he would call 12 character witnesses to testify before the jury begins deliberations on a punishment.

Mobeetie Boy Gets Top Prize In 'Cappy Dick'

Ronald Dyson, 13, Rt. 1, Mobeetie, is the winner of a national grand prize in Cappy Dick's football puzzle contest published on the Cappy Dick page of the Pampa News comic section Sunday, Nov. 4.

Board Slates Drug Meeting

An open meeting of the Pampa Independent School System has been scheduled for 9 a.m. Monday at Carver Center.

The meeting has been called for the purpose of discussing drug-related problems which affect students in the district. Superintendent James F. Malone said.

An executive session to discuss personnel will be conducted at 8:30 a.m. Monday preceding the open meeting.

Defeated GOP Candidate 'Never Stopped Running'

By E. MICHAEL MYERS
HOUSTON (UPI) — Henry C. Grover, the boyish maverick of the Texas Republican Party, almost captured the governor's chair in a near upset of Dolph Briscoe in 1972. Election night passed a year ago but Grover's campaign never ended.

"I've never stopped running," Grover said. "I work hard, I never stop."

Rural Texas rejected Grover in favor of rancher and millionaire Briscoe. Grover is out to undermine this strength and build his formidable support in

Police Studying Vandalism At Travis School

Pampa police are investigating extensive vandalism at the Travis Elementary School in Northwest Pampa. The break-in occurred Wednesday night or early yesterday.

Entry into the school, by two people, police believe, was apparently made through a broken out window in the school speech room on the south side of the east wing.

After entry was made, the vandals took fire extinguishers from walls in the school and sprayed them in the halls and several classrooms.

Five classrooms, the principal's office and the cafeteria were particularly hard hit.

In the classrooms, desks and files were ransacked. A $1 bill was missing from one teacher's desk.

Milk and trays were thrown about the cafeteria. An obscenity was written on the mirror in one restroom in the school.

Principal Cameron Marsh's desk was ransacked in his office but an attempt to break into his files failed.

Officers are also investigating an attempted burglary of a local lounge.

An officer on patrol early this morning saw two iron bars pried loose from a window in the building, located on W. Alcock St.

The screen on the window had been torn away and the window glass broken in the attempt to gain entry.

The owner of the business was called to the location but found nothing missing, reports indicated.

the vote-rich cities. He is on the road three and four days a week, speaking to civic groups at colleges, granting hundreds of interviews and meeting precinct leaders.

"I've learned a lot and made a lot of contacts I did not have," he said. "I am better organized."

On the walls of Grover's large campaign office are several large maps with yellow and red pins that mark where the 46-year-old candidate ran well and poorly in 1972.

Another map shows where he has spoken in the last year and it emphasizes rural Texas. It is a full campaign to become the first GOP governor in Texas since Reconstruction.

The conservative Grover served three house terms as a Democrat and twice was elected to the Senate as a converted Republican. He fought the party elders for the nomination in 1972 and they are still his foes.

"The GOP hierarchy did not want to see me elected, they did not help me at all," he said. "All their attention is to the national government."

"The hierarchy is interested in control of the party for patronage. They want to keep the party a small country club set that they can control for patronage."

"They have always hand-picked the candidate for governor. I challenged them and messed up their playhouse. They know if I am elected I'll be head of the party. They know they're through."

Grover, a former high school and college history teacher who is in real estate, trailed Briscoe by 99,507 votes. He said his biggest handicap was money —

"$50,000 more and I would have won" — and that people just believed he couldn't win.

"The GOP leadership said Grover could not win. If they said it now it would fall on deaf ears."

And because he was an outsider Grover believes the Watergate scandals won't affect him.

"In light of recent events I am glad the GOP snubbed me. I have no problem shaking off the scandals of the Nixon administration."

"I don't try to defend the administration. He had a great opportunity and blew it."

Celane Hikes Contribution To PUF Campaign

With 94 per cent of its employees contributing, Celanese Chemical Co. has reported a total gift of $6,215 to the Pampa United Fund, David Gantz, drive chairman, said today.

Celane had set as its 1973 goal a 6 to 10 per cent increase over last year's contributions. This goal was successfully met with a 9 per cent plantwide increase over the $5,700 brought in during the 1972 PUF campaign.

In a "friendly competition" between Celane's five departments for the highest average contribution for eligible employees, the technical department took first place honors. Campaign co-ordinators for this department were Ted Knox, Ed Maglaughlin and David Clark.

The successful Celanese campaign began Nov. 5 and ended Nov. 11.

FAMINE ... a sketch by Pakistani artist Zainul Abedin

This hungry world Our dwindling stockpiles of care

"Morally it makes no difference whether a man is killed in war or is condemned to starve to death by the indifference of others."
—West German Chancellor Willy Brandt

By Ralph Novak
(Fourth in a series)

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The United States has become, by default and through a mixture of motives both sublime and cynical, the international soup kitchen for hungry people all over the world.

But now, with food shortages and rising prices here making the well-fed man's burden seem a little less vital, the traditional food distribution organizations such as CARE and Catholic Relief Services are finding themselves with a few million too many mouths to feed.

Rendering themselves useless is, of course, the goal of such organizations. Ideally, they are fulfilling a caretaker role, helping people in the developing countries to survive while their own agricultural systems grow to self-sufficiency.

"That's not going to happen next year or the year after," says CARE executive director Frank Goffio. "It is a very long row to hoe."

Which is why CARE (Cooperative for American Relief Everywhere) and the other aid operations were distressed this summer when the Department of Agriculture announced severe cutbacks in the amount of food that would be available for distribution.

Most of the free food given out by American organizations has come from surplus products supplied by Public Law 480, which was passed in 1954. The law enabled the United States to dispose of surplus farm products that it would otherwise have had to pay to store. It gave work to the American shippers who transported it overseas, it developed export markets, it was a grand propaganda gesture (sacks of grain, for example, were emblazoned with red, white and blue drawings of the U.S. "helping hand") and it fed hungry people.

"It is a humanitarian law and one we can be proud of as a people," Goffio says. "Not everyone is so certain of this. Tibor Mende, a former United Nations official and currently a professor at the Sorbonne in Paris, says in his recent book, "From Aid to Recolonization: Lessons of a Failure": "The worth of human lives saved in a famine cannot, of course, be estimated in monetary terms. Surplus-food distributions have saved and continue to save people from starvation just as, very probably, they have also helped to discourage higher production or overdue agrarian reforms. Nevertheless, the giving away of unsalable surpluses does not constitute a sacrifice to the donor country."

The immediate problem is that the surpluses aren't as big as they were. Dried milk, for example, long a staple of the surplus program, is no longer available. Wheat supplies have dwindled. And Americans themselves are encountering shortages of some products, so that the generosity which was easy for an America contentedly munching its endless supply of Twinkies and Fritos and rippled potato chips now is a little more painful.

Goffio adds that CARE's food program which aids more than 30 million people, mostly children, has been cut by 40 per cent. "And that comes after the 1972 CARE total distribution of about 680,000 pounds of food showed a reduction from 750,000 pounds in 1971."

"We can find the commodities to do the job," Goffio insists. "The question is keeping the attitude that we want to maintain the programs."

There has been evidence this year that the well-nourished world in general and the United States in particular will have the capacity to feed the hungry. The famine that hit six countries of sub-Saharan Africa after a five-year drought elicited more than $150 million in aid from around the world, with a third of that coming from U.S. private and government sources.

Still, there are those like economist Eliot Janeway who describe food as "the ultimate weapon" and criticize food distribution programs as "cutting the muscle that foreigners respect."

"There is no way for other countries to avoid disintegration or inflation except by availing themselves of America's agricultural production," said Janeway recently.

In addition to such political opposition, the food aid organizations are faced with the more concrete problem of soaring world population, particularly in the poorest and hungriest nations. Pending some revolution in agronomy or land-use patterns, most aid officials argue that creation of a global food bank is the world's best weapon against starvation.

But it is still a politically questionable proposal, as ODC senior fellow Lester R. Brown wrote recently in the Wall Street Journal.

"Continued American callousness in the food area will inevitably have repercussions in our relations with the rest of the world in other domains. With large-scale investments abroad and a growing need for outside raw materials, the United States would be wise to build an atmosphere of international cooperation rather than conflict and competition in an area like food, where we hold the key to a more stable and equitable world system. Playing politics with food is risky indeed."

The Woman's View

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — Huntington Hartford is a multifaceted man. He is an industrialist, real estate developer, collector and patron of the arts, publisher, restaurateur, celebrated as the A&P heir, researcher, inventor, handwriting analyst and author.

It is the last two roles that put Hartford in the limelight anew ... as though he ever really moved out of it.

Hartford has written a book on how dotting your "i's" crossing your "t's" and shaping your "g's" are among the traits that spell out your personality. The book is "You Are What You Write" (Macmillan).

In it he gives samples and analyses of the famous from Joan Baez ("stubborn, opinionated, secretive") to Zsa Zsa ("a supreme example of the worldly and the practical...")

One of the most interesting sections deals with samples of handwriting of several U.S. presidents including Richard M. Nixon.

What It Means
In an interview, Hartford said that the Nixon manner of spacing letters indicated "a logical, well-organized mind, but I sensed a little immaturity, a little lack of perfect emotional stability."

He included samples of the Nixon penmanship from another graphologist's book, he said, and has not seen any samples during the current crisis of the presidency. Hartford said, however, that the basic handwriting symbols do not change although there are variations with "daily moods."

Hartford places great stress on the way any writer shapes the "g." He feels that the "g" written like the figure 8 has been underestimated by many graphologists. "If there were any one sign by which we might intellectually separate the sheep from the goats in Western handwriting, it would have to be the figure 8 'g'."

"It is amusing to note," he said, "which of our presidents have made the figure 8 like a 'g' and which have not. George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Abraham Lincoln, Woodrow Wilson, FDR, Ike, JFK and Johnson did."

Truman and Nixon did not shape the "g" into the figure 8, he said, but added that he had "rarely seen so aggressive a handwriting as that of the humble gentleman ... Truman ... or as perfectly balanced writing as Nixon's."

Hartford, 62, got into handwriting study when he was in his 20s and after reading some of the works of Louise Rice, the founder of the American Graphological Society.

In the 1950s, he established the Handwriting Institute, Inc., in New York, because "I felt a great deal more research was needed than what one individual like me could do."

His interest in handwriting is just one of many of the man who says he no longer is that "A&P heir—I own very little stock except what's in trust for my three children."

Hartford, grandson of the founder of the giant grocery chain, has been married three times and is the father of two grown children and a five-year-old.

As an arts patron and collector, he established the Gallery of Modern Art (now the New York Cultural Center, in association with Fairleigh Dickinson University), the Huntington Hartford Theater in California, Show magazine and its follow-up, a restaurant-cub called Show Club.

S.S. Benefits Increase Nears Final Passage

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A two-step, 11 per cent Social Security benefits increase for 29 million Americans today appeared almost certain of passage before Congress adjourns for the year.

The House began debate on its version of the increase Wednesday, and passage was considered a foregone conclusion, with Democrats and most Republicans supporting the bill.

The Senate Finance Committee Wednesday approved legislation almost identical to the House bill, except that the initial increase would come sooner.

Both bills call for an 11 per cent increase. The House bill would give an initial 7 per cent increase in April checks and the remaining 4 per cent in July checks. The Senate Finance Committee bill would give the initial 7 per cent immediately on enactment of the bill.

Both bills also call for increasing to $13,200 the salary base on which Social Security taxes are calculated. This would have the effect of raising taxes on higher income groups, those making more than the 1973 base of $10,800.

The tax rate of 5.85 per cent of income would remain the same. The benefit increases would take the place of the automatic cost-of-living increases scheduled for next July and January, 1975.

The increases would go to all 29 million Social Security recipients—retired or disabled workers, or their widows and dependents.

In addition, both the House and Senate bills would increase payments for about 3 million aged, blind and disabled adults on welfare under the supplemental security income (SSI) programs.

SSI payments would rise to $140 a month for individuals and $210 a month for couples, starting in January. This is $10 a month higher for individuals and $15 higher for couples than present law. An additional $6 per individual and $9 per couple increase would take effect in July, 1974.

Dear Abby

Kissing cousins carry relationship too far

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow with my hands full. Ralph, my 28-year-old son, recently divorced a no-good wife, so now he and their 4-year-old child are living with me. [His wife ran off with another man, but that's another letter.]

Now Ralph is mixed up with Rosetta, his 25-year-old first cousin who has had several affairs before. [I was told this by Rosetta's mother, who is my sister.] Rosetta's husband served papers on her last month, took their two children, and put her out. He charged her with prostitution, alcoholism, and drug addiction. Rosetta is now living with her mother right in my neighborhood, which makes it worse.

Abby, I can't make my son see that there is anything wrong with Rosetta. He says he loves her and wants to marry her. It is killing me. Help me.

TRUBLED OUT WEST

DEAR TRUBLED: Love is blind. It's also deaf and dumb in most cases. If you put down Rosetta, your son will only become more determined to defend her. Some people have to learn the hard way, so quit fighting a situation that YOU can't change.

If Ralph is ever going to see the light, he'll have to discover it himself. Besides, not all states allow first-cousin marriages. Also, as bad as Rosetta's record is, she could reform.

DEAR ABBY: I play cards with a woman who is always bragging about her children. Several times lately she has said that her 21-year-old daughter, who is a junior at the University of Iowa, is the only virgin in her sorority. I think this is a terrible reflection on the rest of the girls in the sorority.

I am just dying to put this woman in her place. If she says it again, what should I say?

ANOTHER MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Ask her how she can be sure.

DEAR ABBY: I hope you won't think I am some kind of nut, but here I go.

Last week I called a friend on the phone who told me she was sick in bed with a miserable cold. She said it started with a sore throat, which developed into a head cold, and she went into all the details, telling me how miserable she felt.

I know this will sound ridiculous, but I no sooner hung up the receiver when my throat started to ache. The next thing I knew, my nose started to run, and the next morning I was down with one of the worst colds I had ever had. I was feeling perfectly fine until I spoke to this friend of mine.

I am better now, but it took five days of medication and plenty of rest to get over it. Is it possible that I got this cold thru the power of suggestion? I've heard of men actually having labor pains when their wives were in labor, and wonder if my cold could have come about thru sympathy to my friend?

PANAMA CITY, FLA.

DEAR PAN: It's possible. The power of suggestion can be mighty powerful.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "WONDERING IN ATLANTA": It's only a wild guess, but it's the rare 52-year-old man who leaves a marriage—even a dull one—to "try the fun of bachelorhood." A man that age who wants a divorce usually has someone waiting in the wings.

STITCHIN' TIME
 Holiday special—a quicky skirt

By Joanne Schreiber

New clothes are an important part of a little girl's Christmas—especially when they are lovingly made to brighten the downhill slide of winter.

Smart moms are looking now for easy and versatile patterns, to stitch up in a morning, wrap and hide before the after-school crush. Good-and-easy fabric is a must. No time now for picky detailing!

Here's the perfect outfit: the skirt takes less than a yard of 54-inch fabric and is made in a pull-on style with elasticized waistband and button trim—no zippers, no buttonholes.

Don't be misled by the tricky-looking bias plaid. This knitted fabric of Creslan acrylic fiber is bias-printed for the slick bias look without bias bother. It's really cut on the straight grain. Of course, that sew-easy knit requires no seam finishing. Just cut and stitch: Use a zigzag stitch if you have a zigzag machine. For a straight stitch with stretch just pull the knit slightly as you sew.

The long sleeved pullover blouse is included in the pattern, along with a scoop-neck peasant style blouse. Naturally, it's made of a color-coordinated Creslan acrylic fiber. And you can stretch her wardrobe even further by making a mix-match foursome with a plaid top and plain skirt.

This pattern is available exclusively to readers of this newspaper. To order ask for Sue Burnett pattern No. 8281.

An easy outfit to stitch for Christmas is a pullover skirt and top with no seam finishing, no zippers, no buttonholes. The fabric is a bias-printed Creslan acrylic knit.

What do you do with the South hand after your partner opens one diamond? You bid two diamonds just as anyone. Yet, when he held this hand in an international Jeopardy match, George Raape elected to respond one heart.

This time the psychic response really worked. West bid two clubs. George's unsuspecting partner raised to two hearts. East passed and George went to three diamonds. North liked his hand and bid three spades whereupon George bid a hopeful three notrump.

He worried a while but everyone passed and West was kind enough to open his fourth-best club. It took George approximately three seconds to win that trick and run off six diamonds and two spades for his impossible contract.

Let's see what might have happened if George had bid two diamonds. West would probably have doubled; East would have bid hearts and reached a heart game. He probably would have made it, but down one would not be too bad when compared with George's notrump game. Or maybe North would have gone to five diamonds with no way to bring it home.

West might have made a better lead against three notrump, but that's all conjecture. What we know is that this psychic worked.

UPSILON CHAPTER

"It's the Real Thing" was the theme which greeted Upsilon Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi members and their husbands recently as they entered the patio of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Wyatt. A gigantic cola clock ticked away as everyone gathered for a night of friendship and good-byes to two members and their husbands, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Clark and Mr. and Mrs. Larry Daniels.

Each person was given a cola carton which contained pretzels, straws, and large red and white cola cups and napkins.

A variety of sandwiches, chips and dips were consumed under the lights of six flaming torches. Large bottles of cola twirled around on a silver tray while wooden coke crates and a cola-ice chest completed the decorations.

Friendship became the "Real Thing" as Mrs. Clark and Mrs. Daniels were presented with the traditional charm of remembrance from their real friends in Upsilon.

Members and husbands attending were: Messrs. and Mmes. Mike Clark, Larry Daniels, Dwight Chase, Danny Hoggatt, Calvin McConnell, Jewell Snider, Danny Strawn, Harold Taylor, L.W. Wendling, Dennis Wyatt and Cindy Bonner.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, NOV. 17

Your birthday today: You learn to move immediately to make good use of any opportunity which comes your way this year. Relationships at all levels thrive erratically, with many episodes of adventurous quality. Today's natives tend to seek unusual results, with little concern for possible hazards.

Aries [March 21 - April 19]: A fine day for a complete review of home and family living, with special emphasis on ongoing ventures and problems.

Taurus [April 20 - May 20]: You have the interesting opportunity of testing and judging what is real and what is faked. Projects require attention of budgets so as to stay practical.

Gemini [May 21 - June 20]: Resolve what should be done and who is to do it. Perhaps your own view is a bit narrow; adjust to go along with the team.

Cancer [June 21 - July 21]: Newly acquired friends may not understand your actual capabilities and limitations, thus may propose actions which you cannot readily achieve without difficulty.

Leo [July 22 - Aug. 22]: The main temptation today is related to money and its immediate uses or misuses. Speculation provokes your worst errors of judgment.

Virgo [Aug. 23 - Sept. 22]: Your opinions are not the final evaluation others seek, nor are theirs, for that matter—an unknown factor is likely involved.

Libra [Sept. 23 - Oct. 22]: A moment in prayer promises the guidance you will need. Either accept an invitation or give a bit of a party to celebrate news.

Scorpio [Oct. 23 - Nov. 21]: Once you've worked off the usual morning and midday routines, remarkable progress on your own projects is a strong possibility.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22 - Dec. 21]: Get something done about long-term plans today. Extracurricular activity contributes to a healthier general situation.

Capricorn [Dec. 22 - Jan. 19]: Pay closer attention to the needs and comfort of others, and to the quality and appearance of whatever you offer them.

Aquarius [Jan. 20 - Feb. 18]: Money spent alleviating minor problems or inconveniences of home arrangements is well spent. Friends have no proper place in your business dealings.

Pisces [Feb. 19 - March 20]: Emotional factors color all situations. Healthy self-interest and cooperation continue between those of similar needs.

Investment Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Despite the market's recent crisis decline, such dramatic downturns do not alter the market's basic trend, according to Bache & Co. Inc. "Indeed, strong evidence exists that such declines tend to strengthen it simply because they are very emotional and as a consequence shake out many weak holders," the firm continues. Maintaining the present siege will lengthen the market's long-term upswing, it counsels the investor not to panic but to "view reactions as exemplary buying opportunities."

The American economy is the major victim of the energy crisis with curtailments and mandatory shutdowns of offices and factories likely to become widespread, says The Gallagher Presidents' Report Inc. In a recent telegram to the nation's 500 top corporations, Secretary of Commerce Frederick Dent urged immediate adoption of "strongest energy conservation measures possible within (these) companies," the letter continues. It also says Dent warned the corporations that failure to act immediately "will aggravate the extent of shutdown in months ahead, with serious economic consequences for companies, employees and country."

While a controversy rages over whether the Federal Reserve Board has eased its monetary stance, Fitch Investors Service says since mid-September "the Fed has not deviated significantly from its firm credit policy." The firm says the supply of available funds has not changed, but the demand for funds apparently has tapered off "causing money rates to gallop downhill compared to the decline in long-term rates." If the two recent prime rate reductions to the 9.50 per cent level had not occurred, the firm adds, new issue bond offerings would have taken an even harder beating from a delayed reaction to the Middle East and the oil crises.

"It is bad enough that the energy crisis is unprecedented and consequently unassessable, but investor psychology is not being helped by a melange of conflicting statements by government officials," says E. F. Hutton & Co. Inc. In view of the market's oversold condition, the technical rebound Tuesday that wiped out some of the deeper losses incurred in recent sessions could continue but its life depends on news of the energy crisis, the firm adds. With presidential advisor Melvin Laird suggesting taxes on energy sources, Commerce Secretary Frederick Dent predicting business failures and plant shutdowns, and Treasury Secretary George Shultz chiding people for overreacting to the energy problem, the market has also overreacted, it concludes.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Heed Melody's query! For most of us dissipate our 100 percent faith by draining off 5 percent here and 10 percent there by qualifications, subtleties and other provisos! Note the tight wire artist's test of the MC's faith! Jesus bemoaned those of "little faith."

CASE Y-572: Melody M., aged 27, is a clergyman's wife. "Dr. Crane," she began, "I am to make a talk before our Women's Society."

"The subject is 'faith.' 'Jesus said if we had the faith even of a grain of mustard seed, we could tell a mountain to be removed into the sea, and that would happen.'"

"But how can a person measure his faith?"

"What does a grain-of-mustard seed's quantity indicate?"

"And can we say we have 60 percent faith vs. 75 percent or, finally, 100 percent?"

TEST OF FAITH

We Chicago medics used to smile when patients at our famous Cook County Hospital would tell us they had a "touch" of syphilis or gonorrhea.

One woman even said she thought she might have a "touch" of pregnancy!

But pregnancy is not a matter of 5 percent or 10 percent but is either zero or 100 percent.

And you either have syphilis or you don't!

Jesus criticized his generation by saying, "Oh, ye of little faith."

Which really meant they didn't have any faith.

A story is told about a tight wire artist who agreed to walk such a wire that was stretched across the raging Niagara Falls.

A tremendous crowd gathered to observe this death-defying feat.

Successfully, the tight wire expert made the trip across.

Then the Master of Ceremonies announced over his megaphone that the acrobat would even ride a bicycle across and back again.

The crowd gasped in horror as they saw the bicycle totter occasionally but at last it returned safely to the starting point.

"Do you think I could do that again?" inquired the tight wire expert of the Master of Ceremonies.

"Certainly!" replied the latter.

"Are you positive?" asked the bicyclist.

"I'm 100 percent sure you can do it," affirmed the MC.

"Then climb on my shoulders," calmly suggested the tight wire artist, "and we'll go back together!"

Do you readers think that Master of Ceremonies really had the 100 percent confidence which he had publicly expressed?

The trouble with most of us human beings is that we subconsciously sabotage our good resolutions by holding back a part of our faith.

Like Ananias and Sapphira, we don't give our entire 100 percent to our vow to lose weight or quit cigarettes or stop the liquor habit.

"I want to lose weight and am resolved to do so," is the public pron. of many an obese wife.

"I vow I shall quit tobacco BEFORE lung cancer occurs," is a similar pledge of many a cigarette addict.

But meanwhile both of these have held back maybe 10 percent or even 25 percent of their entire will power and determination.

The potential dieter thus thinks, "I'll diet if I'm not invited out for a banquet!"

So send for my booklet "How to Lose 10 Pounds in 10 Days," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

Prod your faith in yourself to the 100 percent point, for if sure death otherwise would occur tomorrow if you failed, you'd be able to quit tobacco, liquor or extra calories at once!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Worry Clinic, Hopkins Bldg., Melrose, Indiana 47868. Enclose a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents in covering and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

1967 Arab-Israeli War Strained U.S. Relations

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International
The Arab-Israeli war of June, 1967, put a severe strain on Jewish-Christian relationships in the United States.

Interfaith harmony was disturbed by a feeling on the part of many Jews that Christian leaders let them down by taking a neutral or lukewarm stand on U.S. support of Israel in its hour of crisis.

In turn, there was grumbling from Christians that Jewish organizations demanded political support of Israel as the price of continued religious cooperation in America.

None of this mutually acrimonious feeling has developed over the 1973 "Yom Kippur War" in the Middle East.

In fact, just the opposite has occurred. Many Christian leaders who were unsure in 1967 about which side was in the right are convinced this time that Israel was the victim of naked, unprovoked aggression in the form of a surprise attack while its people solemnly observed their holiest day of the year.

"There has been an immediate and significant supportive Christian response to Israel as a result of the new Middle East war," says the American Jewish Committee.

"Statements, proclamations and telegrams addressed to the Nixon administration have been forthcoming from a number of Protestant and Catholic leaders, speaking either as individuals or for their organizations."

Of particular significance, the American Jewish Committee feels, is the outspoken support for Israel that has come from many black clergymen. This may signal a reversal in the deterioration in Jewish-Negro relationships that has occurred in recent years.

One of the most heartening Christian responses, from the viewpoint of Jewish leaders, has been a steady flow of cash contributions from individual Christians to organizations sending aid to Israel. In many cases, Christian clergymen have openly urged such contributions in sermons and statements from their pulpits.

The First Baptist Church of Dallas, largest Baptist church in the world, recently published a half page ad in a newspaper urging all Christians to "support Israel now by writing to your congressman" and by sending donations to the Jewish Welfare Federation.

Galileans To Sing At Hobart Baptist

Paul De La Torre and The Galileans will present a gospel music concert at the Hobart Baptist Church, 1100 West Crawford St., Saturday at 7:30 p.m. Everyone is invited to come and bring a friend.

In the world of gospel music, The Galileans are unique. Mexican-Americans singing gospel songs was unheard of until a 19-year-old band performer named Paul De La Torre, searching for some means of expressing his new-found Christianity, asked himself, "Why not?"

From this early inspiration, The Galileans were brought together, evolving gradually from a nucleus group that had been known as The King's Three when De La Torre founded the vocal team in 1961 in Mexico City. In 1969, the three guitar-playing Mexican-American vocalists were pressed by more and more requests for their performance in churches.

Originality of style, combined with professional performing talents, has been a hallmark for The Galileans, who make their home in Dallas, Texas. All had had a taste of the entertainment business in earlier years and, like Paul, found it "empty."

Paul had been leader of a rock band before his conversion in 1960 and had, at one time, played with singer Trim Lopez. Joel Perales, pianist and vocalist, has a tremendous talent for writing and

Evening Services Scheduled

First Christian Church is now having evening worship services beginning at 7:15 p.m., according to Dr. Ralph Palmer, minister.

The services, which last until 8 p.m. each Sunday evening, are very informal and everyone is cordially invited to come and bring a guest. Mr. Alvin Dauer is the evening organist and Mr. Rex Baker leads the singing.

A youth choir is being formed at the church which will practice Sunday evenings, according to Mr. and Mrs. Rex Baker, sponsors for the group. All school-age youth are invited to come and join in the singing.

A special Thanksgiving Day Communion service will be observed Nov. 22 from 10 until 10:30 a.m. Everyone is invited to attend this special event.

Thanksforgetting Is Sermon Title

"Thanksforgetting" will be the title of the sermon at the 10:45 a.m. Worship Service this Sunday by Rev. Martin Hager, Pastor of the First Presbyterian Church. His text will be from Galatians 6:6-10. Assisting Rev. Hager in the pulpit will be Elder Curt Beck.

The Chancel Choir directed by Mrs. Carol Mackey will present special music accompanied by organist Jerry Whitten.

Immediately following the Worship Service the Senior High Fellowship will be serving a Thanksgiving Dinner in Fellowship Hall. The New Officers Training Session will be Sunday afternoon at 4 p.m. in the West Room.

Church Film Set Monday

Dr. and Mrs. J. Craig Bigg will be at the Foursquare Gospel Church of Pampa Monday evening presenting a documentary film celebrating the 50th anniversary of Foursquare Churches.

The film is entitled "Building For Tomorrow's Sunrise." The service will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Dr. Bigg is the supervisor of the south-central district of the Foursquare organization.

After the service, refreshments will be served by the ladies of the church.

There will be no admission charge but a free will offering will be received, pastor Sam Godwin said.

Thoughts

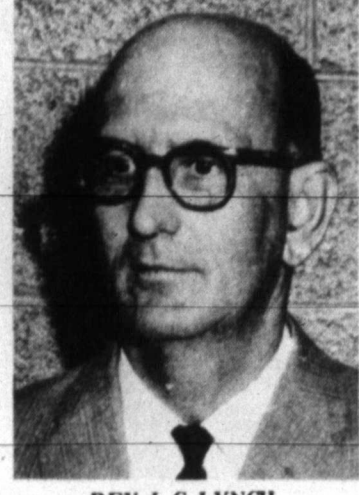

From The Living Bible

Never be lazy in your work but serve the Lord enthusiastically. Be glad for all God is planning for you. Be patient in trouble, and prayerful always. When God's children are in need, you be the one to help them out. And get into the habit of inviting guests home for dinner or, if they need lodging, for the night. If someone mistreats you because you are a Christian, don't curse him; pray that God will bless him. When others are happy, be happy with them. If they are sad, share their sorrow. Work happily together. Don't try to act big.

The Weekly Message Of Inspiration

First Freewill Baptist Church

REV. L.C. LYNCH
Pastor

Ezekiel 33:7 "So thou, O son of man, I have set thee a watchman unto the house of Israel; therefore thou shalt hear the word at my mouth, and warn them from me."

As we see our nation divided, in and in strong political turmoil, it seems no one really has the remedy. I firmly believe that it is time for christians to awake out of sleep, and begin to realize that the prophecy of the Holy Bible is being fulfilled in our time very fast.

We are experiencing the greatest moral decay in the history of our nation, in dressing and general appearance. More men and women living together over wedlock than has ever been since our nation was established. The highest rate of divorces the world has ever known, leaving thousands of children helpless and on the mercy of the States, without the love and guidance parents can give to their children. Never to know a real home life with a father and mother.

There is a breakdown in law and order; hatred and strife among nations. A falling away from true Godly worship in our Churches, that we once knew in America. We need Revival and can have revival. Matt. 9:38, "Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth laborers into his harvest."

Oh, to see the time Church members would work to please God, rather than self and to fill our Churches on Sundays instead of seeking worldly amusements. Matt. 6:33 "But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you."

David Poling, D.D. Church and campus the age of Watergate

NEA

"One reaches a point where one says, even of Beethoven, even of Shakespeare, is this all?" Aldous Huxley

The Church and the campus have been members of the same family for centuries. Not always close, sometimes just distant relatives. And in a few instances, feuding, like when that third-century Latin church father, Tertullian, put down the relation between church and campus by saying: "What has Athens to do with Jerusalem, the Academy with the Church? What between heretics and Christians?"

We have no need for curiosity since Jesus Christ, nor for investigation since the Gospel.

Tertullian represented, fortunately, a minority view within the Church that liberal arts and academic pursuits were unnecessary for true believers. This entire theme — the inter-relatedness of professor and preacher — was the topic that Dr. I. John Hesselink, president of Western Theological Seminary presented to a convocation at Hope College in late August. He points out that "when universities were organized in the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries, there was a close relation between theology, then the 'queen of the sciences,' and the liberal arts tradition."

The opposite of Tertullian exists today. There are many within the secular academic community who are saying, "What does the Academy have to do with the Church, does Athens need to really visit Jerusalem?" Dr. Hesselink has a positive reply, pointing to the events of Watergate as a clinching argument.

He is quoted in the Church Herald: "Certain men have already admitted that they were guilty of violating the law. Included in this group are John Dean and Jeb Magruder. I mention these two men in particular because they were so appealing and so impressive in their testimony before the Senate Committee."

"Here we have two splendid specimens of the American ideal: young and handsome, urbane and cultured, hard-working, disciplined and loyal — two of the brightest and best we could produce. But they failed. Where did they go wrong? ... I think the most revealing clue is to be found in Magruder's testimony. At one point he tried to rationalize his act by pointing out that his ethics professor at Williams College had been involved in civil disobedience in protesting the Vietnam war. Magruder concluded, erroneously, that this provided a precedent for his own wrongdoing. This absurd and dishonest linkage is demolished by noting that while Prof. Coffin acted publicly in symbolically testing the law, Magruder acted in secret to violate the law."

"Coffin was later quoted as saying, 'Well, I guess Mr. Magruder failed my course in ethics. And Magruder upon hearing this acknowledged that his former professor was correct. Here I feel is a poignant lesson for our time. One may learn all his lessons well and be a super-achiever, but if he fails his ethics all these accomplishments will go for naught. To rephrase this thought in the words of Jesus, 'What does a man gain by winning the whole world at the cost of his true self' (New English Version) Ask Jeb Magruder. Ask John Dean. Ask yourself."

The great moral questions of any time are articulated in the classroom and pulpit, and then, finally lived out in the affairs of men. That is why one of the great truths keeps returning: "all true religion begins in mysticism and ends in politics."

The vision, the great hopes, the treasured ideals must be incorporated in the habits and workings of men.

Draft detection can be tricky

By Mr. Fix

The furnace is functioning perfectly, the storm windows are up and in place and still there's a draft coming from somewhere. It's a nuisance and no amount of thermostat manipulating will change things.

Finding the source of a draft isn't as easy as it may seem. What you are looking for is the cause of a sudden current of chilly air.

A house that is warm at the level of your head but is cool around your feet doesn't result from drafts but poor heat circulation. Furnace and registers may need cleaning or the furnace may need regulating.

Most drafts can be eliminated by insulation and weatherstripping. Outside walls, ceilings beneath unheated attics, floors over porches and unheated garages are the obvious areas that should be insulated. Most of this must be done when the house is built. You can, however, pour loose insulation in the unfinished floor of an attic or fasten roll insulation to the underside of a floor over an unheated area.

Weatherstripping should form a seal around all doors and windows.

What's left? Plenty. In fact, it's the drafts from less obvious sources every winter that give you trouble since you are likely to feel you have done all you can.

You may feel silly, but hold up your hand and try to detect the air currents. Check all the windows. As the house settles the molding and the sill may separate. Look for a slight crack. Cover it by repositioning the molding under the sill and nailing it down.

Cold air may come from around the glass in the window where putty has cracked or crumbled. Remove the old putty and replace it.

Double hung windows that do not lock tightly will let in air. If the lock doesn't fasten tightly shim up the movable part with washers where it is screwed to the frame.

Examine the molding between floor and wall. In time it may separate from the HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The nearest thing to an all-black television show is "Soul Train," a musical variety series seen in 85 cities by an overwhelming black audience.

Its originator and star is Don Cornelius who has nurtured the show from a Chicago radio program to a fledgling television experiment with seven stations to a powerful showcase of black talent.

Cornelius is a bright, articulate man, black of course, in his mid-30s. He says his show is unchallenged as the most popular among blacks in this country, especially the younger generation.

"That's because it is the only black-oriented show on the air," he said.

"Flip Wilson, Bill Cosby and 'Sanford and Son' are built on black superstars who came to the attention of the white market and were accepted. Those guys have always had a place to work. But someone like me who has mediocre talent is not accepted by the general market."

Cornelius, whose show is something of a black version of "American Bandstand," compares black entertainers with black athletes.

"There's no place in baseball for the black player with average talent," he said.

Television is the only medium without a real black outlet. Newspapers, magazines, radio and motion pictures all have black-oriented establishments. But while black movies are made for theaters, none are ever made for television. It's weird but true.

"Soul Train" is aimed solely at the black audience, but get such high ratings it wouldn't surprise me if more whites than blacks tune in.

"I've never had a white solist on the show. But we've had a few groups from time to time and some white dancers."

Cornelius isn't a militant, but as a black man he thinks there should be a greater variety of black-oriented shows available.

"Not a single major advertiser has approached us to participate in sponsoring our show," he said. "And that's the key to black television. Economics. Sponsors figure they will capture the black audience and customers in the general market shows, so why advertise on a black show."

"Until we came along all-black shows were either discussion panels or based on social issues. Ours is pure entertainment."

"Our show is popular because first of all it's good. We spend more money on production than 'American Bandstand.' Blacks are starved for relevant shows on television. They see nothing that is produced specifically for them except our show.

"The amazing thing about the success of the show is the reaction it generates for me. I'm not a great talent, but when I walk through the black areas of town I'm besieged by black viewers."

"They'd knock down the biggest stars in the business just to get to me. I'm not saying that boastfully. It's a fact of life. That's how much they care about someone who cares enough to give them the kind of show they want."

Kissinger's Busy Travels Creating Many Questions

By STEWART HENSLEY
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger promised the American press and people three weeks ago that "within a week" he would explain why the United States took certain ominous actions during the height of the Arab-Israeli crisis.

So far he has not done so. And his spokesmen at the State Department assert they are as much in the dark as the public.

Some veteran officials recall that the late John Foster Dulles disclosed his plans to so few top officials even, assistant secretaries of state had to attend his press conferences to learn about future U.S. foreign policy.

"Middle East Cyclone" — It would be unfair, without knowing more about circumstances, to charge Kissinger with procrastination or bad faith. He has been engaged in so furious a round of negotiations and hectic travel that Chinese Premier Chou En-Lai greeted him in Peking last weekend as the "Middle East cyclone."

In any event, officials here agree the seemingly tireless secretary, who also doubles as President Nixon's national security advisor, has left a number of unanswered questions dangling.

The first of these was posed at his Oct. 25 news conference when he was asked why the United States, the night before, placed a large proportion of its military forces, including nuclear elements, on "alert" because of some unexplained action by Russia in connection with the Arab-Israeli war.

The need for an explanation is all the greater because while Kissinger said "we do not now consider ourselves in a confrontation with the Soviet Union," Nixon subsequently described the situation as the most perilous since the 1962 Cuban missile crisis.

The second question Kissinger has never answered is why the United States did not give its European allies and Japan at least a few hours advance notice of its planned "alert" and the reason for it.

Expressions of Disgust — This might, in the opinion of many diplomats, have avoided the situation in which Britain, West Germany and other NATO allies not only refused to support the U.S. position in backing Israel, but denied landing rights to U.S. aircraft carrying military supplies to Israel.

The expressions of disgust with the allies subsequently voiced by Kissinger and other officials precluded the possibility of a united front.

Such a U.S.-European-Japanese front might have well deterred the Arabs from undertaking an oil production slowdown or embargo, since Europe, the United States and Japan supply them with a large number of items which they cannot get from Moscow.

Some officials feel there has been an inconsistency in Kissinger's public statements about the Middle East. While refusing at all other times to assess the merits of the Middle

Hill Rules On Use Of Private Lands

AUSTIN (UPI) — The Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission can regulate activities with state parks and historic sites but has no authority to administer hunting safety regulations on private land, according to Attorney General John L. Hill.

Clayton T. Garrison, executive director of the Parks and Wildlife Commission, asked for a ruling because landowners divide large tracts of land into a number of smaller tracts for sale to individuals for hunting.

Garrison said the department has received a number of complaints about safety hazards and said one individual told him "Bullets do not stop at property lines."

East dispute, he said on Oct. 25 "the conditions that produced this war were clearly intolerable to the Arab nations... and it will be necessary to make substantial concessions" — presumably by Israel.

This has never been said directly to Israeli Premier Golda Meir, so far as can be determined here. Her propagandists assert that having won the war, it is not up to them to make concessions.

In a situation where the President's credibility is being directly challenged, officials hope Kissinger will not leave loose ends dangling all over the diplomatic landscape.

The Primitive Wife

Some small attention has been paid of late to chauvinism — of the masculine gender. The subject is not new. It was discussed heartily in the last century.

Karl Marx and Frederic Engels had the idea that male dominance of the household was related to private property. They reasoned that in the primitive tribal situation, women owned everything because the men were away hunting most of the time. But when farming came in, the men came into ownership of cattle. Wishing to leave their personal wealth to their very own children, the wily males introduced monogamy so they would be able to identify which kids to name in their wills. Thus Karl and Fred concluded that, to abolish private property, it would be helpful to eliminate marriage. One of the planks in the Communist Manifesto was that women should be held in common.

Since K-F, however, additional work has transpired in anthropology. It seems that from the evidence that can be gathered from primitive tribes now existing, the male is actually more dominant than in modernized societies. We have an article from the September 1973 issue of Rhodesian Commentary that vividly described the male-female balance in a tribal household. We offer a few paragraphs from it that may be useful to any who are considering "going back to the good old days." The article follows:

In her home, the African woman is responsible for all the chores connected with rearing her children and keeping her husband contented.

She has her own hut, like every other wife of her husband, and this means a great deal to her. So much so that when she dies no other woman will ever live in it, and it will be left to disintegrate.

She has shared in the building of her hut, for while her husband has carried the heavy poles from the veld and has set them up in a circle, she has done the plastering of the walls and has prepared the floor.

She has also carried the long thatching grass for her man to tie to the framework of the conical roof that she has watched him fashion the door and fit it so that it can be secured from within.

In laying her floor, the housewife leaves a small dish-like hollow in the center, and it is in this that she makes her fire. Around the fireplace she sets her three hearth stones, and near them she fashions a small immovable seat upon which no one but her husband may sit.

Around the inside wall she builds a low, narrow platform which she plasters and this serves as a seat for others who may enter her hut. This seat usually extends from either side of the door, around the walls, to the large daub shelf which she makes at the back of the hut opposite the doorway.

On the shelf she places her pots and, with the sleeping mat her husband has provided for her, her furnishing is then complete.

There are various pots on her shelf, ranging from the big cooking pots to the small ones which she uses for relish. Even today in the rural areas these pots are made of clay, each has its own place and use and name, and each one is her own private property for she probably made them herself.

You've come a long way, ladies, and you have all had the opportunity to find out what the Marx-Engels crowd would take you back to.

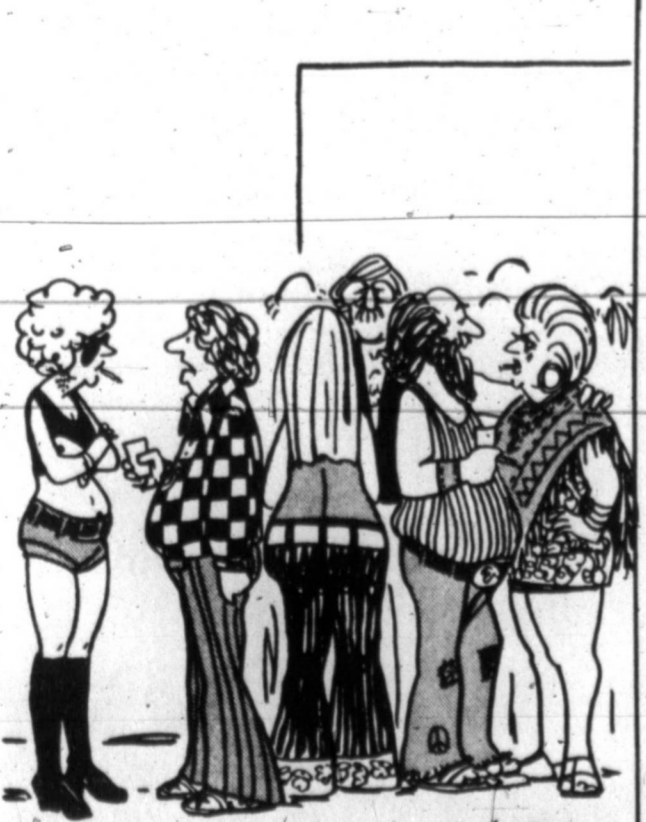

Choice Is Ford, Albert

If approved by the House and Senate, Congressman Gerald Ford will be just one heartbeat away from becoming President. Upon that ground, he is undergoing a fine-tooth scrutiny by the FBI and by his colleagues in Congress. No doubt the experience is harrowing to Ford. His physical condition, his mental state, his relationship to his family, his social habits, his friendships, his private finances are subject to inquisition and the potential glare of publicity.

Yet, when you consider the stakes — the security of 200 million persons, the possibility of another scandal on the scale of the Spiro Agnew fiasco — few would wish Mr. Ford to take the actual choice is between Ford and Albert. Why not treat both alike?

Lots of things have accumulated under beds since people stopped looking under them for Communists.

Washington Atmosphere Disturbing

By ROBERT S. ALLEN
WASHINGTON — To Rep. Dan Kuykendall, R-Tenn., there is a profoundly disturbing atmosphere in Washington these days that is alarmingly reminiscent of another distraught era in U.S. history.

It was the near-impeachment of President Andrew Johnson because he resolutely stood up against Congress.

Says Kuykendall, Texas-born and educated and a World War II bomber pilot:

"Those who are students of history know that the current situation is not unprecedented. It happened to a President of the United States from my home state of Tennessee. Shortly after the Civil War, he stood for unity against Congress and he was lynched legislatively in the House of Representatives. It took one man in the Senate carried in on a stretcher to save this nation from what would have been one of the blackest episodes in its history.

"I warn every member of the House to go slowly. Do not be part of a legislative lynch mob. This could well happen, as it did to Andrew Johnson after the Civil War. For those who would rush into impeachment proceedings without having thorough investigation, without first knowing all the facts, I solemnly warn them they are verging on becoming a party to a legislative lynch mob."

POLITICALS

Democratic Rep. Samuel Stratton, Schenectady, N.Y., is losing no time in firing up the party's scramble for next year's gubernatorial nomination. He is taking bare-knuckle pokes at both Republican Gov. Nelson Rockefeller and Howard Samuels, Democratic head of the Off-Track Betting Agency — both multi-millionaires. Declains Stratton, decorated World War II Navy veteran and a ranking member of the House Armed Services Committee, "It would be a major disaster if the Democratic party in New York State were to pick its 1974 candidate for governor on the basis of who is best equipped to outstep Nelson Rockefeller. Integrity and competence must be the watchwords in 1974, and not the size of the candidate's bankroll."

At a Washington cocktail party for Stewart Mott, 35-year-old multi-millionaire General Motors heir and "sugar daddy" of leftist candidates and causes, his companion was Miss Kelly Costley, member of the staff of Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y. — whom Mott is being urged to oppose for re-election next year. There is virtually no likelihood he will. The ultra-rich would-be politico likes to be mentioned for high office, but he has given no sign he has what it takes to get elected.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., stole the fashion show at this affair by sporting an orange paisley coat with contrasting slacks.

Mad Commit The Sane

Imprisoned in a madhouse for preaching Christianity in Russia — that was the crime of G.M. Shimanov.

His story, taken from his account entitled "Notes From the Red House," was revealed in the December 4th report of the U.S. Senate's Internal Security Subcommittee. "Abuse of Psychiatry for Political Repression in the Soviet Union." The report noted a Soviet prison joke: "Show the Soviet Union a free man and they'll come up with a law to put him away."

In its press release, the Subcommittee said, "Imprisoned persons are often given drugs which produce severe stomach cramps, fever and pain." Another drug given inmates caused them to "wake as human vegetables."

The testimony is documented by 18 persons who are being, or were, subjected to compulsory "treatment" for criticizing or opposing the authorities.

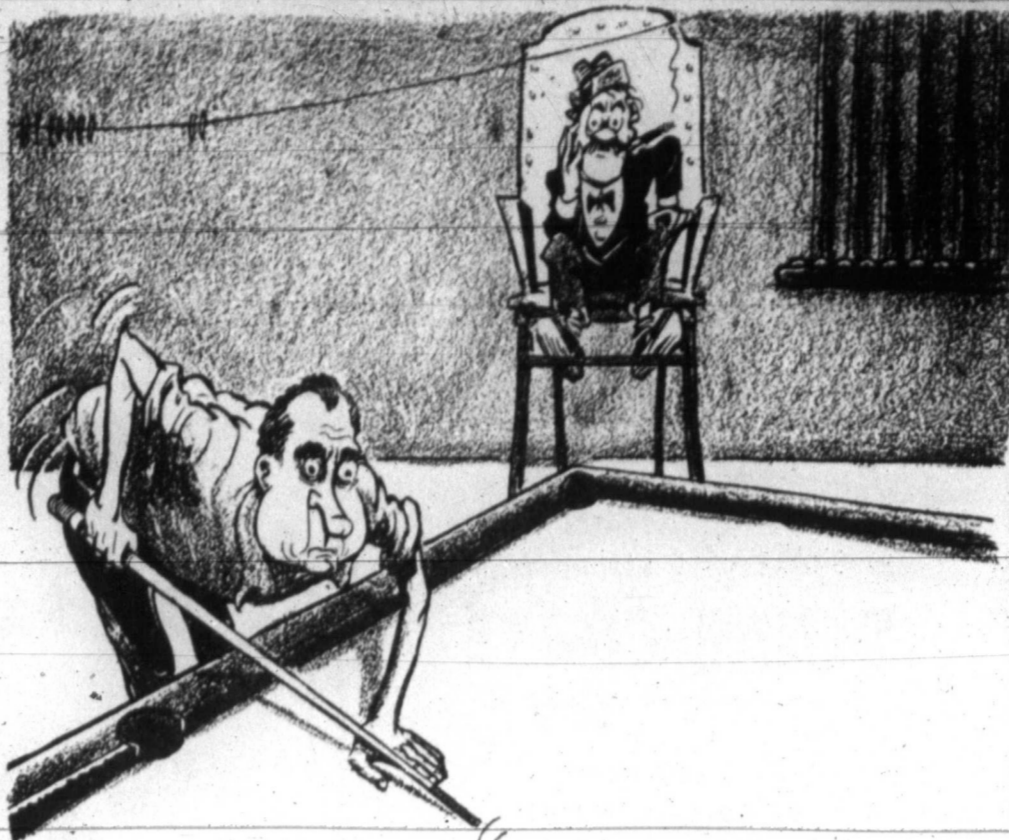

The Subcommittee report can be purchased for $1.50 (257 pp) from Supt. of Documents, U.S. Gov't Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Christening of ships was practiced in ancient times as a means to "protect" a ship and to soothe anxious sailors. The custom is related to the pagan practice of pouring wine and oil on a ship's altar which was dedicated to a goddess whose image was also carved on the bow of the boat, The World Almanac says.

Tightening our economic belt

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Whether peace comes now to the Middle East or not, the price of petroleum is going to rise sharply in the year ahead.

So likewise will the cost of a good many other products not associated with that region's turmoil, regardless of price controls or not, large weight increases or small. Our dependence on foreign raw materials insures this unhappy trend.

At last account, this country was importing 95 per cent of its antimony, 85 per cent of its asbestos, 87 per cent of its bauxite, 100 per cent of its chromite, cobalt, tin, columbium and tantalum, a fifth of its copper, almost a third of its iron ore, more than 40 per cent of its primary lead, something over a sixth of its lumber, almost 100 per cent of its manganese ore, 88 per cent of its nickel, 45 per cent of its potash, 100 per cent of its natural rubber, 43 per cent of its sugar, almost two thirds of its zinc and important amounts of uranium ore. Some of these percentages will be even higher this year.

The prices of some of these materials have already risen sharply, some not. But major increases throughout the list are but a matter of time.

What's more, in total these important raw materials are so basic to the U.S. economy that substantial increases in their cost will pressure inflationary rises in many of the products in which they are used. These price rises in turn will flow outward like the ripples in a pond.

Part of the problem is simply that inflation is today worldwide. And inflation in any country, of course, inevitably drives up the cost of the raw materials it produces.

The second cause of our problem is that the producing countries have learned that as the supply of raw materials becomes short worldwide with hefty growth in consumption, they can raise prices almost at will.

The oil-rich nations have learned this lesson well in recent years.

It should be noted that this is not a problem of whether the producer is pro or anti the United States. It is rather a question of what the traffic will bear. The Arab nations and others with large reserves of petroleum will most certainly regularly raise prices to the highest levels practical without regard, usually, as to who is friend or foe.

Furthermore, production may be carefully controlled to create shortages aimed at forcing prices still higher. There will be nothing new in this. Some major diamond and gold producers in the past have held production to levels which would bring them good prices on the world markets.

With this unhappy picture before us, it will be wise to recollect that there is little this country can do to prevent these price rises, in the short run. Research can eventually bring us partial relief in some cases. But unlike the production of bolts, which can be expanded almost indefinitely, output of many of these raw materials can be raised only slowly. So we must be prepared for a long period of belt tightening.

Question Box

QUESTION: Are labor unions constitutional? My very strong belief is "Absolutely not." Reasons: 1. Coercive; 2. Discriminatory; 3. Divisive; 4. Direct robbery; 5. Infringement on citizen rights; 6. Picketing; 7. Thereby obstructing the free flow of citizens in or out of places of business, as employees or customers.

ANSWER: We do not believe there is anything unconstitutional about any organization which is based on voluntary association. It may well be that the coercive activities of the unions are in violation of the Constitution, as it was intended originally. It also is quite likely that much of the legislation permitting coercive activities including compulsory membership by unions is in violation of the spirit and letter of the U.S. Constitution.

There is nothing unconstitutional about activities which are discriminatory, or even divisive. Discrimination, is simply choosing, and life is made up of choices. It may include dividing people. If labor unions were voluntary instead of compulsory, there would be nothing morally wrong with their attempting to persuade other individuals to use only union products and services. When by using coercive tactics, such as mass picketing, violence or threats of violence to prevent other individuals from buying or selling non-union goods or services, they are going beyond simple discrimination. They are infringing equal rights of others.

We believe when unions, protected by law, are able to compel unwilling workers to pay dues to the unions in order to obtain or keep employment, they are violating the 13th Amendment, prohibiting slavery, and also the Fifth Amendment by depriving individuals of property without process. We presume this is what the questioner means by robbery.

Morally, no individual or group has a right to force others to abide by that individual's or that group's beliefs. When unions have power to walk off jobs, using pickets and threats of violence to prevent others from working, the unions are morally wrong and in violation of the rights of others. We believe it also violates the spirit of the Constitution.

But until the politicians remove the special privileges enjoyed by unions, it appears there is little hope for a restoration of freedom.

No Cure For Regional Ileitis

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have what is known as regional ileitis. I'd like to know if there is a cure for it or is it something I'll just have to learn to live with. My doctor said he knows of no cure or any operation that would do any good. I'm on a bland diet and sulfa drugs.

REGIONAL ILEITIS — Regional ileitis is an inflammation of the lower part of the small intestine (called the ileum) in the region where it joins the colon. It is usually associated with granular-like swelling or growth of the tissue. When the swelling or growth is too large, it can obstruct the opening in the small intestine.

Often the inflammation subsides spontaneously. Because of its location, the symptoms it can cause frequently resemble appendicitis. More than one patient with this problem has been diagnosed for the first time when an operation for "appendicitis" was done. Sometimes it is almost impossible to tell the difference and the risk of not operating if appendicitis is present may be too great. It's a difficult decision. Surgery is sometimes useful in treating such cases. Usually it is limited to complications of the disease, such as an obstruction. You may recall that President Eisenhower had this problem when he was in his first term in office. He probably had the disease most of his life and yet he served another term as president and lived to 78 years of age. I think this is a good example of how well some people can do with such problems.

Sulfa drugs are often used, and doctors vary in their opinion of their usefulness. They seem to help in some cases, but they have not been so universally successful that they can be considered as a way to cure the problem. In some cases sulfa doesn't seem to help at all.

In general it is true, as your doctor has told you, that you have to live with the problem. It is important to have regular medical supervision.

The diet is quite important. Usually one problem is being sure the patient gets enough good nutritious food. That specifically means enough calories and enough protein. During severe problems it may be necessary to use special diets, but over a period of time the emphasis should be on helping you maintain your nutrition.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Please explain the difference between cirrhosis of the liver and cancer of the liver. Or, are they the same thing?

DEAR READER — No they are not the same thing. Cirrhosis is scarring of the liver. This includes an episode of hepatitis (inflammation of the liver), or following heart failure that causes excessive swelling of the liver, damage from poor nutrition, and even damage following excessive use of alcohol.

Cancer of the liver is a serious and usually fatal problem. It can follow cirrhosis, but scientists are hard pressed to prove that is the cause of it. More often it develops on its own or from spread of cancer from elsewhere in the body.

The problems with impeachment

Watergate is developing such momentum that each day brings some new and startling development. Editorial comments are valid only for the newspaper edition in which they appear — if they hold up that long.

Even in a story that already has so many convolutions that historians will be years in unraveling it, is a stunning revelation that two of the most crucial Watergate tapes simply don't exist and never did.

One, a conversation between President Nixon and former attorney general John Mitchell three days after the capture of the Watergate burglars, was not taped, the White House says, because it was on a telephone extension not hooked up with the recorder in the Oval Office.

The other, which might have substantiated or repudiated ex-White House counsel John Dean's most damning allegation against the President, went unrecorded because of a malfunction in the machine.

Bizarre is the only word for all this.

The nation went to the brink of presidential impeachment, and still hangs there, because of Mr. Nixon's refusal to release the tapes to Watergate Judge John J. Sirica. Then, under intense public and congressional pressure, he relented.

Now, we are told, two of the tapes that might have gone far toward establishing the President's innocence or complicity in the Watergate coverup just aren't available in this world.

It is useless to speculate on whether the White House is telling the truth. There are some who discounted the importance of the tapes from the beginning. There are other documents, they say — letters, notes of meetings, memoranda — in the possession of the executive branch that are far more crucial to the investigation.

It was his insistence on obtaining this material, so the rumors have it, that really led to the bouncing of special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox. And it is this kind of "privileged" material, the President himself has said, which will not be made available to Cox's successor.

Thus the question, now that the tapes in which the nation invested such overriding concern have evaporated into thin air, is what remedy or remedies remain in the hands of Congress or the courts.

It begins to appear that a full-scale impeachment proceeding against the President, against which the barrier of executive privilege could not prevail, may be the only way to get at the truth.

But the problem here is that the Constitution specifies impeachable offenses as "treason, bribery, or other high crimes and misdemeanors." The impeachment process is, first of all, an inquiry conducted by the House of Representatives into one or more of those charges brought against a civil officer of the United States. It may or may not lead to actual impeachment — indictment — and trial by the Senate.

This presents a curious and difficult situation. The House, lacking any hard evidence against Richard Nixon, would nevertheless have to charge him with some offense (probably under the broad heading of "misdemeanors") simply in order to obtain the information which would enable it to discover whether any offense had been committed at all.

It would, in effect, be a kind of inquisition, and not many members of Congress are eager at this juncture to take such a drastic step.

But read tomorrow's paper.

H.L. Hunt Writes

SMALL VICTORY FOR TAXPAYERS

In a time when tighter restraints on government spending are the only way to bring soaring prices under control and public confidence in all branches of government has reached a new low, the action of Iowa Congressman H.R. Gross and Alabama Senator James Allen in blocking a $10,000 per man Congressional pay increase is particularly commendable.

Both of these men, and especially Gross, are known as watchdogs of the public purse. There are not many of their kind left in Congress, but they can still be very effective.

The Senate had hurried through a cleverly disguised bill which, if passed, would have resulted in raising the salary of all Members of Congress by almost 25 per cent, without explanation, debate or a record vote. Gross, a brilliant parliamentarian, "caught" the bill as it was sailing through the House and blocked it by demanding a roll call vote. Since few Congressmen wanted to be on record as voting for another large pay increase for themselves, the bill was defeated.

When the Senate tried to revive it, Senate Allen forced a four-hour debate and a series of record votes which had the same effect as Gross' action. Congress should set an example to the nation, and above all to the executive branch, in avoiding huge, inflation-fueling salary increases at public expense, especially now that they have delegated so much of their authority that they sometimes seem to be a little more than rubber stamps. Only a truly independent and responsible Congress can make our Constitution work as it was intended.

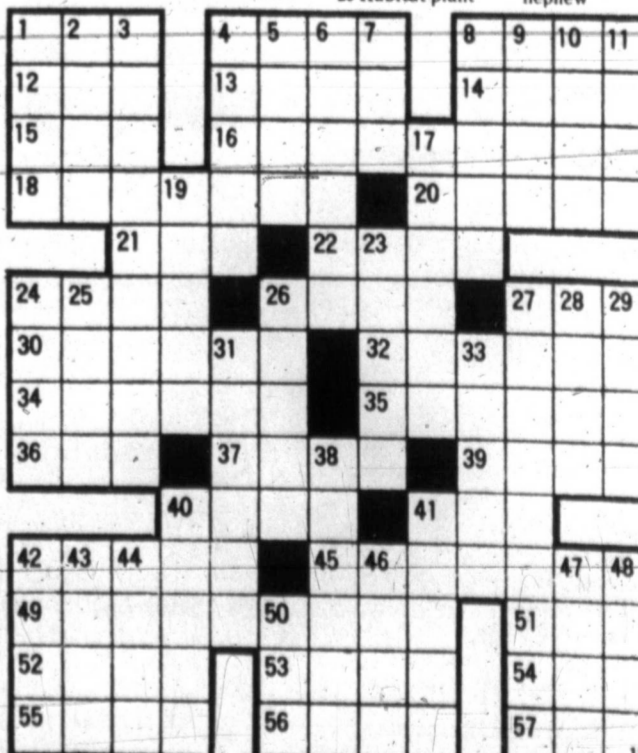

The gods demand of us toil as the price of all good things. Epicharmus

Pampa, AHS Vie Today In Teams' Season Finale

By PAUL SIMS
Pampa's Harvesters will try to avert a five-game losing streak against a team with troubles of its own as the Harvesters travel to Amarillo's Dick Bivins Stadium for a 7:30 p.m. game today against the Amarillo High School Golden Sandstorm.

A loss for Pampa would mean the Harvesters would be 2-8 and not since 1968 has a Pampa team finished with only two wins. However, the Sandies would find themselves with their worst record in their school's history, which goes back 51 years.

It adds up to a must win for both teams, especially since the loser will find itself in the cellar, and in 3-AAA play. Pampa is 2-7 and 0-4, while the Sandies are 1-6-2 and 0-3-1.

Amarillo High hasn't won since the opener against Odessa, losing to Tascosa last week, 15-14.

Sandie coach Kenneth Clapp, who found his team picked to win district prior to the season, contributes lack of overall speed and costly turnovers to Amarillo's downfall. However, Clapp is pleased with a few individuals' play.

"Redus (Mark) is doing a good job for us, he goes hard every down. David Thomas (right tackle) and Steve Gossin (split end) have both played well the last two or three games. And John Shankle on defense (secondary) has come back into his old form," said Clapp.

Redus has been Amarillo's most effective offensive weapon as the senior tailback has gained 848 yards on 203 carries. Clapp has indicated he would like to see Redus reach the 1,000-yard mark tonight.

Along with Redus in the backfield will be quarterback Key Sanford, halfback Garland Jones and fullback Willie Woods. Sanford has completed 21 of 65 throws this season and has been intercepted 13 times.

Clapp has also indicated the Sandies will key on Pampa's passing attack — the best in the district as far as yardage is concerned. "That quarterback, Quarles (Chuck), is a little fireball; he has a lot of spirit and a lot of hustle... but he's awful little," said Clapp of the 113-pound junior quarterback.

"That Lewis (Howie) is a big end and a big threat. We're going to have to stop the throwing to him. We'll have to contain them with that triple-option type offense," added the Sandie coach.

Quarles has connected on 43 of 100 passes for 674 yards this season. Lewis has been Pampa's leading receiver with 30 receptions for 818 yards and three touchdowns.

Pampa's backfield tonight will probably consist of Quarles, junior Tim Thornburg at halfback, senior Steve Mathis at fullback and senior Jack King at fullback.

Thornburg and King are probable starters as both sustained minor injuries in last week's 28-7 loss to Palo Duro.

In that loss to the Dons, Pampa was burned twice by the long bomb as quarterback Robert Douglas completed touchdown passes of 63- and 93-yards to Larry Lipscomb.

Pampa, Hereford Begin Cage Seasons Saturday

Pampa's 1973-74 basketball season gets underway at 8 p.m. Saturday as the Harvesters travel to Hereford to take on the Herd.

The junior varsity game is scheduled for 6 p.m.

Hereford is led by 6-7 Dan Vanderzee, who averaged 11 points and 11 rebounds a game last season while earning all-district honors. Vanderzee led the Herd to a 23-10 record last season.

Other Hereford starters will be 5-11 forward Dennis Noggler, either 5-11 Junior Morales or 6-3 Lynn Tarr at the other forward position and Andrew Wingert.

Pampa, 20-10 and district co-champs last season, will start 6-2 Ricky Beesley at 6-0 Robert Young at forwards, either 5-10 Ray Powell or 5-11 Keith Samples at guard and 6-3 Billy Wilbon and 6-6 Randy Warner at the posts.

Pampa will play a man-to-man defense and a double post offense. "We'll be a fast breaking, defensive-type ball club. If we get the good shot, we'll take it," said head coach Robert McPherson.

Rookies Lead World Tourney

PINEHURST, N.C. (UPI) — Two golfing youngsters, one blazing away with everything from an eagle to a triple bogey to retain the lead and the other surging from 16 strokes behind to grab a tie for second, have taken the spotlight going into today's seventh round of the $500,000 World Open Golf Championship.

Leader of golf's richest tournament after six rounds was Tom Watson, 24, winless in his second year on the PGA tour. He stood at 423, three under par, after a five-over-par 76 Thursday that included an eagle, a triple bogey, six bogeys and two birdies.

The pack has moved closer to me," says Watson. "But it's a consolation to still be six strokes ahead."

Pampa Closes With 19-14 Win

By TERRY HANNA
John Agan broke open a 6-6 game in the third quarter when he intercepted a Scott Phillips pass and ran it back 80 yards for a touchdown which led Pampa's Shockers to a 19-14 win over Dumas Thursday night at Shocker Field.

Dumas scored first on a 14-play, 63-yard drive with Race Copeland going over for the score from two yards out. The run for two failed and Dumas led 6-0 early in the game.

The Shockers came back in the third quarter to tie it up after Aaron Hill recovered a fumble on Dumas' ten-yard line. Four plays later, Agan passed five yards to Jerry Matney for the score to tie it at 6-6.

Then Agan playing a defensive back picked off Phillips' pass and ran down the left sideline behind downfield blocking and streaked into the endzone. After a missed kick, Shockers led 13-6.

Dumas came right back on a six-yard run by Curtis McCandless, who then threw a pass to quarterback Phillips for the conversion and Dumas went in front 14-13.

Pampa made the last tally as Jerry Bob Shoopman scored on a 13-yard blast around the left end for the last score which made it 19-14.

Buffaloes Host Southern Miss

CANYON — West Texas State University's Buffaloes, with hopes of breaking a four-game losing streak, host rugged Southern Mississippi at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in Frank Kimbrough Memorial Stadium in a non-conference football clash.

The Golden Eagles of Southern Mississippi will bring a 4-4-1 record with them into the game, which is "Junior College Night" at West Texas State.

All area junior college students will be admitted to the game free of charge. A dance for junior college students will follow the game at the Activities Center and is also free.

Southern Mississippi has lost to East Carolina, Florida, Ole Miss and undefeated Richmond. It has wins over Tennessee-Chattanooga, Texas-Arlington, Weber State, and last week stopped Memphis State, 13-10. The Golden Eagles tied Mississippi State, 10-10.

The Golden Eagles feature a balanced attack between running and passing. Sophomore quarterback Jeff Bower has completed 57.9 per cent of his passes, hitting on 98 of 169 for 1,248 yards and seven touchdowns.

Doyle Orange, 201-pound senior, leads the team in rushing average among the regulars, picking up 44 yards each time he carries the ball. He has 341 yards. Fullback Wilson Plunkett has 382 yards, but has carried the ball more times and is averaging 3.9 yards per carry.

Six Golden Eagle receivers have caught 12 or more passes. Flanker Harvey McGee leads with 24 receptions for 304 yards.

22 Harvesters To Hang It Up After Tonight

Twenty-two Harvesters will be playing their final game in a Pampa uniform tonight against Amarillo High.

Pampa's seniors are Tony Frogge, Bobby Hendricks, Chuck Reeves, Joe Curtis, Steve Mathis, Jack King, David Nipp, Joe Watkins, Robert Yeager, Johnnie Cook, Steve Weatherly, Terry Moore, Ronald Minnick, Rick Carpenter, Keith Mitchell, Dennis Chance, Bill Cox, Mark Warren, Steve Randall, Randy Linville, Rick Smith and John Thomas.

SIX GAMES ON TAP Wheeler, Clarendon Highlight Area Football Action Tonight

Wheeler, a team out of contention in 2-A, could wind up its season on a happy note by winning tonight.

A win is always a happy occasion, but a victory tonight would be particularly welcomed by the Mustangs as they host powerful Clarendon, highlighting a slate of six area high school football games.

Wheeler, should it win, would all but eliminate the Bronchos in their bid for another district championship since Clarendon, Memphis and Claude are tied for the district lead going into Friday's play. Memphis hosts Silvertown and Claude is at home against lowly Valley. Clarendon realizes the importance of a win against Wheeler. All three leaders should come out on top after Friday's games, which will necessitate a coin flip to decide the crown.

However, the Mustangs, who downed McLean, 17-6 last week, have other ideas and would like nothing more than to be the spoiler Friday night.

"We're going to try to stop their running game. Clarendon's pretty well balanced, and we'll have to be keyed up all the way around, but we'll try to stop that running game first," said Wheeler coach Jim Bateman, who has coached the Mustangs to a 3-5-1 season record and a 3-2-1 mark in district action.

The Bronchos, behind running backs Kenneth King and Gary Shields, quarterback Randy Croslin and end Kenneth Reese, have a 7-2 mark, 5-1 in district play.

Wheeler will rely on the running of tailback Lewis Britt, who gained 205 yards on 35 rushes against McLean. Lineman Danny Hardcastle is a standout both ways.

Wheeler-held McLean to eight first downs and 127 total yards.

Other games today include White Deer at Stinnett, Perryton at Muleshoe, Gruver at Canadian, Wellington at McLean and Miami at Patton Springs.

White Deer vs. Stinnett
The Bucks (3-6 and 2-2 in 1-A) upset touted Sanford-Fritch, 41-0 last week, and head coach Larry Anthony called it "our best game of the year." The Bucks are led by quarterback Buddy Cummins, who has played consistently well all season, and lineman Donnie Thurman.

Stinnett (9-0 and 4-0) belted Gruver, 30-6 while playing without Dennis Cobb, the Rattler's all-state quarterback prospect. Cobb has a fractured ring finger on his left hand — his passing hand. Cobb isn't expected to play in this one either.

Stinnett is slightly crippled but the Rattlers didn't get to be the third-ranked A team in the state by virtue of Cobb only — Stinnett by 16.

Perryton vs. Muleshoe
Wrapping up 1-AAA's district championship, Don Beck's Rangers (6-3 and 3-0) nipped Dumas, 10-7 last week and need a win today to carry momentum into the playoffs. Perryton is led by quarterback Jim Dear, one of the Panhandle's-most talented pass-run threats.

Muleshoe (3-5-1 and 0-3) lost to Canyon, 30-6 last week but still is a team that can whip anybody in 1-AAA if the Mules would put it all together. The Mules have some of the strongest personnel in the area, including halfback David Wheat and tackle Ricky Smallwood.

Perryton should find Muleshoe a little easier than its last two opponents — Canyon and Dumas. Perryton by 12.

Gruver vs. Canadian
Stocky Lamberson has had a disappointing season in his first year with the Hounds (2-7 and 0-4), who were bombed, 30-6 by Stinnett last week. Gruver has a fine pair of running backs in Greg Carroll and Carlos Cazares.

Canadian (7-1-1 and 3-1) can't win 1-A's title since the Wildcats lost to Stinnett a few weeks ago, but the Wildcats may perhaps have the most balanced A team in West Texas. Quarterback Lonnie Hines, halfback Ken Carr and linebacker — fullback Bob Dickinson are exceptional players. Center Gary Tubb is a possible all-district selection.

Canadian should finish the season with an 8-1-1 record, good enough for a title in most districts — Wildcats by 25.

Wellington vs. McLean
The Skyrockets (3-5-1 and 2-3-1) came within a point (21-20) of knocking Claude out of contention in 2-A, showing their potential of being able to beat anybody. Wellington has a fine passer in Randall Hodges, who is one of only a few seniors on a roster that overflows with sophomores.

McLean (3-5 and 2-4) has been hurt in its last two games by the absence of Gary Griffin, who injured a knee against Clarendon. The Tigers lost to the Bronchos, 28-0 and to Wheeler last week, 17-6. Griffin finished his season with 1105 yards rushing. McLean's rushing attack is now led by Skeet Lowery. Lineman Milton Best is an all-district possibility both ways.

A tossup, but McLean will be home and that should be the difference — Tigers by five.

Miami vs. Patton Springs
Defending state champ Goree blasted Orville Shook's Warriors, 56-8 last week to drop Miami's record to 2-5 on the year and 1-2 in 2-B, eight-man play. Miami has been hurt by inexperience and lack of defense this year, giving up 225 points in seven games. Quarterback Kirk Flowers, only a freshman, has been gaining experience each week, along with the rest of the youthful Warriors. Miami will be tough next season.

Patton Springs (3-5 and 1-2) has lost its last two games, 12-6 to Southland and 48-18 to tough Follett last week.

Could go either way since both teams are as evenly matched player for player as any two teams could be. Just a hunch — Patton Springs by six.

They Tried For Peace—But Somebody Else Wanted War

By BARNEY SEIBERT
PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Once in Cambodia, they had a small part of a war and for a while, nobody came.

It happened recently just 12 miles southwest of Phnom Penh, at the town of Kompong Tuol, where Highway 3 crosses the Prek Thnot River, in the low, swampy flood plain of the Mekong River's drainage system.

On Oct. 4, rebel forces drove President Lon Nol's troops out of Kompong Tuol and across to the north bank of the Prek Thnot, which is about 300 yards wide now at the tail end of the monsoon season.

The rebels made one half-hearted effort to cross the Prek Thnot, were driven back and dug in along the south bank. They were Khmer Rumdos, backers of exiled Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

When the battalion seized Kompong Tuol, they found a government flag still flying. Tach Sing, the rebel commander, decided to let it remain "because it is also a flag of the Khmer people."

Using U.S. army field radios, Tach Sing decided to contact Lt. Prom Roth, acting commander of a battalion of 81st Brigade of the government's 3rd Infantry Division on the north bank, and try to arrange their own private cease-fire.

The first cease-fire, arranged on Sept. 30, failed to materialize because a government propaganda unit appeared, playing recordings and strewing leaflets.

But a week later, field reporters said the two commanders agreed each would send a naked soldier to the bank of the Prek Thnot. If there was no shooting, the nude soldiers would be joined by the rival commanders, stripped to their shorts. Rank has its privileges.

And so, at 3 p.m. Oct. 7, while there was shooting on every other battlefield in Cambodia, Kompong Tuol was at peace.

"Our mission is to kill American imperialists," the rebel leader explained to Prom Roth.

But the American bombing ended Aug. 15 and Tach Sing said he knew "on the other side are only Khmers—we should not fight and kill each other." Prom Roth replied that his mission was to kill Vietnamese and Communists, and the Khmer Rumdos were neither.

So a truce was declared and soon soldiers were fishing from both banks, wading and washing in the stream.

But arranging peace is the prerogative of generals and politicians, not riflemen. And so each day, Prom Roth received orders to resume fighting. Presumably, Tach Sing received similar orders. On Oct.

10, three days after the unofficial truce began, the rebel battalion was transferred to another fighting front.

Before leaving, Tach Sing and his men expressed regrets and their good wishes to Prom Roth's men, and warned that the battalion of the Khmer Rumdos which was replacing them was "very tough."

The next morning, the new rebel troops opened fire. But Prom Roth's men did not shoot back, and soon the shooting stopped.

The generals on the government side had another idea. Two days earlier, on Oct. 9, they sent a T28 fighter-bomber to drop a bomb on the rebel bunkers. But Prom Roth assured the rebels he had not called in the air strike and the truce continued.

On Oct. 13, four government T28s bombed the rebel positions for an hour. The insurgents again accused Prom Roth, but still there was no exchange of fire.

So the truce continued, even after another government air strike the next day. On Oct. 15, government artillerymen two miles north of Kompong Tuol fired 10 shells onto rebel positions on the south bank of the Prek Thnot. Prom Roth's soldiers expressed anger and regret but the rebels' faith in the truce was shaken.

Prom Roth met almost daily with superior officers who, according to his deputy, Sub Lt. Prom Meak, pressed him to take the offensive and promised reinforcements for an attack.

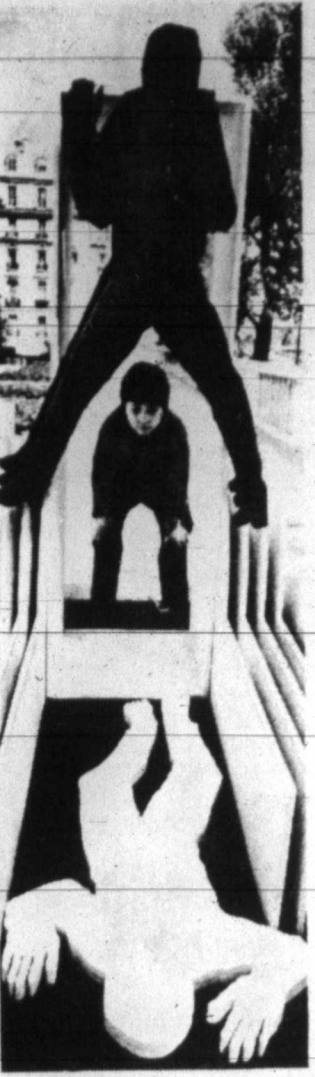

But Prom Roth was so busy attending meetings he had neglected to check his troops' rice supply.

Unlike most western armies, the Cambodian soldier receives a cash allowance, rather than rations, and must buy his own food. On Oct. 15, the troops ran out of rice.

A dozen angered soldiers opened fire on their commander's bunker for a half hour. One frustrated government soldier fired a rocket across the river, where it wounded two rebels.

The rebels waited nearly three hours before returning a 30-minute fusillade. But Prom Roth's troops did not shoot back.

Next morning it was quiet as usual across the Prek Thnot and the rebels went back to their newly planted vegetable and rice patches.

Effects of bumper crop far off

Signs indicate high food prices will become economic staple

By Eliza Paul
WASHINGTON, D.C. — (NEA) — Throughout the summer and into the fall, residents of one of Washington's posh apartment complexes overlooking the Potomac River have nurtured record crops of decorative cherry tomatoes on their balconies.

In a large retail grocery store across the street, the city's not so rich have been buying more day-old bread and cheaper, damaged produce than ever before.

Both are signs of the times, a nagging fear, crossing all economic sectors of the population, that high food prices are here to stay.

The assessment is probably correct.

The Administration is now predicting that retail food costs for the year will be 20 per cent higher than they were in 1972 — in practical terms, the bag of groceries that cost $10 last January will cost $12 by December. But many private economists predict an even greater increase — possibly as much as 25 per cent.

Food prices at the retail level dropped last month for the first time this year, but nobody is claiming that a 0.7 per cent decline will set a trend for the remainder of 1973.

Herbert Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, says the dip in retail prices seems to "support the view that the worst of inflation is behind us." Nonetheless, he warns,

"it is probable that we will see some larger increases in the months ahead."

Behind official optimism that most food price increases will slacken is the much-heralded "bumper crop" this year of vital crops used for food and animal feeds: wheat, oats, barley, sorghum and corn.

But agricultural economist John Schmittler, undersecretary of agriculture in the Johnson Administration, notes that the bumper crop is already committed for domestic use and exports. He predicts that any benefits from continued good crops won't be seen at the grocery store until late 1974 or early 1975.

Gains from the large feed grain harvest — if any — will probably be offset by new price-control regulations that allow processors and retailers to pass on some of their spiraling operating costs to consumers.

Prices for milk and other dairy products are already rising and increases can be expected soon for canned and frozen foods, which will be in short supply this year.

President Nixon, in a moment of public candor, declared that "there is no way, with or without controls, to prevent a substantial rise in food prices," when he announced Freeze II back in June.

The public seems to be catching on, and many Americans are making at least a marginal dent in their food bills by growing and canning their own vegetables. Swift Chemical Co., which manufactures the popular home fertilizer Vigoro, notes that sales skyrocketed last summer — presumably because of the boom in home gardening.

And a recent survey shows that potential homebuyers now pay as much attention to the size of the lot as the shape of the house, with an eye toward the vegetable garden of their dreams.

(Eliza Paul is a Washington-based freelance writer.)

the President's Council of Economic Advisers, says the dip in retail prices seems to "support the view that the worst of inflation is behind us." Nonetheless, he warns,

'Old Mon' still has ups, downs

By RUDY CERNOVIC
PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Steeper than San Francisco's famed cable car route, exciting as a roller coaster ride but slower than a heavy truck on a slippery road, the nation's oldest incline serves as both a means of transportation and a tourist attraction.

The Monongahela Incline, known as the Old Mon, began operating May 28, 1870, to save residents a trudge up a steep hill to their homes in the city's Mt. Washington section.

German immigrants had complained the walk home was arduous after a hard day at the steel mills. Some suggested a "steilbahn" or a steel road.

The Old Mon, carries passengers up and down a 640-foot route on a 38-degree slope. The San Francisco cable cars climb grades no greater than 22 degrees. But the cable cars travel nine miles an hour compared with the six mph rate of the Old Mon.

Throughout its 103-year existence the incline has carried more than 15 million passengers without a fatality. Power shortages in 1953 and 1961 stranded passengers for two and three hours. But there has never been an accident caused by mechanical failures.

The incline consists of two cars traveling on rails and pulled by cables, and running parallel to each other. It could be compared with an elevator running at an angle up and down a steep hill.

The incline operates from six a.m. to one a.m. daily and hauls more than 600,000 passengers a year. The 25-cent fare earns little for Port Authority Transit of Allegheny County.

While it is a practical form of transportation, the incline is a tourist attraction during warm months. About 35 per cent of the passengers are tourists.

Twenty years after the Old Mon began operations, there were 17 inclines in Pittsburgh. But in the 1930s when more roads were built, the inclines' popularity dwindled. Today, the Mon and the Duquesne inclines — about a mile apart — are the only such modes of transportation in use in town.

But even with its safeguards, the incline frightens some passengers.

Thomas L. McDermott, who rides the incline twice daily, said "I've seen people frozen with fear during that 36-second ride."

Actually there is no danger. There are no operators aboard the incline and only one man operates the system. He peers into a television monitor at the top level to make certain passengers at the lower level are safely aboard.

"Ians for the inclined plane were prepared in 1868 by John Roebing. He designed the Brooklyn Bridge. He specified the type of pulling cables that were needed. The cost was $50,000.

A company was formed, stock was issued and surveys were conducted.

On April 12, 1867, an official of the Monongahela Incline Plane Railroad was carried away when he described the enterprise.

"Look forward a century, to April 25th, 1968," he said, "Imagine standing here and seeing the sun fill the eastern sky with a promising blush of light.

"Then think of yourselves descending this precipitous slope, seeing the glittering city rise to meet you. You cross the mighty Monongahela and enter a wonderland."

About Coyotes
Coyotes are about three feet long, including a bushy 16-inch tail, weigh about 30 pounds, and have a shaggy buff coat with white under-sides. Their life span is about 13 years.

BUSY BRIDGE
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — When the Golden Gate Bridge opened in 1937, it carried an average of 9,000 vehicles per day. By 1970, the daily average had climbed to more than 90,000.

Camel's Origin
The camel family had its start in North America about 40 million years ago. The family spread to Asia by an intercontinental land bridge that existed in prehistoric times.

TV In Review

By RICK DU BROW
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — How important are blockbuster motion pictures to the television networks that buy them?

One can contemplate the answer to that question in several ways:

First of all, if a video organization pays, and continues to pay, astronomical, out-of-line prices for the rights to such films, there can, of course, conceivably be a point of diminishing returns—as happened in television's purchases of pro football games a while back.

On the other hand, if a network can manipulate its financial doings cleverly, a huge movie success on the home screen can—like any single huge success on video—do wonders for the broadcast organization that airs it.

A Stronger Bet
And, because of a built-in reputation, a blockbuster movie is generally a stronger bet to win a tremendous television audience than a show made for the home tube—despite the remarkably potent ratings earned by, say, some of ABC-TV's anthology teleplays.

One tremendous movie success on television—like, for instance, ABC-TV's presentation of "Airport" last Sunday night—can just about singlehandedly turn around a week's ratings for a network. And the higher a ratings average for a network (or station) over a period of time, the more it can ask in prices for the advertising time it sells. And, quite obviously, if a broadcast organization is listed on the stock market, a higher overall ratings average, translating into more earnings, can affect its status here also.

Viewers, in other words, have impact—positive and negative—on network stock market prices, just as they have impact on the stock market prices of other companies whose goods they either buy or bypass.

ABC-TV Puts Out Memo
ABC-TV has put out a memo about the ratings benefit brought to it by the powerhouse national statistics of "Airport." Although "Airport" did not get the highest rating of any movie in video history, the network says "it was viewed by 27,800,000 households—making (it) the top film, theatrical or made-for-TV, ever shown on television." In explaining this statement, ABC-TV notes that "the households base for ratings increases each year."

NBC-TV's "Hallmark Hall of Fame" production of Clifford Odets' "The Country Girl," starring Jason Robards, Shirley Knight Hopkins and George Grizzard, is set for a Feb. 5 air date. "Cry Rape," a teleplay examining the dilemma of a victim in bringing an attacker to justice, is a 90-minute "CBS Tuesday Night Movie" presentation Nov. 27; the network says the story looks at the crime from the points of view of the assaulted woman, the police, society and the accused rapist. NBC-TV has added more celebrity contestants to its daytime game series "Baffle" and, for viewers who go along with network promotion, has gussied up the title so it now is "All Star Baffle."

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Credit Treasury Secretary George Shultz with some of this year's most innovative thinking.

The creative cogitator recently became disgruntled over what he regarded as inadequate press and television coverage of declining farm prices.

Noting that the news media were preoccupied with digging up Watergate items, Shultz concluded the best way to draw attention to improving economic conditions might be to "stamp it 'top secret' and let it leak."

I think Shultz has something there. In fact, his new policy may already be in operation. Ever since he suggested it, I've been getting calls from anonymous informants tipping me about stories that ordinarily would come out in routine press releases.

Lien May be Tapped
e this line may be tapped," said someone speaking in muffled tones as though trying to disguise his voice. "But if you check around to see what has happened to the proposed federal safety standards for waterwings, you may get yourself a big exclusive."

I called the Bureau of Hydroflotation and spoke to the agency's press officer.

"I have it on good authority that some action has been taken on waterwing safety standards," I said. "Were they approved, modified, postponed or rejected?"

The press officer sucked in his breath. "Nobody is supposed to know about that," he gasped. "How did you get wind of it?"

"I can't reveal my sources," I said, "but I'm prepared to break the story. The Bureau of Hydroflotation will appear in a more favorable light if I have your cooperation."

After pledging me to confidentiality—"I'll lose my job if anyone finds out I gave it to you," he said—the press officer gave me a phone number.

It turned out to be the private line of the Director of Buoyancy himself.

"I can't keep you from printing the story," the director said. "All I can do is ask you to consider the national interest."

"The public is already reeling from a series of Watergate leaks. If, on top of that, they learn that the waterwing-safety standards have been approved, the shock might be too great."

There was something about the director's voice that sounded hauntingly familiar.

"Aren't you the anonymous informant who gave me the original tip on this story?" I said.

The line went dead and when I tried to call back was told the number was no longer in service.

And that's how news leaks are born.

Now You Know

Mrs. George Washington, Mrs. Thomas Jefferson and Mrs. James Madison were widows before they married their famous husbands.

SEWAGE WATER PURE

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sewage is reported to be 99 per cent pure water. Sea water, on the other hand, is only 96 per cent pure.

The Almanac

By United Press International
Today is Friday, Nov. 16, the 320th day of 1973 with 45 to follow.

The moon is approaching its last quarter.

The morning stars are Mercury and Saturn. The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Scorpio.

Famed American Negro Composer W. C. Handy, known as the "Father of the Blues," was born Nov. 16, 1873.

On this day in history: In 1907, Oklahoma became the 46th state admitted to the Union.

In 1933, the United States established diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union.

In 1966, Dr. Sam Sheppard was acquitted in a second trial for the 1954 slaying of his wife. He had served more than 10 years on the original conviction.

A thought for the day: Scottish novelist Robert Louis Stevenson said, "Mankind was never so happily inspired as when it made a cathedral."
