Billy K. Clay receives Army Promotion in Vietnam

Clay Promoted In Vietnam

Billy K. Clay, (right), 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Clay, 415 S. Wall, Shamrock, was promoted to specialist four during ceremonies near Saigon, Vietnam June 2.

Congratulating him is Colonel Vernon M. Tootle, commander of the 52nd Ordnance Group and director of ammunition for the 1st Logistical Command.

Spec. Clay is a mechanic assigned to Headquarters Company, 52nd Ordnance Group. He entered the Army in February 1966 and arrived overseas in December 1966.

The specialist graduated in 1965 from Shamrock High School.

Spec. Clay has received the Combat Infantryman's Badge.

Ferrel Finishes Infantry Training

Army Private Barry C. Ferrel, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude S. Ferrel, 114 E. 27th St. completed nine weeks of advanced infantry training June 9 at Ft. Polk, La. His last week of training was spent in guerrilla warfare exercises.

During his guerrilla training, he lived under simulated Vietnam conditions for five days, fighting off night attacks and conducting raids on "enemy" villages.

He was taught methods of removing booby traps, setting ambushes, and avoiding enemy ambushes.

Other specialized training included small unit tactics, map reading, land mine warfare, communications, and firing the M-14 rifle, M-60 machine gun and 3.5-inch rocket launcher.

Johnson Selected For Air Society

Cadet Carl F. Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Johnson Sr. of 1801 N. Sumner, has been selected as a member of the Arnold Air Society chapter at Texas Technological College, Lubbock.

Cadet Johnson, who is working toward a B. S. degree in mechanical engineering, is a member of the U. S. Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps (AF ROTC).

He will be eligible for a commission as an Air Force second lieutenant upon completion of his AF ROTC requirements and graduation from college.

The cadet, a 1965 graduate of Pampa High School, was secretary of his National Honor Society chapter. He lettered in football and track.

Etter Completes Non-Com Course

Airman First Class Duane A. Etter, whose mother is Mrs. Cnet Ambrose of Webster City, Iowa, has been graduated from the U.S. Air Force Noncommissioned Officers Leadership School at Stewart AFB, Tenn.

Airman Etter, who was trained in military management and supervision, is a supply computer specialist at Stewart which supports U.S. ground forces with air strikes, aerial delivery of troops and equipment and other combat airpower.

The airman is a graduate of Webster High School. His father Darrell Etter, resides in Webster City, Iowa.

Record Welfare Costs Climb to $7.7 Billion

Problem Is Becoming Top Political Issue

By ROBERT S. ALLEN AND PAUL SCOTT
 WASHINGTON — Public welfare is turning into one of the nation's most politically explosive domestic problems.

Despite the administration's highly publicized multi-billion dollar anti-poverty program to help the poor, federal-state welfare spending has zoomed to a record annual rate of $7.7 billion for 1967.

In many states this huge federal-state outlay for the care of the needy is now second only to that for public education and is still climbing.

The public welfare costs, up nearly 50 per cent in the past three years, are in addition to the $1.6 billion being spent yearly by the Office of Economic Opportunity in its war against poverty.

The U.S. share of the overall welfare costs is estimated to be $4.5 billion for 1967, approximately 58.2 per cent. By 1968 this federal spending is expected to top $5 billion.

These and other details of the mounting public welfare problem which faces the nation during a time of record prosperity have been gathered by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The shocking figures, which raise new questions about the effectiveness of the administration's 2½-year-old war against poverty, have been turned over to a House Appropriations subcommittee, looking into the rising welfare expenditures.

The HEW survey lists a record 7.5 million recipients of public welfare, including nearly five million children. Of this total more than one million are in New York — the state which has received the largest amount of money to fight poverty from the OEO.

THE "UNEMPLOYABLES"

—A HEW study cites a major cause: "A large part of the growth in the number of public welfare recipients is related to the increase in number of broken families and the fact that families headed by females usually have fewer resources than those headed by males."

Another survey made for the White House under the direction of Presidential Assistant Joseph A. Califano Jr. concludes that "Only one per cent of those on welfare rolls are considered employable."

Although the results of this survey are considered highly questionable by some government welfare experts, it is being used by Senator Robert Kennedy, D-N.Y., as the basis for his demands that there be a "virtual revolution" in all public welfare programs.

MAKING AN ISSUE — Aides say Senator Kennedy will continue his criticism and when the time is ripe will put forward his alternative — a plan based on the idea of a guaranteed annual income for the "unemployables."

One strategy under consideration by Kennedy is to offer his plan as an amendment to the administration's Social Security bill when and if it comes to a vote in the Senate later this session.

The legislative ground was broken for this revolutionary change when Congress in 1965 voted $35 a month for all persons over 72 who are not eligible for Social Security or other government retirement benefits.

Administration officials are now debating whether President Johnson should beat Senator Kennedy to the punch with a commendation of his own. However, a majority of the President's advisers are reportedly against new proposals until next year because of the rising costs of the Vietnam war.

ANOTHER APPROACH — TEST BLASTS
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department will conduct a month-long series of underwater explosions off the Aleutians this summer in connection with its efforts to develop a detection system for clandestine nuclear tests.

According to a Pentagon announcement Monday, the blasts—about 40 of 5 tons each and one of 2,000 tons—will be monitored by seismographs on the ocean floor and compared with data from an underground nuclear test conducted on Amchitka Island in October 1965.

EASE RESTRICTIONS
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States has removed restrictions on American travel to Lebanon imposed because of the Middle East war. The State Department's action Monday still left in effect restrictions on travel to Egypt, Syria, Iraq, Algeria, Libya, Jordan, Sudan and Yemen.

It's the Law in Texas

Power of Precedent
 On March 18, 1963, the felony conviction of one Clarence Gideon was thrown out by the United States Supreme Court. Reason: at his trial, Gideon had not been represented by a lawyer.

The consequences were astonishing. Hundreds of prisoners, already convicted of everything from murder to robbery to arson, promptly filed appeals and won their freedom. Probably none of them had ever heard of Clarence Gideon before his courtroom triumph. But the rule that covered his case covered theirs too.

Of course, court decisions do not always lead to such dramatic results. Yet, their influence on our everyday life is well-nigh incalculable.

The display on today's newsstand reflects yesterday's obnoxious decision. The label on today's medicine reflects yesterday's warranty decision. The cost of today's vacation reflects yesterday's tax decision.

The key to this pervasive influence is the power of precedent. In law, precedent is the means by which the problems of the present are measured against the experience of the past.

Suppose a court has to decide if you were negligent in the way you handled your car on a wet pavement, or the way you swung your golf club, or the way you filled out a check.

The court will examine precedents—that is, prior court decisions—for guidance. The more closely an earlier case resembles yours, the more likely that it will persuade the court to reach the same conclusion.

Precedents are not to be followed blindly. But neither are they to be lightly disregarded. As a matter of plain justice, people in equal circumstances should get equal treatment.

Furthermore, precedents lend shape and predictability to our entire legal system. Countless disputes between individuals are settled without a lawsuit simply because the precedents make clear, in advance, which side would win.

So, in a very real sense, we each have a direct personal stake in what happens to "two other guys" in the courtroom. We want them treated fairly not only for their own sake but also for ours, because — by way of precedent — they are establishing standards of right and wrong for us all.

They are our stand-ins, just as Clarence Gideon was a stand-in for the men in jail. That is why everyone's "day in court" is today.

LBJ's Great Society Needs New Tax Hike to Keep Going

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The American Psychological Association recently published an article dealing with, among other things, the "personalities" of numbers.

I can't avoid a suspicion that the author of the paper, Gardner Murphy, was putting us on a bit. Otherwise, I would be forced to suspect that Murphy was a trifle strange.

"Deep in our culture is the distinctive qualities like people," Murphy wrote.

It somehow reminded me of one of my uncles, who used to talk to windmills.

Cites Connotations
As examples of numerical personalities, Murphy cited "the clear, square four and the ragged, cruel, unfortunate thirteen."

This is what I mean about Murphy being either a leg-puller or somewhat kinky.

Anyone who is at all acquainted with the number four knows that fours, far from being clean and square, actually are irresolute and sneaky, and probably drink too much.

It was not, however, the personalities of numbers that aroused my interest. It was the opposite side of the coin.

For Murphy reasoned that if "numbers have distinctive qualities, like people," then people must have mathematical qualities, like numbers.

He concluded that some of us are "odd-numbered people" and some of us are "even-numbered people." Which sounds fair.

I'm no psychologist, of course, but I have noticed over the years that quite a lot of us are fractions. Being as objective as possible, I would classify myself as about six and seven eighths.

Numbers Rating
Anyway, after reading Murphy's article I drew up a psychological test. I told some friends I would call out a list of names and that as soon as they heard a name they should write down the first number that popped into their heads.

Names used in the test were Lyndon Johnson, Senator Everett M. Dirksen, Barry Goldwater and Eleanor Roosevelt.

In this particular test group, the majority tended to think of President Johnson and Mrs. Roosevelt as odd-numbered people, and Dirksen and Goldwater as even-numbered.

(Members of the test group, incidentally, tended to be Democrats.)

I don't know what psychological conclusions Murphy might draw from this, but the political implications are clear.

The results indicate that when Democrats are at odds with each other, Republicans are easily divided.

Sellers Named Production Mgr. For Sinclair Oil

TULSA — L. M. Sellers has been named production manager for Sinclair Oil & Gas Company's West Texas Region in Midland. He formerly was manager of Sinclair Mediterranean Petroleum Company in Algeria and has been succeeded there by R. R. Blair.

Succeeding Blair as coordinator of production for Sinclair International Oil Company's eastern hemisphere operations is F. Foley Wright. Previously manager of Sinclair Oil & Gas Company's engineering department in Tulsa, Wright is headquartered in Brussels, Belgium.

Recent testimony before Congressional committees has revived the possibility of a Presidential request to Congress for a surtax on income but a 10 per cent rather than 6 per cent tax he had previously indicated he would ask.

This rumor comes on the heels of predictions of a budget deficit during the coming fiscal year that may well be close to $30 billion rather than the $8 billion estimate the President made last January.

Last year, an election year, the President also predicted a deficit for the fiscal year just ended of $1.8 billion which has—or will when the score is tallied—amount to more than $11 billion.

And there has been no effort by the President to curtail domestic spending as the costs of the war in Vietnam continue to spiral and the cost of living index points to further and worse inflation. Rather, the President has asked for more new spending programs on the home front and railroaded another huge debt ceiling increase through Congress, so that the government can borrow more money to finance its insatiable spending appetite.

Government borrowing on a tight money market forces interest rates up and contributes to the problems of small businessmen and the homebuilding industry which is already in a depressed condition as a result of interest rates which reached record levels last year and are on the way up again.

Last week the Chairman of the Joint Economic Committee, Senator William Proxmire (D-Wis.) charged in a report that the Administration's January 1966 underestimate of the cost of the Vietnam war caused an "unnecessary and punishing" rise in both interest rates and prices.

The report, based on hearings held in April on the domestic economic effects of Vietnam spending, said: "The pursuit of the objectives of growth, full employment and stability, established as national policy by the Employment Act of timely can only be served by timely and adequate action to prepare and recommend policies that are carefully designed to avoid economic dislocation."

"Had it been known early in the spring of 1966, for example, that $12 billion over and above the budgetary estimates for fiscal 1967 would be appropriated for the Vietnam war, Congress certainly would have given more serious consideration to a tax increase or spending cut and quite probably would have acted on one or the other or both. Such action would have dampened the subsequent inflationary pressure and avoided the havoc caused by the excessive reliance on restrictive monetary policy in 1966."

"Among the Committee's specific findings were these: 'The President has a clear responsibility to take prompt and adequate measures to counterbalance the effects of sudden increases or decreases in military requirements under the mandate set forth by the Employment Act of 1946.'

"The incremental estimates used for Vietnam expenditures by the Defense Department should be considered an understatement and, therefore, the economic effects are greater than these estimates would indicate."

"We again face serious problems in fiscal year 1968 with respect to making an adequate assessment of the public policy actions required to maintain high employment, growth and relative price stability. There are already signs that actual Vietnam spending in the upcoming fiscal year will outrun the original estimate by as much as $4 to $6 billion."

What the report didn't say which now must be obvious is that the military services in the Department of Defense must have known the amounts necessary to complete the 1967 fiscal year or at least could come closer than $12 billion in estimating those costs.

But the $12 billion plus another $2 billion in supplementary appropriations voted recently for other agencies was deferred, as it was the year before, until all of the Great Society programs were passed and funded — and until after the elections of last November.

As the report stated and Senator John Stennis (D-Miss.) predicted during the April hearings, the 1968 estimates of Vietnam war costs for 1968 will probably be from $4 to $6 billion more and possibly even higher.

And as Arthur Krock, the noted journalist said in his final column when he retired last year: "A frontal attack on inflation would also require a meaningful reduction in government spending for non-military projects. . . . But this reduction, would be opposed by another powerful ally of the Administration, the group whose goal is the total welfare state to which the President's grandiose design of the Great Society is both kith and kin."

Foreign News Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst
Notes from the foreign news cables:

RUSSIA IN MIDEAST:
The feeling among western observers in Moscow is that the Soviets will continue their flow of arms to the Arabs—but with strings. The Russians, it is believed, will insist on sending "advisers" to Egypt and Syria to train Arab officers in the use of sophisticated weapons and also will seek some kind of political control so as not to be faced with the accomplished facts such as UAR President Gamal Abdel Nasser did twice within recent weeks:

Once, when he asked removal of United Nations peace-keeping forces and secondly when he blockaded the Gulf of Aqaba. The Russians, meanwhile, will continue the reassessment of their Mideast policy.

FIRE WITH FIRE:
The South Vietnamese armed forces lost one out of six soldiers to desertions last year but American officials now profess optimism that the trend has been reversed for good. They say the desertion rate nosedived after the government decreed heavy sentences for deserters with a possible death sentence for those who walk away from a battle. The usual sentence for deserting is five years of "battleground labor," a penalty made dangerous by the fact that the prisoners work in combat areas without arms, digging bunkers and rebuilding fortifications, bridges and roads.

MAILED FIST:
Philippine President Ferdinand E. Marcos has now given businessmen and criminals a glimpse of the mailed fist that he has been hiding under a velvet glove for the last 18 months. In two swift moves, the frustrated president endorsed strict regulations to curb the steady decline of the nation's dollar reserves and ordered a massive and ruthless crackdown on lawlessness. He placed two Manila suburbs under control of the Philippine Constabulary (national police) and warned that more communities face the same fate unless their local officials clean up crime on their own.
