READY FOR UPRIGHTING — A Pampa man, 23-year-old Phillip Monroe Lang, 108 S. Sumner, driver of this smashed auto, was listed in critical condition in Amarillo after he apparently lost control of the car on North Hobart, hit a curb, scraped a street sign, knocked down a highway sign and uprooted a light pole. Pope Warns World Peace Is In Danger

Two Million Hear Emotional Prayer

FATIMA, Portugal (UPI) — Pope Paul VI prayed Saturday for God's gift of peace to a world "in danger" before a roaring sea of two million pilgrims suddenly stilled by his voice.

Wet and chilled by a rainy sky that let the sun peep through only fitfully, president and peasant, premier and paraplegic, the well and the lame, paused in a spectacle out of the Middle Ages for these words from the Pope:

"The heart of mankind still bursts with tremendous, continuous conflicts. The world is full of tremendously deadly armaments."

"A great majority of humanity is still in a state of need and of hunger while it has been awakened to the disturbing consciousness of its own need and the well being which surrounds it."

"Therefore, we say, the world is in danger."

He spoke emotionally in Portuguese.

He prayed to the Virgin Mary, patroness of the Shrine of Our Lady of Fatima, to intercede with God for "the gift which only God can give, of peace."

He did not mention Vietnam, though he made it clear before he came to the shrine that he was leaving the search for Vietnamese peace to the governments of man while he turned to God in prayer for it.

(Pope Paul arrived back in Rome at 10:32 p.m. (4:32 p.m. EDT) from his one day pilgrimage. He was welcomed back at Rome's airport by 700 persons, including Italian Premier Aldo Moro. Thousands more cheered in St. Peter's Square when he later entered the Vatican.)

"We went to Fatima in quest of peace . . . Peace for the Church and peace for the world," the Pope told Moro in a brief arrival speech.

"A wonderful day . . . The hour will remain in our heart forever," the Pope said.) Pickup 14th pgt: His appearance

His appearance, and that of the many pilgrims who had spent days reaching the hilly shrine through the green Portuguese countryside marked the 50th anniversary of the shrine. It is built on the spot where three peasant children in 1917 said they had a vision of the Blessed Virgin.

Marchers Back Men in Vietnam

NEW YORK (UPI) — In a patriotic answer to anti-war protests, thousands of flag-flashing Americans marched down Fifth Avenue Saturday proclaiming their support for U.S. fighting men in Vietnam. As a prelude to the parade a group of college students ripped a Viet Cong flag to shreds and stomped it underfoot. As the first marchers stepped off under a dazzling noonday sun the city fireman who almost singlehandedly organized the "Support Our Boys in Vietnam Parade" predicted it would dwarf last month's demonstration here by 125,000 war protesters.

U.S. Pilots Down Seven MIG17s In Saturday Revenge

SAIGON (UPI) — Stung by the loss of three jets during raids near Hanoi Friday, U. S. Air Force pilots launched a massive "MIG sweep" over the Communist capital today and downed seven of the Communist interceptors and probably two more, U.S. spokesmen announced.

An F4C Phantom, a two-seat jet fighter that is America's best in the war, was shot down by a Communist MIG17 in a dogfight near Hanoi Friday. Two F106 Thunderchiefs also were downed, one by groundfire and the other of "unknown causes." All the American airmen were listed as "missing in action."

Saturday's air victory was the biggest for the United States in the war. Last Jan. 2, Col. Robin Olds, one of the top U.S. air aces, led a "MIG sweep" of Phantom F4Cs, which scored seven MIG kills. But today's tally included two "probable" kills.

The F4Cs and F106s, flying from Thailand, caught the MIGs in the skies today while on strike missions in the Hanoi area. All were MIG17s, the workhorse of the Communist air defense system.

The official North Vietnamese news agency, however, said three U.S. warplanes were shot down Saturday by anti-aircraft units. It said one of the planes was shot down over Hanoi. It did not mention the fate of the pilots.

Shrine Circus Due In Pampa On June 6

The circus is coming to town. Fred Van Shoubrouck, president of the Pampa Shrine Association, announced Saturday that the Shrine Circus would have two performances here on June 6 at the Rodeo Grounds.

The circus is being produced this year by the Carden-Johnson International Circus and will feature more than 45 different acts.

The three-ring affair will be presented at a matinee and evening performance, according to Van Shoubrouck.

Jerald Sims, general circus chairman, pointed out that each year all over the United States, Shrine temples and clubs stage local Shrine circuses to help finance their work with crippled children.

The North American Shriners own and operate 19 hospitals for crippled children and three hospitals which treat children who are burn victims.

"We have got a great show lined up," Sims said. "It promises to be one of the finest shows ever presented in Pampa."

Among the featured acts will be the Lemke family of chimpanzees which recently appeared on The Jackie Gleason Show. The Flying Jeannes are also on the bill. This was the serialist group that appeared with Doris Day and Burt Lancaster in the motion pictures "Jumbo" and "Trapeze," Sims said.

Guardsmen Pull Out of Jackson

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — National Guardsmen packed their gear and withdrew from Jackson's Negro district Saturday, but local authorities said they would continue to keep a close watch on the area where riots flared for two successive nights.

"The National Guard is being released because of the stability in the area," said Maj. Gen. Walter G. Johnson, Mississippi's adjutant general. "It is felt that control is within the capability of the local law enforcement officials."

Shortly after the announcement four personnel carriers started clanking out of the Negro district on their steel treads and trucks loaded with soldiers moved out.

One Negro was killed and two wounded during the rioting Wednesday and Thursday nights.

Assistant Attorney General John Doar confirmed from Washington that the Justice Department is investigating the shooting which claimed the life of 22-year-old Benjamin Brown. Brown was found lying in the street Thursday night after Negroes stormed police barricades that had been set up to cordon off the riot area.

Police said one of the rioters, a friend of Brown's, denied the had participated in the attack on the barricades. Several newsmen also reported seeing Brown among the rioters.

Six Pampans Named To Price Committee

Rep. Bob Price of Pampa formed his North Plains agricultural committee here Friday night and named six Pampans to the 22-member advisory committee.

He also plans to form a feeder cattle advisory committee and a livestock advisory committee later with a representative from every county in his 18th congressional district.

Price explained each committee's purposes will be to maintain contacts with other farmers, ranchers and cattle feeders about their agricultural problems and needs so he will know opinions of each area in his district.

The North Plains committee, which elected Buddy Cockrell of Pampa as chairman, is one of three agricultural committees Price is forming in Texas. Others are in the southwest and southeast.

Pampa representatives Price named included John Spearman, Robert Sailor, Artie Sailor, Floyd McLaughlin, Johnny

INTERNATIONAL SCIENCE FAIR WINNERS — Mrs. Elaine Ledbetter, Pampa High School science teacher, raises the hands of two PHS students who won honors in the International Science Fair in San Francisco, Calif., Wednesday through Saturday. Jim Brown, left, won fourth place in physics division and will receive $25 in scientific equipment. William Schumacher, right, won the Army Aviation Association award and $100. This year is the first time that both Pampa entries in the international fair have won honors. The 428 projects entered represented the best of a million high school scientific projects.

SEARCHERS STILL SEEK LOST BOYS

HANNIBAL, Mo. (UPI) — Searchers combed a Girl Scout camp, a "haunted house," a forest and a maze of caverns in the Mark Twain country of northeast Missouri Saturday, seeking three boys missing since Wednesday.

State police brought a Roman Catholic priest and his "cave radio" from Belleville, Ill., to aid in the search.

Fred Simms, a member of the Mark Twain Rescue Squad of Hannibal found a black sock at the entrance of Murphy's Cave, center of earlier searches but two blocks north of the cave complex being probed by other search teams Saturday. Authorities were attempting to learn whether it might have belonged to one of the missing boys.

Bill Bridges, head of the Mark Twain Squad, said he still thought the boys might be in Murphy's cave. "It may be like when we drag rivers," he said. "If we don't find them in three or four hours, we start getting reports that they're all over but we always find them in the river." Girl Scouts joined in the search of Camp Old Tyme, a Boy and Girl Scout camp south of here. Other teams of searchers fanned out through the thousands of acres of woods surrounding the area, following a trail of footprints which could have been made by three boys.

Fingerprint experts were sent to a deserted house where they found fresh hand and footprints which might have been made by three young boys. However, Debbie Hoag, sister of two of the missing boys, said she thought the footprints at the house were too small to have been made by her brothers, Joe, 13, and Bill, 11, and their friend, Edward Dowell, 14.

Searchers discounted the theory that the boys might have gone to play in the Mississippi River, beloved by Mark Twain and his fictional hero, Tom Sawyer. William Karras, cave expert from Washington who is directing the underground search, said, "We would search the river as a last resort."

Illinois and Missouri State Police "eamed to whisk Rev. Paul Wightman, must professor and treasurer of St. Henry Roman Catholic Seminary at Belleville, to Hannibal when his plane was grounded by fog. The priest has developed a radio transmitter which broadcasts from underground to the surface.

The underground search was centered about "Lover's Leap Hill" and its network of caverns, known as "The System."

Fair Weather Ordered For Today's Fair

Chilly temperatures and a light drizzle did not dampen the spirit of the Arts and Crafts Fair, which opened Saturday morning in the Coronado Center Mall.

The Gourmet Foods Booth, forced to move inside due to the weather, did a brisk business all morning, selling out of wares before they could be stocked in the attractive Pennsylvania Dutch booth.

The sun, which broke through an overcast sky shortly after 4 p.m. yesterday and brought interested viewers out en masse, was hopefully an omen of the crowd expected today by the sponsors, Pampa Fine Arts Association.

Today's fair events will include a demonstration of working with paper mache by Mrs. Fred Hart from 2 p.m. to 3 p.m. (no charge); china painting by Mrs. A. D. Hills from 3 p.m. to 4 p.m. (no charge); jewelry making by Cris Gikas, professor of art at Eastern New Mexico University, Portales, N.M., (50 cents fee).

Other features of today's fair are Pastel Portraits by Mrs. Marcelle Jorgens, and a sidewalk cafe, where coffee, sweet rolls, cake, pie and cookies will be sold.

Strolling troubadours, The String Folk, composed of Bruce Hysmith, Cris Kenney and Mark Presser, will provide music throughout the afternoon.

Works of local and area artists and craftsmen will be displayed in galleries. Participating clubs and individuals are Creative Arts Club; Lois Minnick, paintings; Paint, Pot and Piddle Club; Pampa Art Club; Perryton Art Association; Bethel Shirley, glass; Marion George, sculpture; Wednesday Painters; Moore County Arts Association; and Ray Boswell, rocks, gems, plastics.

The fair will open at 1 p.m. today and continue through 5 p.m.

If it comes from a hardware store we have it. Lewis Hdws. (Adv.)

ARTS AND CRAFTS FAIR — A good crowd turned out for the first day of the Arts and Crafts Fair on the mall of the Coronado Shopping Center yesterday and more are expected before it ends today at 5 p.m. The event is being sponsored by the Pampa Fine Arts Association.

Social Security Q & A

ELDER'S NOTE — The following questions and answers on Social Security and Medicare benefits were prepared by the Panama Social Security Office in the Hughes Bldg. and are published by The Panama News as a public service.

Q — Is it possible for me, as a landlord, to use this option to report farm rental income?

A — Yes, if you "materially participate" in the farming operation. We suggest that you get in touch with your social security office or Internal Revenue Service office for advice as to just what constitutes "material participation."

Q — The "option" probably will not benefit me unless I can report soil bank payments. Can I count soil bank payments in my earnings?

A — Yes. Actually, you are required to report these payments for income tax purposes. In using the optional method you can count them the same as any other earnings. However, such payments received in a farm operation by a landlord who does not materially participate in the farm operations do not count as social security credit.

Q — Just what is this "optional method" of reporting farm self-employment income that I often hear mentioned?

A — It is a method authorized in the social security law to make it possible for farmers and ranchers to get social security credit for up to $1600 in a year even though they may have had an actual loss in operations. Congress made this exception because farmers' net earnings depend upon many uncontrollable factors such as crop prices and weather conditions.

Q — I think that I might like to start taking advantage of this option. Just how does it work?

A — This is how you figure net earnings under the optional method: (a) If your gross farm income is between $600 and $2000, you may report either 25 of your gross income, or report your actual net earnings if they are $400 or more. (b) If your gross farm income is over $2000 and actual net earnings are not more than $1600, you may report either $1600 or 25 of your gross income.

Foreign News Commentary

By DAVID NOTT
United Press International
CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI)

—For the underground Venezuelan Communist party guerrilla warfare is out and the voting booth is in—at least for the moment.

At any rate this is the message one set of party leaders is hiding or seeking to put over.

"We will never totally abandon the use of arms as a means to revolution. And we have no intention of disbanding our guerrilla groups while government oppression continues," according to Pompeyo Marquez, new secretary-general of the Venezuelan Communist Party (PCV) and, until recently, a leading exponent of terrorism.

Immediate Goal
"But our immediate objective," he said, "is to play our part in the 1968 elections by backing the formation of a grand opposition front."

His views are not shared by ultra-extremist guerrilla chief Douglas Bravo, leading a splinter group which has Fidel Castro's backing.

The "something" of policy by such a traditional hardliner as Marquez demonstrates the party's strong desire to be accorded the legal status it has not held since it was banned in 1963. As a senator, Marquez was well-known for his frebrand oratory espousing violent revolution.

Violence Impetual
He has by no means renounced violence permanently. He has merely said violence is impractical at this time and will not accomplish the party's immediate objective—that of achieving legality.

This kind of fence-treading has led to confusion in party ranks with some leaders frequently seeming to talk out of both sides of their mouth by advocating armed warfare on one hand and "renouncing" terrorism on the other.

The government's position on the Communist party however, has grown firmer than ever in the face of a continuing wave of subversion and recognition of the party is far from its mind.

port your actual net earnings. If your gross farm income is over $2000 and actual net earnings are over $1600, your actual net earnings must be reported.

Q — When were these procedures effective?

A — The above rules for using the option apply to the first taxable year that begins after December 31, 1966. This means that for most people they are effective with their tax returns for the period of the calendar year 1966. Check with your social security office if you need information about the slightly different rules that were in effect before 1966.

NEW YORK (UPI) — L. Q. Parcell, Graham & Co. says the current bull market seems to be a full swing even though many resting periods may appear, as they do in any bull market. The company says it would remain fully invested with emphasis on growth stocks but points out that recently emphasis has been switching from the fast growing companies to more conservative growth stocks.

The analyst indicates the keynote in trading is to look toward the future since the current stock market is ignoring present economic conditions. He says, "what everyone knows is unlikely to be much of a market factor, and it is necessary to think ahead of the herd if one wants to be successful."

Two Charged In Burglaries

Two Odessa men have been charged with the 1965 safe burglaries of Pampa Moose Lodge and Harold Barrett Ford Company.

Sheriff Rufe Jordan said one of the men, William Thomas McCoy, 31, was in jail in Amarillo, and his companion, Riley Dewitt, 27, was still at large. Jordan said McCoy had been arrested by Amarillo Police in connection with the burglary of Western Supply Co. of Amarillo and had given a signed statement implicating himself and Dewitt in the two burglaries here.

The Moose Lodge safe was burglarized March 17, 1965, and approximately $200 was taken.

The safe burglary at the Ford Co. occurred Nov. 21, 1965. The safe was loaded in a pickup and hauled west of Pampa on U. S. Highway 60, where it was broken into and $211 taken.

Norway Nurse Visits 'Windy Texas City'

MRS. ADMEE ERIKSEN ... Norway nurse

Norway has more than 2,000 "Friends of Patients" who are all specialists in a particular field.

Most of Mrs. Eriksen's volunteer hobby therapy work is with surgical patients. About 120, mostly adults, are in her department.

Because the hospital is so highly specialized and departmentalized, it has other divisions of youth and child hobby therapy, she said.

"Volunteers work in the largest hospitals in country districts, in clinics, smaller hospitals and nursing homes, in mental hospitals and prisons, she said.

"I've been asked to take on some prison work, but I think with the polio hospital work, hobby therapy, raising my 17-year-old son Frank Robert and maintaining a home I'll have enough to keep busy," Mrs. Eriksen said.

"In the prison work, both men and women volunteers visit the prisons and are each assigned one particular prisoner to care for," she said.

Even after his sentence is over, the volunteer will counsel with him and, if necessary, visit his family. It's rather like probation officer work, she said.

Mrs. Eriksen's husband, Bjorn Egil Eriksen, is in the furniture business in Oslo, and last year toured the eastern and middle United States a month with a religious choir from Norway.

visiting in Pampa about four weeks before she returned this weekend to California for a visit she remarked "up in my cold north country, no one will believe me about this Panhandle wind."

A native of Brooklyn, N. Y., Mrs. Eriksen has been visiting with Mrs. Lillian Darby, 2901 Mary Ellen and helping nurse her grandson, Karl.

Since Mrs. Eriksen left Brooklyn with her family when she was seven years old, and moved to Norway, she has not spoken English in 33 years, but in her two months visit in the United States, she has picked up the lingo real well, as her brother, Al Forland, of Santa Anna, Calif., said here.

In Norway, Mrs. Eriksen has the equivalent of a Licensed Vocational Nurse training, does volunteer Red Cross work and works in a polio hospital in Oslo.

The hospital where she works is part of a larger complex of the Ulleval Hospital, which has more than 45 large hospital structures, 2,000 beds and 2,000 nurses.

The hospital complex is completely equipped to provide any facet of medical and mental care for all ages.

"I've been nursing a polio victim two years. He is 35 years old, is married and has three children, but has had polio since he was 23. He lives and breathes in a motorized bed, which breathes for him, because he is paralyzed from the neck down," she said.

Before Mrs. Eriksen was married, she worked two years, when she was 21 to 23, at a radium hospital, operated by the government in Oslo.

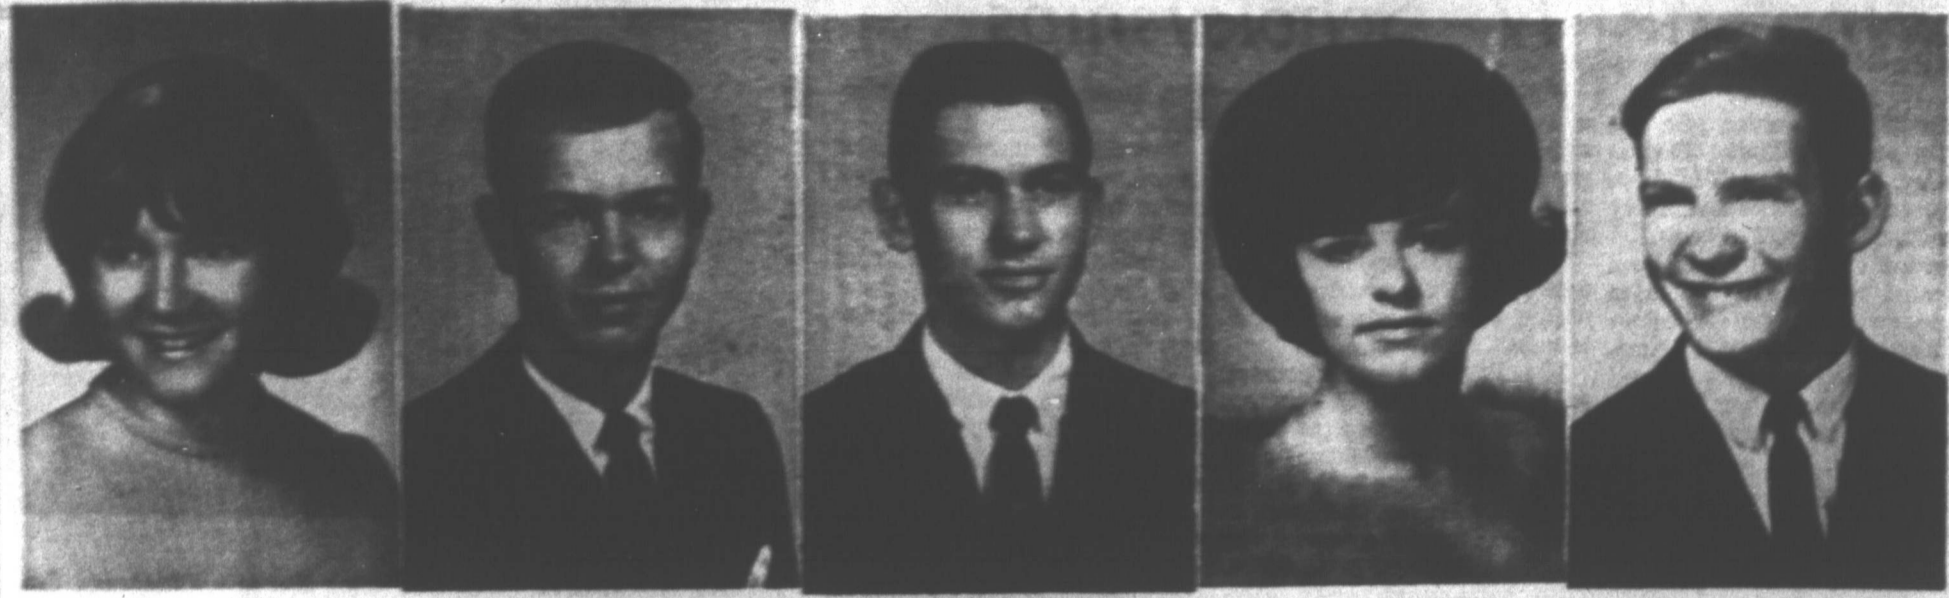

As a Red Cross volunteer in Norway, Mrs. Eriksen is called "A Friend of the Patient."

For 10 years, she has worked as a volunteer at Oslo Municipal Emergency Hospital conducting hobby therapy treatments. The emergency hospital is another division of the Ulleval Hospital.

Hobby therapy is mainly for long term patients who need something to keep them occupied and thinking about something besides their illness.

HOW'S BUSINESS?

Early Warning Barometers Not Yet on Optimistic Side

By ROGER BABSON STAFF

Since our last review of the "leading" economic indicators, there has been a noticeable improvement in public sentiment with respect to business prospects. Perhaps this is partially the result of the further gains tacked on by the stock market, but another reason is the hope that the anti-recession monetary and fiscal stimuli can infuse new vitality into the economy.

Thus far, however, these anticipations must be counted in the realm of speculation, as the early-warning economic indicators in the aggregate have not yet given a confirmation signal.

Of the eight economic indicators which in the past have tended to effect a major reversal of trend before similar major turns in economic activity, none can really be classified as in a definite uptrend. The additional progress of the stock market recovery is a hopeful sign, but even here there is room for doubt. It may be that INDUSTRIAL STOCK PRICES still face a test of last fall's low.

Another encouraging factor is the improvement in BUILDING CONTRACT AWARDS. These have picked up a little in response to the less acute stringency in the supply of mortgage credit, and in response to the reduction in mortgage borrowing rates. But the level of building plans can hardly be considered indicative of a new boom.

CORPORATE PROFITS in the first quarter of 1967 held up better than expected, on the whole. Nevertheless, the crestover pattern is still in effect, and we must still contend with the profit margin pinch as the year progresses. Another good-to-fair barometer is NEW ORDERS OF MANUFACTURERS, which is clinging near peak.

The inflow of new business, however, not only lacks vitality but is eroding.

The trends of FACTORY WORK WEEKS, WHOLESALE COMMODITY PRICES, NEW BUSINESS INCORPORATIONS, and BUSINESS FAILURES all continue to exhibit an underlying downtrend. Hence we conclude that the "all-clear" signal must await more definite signs of economic improvement.

Red Cross News

By LIBBY SHOTWELL, Executive Secretary AHC

Our annual meeting was a huge success and those who did not get to attend missed one of the best meetings of the year. The tables were decorated in patriotic colors of red, white and blue with Mrs. Elmer Fite and Mrs. V. J. Drew doing the work. Two beautiful bouquets of red and white carnations graced the head table and one bouquet was given to Mrs. Wes Langham at the close of the meeting by our new chairman, Jack Skelly. The other bouquet was given to the ladies who had served over 1,000 hours during the years they have been in the hospital service. The ladies who received these red carnations were: Mina Benham, Mrs. Jess Beard, Mrs. Jess Hatcher, Mrs. A. D. Hills, Mrs. Vonia Voss, Mrs. Eunice Pierson, Mrs. John Hessey, Mrs. Lynn Boyd, Mrs. Mack Harmon, Mabel Hukill and Louise Sewell. Mrs. Voss has been working with Red Cross since 1945 when she took training and worked in the hospital at the PAFB during WWII. Mrs. V. J. Drew gave out year's pins to the hospital volunteers to be worn on their new uniform. She asked certain volunteers to model the hospital uniforms that were worn in years past. Mrs. Voss modeled the uniform worn in WWII; Mrs. Elizabeth Taylor modeled the uniform worn in 1953 by the first Gray Ladies in Pampa; Mrs. Cherry Kuhlman modeled the uniform was worn in 1962 and then all of the ladies modeled their new uniforms for the crowd. Awards went to outgoing directors and officers and Mrs. Sam B. Cook who has worked on the committee of services to the military for the past 15 years. The best was last with Bob Izzard speaking and showing pictures of Vietnam.

Our chapter is very sorry to lose our good friend, Mrs. Eunice Hicks - Beach, who has been our National Field Volunteer for the past three years. Eunice will join her husband who is returning from Thailand the last of May and they will make their home in Maine for two more years until Mike returns from the service of his country, then they will return to Amarillo to make their home. We will miss Eunice but we are so very happy that her husband will soon return and we know that she will be a good Red Crosser where ever she makes her home. Good Luck to them both!

The American National Red Cross announced the Red Cross Instructor Course at Texas Christian University, Fort Worth; Texas Woman's University, Denton; and Stephen F. Austin College, Nacogdoches. If any one is interested in taking the course please contact the Gray County chapter in Pampa. Transportation and fees will be paid by Red Cross to interested personnel. Homemaking teachers, secondary school teachers, home demonstration agents and professional nurses are the persons who usually attend these workshops.

Red Cross messages to and from South Vietnam in behalf of U.S. servicemen average over 500 messages a day?

Two hundred eighty-seven Red Cross workers are serving U.S. troops at more than 60 locations in South Vietnam? The number exceed 300 by May 31, 1967.

You, Your Child and School

By DAVID NYDICK, UPI Education Specialist

A major organization for the improvement of education has been formed. It is the "Education Commission of the States." The purpose—a source of information and research for the solution of educational problems.

The commission is not intended to control the decisions of individual states of school systems. It will attempt to make available the solutions, decisions and results, found in other states.

One method of approach will be task force to study particular concerns. On the agenda is one of the major problems currently facing education—paying the bills. The method by which public schools and colleges will meet their financial requirements is a most serious problem.

Voters Refuse Budgets

Only last week Nassau County on Long Island, New York, saw more than 20 of its 57 school budgets defeated by the voters. This is one of the most affluent counties in the nation. What are the schools to do when irate citizens vote against financing the schools because taxes are reaching unbearable proportions?

College costs are rising beyond the reach of the average family. We all recognize the value of education but there must be a realistic approach to paying the cost.

The commission can serve a most important purpose if through its studies solution to the problem can be identified. Each state can then apply the solution or series of solutions to its own particular needs.

The commission has the potential to become a major influence on the educational scene. It is supported by the membership of a majority of the states with anticipation of full membership in the reasonable future.

Educators, Politicians Join

Where did the idea originate? It is basically a result of the work of Dr. James Bryant Conant who combined forces with Richard Hughes, Nelson Rockefeller and a number of other governors, legislators and national leaders in government as well as education.

What was the idea? A partnership was to be developed between the educational leadership and the political leadership for the advancement of education. The first step was a compact for education agreed to by the many states.

INSTANT JUSTICE
Back in frontier days, a stern judge in Ohio used to keep a live bomb on the floor of the jury room. When he sent the jurors in to deliberate, he would call their attention to the fuse leading outside of the room. "Bring me a verdict in five minutes," he would thunder, "or by heaven I will light the fuse!"

Needless to say, his jurors didn't dawdle. And it is still true today that jurors, even though not spurred on so persuasively, sometimes do bring in their verdict fast.

Quite naturally, doubts may arise. Did they really give fair consideration to the evidence? Can a trial that lasts for days be decided in minutes? Time and again, a person who has been found guilty of a crime will raise such questions by appealing to a higher court for a new trial.

But almost invariably, the court has ruled that speed alone does not prove that the verdict was unfair. For, after all, there are perfectly sensible reasons why a jury, while conscientiously doing its duty, may still bring in a speedy verdict. Thus:

When a jury took only eight minutes to convict a man of drunk driving, the court found nothing improper — because there was just one simple issue for the jurors to decide.

And when a jury took only an hour to convict a man of tax fraud, the court found nothing improper — because a lopsided preponderance of evidence pointed to guilt.

In other words, the law does not insist on long, drawn-out deliberations just to make the verdict "look good."

But there is another side to the matter. The law does insist that when jurors feel the need to go slow, they should not be high-pressured into hurrying.

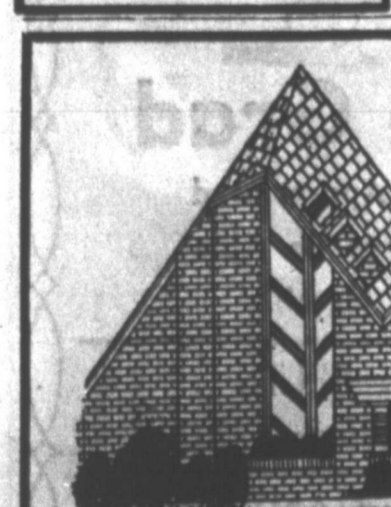

For example: The jurors in a murder case, deadlocked for almost seven hours, reached a verdict in short order — after the trial judge hinted that he might hold them in contempt if they did not agree.

This verdict, on appeal, was thrown out. The appellate court warned: "If a trial judge is permitted to coerce a jury into a verdict then the value of the system of trial by jury is at an end."

Pampa Student Is Initiated Into Texas Honor Society

AUSTIN (SpI) — Kim Alan Wheately, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Wheately of White Deer, recently was initiated into the honor society of Phi Kappa Phi.

Founded in 1897, Phi Kappa Phi recognizes scholarship in all areas of academic endeavor, rather than restricting its election to a limited field. For consideration as a member, a student must rank in the top five per cent of his class.

Wheately is concluding his junior year at the University of Texas, where he is majoring in educational theatre. He is also a member of Kappa Delta Pi, an honor society in education, and Phi Eta Sigma, a freshman honorary society from which he received the Highest Freshman Award.

Hearing Unfair On Pay Hike Plan, Abraham Charges

State Rep. Malouf Abraham of Canadian has released a statement from Austin in which he charges "the teachers' pay raise plan is not being given a fair hearing in the House."

His statement follows: "The teachers' pay raise plan is, unfortunately, not being given a fair hearing in the House. The proposal backed by teachers in Texas has been sent to a subcommittee controlled by the Governor's forces.

"Naturally, that subcommittee will probably bury the salary boost the teachers have requested and report out the Governor's so-called five per cent pay raise plan. I don't think that is good enough for Texas. . . it hardly scratches the surface.

"The Republican Party thinks Texas deserves higher standards of education. . . and that is why we are urging a teacher pay raise that is a pay raise.

"The Senate has taken action and come up with a fair pay raise. I would like for the full membership of the House to have a chance to vote on what size pay raise our teachers deserve."

New Books on Shelves At Public Library

New Books on the shelves of Lovett Memorial Library May 15, 1967.

"The Riot" — Frank Ell; a taut, tense, minute-by-minute account of a two-day riot in a maximum-security penitentiary in the Midwest.

Cosmetics: Trick or Treat? — Toni Stable; the fascinating, frightening facts in this book will help you to understand the tricks or treats in the cosmetic products and services you use every day.

"Why Did They Kill Charley?" — Carter T. Young; the last time Will Thorp's wife saw Charley, the ranch hand, was when he and Will set out across the Texas prairie on a peace-making visit to the Cheyennes.

"The Best Short Stories by Negro Writers" — edited by Langston Hughes; an anthology from 1899 to the present.

"Speak, Memory" — Vladimire Nabokov; a unique picture of a loving, civilized family of adolescent awakenings, flight from Bolshevik terror, education in England, and emigre life in Paris and Berlin.

"Extreme Remedies" — Miriam Borgenicht; unfortunately, a small New England town full of busybodies; no place for a witless girl to plan murder — especially if she has to reckon with an unwilling accomplice.

"Winterwood" — I Dorothy Eden; the author proves once again that she knows how to build a Gothic romance as solidly as a Gothic tower.

"The Trouble With Tycoons" — H. Baldwin Taylor; Private detective Pete Holland's search for a missing electronics executive leads to a secluded hunting lodge whose frozen food locker is loaded with TV dinners—and trouble.

"Why these parks look like major league ones compared to some I've played in," said the short, trim man with the dark hair.
Lloyd Waner, here for the annual Optimist Club bar-be-que and official opening of the Little League season in Pampa, was speaking of the Optimist ball parks.
Waner shook hands with over 3,000 little leaguers, their parents and other baseball fans, signed autographs before eating, while eating and after eating.
Waner's wife, who accompanied him on the trip from Oklahoma City, was having just as much fun as the Hall of Famer, who, with his late brother Paul, make up the only brother duo in the Hall.

Waner spoke at official ceremonies about the thing he knows best and the thing that is so dear to him, baseball.
Waner was asked what he would talk about before things got underway and replied, "Well, I'm not much of a speaker. I haven't gotten anything written down, I never do. I just start talking."
"I always talk about baseball, that's why I'm here and that's what I love to talk about."
His wife enjoyed the trip here, saying, "We have had a lot of fun, the people here have been very nice."
Mrs. Waner was asked how it felt to be back on the "circuit."
"Oh, it feels pretty good, she laughed, adding, "Of course we are really just getting started, since Lloyd was voted in to the Hall of Fame. We've been to Florida and of course we'll be going to Cooperstown for the formal induction into the Hall.

Waner learned about his induction into the Cooperstown museum while in Pittsburgh where he was being inducted into that town's sports hall of fame.
"Someone called me and told me about it," said Mrs. Waner, adding, "Then Paul's wife called from Florida and I still didn't believe it. Then we got a telegram from Ford Frick saying that Lloyd had been voted into the Hall. Soon after that Lloyd called me from Pittsburgh and told me and we were single to score Cater."

SATURDAY'S RESULTS

Tigers Score 6 in Ninth

Tigers 10, Bosox 8
BOSTON (UPI)—Bill Freehan and Earl Wilson hit homers that brought in five tallies during a six-run ninth inning uprising Saturday, carrying the Detroit Tigers to a 10-8 victory over the Boston Red Sox for their seventh straight triumph.
The Tigers, trailing 5-4 after eight innings, retained their hold on first place when reliever John Wyatt gave up five extra base hits and hit two batters in the ninth.

Tom Haller

Phils 3, Reds 2
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Larry Brown crashed his second home run of the year Saturday to give Luis Tiant and the Cleveland Indians a 3-1 victory over the Washington Senators.
Tiant, posting his first victory of the season, also singled home Pedro Gonzalez in the second inning for the Indians' first run. Brown homered into the Senators' bullpen in the fifth.

Bucs 6, Braves 5
PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Don Clendenon doubled home Rober Clemente from second base in the 10th inning Saturday to give the Pittsburgh Pirates an uphill 6-5 victory over the Atlanta Braves.
Clemente opened the 10th by beating out an infield hit off loser Phil Niekro. Clemente moved to second on Bill Mazeroski's infield out and scored easily on Clendenon's drive off the left-center field wall.

Giants 4, Houston 3
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Tom Haller opened the sixth inning with his second home run in as many games Saturday to break a 3-3 tie and give the San Francisco Giants a 4-3 victory over the Houston Astros.
The big catcher unloaded at the expense of loser Barry Latman (1-1) after the Astros had deadlocked the contest with a three run rally in the top of the sixth.

Chisox 1, Angels 0
CHICAGO (UPI) — Smokey Burgess' 10th-inning sacrifice fly plus the two-hit pitching of Jim O'Toole enabled the Chicago White Sox to beat the California Angels 1-0 Saturday for their eighth straight victory.
Pete Ward led off the winning rally against loser Minnie Rojas with a double into right center. Ken Berry was intentionally walked and pinch-hitter Jerry Adair dropped an attempted sacrifice. First-baseman Moose Skowron, traded by the Sox to California last week, threw poorly to third base and the bases were loaded.

Cards Rained Out
ST. LOUIS — The scheduled single game between the St. Louis Cardinals and New York Mets was rained out Saturday night.
The contest was rescheduled as part of a day double header today. The Cardinals remained in second place in the National League as Cincinnati lost a single game.

A's 5, Twins 2
ST. PAUL - MINNEAPOLIS (UPI)—Rookie Rick Monday belted his second homer in as many days and Rookie Ramon Webster contributed a key single and a two-run double Saturday to lead the Kansas City Athletics to a 5-2 victory over the Minnesota Twins.
Monday, whose homer Friday night helped the A's nip the Twins' connected off loser Jim Grant in the first inning to initiate a two-run rally. It was the fourth homer of the season for the $100,000 bonus player.
Webster, who collected three hits, singled to set up the Athletics' second run in the first inning. He was forced at second by Danny Cater, but Cater took third when Rod Carew threw wildly trying for a double play. Jim Gosger followed with a single to score Cater.

Cubs 6, LA 3
LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Don Kessinger keyed a two-run outburst with a triple in the fifth inning and Adolfo Phillips hit a two-run homer in the sixth Saturday to pace the Chicago Cubs to a 6-3 victory and their second straight win over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Birds 5, Yanks 3
NEW YORK (UPI)—Mos Drabowsky and Eddie Watt pitched eight innings of one-hit relief ball and Al Downing wild-pitched home what proved to be the winning run to cap a wild four-run third inning Saturday night that carried the Baltimore Orioles to a 5-3 victory over the New York Yankees.

Tribe 3, Sens 1
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Larry Brown crashed his second home run of the year Saturday to give Luis Tiant and the Cleveland Indians a 3-1 victory over the Washington Senators.
Tiant, posting his first victory of the season, also singled home Pedro Gonzalez in the second inning for the Indians' first run. Brown homered into the Senators' bullpen in the fifth.

Nicklaus, Knudson Tied at New Orleans
NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Jack Nicklaus overcame a three stroke deficit Saturday to tie Canadian George Knudson for the third round lead in the $100,000 Greater New Orleans Open Golf Tournament.
"After a day-long see-saw battle with former British Open champion Bob Charles, Nicklaus and Knudson ended the third round with nine under par 20.
Knudson went into the third round with a one stroke lead but Nicklaus outshot him Saturday 69 to 70.
Charles fired a 70 Saturday to remain in third place with a 208, one stroke off the pace.
Defending champion Frank Beard another stroke back,

In With Con Out A Convict

NEW YORK (NEA) — Cassius Clay came in with con and goes out an incontinent convict, and now some bleeding hearts say it takes courage to do what he has done.
I say it takes stupidity, and since Cassius had trouble counting blocks the first time he took an Army intelligence test, you figure it out.
The little boy in the big man's body was bloated into one of those leering faces you see in trick mirrors at a Hall of Fun. But Cassius Clay, in his religious demagoguery, wasn't at all funny. If he goes to jail, the greatest irony of all will be that boxing won't miss him.
It's an historical fact that every time boxing is on the verge of extinction for lack of talent, a savior — he can even be unsavory, like Sonny Liston — some how pops up.
Here's how it works. Back in 1956, Rocky Marciano, at the peak of his powers as the first undefeated heavyweight boxing champion in history, decided to retire because he had run out of logical and worthy challengers. Before Rocky had hardly finished dipping into his third helping of lasagne, a young fellow named Floyd Patterson came along to claim the title late the same year by whipping ancient Archie Moore.

Floyd thus became the youngest champion in history, and Cus D'Amato, his manager, promptly proclaimed he was destined to be the greatest. He had people believing it, too.
Then Ingemar Johansson, an attractive Swede, exposed the vulnerability of Patterson's chin and for one year we were inundated with propaganda about the Hammer of Thor that Ingemar carried in his right hand.
Patterson, of course, came back to reclaim the crown, by now somewhat tarnished. Sonny Liston, just a few years out of jail, saved that situation. He knocked Patterson cold in the first round of their fight in Chicago in 1962, then repeated the performance the next year, Liston, a sullen, antiheroic, menacing in his looks, loomed as an unbeatable monster who'd have trouble enticing people into the same ring with him.
Along came a loud mouth from Louisville proclaiming himself the greatest and prettiest being in the world, spouting poetry and gathering enough publicity so that he almost forced a match with Liston. The odds against Cassius Clay beating the champion on Feb. 25, 1964, were 7-1, and there would have been no takers if they'd seen Clay's frenzied hysteria at the noon weigh-in. In what amounted to a charade of a fight, where first Clay tried to quit in his corner, and then Liston finally did, the title passed hands.

So for three years we've had to live with this babbling zealot. That is not to demean his fighting ability. He's looked every bit as good as he says he is. But once he's tucked out of sight watch how quickly the next superman build-up is accomplished for his successor.
There are symptoms of it already. Forget about the tired old claimants to the vacant title — fellows like Ernie Terrell, George Chuvalo, Zora Folley, Karl Mildenerger — who have had their chance and flunked. No one's going to accept their credentials. But coming fast on the outside is Joe Frazier, a two-fisted puncher from Philadelphia who is undefeated as a pro and has the prestige of an Olympic boxing title among his credentials. Joe'll mix in any company.

I'll steer you one step further to an appealing hulk of a man named Buster Mathis, who has been subjected to strenuous training by Cus D'Amato, Patterson's old manager, and in the process has shrunk from a blubbery 300 to 240 manageable pounds. Mathis beat Frazier twice when they were amateurs, the second time in the finals of the U. S. Olympic team trials, but Buster didn't make it to the Games in Melbourne, Australia, because he broke his hand.
Let's suppose Frazier fills Clay's void first, because he has been brought along faster as a pro. Joe is a knockout artist who intimidates his opponents. A couple of years from now they'd be wondering if Clay had the heart to stand up to his punches.
It's a lot more physical than fighting the government with a battery of lawyers.

JAMES MATNEY GARY MOLBERG ALLAN WOODARD RICK FOSTER LARRY STEPHENS

Bob Top Coach, 5 All-District

By RON CROSS
Sports Editor

Pampa's baseballers as a whole, coach Bobby Stephens in particular and Monterey's Steve Hurt were honored by District 3-4A coaches and the Pampa Daily News.

Pampa placed five players on the All-District team, Stephens was named Coach-of-the-Year in the district and Hurt walked off with Player-of-the-Year honors in a poll of coaches last week.

Stephens said he was thrilled and honored to be chosen but "all the credit goes to the boys. They worked hard, very hard. They were picked last in the conference and didn't want to end up there."

Stephens' forces were picked to finish last in a pre-season poll of the coaches but surprised everybody by winding up in third place with a 12-6 record and had a season record of 24-6.

The Harvesters were in the running for the district title throughout the first half of the season and part of the last half but lost a starting pitcher and reliever to squelch any hopes they had of winning the district title.

Stephens edged Monterey's Bobby Moegle as the top coach by a 4-3 margin. Moegle won the district title for the seventh time and also chalked up his 200th baseball victory during the season.

Hurt, stylish Monterey right-hander was one of the top pitchers and hitters in the league and has been for two straight years.

He posted an 11-2 season record and an 8-0 conference mark with a 1.61 earned run average. Hurt who was also picked as one of the top three pitchers and one of the best four outfielders in the league, hit .350 for the season and .351 in league play. He hit five home runs, two in district and drove in 22 runs.

The Selections:

1B-Dick Shaw, Borger, .329
2B-Rick Foster, Pampa, .331
SS-Gary Molberg, Pampa, .400

3B-Jimmy O'Jibway, Monterey, .427
OF-Steve Wattenburger, Tascosa, .326
x-OF-Vincent Barron, Plainview, .278
x-OF-James Matney, Pampa, .327

OF-Steve Hurt, Monterey, .351
x-C-Larry Stephens, Pampa, .228
Durk Hooving, Tascosa, .319
x-P-Alan Woodard, Pampa, 4-1
Steve Hurt, Monterey, 8-1
Jim Godley, Monterey, 7-2 x-Players tied with equal number of votes. Matney and Barron, Stephens and Hooving and Woodard and Hurt, all tied.

In the pitching department, Pampa's Allan Woodard impressed the coach of every team he faced. Woodard, who was injured at the start of the season, started six games, completed five and pitched three shutouts. He lost a 1-0, one hit, tie at Plainview and had a 0.99 earned run average.

Monterey's Godley compiled a 10-3 season and 7-2 district marks and had a 1.27 earned run average.

Dickie Shaw from Borger had a .329 district average but hit .352 for the season and hit four home runs for the Bulldogs.

Pampa's Foster hit .331 in district but finished with a .351 season average, hit six home runs, four in district and drove in 24 runs.

Molberg led the Harvesters in hitting for the second straight season. He hit .400 in district play and .418 for the season. Gary had seven home runs, five in district, to tie Hurt for the home run leadership. Gary drove in 18 district runs, which was tops.

O'Jibway was the only player to get the vote of every coach. He hit .427 in district action and .469 for the season. His district average was tops. He also hit two home runs and drove home 14 other runs.

Tascosa's Wattenburger compiled a .331 district average and scored 15 runs, the best on his team.

Matney was one of the league's better outfielders, especially for a young man who hadn't played in two years.

Matney hit .327 in district play and .348 for the season and hit one home run. The "Driller" had three stolen bases in league play to lead the Harvesters in thefts.

Hard, Hard Work Theme for Bobby

By RON CROSS
If you could gauge ball players as gas mileage then Harvesters baseball coach Bobby Stephens got about 30 miles to the gallon this spring.

District 3-4A's coach of the year pounded the theme "Hard Work" into his squad's noggin and brought them from a last place finish in 1966 to third place in 1967.

The loss of one of his top starting pitchers and a good relief hurler probably made the difference in third place and first place.

"I don't know that it did," said the slightly heavy, crew-cut Stephens. "But it didn't help us any to lose those two boys."

But third place or first place Stephens did a lot better job than district coaches thought he would in a pre-season poll.

"When we were picked last I think that made the boys mad, they worked very hard and did the best jobs they could."

In 1966, Stephens' first year as head baseball coach Pampa wound up in last place in the district, the first time that had ever happened, with a 4-14 record and 7-21 season mark.

His 1966 squad averaged about five errors per game. Then came Legion ball with the same squad and they finished 16-5 with an average of about two errors per game.

In 1967 the Harvesters finished 12-6 in district and 24-6 for the season and didn't average an error a game. Why the sudden change in playing?

"I think it was experience and mostly just hard work. The boys decided they were better than they were playing and wanted to prove it," the coach said.

Stephens, who went through 12 years of schooling in Pampa, was a standout football and baseball player for the Harvesters, then went to Stephens believes in hard work and getting the most out of his players.

"If you work hard every day and do the best job you possibly can then things will eventually break your way," he stated.

Losing the conference title wasn't the most disappointing thing for Stephens this season. It was seeing one of his boys lose a one-hitter.

Allan Woodard gave up just one hit to Plainview and lost

Northwestern at Alva, Okla. where he lettered in his two favorite sports.

"This past season has been very rewarding for me," Stephens said. "But they're all nice when you win."

"I think the most emotional part of the season was when Matney (outfielder James) hit his home run against Coronado. To see a boy who hadn't played in two years come back and do the job he did, was very rewarding. Of course we were all pulling for him to hit one every game and when he did, well, it's just impossible to say how I felt."

the game 1-0. He gave up a home run to the leadoff batter in the first inning and then retired the next 18 men in a row.

"It was really heartbreaking to see him lose one like that but we all tried our best but we just couldn't score."

Girls weren't much of a problem to Stephens in high school, he struck strictly to sports, but when he went off to college he met and married Donna Walsh, the daughter of a pretty good pitcher, Chris Walsh.

Donna is also one of the best umpires in the district.

Cokes Title on Line Friday

DALLAS (UPI)—Methodical Curtis Cokes, the bank messenger turned welterweight champion, and Francois Pavilla, the flashy Frechman who fought Cokes to a disputed draw in a non-title fight last January, meet again Friday. This time the crown will be at stake.

Gypsy Joe Harris, who decided Cokes in another non-title bout at Madison Square Garden last March, will take on Benny Bowser of Austin, Tex. in a preliminary fight on the same card, and then will sit back to see who he will meet for the championship in Dallas next July.

The undefeated Harris has been promised a shot at the crown against the winner of Friday night's fight, no matter how he himself does against the lightly regarded Bowser.

For Cokes, making the third defense of his crown, it will be his most crucial contest since he captured the title and said goodbye to his job of delivery man for a local bank.

The welterweight champion has not looked sharp in his past few outings, and his training sessions, held outdoors next to a pool at a plush motor hotel, have been less than inspiring.

He brings a 49-9-3 record into the battle, compared with Pavilla's 41-3-2.

Last January, the two met in Paris, and fought to a draw. Cokes said he was the victim of a hometown decision. Pavilla said he should have won.

Their fighting styles will also make for an interesting struggle.

Cokes is a boxer in the classic sense. He does not "go after" his opponent, and many say this will lead to his downfall as witnessed by his loss to the aggressive Harris in New York.

Pavilla likes to crowd his man, throwing as many punches as he can. He has recorded 22 knockouts using that style and has defeated Jean Jossin, who lost to Cokes early this year in the champ's first defense.

Pavilla flew into Dallas last Friday night to begin his workouts at the same poolside ring where Cokes has trained.

Harris, who will be going after his 20th win without a loss, is regarded as an inch to whip Bowser, who has lost his last two fights to local boys.

Beef Consumer Session Planned

Pampans who want to know how to recognize different cuts of beef, and how to prepare beef may attend the beef consumer program at Robert E. Lee Junior High School cafeteria at 7:30 p.m. May 16.

Paul Crouch, Panhandle Packing Company, will cut up a side of beef to show where each cut comes from and how many of each cut is available to customers.

Mrs. Mildred Prince, home service advisor of Southwestern Public Service, will demonstrate how to prepare different cuts of beef.

Mrs. Jimmie Lou Wainwright, Gray County home demonstration agent, and Foster Whaley, Gray County agricultural agent, are sponsoring the program with the Family Life Committee of the Gray County Program Building Committee.

According to information released by Ed Uvacek, Texas department livestock marketing specialist, a 1,000 lb. steer will yield a 600 pound carcass, but only 444 lbs. of retail cuts.

A chart prepared by Uvacek shows that 26 percent of a steer is roast, 24 percent is steak, 25 percent is waste products and 24 percent is miscellaneous.

The difference between what the farmer receives for cattle and what the consumer pays for beef is called the marketing or farm-to-retail margin.

It includes all charges for distributing and processing services required to move live animals from the farm and convert them to meatcuts for consumers.

For a U.S. Choice grade animal, only about 60 pounds of carcass beef are obtained from 100 pounds of live weight.

The value of by products and the wholesale value of dressed carcass determines the price paid farmers for live animals, Uvacek said in his article, "From Steer to Steak."

Panhandle Water Conservation News

By FELIX W. RYLAS

An important meeting has been scheduled in Pampa for Tuesday at noon at Jim's Steak House. Business, agricultural, county, municipal and industrial leaders from throughout the Panhandle area will attend.

The general objectives of another meeting in Lubbock, May 24 will be outlined. A water association will be formed at the Lubbock meeting to expand resources in the Panhandle and High Plains of West Texas.

The meeting here was called by Mayor Jim Nations and Fred S. Vanderburg, vice president of the board of directors of the Panhandle Ground Water Conservation District. Nations and Vanderburg have been selected as Water Association directors. Mayor Nations will preside in the noon meeting at Jim's Steak House Tuesday.

The West Texas Water Association idea originated after the Texas 2020 Water Plan was released early in 1966. The original 2020 Water Plan, supposedly designated to provide for the water needs of the entire State of Texas, for all practical purposes left the entire West Texas, High Plains, and Panhandle area out.

The Texas 2020 Plan also revealed information which water leaders in the West Texas area agreed with. Cold hard facts showed our area would start to decline economically by 1980. This decline would be caused by a lack of underground and surface water. Salvation beyond that date must then be the importation of water.

Water importation is nothing new. You can go to California and Arizona to know that. Imported water is what made agriculture in Arizona. They went for it hook-line-and-sinker, and look where they are now! California already has completed numerous water projects, and now is about to move over four million acre feet annually from northern to southern California at a cost of some three billion dollars. Water projects are being developed in Washington, Kansas and Oklahoma. Other states are preparing for it, and Texas is one of these.

Texas Slow to Act

Texas has been a little slow, considering its water resource needs. In 1957, the legislature passed the "Water Resources Planning Act." From this the Texas Water Commission was formed, and later, Gov. John Connally reorganized it into the Texas Water Development Board.

This was commissioned, as he put it, "to deal realistically with water needs of every area of the state both now and in the future."

The TWDB was to operate in a continuing function, administering a 400 million dollar water development fund. Intensified study and research since 1964 in coordination with the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation and the U.S. Corps of Engineers culminated in the "Preliminary Texas Water Plan." This plan, published in May of 1966, claims to provide for all of Texas' water requirements to the year 2020.

High Plains' Needs Omitted

Unfortunately for the High Plains, this water plan, providing for the expenditure of some two and half billion dollars, left us out. The movement of four million acre feet of water annually would meet the needs of central, southern, and southwestern Texas but would not bring a drop of water to us. Yet, a water supply for our area would make us one of the greatest agricultural parts of the United States.

When hearings were held on the Preliminary Texas Water Plan, a clamor, which sounded like the "shot heard around the world" produced such opposition that those who formulated the water plan had no alternative but to change it.

West Texas leaders picked it apart and showed the water development board the apparent feasibility of transporting water to West Texas.

When confronted with extraordinary cost estimates for an importing project from East Texas, the water planners were told that West Texans should decide for themselves whether the cost was too high.

Work Starts for West Texas

As a result of the vociferous actions of West Texas leaders, the new state water plan was presented to us in February this year. The Texas Water Development Board turned out to be far more cooperative than expected. Feasibility studies had already been initiated, these involving both interstate deliveries into East Texas reservoirs and distribution systems for transporting water into West Texas.

Engineering and construction firms were given contracts to analyze costs, routes, and repayment requirements. For example, the firm of Forrest and Cotton was given the project of conveying water to the Cooper Reservoir, and its movement westward contracted to Freese, Nichols and Endress.

The Ralph M. Parsons Company of Los Angeles was given the financing studies involving capital and operational costs to determine repayment capability and sources of revenues. These studies were scheduled for completion this spring and evaluation by the Texas Water Development Board this fall.

The 1200th upstream flood prevention dam in Texas has been contracted, according to a report from H. N. Smith, state conservationist for the Soil Conservation Service in Temple.

Smith said this milestone in Texas watershed progress was due to local-level frontline leadership of soil and water conservation districts, county commissioners courts, cities, river authorities, and other groups who back the projects.

These sponsors secure all needed land rights and maintain completed projects. Progress is also due to projects that prevent floods and halt erosion and sediment damages that clog rivers and lakes. They also protect and improve water supplies, benefiting urban and rural communities.

Almost half of the 1200 dams (599) are in the Trinity River watershed and 190 are in the Middle Colorado. The others are in small watersheds scat-

A sample of wheat from Abe Lewis' farm showed as much as 50 percent freeze damage. It takes about 10 to 12 days after a freeze to determine the extent of wheat damage. From several reports in Gray County, this freeze had the most severe affect on wheat of any we can recall previously.

Rex McKay and several others who grazed their irrigated wheat out are extremely happy they elected to follow this course. In addition to collecting a $30 to $35 bonus for the grazing, they now have their land ready for a milo crop. Rex believes he can hit a 6,000 pound yield of milo on this 1966-67 wheat land. We believe many irrigation farmers will turn to this new technique. It is an almost sure-shot way of double cropping successfully.

European countries have high yielding varieties of wheat that have been developed for higher rainfall and weather conditions. In the northwestern part of the U.S. they have varieties that consistently yield up to 80 and 100 bushels per acre.

Our trouble here in the Panhandle seems to be in not having an irrigated variety of wheat of good milling qualities that will produce consistently high yields. Improved Triumph is the best producing variety for irrigated production and also stands at or near the top on dryland production. We are using dryland varieties on irrigated production for lack of a better variety.

It appears to me we need to expand research in development of an irrigated variety that tered over the state. The 1200th dam is Site 130 in the Cedar Creek watershed near Mabank. Sponsors are the Kaufman-Van Zandt Soil and Water Conservation District, the Cedar Creek Watershed Association, and the Rockwall, Kaufman, and Van Zandt County Commissioners Courts. Cedar Creek is a Trinity River tributary.

Last September, Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman dedicated the 1000th small watershed dam built in the state near Van Alstyne.

will break the 100 bushel yield barrier consistently.

Why doesn't some wheat farmer start a movement to kick in two to five cents per bushel on all wheat produced and donate this to a massive research project to seek out a proper variety? It might come as a hybridized variety. We need to send a delegation of noted agronomists on an "around the world" tour for this area.

James Murphrey, former farm and ranch management specialist, Extension Service, has said repeatedly, "We are producing wheat at an economic loss in the Panhandle under irrigation. Even the best producers are selling their precious underground water too cheaply."

Slow Rain Would Stop 'Dry Spell'

AUSTIN (UPI) — Texas Agriculture Commissioner John C. White said it will take a "good dry general rain" to end a "bad dry spell" that has heavily damaged the state wheat crop.

White refused to call the bone-dry Texas weather of recent months a drought, "because it takes several years to form a drought."

"There haven't been any significant rains to really take the pressure off," White said. "Certain areas have had good rains, but we haven't had good general moisture."

"White said it was a case of 'more sinned and fury than moisture,' with some areas getting five inches and farmers five miles up the road starving for moisture."

"It's a bad dry spell which has hurt the wheat crop, but we still have time for grain sorghums, cotton and most basic crops," he said.

BECAUSE IT'S Mothers' Day . . . and because sons and daughters will be paying homage to their Moms . . . we're going to reverse a firm policy about re-printing poetry and let a poem written by a former Harvester . . . now a West Texas Coed . . . mirror the collective thoughts of all children . . . It was written by the former Miss Paulette Lefebvre . . . who recently became Mrs. Bill Moreland . . . to her mother, Mrs. Paul Lefebvre titled "To You, Mother" . . .

How often I wish you were near,
To ease all my sorrows and fears,
Like you once did when I was but a child,
Your arms gentle and your voice tender and mild.
As I grew up, I found you always there,
To hear my problems and sorrows we would share,
The touch of your hand and the smile you wore,
Showed me a new way that I never knew before.
I always found your arms a comfort, too,
All the wonderful times I've shared with you,
Are kept in my heart so very deep,
A treasure that I'll always keep.
There were many times that I hurt you,
And in sorrow I remember them, too,
I can't relieve the pain of yesterday,
But try to lighten them by what I say.
I love you more than God has ever known,
No one, Mother, could ever take your place,
Or the smile that brightens your lovely face,
No, Mother, there is no one quite like you,
The greatest mother, the world ever knew."

Pampans Plan Plaudits To Their Mothers Today

The Pampa Daily News

60th Year SUNDAY, MAY 24, 1967 Page 13

PTA MOMS participating in a Golden Rule Installation Ceremony at a luncheon in Jackson's Cafeteria are, from the left, Mrs. George B. Cree Jr., past city council president and installing officer for Mrs. N. L. Nicholl, PTA council president; Mrs. Gene Snell, vice president; and Mrs. Calvin Hogan, secretary. Mrs. Troy Bennett, treasurer, was unable to be present when the picture was taken.

HER DAY — The scene shown above will be repeated in many homes all over Pampa today as Mothers receive symbolic gifts of their family's appreciation for thoughts of love, acts of service and comfort throughout the rest of the year. Mrs. W. P. Poole, 1432 Williston, is Queen For the Day for her admiring sons, from the left, Bobby, Jimmy and George.

MISS ANNA JARVIS is the 60-year-old Philadelphia spinster, who invented Mother's Day in America. The idea came to her on the second Sunday in May, 1907, the first anniversary of her mother's death. In 1908, the Governor of Florida issued a special Mother's Day proclamation . . . then in 1914, President Woodrow Wilson issued a National proclamation.

THUS BEGAN Mother's Day . . . and Miss Jarvis' constant, but hopeless, fight against commercialism of a day she thought to be observed reverently and individually. A battle she fought up to the time of her death. One of her slogans was "Don't Kick Mother out of Mother's Day."

ONE OF Miss Jarvis' relatives is a Pampan . . . her mother, Mrs. Anne Reeves Jarvis in whose memory Mother's Day originated, was a second cousin to Mrs. Mary Bedell of Pampa, mother of Mrs. Barbara Cockrell, Lovett Memorial librarian.

BUT, MOTHER'S DAY was observed in various ways . . . long before Miss Jarvis introduced the idea in America. There was a charming idea in England, which set a special day known as "Mothering Sunday." This was in the middle of Lent and all young men and women who were serving away from home as apprentices were asked to visit their parents, especially the female one, and taking some little present, such as a cake or a trinket. A youth engaged in this amiable act of duty was said to go a-mothering and thence the day itself came to be called Mothering Sunday.

SINCE POETRY is one of the deepest forms of self-expression, Mothers from time immemorial have inspired beautiful lines like those of Oliver Wendell Holmes who wrote:

"Youth fades, love droops, the leaves of friendship fall
A mother's secret hope outlives them all."
Or those by W. R. Wallace, who wrote:
They say that man is mighty,
He governs land and sea,
He weilds a mighty scepter,
O'er lesser powers than he;
But mightier power and stronger
Man from his throne has hurled
For the hand that rocks the cradle
Is the hand that rules the world.

PTA City Council Officers Charged To Follow Golden Rule

Mrs. George B. Cree Jr., a past City Council PTA president, installed new city council officers in a ceremony Tuesday morning in Robert E. Lee Junior High School.

Using golden yardstick rulers, tipped with PTA seals, showered with yellow and gold ribbons, as symbols, she stated "The PTA occupies a very worthy place in all communities. Through the years, the aims and ideals have remained the same, but always we interpret them in terms of the ever-changing trends and demands of our times."

"Fellowship," she said, "is as important as "Leadership." All about us there are notes of warning indicating our children's education is at stake."

To the incoming president, Mrs. N. L. Nicholl, Mrs. Cree said, "May this Golden Rule remind you, as you take leadership of this group, your guidance should be straight and your actions square."

To the vice president, Mrs. Gene Snell, the installing officer charged, "Let us go back to the Golden Rule. . . do unto others as you would have them do unto you."

In the secretary, Mrs. Calvin Hogan, she said, "A ruler is used for accuracy, let that be your key word"; to the treasurer, Mrs. Troy Bennett, "Both edges of this ruler are even, may this remind you as treasurer to keep your books in balance."

Preceding the installation ceremony, Mrs. Charles M. Lanehart, outgoing council president presided as reports were given by Mrs. Calvin Hogan, secretary and Mrs. Weldon Rogers, treasurer.

An auditing committee, composed of Carl Jones, Mrs. Gene Barber, and Mrs. S. T. Friend reported the treasurer's books had been found in order.

It was announced at the executive board meeting, prior to the general meeting, the resignation of Mrs. Z. L. Land, vice president, was accepted with regret. Mrs. Gene Snell was elected to fill the vacancy.

The annual historian's report was given by Mrs. Paul Howard. She announced the Leadership Course was attended by 16 members and the Parliamentary Course by 19 members.

Altrusans Hear Chamber's Plans For 'Sparkle A-Go-Go' In May

"Sparkle A-Go-Go" was presented as the program theme for the Altrusa Club of Pampa meeting held in the Coronado Inn by Mrs. L. K. Elshimer, chairman of the Community Service Committee.

James Hart, a member of the Beautification Clean-up - Fix-up Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, reviewed what had been accomplished and some of the plans for this year. He stressed the project of clearing vacant lots of old buildings and debris as one means of improving the beauty of the city. He said May is clean-up month and urged his listeners to cooperate with the city trucks which are busy hauling trash and debris from anywhere in the city.

Mr. Hart also spoke of the work that needs to be done to clean up and beautify Recreation Park, east of Pampa, and make it a picnic ground for everyone to enjoy. He stressed the fact that "Pampa can be just as clean and beautiful as the people living in Pampa want to make it."

Mrs. Irl Smith, president, was in charge of the business session.

Mrs. Louise Sewell introduced Linda Gardner as the Altrusa Girl for April. She introduced Miss Gail Donaldson, Altrusa Girl for May. Lillian Snow introduced Laura Bell Cornelious and Mrs. Genevieve Henderson's guest was Katherine Sulins.

Alpha Iota Officers Take Office In Impressive Rites

In an impressive ceremony, Miss Alma Wilson, Mrs. Austin Ruddick and Mrs. Roy Sparkman of the Gamma Kappa Iota, installed the officers of the Alpha Iota Conclave for the coming year of 1967-68. Mrs. Sparkman presented violets to each member and officer present. To install officers, Miss Wilson used the theme from the Bible text of Exodus 4: 1-4 where Moses is seeking new discipline out of life's disappointments and failures.

Miss Wilson asked, "Who of us does not stand appalled by the challenge on the one hand, and the inadequate measure of our own resources on the other? When we are brought face to face with God, and his claims, the world and its needs, we so often say to God - 'You don't mean me'." Miss Wilson reminded the officers these are sometimes their thoughts.

She explained whatever their ability is, it matters little, but what they do with it, matters much. "John Bunyan, Lewis Pasteur and George Washington Carver had little to offer, but from each ability came great accomplishments," she said. The incoming officers were asked, "What do you have to offer?" In answer, Miss Wilson said, "Let's not be disturbed because it is so little. What we have is what the Lord wants."

In closing, Miss Wilson read words of encouragement from

MATURE PARENT

By MURIEL LAWRENCE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

He had been born to an unmarried mother, aged 12. So, almost at once the Welfare Machine took over and began to process him through its usual circuits — the foundling hospital, the orphanage, the three foster homes and finally the reformatory where I worked.

I never liked him. I tried to but I couldn't. However, his life's desolation so typified the backgrounds of other delinquent children that one evening I recounted his unidentified history to my hostess, an intense young woman who made lots of money writing television commercials. She cried:

"You mean that this boy has no family at all? That he has no place to go on weekends or holidays? My God! Well, Bill and I'll be his family. We'll make this apartment his home!"

Her charity made me nervous. It made Joe's clinical psychiatrist even more nervous. But with the desolation of that past of Joe's in mind, we decided to risk the introduction. Accordingly, on his following birthday, he was given a record player. For Christmas he got a gold watch. And on holidays and weekends, Joe was fed lobster and slept between scented sheets. On his discharge, he was found a job in the office of a friend of his benefactress.

Then it happened. Joe stole $700 from the office safe and took off with the cops after him. Know why? He'd used up the stock of charity in his benefactress. She'd got bored by Joe's famished greediness. And so tried to restrain it by saying to him, "We're not a national bank. So we can't give you a Christmas present and a check to buy us presents, too. Make up your mind which it is you want and let me know." But you can't restrain hunger in the starving Joes. If you promise

AAUW Concludes Current Year At Breakfast Meet

Hugh peeples, local realtor, was guest speaker, at the May breakfast meeting of the American Association of University Women held in the Cibola Room of Coronado Inn.

Speaking on the topic, "Laws in Real Estate," he told the group several things to look for when buying a house.

"A house for sale will sell better or bring a better price if the owners will do several things to prepare it for the market." He recommended consulting an attorney before buying property.

The meeting brought to a close the current study topic "The Law and The Citizen." The new topic to be studied when the association reconvenes in the fall will be "Society's Reflection in Art" with Mrs. N. G. Kadingo as program chairman.

It was announced the national convention will be held in Miami Beach, Fla. June 18-22. Mrs. Lalar Wilkerson plans to represent the Pampa chapter at the meeting.

Officers for next year are Mrs. S. B. Flowers, president; Mrs. Charles Ellis, vice president and membership chairman; Mrs. N. G. Kadingo, vice president and program chairman; Mrs. Lonnie Kenney, secretary; Mrs. Lee Harrah, treasurer.

Committee chairmen are Mrs. O. M. Prigmore, cultural interests; Mrs. A. E. Berry, education; Miss Inez Clubb, world affairs; Mrs. Lois Morrison, legislative; Mrs. Wilkerson, fellowship.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: Maybe this isn't any of my business, but I can't stand to see what is going on without trying to help. A certain woman in this town has had it in her head that her daughter must marry a minister.

The daughter is now 44 and she still isn't married. When the mother hears of an unmarried minister anywhere in the area they make a trip and start running after him.

One was a mere boy of 29, who finally asked for a transfer to get away from this mother-daughter team. Another, a widower of 55, used to hide from them.

The girl is nice enough but if her mother doesn't quit chasing ministers for her she will be an old maid forever. Is there any way I can help.

SORRY FOR THE GIRL: DEAR SORRY: If the daughter, at 44, is still going along with her mother's fixation about marrying a minister, there is nothing you can do — except, maybe, to find her a minister.

DEAR ABBY: I am 13 and need your help. I want to get my ears pierced, but my mother says it isn't necessary. I heard that you said you thought it was all right and that you had your ears pierced. Can you help me?

WANTS PIERCED EARS: DEAR WANTS: Sorry, Honey, no help from his corner. With regard to pierced ears, I said I did not have my ears pierced as I didn't need two more holes in my head.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is away on a foreign job and this problem confronts me: We have no children, therefore my neighbors, friends and relatives insist on sending their children (kids from 5—who still wet the bed—to 15-year-olds) to stay overnight with me so I won't be "alone." I can lock my house up completely and I keep a loaded gun on my bedside table, and believe me I have never expressed a fear of being "alone" nor have I asked for company.

I have an office job and do not enjoy the extra bed-changing, meals and work involved with having these uninvited "guests." How can I let these well-meaning people know that I do not need anyone to babysit with me.

PERPLEXED: DEAR PERPLEXED: It is inconceivable that you should feel so strongly about this and be unable to communicate your objections. It would appear you are being used to "babysit" instead of vice versa. I advise you to say NO and make it sound like no.

DEAR ABBY: Don't blame the hand-crushers too much. They may not know their own strength.

The summer I was 18, I work- (See ABBY, Page 19)

El Progreso's Year Re-Lived On Phone

El Progreso club met in the home of Mrs. Glenn Radcliff for a salad luncheon and installation of officers for the coming year. Mrs. Kermit Lawson, president, presided at the business meeting.

New officers installed by Mrs. Kermit Lawson, outgoing president, were Mrs. Carlton Nance, president, Mrs. Ben Hamilton, vice-president, Mrs. R. I. Bray, secretary, Mrs. Tom Perkins, treasurer and Mrs. Leon Patterson, reporter.

Mrs. Nance appointed the following committees: Social, Mrs. Veri Hagaman, Mrs. Glenn Radcliff, Mrs. R. I. Bray and Mrs. John Gill; Membership, Mrs. Jess Clay, Mrs. Elmer Fisher and Mrs. Kermit Lawson; Telephone, Mrs. Bruce Riehart and Mrs. D. V. Burton; Courtesy, Mrs. Charles Lanehart and Mrs. V. J. Drew; Budget, Mrs. Perry Moore, Mrs. Elmer Fisher and Mrs. J. G. Morrison; Program and Yearbook, Mrs. Ben Hamilton, Mrs. John Damron and Mrs. Leon Patterson.

Mrs. Carlton Nance and Mrs. Perry Moore reviewed club activities of the past year by the means of a telephone conversation. Using real phones as props, Mrs. Moore dialed Mrs. Nance, who was seated across the table from her, and told her how pleased she had been with the club programs. They talked about the coffee held in September when Raymond Nance dis-

Miniskirts or ermine? Either could be in prospect for the 1500 British European Airways stewardesses and ground hostesses for whom new uniforms will be designed. You might say they'll be dressed to suit a queen. The airline has chosen Queen Elizabeth's couturier, Hardy Amies, to say what they will wear in the years ahead. In a poll of staff, sentiment for miniskirts was seen creeping up.

Checking In At Lovett Memorial Library

By BARBARA COCKRELL, Librarian

The fine collection of Indian artifacts recently on display at the library has attracted a great deal of attention and comment. For who has not at some time hoped to find at least one or two of those strange, pointed stone weapons lost by people who were here long ago? And who, at some time, has not sensed the presence of the "Old Ones," as he holds an arrowhead in his hand and wondered: Who were those people and where did they go? Were all those thousands of arrowheads, stone knives and tools left by the Indians that were here to greet our first pioneers? How long have the Plains been inhabited, and who were really the "first settlers" of the Panhandle? To answer these questions, we must draw largely on imagination, coupled with the evidence of archaeology, and go back some 25,000 years.

A half-starved band of hunters, men, women and children, have wandered many miles in search of food. Suddenly they are running, yelling and waving wildly, into a marshy depression where five elephants are trapped in the mire. Women join the men to finish off the weakened animals. With clubs, spears and rocks, they administer death blows and then fall to gorging themselves on the steaming mass of fresh meat. For days they camp at this spot, eating and resting and eating again, and finally they move on.

Is this fantasy? No, this is the prehistory of the Panhandle. It happened near Miami, our neighbor town, approximately 25,000 years ago. In 1938 the fossil remains of the five mammoths, together with ancient Folsom points, were excavated. From this evidence, the story of the hunting party was reconstructed.

For those people who take delight in hunting Indian artifacts and delving into the prehistory of the Plains area, the Panhandle is a veritable treasure house. The Panhandle offers one of the richest and most inexhaustible fields for scientific and historical study in America. But most intriguing is the knowledge that scientists have thus far only scratched the surface. It is quite possible that anyone rambling across the plains, or exploring a dry canyon, might stumble across an important "find."

Until relatively recent years the evidence of early cultures was ignored. Today, however, the picture has changed, and there is much written material on the subject of our earliest American history.

Among the newest books at the library are "Prehistoric Man on the Great Plains," by Walter B. Wedel, and "An Introduction of American Archaeology," by Gordon Willey. Both books contain a wealth of illustrations that will help to identify the arrowheads you may find. A most valuable source of information, — one that is often overlooked — is the library's collection of the "Panhandle Plains Historical Review." You may find complete issues of this fine periodical dating back to 1928 publication. And while you are browsing through "The Chronicles of Oklahoma," and "Southwest Heritage," both are periodicals recently acquired by the library.

Exploring the country to see what you can find is lots of fun. Best of all, it doesn't cost a cent. Remember, your library will help you to get started on your trip to explore the Old Frontier, so — Happy hunting!

School and You

By SUSAN LIGHT

News-Editor: Dierdrae Ann

DEAR MRS. LIGHT: In a right for a teacher to "tease" a child unmercifully? My little girl sucks her thumb, a habit she's had since babyhood. An only child, she's shy and has health problems such as sinus, sore throats and stur-achaches. In the beginning the teacher called her "Little Bit," and all the children followed suit. Who missed quite a bit of school, and the teacher told her if she was absent any more, she would have to take first grade, one. Now the children tease her about playing hooky and thinking first grade, also, they call her "Thumbelina" because she sucks her thumb. Sometimes she cries about going to school. She says if she has to take first grade over, she might as well stay home and wait for next year. This hurts me because she was so anxious to start school.

—FIRST GRADER'S MOTHER

ANSWER: A typical first-grade unit of work, "Thumbelina," is the first grade always seem unattractive to parents. Fortunately, they usually solve themselves, and the second year is a relatively peaceful one. You must learn to take good-natured teasing at their stride. It would appear, however, that your little girl's teacher goes a bit overboard. She should know that nicknames worry a sensitive child, even when used affectionately, and that children invariably mimic the teacher when she ridicules a classmate.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license, nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself no more, no less. It is thus consistent with the Human Relations Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

SUNDAY MORNING GRIST

From the Editorial Mill

AT WEEKEND only the governor's signature was needed to make Texas' Open Meetings Bill the law of the State. . . After passing 28 to 0 in the Senate, it was approved 144 to 3 in the House. . . This puts members of school boards, city councils and county commissions on notice that the "secret meeting" is out. . . No longer can they hold meetings behind closed doors without violating the law. . . And public officials who disregard the law can be fined $25 to $200 on first offense and $100 to $500 for subsequent infractions. . . Exemptions in the bill are deliberations on dismissal of a public employe, real estate acquisitions and security matters. . . The Pampa Daily News never has been opposed to any of these exemptions. . . It has been opposed, however, to abuse of the exemptions when they were used as an excuse to call meetings for discussions of other matters. . . It will be interesting to see if the exemptions now will be used in the face of penalty for violation. . . We have known some public officials who would take the chance of a $25 or $100 fine to get away with a secret meeting to deliberate something which they had decided was "none of the public's business".

PERHAPS you read the news story the other day about the federal anti-poverty worker in St. Louis who said he was fired from his job in a training program because he refused to ask applicants questions about their sex lives. . . The man's St. Louis boss, when quizzed about the matter, simply admitted that "Washington requires the information". . . The fired anti-poverty worker said his duties directed him to find out whether illegitimate sexual relationships existed in a person's family or household, and added, in substance, he thought that was going too far and apparently the federal anti-poverty people were more interested in collecting spicy statistics than they were in serving the people of the area. . . That's just one type of snooping Big Brother is doing. . . You probably would gasp in disbelief if you knew exactly how much of your personal life is on record in the computerized files of the Wonderful Wizards of Washington. . . There was quite a hullabaloo, it is re-

TODAY IS Mother's Day. . . At the bottom of this column you will find what we think is an entirely new approach to the Mother's Day theme. . . So we leave the Mother's Day tribute to Mildred Progar. . . It will give readers something to think about—both mothers and children. . . We have just finished reading an address made at a banquet recently in Cincinnati, Ohio. . . The speaker's topic was "America's Failing Memory". . . Treatment of the subject was such that we have written for permission to publish it soon on the editorial page of The Pampa News. . . To give you some inkling of the subject matter, the speaker opened his remarks with these words: . . . "I take courage tonight to speak of the one subject which troubles my mind above every other and which lies most heavily upon my heart. I shall ask you to think with me of the United States of America, this country we love, and of its plight and its future." . . The speaker goes on from there, avoiding partisan or political considerations, and proceeds to a startling set of facts and conclusions. . . It should provide a measure of lucubration and concern among people who care what is happening.

NOW, FOR a quick and final change of pace. . . It always has been (to us) one of life's little local mysteries (?) why school board member John Gikas never has made the presidency of that austere group. . . A board president and other officers are elected annually but Gikas, now serving in his seventh year, has never been so honored. —DFD

THE GUEST PEN:

Ministry of Motherhood

By MILDRED PROGAR
An idea in the mind of Miss Anna Jarvis back in May of 1908 has established an American tradition. . . that of honoring mothers. Today we give special thought to showing Mother how we love her. . . from breakfast in bed to dinner out, we shower her with gifts designed to show love and appreciation. . . The thought of honoring mother on a special day is lovely and deserving to be kept alive. . . mothers are very important and special persons. But, lest the sentimentality of the tradition lead to the land of illusion, let's consider what it means to be a mother.

The act of giving physical birth does not necessarily mean that a woman is a mother. Conscious choice to live according to her own creative nature identifies the mother. As nature ministers to life, motherhood is a ministry. I believe that it is the most important and most rewarding ministry in life. It requires realism because the responsibility is so great. . . to one's self and consequently, to others. Truly, the hand that rocks the cradle does shape the world. . . the world of the child. . . who is the adult in the making. The name "Mother Nature" is used to identify the creative principle of life—the impersonal

The Doctor Says:

By DR. WAYNE BRANDSTADT
Two Lines of Treatment Of Bladder Infections

A mother writes that her daughter, 6, has had a bladder infection since she was 2. In spite of sulfa drugs her urine still shows a few pus cells. She appears to be healthy in other respects. I would venture to say that this child has a chronic low-grade kidney infection rather than an infection limited to the bladder.

All chronic conditions are hard to clear up but there are two lines of treatment of infections of the urinary tract that are usually successful. When sulfa drugs fail, a study should be made to identify the causative germ and to test its susceptibility to chloramphenicol or other antibiotics.

If treatment with antibiotics doesn't work there is still the old standby—alternately acidifying the urine with mandelic acid and alkalinizing it with bicarbonate of soda.

Q—My son, 3, gets frequent attacks of tracheobronchitis. Will he ever outgrow this? Is there any way to prevent these attacks?

A—A thorough study should be made to see whether your son has a chronic infection in his sinuses, tonsils, adenoids or lungs, and whether he has any allergies, as these may bring on recurrent attacks of bronchitis. He is not likely to outgrow the attacks but removal of the cause should reduce their frequency.

Q—Our 7-month-old grandson has asthma. Is it usual for so young a child to have this disease? The doctor advises keeping him in dust-free rooms when he is indoors. Can he outgrow this disease?

A—Asthma and other allergic disease may become manifest in infants who are only 5 or 6 months old. Usually, in such cases, the cause is relatively easy to find. You did not say whether the restrictions on dust were made as a matter of general principle or as a result of careful studies to find the exact cause of the asthma. Discovering and removing the cause is always the first line of treatment. Although it may be possible to outgrow some allergic disease, I would not count on it.

Q—If a child develops an umbilical hernia shortly after birth, would this cause excessive belching, crying or vomiting?

A—The only trouble that may result from an umbilical hernia is very large is strangulation of the intestines. This would be a surgical emergency. The usual umbilical hernia causes no symptoms and usually disappears without treatment by the time the child is two years old.

Wit and Whimsy

A British comedian once boasted that he could make a pun out of any subject.
Joe (his friend) —How about the queen?
Jim (the joker) — The queen is not a subject.

Jerry — How is your wife coming on her reducing diet?
Jack — She lost 2,300 pounds last week.
Jerry — Impossible! How?
Jack — Left the keys in the ignition when she parked the car.

As the bored child said to his father on a motor trip:
Little Jimmy — Why don't you let Mom drive? It's more exciting.

her responsibility. It is not responsibility to the child first—in a sacrificial sense—but her responsibility to fulfill the nature of herself as a mother. The mother who is alert to her own needs and the needs of the child will never feel that she has given up anything for the child. She will know that she has given to the relationship all that was meaningful to her. The wisely-loving mother will help the child to help himself. . . education will consist of self-knowledge, self-expression and self-respect. As she understands her own natural use of the creative principles in life, she will institute the causes that will produce the natural effects for constructive living for herself and her child. Upon being remembered and honored in any special way on Mother's Day, she will truly enjoy the expressions of love and thank her child—or children—for sharing her joyous experience of Motherhood. She's glad to be a mother, naturally.

Remedy for Luxury?

(Magazine Publishers Assn.)
"I have not yet, indeed, thought of a remedy for luxury." —Benjamin Franklin.

Between the Bookends

The Incredible Bread Machine
A few years ago, Richard W. Grant wrote an amusing and educational poem called "Tom Smith and the Incredible Bread Machine." It tells the story of a man who invented a machine that produced bread so cheaply it could be sold for less than a penny a loaf.

The hero was, of course, applauded for what he had accomplished. And in accordance with free market principles, he was greatly rewarded—becoming a millionaire. But with the passage of time, Tom Smith's wonderful innovation was taken for granted:

"People asked from where it came, Would very seldom know, They would simply eat and ask, 'Was not it always so?'"
When a business tax was raised and the price of bread was pushed upward to a full penny per loaf, the outcry came. Smith was accused with the whole standard repertoire of anti-capitalist diatribes.

"Comments in the nation's press Now scorned Smith and his plunder: 'What right had he to get so rich On other people's hunger?'"
And so the poem goes on—an excellent analogy to the true story of John D. Rockefeller who was probably one of the world's greatest benefactors. He brought light and power to more people than the REA ever will—but he has been pictured as a greedy villain who made life miserable for everyone else.

Richard W. Grant has now published his lengthy poem as an appendix to his new book "The Incredible Bread Machine" (distributed by Sandra Jeffries, Box 14031, E. Portland, Oregon 97214; $4.00 cardcover.) Although the poem alone is worth the price of the book, the preceding 252 pages cover a world of ideas in the field of human freedom.

He has divided the book into three parts. The first refutes the popular myths normally associated with the word "capitalism": the robber barons, the depression, etc. The second part outlines the author's concept of a free society—based on the principles of individualism, private property and capitalism. The third section shows how his concept of freedom would be applied to practical questions of the day—labor, welfare, narcotics, money, schools, etc. And it then points to what he considers the ideal society of the future. The book provides a concise and well-written summary of the principles of individualism and freedom. But the poem is what you will turn back to again and again. —Harry Browne

"I am not sure that in a great state it is capable of a remedy; nor that the evil is in itself always so great as it is represented."
"Suppose we include in the definition of luxury all unnecessary expense, and then let us consider whether laws to prevent such expense are possible to be executed in a great country, and whether, if they could be executed our people generally would be happier, or even richer."
"Is not the hope of being one day able to purchase and enjoy luxuries, a great spur to labour and industry?"
"May not luxury, therefore, produce more than it consumes, if, without such a spur, people would be as they are naturally enough included to be, lazy and indolent; To this purpose I remember a circumstance."
"The skipper of a shallop, employed between Cape May and Philadelphia had done us some small service, for which he refused to be paid. My wife, understanding that he had a daughter, sent her a present of a new-fashioned cap."
"Three years after, this skipper being at my house with an old farmer of Cape May, his passenger, he mentioned the cap, and how much his daughter had been pleased with it."
"But" (said he) "it proved a dear cap to our congregation."
"How so?"
"When my daughter appeared with it at meeting, it was so much admired, that all the girls resolved to get such caps from Philadelphia, and my wife and I computed that the whole could not have cost less than a hundred pounds."
"True," (said the farmer) "but you do not tell all the story. I think the cap was nevertheless an advantage to us; for it was the first thing that put our girls upon knitting worsted mittens for sale at Philadelphia that they might have wherewithal to buy caps and ribbons there; and you know that the industry has continued, and is likely to continue and increase to a much greater value, and answer better purposes."
"Upon the whole, I was more reconciled to this little piece of luxury, since not only the girls were made happier by having fine caps, but the Philadelphians by the supply of warm mittens."
"Poor Richard" put his finger on this simple key to an expanding economy over 200 years ago. So, isn't it strange to find people—well-meaning people—in this country today who still frown on the luxuries most of us work to enjoy? They want the government to restrict the broad range of products and services in the marketplace. And to cut back on advertising because it makes people want things they don't need.

The Russian Road To Peace

(Chicago Tribune)

It has been some time since the world learned of a new Russian-Chinese agreement providing for the transmission of war supplies to North Vietnam, but nothing has happened to suggest that this belligerent step has registered in Washington.

Our government refuses to abandon its script, which calls for openhearted cooperation between the United States and the Soviet Union leading to peace in Vietnam, even though Russia is quite clearly following an entirely different script of its own. Mr. Johnson talks of bridges of friendship and Mr. Humphrey envisions an end to the iron curtain—and Russia steps up its aid to Hanoi by sea and land.

We act as if it would be impolite to interfere with these shipments, which we could easily do, or to suggest that Russia is not as sincerely dedicated to peace as called for in our script. How much more will it take to persuade the makers of American policy toward Russia that they are living in a land of make-believe? When will they learn that we cannot win the war in Vietnam or even bring about satisfactory peace by making unilateral concessions to Russia, or by blinding ourselves to the realities of world politics? How do they think they are bringing peace closer by winking at increased communist aid to Hanoi? And why do they think Russia will do any more than it has done as long as we overlook its transgressions?

The danger of misunderstanding and disaster will grow unless we let the Soviet Union know that its actions belie its words and unless we make it clear that we do not intend to sit by and let Russian supplies pour into Hanoi and Halphong. If the administration doesn't do this, Congress should by resolution. The only "peace" that our present pussyfooting attitude will bring is a Red one—bloody at first and communist thereafter.

Advice To Parents

(The following letter from a young man in prison was published in the Greenville, Mich., Daily News. It was mailed to us by a reader.)
Parents, wake up! Due to your apathy you are harboring too many candidates who are slated for a trip to the "big time." Our prisons have reservations awaiting your sons. Hurry. Don't miss out, get them out of your hair for good.
Give them more money than ever and buy them a faster car.

(Don't make them earn it.) Don't exercise any more authority than you do now—they might learn to respect it. Don't give them any more love and attention than you do now—they might love you in return.
If you are now only allowing them a 3 a.m. curfew, try for 5, this will help hasten that trip to the "big house." And, of course, instead of keeping quiet as you have been, encourage them to buy more of the "educational" pornography found blatantly displayed on so many magazine counters.

This will help speed the completion of their moral decay.

Mothers, when your daughter brings home those dresses from the store—the ones that went on your charge account—be sure and help her raise the hemlines an additional two or three inches. This will help stimulate the sexual ardor of every guy she passes on the street.

Then, sooner than you think, you will be able to call the police about a "molester."

When you go on your trip, parents, be sure you leave the kids unsupervised and with an ample supply of "booze" in the house. This way, the party will be that much wilder and when you get that phone call from the police station, it will give you another chance to persecute the "city's finest" for degrading your "lovely" children.

Be sure you always argue and curse while the kids are in hearing range, this will teach them a lesson in future conduct. When they want to quit school, let them, never disagree with them for they are the "best" generation and always know more than you "old-fogies."

Follow the above suggestions faithfully—as some of you are already doing—and you have as good as paid for that reservation at the "pen." The price of the heartaches will be realized later.

Keep remembering that once they take that first trip, the odds are heavy that you can kiss them good-bye for good. How do I know? I am one of those "lovely" children who was given all the aforementioned "benefits" of youth by my parents. I am now serving my first term in prison.

Do I love my parents? More than words can tell. If only they would have cared enough to give me the love and guidance needed as a youngster, I don't think I'd be writing this from a prison cell.

I repeat: Parents, wake up!

CONGRESS SHOULD ACT ON CONDIREP

Congress should act now to submit to the state legislatures a constitutional amendment to reform the presidential Electoral College System. The best plan is CONDIREP or Congressional District Reform Plan. Under this plan every voter would vote for one presidential elector from his congressional district and two electors at large from his state. This is a far better proposal than the suggestion of advocates of the direct voting plan to abolish the Electoral College established by the Founders of Freedom who wrote our Constitution. CONDIREP would give the Electoral College its proper function by granting every voter equal power at the polls. The strength of the political machines in the mid-city sections of big metropolitan areas would be cut by as much as 80 per cent. Electoral College reform is one of the most pressing needs of our Republic. The present system permits this country, every four years, to run the risk of having an inferior President. Furthermore, it permits a candidate whose share of popular votes in a state is just one more vote than the number received by his nearest rival to get all that state's electoral votes. This Republic is already beset by enemies of freedom. We cannot afford to gamble with such an unwieldy, antiquated and discriminatory system as our present Electoral College setup in electing our president. Americans convinced of the dire need for reforming this system should let their Congressmen know—at once—their sentiments about the matter. The constitutional amendment should be submitted at the earliest possible moment.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

At an altitude of 12,500 feet, Lake Titicaca, between Peru and Bolivia, is the world's highest lake navigable by steamboat. The first steamboat to navigate on it was the Yavari, built in Scotland in 1862. In that year, the ship sailed from England to the Peruvian coast, says The World Almanac. There it was dismantled, carried up the mountains and then reassembled on the shore of Lake Titicaca.

Victory before peace. Our soldiers can win the puny war in Vietnam if Big Brother Lyndon will let them. Military leaders say they can win it "virtually overnight" if the right targets are bombed—Halphong Harbor, all the MIG bases and steel plants and, if necessary, the dikes in North Vietnam. If you want the war won this year, tell your senators and representatives. There is no good excuse for the handied tactics forced on our soldiers by Big Brother and his appeasers. The former Emperor Bao Dai and General Le van Vien should be recalled from exile to unify the people of South Vietnam. Le van Vien can rid Saigon of communist terrorists as he did before U. S. "diplomats" pushed him out. (See H. du Berrier's "Background to Betrayal.")
The Viet-communist war will die of attrition if Big Brother lets Chiang Kai-shek return to the Chinese mainland to rescue his countrymen. His 600,000 troops are trained, ready and eager to set the people free. The slave millions are waiting for the chance to help; now is the strategic time. Chiang knows he can establish a China and eventually clean the Red savages out of all Asia. What keeps Big Brother from unleashing him?
Instead, Lyndon slaps a boycott on anti-communist Rhodesia.
Write your congressmen, please.

Our news media reported a few days back that a delegation had gone to Austin in the interest of securing funds for improving thoroughfares in our city. Some of the parties that made this trip to Austin worked overtime five years ago to sabotage the program they are now supporting and the taxpayers have the added expense of the Austin trip.
They would like for us to believe that the Highway Department has been slow in enthusiasm as well as action in providing funds for our highway improvements. On the contrary, the Highway Department has been the aggressor. West Alcock has been a bottleneck for ten years or more. Brown and Frederick Streets combined with some unsightly buildings abutting them have given our community a blighted appearance.
As one tourist stated, "You think you are on the wrong road when you hit these thoroughfares."
Highway 273 to the south has been a death trap and a disgrace. Let's stop kidding each other and have some action.

IN NEW ORLEANS

ETV Can Increase Our National I.Q.

By JOHN P. CUNNINGHAM
Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
NEW YORK (NEA) — A few years ago I read a sheaf of letters that would touch a commercial broadcaster's heart. They were thank-you notes written to an educational television station in Tennessee. One I remember in particular. It was from a rural mother, who was tear-stained with gratitude: "I never thank you enough," she wrote. "After my children went to school, they used to look down on me because I couldn't read or write. Not telling them, I learned to read and write from your television program. Then I surprised them! Now they respect me. And I am happy again for the first time since my children started to grow up. I never thank you enough." Another one from a man: "I owe you $35 a week. You did it for me. I used to get $10 a week being a dishwasher in lunch-

Three Loves Has Sara:
Her Home, Family and Job

HOLLYWOOD — Sara Lane, the 18-year-old co-star of "The Virginian," leads an idyllic teen-age life with the best of two worlds—home and family and the excitement of show business. Blonde, 5-feet, 5-inches tall, and weighing a trim 130 pounds, Sara made her professional debut in the nude. She was nine months old at the time and the star of a soap commercial. Now all her appearances are made fully clothed as the granddaughter to Charles Bickford on the 90-minute western.

ed under the name of Sara Anderson until a few years ago. Because mother and daughter share the same name, Sara Jr. has been called Russell (after her father) since infancy. Happy Family The Lanes are a happy, outgoing family who live in Topanga canyon, a wild untrammeled area about 30 miles from Hollywood. Their home as Sara puts it, is built mainly of sticks and is only a block from combbers of the Pacific Ocean. Originally it was a one-room cabin that grew with the family. Three bedrooms were added, one of which was fashioned from the garage. It helps explain the presence of a meter box in the living room. Now, all told, there are nine rooms, and an indoor waterfall room. You showed me to read and write on your television. I drive truck now. I read all the signs. I get $75 a week. I went back to my family and now take good care of them all the time. Thank you." Here is a magic box indeed! It can give a woman self-respect and a man a better life.

The most important unsolved problem that confronts us in this generation, I believe, is the challenge of properly harnessing television in the educational area.

It is the problem of releasing to the country the tremendous latent forces of television to the task of upgrading our national mind—a job that is barely begun. It is even more important than the problem of releasing the forces of nuclear energy to our national industry.

We like to think of ourselves as a modern intelligent nation, yet 12 million of our adult citizens are illiterate. Unable to read, they are unable to hold a job which would give them a minimum of security with a dash of self-respect.

They cannot even read the "Help Wanted" column in the newspapers or the street signs that will show them where he that will show them where the employment office is.

These 12 million people can only be reached through words to their eyes. That clearly describes the television set—which is the only piece of furniture, beyond a bed, that some of them have.

Additional bits of very handy knowledge can also be given to these people through the television set that will help them greatly—simple, usable arithmetic perhaps, and facts about family health.

Not only can it help wipe out illiteracy, but it promises a tantalizing future to the literate.

Many thoughtful leaders in the field of educational television believe that some day the television set will make a college degree available to every single American. The only action outside the home required of the television student would be to go to a central place in his city four times a year to take his examinations. It might take the television student six or seven years to acquire the credits for a degree now piled up in four bright college years—but what is that to a hungry mind?

This will be good news to those involuntary dropouts from high school and college who were forced to leave because of the need to support a family. It will be good news to young mothers and mothers-in-waiting who will be able to raise a bachelor's degree at the same time. It will be good news to earnest young college graduates who seek masters' degrees—although they may have run out of time and money. They can now pursue postgraduate work at night by television.

Television can do some things better than the college classroom. It can give students front-row, close-up seats for important demonstrations. It can bring the finest laboratory facilities to remote schools which otherwise could not afford them.

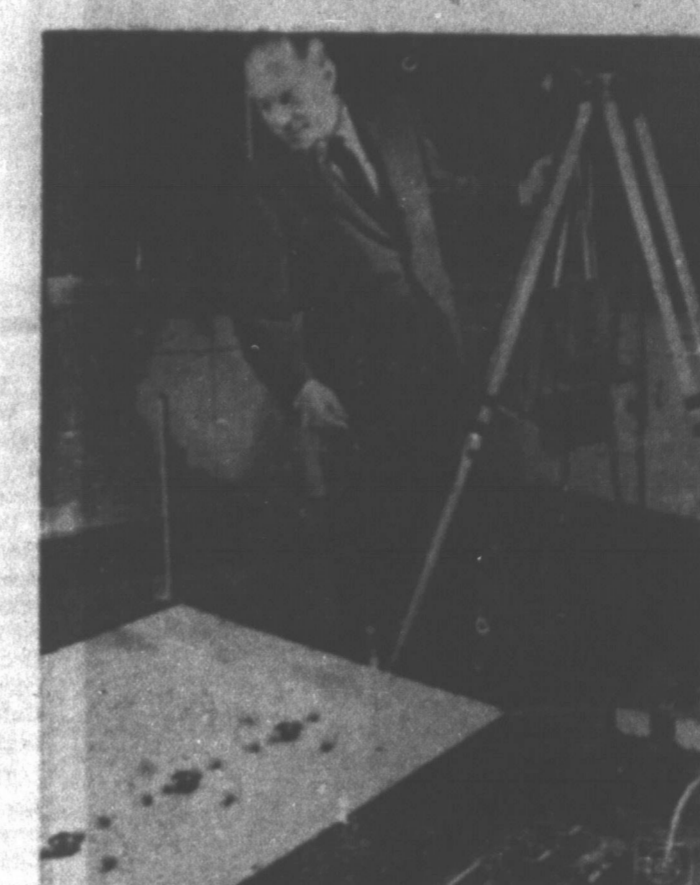

Why doesn't ETV fulfill all these bright promises? Because it hasn't the money. New hope has arisen, however, with the recent offer of the Ford Foundation to establish a satellite broadcasting system, which can be used by the networks at great savings over the present method. The Ford Foundation would then turn over all profits to ETV every year.

This generous offer has stirred up new interest in governmental circles and among private broadcasting organizations as to the needs of ETV.

There is a much better chance now that television will ultimately be harnessed to the task of increasing our national I.Q.

An estimated 2,302,000 persons were added to the U. S. resident population in the 12 months before Aug. 1, 1965.

Oil Executive Warns Of Domestic Policy Threat

AMARILLO — A spokesman for domestic oil producers warned Thursday that long-standing oil policies are threatened by what he called "contagious nearsightedness" among some government officials.

Minor S. Jameson Jr., Washington, D. C., executive vice president of the Independent Petroleum Association of America, criticized "an increasing tendency among government officials to conclude that oil conservation and import control programs penalize the consuming public."

"Those who believe this," he told members of the Panhandle Producers and Royalty Owners Assn., "haven't dreamed of oil prices as high as they would see if these policies should ever be abandoned with the result of making the American people captive consumers of Middle East oil."

Jameson said the latest case of "nearsightedness" in Washington was an April 27 statement to a Senate Antitrust and Monopoly subcommittee by Assistant Attorney General Donald F. Turner, who said domestic crude oil prices would drop "possibly down to one-half the current domestic price" in the absence of import controls.

IN CASE YOU WONDERED what an oil well looks like from the inside, now you know. This photograph was taken from a depth of 3,000 feet, where circumference of the drilling hole is about 18 inches, and it is filled with water. Photos such as these help engineers solve problems encountered in drilling difficult substrata. The square at the bottom is a shield which protects the light source for the camera. The hole is Red Cattle Well 32-2 in Sun Oil Company's Field in Florida.

New Landmen Officers To Take Posts

Robert Mosbacher, Independent, Houston, will take office as President of American Association of Petroleum Landmen following that organization's annual meeting in New Orleans in June.

"Cheap foreign oil, for the long pull, is an illusion," he said. "Once we reach the place where we can't live without it, we will pay for it dearly."

Jameson also condemned those who would "wreck the oil import control program" to achieve ends unrelated to U.S. oil security — "such as uplifting the economy of Puerto Rico, subsidizing petrochemical plants in world trade, controlling U. S. oil prices, or, even more ridiculous, to relate import controls to the problems of air and water pollution."

The IPAA official said the cumulative threats to the oil import program led his organization to decide, in a Washington meeting May 5, to urge the Congress to "immediately take action guaranteeing by law the stability and integrity of the Mandatory Oil Import Program."

He said a 20-year postwar record of debate, hearings and legislation including adoption of the Defense Amendment to the Trade Agreements Act in 1955, "leaves a clear and indisputable record that Congress intends to preserve a healthy domestic oil industry as essential to the Nation's security."

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — New reports of Central Intelligence Agency involvement with private groups keep popping up.

In the latest controversy there were assertions, and some denials, linking the CIA with such diverse enterprises as the AFL-CIO, the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the magazine Encounter, the Congress for Cultural Freedom and an organization called PEN.

There still remain, however, a few events that have not aroused suspicion. Anticipating that they also will eventually come under scrutiny, I have gone to the trouble of preparing the stories in advance.

Garden of Eden — A spokesman for the Forbidden Fruit Co. denied today the CIA was involved in an appetizing plot designed to have Adam ousted from the Garden of Eden.

He said reports that CIA funds were used to hire a serpent which served as a key figure in the alleged plot, were totally false.

The CIA reputedly was eager to promote Adam's fall so that he might be replaced with someone more sympathetic to American proposals to finance an urban renewal project in the garden.

However, the spokesman pointed out that America had not even been discovered at the time.

Mount Ararat — A spokesman for the Noah Ark-Building Corp. denied today that its original vessel was subsidized in part by the Central Intelligence Agency.

He said he knew nothing about reports the CIA began backing the project after hearing rumors the Communists were preparing to build an ark of their own.

The spokesman acknowledged that building the first ark would have boosted Communist prestige and given them a valuable propaganda tool.

But he insisted that Noah acted entirely on his own initiative after consultations with an authority much higher than the CIA.

He also ridiculed reports that the ark was used for espionage. Although it might have passed over what is now Soviet territory, the whole country was under water at the time, he pointed out.

Detroit — A spokesman for the Ford Motor Co. denied today that the Central Intelligence Agency was to blame for what happened to the Edsel.

He said rumors to that effect apparently started after someone referred to the Edsel as Ford's "Bay of Pigs."

He said that was only a figure of speech connoting a disaster and did not imply that the CIA had a hand in it, too.

The famous Spanish Armada consisted of 132 ships, 33,000 soldiers and crew members.

John Carroll was the first Catholic bishop in the United States, in 1789.

Somewhere in the effort to convene a constitutional convention by means of petitions by the states to Congress there may be buried a booby trap of unknown explosive potential.

The proposed constitutional convention itself would be a booby trap. The convention being petitioned by the states to amend the Constitution packs almost every conceivable necessity for orderly achievement. Most of all it lacks the discipline of experience.

There would be no ground rules, guide lines or other such desirable devices to protect the U.S. Constitution against irresponsible tinkers. This makes all the more comforting the fact that any proposals emerging from such a constitutional convention would have to be ratified by three fourths of the states.

But even that safeguard invites consideration of another possible booby trap. What if the 32 petitions filed by the states so far represent a deeper feeling among the citizens than may be suspected.

Any such feeling could be caused by resentment against the federal tendency toward overkill in what it regards as local errors of thought, conduct and custom. Eager beaver bureaucrats do not hesitate to tread on local toes in these areas.

If any such feeling were limited to the South and were stirred basically by Supreme Court decisions forbidding racial segregation, it might be ignored because it could not much thrive.

But a general feeling of resentment, based on a belief that the Supreme Court has grasped at legislative prerogatives or has been too gentle with criminals, should not be ignored. That kind of resentment if any, could become serious.

The overkill tendency of the federal government in dealing with citizens in the little towns has become a fact of American life. If the 32 state petitions to Congress really mean something and are not merely a Madison Avenue political maneuver, this whole incident deserves some careful thought by politicians and citizen alike.

Congressional liberals who applaud big government's overkill tendencies do not sense any remote possibility of suppressed popular feeling behind these state petitions. They dare not because the petitions represent a potential challenge to what passes in these times as political liberalism. So the liberals are planning to get rid of the dusty problem by sweeping it under the rug on some technical pretext. They probably will be able to do that, too.

Before he was voted out of the Senate by Illinois citizens, Democratic Sen. Paul H. Douglas ought to reassure his liberal friends there was no real chance that a state-petitioned constitutional convention could be convened. He said the states could petition but that there was no means by which the Congress could be forced to comply with the specific direction of the U.S. Constitution. Article five provides that:

"The Congress . . . on application of the legislatures of two-thirds of the several states, shall call a convention for proposing amendments."

The phrase is "shall call" even if you don't like the idea.

REQUEST REKUSED
CAIRO (UPI) — The United Arab Republic has denied a request by the United States for permission to let the U.S. 6th Fleet call on Egyptian ports, the newspaper Al-Ahram said today.

The newspaper said the United Arab Republic would not let 6th Fleet ships into Egyptian ports because of a statement allegedly made by Israeli Prime Minister Levi Eshkol. Eshkol was quoted in an American magazine as saying Israel's security was guaranteed as long as the 6th Fleet stayed in the Mediterranean.

Income Tax Questions, Answers

EDITOR'S NOTE — This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the Pampa News as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked.

Q—I filed my return weeks ago and still haven't gotten my refund. Does that mean my return is going to be audited?

A—Not necessarily. It normally takes 6 to 8 weeks to process a return. If everything is in order you can expect to receive your refund shortly. In some cases a return is selected for audit before the refund is issued. If that happens you will be notified. If you haven't received your refund or information about it from IRS by the end of June, write your district director.

Q—If somebody prepared your return for you, should he be there when your return is audited?

A—This is not necessary, but you can have your tax advisor come with you if you wish.

Q—When you're asked for records to substantiate a deduction can you mail them instead of bringing them in?

A—Yes, you may. However, to guard against loss of your original records it would be advisable to send copies. Sometimes a personal visit is necessary. You will be notified if this applies in your case.

POTTED PLANTS in St. Petersburg, Fla., didn't please everyone in the neighborhood. At least one neighbor complained that the toilet containing the geranium in the front lawn of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Burnett was a blight on the neighborhood. City officials investigated and found nothing illegal about the display.
