

Nasser Names New War Minister In Major Shakeup

United Press International Cairo radio today tersely announced president Gamal Abdel Nasser has named a new Egyptian war minister. Diplomatic reports in London said Nasser's leadership of the Arab world was under fire with his prestige waning in all but Egypt.

The Cairo Radio broadcast said Amin Huweidy, state minister in the current cabinet, became war minister in the second switch for that key post since the Arab-Israeli war.

Huweidy replaced Abdul Wahab Elbishi who had taken the place of Shamas Badrans after the latter resigned in the major shakeup of Egypt's military command. The broadcast gave no further details.

In London, diplomatic sources said Nasser's prestige was fading noticeably in Arab quarters outside Egypt. They said a major power struggle was under way with Moscow holding off crucial Mideast decisions until the outcome is clear.

Increasing attention was said to be focusing on Algeria's austere President Houari Boumedienne who has been playing a leading role in post-war diplomatic maneuvering.

There were indications Moscow was eyeing the taciturn Boumedienne with growing interest.

In Khartoum, Sudanese opposition leader Saddick El Mahdi called for urgent replacement of "old regimes and leaderships" in the Arab world and voiced "reservations" about Nasser.

Gen. Odd Bull of Norway postponed his Thursday return from Cairo to Jerusalem because of snags in talks with the Egyptians over terms of U.N. maintenance of the truce.

A source close to Bull emphasized "it will prove difficult to avoid serious alterations in the next few days" if both sides hold fast to their positions regarding navigation on the canal.

A U.N. spokesman earlier this week said there was no physical cease-fire line but only cease-fire "positions" along the banks.

Israel claims the middle of the canal is the dividing line and contends it can navigate the eastern half. Egypt maintains the eastern shore is the dividing line and has threatened to attack any Israeli vessels on the waterway for alleged violation of the cease-fire.

Egypt fired on two Israeli patrol dinghies last Friday and captured two Israeli sailors.

Since then the tense truce has prevailed. A U.N. spokesman said, "we've received no reports from observers of any boat movements in the canal so far."

The observers took up their stations Sunday.

Israeli intelligence reports said Russia has already replaced more than half the 400 planes lost by Egypt in the six-day Middle East war. Unofficial reports said some replacements were the Soviet's newest supersonic fighter, the MIG23.

South Viet Troops Slaughter 240 Reds

Commies Fleeing Marines

SAIGON (UPI) — South Vietnamese troops killed 240 Communists fleeing from a U.S. Marine amphibious assault south of the Demilitarized Zone, a military spokesman said today. In the Air War U.S. jets shot down three MIGs and probably a fourth in the first dogfight in six weeks.

Two battalions of North Vietnamese—upwards of 800 troops—were reported trapped between the South Vietnamese who had formed a blocking force on the coastal plain between Hue and Quang Tri for Marines pushing in from the sea. Heavy fighting was reported going on late today.

The Marine landing was carried out Thursday by 2,000 Leathernecks who hit the beaches about 15 miles north of the old imperial city of Hue and about 15 miles south of the DMZ. They poured ashore from amphibious assault ships and helicopters. Initial contact was light but one helicopter was shot down.

The South Vietnamese had moved secretly to positions inland and laid into the retreating Communists with deadly fire. South Vietnamese casualties were reported light.

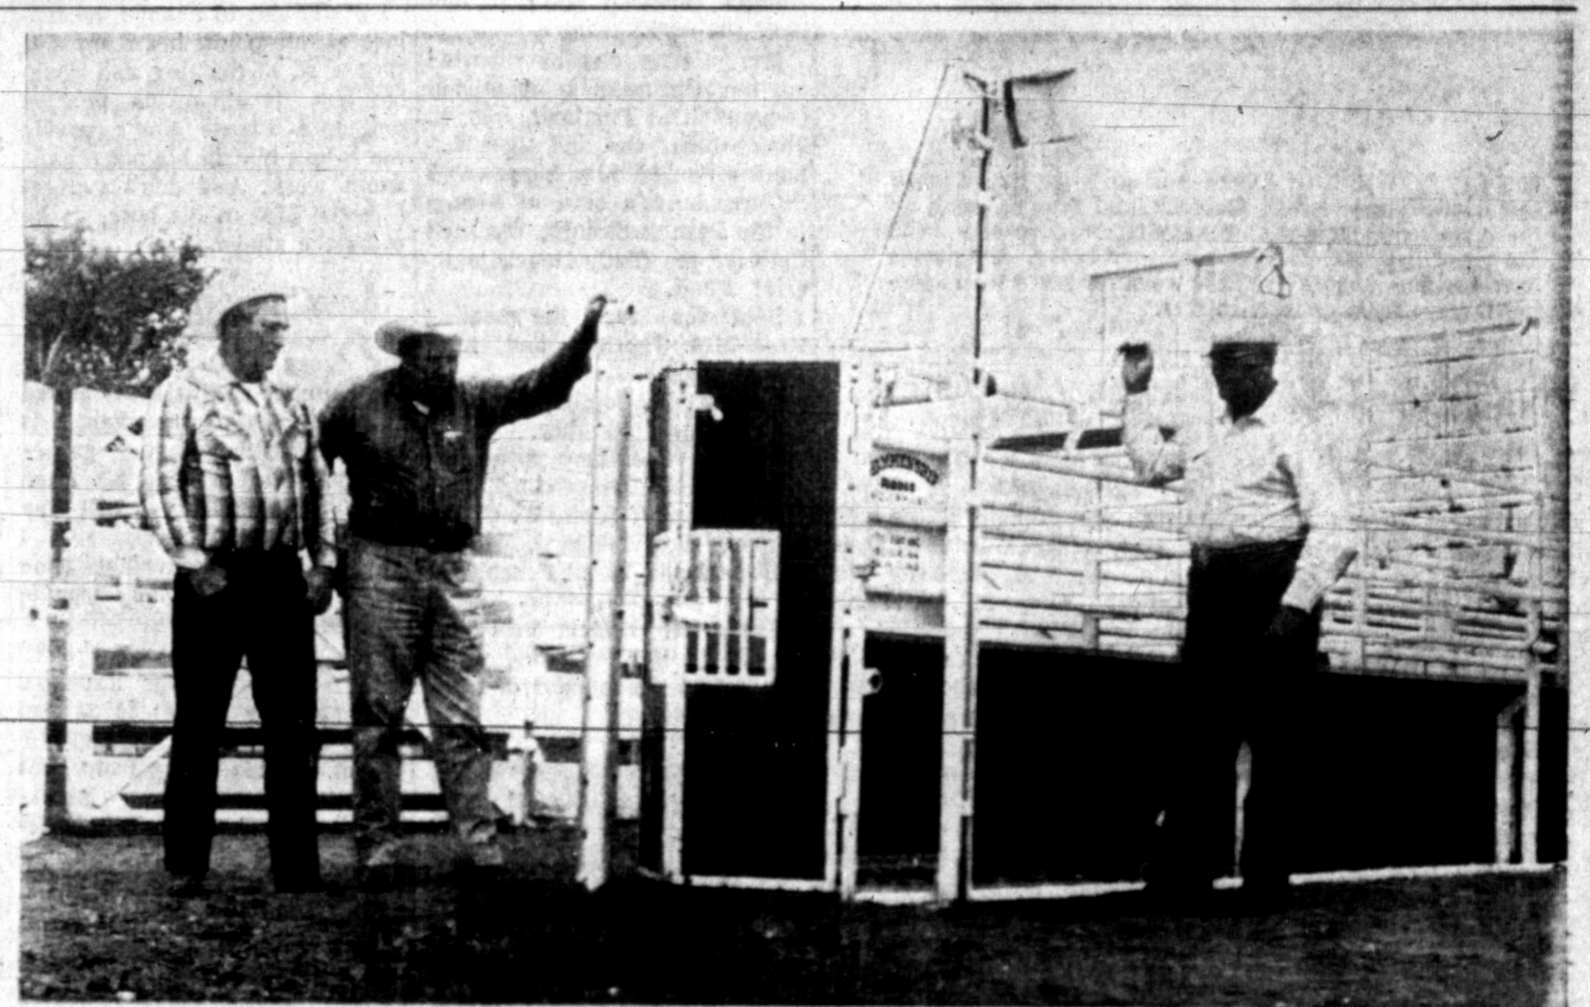

No American planes were reported lost in the dogfighting over the Ta Xa oil dump 20 miles northeast of the major North Vietnamese port of Haiphong.

The three kills, the greatest since U.S. pilots shot down four of the Soviet-designed jets May 20 near Hanoi, raised to 80 the number of MIGs lost in dogfights with American planes. The MIGs have shot down 20 U.S. planes, spokesmen said.

The MIGs gave battle today for the first time since June 5. Eight MIGs made a feint toward U.S. Air Force bombers Thursday but two missiles sent them scurrying. Today, with the F8 Crusaders from the 7th Fleet aircraft carrier Bon Homme Richard continuing a two week campaign against North Vietnam's precious oil supplies, the MIGs fought.

It marked a red letter day for U.S. fliers above and below the North-South Vietnam border. To the south U.S. Air Force B52s dumped up to a million pounds in bombs on the major Communist buildup in the A Shau Valley.

Three waves of the Stratofortresses, at least 18 planes each carrying 60,000 pounds in bombs, smashed the forbidden jungle valley. "Targets were storage areas and way stations along infiltration routes," a military communique said.

Trooper Draws Murder Charge

ABILENE, Tex. (UPI) — "I won't say Joyce and I never went out with anyone else," Texas highway patrolman Alfred P. White, 37, used to tell friends. "But we met when we were 16. We never had any other boy or girl friends long."

White and his wife drove up to their comfortable, rather old fashioned bungalow at 11:30 p.m. last Friday night. They had been to the late show —

"Hawaii" — at the Westwood theater.

Two intruders who were in the darkened house attacked them as they arrived, beating them with a length of pipe and chains, White told police.

His wife, 36, was slain and White badly injured.

White said the intruders were both Negroes—one a tall, heavy set man with a mustache and the other a smaller man. He said once after being struck over the head, he heard the big man tell the other one, "You've been taking too many of those pills—quit beating that woman."

Charged with Murder White, wearing a red plaid sport shirt and slacks, was charged with the murder of his wife Thursday night.

"He seems in an extreme state of shock," his lawyer, A.L. (Dusty) Rhodes, said.

Police Chief Warren Dodson declined to elaborate on the case.

"We are observing guidelines laid down by the U.S. Supreme Court in the Miranda, Estes and Sheppard cases," Dodson said. Justice of the Peace Henry F. Long denied bond.

White was taken to the Texas Department of Public Safety headquarters in Austin for questioning Wednesday night.

Texas Rangers Capt. Frank Probst and Sgt. John Wood and Abilene police Sgt. Dwain Pyburn drove White back to Abilene from Austin.

Shake Hands Each of the grim-faced officers shook hands with White before he was locked up in a Taylor County jail cell.

White told police he regained consciousness and with great effort, though his hands were tied, crawled out of the house (See TROOPER, Page 3)

They came to life only when a fully dressed fat girl danced and even then at play's end Thursday night the audience came away mumbling words like "grtesque," "incoherent" and "downright dirty." As a playwright, the world's highest paid painter had laid an egg.

The egg has been buried underground for 26 years. Picasso wrote it in 1941. But for decades producers regarded "Desire Caught By The Tail" too spicy for even French censors.

Until Thursday night no French troupe dared perform it in public. Label tried staging the play two weeks ago at nearby St. Tropez where, he figured, police at the hometown of Brigitte Bardot wouldn't mind a couple of topless actresses. He was wrong. It was banned.

So Label packed the show off to a circus tent here. The curtain went up to reveal five actors and five actresses eating bananas and watermelons.

They split the seeds at the audience. The audience did not cheer.

The troupe then passed around a bottle of wine and, as if to show they really didn't mean anything by the seed spitting, let front row theatergoes chug a-lug too.

The actors and actresses then hopped into an enormous bathtub and disappeared in a cloud of smoke. The audience did not appear amused.

Label was ready however. Out trotted an attractive blonde in black raincoat and tights. Described by Picasso as "the tart," she dropped the raincoat and danced St. Tropez stripper Marnie Cabanetos played the part and she appeared to have had plenty of practice.

The audience, being Frenchmen, were not whooping. The main actor, named by Picasso as "the Big Foot," danced with "the tart." A rock'n'roll beat band played.

Miss Cabanetos finally squatted on stage and read a newspaper. Rita Renoir, a stripper turned serious actress, came out clad in metallic bra and tights and appeared to be reverting to form.

Play's a Bomb Even for French

Barnes to Play Important Role in LBJ Election Plan

By KYLE THOMPSON LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — The elevation today of Texas House Speaker Ben Barnes as chairman of the Southern Conference, which is scheduled to meet in annual convention at San Antonio in September.

Caucus Scheduled He is planning to hold a caucus of all the Democratic legislative leaders at the national conference to get ready for 1968 elections. This will likely serve as the opening session from which the party leaders will begin to tie the ends together for both state and national elections next year.

Barnes said today he had been told by a number of Southern legislative leaders that President Johnson's image is definitely on the upswing throughout the South.

"Some of the legislators from such states as Mississippi, Georgia and some other states say the President's popularity is the best it has been in some time," he said.

President Johnson reportedly has asked Barnes to do considerable traveling in the South this fall and next spring for the national ticket.

Johnson also is known to be pressuring Gov. John Connally of Texas to run for a fourth term to help the ticket not only in Texas next year, but in other areas of the nation.

Two young Negroes were shot from passing cars shortly after a protest march in Durham, N.C., Thursday night, but the march itself was so peaceful that National Guardsmen were sent home before midnight.

Newark, N.J., police withdrew squad cars and white officers posted near the meeting hall of a Black Power conference when delegates called their presence inflammatory, but there was no violence.

There were no clashes between the residents and police, some of whom carried shotguns, only scattered rock-throwing incidents.

Statue Has Grown The Barnes stature has grown considerably over the South during the past year. He has received and is making tentative plans to address the legislatures of at least four Southern states, and expects to make numerous other appearances in the South at Democratic Party functions this fall and next spring.

Barnes already has accepted an invitation to address a joint session of the Mississippi legislature this fall. He also has invitations to speak to the legislatures in Arkansas, Georgia and North Carolina.

Such appearances in other states strengthen Barnes' position as a liaison man with the Southern delegations to the 1968 Democratic national convention.

Barnes also is vice president of the National Legislative Conference, which is scheduled to meet in annual convention at San Antonio in September.

Algerian Court Delays Hearing

ALGHERS (UPI)—The Algerian Supreme Court today delayed twice its decision on whether to extradite former Congo President Mobutu Tshombe to the Congolese capital of Kinshasa where he faces the gallows on treason charges.

The court announced originally it would give its ruling this morning. The court secretary told a throng of 150 newsmen and curious bystanders there would be a six-hour delay. Then he said the decision would not be known until tonight—or perhaps Saturday.

No reason was given for the postponements.

Informed sources said the Court undoubtedly would grant the extradition request. Final approval must come from Algerian President Houari Boumedienne. But the sources considered that a formality.

The Congo government of President Joseph D. Mobutu convicted Tshombe of treason earlier this year and sentenced him to death while the former premier lived in exile in Spain.

Congolese chief prosecutor Joseph Aldon Kabeya, who flew to Algiers to argue for Tshombe's extradition, expressed confidence Thursday night that Tshombe would be extradited and executed.

Kabeya said Tshombe had no recourse for appeal in the Congo.

The Supreme Court held a hearing Wednesday on the extradition request. The request became bogged down in diplomatic red tape because the Congo and Algeria do not have diplomatic relations.

According to Algerian law, the Supreme Court had to rule on the request to decide whether the crimes Tshombe was convicted of committing were of a political or criminal nature. Algerian law forbids extradition of political prisoners.

The three justices held the session behind closed doors and even barred the French lawyer Rene Floriot who had been hired to defend Tshombe.

Tshombe was kidnapped while aboard a private plane bound on a flight from the Spanish island of Ibiza to nearby Palma, Majorca June 30 and flown to Algier

Informed sources said the Court undoubtedly would grant the extradition request. Final approval must come from Algerian President Houari Boumedienne. But the sources considered that a formality.

The Congo government of President Joseph D. Mobutu convicted Tshombe of treason earlier this year and sentenced him to death while the former premier lived in exile in Spain.

Congolese chief prosecutor Joseph Aldon Kabeya, who flew to Algiers to argue for Tshombe's extradition, expressed confidence Thursday night that Tshombe would be extradited and executed.

Kabeya said Tshombe had no recourse for appeal in the Congo.

The Supreme Court held a hearing Wednesday on the extradition request. The request became bogged down in diplomatic red tape because the Congo and Algeria do not have diplomatic relations.

According to Algerian law, the Supreme Court had to rule on the request to decide whether the crimes Tshombe was convicted of committing were of a political or criminal nature. Algerian law forbids extradition of political prisoners.

The three justices held the session behind closed doors and even barred the French lawyer Rene Floriot who had been hired to defend Tshombe.

Tshombe was kidnapped while aboard a private plane bound on a flight from the Spanish island of Ibiza to nearby Palma, Majorca June 30 and flown to Algier

ALGHERS (UPI)—The Algerian Supreme Court today delayed twice its decision on whether to extradite former Congo President Mobutu Tshombe to the Congolese capital of Kinshasa where he faces the gallows on treason charges.

The court announced originally it would give its ruling this morning. The court secretary told a throng of 150 newsmen and curious bystanders there would be a six-hour delay. Then he said the decision would not be known until tonight—or perhaps Saturday.

No reason was given for the postponements.

IT'S HIP TO WEAR GLASSES, and often the larger, more ostentatious, the better. Large round frames, such as those above, or huge square boxy frames, are just about the most "with it" fashion accessory today. Sunglasses have become "shades" and are worn for more than keeping the sun from delicate retinas.

Dear Abby

by Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I decided after many years to refurbish our home. I am now in the midst of it and am quite pleased with the results so far, but I've encountered a problem.

My decorator makes uncalculated advances toward me when he comes to my home and also at his shop when no one is around. He is a very unattractive, middle-aged family man. I prefer not to change decorators at this point, but I am getting tired of ducking and dodging and avoiding his pinches and pats. Please don't advise me to put him in his place as it won't work. And don't suggest I report him to his boss, as he owns the studio.

VALLEY CLIENT
DEAR CLIENT: For you to go on ducking, dodging, and using fancy footwork to escape the clutches of this self-styled Casanova-type merchant is ludicrous. Stop playing games and tell him to keep his mind on his business or you will take your business elsewhere. I guarantee you from that time on you won't have any trouble with him.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter (I'll call her Nellie) is 24 and plans to marry a "handyman." He makes his living from jobs provided by relatives — stacking grocery shelves, running errands, etc.

He is pouty, sullen, discourteous, and egotistical. He attended college but flunked out. Nellie is the private secretary to an executive and draws a good salary. She has over $6,000 saved, is intelligent, nice looking, and well-liked. She could have her pick of many nice young men, but what she sees in this dud we will never know.

Our pastor tried to talk some sense into her head, but he got nowhere. She says she "loves" him. How can we keep her from making the biggest mistake in her life by going through with this marriage?

WORRIED PARENTS
DEAR PARENTS: You can't. So don't try. "Love" with some

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he, or she, will be one of those talented, imaginative youngsters who always wants to have an audience around to strut his, or her, impress with dramatic ways. The best outlet here is the stage, the field of selling, working with the public in general in one way or another. A business or dramatic school would be best here.

Texas Crude Oil Allowable Raised

AUSTIN (UPI)—The State Railroad Commission yesterday raised the Texas Oil Crude Oil Allowable for August to another new record of 54 per cent of theoretical potential production.
There was some testimony indicating that as the allowable has gone up drastically in the last month due to the Mideast crisis, some Texas fields have not been able to increase their production as rapidly as expected.
The allowable for the latter part of July is based on a 48 per cent factor and as recently as the first half of June the allowable was based on a 33.8 per cent.
The commission set the August allowable at 4,186,000 barrels daily and estimated this would result in production of 3,314,000 barrels daily after allowing for underproduction.
Shell Oil Co. said its experience indicates that when the market demand factor reaches the range of 42 to 48 per cent, an allowable increase of 10 barrels nets only three or four additional barrels of oil.
Glen Michel of Abilene, representing the West Central Texas Oil and Gas Association, and the Panhandle Producers and Royalty Owners Association and the commission to "raise the market demand factor to 100 per cent and in the process, find out what the productive capacity in the state of Texas is from our allowable wells."
Elmer Patman of Superior Oil Co., said under the 48 per cent factor "the state is producing practically at 100 per cent. There is very little room left."

Two Event Chutes Added for Rodeo

Calif roping and steer wrestling chutes for the Top O' Texas Rodeo July 26-29, have been moved to the north end of the rodeo arena at Recreation Park east of the city.
Rodeo officials said the change was made to speed up rodeo events and to increase event activity in the north end of the arena. The change was also made to make all seats equal for viewing rodeo events.
Several box seats are still available and may be purchased by calling the rodeo office MO 4-3241.
The ticket office will open at 8 a.m. Monday at the rodeo office in the Chamber of Commerce office and will remain open daily until 5 p.m. After 5 p.m. during the rodeo, tickets may be purchased at the gate, officials said.

TEC Has Increase In Job Openings

While the total job openings in the Texas Employment Commission dropped over the past year for the state, the Pampa area office reported an increase in the number of job openings, according to Bill Ragsdale, manager.
Last month the local TEC had 239 openings, in its active files, compared to 172 in June of last year. For the state the figures dropped from 81,644 last year to 70,368 last month.
Gov. John Connally, who has been urging employers to renew efforts to provide summer jobs for youth, revealed that the Pampa office placed 160 youth under 22 in jobs last month compared to 93 in June of last year. The number of active job applications of job seekers 22 and under in the local files at the end of May stood at 194 compared to 206 in May of 1966. So far this month, the local TEC has placed 94 youth in jobs, compared to 109 for July of 1966.
The shortage of job openings in general across the state and the relatively unskilled jobs youth can fill in particular has been the big factor in the TEC drop in placements of youth, according to state TEC officials.

and to the front lawn of a neighbor, S. D. Monroe Jr. and shouted for help.
Blood was spattered on the floor, walls and even to the ceiling of the White bedroom.
"I will never forget the sound of the blows that struck my wife," White told police.
"It's like when you put a hot branding iron down on wood," White said. "It leaves a permanent impression. I could never erase those sounds."
An autopsy by Dr. Jerry Williams of Abilene showed Mrs. White was killed by "massive injuries to the head which included skull fractures, lacerations and a brain hemorrhage."
Fund to $435
The Abilene Reporter-News said Thursday its fund for the information leading to the capture of the slayer of Mrs. White had reached $435.
Mrs. White, a brown-haired, slightly plump woman, had been "bubbling with anticipation" of her four-day weekend, said her fellow workers at the Frontier (trading) Stamp redemption store.
"She got four days off the same time as her husband did," one clerk said.
"She went and got her hair fixed at the beauty shop Friday morning."
White, a veteran of 14 years with the DPS, was transferred to Abilene from Eastland, Tex. in 1959.
The couple had planned to drive to Dallas Sunday to pick up their 15-year-old son, Scottie.

ultimatum capped a two-hour meeting between Negro leaders and city and state officials. The demand included integration of schools, equal employment opportunities and an end to alleged police brutality.
Hattiesburg, Miss.—A privately owned city bus line shut down in the face of a Negro boycott. Bus company officials said they had already hired one Negro driver and planned to hire another next month.
Lakeland, Fla.—Police attributed an outbreak of firebombings early Thursday to "youthful vandalism." At least four white-owned groceries in a Negro section were damaged by homemade fire bombs and one also was tossed at a car.
Washington Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., proposed that the senate create a select committee which would consider "the causes and effects of riots, community attitudes in places in which riots have occurred or may occur, and the responses of state and local governments to community grievances."

Even in July, Cadillac is the newest car you can buy.

With all of its richness and elegance, superb comfort and truly exceptional driving qualities—the current Cadillac is always, regardless of year or season, the newest car you can buy. This is indisputably true of the 1967 Standard of the World, Cadillac's highly advanced engineering, exemplified both by the front-wheel-drive Fleetwood Eldorado and the eleven other exciting Cadillac models, still remains years ahead of its time. In terms of handling ease and quiet performance, no other car is the equal of the world's most sought-after luxury automobile. There's also Cadillac's tasteful, evolutionary styling... a significant reason why Cadillacs of all ages are recognized as Cadillacs, regardless of their year of manufacture. And testifying to this almost timeless appeal is Cadillac's remarkably high resale value. Two- and three-year-old Cadillacs—and even some of the earlier models—are in greater demand than many other automobiles that are presently in production. So visit your authorized Cadillac dealer at your very first opportunity. You'll quickly discover that there's nothing newer than a new Cadillac.

'Sheep Without Shepherd' Will Be Sermon Topic for the Rev. Hager

They were like sheep without a shepherd" will be the sermon topic this Sunday at the First Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Martin Hager, pastor, will preach at both worship hours, 8:30 and 11 a.m.

The sermon topic is taken from Mark's account of the feeding of the five thousand (Mark 6:30-44) and from second Samuel 7:1-17.

Ruling Elder Warren J. Beale will assist with both services. Miss Harriet Henderson, at the organ, will present "Adagio" by Gulimant for the offertory. Miss Henderson will also play "We Thank Thee" by Peek and "Allegro" by Gulimant as her other selections for the morning.

Hyperion, seventh satellite of the planet Saturn, was discovered Sept. 16, 1848.

The word "Alphabet" comes from "alpha" and "beta," first two letters of the Greek alphabet.

Youth Invited To Fellowship Meet

All Pampa youth and those from surrounding communities are invited to attend the second "Youth on the March for Christ" fellowship service at 7:30 tomorrow night in Highland Baptist Church.

The purpose of the meeting is to enable Christian young people to share their faith with persons of their own age.

Bruce HySmith will speak at the service, and Ralph Baxter will direct the music.

"Youth on the March for Christ" was formed several weeks ago by youth from different churches in Pampa. The first meeting was held July 16 at Calvary Baptist Church.

Plans have been formulated to meet each Saturday evening at 7:30 in different churches throughout the city. This fellowship service will be conducted by young people. Ministers and other adult sponsors will be present at each gathering and each host church will provide refreshments.

Arrangements are being made to send representatives to neighboring communities to conduct youth-led revival services.

Skellytown Youth Visit Annual Camp

A group of young people from the Skellytown First Baptist Church returned home Thursday after spending a week at Pan Fork, the Baptist summer encampment at Wellington.

The group was one of many such groups from the Panhandle to attend the annual camp.

Such varied activities as swimming, hiking, field events, baseball and horseshoes were held. Worship services, campfire services and devotional periods were other activities for the 230 campers.

Those who attended from Skellytown were Rev. Murlie Rogers, Mrs. Wanda Rogers and Jean Allen, sponsors; Gaye Allen, John Cornwell, Martin McCoud, Randy Black, Debbie Allen, David Stephenson, Becky Fox, Renee Allen, Randy Stephenson, Denise Matthews, Nancy Matthews and Gary Stephenson.

Theologian Criticizes Johnson, But Believes Hatred Is Wrong

By LOUIS CASSELS

United Press International

It's all right to criticize President Johnson, or even to get angry with him. But it's wrong to hate him.

That warning, addressed specifically to church leaders and intellectuals, comes from a liberal Protestant theologian, Dr. Roger L. Shinn, who has been an outspoken opponent of administration policy in Vietnam.

Dr. Shinn, who teaches at Union Theological Seminary in New York, believes that Johnson has become the target of the most virulent personal hostility directed at any U.S. President since the days when Franklin D. Roosevelt was "that man" to furious conserva-

Combination of Haters

Writing in "Christianity and Crisis," a journal small in circulation but large in influence, Dr. Shinn observes that animosity toward Johnson makes strange political bedfellows.

"The haters form a curious combination," he says. "They include white supremacists who resent a southerner's efforts for civil rights, and black militants for whom Johnson represents the impervious establishment."

They number rightists, new leftists and apolitical hippies—all of whom scorn the Great Society. They encompass hawks who want to "shorten" the war by pulverizing North Vietnam, and doves who resent massive destruction in an ill-defined cause.

Not by any stretch of the imagination could Dr. Shinn be described as an admirer of Lyndon B. Johnson. He thinks there is "real reason to criticize the President" for U.S. actions in Vietnam. And beyond all questions of policy, he says, "There are personal qualities that make Mr. Johnson easy to dislike and distrust." Among them he lists "his love of the crafty maneuver, his petty vanity, his guile in dealing with the press and people."

Hate Defeats Purposes

"Cogent criticism is certainly in order. Even anger is understandable and justifiable," says Dr. Shinn. "But hate is something different from criticism or anger. It does no good for the haters or for the body politic."

D. Shinn says that churchmen who are concerned about social justice should recognize the "self-defeating" results of an "irrational" hate-Johnson posture.

If they will examine the domestic issues on which they feel most strongly—race, Social Security, model cities, schools, educational TV, rent subsidies, the war against poverty—they will discover that "on every one of these Mr. Johnson is trying to persuade a reluctant Congress to do more than it wants to do."

"To encourage public contempt for the President is to strengthen those who oppose him on all these issues," declares Dr. Shinn. "Most ominous of all, disdain for the man who is President easily becomes disdain for the presidency and for the federal government as such."

Endure Situations? Yes! But Accept Them? No!

By RALPH W. LOEW, D.D. Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

What's an acceptable way of life? The ancient prophet Isaiah said that, among other things, he had been sent to "proclaim the acceptable year of the Lord." That meant justice for mankind, compassion for the suffering, liberty for the imprisoned and a new sense of godliness. This was to be proclaimed!

Our problem is that so much that we know to be wrong is still accepted. It isn't that we believe the situation to be right. We can't justify slums, lack of educational facilities, slaughter on the highway, our own personal problems of a bad temper or slovenliness. It's just that we decide that we can't do a ny thing about these things and so, for us, they become acceptable.

Take the ugly issue of war. These have been weeks which have surrounded us with the possibility of increasing horror. We are all willing to say that war is wrong. Yet we live in a time of war psychosis when we accept war.

love her? Then don't say, 'I did nothing to hurt my neighbor this week . . . therefore I love him. I've fulfilled the law.'

"The Lord has commanded us not only not to do evil to our neighbor (the pagans do as much) but to love our neighbors as ourselves . . ."

"If you are more gifted, if you are more resourceful or virtuous than your neighbor, then you ought to help him in every possible way to become capable of helping himself. There is no end to loving others."

We may have "to put up" with all too many tragedies in these days. But to accept them is intolerable.

Rev. Cameron to Continue Death Sermons

The Rev. Dan B. Cameron, pastor of the First Baptist Church, will be in the pulpit for both services of worship Sunday. At the eleven o'clock morning worship he will continue a series of sermons on death, with the topic "Where Are the Dead?"

Randall Purvis, the new minister of music and youth, will direct the congregational singing and the Chancel Choir's special number, "God Who Touches Earth With Beauty" by Lowden. He also will sing a solo, "For All My Sin" by Clayton. Miss Eloise Lane, organist, will play "Largo" by Handel for the offertory.

"Now That Revival Is Over" is the subject the pastor will preach on in the 7 p.m. worship. Purvis will sing "I Have A Hiding Place" by Muller, and Miss Lane will play "He Tenderly Looked At Me" by Dawdy for the organ offertory.

Pampan Has Song Published

A Pampa woman has achieved one of her desires and has had a song published.

Mrs. Blake Laramore, who lives northeast of the city, worked on a song, "Be Ready," for a year before she felt it was prepared for publishing.

Sheet music for the song was published recently by Tennessee Music Co. Mrs. Laramore has had the song copyrighted. "Be Ready" is a sacred song telling people to be prepared to meet death and go to Heaven whenever each one's time comes, Mrs. Laramore said. It may be used in any church or wherever sacred music is used, she added.

Mrs. Laramore has taught piano for 12 years and has been organist at the Church of God. During that time she has been writing songs off and on. She plans to have several others published.

Psalms to Be Science Topic

"Psalms—Beautiful Guide to Life" will be the topic for discussion at the Kingdom Hall of Jehovah's Witnesses, 944 S. Dwight, at 3 p.m. Sunday. Eddie Ripley, an associate minister of the East Congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses in Amarillo, will be the speaker.

According to Ripley, the Psalms formed an inspired songbook of ancient Israel. Some of them are used today by Jehovah's Witnesses for singing in their worship.

This week Ripley will lead in the singing of Songs 41 and 88 from "Singing and Accompanying Yourself with Music in Your Hearts." These songs, entitled "Jehovah Is My Shepherd" and "Walking in Integrity," are based upon Psalm 23 and 26.

Baptist Women Attend Assembly

Two national Baptist leaders will address Baptist women from this area and from across the nation at Glorieta Baptist Assembly today through Wednesday during the conference of Woman's Missionary Union, Southern Baptist Convention.

Dr. Josef Nordenhaug, the general secretary of the Baptist World Alliance, Washington, D. C., will deliver addresses at 11:20 a.m. today, Saturday, Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday. His topic will be "The Voice of Christ in Our Changing World" a study of the biblical book of John with overtones of the Christian situation around the world.

The Baptist World Alliance, which Dr. Nordenhaug heads, is composed of Baptists in 66 countries.

Dr. Baker James Cauthen, executive secretary of the Baptist Foreign Mission Board, will speak Sunday in services beginning at 11:00 and 7:15. Dr. Cauthen's addresses will be, "Unto the Least of These," and "Unto the Glory of God." He will tell of ministries in 65 countries where Southern Baptist missionaries serve.

NEW MINISTER — Kenneth Hales of Dallas has moved to Skellytown to work as minister with the Church of Christ. He is a recent graduate of the Sunset School of Preaching in Lubbock. Hales and his wife, Edna, have a six-year-old daughter, Kayla.

Rep. L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., asks for all-out war and too many of us applaud. To make war acceptable is to insist that the language of violence and military power are the only forms of language that can be understood. If you believe that, then diplomatic efforts such as United Nations, as well as every other form of international discussion, are cynical shams. Even those who wage war ought to insist that war is wrong. This isn't a matter of being a "hawk" or a "dove." It's just recognizing tragedy. War is the tragedy of a failure; it ought not to be baptized as "the acceptable year of the Lord."

Then there is the problem of pollution. I'm astonished at the numbers of good citizens who assume that pollution is the natural by-product of civilization and therefore there's nothing that can be done about it. It is only because some dedicated heroes of the past decided to do something about slavery or child labor or polio or any number of such disasters that men were jolted from the mind-set of accepting the tragedy.

Marcel Quist, the interesting French priest who jogs our consciences, writes, "Would you dare to say: 'I didn't beat my wife this week; I didn't put poison in her food. . . . therefore I

Attend The Church Of Your Choice

The Weekly Message Of Inspiration

MELVIN G. HERRING, Pastor
ZION LUTHERAN CHURCH

"THERE IS NO GOD?"

There is no God . .

All the wonders around you are accidental. No almighty hand made thousand billion stars. They made themselves. No power keeps them on their steady course. The earth magnetized itself to keep the oceans from falling off toward the sun. A small flower invented itself so that we could extract digitalis for sick hearts.

The top few inches of our land just happened to have topsoil, without which we would have no vegetable to eat, no grass for the animals whose meat is our food. No one put oil just deep enough in the earth to keep until we need it. The inexhaustible envelope of air—only 50 miles deep, and of exactly the right density to support human life—is just another law of physics.

The human heart will beat for 70 or 80 years without faltering. How does it get sufficient rest between beats? A kidney will filter poison from the blood and leave good things alone. How does it know one from the other?

Who showed a womb how to take the love of two persons, and keep splitting a tiny ovum until, in time, a baby would have the proper number of fingers, eyes, and hair in the right places and come into the world when it is strong enough to sustain life? Who?

It's all accidental? There is no God? That's what some people say.

Yet, with all of this abundant evidence of God, man cannot know God until by faith he comes to know God's Son, the Savior, Jesus Christ. Jesus Christ came to earth to show us what God is like. Because Jesus is God, His life was the life of God lived among men. God is love. We know this because Jesus Christ loved us so much that He died for our sins upon the cross. Because He is God, He arose from the grave. To those who believe in Him, He gives peace, forgiveness, and life—real life, and eternal life.

Christians know there is a God because they believe in Jesus Christ, God's Son, the Savior. They know He is the revelation of God in human form. In Jesus Christ we know there is a God.

Pampa National Stars Meet Lamesa at 8 p.m.

Brantley Hurls, Bats Stars to 12-3 Victory

By LARRY HOLLES
Pampa and Lamesa do battle at 8:15 p.m. tonight to see which team plays Southside San Antonio for the Babe Ruth championship at Optimist Club Park Saturday night. Pampa National stars tumbled Plainview, 12-3 Thursday night while defending state champion San Antonio clipped Lamesa, 7-0.

Plainview and Weatherford were eliminated from tournament play, Plainview eliminated Weatherford and Pampa eliminated Plainview, all in one night.

The Plainview-Weatherford game was the first of three played Thursday night. The game was rained out Tuesday night with Plainview leading and batting in the bottom of the first 3-2.

The winners scored twice more for a 5-2 margin and went on to win, 13-8.

Lamesa, a 5-4 first round winner over Weatherford, found San Antonio and pitcher Leroy Thomas too much to handle.

Thomas limited the losers to four hits and fanned 10 in going the distance. Steve Keeling was the big bat for the winners with two singles and two runs batted in while Robert Castillo had a double and single and two RBIs.

Pampa got a lot of help from the bat and arm of righthander Louis Brantley in downing Plainview.

Brantley, making his first start, set the losers down on seven hits and only one of the three runs were earned off him as he struckout seven and walked three batters.

Brantley also hit the first home run of the tournament, a 340 foot blast in the seventh over the center field fence.

Pampa tallied twice in the first on a walk, single and two base error. But Plainview came back with two in their half of the first on two hits and a Pampa two base error.

The Stars wrapped it up with a four-run second inning, when John Doucette singled, went to second when Donnie Wilbon was hit by a pitch and to third when Brantley walked.

Scott struckout but Ross Holman doubled home two runs. John Jenkins, who had two hits and two runs batted in for the night, followed with a double to drive in the other two runs.

Another run came across for Pampa in the third and three more scored in the fourth. The Stars added single runs in the sixth and seventh innings.

Brantley set Plainview down on three hits from the second through the sixth inning but the losers scored in the seventh on a walk, stolen base, balk by Brantley and a single.

AMERICAN LEAGUE ROUNDUP

Sam Overpowers 'Em

By JOE GERGEN
Sudden Sam McDowell underwrote his 1,000-milestone check-out and Cleveland mechanics couldn't even detect a squeak in his strong left arm.

The husky southpaw, who won't even be 25 until September, passed a milestone Thursday night when he notched the 1,000th strikeout of a major league career that hasn't even covered four full seasons.

McDowell, whose overpowering fastball has been compared to that of former Cleveland great Bob Feller, mowed down seven more Yankees en route to a six-hit, 4-0 victory, his first shutout of a disappointing season.

"Strikeouts don't interest me," said McDowell. "I'm just out to win ball games."

By that standard, McDowell experienced a very uninteresting first half of the season. He lost six of his first nine decisions and had compiled only one complete game after 2½ months after being widely heralded as the successor to Sandy Koufax as a pitching superstar.

Strikeout King
He apparently has snapped out of the doldrums, however, pitching complete games in five of his last six starts and raising his record to 7-8 while taking over the American League lead in strikeouts with 142.

The Detroit Tigers whipped the Washington Senators 8-4 in the only other AL contest played to a conclusion. Boston held a 2-0 lead over Baltimore when rain washed out their game in the third inning and the other four teams were not scheduled.

Steve Whitaker was the unwitting pigeon who became McDowell's 1000th strikeout victim in the second inning. As long as his arm stays healthy, the towering left-hander has an excellent chance of shattering the club record of 2681 strikeouts set by Hall of Famer Feller in 18 seasons.

Walter Johnson set the major league standard of 3497 over 21 years with Washington and Warren Spahn holds the NL mark of 2583 in 21 seasons with three different clubs.

Hit Hard
"I usually throw more fast balls during a game than breaking stuff," said McDowell. "but tonight against the Yankees I threw more breaking pitches. They hit the ball hard but everything they hit was on the ground."

McDowell also singled and scored a run in the fourth. The Yankees contributed to their own downfall by committing three errors. Errors by Roy White and Ruben Amaro led to a run in the first and an error by Tom Tresh produced another run in the seventh. Fritz Peterson was the loser.

Dick McAuliffe homered and tripled, drove in two runs and scored a pair as Detroit showed signs of snapping out of a slump in which they lost nine of 10 games. Joe Sparma, with relief help from Frank Marshall in the eighth, posted his 10th victory against three losses despite harassment by Bernie Allen, who drove in three Washington runs and scored the other.

Reggie Smith's homer and George Scott's sacrifice fly had given Boston its 2-0 lead before play was held up for 62 minutes and finally postponed in the middle of the third inning. The Red Sox had won six games in a streak that had carried them to within ½ game of league-leading Chicago.

Native Buff In Denver Golf Lead

DENVER (UPI)—Dave Hill, the young man of the mountain who came "down" to mile-high Denver to shoot a scorching six-under-par 66 for the first round lead in the 49th PGA championship, tries today to protect his one-stroke bulge over menacing but tired Jack Nicklaus.

Hill, who lives 35 miles away in Evergreen, Colo., shot a remarkable round over the 7,496-yard Columbine Country Club course he knows well. Making the turn at one-under-par 35, durable Dave closed with a powerful rush, sinking a brilliant 170-yard iron shot from the rough for an eagle on No. 14 and then canning birdies on three of the four remaining holes for a five-under 31.

The heat got to Jack again after he had threatened to tear the course apart with a run of five birdies and an eagle over a seven-hole stretch to also go six-under-par.

Hot Game
Nicklaus tired in the unusual 90-degree heat and thin atmosphere and his game, supposedly "tailor-made" for this course, began to unravel. After he took an eagle three on No. 12, he was unable to better par again, and bogeyed No. 17 to finish with a 33-34-67, five under par.

"I just got tired," he said afterward. "My legs felt like lead weights. And, man, was it hot out there."

Three shots back at three-under 69 were Julius Boros, Dan Sikes and a pair of comparatively unknown pros—Don Bies of Seattle and Davis Love of Atlanta.

Pampa Meets Tascosa In 8:30 p.m. Contest

By RON CROSS
AMARILLO — Tascosa and Pampa, North and South division American League baseball winners respectively meet at 8:30 p.m. tonight in Potter County Stadium in the second round of the Legion District 18 regional baseball tournament.

Alan Woodard helped Pampa up their record to 18-2 as he pitched a no-hit, 4-0 victory over Hereford Thursday.

Woodard didn't have his best stuff and walked three batters and hit another while whiffing eight of the Red Birds.

The victory ran Woodard's record to 8-1 and the shutout was his fifth of the summer. The lefty has two, one-hitters and a two-hitter this summer also.

Pampa couldn't get to Hereford pitcher Alex Diaz until the seventh when they scored their first run. The Rebels had only one hit going into the seventh, a scratch single by Woodard.

But catcher Steve Summers was hit by a pitch, went to second on a sacrifice bunt by Stephens and scored on Ronnie Molberg's single. Sanders was out trying to stretch the hit into a double.

But the Rebels broke loose in the eighth for three runs, although it looked like Diaz was going to pitch out of trouble.

With one out Alvin Achord walked, Larry Jones doubled over the right fielder's head but Achord was out trying to score from first.

With two down Larry Stephens singled sending Jones to third. Stephens was wild pitched to second with Jones holding but Gary Molberg singled to send both runners home. Molberg was sent to third on a passed ball and then scored on another one.

Woodard had his first base runner in the second when he walked a batter, then walked another in the third.

The Red Birds couldn't do anything until the sixth when Woodard walked Robert Wagner and then balked him to second. But the southpaw struckout the next two batters.

In the ninth Woodard walked Wagner to lead off the inning and the runner stole second. But Woodard bore down to fan the next three batters and notch his first no-hitter.

Tascosa (16-4) downed Palo Duro (15-5), 4-1 last night. Palo Duro and Hereford (14-6) meet at 6:15 p.m. today with the sixth and seventh innings to win it. McGuire also hit a two-run homer in the sixth to tie the game.

In other games Hunter beat Dixie 4-3 and Holmes downed Harvester, 13-1.

Babe's Name Will Not be Forgotten

WONDERFUL MEMORIES of her husband's career belong to Mrs. Claire Ruth who resides in New York City. Mrs. Ruth still follows baseball closely and sees most of the games at Yankee Stadium.

By SANDY PADWE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
NEW YORK (NEA)—Most of the trophies and mementos are in Cooperstown now. Only some pictures and few awards remain.

"It's better this way," Mrs. Babe Ruth said. "The Hall of Fame has a beautiful display of Babe's trophies and things. Everybody can see it."

Mrs. Claire Ruth lives in Manhattan, on Riverside Drive just a few blocks from where she and Babe lived when he was setting all his home runs records for the New York Yankees.

"The kids in the neighborhood all knew him," Mrs. Ruth said. "They used to wait for him outside the building when it was time for him to go to the ballpark. There was one boy... he never let anyone else touch Babe's car."

"Babe used to leave for the ballpark an hour earlier than necessary," Mrs. Ruth continued. "To sign the autographs for the kids."

Mrs. Ruth lives quietly now in the spacious apartment building overlooking the Hudson River.

She makes public appearances on behalf of Babe Ruth League baseball and attends the Hall of Fame ceremonies at Cooperstown each summer. And she doesn't miss many games at Yankee Stadium.

"Sometimes," Mrs. Ruth said, "it's hard to look out at right field and not see Babe there.

After Babe died, I didn't go to the stadium for two years."

During his playing days, the apartment on Riverside Drive was a favorite stopping place for Babe's friends on other American League teams.

"We used to have a lot of the boys over for dinner," Mrs. Ruth said smiling. "They used to love to get a homecooked dinner of ham and cabbage. They get awfully tired eating out when they're on the road, you know."

"Babe never brought the game home with him," Mrs. Ruth continued. "He would come home from the ballpark—remember the games were during the day—rest for an hour and then dinner was announced."

Mrs. Ruth knew, though, that the 1935 season was to be the Babe's last as a player. He had been traded from the Yankees to the Boston Braves that year.

"It was a struggle for him," Mrs. Ruth said. "He was having trouble with his legs and he told me it was becoming a real effort for him to continue to play."

May 25, 1935, is one day Mrs. Ruth can not forget. The Braves were playing the Pirates in Pittsburgh, and Babe was in the lineup.

His first time up he hit his 712th home run. Then his second time up he hit another one. His third time, Babe hit a towering drive that cleared the roof in Forbes Field, the first time in history anyone had done it.

Nine days later, Babe Ruth called the writers to the dressing room in Boston and announced his retirement.

Thirty-two years later, his name carries the same magic.

"I still receive about 15 to 20 letters a week asking for Babe's autograph. Here look at this one," Mrs. Ruth said, opening a letter. It read:

"Dear Mrs. Ruth: I am 11 years old and I do not have an autograph of Mr. Ruth because the cheapest one is $25. My allowance is only 25 cents a week, so it would take forever to save up the money. The most I could pay for one is $2.00."

"I wish I had something to send home with Babe's signature," Mrs. Ruth said. "Babe would feel terrible if he knew a child wanted to pay for his autograph."

Most of the letters, Mrs. Ruth said, come around Babe's birthday in February. Babe's mass card are sent in August.

"Some," she said, "just address it Mrs. Babe Ruth, New York City. Some send the letters to Yankee Stadium. Some just address it: Mrs. Babe Ruth, USA."

Mrs. Babe Ruth answers every one.

Wilson Back in Groove

By United Press International
The worst thing that ever happened to Don Wilson was when he threw a no-hitter last month, but the Houston rookie seems to be recovering nicely.

Everything seemed to come apart at the seams for the 22-year old Wilson after pitching a no-hitter against the Atlanta Braves on June 18. Suddenly thematic off that moment was lost as he failed to last the distance and was defeated in his next two starts.

Wilson has been making a splendid recovery, however, setting a Houston club record by pitching his 25th consecutive scoreless inning Thursday night in a two hit 7-0 victory over the New York Mets.

"My arm feels just fine," said Wilson with a grin after the victory, his seventh against five losses. "But that no-hitter was the worst thing that ever happened to my pitching, and I hope I don't get off the track because of this scoreless streak."

He explained that after the no-hitter, which was achieved with his fast ball, that he was "bad, really bad at times" because he began relying on his fast ball too much.

Sports Parade

By MILTON RICHMAN
NEW YORK (UPI)—George Chuvало doesn't go for four-letter words.

There's one in particular which starts his stomach churning and that's the word "quit."

Some people said he did against Joe Frazier at Madison Square Garden Wednesday night, Frazier implied it after he stopped Chuvало for the first time in his 12-year career and Yancey Durham, Frazier's manager, came right out and said it.

That's not all, either.

Now there are those who are saying the battered, 29-year-old Canadian should quit altogether because he never was much more than a handy chopping block anyway.

Chuvало, the right side of his face still puffed up where Frazier worked on it hours before, had a personal answer today for all those who feel he quit Wednesday night and should do so again.

His answer, simply stated, is that he didn't then and won't now.

Knows Wife's Concern
"I'm not gonna quit," he said in his hotel room as he finished shaving. "I'm gonna keep on fighting."

Chuvало realizes his wife's concern and knows she said, "I'd rather have a factory job." In those first frightened moments Wednesday night when it looked as if his right eye would pop out of its socket, but that was only because "she got a little excited."

Chuvало also knows the opinions of Frazier and Durham, and they do nothing to keep him awake at night.

Frazier heatedly insisted it wasn't the cuts around both of Chuvало's eyes which resulted in his fourth round technical knockout.

"I hit him with a real good left hook," said the winner. "He was on his way down. He knew it and when he saw he couldn't defend himself he turned and walked away."

Durham went a step further. "He quit," Frazier's manager insisted. "He couldn't take it anymore. He just quit, that's all. Don't let him tell you about any cuts or butts."

Chuvало keeps his cool about a statement like that. No one would ever guess to what degree it bothers him.

"I have no quarrel with the referee stopping the fight," he said, mildly enough. "It was the right thing to do. When it happened, my eye felt like it was coming out. I did the natural thing, I turned away. And the referee stopped it."

Never Been Kayoed
Chuvало proved his exceptional gameness and courage during the 94 fights he had as an amateur and a pro. He was inordinately proud of the fact he was never knocked down, he was never stopped and that he never quit.

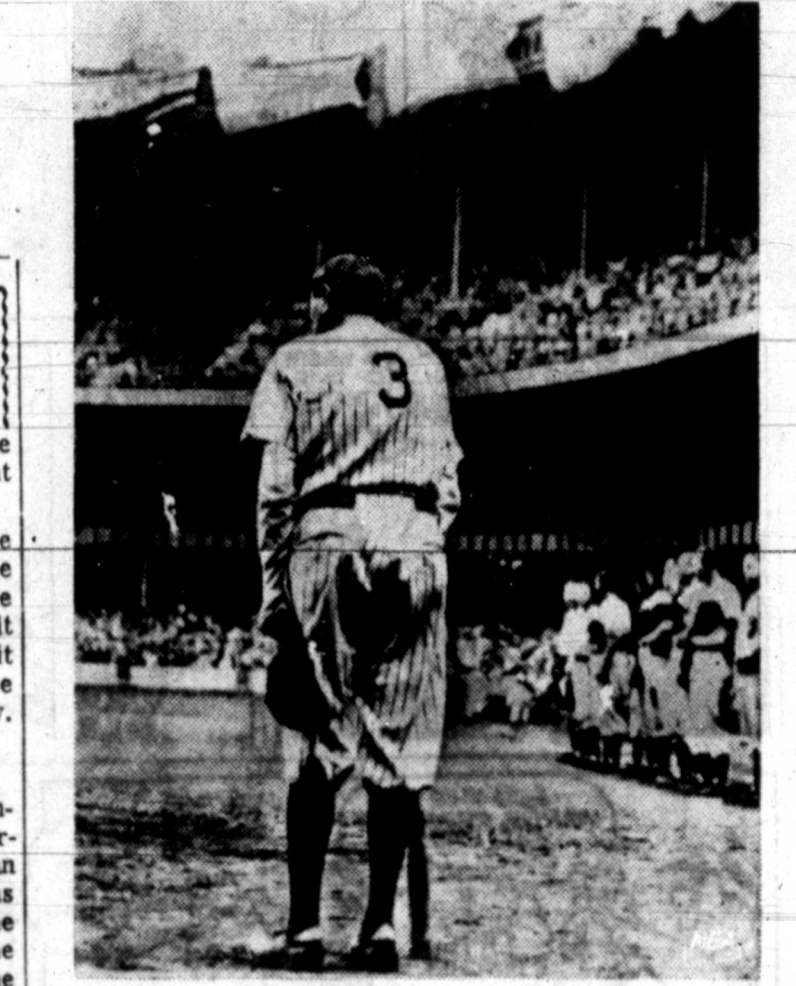

He knew how much the Frazier fight meant to his future, so it is hard to conceive that he picked this particular one in which to quit.

By the things he said, Chuvало doesn't sound like a man who quits. A guy who quits usually tries to cover up by blaming the referee for stopping it too quickly. Chuvало doesn't. Neither does his manager, Irving Underman.

"I don't object to the referee stopping it," he said. "I'm happy he did. But you can't do much about cuts. If the fight would have gone longer, I think George would've stopped him. He's going to keep fighting, though. I don't think he lost anything Wednesday night."

There's where I differ. Chuvало certainly didn't help his career any.

And I don't particularly see where Frazier accomplished that much by beating Chuvало. So did Floyd Patterson, and what does that prove?

FAREWELL TO BASEBALL for Babe Ruth came on a special day in Yankee Stadium in 1948. It was the last time the famed No. 3 was worn by a New York Yankee.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP OF TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license, nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself. No more, no less. It is thus consistent with the Human Relations Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

'Nonprofit' Housing

At least one of the Beatitudes seems to be undergoing a metamorphosis in this era of big bids for political power. The first one states, "Blessed are the poor in spirit; for theirs is the kingdom of Heaven." In a new collectivist book of rules it would probably read, "Blessed are the indigent, for theirs is the kingdom of earth."

There is a world of difference between our "professional" poor and "the poor in spirit." The latter refers to one with humility and an abiding faith in the power of good. Few would deny a helping hand to a disciple of good who is temporarily in straitened circumstances and who has no intention of staying that way. But today the welfare rolls grow and grow, and those who ballyhoo loudest in the name of the poor are often the most arrogant.

Substituting the softer term "sharing" for "seizing by tax," politics vie with one another to see which can do the most good with others' money. And the tribe increases with more and more groups dedicated to this end, usually representing themselves as a "nonprofit" organization.

A current political push got under way recently when representatives of "nonprofit" organizations in nine western states met in San Francisco. Under discussion at the two day seminar was "means of providing housing for lower income families under federal financing programs." The meetings are sponsored by the Non-Profit Housing Center of Urban America in cooperation with the

Why A Monopoly Postoffice?

Nearly everyone has some feeling of dissatisfaction with the federal government's monopoly postoffice. And there are many solutions being offered including Postmaster General O'Brien's proposal to turn it over to a government-created non-profit corporation, which still would have a monopoly.

The recent case of a Colorado steel company being told it could not send its first-class mail to one of its branches by a private armored-car service unless it also paid postage has pointed up the federal monopoly clearly. CP&I Steel Co. ultimately had to pay the government postage for the mail which had been carried by the private company.

The Wall Street Journal says approximately 75 cases of possible violations of the ban on private postal service were investigated last year, and that 35 such cases have been looked into this year.

Clearly, the federal government is not about to give up its monopoly on the mail service. Those, like the Colorado steel company, who are not content with 48-hour delivery of mail 120 miles away, must pay the government even when they use an alternate service.

The Daily Oklahoman recently pointed to the aspects of the government monopoly, and said Colorado's Public Service Co. "even feels it worthwhile to pay a bus company to carry some of its mail while at the same time paying Uncle Sam $9,000 a year for postage it does not use!"

The Oklahoman says it is granted that "the government cannot allow private operators to skim off a few profitable postal delivery functions, while leaving to the postal department bulky, unprofitable items such as newspapers, magazines, bulk advertising mailings and parcel post."

But, that is just what is to be expected of the political postoffice. The politicians in Congress create special privileges for special groups. There should be no such unprofitable items. Newspapers, magazines, bulk advertising mailings and parcel post should be charged enough to pay the full cost of handling them. Then there would be no "cream" to be skimmed off.

And if the government monopoly were eliminated, we'll venture there would be a great many private operators offering to carry and deliver the mail, besides armored-car services and bus companies. And the service would be better — it would have to be or the people would not use it.

Please, Baby, Co-operate

A child psychiatrist at Duke University says children often get the most pleasure out of such simple playthings as a cardboard box or a broom.

A cardboard box, Dr. Norbert B. Enzer points out, can be a house, a garage, a train, a boat, or even a space ship. And a broom can be a gun, a tree or even a horse.

But, he asks, what can a toy cement mixer be to a child but a toy cement mixer? Parents have noticed this. But they have also noticed that the kid is often inclined to go for the cardboard box only after he has extracted, tried and discarded the expensive toy that came in the box.

Hand him a cardboard box with nothing in it to toss aside, and you may have to be a child psychiatrist to convince him this is a big deal.

But this is not to knock your theory, doctor — not with the price of toys and talk of a tax hike. Now, let's see. Where DID we see an empty box the other day?

office, even to bed. Many of us can remember when a garment of which the jump suit is the spitting image was a vital part of a masculine wardrobe.

It was called long underwear — or affectionately, long johns. (But, psst — what's happened Welcome back, old friend. to your trap door?)

Protective Custody

Question Box

QUESTION: Is Emerson's statement true that the thief steals from himself?
ANSWER: Nature penalizes all who violate its eternal, universal laws. It might be some time before the thief realizes his mistake, and maybe he will never realize it and keep on stealing, but he suffers from his acts. Morally, he loses his own self-respect at once.

It is the nature of man to believe in private property because man couldn't live without private property and when anyone deprives another of his honestly earned property he is stealing.

It is pretty well understood that stealing is wrong when done by individuals, but what most people do not see is that for a group or a government to get things in an involuntary way by the use of coercion or the threat of the use of initiated force, is actually stealing and is equally immoral.

We are paying for this belief that the majority can rob the minority by the increase in crime, by the increase in suicides, and by the step by step losing of part of our freedom, the right to make decisions so long as we respect the equal rights of others to do the same.

We're really eating up the seed corn by allowing such thefts. Few people realize that when you retard the accumulation of tools, and the worker has to work with less efficient tools, he can't produce as much and therefore he can't earn as much because every man has to produce his own wages—there is no other place for them to come from.

We've even gone so far as to believe that the state has a right to deprive the parent of the academic freedom of the right to educate his children or train them the way he thinks will be beneficial to them. Now the state has a monopoly on schooling. It does not have a monopoly on education because it cannot educate, it can only instruct and train and indoctrinate.

The belief that a group or a government can do things that no individual has a moral right to do is the opiate that is leading us into the trouble we are in today. Yes, the thief truly steals from himself!

Soviet Is Losing Shirt In Egypt

By LEON DENNEN

NEW YORK (NEA) Russia finally learned the hard way what the United States has long known—that one likes a meddling rich uncle only when he writes his last will and testament.

Even by conservative estimates the Kremlin spent some $3 billion to arm and feed Egypt. But Nasser always resented Soviet agents who tried to meddle in his internal affairs.

Considerable evidence now indicates that Egypt's dictator ignored Moscow's counsel when he sparked the Middle Eastern conflict by blockading the Gulf of Aqaba. In four short days Russia's $3 billion went up in smoke in the Sinai desert and Soviet policy in the Middle East LAY IN RUINS.

Russia's trouble with Castro's Cuba is more proof that "wars of national liberation" and proletarian internationalism are an extremely expensive and frustrating business. The Kremlin leaders themselves have hinted recently that Moscow's subsidies to Castro amounted to about $300 million a year. This calculation did not include the costs of arms supplies.

Yet when Premier Kosygin went to Cuba after his Glassboro meeting with President Johnson he was treated to a frigid reception. No citizens lined the streets of Havana to cheer him as they did in Glassboro.

Only after Kosygin agreed to increase Russian economic aid to Cuba and not to meddle in Castro's revolutionary affairs, did Havana's bearded dictator call out school children to wave little Soviet flags for the departing premier.

However, Castro is not easily appeased. He still refuses to stop biting the Soviet hand that feeds him. As far as Castro is concerned the Russians are still cramping his revolutionary style. In this incidentally, he agrees entirely with Red China's Mao Tse-tung.

The Russians, in the 50 years of the existence of their Communist dictatorship, never let revolutionary ideology interfere with the national interests of the Soviet state. They have tried, among other things, to develop and expand economic trade with Latin American. But Moscow reckoned without Fidel Castro.

Last March the Cuban dictator, in an undisguised attack on Russia, condemned those who trade with "oligarchic" regimes in America.

"What would North Vietnam say if we, revolutionary Cuba, traded with South Vietnam?" Castro asked.

Pointing an accusing finger at Moscow, he said: "Whoever helps the oligarchs is helping the war of repression against the people. Not everything which is red in the world is revolutionary."

Like Red China, the Red Cuban leader in effect told the Red Russians that they were false Marxist-Leninists.

Did Kosygin change Castro's mind during his sojourn in Cuba?

Senate Ethics Committee: Accentuating the Positive

NEW YORK (NEA) — Before answering reader mail, we would like to take a moment to congratulate the U.S. Senate on deciding to keep its Ethics Committee as a permanent installation.

As we have pointed out repeatedly, it is hard enough for a person to be a senator and make laws and policy for the nation without having to waste valuable time worrying about ethical considerations.

If they can be referred to a committee, government will be much more efficient.

In fact, as we here at the Institute have always said, the more committees people can turn to, the easier life can be lived. Especially ethics committees, since so much of the day is occupied with just getting through traffic and lunch.

Consequently, to see our program adopted by so august a body as the U.S. Senate — well, it gives renewed hope and encouragement to the work we are trying to do here at the Institute.

And now, a peek into the mailbox:

DEAR DR. CANNEL: The other day at lunchtime while I was minding the store alone, a man came in and bought a $20 shirt. As he was leaving, I realized that he had given me a $50 bill by mistake. My ethical problem is, should I tell my partner?

ANSWER: Only if you are absolutely certain that the $50 bill is not a counterfeit. For positive identification, send the bill — or a money order for the same amount — to us here at the Institute.

DEAR DR. CANNEL: We in Cairo are not at all astounded that you Americans and British in public life would sell out. Could you please tell me whom you sell out to, and how much an assistant minister of war could expect to get?

ANSWER: The rates vary widely, depending on whether you sell out with or without book and magazine rights. Send your resume and a good photograph of yourself to us at the Institute, and specify whether you would also be available for lectures.

DEAR DR. CANNEL: I am a U.S. senator married to a woman who would like our family to move to another state. Will such a move present a problem?

ANSWER: No. Establishing a new residence in another state is a problem for voters only, not for elected officials.

DEAR DR. CANNEL: A week or so ago I started out to perform an appendectomy on a patient, and now find that I may have removed his left lung. What is the ethical procedure in this case?

ANSWER: You should charge the patient only for removing the lung unless you can actually remember taking out his appendix. In any case, you must charge only for labor and not for parts, regardless of what instruments you may have lost during the operation.

DEAR DR. CANNEL: Our history class has been studying about the Algerian rebels, Cyriot terrorists, Hungarian freedom fighters, Yugoslav partisans, Cuban subversives and American patriots. Unfortunately, we have not been able to study about the Congo as we do not know what the opposition is called.

ANSWER: Mercenaries. DEAR DR. CANNEL: I am against the war in Vietnam, in favor of the war in the Middle East, against Cuba, in favor of the Dominican Republic, and am the secretary-treasurer of the Committee of 100 to Save Moise Tshombe or Joseph Mobutu. Could you please tell me attacks on the pro-Russian Communist party of Venezuela and the stepped-up guerrilla warfare in Bolivia and other Latin American countries, the Soviet premier's counsel of caution and moderation fell on deaf ears.

Indeed, even as he asked for more economic and military aid, Castro told the Russians not to meddle in his revolutionary affairs.

The fact is that in Cuba as in Egypt and North Vietnam the political return on the Russian taxpayer's rubles can only be described as highly inadequate.

The U.S. taxpayer long has been accustomed to that fact of

It's Up To You

OUR DISEASE: GIGANTISM

One of the reasons, perhaps the main one, for heavy spending, overgrown budgets, deficits and the excessive cost of government is the well known fact that very few people are as careful when spending other people's money as when spending their own. This being true, it follows that the more actively in which government engages, the greater the base for extravagance.

If government is strictly limited as to scope and function, the volume of extravagance will be greatly reduced. For example if government should take and spend five percent of the income of the people, the total amount of waste would be only one-sixth of what it is when government takes and spends about thirty percent of the income of its people.

A small but illuminating example of government wasting the salaries paid to employees on Capitol Hill—Everyone knows that Congressmen draw $30,000 a year plus many fringe benefits including free haircuts for Senators, and half-priced haircuts for Representatives, free postage, an enormous amount of free travel, allowances for telephone and telegraph expenditures, and a long list of expensive perquisites. But not many people understand the great extravagance our Senators and congressmen approve in the form of salaries and benefits for employees on Capitol Hill.

There are 494 jobs on Capitol Hill that pay salaries of $20,000 a year or more. Many of these people work only four days a week when Congress is in session and little if any between sessions. The head doorkeeper of the House is paid $28,500 annually and the House postmaster $24,500. Chicago's postmaster is paid only $23,950 for handling 66 times as much mail as the House postmaster.

Shorthand reporters who record debates are paid $22,000 a year and the men who call the roll $19,200. The Senate chaplain, who reads a brief prayer to open each session is paid $15,800, and the House chaplain only slightly less. Routine office workers earn $12,000 and messengers nearly $10,000. Salaries run as high as $25,800 for the people who staff the various legislative committees. Top staff members for Representatives and Senators, more than 200 of them, get in excess of $20,000 annually.

Congressional employees may retire on more than half pay after 30 years of service. In addition to these salaries, the government also pays another 6½ percent to the retirement fund. All this is just one tiny corner of the waste that goes on throughout government operations everywhere. The basic reason for extravagant government, which is slowly bankrupting this nation, is the fact that our officials are spending other people's money for all these where I stand on the Nigerian issue?

The Doctor Says:

By DR. WAYNE BRANDSTADT

Obstruction in Pores Cause of Prickly Heat

When your perspiration goes into your skin instead of onto it, you are in for a siege of prickly heat—a condition that goes under such names as miliaria, sudamina and heat rash. It is always worse when the weather is hot and humid. It also has a fondness for furnace stokers and foundry workers.

The reddened burning or itching spots never occur on the face, scalp, palms or soles but may be found on any other part especially the hairless surface of the forearms, the neck, the area behind the knees and the trunk. The underlying cause is an obstruction in the sweat pores. When the external heat causes an increase in sweat production, something has got to give. A slight rupture in the sweat duct allows the sweat to escape into the superficial layer of the skin where it forms a small focus of irritation.

The problem, therefore, is to keep the pores open. The first requirement is to avoid the use of fat solvents, strong soaps and greasy ointments on the skin. For bathing you should use sparingly a soap that contains hexachlorophene provided it does not dry or irritate your skin. Spending 8 to 10 continuous hours in an air-conditioned room is usually enough to bring about a marked relief from the burning and itching but it may take 10 to 14 days for the rash to disappear after the skin is no longer called on to produce excessive perspiration.

When air conditioning isn't available, the use of electric fans, taking a cool shower and wearing a minimum of clothing will go far toward relieving the rash. Bath powders, if used, must be applied sparingly because of tendency to clog and further block the pores.

Q—In a recent column you stated that pulsations in the neck indicated serious ailments. I always thought that a person's pulse could be taken by feeling the throbbing on the side of the neck near the front of the throat.

A—It is true that pulsations can be felt in everyone by placing a finger over the carotid artery in the neck. The previous question and answer dealt with neck pulsations that could be plainly seen in a person who was relaxed and sitting still.

The American Revolution lasted from April 19, 1775, to Sept. 17, 1783.

It's the Law in Texas

Accusing the Wrong Man
Late one night a widow, living alone, heard footsteps approaching her bedroom. While she lay in terrified silence, an intruder entered the room, scooped up her jewelry, and departed.

Feeling sure she had recognized the man as a neighborhood gardener, she filed burglary charges with the police. But at the trial, the gardener produced such an airtight alibi that the jury found him innocent.

At this point he decided to switch from a defendant into a plaintiff. He filed suit against the widow for damages on grounds of "malicious prosecution."

"Since her accusation against me was a mistake," he argued in court, "she ought to pay for calling me a criminal and making me go through the ordeal of a trial."

But the court refused to hold the widow liable. The judge said a person cannot be held responsible for malicious prosecution so long as he had at least the original accusation — even "probable cause" for making if the charge did not stand up in court.

If an accuser does bring charges without having probable cause to believe they are true, then he may indeed be held liable for damages. For example: One man was held liable for malicious prosecution because he brought unfounded theft charges against a business rival — simply as a means of collecting a debt.

And another man was held liable for malicious prosecution because he brought unfounded trespassing charges against a neighbor — simply as a means of throwing a scare into other possible trespassers.

But as a rule, courts are cautious about imposing liability on an accuser. For if such liability was imposed too freely, people might be discouraged from reporting crimes to the authorities. Even the well-meaning citizen might decide to keep quiet rather than run the risk of being sued afterward for his pains.

Foreign News Commentary

By DALE D. MORSCH
NEW DELHI (UPI)—Communist China's cultural revolution may give India its third Communist party—an ultra-leftist splinter from the pro-Chinese organization.

Deep rumblings began within the pro-Chinese party almost as soon as Red Guards rose to prominence in China. But the rumblings reached earthquake proportions recently because of the ill treatment of Indian diplomats in Peking and the brutal, bloody retaliation by Indian demonstrators in New Delhi.

Differences between party leaders have risen sharply. Unless they are able to find a common political stance, observers expect the extremist faction to go it alone.

Such a development would leave India with a confusing trio: The right (pro-Moscow) party, the left (pro-Peking) and the ultra-left (pro-whatever the Red Guards stand for).

Accusations Flying
Extremists in the pro-Chinese ranks of India's Communists are accusing their more moderate comrades of "revisionism" and of lacking revolutionary zeal.

Through the years, partly because of an acceptance of parliamentary government as a means to achieve their ends, many of India's Communists have turned from battling in the streets to trying to get their way through democratic procedure. To the die-hard revolutionary, nothing could be more repulsive.

The intra-party fight has burst into full view in Calcutta, where the pro-Chinese Communists led a multi-party front to unseat the long-entrenched Congress party in the February general elections.

It is in this sprawling industrial city, teeming with unemployed refugees since independence, that the Communists have traditionally aired their dirty linen.

Feud Reached Climax
The recent simmering feud reached a climax recently when "revisionists" expelled nine extremists from the party. The extremists retaliated the next day by adopting the Red Guard poster technique. All around the city, posters proclaimed "down with the revisionists."

Communist watchers in India must now cope with "old revisionists" of the pro-Moscow faction and the "new revisionists" and the "ultra-leftists" of the pro-Peking faction. Added to the overall confusion is a seemingly unending array of socialist parties and organizations of varying shades of pink.

What happens to the extremist movement in India will depend largely on how the Maoists emerge in Communist China. Meanwhile, the Indian press has already begun to refer to the "Left CPI Split."

ISRAEL SEEKS U.S. AID

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Israel has begun negotiations with the United States for large scale American food aid. If approved it would provide the Israelis with their first official U.S. assistance since the Middle East war.

The Israelis were understood to be seeking agricultural commodities valued at somewhat less than $30 million to be provided under the Food for Peace program. It was believed the terms would provide for payment partly in dollars and partly in Israeli currency.

ADELAIDE, Australia (UPI)—The launching of Europa-1, initial venture by the European Launch Development Organization, was canceled today after a fault was found in the French portion of the rocket. Wall Street Chatter

The investment firm suggests a "fully invested" position because other issues which have been consolidating and performing well should continue to move up to keep the bull market healthy.
