

Paris Isn't Burning But French Motorists Are

By ROSETTE HARGROVE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

PARIS—(NEA)—Paris is threatened with an extreme case of automobile paralysis which to all appearances is incurable. Traffic jams block the main arteries at peak hours every day except Sundays. When an unusual event occurs, such as the now frequent transport strike, or during the Christmas shopping season, there is no solution other than using one's legs.

Five years ago the situation was critical but not impossible. Since then the number of car owners has risen and Paris suffers from automobile-sickness because the equation space-automobile parking is insoluble.

Two figures spell out the problem. There are over 1,800,000 automobiles in Paris, but room for only 300,000 divided as follows: 85,000 in circulation and 235,000 in parking spaces. A few thousand extra cars is sufficient to create a state of apoplexy.

The future is gloomy. Counting number of Paris automobiles will hit the 4 million mark.

And the fact remains that Paris is not expendable to that extent. The physical make-up of the capital has not changed a great deal since Baron Haussmann, 100 years ago, opened up the eight wide avenues leading from the Place de l'Etoile.

The situation is so hopeless that soon down the boulevards the cars will put pedestrians in chains. Drivers exhausted by the eternal traffic jams will be allowed to park on the sidewalks of some of the broader avenues and allowed to stay there. A narrow pavement protected by chains from further aggression will be for pedestrians. Already several of the broader boulevards and avenues have lost one of the double row of lofty plane and chestnut trees which counted among the adornments of the capital.

There is something symbolic about these chains in Paris which has gone a good deal further than other capitals and major cities along the collision course between cities and automobiles. All can look to Paris to see what happens to a capital that has run out of road to put under its traffic stream.

Latest official figures confirm what every driver here knows to his chagrin—the average speed of cars in Paris at peak hours is almost equivalent to complete standstill.

There is one car to every 3 1/2 Parisians. Allowing cars to clamber up on sidewalks like basking crocodiles in certain places and for not more than 24 hours, the authorities have legalized 12,000 places which motorists had already stolen from pedestrians. This leaves over 200,000 vehicles in a perpetual game of musical chairs, faced with illegal parking or circulating endlessly.

The fact remains that Paris with its maze of side streets is badly equipped to meet the challenge of the encroaching monster. An autoroute is being driven through the heart of the city along the right bank of the Seine and another will soon completely encircle the city. But it is a matter of time before even these will prove inadequate.

The constantly increasing traffic in central Paris is willy nilly changing the physical aspect of the city and causing it to lose some of its most picturesque customs.

Take the once-popular street fairs, with a tradition of over 1,300 years behind them, which were a fixed event on the popular calendar. Earlier in the century they featured hundreds of small stalls stretching along the streets of Paris. They sold novelties candy, hot dogs, along galleries, giant roulette wheels, tattooing booths, fireeaters and sword swallowers.

Now they are confined to short stretches along the main boulevards and limited to the periods around New Year's and Bastille Day (July 14).

While Parisians bemoan the disappearance of the scenes of their youth, Raymond Aron, one of the most brilliant French writers in the economic field recently came to this sorrowful conclusion: "There is no stemming a man's desire for a car."

SISTERS UNDER SKIN

PRESTWOOD, England (UPI)—When organizers banned Brenda Lupke from the village beauty contest because she's already won it so often, they thought that was that.

Instead, Miss Lupke's 16-year-old sister, Susan, is entering. "They are so pretty" signed secretary Olive McNichol "I suppose it's Susan's turn now."

Bandini's Death Spurs Drivers To Demand Safer Race Courses

By BOB COCHNAR and DAVE BURGIN
News:paper Enterprise Assn.
MONTE CARLO — (NEA) — Moments before he squeezed into the Formula 1 Ferrari which ultimately became his incinerator, he expressed his confidence in his car and added, "This is one race I am going to win."

ploded in flames. Bandini was trapped and three days later, he died.
From our vantage point in the pits and looking through a 300 mm lens, we saw the column of smoke and fire reach skyward and heard the mumble of the crowd "Bandini, Bandini."
The race continued as all of Italy's top driver as "part of the game," the fulfillment of a death-wish. Yet it must be said that the danger of Grand Prix driving is a certain attraction to the tight knit of some 20 men qualified to drive Formula 1 machines. In any sport there is that element of danger which is almost magnetic.

Grand Prix must and Hulme eventually accepted the winner's trophy from Princess Grace at the royal box.
It would be easy — and inaccurate — to write of the death of Italy's top driver as "part of the game," the fulfillment of a death-wish. Yet it must be said that the danger of Grand Prix driving is a certain attraction to the tight knit of some 20 men qualified to drive Formula 1 machines. In any sport there is that element of danger which is almost magnetic.

Doctor Sees Little Danger In Marijuana

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Consultant to the President's Crime Commission said today smoking marijuana may be less harmful than drinking but he saw no reason for legalizing its use.

Dr. Richard H. Blum of Stanford University said in a telephone interview that, like alcohol, the drug could be used safely if its uses and dangers were taught and moderation were the keynote.
But, Blum said, the abuses of alcohol—which he rates as the most dangerous drug Americans use—tend to make the "if" too ideal a situation to hope for.
LSD and other hallucinogenic drugs, however, are among the most dangerous, he said exceeding the danger of opiate consumption in their potential for harm. Heroin is chief among the opiates used by addicts in this country.
Blum wrote three of six consultant papers made public today with the crime commission task force report on narcotics and drug abuse.
The papers were a foundation for commission recommendations including federal research into the extent of marijuana use in this country.
Blum said that research showed Americans who smoke marijuana consumed a mild form of the drug and did so infrequently.

Chocolate Drop Cookies Are Answer to Hungry Chorus 'What's To Eat?'

When children are home from school for summer vacation can you ever keep enough snacks on hand to satisfy those choruses of "I'm hungry, what is to eat?"

Homemade cookies are certain to rate high on the list of their snack favorites... especially homemade chocolate cookies. Here's an unusual and tantalizing variation of the popular chocolate drop cookie, unusual because of the addition of diced dates. It's a great flavor combination, and the dates contribute an extra bonus of good nutrition.

DATE CHOCOLATE DROP COOKIES

- 1/2 cup butter
 - 1 cup brown sugar
 - 2 squares chocolate, melted
 - 2 eggs, beaten
 - 1/2 teaspoon vanilla
 - 1 1/2 cups sifted flour
 - 1 teaspoon cinnamon
 - 1/2 teaspoon baking soda
 - 1/4 teaspoon salt
 - 1/2 cup milk
 - 1 cup chopped nuts
 - 1 package (8 ounces) imported pitted dates, finely cut; or 1 package (8 ounces) Borden's diced dates
- Cream together butter and brown sugar. Add melted chocolate, eggs and vanilla; mix thoroughly. Sift together dry ingredients and add alternately with milk to creamed mixture. Stir until well blended. Add nuts and dates. Drop by teaspoons 2 inches apart on greased baking sheet. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 12 to 15 minutes. If desired, frost with chocolate frosting.

Food Buying Guide

The following guide to the nation's food buys for the week-end was prepared by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and Interior for United Press International.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - This weekend the U. S. Departments of Agriculture and Interior predict that plentiful supplies of meats, poultry, fish and produce will be on hand at local markets.

Potatoes, carrots and onions are in good supply along with strawberries and watermelons. You may find attractive price tags on your meat department's beef roasts and steaks, hams. Look for fish filets and steaks, the fish products sealed as plentiful this week.

Never carry a newspaper, book, or small parcel tucked under the arm, says Family Circle Magazine. For groceries, use a shopping bag; for books, a satchel or case. Or carry books in the crook of your arm. Models use a large-size carry-all to get their paraphernalia about town gracefully.

Patriotic Touch Adds Fun To All-American Fare At Picnic

Franks and burgers are all-American fare on the 4th of July whether the family travels to a scenic spot or sets up the backyard grill. The fixings are familiar but just for fun give the menu a patriotic touch. This is the day to serve Red, White, and Blue Burgers and Cheese-Striped Franks.

In many families the man of the house manages the outdoor cooking. Mother sees to it that the food is on hand. As she does her shopping, she may choose both franks and beef burgers branded with the two most trusted words in meat.

There are 10 plump, juicy franks in each package. Remember that franks are fully cooked and only need to be heated. The grill tender should watch closely and serve the franks just as soon as they are heated through.

The ready-to-cook beef burgers are purchased frozen by the bagful. The patties are individually wrapped and then packed in plastic bags containing 10 burgers. A pair of the 2 ounce patties is used in each Red, White, and Blue Burger sandwich. The red is tomato; the white, an onion slice. The blue comes from crumbled blue cheese.

The franks beef burgers, cheeses, and washed lettuce should be toiled to the picnic site in an insulated cooler. If onions and tomatoes are sliced at home, they too should go into the cooler. CHEESE-STRIPED FRANKS Yield: 10 sandwiches 10 (1 pound package) franks 4 slices Cheddar cheese, cut into 1/2 inch strips 3/4 cup chili sauce 10 frank buns, split and toasted Split franks lengthwise, but not clear through. Insert 2 strips of cheese in the pocket of each frank. Spoon 1 tablespoon of chili sauce between the cheese strips. Grill split side up 5 minutes until cheese melts and becomes bubbly. Serve in toasted bun. RED, WHITE, AND BLUE BURGERS Yield: 5 sandwiches

10 (1 package) frozen beef burgers Salt and pepper. 5 hamburger buns, split and toasted Lettuce 2 medium tomatoes, sliced 2 medium onions, sliced 2 packages (4 ounces each) blue cheese Pan-fry or grill frozen beef burgers 1 to 2 minutes per side. Season. To Assemble Each Sandwich: Place lettuce on bottom half of toasted bun. Add tomato slice, beef burger patty, onion slice, and another beef burger patty. Sprinkle with crumbled blue cheese and cover with toasted bun half. Serve hot.

Catch Compliments With Baked Fish Sandwiches

Is it your turn to chef for your husband's poker crowd this week? If so you're probably thinking BIG — all about those big, big appetites and how to fill them while the winner's raking in the chips. One answer, of course, is to take a tip from Dagwood and really stack up some he-man sandwiches for the fellows. That's always a good idea, and if you can introduce a brand new man appealing twist to the sandwich tower — so much the better.

We'd like to suggest that you serve hearty Baked Fish Sandwiches for the occasion. These can be easily made with thick slices of buttered French bread spread with tartar sauce, then layered with American cheese, crisp, filling fish sticks and fresh tomato slices. You can use cooked bacon slices to crown the stack-ups too, if you like. Then, after they've been heated through in the oven, add a final dollop of tartar sauce. What makes the sandwiches different and great is the fish sticks — so easy to use because they can be purchased frozen breaded, and ready to heat and serve. They're chock-full of protein and make for the kind of eating that pleases the men every time.

To make these particular sandwiches, you can crisp the breaded fish sticks first in a about 10 to 15 minutes under the broiler and at the same time toast your buttered slices of French bread. Then assemble the Fish Sandwiches on a cookie sheet or shallow baking dish and slide them into the oven for just enough time to allow the cheese to melt and the whole to heat through.

Bring them right to the table then for the hungry crew of winners and losers. Have a giant relish tray ready, too, a big bowl of coleslaw, and plenty of piping hot coffee or more of whatever beverage the "boys" were drinking while they played. You can have pie ready for dessert if there's need for it too; but you'd better make it the favorite of the whole family because it just might be left over for Mom and the kids the next day. When sandwiches like these are served, "dessert" just may be a call for seconds. And all the men will go home telling their wives what a good cook you are... even though easy did it, thanks to the convenience of the frozen fish sticks.

GOLDEN TOUCH OF HOSPITALITY
BY JANE ASHLEY

Black Bottom Pie Outstanding

One of the most elegant desserts you can serve is Black Bottom Pie which consists of a chocolate flavored bottom layer, topped with a rich, custard filling. The distinctive result is an extra special effort, as it's delicate flavor and texture are sure to reap compliments as you serve it on very special occasions.

Black Bottom Pie

1 baked 8-inch pastry shell	1/4 cup light rum or orange juice
1 envelope unflavored gelatin	1/2 cup light corn syrup
1/2 cup cold water	1/2 ounce uncooked macadamia nuts
1 cup sugar	chocolate, melted
3 tablespoons corn starch	1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 teaspoon salt	4 egg whites
2 cups milk	1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar
4 egg yolks, slightly beaten

Sprinkle gelatin over cold water; let soften. Combine 1/2 cup sugar, corn starch and salt in double boiler top. Gradually add milk, stirring until smooth. Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly, until thickened. Cover; cook 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Measure; prepare pastry; stir a little hot mixture over boiling water. Cook 3 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove from boiling water. Measure 1/2 cup mixture into large bowl. Blend in softened gelatin, stirring until gelatin is completely dissolved. Mix in rum. Stir corn syrup into remaining custard; then blend in chocolate and vanilla. Four chocolate custard into pastry shell. Beat egg whites with cream of tartar until soft peaks form when beater is raised. Gradually add remaining 1/2 cup sugar, beating until stiff peaks form. Fold into rum custard. Pour on top of chocolate custard in pastry shell. Chill.

Company-Style Main Dish Allows Mom Time for Family Fun in Backyard

The following recipe lifts fried chicken from everyday fare to something more exciting by using only breasts, legs and thighs, rolling them in a piguant sour cream sauce and then in fine-particle herb-seasoned stuffing.

It could be baking while you are at church, leaving the afternoon free. Or if you're one who prefers evening dinners, you can put it in the oven and forget it while you join the family for fun in the backyard.

OVEN CRISP CHICKEN

- 1 pint sour cream
 - 4 tablespoons lemon juice
 - 4 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
 - 2 teaspoons paprika
 - 1 teaspoon garlic salt
 - 2 teaspoons celery salt
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - dash pepper
 - 3 lbs. chicken breasts, legs, thighs
 - 1 package herb-seasoned stuffing
 - melted butter.
- Mix together sour cream, lemon juice, Worcestershire sauce, paprika, garlic salt, celery salt, salt and pepper. Dip chicken pieces in this mixture; roll in stuffing. Arrange chicken in a shallow greased baking dish. Brush with melted butter, and place uncovered in a 350 degree F. oven for 1 hour, or until chicken is tender and a crusty brown. Serves 6.

If you're bothered by white heads on your face and are wondering what to do about them, you may find this information from Family Circle helpful. Whiteheads are small cysts that lie below the surface skin. They should be removed only by a physician. See a dermatologist.

Q—Should I give my growing children vitamin supplements?
A neighbor says she always does and advises me to do it, too.
A—Give them good food, plenty of it, well-cooked and interestingly prepared, and they will get all the vitamins their bodies need. What they need is grow strong and stay healthy is not vitamin supplements, but meat, fish, poultry; four servings of milk; four servings of bread or cereal and four servings of fruits and vegetables. These foods will provide all the vitamins needed, and, incidentally, cost far less.

Fight Against Screwworm Fly is Stepped-Up

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — A stepped-up campaign against the screwworm fly cattle pest is taking effect along the U.S.-Mexican border.

The International Screwworm Fly Control Commission, created by the two countries, reported this week that 366 Mexican cases were discovered in May, compared with 490 in May of last year.

Distribution of sterile screwworm flies was stepped up after increases in the number of infestations were reported. Following a rainy spring that scientists said increased the numbers of the pest.

Over 333 million male flies, sexually sterilized by radiation at Mission, Tex., were scattered from airplanes over northern Mexico in May, the commission said.

The sterilized flies mate with wild females, preventing them from reproducing. The campaign has drastically lowered the number of infestations on both sides of the border in recent years.

Eighteen cases were reported in the southwestern U.S., the commission said, one in Arizona and 17 in Texas.

Despite the overall drop in the number of cases, the rate of infection rose along the Texas border — but was offset by a sharp drop in the number of cases on the Mexican sides of the California-Arizona border.

In the Texas border states of Tamaulipas, Nuevo Leon, Coahuila and Chihuahua, the number of cases increased from 127 in the month of May last year to 177 this year. Tamaulipas registered the biggest jump, from 67 to 103.

FOR FRIDAY, JUNE 23

GENERAL TENDENCIES: So many changes are in progress both your worldly reputation and also gaining a more secure structure to your life are assured that you would be wise to make sure that you carefully analyze and study whatever comes up now from a very practical angle. Making time for the weekend, vacation, requires considerable preparation.

ARIES: (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) — If you act constructively and with intelligence, you can get all of your business and personal affairs on a more ideal basis. Make the right impression on higher-ups. You can advance accordingly.

TAUROS: (Apr. 20 to May 20) — Be on the optimistic side regarding improving your position and push through with your ideas, removing stumbling blocks in your path. Look for some new outlet that can be very profitable. Don't just dream — act!

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 21) — Attending to tasks that are important to others who count in your life is wise and your duty right now. Channel the gifts and ideas for advancing. Follow through on them without hesitating.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Keep busy putting all in fine order around you and then off to make the contacts that are important to you, whether for business or personal reasons. You are thinking very quickly and accurately although you are under pressure. Get results.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Make it a point to find new interests that give you the added income you need and want. Some very prominent person in business gives fine advice. Listen carefully and follow up on it.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Be to others just what your aims and desires are while you are out socially and get their cooperation. Be sure that you are dressed most charmingly. You can have a delightful time as well.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Advise your more faith in you if you now operate along very orthodox lines. More success is possible as well. Showing true devotion to people will bring fine cooperation. Forget about going off on tangents.

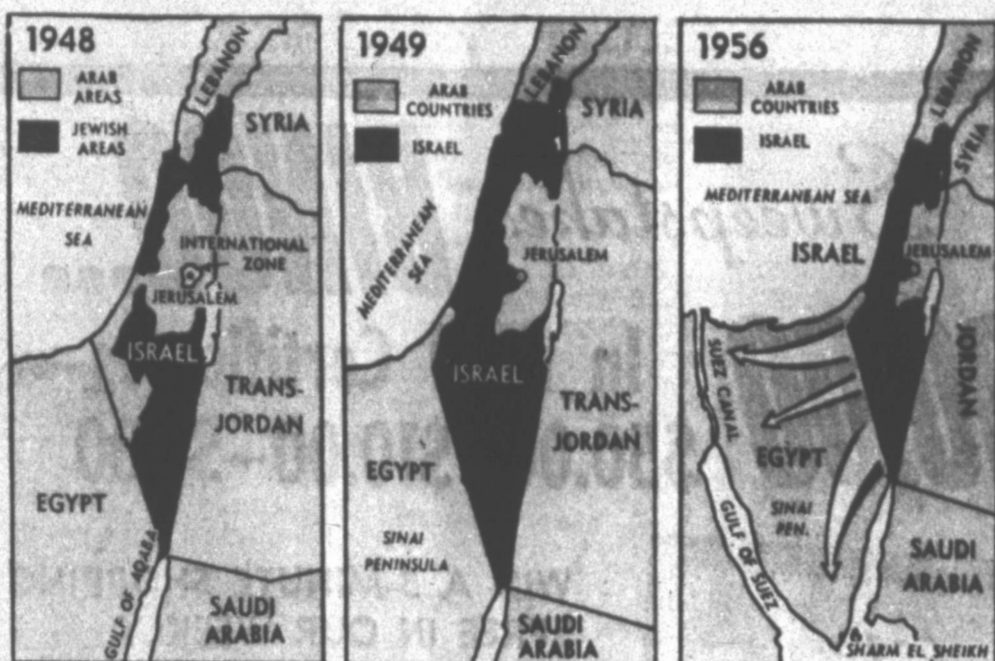

PISCES: (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) — A and if you are worthy of some big favor to be conferred upon you. Then out with your friends. Make new ones at the same time.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those very practical young people who want to be certain of every fact and will soon be smart enough to become acquainted with the financial persons in the community. Give as fine a college education as you can afford, without the unnecessary fluff, and you prepare money for real success.

ZACHARY OPTIONED — HOUSTON (UPI) — Young right-hander Chris Zachary, who was unable to win a game in six tries this season with the Houston Astros, was optioned to Oklahoma City, in the Pacific Coast League, it was announced Tuesday.

In 1965, President Johnson signed a $4.7 billion income tax cut bill.

BOUT POSTPONED — BANGKOK (UPI) — The proposed July 23 world flyweight title bout between champion Charthai Chibohol of Thailand and Puntip Keosuriya, has been postponed because of a sprained ankle sustained by Chibohol. It was announced Tuesday.

ISRAEL'S BORDERS

have changed significantly since the nation's birth in the 1948 partition of Palestine. The United Nations partition plan, accepted by Israel but rejected by the Arabs, split the territory equally between the new Jewish state and Arabs with Jerusalem internationalized. In the first Arab-Israeli war that followed, Israel gained considerable ground, including Jerusalem's New City. Jordan held the historic Old City. In the 1956 round, the Syrian and Jordanian fronts remained quiet while Israel overran Egypt's Sinai Peninsula. She withdrew after international assurances that included open navigation of the Gulf of Aqaba, commanded by the Egyptian stronghold of Sharm El Sheikh. Egypt's blockade of the gulf touched off the latest clash. Israel again occupies Sinai plus all of Jerusalem and large chunks of Jordan and Syria. This time she indicates she intends to hold on to key points.

Shrewd Peg Heckler Captures House With A Smile

By DAVE BURGIN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
WASHINGTON (NEA) — Margaret Heckler began by smiling. It was a big smile, warm and lovely.

Then she said softly, "Hello. How are you? It's nice to meet you."

Shrewd of her, lulling one into a false sense of security! It figured, like the bright smile at the beginning.

Peg Heckler is supposed to be "tough and detached, shrewd and pushy," as one of her Republican colleagues in the House of Representatives put it.

She is, too. To confront her with this reputation doesn't bother her at all. She quickly admits to being "tough and detached, shrewd and pushy."

"Yes," she nodded pensively. "I think that's accurate for the most part."

A freshman in the House from Massachusetts's 10th District, Rep. Heckler, 35, a lawyer, was an instant puzzle to many on Capitol Hill.

First it was a sort of what's nice girl like you doing in a place like this? routine. She is petite and pretty, the mother of three. In neat and simple clothes, she turns many an eye through the halls of Congress.

"I'm asked that question a lot..."

Then, to go with the puzzle of what a pretty lady like Peg Heckler is doing in Congress, next comes the puzzle of how she got here.

It isn't so much that she beat a Democrat named Patrick H. Harrington (by some 4,000 votes) in a district heavily populated by people of Irish descent, or that she is female, or that she's Republican.

The puzzling part is that she got elected after unseating the veteran incumbent, Joe Martin, the Republican primary. Martin, former House Speaker who had been in Congress since 1924, was considered safe for another term.

"I'm asked that question a lot down here," Peg Heckler said. "You know, 'How'd you ever beat old Joe?' But it's usually a rhetorical question. People usually answer it themselves by saying something like, 'Gee, you must really be shrewd!'"

Martin's undoing was a combination of his age (83) and, indeed, Peg Heckler's shrewdness, yet she says she never made Martin's age "a point of issue" in the primary campaign.

"I suppose," she said, "I was shrewd enough not to. There is no question Joe had always represented our district every inch and then some, but his age had become an issue — Democrats had planned to make it one — and everybody knew it. 'I have been interested in politics ever since college. The first thing I learned about it is that you have to be tough — tough mentally, not in the sense you knock people around."

"... you have to be tough — tough mentally."

"I'm not going to sound off about men. Basically, politics is for men, but still there has to be room for at least a few women. The men I come in contact with in this job may be a little naive as far as my being tough is concerned. They expect me to be someone. thing other than all business and that's their fault, not

And you've got to be somewhat detached to take a good look at both sides of tricky issues. If I'm shrewd, well, Congress is no place for people who can't think and maneuver. As for being pushy, the people of my district elected me not to come down here to bow and scrape."

Peg Heckler prefers not to get embroiled in cliché subjects about a woman's role, a mother in Congress "and all that nonsense."

"No, my husband (John, an investment broker in Boston) is not jealous," she said, laughing. "It was pretty much his idea in the first place. And, believe me, he can tell you I still have time for femininity."

"Do I cry? No, not often. When I do get upset, it's not over big problems. I'm tough, remember?" She winked.

Peg Heckler knows well that being known as a hard-working congresswoman won't mean anything without achievement. Meanwhile, being "tough and detached, shrewd and pushy" helps put her on equal terms. "Right

All About Women

doris e. wilson, women's editor

60TH YEAR THURSDAY, JUNE 22 1967

Woman Work Forces Double In Number Since World War II

NEW YORK (UPI) — The number of women working outside the home grows steadily. Today, 26-million plus hold full time, part time or temporary jobs, double the number in pre war 1940.

Why do women work? One pioneer in providing jobs for women lists one basic reason — "the tendency to work is contagious. As women see their friends getting a job and liking it, they too become interested in the whys and hows for themselves."

But Elmer L. Winter is practical enough to list another lure — money. Winter also speaks of the "inner satisfactions" and the "instinct for workmanship," whether they apply to the student, the young married, the full time career type, the mature woman, or the woman alone.

Winter is president and co-founder of Manpower, Inc., which calls itself the world's largest temporary employment service. His comments on the working women are included in one of two new publications on the subject.

His "Women at Work" (Simon and Schuster) is about as complete a guide to getting a job and advancing in it as has appeared. Another, Margaret Albrecht's "A Complete Guide for the Working Mother" (Doubleday) is just that — not all embracing. Both, however, comment on type of job, full time or part time, for the woman entering the work force. Full time is for you if you are free and unencumbered by a dependent family; you are absolutely in need of income; you are so far launched on a career that it would be crippling to stop now; and it is economically and practically sound to hire help for your household needs.

Part time work is for you if you are a student helping yourself through school; you are married with a home to care for; your children do not require your whole attention; and you are a "mature" worker who prefers not to work full time.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I have been employed as a secretary by the same man for nine years. I was only 21 when I came to work here, and I was green as grass. My boss is in his late 50s and his wife is about his age. They have children and grandchildren, and he is an important man in this community.

Over the years I noticed that he took an interest in women. He took them to lunch, cocktails, dinner, and bought some of them gifts. I figured this was none of my business.

He used to compliment me on my hair, clothes etc., but I paid no attention.

I recently announced my engagement and told him I wanted a month off for my honeymoon, but would return to work for a while after that. He then asked if he could "kiss the bride," so I told him he could, at my wedding. Then he broke down and started to cry like a baby, telling me he had been "in love" with me all these years. He said he and his wife hadn't lived as man and wife for 20 years, blah, blah... I was stunned.

Then he got over it real quick and said he was only "kidding." (Kidding? With real tears?) Now I ask you, should I quit my job for good when I marry? Or should I come back and pretend all this never happened? It's a good job and he needs me.

IN A QUANDARY
DEAR IN: When you quit, stay away. He may need you but you need him like a kangaroo needs a brief case.

DEAR ABBY: I am engaged to a very high-class man I have been dating for over a year. Cal gave me a nice pearl engagement ring which he had sized for my little finger. I never knew an engagement ring could be worn on the little finger. He doesn't want me to tell anyone we are engaged as he doesn't want it to get back to his mother. Here's the background.

I have been married divorced, and have a child, and Cal hasn't told his mother about that yet. I've met his mother a few times and she seems to like me okay but she thinks I'm just another one of Cal's girlfriends.

I told Cal if he didn't tell his mother about me and the baby I was going to tell her. He keeps saying he will in time. How long should I wait? I am 26 and Cal is 33 I've had this ring since last December and I want to make some plans.

WAITING
DEAR WAITING: Set a "deadline" (one week) and if Cal doesn't tell his mother about you, consider your "engagement" dead.

DEAR ABBY: Our son is a professional photographer and one of the best in town. He snaps everything and everybody but his own mother and father.

From the time he was a small boy he was interested in photography as a hobby so his Dad and I always saw to it that he

Clay Still Plans Boxing Matches

CHICAGO (UPI) — Former heavyweight champion Cassius Clay said the "grace of Allah" would decide whether he goes to prison for evading the draft, but meanwhile he wants to do some more boxing.

Within the next several months, Clay told a news conference here Wednesday, he may fight Germany's Karl Mildenberger, top contender for the World Boxing Association heavyweight crown; Argentina's Oscar Bonavena, former U.S. Olympian; Joe Frazier, or Canada's George Chuvalo. All four pulled out of a proposed "tournament" to pick a successor to Clay.

Clay said Chuvalo and Frazier would have to beat him before they "could think about being legitimate champions," no matter who wins what Clay called a "blind robin" WBA tourney to pick a holder of Clay's forfeited crown.

"I'm the champ. I can beat any man alive now. I don't have to prove it to anybody. It doesn't make any difference if they take my name off a few pieces of paper. You can't brainwash the fact that I'm the champ out of the minds of the people," Clay said.

Clay had bitter words for the WBA, which lifted his title when he refused to accept induction

Nicklaus Favored To Win Tourney In His Hometown

CLEVELAND (UPI)—Bury Jack Nicklaus, fresh from a record-setting triumph in the U.S. Open, was favored today in a 144-man field teeing off in the first round of the Cleveland Open golf tournament.

Nicklaus, who regained his golfing touch at Baltusrol in last week's U.S. Open to record a 275, claimed he still had the fine edge in the $103,500 Cleveland Open at nearby Aurora Country Club.

The long-hitting Nicklaus, besides shooting for back-to-back wins, would like nothing better than to win a tournament in his home state. The Columbus, Ohio, native came close in two of his three previous Cleveland Opens.

Like most of the other golfers, Nicklaus said he had never seen the par 70, 6,611-yard, Aurora layout until Tuesday's practice round and Wednesday's pro-amateur exhibition.

Other top pros aiming for the first prize of $20,700 included Arnold Palmer, winner of the first Cleveland Open in 1963; Billy Casper; Frank Beard, and Gay Brewer.

Except for Palmer, most of them have had little luck in the four previous Opens. The late Tony Lama won the title in 1964, and Dan Sikes took first place in 1965.

Defending champion was young Dick Sikes, who won $20,000 a year ago when the tournament was played at Lakewood Country Club.

The field will be cut to the low 70 players, plus ties, after Friday's second round. The third round was scheduled Saturday and the final round on Sunday, with a "sudden death" playoff to be held immediately in case of ties.

Young Dewitt Weaver of Atlanta led the way in Monday's qualifier with a three-under 67 as the final 18 berths went up for grabs. The remainder of the 144-man field included the high 60 money winners of last year, all U.S. Open and PGA champions, players who made the cut in last week's U.S. Open and some "sponsor" exemptions.

CASSIUS CLAY
...convicted

into the Army.

"It was a Communist action, something that would be done in a Communist country," Clay said of the WBA decision.

However, even if he had known that he would be stripped of his title and sentenced to five years imprisonment for refusing to be drafted, he still would have rejected induction, Clay said at an impromptu airport news conference following arrival here.

"I'm just trying to live by the Holy Koran. I would do everything that I've done over again. Without the Islam religion I would be lost. By the grace of Allah, if he so decides, I'll just have to take my punishment. I'll just be another prisoner," Clay said.

Clay, whose defense against the selective service act violation was based on his claim that he is draft exempt as a Black Muslim minister, spent Wednesday night conferring with the cults "Messenger of Alla," Elijah Muhammad.

Tulia Succumbs To Pampa Rebels, 14-3

The Pampa Rebels overcame Tulia 14 to 3 yesterday in American Legion baseball play in seven innings.

The Rebels kept Tulia scoreless until the sixth inning, when Tulia finally made their runs—three of them in the sixth. Pampa scored four runs in the same inning.

The Rebels scored in every inning but the fifth. Having only one run in the second, the Rebels had two in the first, third and fourth, and finished with three runs in the seventh.

Alvin Achord, Larry Jones and Larry Stephens each had three runs, while Ron Sanders and Steve Summers brought in two each. Dickie Henley scored the remaining run.

AMERICAN LEAGUE ROUNDUP

Sox Fans Like Williams

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer

Boston fans who were willing to settle for Dick Williams converting the Red Sox from a traveling night club into a team may wind up with a batting champion, a home run king, a 20-game winner and a first vision finish for the first time since 1958.

The Red Sox finished ninth in the American League last season but moved into sole possession of fourth place Wednesday night when they whipped the New York Yankees 8-1 and the Minnesota Twins played an eight-inning rain-plaque 5-5 tie with the Detroit Tigers.

Williams, the rookie manager who gambled on getting tough with his players, is the No. 1 reason for the Red Sox' revival but others who share in the credit include:

Carl Yastrzemski, who hit only .278 with 16 homers in 1966, but is batting .333 with 17 this season.

Up 40 Points — Tony Conigliaro, whose current .305 batting average is 40 points higher than his .265 mark of last year.

— Jim Lonborg, a 10-10 pitcher last season, who has a 9-2 record this year.

Yastrzemski hit three consecutive run-scoring singles and Conigliaro drove in four runs with a homer and a single to lead the Red Sox' 13th attack against the Yankees Wednesday night. The 6-foot, 5-inch, 200-pound Lonborg coasted behind the assault with a sevenhitter embellished by seven strikeouts.

The Red Sox, who haven't finished in the first division since 1958, stand a creditable usually platoon by the Phils and used only against lefthanded pitchers.

"About the only time I see righthanders is in the hotel lobbies," Uecker laughed.

Uecker even wound up with five RBIs since he blooped a run-scoring double off lefthander Joe Gibbon in the second inning before his grand slam highlighted a seven-run third inning.

"I was just as happy with that two base hit," Uecker grinned. "Heck I'm happy even when I hit a hard grounder."

Grand Slammer

Herbel replaced Gibbon after the Giant starter failed to retire the first three batters in the third. Gibbon was tagged for two singles, Clete Boyer's sacrifice fly and a walk before Uecker lit the grand slam to climax the seven-run inning.

Elsewhere in the National League, St. Louis blanked Los Angeles 2-1, Cincinnati edged Houston 3-2, Chicago turned back Pittsburgh 6-3 and New York shut off Philadelphia, 2-0.

In the American League, Boston ripped New York 8-1, Chicago swept a doubleheader from Washington by 5-2 and 2-1 margins, Baltimore edged Kansas City 5-4 and Detroit and batted in.

Two-run homers by Dick McAuliffe and Al Kaline offset two homers by Killebrew and one by Rod Carew at Detroit where rain held up the game five times before the umpires called it at 1:03 a.m. EST. The game will be replayed in its entirety as part of a doubleheader on Aug. 22.

The White Sox won the first game of their doubleheader with the help of Tommie Agee's triple and a sacrifice fly by Don Buford in the fifth inning and took the nightcap on Tom McCraw's eighth homer leading off the seventh. The sweep was the White Sox' fifth in 11 doubleheaders.

Hoyt Wilhelm protected the victory for Bruce Howard with three shutout relief innings in the opener and Bob Locker preserved Jim O'Toole's win with two shutout relief innings in the nightcap.

F. Robinson's 21st homer with one on in the fourth inning and Dave Johnson's two-run double in the sixth were the big blows of the Orioles' eight-hit attack. Peter Rechest won 6 2-3 innings to win his second game since he was acquired by the Orioles and raise his season record to four victories and eight defeats.

Rookie Wins It

Rookie Lee May drove in the tying and winning runs on a seventh inning homer and a ninth inning groundout as the Reds edged Houston. With the score tied 2-2 in the ninth, Vada Pinson doubled, went to third on Tony Perez' long fly and scored on May's high chopper down the first base line. Ted Abernathy went the final two innings to gain the win for the Reds while Larry Dierker lost it.

Braves Hire Uecker to Catch, But He Hits Niekro's Pitches

By VITO STELLINO
UPI Sports Writer

The Atlanta Braves obtained Bob Uecker to catch Phil Niekro's pitches but he's proved more adept at hitting Ron Herbel's pitches.

Uecker, batting just .057 for the Braves and .114 for the season, was obtained in a trade with Philadelphia for Gene Oliver on June 6 mainly to catch Niekro's tricky knuckleball pitches.

But Uecker was pressed into the starting lineup when Joe Torre sprained his ankle last week.

Practically helpless at the plate since he's joined the Braves, Uecker connected for his first major league grand slam off Herbel Wednesday to give the Braves a 9-2 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

Uecker acted afterwards as if he was as surprised as everyone else with the homer.

A Mistake

"It must have been a mistake," Uecker deadpanned. "Either I made a mistake hitting it or Herbel made a mistake throwing it."

It was even more surprising that the hit came off a righthanded pitcher since the righthanded-hitting Uecker was usually platoon by the Phils and used only against lefthanded pitchers.

"About the only time I see righthanders is in the hotel lobbies," Uecker laughed.

Uecker even wound up with five RBIs since he blooped a run-scoring double off lefthander Joe Gibbon in the second inning before his grand slam highlighted a seven-run third inning.

Matson to Throw In National AAU Track Competition

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (UPI) — The two-day National AAU Track and Field championships, boasting most of the nation's top competitors, get underway at Bakersfield's Memorial Stadium tonight with berths on a flock of summer meets at stake as well as personal titles.

Eight finals in all will be held tonight and 11 on Friday as such as Ralph Boston, Randy Matson, Jim Ryan, Charlie Greene and Ron Whitney take on crack competition in nearly every event of the two-day carnival.

Selection of a 60-man, 30-woman United States team for the meet with the British Commonwealth in Los Angeles July 8-9 as well as to the Pan-American Games trials at Minneapolis, July 14-15, the World Student Games at Tokyo, Aug. 26-Sept. 5 and four other international meets will be based in large part on performances here.

Maglie Turns Up Nose, Says It's a Big Nothing

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—Sal Maglie, a real connoisseur when it comes to bean ball battles, turned up his nose at this one and said it was a big nothing.

Maglie ought to know. He was in plenty of them.

He's the Red Sox pitching coach now and pushing 50 but just to keep his hand in he plunked Bobby Avila on the shoulder with what once used to be his best fast ball in an Old Timers' game at Cleveland last Sunday.

Anyway, Magie didn't think much of Wednesday night's near free-for-all at Yankee Stadium where the Red Sox slaughtered the Yankees 8-1 and where Jim Lonborg and Thad Tiltonson conked a couple of guys on the skull.

"It was nothing like some of the ones we used to have with the old Giants and Dodgers," Sal snorted contemptuously. "The only thing that reminded me of those good old days was when Lonborg came up to bat and got booted. Remember how they used to give it to me?"

Joe Gets Dumped

The one they gave it to Wednesday night, though, was Joe Peppone, who was dumped on his wrist by rugged George Scott when both teams came charging out on the field in the second inning.

Joey Foy had his helmet knocked off by a Tiltonson fast ball. Lonborg then returned the compliment to Tiltonson and later Lonborg popped pinch-hitter Dick Howser with a sizzler atop his hard hat, but it was Peppone who ended up with a sprained left wrist, angry red spike wounds on his legs and a sorely bruised vanity.

It all came about in the bottom of the second after Lonborg hit Tiltonson and the Yankee pitcher began giving the Red Sox right-hander some verbal heat.

That annoyed Foy, who had been a Tiltonson target in the top of the inning, and he started advancing toward him from his third base position.

Wanna Fight?

"If you wanna fight," Foy hollered at Tiltonson, "come after me, not Lonborg."

By this time some of the Yanks had come out of their dugout and Peppone, who was among them, called out to Foy: "Never mind him, I'll fight you."

That one was broken up pretty quickly and it seemed as if peace would be restored until two old buddies, Rico Petrocelli and Peppone, who grew up in the same Brooklyn neighborhood together, began joking with one another.

"They were passing words and I thought they were kidding" explained Scott later. "I looked at Rico and he said they were kidding. I thought it was a helluva time to be kidding when both teams were on the field six inches from each other."

Some Kidding

Next thing you knew there were Peppone and Petrocelli going for each other's jugular vein. Just kidding, of course.

Scott only did what comes naturally. He clamped an armlock on Peppone, spun him around and the next thing you knew there was Joey down on the ground.

The two rival managers, Dick Williams and Ralph Houk, also were in the arena but they were trying to restore peace.

"Do you think we oughta have a summit meeting?" Williams asked Houk at one point. Two innings later, Houk got the thumb from umpire Bill Haller for getting his blood pressure worked up over a decision at first base.

Cooler guy in the ball park during the principal fracas was Lonborg, who simply remained on the mound while only a few feet behind him it looked like the Middle East crisis with both clubs squared off on the first base side of the infield.

"I didn't care about any fight," said the Boston stringbean. "All I was looking to do was win the ball game. What did I care about Tiltonson? I wanted them to give me the ball so I could get on with the game."

In time they did and he did. Williams excused Foy from the game early.

It was a rough week for the Red Sox third baseman. His home in the Bronx burned down Sunday just as he was about to visit it and Tiltonson didn't tickle him with that second inning fast ball. The shot made Joey feel a little wobbly.

But Maglie said it wasn't anywhere like old times.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license, nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself no more, no less. It is thus consistent with the Human Relations Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

'Open Meeting' Act Now the Law

TEXAS NOW has one of the best "open meeting" laws in the nation. It was passed in the recent session of the legislature and given immediate effect.

We received the other day a copy of the act as finally passed. It makes interesting reading for those of us involved in gathering and reporting the news, for people who believe in their right to know, and for the public servants whose future actions it governs.

Every newswoman who has ever had the door of a meeting room slammed in his face will commit the act to memory. Public agencies would do well to frame it and hang it on the wall of their meeting room, where it can serve as a constant reminder and point of reference.

This is what the act says:

AN ACT to prohibit governmental bodies from holding meetings which are closed to the public; defining the term "governmental body"; making certain exceptions; providing for relief by mandamus or injunction to prevent closed meetings; making unlawful certain acts pertaining to closed meetings; and prescribing a penalty therefor; repealing all laws in conflict; and declaring an emergency.

BE IT ENACTED by the Legislature of the State of Texas: Section 1. (a) Except as otherwise provided in this Act, every regular, special, or called meeting of every governmental body shall be open to the public.

(b) A "governmental body" within the executive department of the state, which is under the direction of three or more elected or appointed members; and every Commissioners Court and city council in the state, and every deliberative body having rule-making or quasi-judicial powers and classified as a department, agency, or political subdivision of a county or city; and the board of trustees of every school district, and every county board of school trustees and county board of education; and the governing board of every special district heretofore or hereafter created by law.

Sec. 2. (a) The provisions of this Act do not apply to: (1) deliberations during a meeting to consider the appointment, employment or dismissal of a public officer or employee or to hear complaints or charges brought against such officer or employee, unless such officer or employee requests a public hearing; (2) deliberations pertaining to the acquisition of additional real property; (3) deliberations on matters affecting security; or (4) any investigating committee of the Legislature.

(b) A governmental body may exclude any witness or witness- examination from a hearing during examination of another witness in the matter being investigated.

(c) Nothing in this Act shall be construed to affect the deliberating body from consulting with its attorney.

(d) Nothing in this Act shall be construed to affect the deliberations of grand juries.

(e) The provisions of this Act shall not apply to periodic conferences held among staff members of the governmental body. Such staff meetings will be only for the purpose of internal administration and no matters of public business or agency policies that affect public business will be acted upon.

Sec. 3. Any interested person may commence an action either by mandamus or injunction for the purpose of stopping or preventing violations or threatened violations of this Act by members of a governing body.

Sec. 4. ANY member of a governing body who wilfully calls or aids in calling or organizing a special or called meeting or session which is closed to the public, or who wilfully closes or aids in closing a regular meeting or session to the public, or who participates in a regular, special, or called meeting or session which is closed to the public without causing or attempting to cause his dissent to be entered in the record or minutes of the governing body shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not less than $25 nor more than $200 on the first offense, and shall be fined not less than $100 nor more than $500 on each subsequent offense.

Sec. 5. If any provision of this Act or the application thereof to any person or circumstances is held invalid, such invalidity shall not affect other provisions or applications of the Act which can be given effect without the invalid provision or applications, and to this end the provisions of this Act are declared to be severable.

Sec. 6. All laws or parts of laws in conflict with the provisions of this Act are repealed to the extent of such conflict only.

Sec. 7. The importance of assuring that the public has the more opportunity to be informed concerning the transactions of public business creates an emergency and an imperative public necessity that the Constitutional Rule requiring bills to be read on three several days in each House be suspended, and this Rule is hereby suspended; and that this Act take effect and be in force from and after its passage, and it is so enacted.

Sec. 8. (a) The provisions of this Act do not apply to:

(1) deliberations during a meeting to consider the appointment, employment or dismissal of a public officer or employee or to hear complaints or charges brought against such officer or employee, unless such officer or employee requests a public hearing;

(2) deliberations pertaining to the acquisition of additional real property;

(3) deliberations on matters affecting security; or

(4) any investigating committee of the Legislature.

(b) A governmental body may exclude any witness or witness-examination from a hearing during examination of another witness in the matter being investigated.

(c) Nothing in this Act shall be construed to affect the deliberating body from consulting with its attorney.

(d) Nothing in this Act shall be construed to affect the deliberations of grand juries.

(e) The provisions of this Act shall not apply to periodic conferences held among staff members of the governmental body. Such staff meetings will be only for the purpose of internal administration and no matters of public business or agency policies that affect public business will be acted upon.

Sec. 9. Any interested person may commence an action either by mandamus or injunction for the purpose of stopping or preventing violations or threatened violations of this Act by members of a governing body.

Sec. 10. ANY member of a governing body who wilfully calls or aids in calling or organizing a special or called meeting or session which is closed to the public, or who wilfully closes or aids in closing a regular meeting or session to the public, or who participates in a regular, special, or called meeting or session which is closed to the public without causing or attempting to cause his dissent to be entered in the record or minutes of the governing body shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not less than $25 nor more than $200 on the first offense, and shall be fined not less than $100 nor more than $500 on each subsequent offense.

Sec. 11. If any provision of this Act or the application thereof to any person or circumstances is held invalid, such invalidity shall not affect other provisions or applications of the Act which can be given effect without the invalid provision or applications, and to this end the provisions of this Act are declared to be severable.

Sec. 12. All laws or parts of laws in conflict with the provisions of this Act are repealed to the extent of such conflict only.

The Doctor Says:

Nursing Mother Needs A Well-Balanced Diet

A mother who wants to nurse her baby asks whether such foods as gelatin, tea, milk, and fruits will increase her milk supply.

A nursing mother needs a well-balanced diet but does not need any special diet. If she has good nutritional habits to start with she will have no need to change her habits. A sound knowledge about foods in general would be a help but she need not be a food chemist or dietician to eat well. Her diet should contain a variety of foods derived from both plants and animals.

It is well for her to avoid rich desserts, candies, cakes and soft drinks because they satisfy her appetite without providing the needed vitamins and minerals. Failing to eat a well-balanced diet is not likely to affect the quality of her milk but the baby and all members of the family will suffer if, as a result of skipping breakfast or eating on the run, she becomes overly tired, nervous or on edge.

A nursing mother needs more fluids than women who are not lactating. It is wise, therefore, for her to drink a glass of water, tea, milk or fruit juice just before nursing and as often in between as she feels the need. If her urine is not too concentrated as manifested by being dark in color and scanty she is probably getting sufficient fluids.

Q—Is a nonfat dry milk adequate for a baby?
A—No. Whether it be bulk- evaporated or dried he should have whole milk.

Q—Because my daughter, 5, is plagued with allergies she has not had a smallpox vaccination. If she should contract this disease is there now a cure for it?
A—The first step in all such cases is to identify the allergens and bring them under control. When this is done most doctors would go ahead and vaccinate the child but take the precaution of giving her antihistamine at the same time. A new drug (Marboran) has been found to prevent smallpox and another drug iododeoxyuridine, is effective, like smallpox are caused by viruses. Prevention, however, is still preferable from every standpoint to cure no matter how effective the latter may be.

Q—In a recent column you recommended a vaccine against German measles. Where can I get it?
A—The vaccines for both German measles and mumps that I mentioned have been developed but will not be available for general use until released by the Food and Drug Administration.

Your Dental Health

By DR. WM. LAWRENCE Blood-Clotting Problem? Best Telling Your Dentist

Some bleeding or oozing from a tooth socket after an extraction is normal, but it's not normal to bleed significantly 24 to 48 hours after extractions. If this happens to you, it may be that you have a blood-clotting problem. It doesn't necessarily indicate a serious problem but sometimes suggests disease of blood of bone marrow. You may need help.

This is not the type of bleeding called hemophilia. Hemophilia is a hereditary disease, occurring only in males, but transmitted through mothers to their sons.

Hemophilia is discovered early in childhood. Awareness of the disease results in special precautions to prevent any kind of trauma that would cause bleeding. Hemophiliacs are usually well cared for in special hospital clinics. Those needing extractions are hospitalized at least a day before surgery and treated with special concentrated with fresh frozen plasma and other drugs as indicated, such as antibiotics. Treatment until wound is healed and pain is subsided after extractions until wound is healed and patient is ready for discharge.

Of less dramatic concern, but of some importance to patient and dentist, are those whose blood-clotting time is not within normal limits but who are not "true bleeders." They are a concern because their extractions are done in private offices by dentists who are not always aware of their condition.

What can you do about it? Tell your dentist. Any suggestion of a blood-clotting problem should be communicated to your dentist prior to extraction. Report to him: If scratches or cuts bleed for a long time; if body bruises produce large black and blue marks; or if extractions, dental prophylaxis or periodontal treatment cause continued oozing for many hours afterwards. Thus forewarned, he can employ necessary precautions, and lessen the extent of, or eliminate, a bleeding episode.

If necessary, a "blood-screening test" or blood-clotting analysis can be made to determine clotting time and related factors. Normal clotting time is about 10 to 12 minutes. Anything above that time indicates some sort of clotting abnormality and a further study becomes necessary. This is up to discretion of the doctor.

Pull Up A Chair

By FRANK JAY MARKEY

At last count there were 25 million snorers in this country and we'll bet they disturb at least twice that number of quiet sleepers. A medical publication says snoring results from too much smoking, overwork, fatigue, obesity and general poor health. The survey found that snoring is a problem to many married couples and some have had to set up schedules so that the non-snorer precedes or follows the other partner in sleeping. To us the easiest solution to the problem is to bed the snorer in a soundproof room.

Today's smile: Two secretaries were on a coffee break and one said: "Did you see the wonderful diamond John gave Margie? It's beautiful." The other said: "Yes. It does look well on her. It didn't fit me."

Joyce Kilmer wouldn't believe it, but the insatiable demand for wood (particularly for making paper) has led scientists to develop a "supertree." It grows faster than pine and can produce more paper as well as chemical by-products that go into making paints and varnishes. One of the latest experiments to lessen the world food problem is to make edibles out of natural gas. A major oil company has succeeded in extracting nutrients in the form of a white powder from petroleum products and gases that can be flavored with strawberry or chocolate flavoring. It has proven sufficient to satisfy hunger. What next?

Thoughts while shaving: Reports from Viet Nam indicate the Viet Cong can smell the insect repellent on our jungle fighters. That reminded us that in World War II the Marines could smell the Japs when holed up in caves because of the Fu-Fu powder they used to alleviate chafing and other skin disorders. Apparently weapons may change, but the human sense of smell doesn't. . . . A golf pro told us about a new way to analyze your swing. He says most pro shops now sell a set of two napped clubhead covers, one for irons and the other for woods, a foam tee and plastic ball. He says that when you swing at the ball it sticks to the cover and shows exactly where you're making contact and also shows you how you are making mistakes in your swing or stance. Somehow we think we need more than that kind of equipment to improve our game. . . . The average house today contains about 800 pounds of plastics, such as resilient flooring (vinyl), counter tops, insulating foams, adhesives, etc. That's much different from 30 years ago when the average house was made of wood and was held together by nail spikes and plaster. . . . CONSERVATISM: A YOUTH MOVEMENT

Anyone who has visited American colleges and universities and seen the vitality of campus conservative groups knows that conservatism is not only a healthy public philosophy but a vigorous youth movement in the United States.

Tired liberals, brought up on the doctrinaire thinking of the New Deal of the 1930s, try, of course, to present conservatism as an outlook for greybeards. But the liberals face an impossible task, for they are, in effect, attempting to rewrite the history of our times, which testifies to the growing strength of conservative concepts.

The young Marine lieutenant in Vietnam, who recently signed over his monthly paycheck to the conservative magazine, NATIONAL REVIEW, because he believed in the kind of America it is striving for, is one of a numerous breed. Indeed adult conservatives need not fear a lack of conservative recruits. The returning generation of Vietnam veterans, who have fought in the rice paddies against communism, understand the international realism that conservatism has been emphasizing recent decades.

The statisticians tell us that America is an increasingly young nation, as the big crop of post-World War II war babies become young adults. These young adults want to play a part in a more prosperous America. Only a very small element among the young is interested in marching in demonstrations or in trying to overthrow our basic social and economic order. The vast majority of the young are property-minded, in a healthy manner. They are interested in getting a good job, buying an attractive home, and enjoying the leisure-time activities that this affluent and beautiful land affords. The young, moreover, are smart enough to know that these things are the fruits of enterprise.

They are wealth not pply con on e This conservatism is in position to make a powerful pitch to the young, productive adults of America. These well-educated young people can understand that, at heart, conservatism means accepting the wealth producing features of our society instead of the leveling, non-productive, wealth-sharing programs characteristic of socialism. Conservatives, after all, are wealth creators, not people simply concentrating on cutting up economic pie. And a great nation becomes greater through fresh accumulation, not division of what it has.

Young people today are very specific in their interests. It is not enough, for example, to praise "constitutional government." Established conservative leaders should carefully spell out what they mean, illustrating in a modern manner how personal freedom CANNOT survive in an environment of rigid bureaucracy and master-state controls.

If conservatives hail "free enterprise," they should — whenever possible — give examples of the superiority of the free market system over a controlled economy. The world scene, to be sure, is full of useful examples. Young people should be advised, for instance, to consider the sad case of England, where reactionary socialist concepts have retarded the growth of a people with a proud tradition and brought them close to national insolvency.

Communication is tremendously important in the modern world. Words count in trying to sell ideas to people. And established conservatives also must recognize the problem of "image." There must be an unceasing effort to present conservatism as positive, not negative. Conservatism isn't a defense of the status quo or a static outlook. In truth, conservatism is the faith of community and nation-builders, a belief that freedom from government controls gives people a better, more affluent life.

Fortunately, great numbers of young people already are sold on this idea. Even more recruits will be gained if adult conservatives keep trying to improve communication with those young Americans who haven't yet got the message that conservatism is the nation's greatest youth movement.

are still wondering whether it was a boy or a girl? Country Editor speaking: "One that most of the people you meet know all the answer."

TAXPAYERS FOOT BILL (Southern States Bulletin)

On prior occasions we have expressed concern at Washington's cruel disregard of the taxpayer's painful contribution to the well-being of our public servants. A recent news story heightens our concern.

Chief Justice Earl Warren and his wife, according to the story were paid $948 by the State Department for a 13-day trip to Bolivia, Peru and Colombia in their roles as "United States specialists" whatever that might be. Oh, we forgot that Mrs. Warren enjoyed the status of a "welfare service volunteer" which therefore entitled her to $362. The State Department had to dig even deeper into its petty cash fund for compensation to quite a mixed bag of other "United States specialists."

Our heart goes out to poor Chief Justice Warren who receives a paltry $40,000 per year for his highly original legal interpretations of the Constitution. Obviously, he's entitled to some fringe benefits such as publicly subsidized junkets to Latin America. We only hope, however, that if some rebellious citizen ever charged with income tax evasion the wretched defendant will not cite resentment at State Department profligacy as justification for his sins; especially if the case reaches the Supreme Court.

What shocked us even more than Warren's brief sojourn south of the border was the costlier journey of one Mr. Ralph McGill. Mr. McGill, publisher of the Atlanta Constitution, has won international recognition among liberals as a pundit of distinction. When lacking inspiration for his syndicated column, he writes with vigor and venom about the South.

Anyway, Mr. McGill was another peripatetic "specialist" who drew $5,118 for "lectures on journalism" in South Africa, Ghana, Kenya, Tanzania and Zambia!

Little items like the foregoing are contained in a long list of "specialists" whose wanderings about the globe were sponsored by the State Department who picked up the tab. And where do you suppose the State Department got the money? FROM YOU AND ME, OF COURSE.

This isn't amusing—not really. It's almost sickening. What with all the soul searching going on about ethics, or lack thereof, re: Adam Clayton Powell and Senator Thomas Dodd, we think other matters should come to light.

To the citizen looking at enticing travel folders — wishing wistfully that Washington had left him enough after taxes to visit some far off romantic land — there must come a feeling of envy for those whom he supports.

Take Justice Potter Stewart, for example. The State Department spent $5,311 on the jurist and his crew 72 days visiting Ceylon, Greece, India, Iran, Lebanon, Nepal, Pakistan, the United Arab Republic, Japan, Thailand, Vietnam, Austria, England, Italy and the Netherlands. We are informed that Justice Stewart "held discussions with lawyers, and others concerned with society."

If that makes you wonder—how about a total of $8,223 for two Tennessee State University track stars and their coach. They participated in track clinics and put on demonstrations in Ethiopia, Kenya and Malawi.

While not proposing further needless Federal expenditures, we'd like to see the entire list of "specialists" widely publicized together with the cost for sending them on their dubious missions. We are not amused.

We are outraged. Perhaps our respective Congressmen will allay our wrath and concern by intelligent explanations? —William Lowndes.

PRINCIPLES ARE TIMELESS

A friend of mine had been back in his old home town spending some time just reminiscing among the familiar landmarks. He noted how the stones leading up to the hundred year old courthouse had deep worn places in them, the result of wear from the shoes of many, many people. He mentioned that the amount of wear from one person's tread on the steps couldn't even be measured because it would be so infinitesimally small. Only over a considerable span of time would a change be evident. I immediately thought of what the late Senator Robert A. Taft once observed about nations. In words something like these, he said, "Nations don't collapse—they simply erode."

Greatness in a nation does not disappear overnight. Like the wearing away of stone steps, a nation slips into oblivion. Seemingly unaware of the causes which underlay past failures, people continue to repeat history. So very often, retreats from freedom in this country are at the instance of impatient prodgers, whose reasoning is something like, "This is a new era. The constitution was designed for an agrarian, almost primitive, society. It cannot keep pace with our complex society's demands." Such reasoning is extremely shallow. Though perhaps not faultless, the U. S. Constitution was based on principles which are timeless. We might as well try to repeal the law of gravity as try to by-pass principles. Nevertheless, we continue to give up freedom, step by step.

There are people who believe our Supreme Court must bear much of the blame for the erosion of freedom in this country. This is too simple an answer. The court's members were appointed by the president, who was elected by the people. The background and philosophy of Presidential candidates is always known. The appointees to the court were approved by the Senate, which was also selected by the people. Government is always a rather accurate reflection of the electorate. Had the people of this country been strong and willing to face the rigors of a free, competitive society, the siren song of security would have made no headway. A constitutional document, no matter how well it is written, cannot stand alone. Its backbone is the moral fiber of the people. What has happened, and is happening at an ever increasing pace — the loss of freedom — is due precisely to our failure as individuals.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—Wright Investors' Service says that the widely predicted resurgence of economic growth will arrive this fall but it likely will be far shorter than anticipated. It also feels an over-supply of goods will result in an "almost certain" cost-price squeeze on corporate earnings.

Standard & Poor's believes the market's recent bullish performance, along with signs

Top O' Texans Meet Friday in Chamber

Top O' Texans group will meet at 11 a.m. Friday in the Chamber of Commerce office to discuss the annual summer dinner party and procedures for entering on new CoC members with new businesses and changes in management.

Vernon Watkins, president, will preside in discussion of the dinner party at Coronado Inn, June 11 for Top O' Texans and their wives.

of an improved economic position, suggest further gains in the stock market although the possibility of higher interest rates and taxes may act as moderating factors.

Hornblower & Weeks Hemphill, Noyes feels the consolidation which took place after the sudden termination of Arab-Israeli hostilities is likely to re-occur over the next few weeks. In that case, the analysts believe, "hopes for a traditional summer rally would be encouraged."

Roger E. Spear of Spear Staff Inc. says this is a good time for the wise investor to seek out issues for which a fancy premium is justified" on the basis of strong predicted earnings for 1968 and beyond. The analyst says the present business slowdown "may be viewed" as an "interlude" between the 1961-66 boom and protracted period of steady growth into the 1970's.

Foreign Commentary

By ARNOLD DIBBLE, United Press International

TOKYO (UPI)—It appears unlikely that Asia will ever achieve a unity paralleling that of other continents.

Few nations in Asia can claim even internal unity. China, Korea and Vietnam are split internally through lines drawn as often by the sword as the pen. Minority revolt threatens in many other areas.

But Asian unity is growing and Red China whether she likes it or not is one of the primary reasons. Action, it is said, causes reaction and that is just what Red China's nuclear explosions have caused in Asia.

The hydrogen bomb explosion Red China announced Saturday probably did more to further the cause of Asian unity than anything that has transpired since the days of Genghis Khan.

Far from achieving the fearful results which many think China has hoped for, the H-bomb blast seems destined to fire the hardening attitudes among nations on the periphery of the mainland.

India and Japan long before the H-bomb blast were reappraising—for different reasons in each country—the possibilities of developing nuclear weaponry. Sunday's announcement will spur even greater thought along these lines.

And more and more nations in Asia will seek cover under the U.S. retaliatory umbrella. Thailand, Korea, Indonesia, Vietnam—even India and Pakistan—along with Japan and the Philippines are likely to become more pro-United States as a result of the H-bomb. Burma and Ceylon probably are doing some soul-searching.

Russia, too, would seem to be in a position to gain.

Those nations of Asia who do not want to seek favors from the United States most certainly will try to establish closer relations with the other nuclear umbrella—the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

Strengthen Regional Alliances. One of the immediate effects will be an almost automatic strengthening of Asia's regional alliances. The Southeast Asian Treaty Organization (SEATO) is dead and only awaiting a decent burial. The Asian nations never have been convinced that the U.S., Great Britain, France, Australia and New Zealand really were interested in their problems.

But such fairly new regional associations such as ASPAC—Asian Pacific Area Council which meets next month in Bangkok—and ASA—Association of Southeast Asia—take on new strength and importance.

In some instances, it may draw heretofore feuding nations closer together—Korea and Japan, for instance, and Indonesia and Malaysia, which even before all of this, had started the tentative, timid gestures of renewed courtship. No one expects the nations, the races and the religions of Asia to sit down at the table tomorrow, but H-bombs can make for strange luncheon companions.

A boy in business for himself doesn't worry about summer jobs

Or fall jobs, or winter jobs, for that matter. Because the boy with a newspaper route—a junior independent merchant—has a year 'round income. The few hours he puts in each week not only provide monetary returns but the even more significant dividends of learning how free enterprise operates.

The business of learning the value of money, of keeping books, collecting, buying at wholesale and selling at retail is important. But not even money can buy the other skills acquired from route experience—learning to deal pleasantly with people, for instance, or the value of punctuality.

Your newspaperboy is learning all the time. His route experience helps him acquire the intangible skills so necessary for success both socially and professionally. He makes money at it, too.

Only about one boy in ten gets the opportunity to have a newspaper route. If you think your son, or some other youngster might profit by newspaperboy route experience, why not suggest that he come in and talk to us.
