Mortar Shells Hit At Inauguration

270 Guerrillas Killed in Fight

SAIGON (UPI) — Outnumbered American and South Vietnamese troops fired their artillery at virtual point blank range today and smashed human wave assaults by about 1,500 Communist guerrillas against a district capital near Saigon, military spokesmen said.

The artillery fire killed at least 110 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong and raised to almost 400 the number of Communists slain in three days around battered Loc Ninh, 72 miles north of Saigon.

Humphrey Escapes Injury in Attack

SAIGON (UPI) — Viet Cong terrorists launched a mortar attack on Independence Palace tonight during a diplomatic reception by President Nguyen Van Thieu to celebrate South Vietnam's return to democratic government. Thieu had been inaugurated a few hours before.

National Guard Places Security At Tornado Area

GULFPORT, Miss. (UPI) — A security ring of National Guardsmen today virtually isolated one area of the Gulf Coast where tornadoes killed at least three persons and left more than $50 million worth of property in rubble.

Pampans To Join Municipal League Sales Tax Study

A delegation from Pampa will join in Houston Sunday through Tuesday with other city officials from over the state to look carefully at ways and means of implementing the new sales tax sources of revenue granted them, on a local option basis, by the Texas Legislature earlier this year.

Salvation Army Lacks $20,000 For New Building

The Salvation Army now has pledged and collections for slightly over $68,000, but needs around $20,000 more to complete the proposed new building, it was revealed last night at a Town Hall meeting at the Coronado Inn.

Cold Snap Nips Area

Light snow flurries this morning marked the second day of a cold snap and the first touch of winter in Pampa and the surrounding vicinity.

Temperatures dipped into the upper 20s and low 30s over a widespread area of the Panhandle and South Plains early this morning.

No rain was recorded in Pampa and surrounding areas, but rain mixed with light snow fell over other parts of the Panhandle and South Plains.

A warming trend is expected today and tomorrow throughout the state to thaw out the cold snap that chilled Texas from the Panhandle to the Gulf Coast.

Rivers in parts of North Texas as were at flood stage or already out of their banks.

The band of rain, drizzle and snow reached into the South Plains but missed the Lubbock area.

Rainfall Extensive The rain stretched into North Central and East Texas and into parts of Central Texas.

The cold front that brought the storm system—a disturbance that made it seem more like spring than late autumn—blew out of Texas Monday. It took the sun from most of the state.

Rain, snow and fog cut visibility over much of the northern half of Texas Monday. Visibility was down to three-fourths a mile at Wichita Falls, curtailing traffic at the airport for a while.

First October Snow It was the first snow in October at Wichita Falls in 54 years and snowflakes fell as far south as Alford, 35 miles north of Fort Worth.

The blustery storms that whipped southeastward across Texas Sunday unleashed tornadoes, 72-mile-an-hour winds, hail and rains up to seven inches.

Winds of 50 miles an hour unroofed a shed at the Lakewood Yacht Club in Seabrook near the Manned Spacecraft Center and uprooted trees and damaged buildings at Addicks Dam.

The Trinity River south of Dallas was expected to flood lowlands at Rosser and Trinity and Chambers Creek rose sharply near Corsicana.

The Sulphur River was over flood stage at Hagensport and the Sabine was flooding at Edgewood, Mineola and Quitman.

Barges Tossed About Three barges were tossed by high winds against the Queen Isabella Causeway connecting Port Isabel and South Padre Island Monday.

Power to the island was knocked out.

Victims of the storms included 125 goats found dead at San Antonio.

The Agriculture Department said the goats, piled four feet high, may have been panicked by lightning Sunday night or may have died of exposure. They were found at a packing plant.

Lightning struck and killed Eddie Schulz, 49, a Malone, Tex. farmer Monday.

Schulz was driving cattle in a bottomland with his son, Eddie Ray Schulz. The younger Schulz said the lightning killed both his father and a cow.

A spokesman said the guerrillas failed to kill any Americans and inflicted only "light" casualties of the government troops. The attack appeared to be a frantic bid by the Communists to snatch a propaganda victory and mar today's inauguration of South Vietnam's first freely elected president and vice president.

In other action, U.S. jets hit North Vietnam's Hanoi-Haiphong war machine Monday for the seventh day in a row, smashing four airbases and Haiphong harbor's power plant and shooting down the 96th Communist MIG interceptor of the war. No U.S. planes were reported lost.

In the Mekong Delta below Saigon, U.S. helicopter gunships and a South Vietnamese anti-guerrilla unit killed 175 Viet Cong in two battles Monday that cost the government troops "very light" losses, spokesmen said.

They said the Viet Cong's once elite 273rd regiment had drawn in reinforcements from their sister 272nd regiment for a renewed assault against the U.S. Army Special Forces fort, a U.S. Army advisory camp and government troop positions at Loc Ninh. At least 180 Communists perished in a vain assault Sunday. Another 95 were killed Monday when cornered by U.S. strike planes and splashed with napalm.

The Communists today crept through ruined rubber plantations before dawn and unleashed a mortar and rifle barrage. Then the guerrillas rose and charged across Loc Ninh's tiny airstrip, apparently hoping to cut off the allied airborne reinforcements that heat them Sunday.

U.S. artillery plus helicopter and AC47 Dragonship gunfire drove the guerrillas back. But they promptly charged again.

After a fourth charge had failed the Communists fled into the ripped rubber trees with U.S. Army troops in pursuit.

In more action today, guerrillas tried storming a U.S. Army 1st Cavalry Division armored unit on the coast 325 miles northeast of Saigon. The U.S. troops killed 13 Communists in the four hour fight.

Airline Service Survey Underway For Panhandle

Questionnaires were mailed yesterday to Pampa Chamber of Commerce members in an air travel survey to determine the Texas Panhandle area's need for new or improved airline service.

Wynn L. Veale, chairman of the chamber's Aviation Committee, said businesses, government units and other organizations throughout the Panhandle are being asked to assist the survey by providing certain basic information.

The Pampa chamber is cooperating with the Amarillo Airport Board in the survey, according to Veale.

"We believe this is a very important step in the continued development of airline service for the Panhandle area," Veale said.

Veale stated answers to the questionnaire will be worthy contributions to the project whether they are from small or large organizations, or a non-user of airline service.

"We hope everyone will fill out the questionnaire and return it in the enclosed self-addressed, stamped envelope," Veale added.

Teenaged Bride Will Remember Honeymoon

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Lida Caldwell will live, but she never will forget her honeymoon.

Lida, 19, lay seriously wounded today in Doctor's Hospital. Her new husband, Charles, 18, his face a mass of bruises, was in St. Vincent Charity Hospital. He was unaware his bride had been shot.

Robert Batch, 23, for whom death was sweeter than unrequited love, was dead by his own hand.

Police stood a 27-hour vigil outside the building where Batch lived. Eight times, using Lida as a shield, Batch had fired at police.

Then, as police waited outside the barricaded door while relatives and priests beseeched Batch to surrender, two shots cracked.

Lida Caldwell's terror-filled, 40-hour honeymoon was over.

Police barged into the apartment when they heard the shots. On the floor lay Batch, mortally shot, a bullet from his .32-caliber pistol lodged in his heart.

He was sprawled atop Lida, who had twice spurned his love. The first bullet had pierced the fragile lining of her heart.

Covered with blood, she pleaded weakly, "Please, get me out of here."

Charles Caldwell from his hospital bed described how Batch shot him in the cheek and made off with Lida.

"We got married in Detroit and came back to Cleveland about 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, Caldwell said. "We were just going into our apartment when he (Batch) came out from behind the door."

"I thought the gun he had was a toy."

"He kept pleading with Lida to go with him, and she kept telling him she was married to me. He grabbed her hand. I tried to pull his hand away and he backhanded me."

"I think it was the gun barrel that hit me because the gun went off."

Batch, 23, then dragged Lida away, taking her to his four-room flat on the third floor of a Tudor style home on suburban University Heights.

Police did not track Batch down until Sunday morning because he had left no forwarding address when he last moved.

For the next 27 hours, police, four priests from John Carroll University, Batch's brother and finally his mother, Mrs. Martha Smith, of Johnstown, Pa., tried to convince him to surrender.

"Bob, I need you and you need me," Mrs. Smith pleaded. "I'll come in and hold you in my arms."

Lida called to police. "Get her (the mother) out of here."

Batch then fired at Lida. The bullet penetrated the lower ventricle and lining of her heart, her diaphragm, stomach and left lung, and came out the left side of her back.

Then Batch shot himself in the heart and collapsed on top of Lida.

employed as a glasscutter at the time of his death, had once stabbed himself when another girl refused to marry him.

When Lida broke up with him last summer, Batch felt "there was no reason to go on living," his mother said.

Police records showed Batch once tried to choke a girl and on another occasion tried to run a girl off the road with his automobile. Records also showed that after he stabbed himself he committed himself to Woodside Hospital in Youngstown, Ohio, for psychiatric treatment.

Caldwell said Saturday was the second time Batch abducted the girl.

Caldwell said 10 days before their marriage, Batch waylaid them at a Cleveland bus stop and pulled Lida into his car.

"We had to get the police to get her back," Caldwell said. "Lida wouldn't press charges though."

"She had some sort of feeling for him. I don't know whether it was pity or what."

The mortars struck 150 to 200 yards from the main building while the guests were sipping champagne. A sudden thunderstorm had driven them inside from the sprawling grounds and the wide verandahs of the $6.8 million palace and the first startled reaction was a "What's that?"

The confusion subsided in moments. A South Vietnamese army band wearing civilian clothes struck up "This is the Army, Mr. Jones" and the reception as a state dinner proceeded as planned though dinner was an hour late.

Thieu, first president of South Vietnam's second republic, took the oath of office with a pledge to endure more "blood and sweat" in the war with the Communists. He offered to talk peace with Hanoi but it was a long offer and one without any concessions.

Hanoi Radio had anticipated his peace offer and had rejected it in advance.

Thieu is the first president since the late dictator-president Ngo Dinh Diem was overthrown and ousted in 1963. Formerly Thieu had ruled South Vietnam as head of a military junta in which Premier Nguyen Cao Ky was the dominant figure. Ky is now vice president.

One of Thieu's first acts was to name Nguyen Van Loc, a relatively unknown lawyer and poet, as premier. Loc had been his campaign manager and was once chosen by Ky as his running mate before he was relegated to the largely ceremonial post of vice president when he lost out in a power struggle.

Both Thieu and Ky shed their military uniforms to become civilian officials. But it was clear they faced continued opposition from militant Buddhists. One teen-age Buddhist monk burned himself to death today with gasoline in Quang Ngai to protest the Thieu government.

The Viet Cong mortar attack on the presidential palace tonight was an obvious attempt to steal some of the glory from Saigon's return to constitutional rule. So was an all out effort by the Communists to capture the town of Loc Ninh, 70 miles north of Saigon, an effort that cost the attackers 400 dead in three days of fighting.

Humphrey had just arrived at the palace with Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of all U.S. forces in Vietnam, and U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker. Other guests milling around included diplomats from Allied nations with troops in Vietnam and nations friendly to the Saigon government.

The palace building was not hit but shrapnel from one round riddled a car which had brought an Australian major general to the party. The chauffeur was taken to a hospital with minor "body wounds." The Australian was already inside.

Texas Constitution May Be Changed Again, 11th

AUSTIN (UPI)—The Texas Constitution, already amended 178 times, can be changed six more times Nov. 11, if voters feel it necessary.

On that date, Texans will go to the polls to consider amendments ranging from letting counties put all their tax eggs in one basket to setting up a $75 billion park development program.

The six amendments are only the first section of 60th legislative proposals to once again change the 91-year-old document. Fourteen more were approved for presentation to voters on Nov. 5, 1968.

Meanwhile, Gov. John Connally's constitutional revision panel, enacted in a storm of controversy, has begun studying possibilities of scrapping the entire lawbook and starting from scratch.

Lacked Senate Approval

Approval of the revision panel came through a House resolution without Senate approval after a joint resolution died in the upper house.

The six Nov. 11 issues to be put to the voters' test, as they will appear on the ballot, are:

1. Authorizing counties to put all tax money in a single general fund rather than depositing it in separate funds corresponding to tax levies for each of the four constitutional purposes.
2. Permitting municipalities, political subdivisions, and state-supported entities located within hospital districts to participate in the establishment and operation of mental health, mental retardation, and public health services.
3. Extending the veterans' land program by authorizing the sale of $200 million of state bonds to purchase lands to be sold to veterans and expanding the program to include also veterans of service during the armed conflict in Vietnam.
4. Authorizing counties to pay medical, doctor, and hospital bills of county law enforcement officers for injuries incurred in line of duty and to continue paying salaries of injured officials during period of incapacitation.
5. Authorizing the Parks and Wildlife Department to issue and sell general obligation bonds in the amount of $75 million to finance acquisition and development of lands for state parks and recreational areas.
6. Permitting non-elective state officers and employees to serve in other non-elective positions under the state or United States government where there is no conflict of interest and where the state will benefit.

The two bond proposals probably will carry the most interest. The veterans land program extension will be making its third trek since 1963 to the voters. It was defeated the two previous times.

The park revenue bond proposal was recommended by Connally to double the present park system and create a web of scenic, recreational and historic sites throughout the state. The $75 million in bonds would be repaid through the charge of an entrance fee at state parks.

Yet Prog'am Extension

3. Extending the veterans' land program by authorizing the sale of $200 million of state bonds to purchase lands to be sold to veterans and expanding the program to include also veterans of service during the armed conflict in Vietnam.

4. Authorizing counties to pay medical, doctor, and hospital bills of county law enforcement officers for injuries incurred in line of duty and to continue paying salaries of injured officials during period of incapacitation.

Soviets Launch Space Satellite In Gala Triumph

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union, entering the most gala week in its history on the wings of fresh space triumphs, today launched another space satellite.

The Soviet news agency Tass announced the launching of Cosmos 189, the ninth unmanned Sputnik sent into space this month by the Soviets.

The launching came the day after the Soviets achieved the first radio-controlled docking of two orbiting satellites and two weeks after the Soviets landed an instrument package softly on Venus.

The Tass announcement did not state the specific purpose of Cosmos 189. It said it went into an orbit ranging between 331.7 to 372 miles above earth's surface at an angle of 74 degrees to the equator.

With the 50th anniversary celebration of the 1917 Bolshevik Revolution only one week away, Soviet newspapers exulted over history's first automatic docking in space between two unmanned satellites.

The official announcement said the docking took place Monday between two Sputniks named Cosmos 188, launched the same day, and Cosmos 186, launched Friday. They remained docked for three and one-half hours before separating automatically.

The Sputniks were not described. But it was believed both were prototypes for a new Soyuz, Russia's new generation of manned spaceships. "Soyuz" means "union."

The Soviets said the docking marked acquisition of a primary skill needed to build a space platform. The Kremlin plans to use such a platform—which would, in effect, be an orbital laboratory—to build and launch the rockets that will take its cosmonauts on their flights to the moon and the planets.

In Washington, Dr. Edward C. Welsh, executive secretary of the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Council, noted that the United States already has carried out nine orbital dockings with men at the controls. But he praised the unmanned Soviet feat as "an excellent test of their guidance system."

Also attending is the Rev. Carroll B. Ray, Top O' Texas area missionary.

More than 3,500 are expected to attend.

Featured speaker for the convention will be Dr. H. Franklin Paschal of Nashville, Tenn., president of the Southern Baptist Convention.

Major items of business to be considered are the proposed 1968 Cooperative Program budget of $12.8 million and the report of a special committee formed to evaluate the convention's boards, agencies, commissions, committees and institutions.

Thieu Takes Oath As South Viet President

SAIGON (UPI)—Democratic government came to South Vietnam today.

Nguyen Van Thieu took the oath as president and pledged to seek a no-concession peace with the Communists and bring a "new order" to his troubled people.

But South Vietnam's first freely elected president said his countrymen must endure "blood and sweat" and do more if war goes on. He said the fight "is above all our own struggle."

U.S. Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, fanning himself with an inauguration program at the outdoor ceremony guarded by armed troops, watched the switch from military rule and told newsmen, "I saw nation building here this morning."

He hailed Thieu's speech as "marvelous."

Nguyen Cao Ky, the No. 1 man in his country for more than two years, took the oath as vice president, a largely ceremonial job. Hours later he won a considerable victory in his behind-the-scenes feud with Thieu.

Premier Appointed

Thieu announced the appointment as premier of Ky supporter Nguyen Van Loc, a relatively unknown lawyer and poet.

Loc, 45, had been Ky's choice as a running mate before the nation's generals—who hold the ultimate power—forced the outspoken ex-fighter pilot to withdraw from the presidential race in Thieu's favor.

Loc will guide the day-to-day destiny of the government. He will be answerable to Thieu. But congress can remove him.

Thieu and Ky shed their general's stars and with honors and promotions dismissed the military council which ruled the country under their leadership the past two years.

Thousands Flee From Wind Fed Flames in California Forests

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Towering walls of flames fed by 70 mile an hour winds swept through parched brush land and into residential areas of southern California today, forcing thousands to flee for their lives.

At least 60 homes lay in smoldering ruins as half a dozen flames charred 119,000 acres. Fire department authorities said more than 5,000 persons were evacuated as the flames licked toward homes. Two deaths were blamed on the fires.

The hot desert winds—called Santa Anas—whistled down through mountain canyons, gusting up to 70 m.p.h. and whipping the flames to blow-torch intensity. The winds decreased to 30 to 40 m.p.h. during the night but were expected to increase in force this afternoon.

The Santa Anas combined with high temperatures and low humidity to suck the moisture from vegetation, turning the brush-covered hillsides into tinderboxes where a spark could explode into a holocaust.

Fires raged out of control in Orange County, 25 miles southeast of Los Angeles, and to the east in Riverside County.

Another blaze swept down on Point Dume near the beach community of Malibu, about 30 miles northeast of downtown Los Angeles.

A woman was burned to death in her home in the Gilman Hot Springs area after fire officials warned her to evacuate. She was tentatively identified as Mrs. Abigail Blodgett, 81.

Another woman, Mrs. Lucille Fegel, 67, died of injuries suffered when she was fleeing the Orange County fire. Police said the car rolled over her while she was trying to find out why it had stalled.

Fifty-two homes in Orange County were destroyed by a fire that erupted Sunday near Corona. Authorities said 4,000 persons were evacuated and estimated property losses at $2 million. More than 1,200 men and 200 pieces of equipment were on the lines as the front moved south through a remote area toward the El Toro Marine Corps air station.

Forty public and private schools in Orange County were closed Monday and 30,000 children missed classes. Two high schools served as evacuation centers for families who fled from their homes.

Many of the families ran from their homes with pillow cases stuffed with clothes. A few were clad in pajamas and some rode their horses to the evacuation centers.

Buddhist Burns Himself to Death

SAIGON (UPI)—A young Buddhist monk at a provincial capital burned himself to death today near a banner reading, "We object to the Thieu government."

The self-immolation at Quang Ngai City, 300 miles northeast of Saigon, was the fourth such death this month.

The victim's name was not immediately known. He was described as about 17.

He died about two hours before Nguyen Van Thieu took his oath as president in a political action strongly criticized by Thieu (referred to) Tri Quang, the anti-Thieu militant Buddhist leader.

Tri Quang's followers accuse Thieu, a convert from Buddhism to Roman Catholicism, with religious persecution for recognizing a moderate sect as the nation's official Buddhist church.

All three previous deaths by fire victims have been Buddhist nuns.

United Fund Final Report Set Thursday

The final report meeting of the Pampa United Fund will be held at 5:00 p.m. Thursday at the Coronado Inn.

"Right now, it looks like we are going to be short of our goal," David Tucker, drive chairman, said yesterday.

The fund had reached 57 percent of its goal at its last report meeting last Thursday. Collections turned in by some of the large national firms substantially increased the amount collected.

"Even so," Tucker said, "we are running behind schedule and it looks like we may not reach our goal of $82,000. We're about $6,500 short of that figure now."

Tucker cited several groups for their outstanding contributions but said "results are behind mainly because many of the smaller employe groups are giving less than last year."

Those cited by Tucker for outstanding contributions were Coronado Inn employes, Southwest Public Service Co., First National Bank, Culberson-Stowers Chevrolet Co., Montgomery Ward, Western Warehouse, Crall Products and Southwest Bell Telephone Co.

Woman Charged With Failure to Stop, Render Aid

Bond of $1,000 on a charge of failure to stop and render aid, a felony, was drawn against Mrs. Rena F. Vanshoubrouk, 57, of 1906 Fir.

The charge is a felony due to an injury to a person.

According to a Pampa police report, a car driven by Mrs. Vanshoubrouk was involved in a head-on collision with another vehicle driven by Marion Snider George, 50, of 2121 Dogwood Monday evening in the 1900 block of Chestnut.

According to the report, Mrs. Vanshoubrouk failed to stop and comply according to law, but was followed to her residence by a passer-by who had seen the collision.

Mrs. George was taken to Highland General Hospital following the accident and treated and released.

Mrs. Vanshoubrouk was admitted to the hospital Tuesday morning.

Antitrust Suit Draft Against General Motors

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Justice Department has prepared a draft antitrust suit against General Motors, it was learned today. If carried through, it would be aimed at breaking up the giant corporation.

Department spokesmen, while declining to mention GM by name, acknowledged that "the automobile industry has been under investigation and study for many years by the antitrust division."

One spokesman emphasized that this did not mean "we're going to be running into court soon."

The department comments were in response to a Wall Street Journal report that a suit had been prepared and was awaiting word from President Johnson as to whether it should be filed.

The spokesman said no decision has been made "as to what action or actions if any should be taken."

$110 Theft Reported At Pampa Residence

Two rings, valued at $100 and a small electric drill, valued at $10, were reported taken from the Alton Hess residence, 701 N. Cuyler.

Hess reported the theft Monday and said the ladies white gold wedding band and small engagement ring were taken along with the drill sometime within the past two weeks.

According to a police report the house was entered by ripting off a screen on a bedroom window.

Rodeo Officials To Meet Tonight

Board of Directors for the Top O' Texas rodeo will meet at 7:30 tonight in the Chamber of Commerce office in the Hughes Building.

President Rex McAnelly said that the purpose of the meeting would be to consider bids for stock and to make further plans for the rodeo.

W. E. Jones, president of Grambling and also its baseball coach, said he asked for troops because he feared town police could not handle any rioting that might break out.

More than 1,500 students boycotted classes Monday. The protesters successfully block-

The partnership of governments dealing with the growing problems of urbanization.

No more thoroughgoing appraisal of cities' relations with other levels—methods, accomplishments, future needs—has ever been offered the delegate in every segment of a TML annual conference, the League president stated.

Emphasis number two, Williams stated, will be on factors directly affecting performance: first, methods and procedures evolving under the pressure of more and more people and second, money to foot the municipal service bill.

The TML conference program, the El Paso mayor stated, will reflect a broad and incisive approach, combining general sessions devoted to an overview of current municipal problems and separate sessions of the 14 organizations affiliated with the League.

Spooks, Goblins Will Make Annual Invasion Tonight

Tonight's the night the hobgoblins walk.

It's Halloween.

Weather forecasts indicate the spooks will have to wear fur-lined sheets. It'll be windy and cold.

The youngsters will be out with their annual trick-or-treat warning.

Police urged motorists to watch out for them crossing streets and warned Halloween pranksters to "take it easy" or face prosecution if they are caught in acts of vandalism.

Law enforcement officers are not expecting trouble, but they plan to be on the alert if any develops, according to Police Chief Jim Conner.

Christmas Parade Set for Dec. 1

Friday, Dec. 1 has been set as the date for the annual Christmas Parade, the Pampa Retail Trade Committee has announced.

Norman Fritzer and W. C. Bass, co-chairmen of the committee, said plans had not been finalized but would be available in a few days.

Tentative plans call for a special pet section and decorated bicycle division for school-age children, with appropriate prizes to be awarded.

Bond Set at $500

Jimmie Dean Powell of Pampa was arraigned before County Judge S. R. Lenning Jr. on a charge of willful destruction of property this morning. Bond was set at $500.

Television In Review

By RICK DUBROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—The people who guide the half-hour evening newscasts of CBS-TV and NBC-TV are trying their hand at several devices that deserve encouragement.

At CBS-TV, as Walter Cronkite noted on his program Monday evening, reported Charles Kuralt is roaming about with a camera crew, looking for stories that might not otherwise come to major attention on video.

Monday, for instance, Kuralt had a story about a town that was taking practical steps to show its gratefulness to a pilot who was killed in a crash but managed to avoid bringing death or destruction to inhabitants and their homes.

Share Experiences
There is nothing television can use more than techniques to reach viewers more personally, more humanly, more directly—to share experiences with them. And Kuralt's Monday story was definitely in the right direction. It would, in fact, be even more disarming and encouraging, if, in coming across such stories—and there are millions of them—network newsmen saw the potential occasionally for expanding them to 30-minute or one-hour prime time features, and were given the go-ahead.

On NBC-TV's Huntley-Brinkley Report, meanwhile, contributing editors have been given added prominence, with the result that there have been

Conally Urges Federal Aid in Oil, Gas Recovery

By DICK WEST

HOUSTON (UPI)—Gov. John Connally urged the federal government today to offer more incentives for the recovery of new oil and gas resources.

In a speech prepared for the annual meeting of the Independent Petroleum Association of America, Connally said last summer's Middle East crisis "brought into focus a number of conditions and trends that are cause for concern."

"One of these is the extent of our spare oil producing capacity and of our petroleum reserves in the United States," he noted that only 36,828 wells were drilled in 1966 compared with 58,000 in 1965.

Connally offered no solution to this problem, but urged oilmen to let Interior Secretary Stewart Udall know how they feel about an Interior Department suggestion that domestic producers might receive oil import licenses in relation to new oil resources discovered.

Connally said the natural gas industry faces a similar decline in new discoveries, and he placed blame on the Federal Power Commission for setting prices for gas sold in interstate commerce.

"This power to control and roll back prices has been so effective that it is rapidly protecting the consumer from an adequate supply of natural gas," Connally said.

TV series is squared off against the CBS Friday night movies. It's almost like fighting a fixed jury.

Betz, you will remember, was the doctor-husband on the defunct "Donna Reed Show" which had an eight-year run. What with "Ben Casey" and "Dr. Kildare" it would appear that the medical profession and the operating room are better boxoffice than attorneys and courtrooms.

To compete against the movies, Betz's boss—producer Paul Monash—is injecting his shows with controversial subjects.

"Abortion, prostitution, race problems and the basus of private investigation are all subjects for our show," said Betz during a break in shooting the other day.

The Lighter Side

I was thumbing through a national magazine the other day, my attention was blitted by an advertisement sponsored by the National Coal Association.

It pictured a tousled-haired boy lying in the grass, chin in hand, a pensive look on his freckled face. And beneath was a caption that read:

"What to say to your child when he asks, 'What's coal?'"

Then in smaller type, the ad said: "It's a fair question. Chances are he's read of coal but never seen any. And don't start with the 'When-I-was-a-kid routine....'"

We had to carry out the ashes. Now there is what I call a real coincidence. For only a couple of evenings previous my 5-year-old son had asked me that very question.

"Big daddy," he said, "it's time you and I had a serious talk. What is coal?"

I turned red. I mean, good heavens! You know that sooner or later a kid is going to get curious and start asking where coal comes from and stuff like that.

But to have one spring it on you when he is hardly more than a baby...well, it's just too much!

"Where did you hear that word?" I gasped.

"Oh, the older boys talk about it all the time," he replied, oozing innocence.

My first temptation was to say, "Well, why don't you ask the older boys what it is?" But I knew that would be taking the coward's way out.

All the books by Dr. Spock and other pediatric authorities say it's better if kids learn about this sort of thing from their parents.

Straight Answer
They say you should give simple, direct, straightforward answers and not hem and haw or beat around the bush about it.

So I decided to do the courageous thing. Looking my son right in the eye, I said, "Why don't you go ask your mother what coal is?"

Unfortunately, his mother came into the room about that time.

"Oh, no, you don't," she snapped. "I had to go through that with the other children when you turned chicken. This

Attorneys and Law Lose Popularity on Television

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Attorneys and the law generally have been glorified in fiction and movies down through the years, but on television their case is more often lost than not.

The first new video series to be canceled this season is "Dunde and the Culhane," starring John Mills as an English barrister in the Old West. Why?

"Arrest and Trial" lasted a single season with Chuck Connors as the guy with the L.L.D.

"Sam Benedict," with Edmond O'Brien as the ambulance chaser, was derailed after a single year on the air. Same thing happened to Peter Falk playing the lawyer in "The Trials of O'Brien."

"The Defenders" did a little better. "Perry Mason" succeeded best of all with Raymond Burr at the bar, but his was as much a whodunit as a courtroom drama.

Toughest Case
The toughest case facing television attorneys is remaining on the air.

Carl Betz, starring in "Judd for the Defense," is faced with that trial right now. His ABC

INSURANCE
CAGLIARI, Sardinia (UPI)—The Mamoiata winery found out Monday how it can get two experts from the Italian mainland over to this island to repair broken machinery. In addition to paying the cost of repairs, the winery must provide kidnapping insurance.

The Serraglio Engineering Co. of Lecce wrote the experts were willing to come on condition the winery deposit 40 million lire ($64,000) that would hopefully pay the ransom of the men in the event they were kidnapped by Sardinian bandits.

The U. S. birth rate dropped from 25 births per 1,000 population in 1955 to 19 in 1965, says the Census Bureau.

Foreign News Commentary

By ARNOLD DIBBLE
TAIPEI (UPI)—Nothing, they say, succeeds like success.

Yet, like many aspects of the Orient, the western maxim does not always hold true. And perhaps no one would agree with this more than the president of Nationalist China, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, who today celebrates his 80th birthday.

For the generalissimo, his dreams of a conquering return to the Mainland whence he was driven 18 years ago has faded in the minds, and hearts of his countrymen in direct proportion to the prosperity wrought on this island of 14-million persons.

For the first six months of this year, industrial growth showed a gain of nearly 20 per cent. This is almost double that of Japan. Agricultural growth on an island where only one-fourth of the land can be cultivated showed a healthy 10 per cent gain.

The gross national product (GNP) probably will top $4 billion this year.

As new nightclubs, hotels, golf courses, bowling alleys, and would you believe ice skating rinks in the sub-tropics, open and flourish there is less and less talk about a return to the Mainland. "Why leave anything so good?" seems to be a prevalent feeling.

Americans, or many of them, are critical of "giving away billions" in foreign aid. Taiwan is one area in Asia where U.S. money has really worked. It has worked so well that the U.S. Agency for International Development (AID) closed down two years ago after investing approximately $1.5-billion in economic aid since 1951.

A few specifics:
 —In a relatively short time, Taiwan has surpassed Hawaii as the world's largest exporter of canned pineapple.

—It is the world's largest suppliers of mushrooms.

—In 1952, it produced 1.4-billion kilowatt-hours of electrical power supply. In 1966, this topped 6-billion.

THE SKID-ROW BUM, once the symbol of the excessive drinker, doesn't fit the Jet Age image. Today's stereotype might better be the Martini-gulping professional to whom the liquid lunch has become a way of life.

Saturated Soldiers in a Misunderstood War

EDITOR'S NOTE: Alcoholism is the nation's most neglected problem, so say the experts. But solving the problems of the problem drinker can be a problem. Roger Doughty reports.

By ROGER DOUGHTY
NEW YORK (NEA) — Pinpointing the saturated soldiers of the nation's ever-expanding army of hard-core alcoholics is something like looking for flower people in San Francisco's Haight-Ashbury district. Open your eyes and you'll find them blooming all around you.

That's one reason why a recent report by the National Institute of Mental Health labels alcoholism as the "most misunderstood health problem in the United States today. Problems that people refuse to talk about just have to be misunderstood.

As John W. Gardner, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare says, "No other national problem has been so seriously neglected as alcoholism."

A quick look at the report explains why the problem drinker has become such a problem in this land of moonshine for the masses.

Seventy per cent of the nation's excessive drinkers could easily be mistaken for teetotalers, at least on the surface. They live in respectable communities and, according to the report, perform "more or less effectively" in their jobs.

It is impossible to determine, states the NIMH report, "if the rate of alcoholism is increasing, decreasing or remaining steady."

Advertisers Challenged By ANPA Bureau Chairman

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (UPI)—An executive in the American Newspaper Publishers Association's Bureau of Advertising Tuesday challenged advertisers to keep up with the dynamic changes in communications media.

Charles T. Lipscomb Jr., chairman of the bureau's executive committee, said "Advertisers should encourage media to experiment, to be venturesome, because marketing messages of the future can be only as exciting as the media through which they take wing."

Lipscomb said the "most striking development in media is the way they are responding to specialized interests which emerge as our society grows more and more complex."

Lipscomb said the "most striking development in media is the way they are responding to specialized interests which emerge as our society grows more and more complex."

CHICAGO (UPI)—A year ago, Charles Asher connected two things in his mind: the rising crime rate in his South Shore neighborhood and the Maccabee patrols in New York City.

Asher, a certified public accountant, got together with businessmen of the area who were troubled by burgeoning vandalism in the integrated community on the South Side and suggested a neighborhood patrol system patterned after the radio-car patrols by the Jewish Maccabees in Brooklyn.

Asher and his group went to the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, which bought three radios for cars and the patrols began on Halloween night 1966.

Other individual members, Asher says proudly, bought their own radios.

Police Encourage Program
Contact had been made with two police districts in the area. The police, unlike those in New York who showed some hostility to the Maccabee patrols, regarded the patrols as part of "operation crime stop."

arrests of looters were attributed to patrol warnings.

Close communication is kept with police when the patrols operate, usually during holidays and on weekends—and during periods when rumors of riots or demonstrations are afloat.

Sunday Closing Law Lauded by State Attorneys

United Press International
Texas' new Sunday closing law is working, district and county attorneys from some of the major population centers said today.

The law is actually a modified version of the old law with a few exceptions. The new part of the law—passed by the 60th Legislature—prohibits a retailer from selling any of 44 categories of merchandise on both Saturdays and Sundays.

"We are not policemen or guards," he says. "We don't carry weapons. All we do is check the community for suspicious or wrong-doing people and report them to the police. We never get out of our cars."

"Our radio equipment is portable, and all we have to do is plug it into the cigarette lighter of the car," Asher said.

Cooperation Important
"Each time the men leave on a patrol, their names, type of car and license number are given to the police so they will know who the men are," he says.

"I think it is a very effective operation," said 4th District Commander Edward Sheehy. "Our crime percentage has decreased 22.3 per cent since it has been operating."

Donald J. Rollheiser, presiding officer at the hearing, said he signed a slip claiming an emergency purchase when it was not an emergency.

ident of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce and a member of the patrol, says the patrol will have 12 to 14 cars out during the winter. "Now we often get calls from the police for us to assist them," he says.

Asher is proud of the results of the connection he made in his mind.

"It has done wonderful things. Through the patrol, we have been able to prove to all Chicago that not only are we concerned about our community, but we're doing something to prove it."

SAS ASTOSIO, Tex. (UPI)—Mayor Pro Tem John Gatti told a crowd at HemisFair '68 Saturday the 1968 exposition will open on schedule and will be a success. He commented on the heels of statements by a fair official and union official who said some HemisFair projects were as much as a month behind: Gatti said the allegations were generalities without substance.

AUSTI, Tex. (UPI)—Sale of nearly $3.5 million in property tax bonds for construction of the University of Texas at Arlington campus was approved Saturday by the board of regents. Low bidder among five syndicates for the bonds were the firms of Phelps, Penn and Co. and Rauscher Pierce and Co.

PATRIARCH VACATIONS (UPI)—ZURICH, Switzerland (UPI)—Eastern Orthodox Patriarch Athenagoras today resumed the Alpine vacation he interrupted for his three-day visit last week with Pope Paul VI in Rome.

SAS ASTOSIO, Tex. (UPI)—A truck lurched away from the wrecker towing it Saturday and smashed into two brothers, killing one and injuring the other. Dead is Jesse Marin, 7. His older brother David Jr., 11, escaped with leg injuries.

They were riding a bicycle when the van-type truck slipped off a tow cable.

VIETNAM PROTESTORS (UPI)—LEGNORH, Italy (UPI)—Hundreds of demonstrators, including several Americans, paraded through the streets of Leghorn Sunday to protest the Vietnam war.

SOFT LANDING (UPI)—Munich, Germany (UPI)—A two-year-old child fell from a fifth floor apartment Sunday and landed uninjured in a baby carriage standing empty on the ground, police said.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)—A nine-year-old boy died Saturday after being injured in a fall from the roof of his home Friday night. The victim was Guy Lomereux, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Lomereux. Authorities said the boy was playing atop the roof of his home when he slipped and fell about 10 feet to a concrete patio. He was taken to a San Antonio hospital and underwent overnight neurosurgery in an attempt to save his life.

Today, 40 volunteer residents of the neighborhood (40 of them licensed radio operators) travel in pairs—one white and one Negro, usually—and have won admiration from the police for their help. Asher says the patrol's biggest success came during the big snowstorm of last January, in which more than two feet of snow stopped transportation and kept police from hustling to where looting had broken out. The patrols were out, nonetheless, in jeeps and Asher says at least 13

Most Stores Comply
But if the cases filed with district and county attorneys are any indication, most stores are complying.

Dallas County Dist. Atty. Henry Wade has filed a case seeking a permanent injunction against Sundaco, Inc., and against Levitz Furniture Corp. and their employees to prevent an alleged circumnavigation of the law.

Sundaco was organized to purchase entire stores and their merchandise for one day of the week and then sell the store back at the end of the day. This prevents seven consecutive days of operation by the same management.

Wade said Friday a hearing will be set on the injunction sometime after today. He said he did not seek a temporary order because the store in Dallas had ceased operation at the time the case was filed.

So Major Problems
He said there have been other complaints but no major problems to his knowledge. The problem gets down to certain items that the stores which may stay open sell, Wade said.

The items prohibited by the law include hardware, furniture, appliances, clothing, jewelry, sporting goods and other merchandise that is not considered a necessity.

But most officials questioned had received either few or no complaints.

Hidalgo County Dist. Atty. Oscar McInnis said he had one complaint in the beginning but the manager began complying with the law after they discussed it.

"I have had no more complaints since then. I'm pretty sure everyone is complying or their competitors would be complaining," he said.

Public officials in Potter, El Paso, Harris, Lubbock, Cameron and Travis counties reported no problems with the law.

Preventative Action
Houston took preventative action even before the legislature acted and enacted a law about 18 months ago which said the signer could be prosecuted if he signed a slip claiming an emergency purchase when it was not an emergency.

Marion Leech, chief city prosecutor at Houston, said some stores did not open after that "because they did not want to jeopardize their customers to prosecution."

But one metropolitan police officer had some strong criticism for the law.

"They ought to close them all up or let them all stay open if they want to stop this," he said.

Pampa Hosts Coronado Friday

By RON CROSS
Amarillo's third ranked Sanders can clinch the North zone District 3-4A championship Friday night by beating Caprock in a Saturday-afternoon game.

Pampa, still seeking the victory side of football, hosts the best and high-scoring team in the district, Coronado at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

The Mustangs are averaging just over 30 points per contest and downed Lubbock high, 9-6 last week in a South zone battle that put them in second place behind Tascosa.

Plainview and Palo Duro get together Friday in Amarillo in a South zone game as does Tascosa and Lubbock at Lubbock.

Amarillo leads the North with a 3-0 mark while Tascosa leads the South with a 2-0 reading. Caprock is second in the North zone at 2-0.

Coronado will bring a 7-1 record to town while the Harvesters are 0-8 and have lost nine in a row.

Pampa has given up 311 points, an average of almost 39 per contest. The Harvesters have scored only 18 points and have been blanked in their last four starts.

Coronado blends a good passing game and better running game for their fearsome offense and does a good job defensively, despite having given up 103 points, an average of 13 per game.

Although the Pampa passing game fizzled against Caprock last week, it has picked up for the season as a whole.

Despite hitting only four of 24 attempts last week, quarterback Dwight Rogers has connected on 27 of 91 aerial attempts for 230 yards. He has had 11 intercepted and thrown for one touchdown.

Back-up man Steve Summers, who's been used more on defense than offense, has hit 18 of 36 attempts, an even 50 per cent, which is pretty good in anybody's books.

Summers' passes have gone for 213 yards and the senior signal-caller has had five intercepted and has not thrown for a touchdown.

Halfback Chris Kenny is still the leading Pampa ground gainer with Rogers' second. Kenny has picked up 343 yards rushing on 61 carries while Rogers has carried 76 times for 223 yards.

Wayne Williams and Jay Johnson are the top pass catchers, with Johnson having caught 13 aerials for 132 yards and Williams has 12 catches for 155 yards. Wendall Watson has caught the only touchdown pass but Johnson is out for the season with a broken foot.

End Larry Elledge has done a remarkable job punting. The senior has kicked the ball an even 50 times for 1,900 yards, an average of 38 yards per kick.

The normal punter on a high school team will normally kick only 40 times during the season.

Pampa and Coronado will be meeting for only the second time and Pampa won last year's game, 30-14.

WITH FOUR IN A ROW

'Horns Running Scared

By United Press International
The Texas Longhorns may have won four straight games but they are running scared and that's as it should be, Coach Darrell Royal said Monday. Royal feels apprehension is fitting in the face of Southern Methodist, the Steers' Saturday foe.

"It's a thrill every time the ball is snapped," Royal said of SMU's offense. "They do so many things from so many formations. It's a big problem." Royal said tackle Bob Stanley is lost for the Mustang game and may be out for good. He injured a knee in Texas' 28-6 win over Rice last week.

But Royal said Joel Brame, the 'Horns' co-captain, would be back in action. He said there was a good chance center Ken Gidney also would see action.

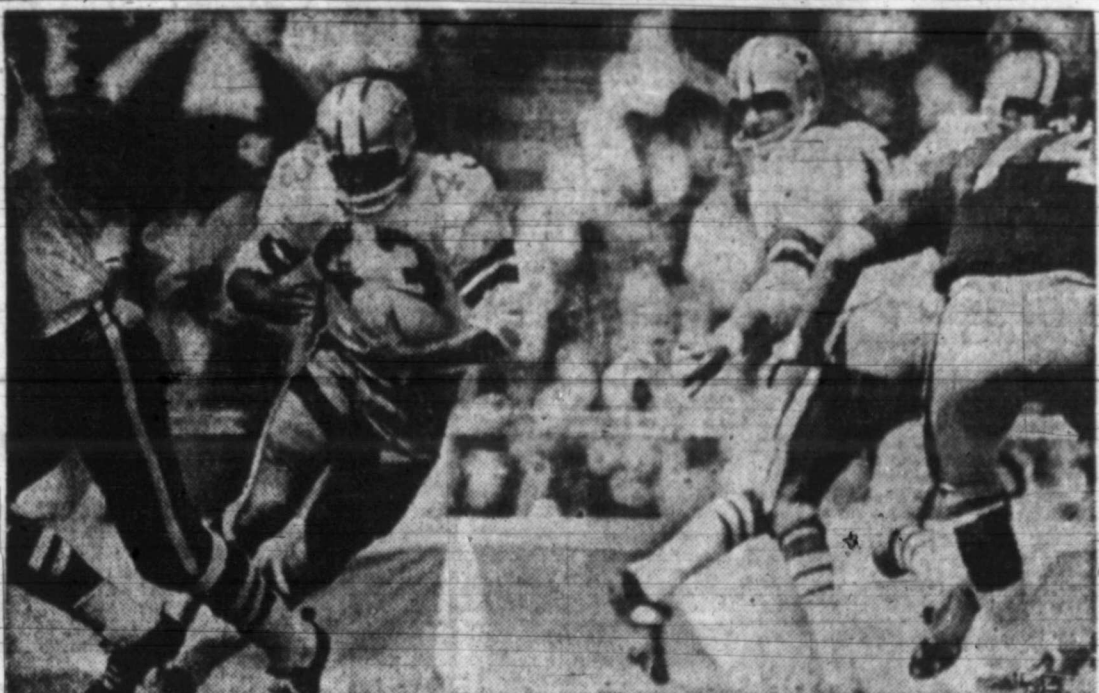

As for SMU, Coach Hayden Fry said John Freeman, starting center, and defensive end Jim Wood were on the doubtful list. Freeman got hurt against Texas Tech and Wood was bruised against Rice. Fry presented the Mustang award Monday to sophomore linebacker Bruce Portillo for outstanding play against Tech last week.

Cold, wet and generally miserable weather curtailed most teams' practices Monday.

SWENEY DOUBTFUL
SAN DIEGO (UPI)—Offensive guard Walt Sweeney is on the doubtful list for the San Diego Chargers Sunday when the club meets the Oakland Raiders.

Sweeney sprained his left knee in last Sunday's victory over Denver and was barely able to walk Tuesday. The Chargers are expected to move with Paul Lutzke taking over at center Sam Grunelsen to guard center.

DISTRICT TITLES NEAR

Bucks, Mustangs Go On Road

White Deer and Wheeler can clinch at least ties for their respective district championships Friday night when the Bucks go to Gruver and Wheeler journeys to McLean.

Both face rugged foes with Gruver in the District 1-A lead with a 3-0 record and 6-2 season mark and McLean third in District 2-A at 2-1 and standing 4-4 overall, with a tough defense.

Wheeler fell 32-6 last week to the Bucks who boosted their season mark to 7-1. Wheeler now stands 5-3 for the season.

Should the Bucks down Gruver, a 19-13 winner over Canadian last week, then they'll just have to get by Stratford, 1-1, at Steady rain and temperatures in the 40s drove the Arkansas Razorbacks into a fieldhouse in their preparations for Texas A&M Saturday.

A loss for the Hogs would all but eliminate them from the SWC race.

Coach Frank Broyles ran the team through a 50-minute drill. He said tailback Mike Hendren will go in as third string quarterback because John Eichler is injured. Eichler got hurt against Kansas State. He is out for the season.

Texas Tech's Red Raiders worked out in 45-degree weather in sweat clothes and Coach

J.T. King praised defensive end Barney Oliver, who played the first game of his career against SMU Saturday. He went in to replace George Cox, out for the rest of the season with an injury.

Rice Coach Bo Hagan said Dickie Phillips, the Owls' alternate split end, will miss the Tech game with a knee injury. Phillips' right knee was injured in last week's game with Texas. Hagan said tight end Steve Prichard would start against Tech. Terry Erwin, a sophomore from Corpus Christi, who has yet to get in a game, will be No. 2 split end.

Trojans Retain Top 10 Ranking

NEW YORK (UPI)—Southern Californian's Trojans, out prove they belong in front of the class even without absent superstar O.J. Simpson, received a near-perfect report card Tuesday from coaches making up the United Press International rating board.

The No. 1 ranked Trojans compiled 345 points in the balloting—same as the previous week—but they got one more first place vote.

The other two first place votes went to cross-town rival UCLA, which retained its No. 2 position with 316 points. The Bruins, idle last Saturday, are 6-0 this season.

USC notched victory No. 7, a 28-6 triumph over Oregon last Saturday with Simpson missing most of the second half with an ankle injury. The injury may sideline Simpson, the nation's top rusher, for the season.

Surprising Indiana and Colorado and Houston, upset victims the past weekend, figured in the only major changes among the ranked teams.

Colorado, No. 3 last week, dropped to ninth spot, after its 10-7 setback to Oklahoma State and Houston, No. 9 a week ago, fell completely out of the rankings after losing to Mississippi, 14-13.

Coach John Pont's Indiana club, a 42-7 victor over Arizona, made the UPI top 10 for the first time in history by climbing to eighth spot.

Tennessee (4-1) moved into third place behind UCLA with 241 points. Two other Southern schools—North Carolina State and Georgia—followed the Volunteers in the rankings. North Carolina State (7-0) gained a notch from fifth to fourth and Georgia (5-1) climbed from sixth to fifth spot.

Purdue (5-1) moved from sixth to fifth position and Wyoming, leader of the Western Athletic Conference and unbeaten in seven outings, also stepped up one spot from eighth to seventh.

Notre Dame (4-2) rounded out the top 10 receiving 49 points to 23 for 11th ranked Minnesota.

Sox Williams Manager of Year

NEW YORK (UPI)—Dick Williams, who led the Boston Red Sox to a pennant in his rookie season, was named the American League's manager of the year today by the United Press International.

The 38-year-old former hangman for five big league teams was chosen by 23 of the 24 experts who participated in the UPI's annual post-season survey. Eddie Stanky of the Chicago White Sox received the other vote.

An outfielder by trade who played every position except pitcher and catcher during a playing career between 1947 and 1964, Williams took over a team which finished ninth in 1966 and guided it to one of the most remarkable pennant victories in baseball history.

The Red Sox, 100-to-1 shots in pre-season odds, won the American League pennant on final day of the season after a four-cornered battle with the Minnesota Twins, Detroit Tigers and White Sox.

Williams' main contributions to the victory were the instilling of a new spirit in the Red Sox and the handling of a pitching staff that was razor-thin by the standards of an average contending team.

The 6-foot, 190-pound native of St. Louis began his basic reorganization of the Red Sox in spring training when he refused to allow a young star to live in a hotel apart from other single players.

Packers Ramble Past Cardinals

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI)—Speedster Travis Williams didn't have much time Monday night to think about becoming a hero, because he doesn't take very long to run 93 yards.

"While I was running the only thing I could think of was scoring that touchdown," the Green Bay rookie said.

Williams' 93 yard runback of a kickoff gave the world champion Packers the lead in their 31-23 win over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Williams said, "I've never run back a kickoff for a touchdown—well, wait amintute—I did it once." He said, "But that was in high school, so I guess you can say I never did it."

Saddest Cardinal of all was head Coach Charley Winner who was in the sidelines and watched Williams elude the entire Cardinal team.

"The Packers knocked most of our guys out of that play," Winner said. "The kick went all the way down to the 10 yard line and I think Williams ran it back without anyone laying a hand on him."

"I'm proud of all my boys tonight," said Packer Coach Vince Lombardi. "We haven't played these night games before, and I think everyone did very well."

Lombardi said he was mighty happy a few minutes after the long runback when Boy Dowler snared a pass from quarterback Bart Starr at the 5-yard line and ran into the end zone to give the Packers their final 8-point bulge.

Before Williams won the game for the Packers, another Williams nearly won the game for St. Louis.

Rookie flanker Dave Williams caught touchdown passes of 45 and 49 yards from Jim Hart to give the Cardinals a halftime, 20-14 lead.

RECORD ATTENDANCE
NEW YORK (UPI)—The American Football League drew its highest one-day attendance total Sunday when 190,330 fans witnessed four AFL clashes. The previous record of 177,797 was set Oct. 15, 1967.

Oakland drew the biggest crowd in its history as 33,474 watched the Raiders play San Diego.

Colts Champs, Redskins Second In Pee Wee Meet

SHAMROCK—The Pampa Colts Pee Wee football team walked away with championship honors and the Pampa Redskins took runner-up honors Saturday in the First Annual Leprechaun Bowl, here.

The Colts went through three games unscored on and downed the Redskins, 12-0 in the championship finals.

Jack King of the Colts, who were the city champions, was voted best back of the tournament and Scotty Lowrance of the Redskins was voted the best lineman. Both received trophies.

The Colts downed Shamrock, 20-0 in the first game and clipped McLean 22-0 in the semifinals.

The Redskins drew a first round bye then ripped Lefors, 40-0 in the second game.

Turkey Shoot Slated Saturday By Jaycees

A merchandise and turkey shoot, sponsored by the Pampa Jaycees will be held from 12:30 p.m. until dark (thirty Sunday at Miami Gun Club, located on South Clark St. in Miami.

Guns can shoot for prizes of turkeys, hams, bacon and other merchandise. Shells will be made available.

HIGHER EDUCATION..... VIA A NEWSPAPER ROUTE

Why do educators frequently encourage youngsters to apply for a newspaper route? And why are more and more schools giving "credit" for newspaper route experience?

Because the attitude of a boy towards higher education frequently changes, when, as a Little Merchant newspaperboy, in business for himself, he begins to understand the value of book learning combined with practical experience.

He buys at wholesale—sells at retail—makes his own deliveries and collections—learns simple book-keeping—and often develops into a surprisingly good salesman.

And the money he banks while a newspaperboy frequently makes it possible for him to attend the college of his choice.

If you think your son or some other youngster might profit from newspaperboy experience, have him come in and talk to us.

The Pampa Daily News

A Watchful Newspaper
EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself. No more, no less. It is thus consistent with the Human Relations Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Silence Isn't Consensus

Nobody, to our knowledge, has made a precise tally of the number of times President Johnson has used the word "consensus" in describing his administration. But he has certainly used the term often enough to establish that one word, consensus, as the hallmark of his Great Society.

And therein lies a tragedy for the simple reason that no consensus is possible when very great segments of our society do not express opinions out of fear.

Nobody is more mindful of this fear and resulting silence than the working newspaperman.

The reporter, for example, who attends a convention of manufacturers somewhere this month, and tries to get a round-up of opinion as to what the strike in the automobile industry will mean to the economy, will get the silent treatment. "Don't quote me," will be the three little words he will hear most often.

Prominent businessmen don't want Big Brother retaliating. Almost never will they permit their names to be used. Many will not even comment anonymously.

The newspaperman at a farm

Dallas Self-Help Program

It looks as if the Rev. Sammie Davis of Dallas has a more practical way of promoting a better attitude toward solving the problems of slums than all of the bureaucrats in Washington.

This is the way it was reported by United Press International.

A Dallas minister says he has a "better idea" on a way to cure the nation's racial ills. Rev. Sammie Davis says all he needs is a brush, some paint, and a volunteer.

Rev. Davis organizes house-painting parties in poor neighborhoods.

The paint away poverty idea, as it is called, originated with Rev. Davis and his True Fellowship Baptist Church congregation. To date, more than 200 homes in depressed areas of Dallas have received the clerical face-lifting.

Saying It Openly

Enough whispering. Let's say it out loud. In certain major cities across the United States our citizens are preparing for war. Not a war to be fought on foreign soil. Not a war against an alien enemy, but a war of American against American. A racial civil war.

Absurd as it may seem, literally thousands of our fellow citizens are setting the stage to thrust this country into a state of anarchy and civil war. No one race is solely responsible, and the blame must rest on both races. This newspaper believes in the right of the citizen to own a firearm. Owning is one thing. Stockpiling is another. In Detroit, one is told of meetings where literally hundreds of white people met and were told where to buy guns, how to modify them for effective usage, and how to use them.

In Columbus (Ohio) arms are reportedly being stored by both races in anticipation of a racial conflagration. In Southern California, white people have stockpiled every conceivable weapon in anticipation of armed confrontation with the Negro community, which is equally armed.

National Americans will find this a staggering situation. It means that many of our fellow citizens have lost faith—in the concepts of this country and in the ability of our civil authorities to control violence. These citizens have adopted the code of the frontier and the vigilante. They fear that only they and their weapons stand between them and death.

Racial civil war, if sparked, would spell the destruction of our Negro citizenry, for the Negro is, after all, a hopelessly outnumbered minority. But it would also spell the destruction of our country. Police and other civil authorities would have to quell disorder on both sides. Effective government would disappear. And Moscow would love nothing more. It would delight to see the United States rent asunder by a racial war in the streets.

The Negro who marches behind the rabble-rouser decrying our system in the United States needs to ask himself what system is to replace it? And the white man who prepares to take the law into his own hands is as surely an enemy of our country as an invading soldier.

But the most despicable is the quivering public official, local, state or federal, who knowingly tolerates this preparation for street battles. If a visitor to the areas mentioned can learn these things, local officials obviously know the conditions which prevail. If local officials don't act, the Governors of the three States should.

And don't squeal "civil rights," please. The civil right of every one of our citizens is at stake.

A thought for the way—Willa Sibert, Cather once said: "I like trees because they seem more resigned to the way they have to live than other things do."

Sensing The News

By THURMAN SENSING

Career Wellarists

While the anti-draft demonstrators are reaping the biggest harvest of publicity this month, organized welfare recipients have been busy making their own angry noises in recent months. Taxpaying, self-reliant citizens certainly should inform themselves of the rambunctious, ugly mood of those who believe a federal handout is a "right."

Earlier this year, for example, a thousand singing, shouting welfare recipients from more than 50 cities gathered in Washington and mocked Congress.

These demonstrators were at tending a convention of the National Welfare Rights Movement.

The character of the gathering may be discerned from the speeches made by the convention leaders. One welfare "rights" leader denounced members of Congress as "lousy, dirty, conniving brutes." Threats of violence were clearly implied, even openly stated. One "welfare mother" from New York City, vice chairman of the national organization, told the rally that its money has paid for the Capitol and the group should "go in there and tear it down if they don't listen to you."

George A. Wiley, director of the Poverty-Rights Action Center in Washington, told the group: "If this country does not listen to poor people after what happened in Detroit and Newark and New Haven, you have not seen nothing yet." Responsible citizens certainly should get the message from that plain statement.

The rally was a shocking affair that should have had better national coverage. The tone of the gathering can be gauged by the comment by one delegate, who got into the Senate Caucus Room. Pointing at the hangings, she said: "That stuff costs money, baby, so they must have some money somewhere."

The looter mentality was grimly apparent in this rally of welfare recipients. It was more than a case of "gimme," for the underlying threat was that if the federal government didn't pay off to welfare recipients the country would be made to pay in general havoc.

It is shocking, of course, that such groups should have come into existence. Certainly, it is bad enough that any citizen should think that the government owes him a living. But even worse is the notion that those whom hard-working Americans often refer to as "hand-outs" should believe they can virtually hold up the Congress for bigger benefits. People who organize in this manner obviously are more interested in making a career of welfare than they are in supporting themselves.

The most dismaying thing about the organization of welfare recipients is that church groups have gotten into the act. The Newsletter of the Urban Institute of the Council of Churches in Washington furnishes revealing clues on church participation — participation that may not be known by most laymen.

One issue of the Newsletter revealed, for example, that the Urban Institute of the Council of Churches was "a charter supporter of the Welfare Alliance" in the nation's capital. This Alliance was founded, according to the Newsletter, to "protest actively" for the "rights" of welfare recipients.

The Newsletter let the cat out of the bag in one issue describing the objectives of welfare organizers in the Washington area. It described the overall goal of the organizers as "a national movement demanding economic redistribution of our country's wealth."

If the Council of Churches of Greater Washington believes that rallies of shouting, angry welfare recipients is the way to redistribute the nation's wealth, it takes a curious position for a group of churchmen. It is highly unlikely that the people in any American church denomination approve of Congressmen being called "lousy, dirty, conniving brutes." Congress, elected by the people, is a representative body.

When the churches lend aid to groups that want to redistribute the nation's wealth through mass protest movements, in effect they condone revolutionary action. And a revolution cannot be accomplished without out hatred and strife, which are the things churches are supposed to struggle against.

As for the basic economic ques-

It takes more than some rolls of wire and electronic equipment to run the telephone company. Last year they bought 900,000 ball-point pens, 82 million paper clips, five million pencils, 9,000 pencil sharpeners and 36 tons of rubber bands. And for a company that admits to few errors, they also bought 6.5 million erasers, which proves that they make mistakes too. Window shopping, on New York's Madison Avenue, we saw an electric wastebasket that sheds paper. It made us wonder how we had gotten along all these years without one.

Today's smile: A new boy friend said to his girl's little brother: "I'll give you a dollar, Johnny, if you can get me a lock of your sister's hair." Johnny looked at him and said: "For that kind of dough I'll get you the whole wig."

Uncle Sam gets hungrier and hungrier, now he wants another 10 per cent added to his annual tax bite. Well, some genius figured out the average American now works two hours and 25 minutes out of every day to feed dear old Uncle Samuel, and this year he worked six minutes longer than last. The same genius figured the average guy only worked an hour and 26 minutes every day to earn his rent and household expenses. It's about time someone told our hungry Uncle he should go on a diet.

Thoughts while shaving: The tobacco companies have been plugging finer tobaccos and better filters to get you to switch brands. Well, the millennium has arrived. One of the big tobacco firms is ready to market a longer cigarette than any other that will filter half tobacco and half filter. . . . The old custom of kissing under the mistletoe will have an Irish-Celtic touch this Christmas because much of the mistletoe that will be sold in this country and Britain will be imported from Communist Poland. It might be better for everyone if they exported some of it to other Commie countries to promote a little Christmas spirit in the places where it's most needed. . . . You've often heard the expression, "killed by kindness." It originated in ancient Greece where it was the custom to wave caps and cloaks as a sign of approval or toss them at the object of their enthusiasm. Draco, an Athenian politician in the sixth century, B. C., could always arouse an audience with his orations. One day he so aroused them, they showered him with their caps and cloaks and the guy smothered. He was literally killed by kindness. . . . We know the earth is a pretty big place, but astronomers tell us that it is tiny in comparison with some of the stars. For example, Antares in the Scorpio constellation, is 123 billion times larger than the earth. And our chances of ever sending an astronaut there to prove it are pretty slim. It's 390 light years distant from this planet. The WALL STREET JOURNAL headlined a story: "Thirteen Firms Accused of Effort to Control Michigan's Bread Prices." There's a lot of dough involved in that one.

South Africa Finding Setting Up 'Bantustans' Costly, Though Clinging to Belief in 'Apartheid'

PAUL SCOTT

PRETORIA, South Africa — South Africa's long range approach to solving its racial problem is crystallizing much differently than most people outside this country realize. Their controversial plan is designed to create eight semi-independent black nation-states, known as Bantustans, within the present borders of the country.

The fantastic resettlement project, on which $700 million will be spent during the coming five years, will drastically reshape the nature of South Africa.

It also is necessitating creation of costly "border industries" to provide employment for the blacks living in the newly created mini-nations.

That's the report Dr. J. Joost, the soft-speaking director of the South African Bureau of Racial Affairs, gives visitors to his office.

"Most whites here recognize the black man's right to freedom," he states. "But this freedom must come outside our political structure."

Under the unprecedented plan Dr. Joost is trying to carry out for the Vorster government, the country's 13 million blacks will become citizens of the eight Bantustans carved out in the republic's territory and as such would be permitted temporary employment in white areas and the new "border industries."

The rest of South Africa would be a white country in which black Africans would be permitted to work but denied political rights.

While nothing on this scale has ever been attempted before, Dr. Joost and his aides are convinced it will work if given time and no outside interference.

SEPARATE NATION STATES — The Bantustan plan, according to backers, would attain ultimate goal of the Apartheid policy — separate nations with separate freedoms within a framework of white and black states.

An official publication describes the program as "emancipation with chaos. . . because it is realized that political independence will inevitably lead to chaos unless it is preceded by vast programs involving the general advancement of the Bantu and the development of their homelands."

Country Editor Speaking: "Mini-skirts have accomplished one thing. They make men look better."

In practical terms, the separation-of-the-races experiment proposes to concentrate 70 per cent of South Africa's population in approximately 14 per cent of its territory.

The Bantustan blueprint also assumes that most able-bodied black Africans would immediately become migratory laborers, as is now the case with many of the 650,000 workers employed in the gold mining industry.

Many others would seek employment in the newly created "border industries." While many of the black Africans would be able to commute daily from their nation-states, others would have to be away from their settlements and families for weeks and months at a time.

In that respect, tens of thousands of the black Africans would be working like the Mexican wetbacks in the U.S. or as migratory workers in Western Europe.

THE PILOT PROJECT — To visitors, Dr. Joost cites and shows off the Transkei Bantustan as an example of what will eventually happen in the seven other areas earmarked for the black Africans.

Transkei, where 2.5 million of South Africa's Xhosa tribesmen live, received some self-government in 1962. It has its own parliament, partly elected and partly appointed, a prime minister, and six ministers, each with a permanent white Secretary.

As in the other proposed semi-independent black nation-states, defense and foreign affairs of the Transkei will continue in South Africa's hands until, according to the plan, trained and experienced blacks can take over.

Control over their own education was recently turned over to the black Africans in Transkei by the South Africans. Transkei has its own university — one of South Africa's four universities for black students.

Faced with increasing inflation, the South African government has slowed down the Bantustan projects as it has other building programs, in order to hold down rising consumer prices.

This year the government plans to spend $12 million to buy property for Bantustan consolidation. So far nearly $500 million has been invested in the "border industries," Joost reports.

THE OPPOSITION — Some of the strongest opposition to the separate nation-state plan comes from South African whites, who charge that the project of the Vorster government will never reach its announced objectives.

Lawrence Gandar, editor-in-chief of the Rand Daily Mail flatly charges the experiment is too costly and just won't be lasting. "We reject the only two courses that can lead to ending of race discrimination. . . either by total integration or total sep-

Civil Rights Are For All

(Chicago Tribune) Fifty the poor "liberals" in Congress when they have to choose between racial justice and their need to obey the labor unions who supply them with campaign funds.

For example, the "liberals" face a dilemma in two bills which are intended to protect civil rights workers from violence. One bill, passed by the House, would protect persons engaged in voting campaigns, welfare programs sponsored by the federal government, federal jury service, and at places of public accommodation.

A stronger bill has been approved by the constitutional rights subcommittee of the Senate judiciary committee. The subcommittee's bill is not limited to the protection of persons working for the rights of Negroes or other minority groups. The bill also would protect "employees while engaged in employment or traveling to or from their jobs." It would prohibit any labor organization "from imposing any fine, economic penalty, or sanction because a member chooses not to participate in a strike or other concerted activity."

In short, the bill would protect a man's right to work. To labor unions the right to work is a wholly obnoxious idea, and the labor-controlled members of Congress may be counted on to oppose the subcommittee bill. They believe in all the constitutional freedoms except when they interfere with the power of labor unions. They believe in the right of dissent except when the dissenter is against the policies of a union.

The "liberal" position now has the support of a majority of the justices of the United States Supreme Court. Last June they voted, 5 to 4, that a worker who disobeys union rules may be punished by the union. If he crosses a picket line during a strike, the union may fine him. This ruling was adopted in spite of the provisions of the national labor-relations act, which forbids either an employer or a union to "restrain or coerce" workers who exercise their right to "refrain from" concerted activities.

Union members, therefore, have lost their right to dissent, which once was considered to be an inalienable right of Americans. Where are the "liberals" who are so zealous in behalf of some kinds of dissent? They are so busy defending Stokely Carmichael and Rap Brown. Rioting, in the "liberal" view, is less sinful than crossing a picketline or refusing to join a union. The proposed legislation has the useful effect of restating the fundamental fact that civil rights are not confined simply to minorities but are for the uniform protection of all citizens. Too much recent "civil rights" legislation has given the unfortunate impression that only Negroes are entitled to such protection, whereas the Constitution intends it to cloak everybody, even members and nonmembers of labor unions which consider themselves privileged.

SLAVERY IN OUR TIME
A hundred years after Lincoln, slavery yet lives — within the U.S.A. — and within virtually all of the other nations of the world. A good comprehensive definition of slavery was recently penned by a libertarian newspaper columnist: "Slavery is any act in which a man is deprived from using his own life and property in ways of his own choosing."

In voluntary trades between men or in voluntary associations among them, ALL participants profit physically (and money profit is of value only for the psychic gain which ultimately results). Each man acts as he does because he values the final situation more than the initial one. In the master-slave relationship, the master profits while the slave loses; aggressive force (or the threat thereof) is necessary to initiate and sustain such a relationship, for no man would voluntarily take a psychic loss. A consistent, radical libertarian unequivocally rejects the master-slave relationship as a social arrangement.

Clearly the most dangerous master is he who enslaves his victims under the cloak of legality. Such a master is the government or state — a group of people legally privileged to be masters, and against whose incursions you cannot "legally" defend yourself. (By contrast, persons are MORALLY justified in using defensive force, individually or in voluntary association, to repel aggression by other individuals or groups.)

Editor: Should there not now be any communists in the United States, as some think, there may occur an infiltration through demonstrations, riots and other crimes, amounting to one-half per cent per year. Within five years the cumulative total would then be two and one-half per cent. It has been thought that nations are often taken over when the infiltration amounts to about two and one-half per cent. This may account for the people having quit saying "It can't happen here!" It will not happen here if nearly everyone of the 85 per cent who oppose communism no longer show a willingness to tolerate abductions and 60 per cent of us become active anti-communists, and do everything we conveniently can to promote liberty and oppose communism.

aration, and instead we support a policy that cannot serve our purpose, and is very limited in its objectives. Many believe the objectives will never be reached."

Gandar argues that the government's Bantustan policy has no concrete plan for the 1.5 million "coloreds" those of mixed races, and the growing number of Indians in South Africa.

"By the turn of the century," he points out, "white South Africa will contain 7 million whites, 6 million coloreds, 1 million Indians and 13 million blacks in South Africa, and 15 million other blacks in the Bantustans."

"Will the whites feel significantly more secure being outnumbered three to one instead of four to one?" Gandar asks. "Will they feel any more able to dismantle the apparatus of race discrimination in housing, schooling and employment?" Gandar believes the answer to those questions is no.

The most blatant form of contemporary legal slavery is conscription — whether used for purposes of foreign war by the Warfare State or domestic war by the Welfare State. Those who defend the draft claim that the nation has a right to defend itself; that certain designated people therefore have the sacred duty to submit to this enslavement for "defense purposes." But "nation" or "society" or "community" are not reified entities and possess no rights. Those who assert such a "nation's right to defend itself" really are saying, not that EACH PERSON may legitimately defend himself, but that SOME members of the group may rightfully force OTHERS to do the defending, against the latter's will. Not only can the present Vietnam War be only most tortuously, if at all, construed as "defense of the United States," but also it is certainly gross hypocrisy to employ conscripted (enslaved) people to fight for "freedom."

As presently operating, the U. S. Selective Service System does not only infringe on the liberty of those young men actually drafted. It also indulges in social manipulation (domestic imperialism) on a vast scale. You can obtain from the SSS, free of charge, a set of documents describing the operation of the system. One of these, called "Channelling," explains how the system tries to insure that the national civilian "manpower pool" maintains the proper occupational composition to optimally fulfill the "national needs." The SSS performs this function by employing the stick (threat of induction) and the carrot (educational or occupational deferment). So if you don't want to be enslaved (any further than you already are, that is), you had better take up one of the occupations which your rulers, rather than you, consider important — you'd better live for their sake, and not for your own.

In 1931, the Treasury Department, said the financial condition of the United States was so grave 532 banks had to close down in September.
