SUPPLIES RUNNING LOW

U.S. Paratroops Trapped Beneath Jungle Fortress

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. pilots slammed tons of bombs and flaming napalm into a Communist hilltop fortress in the Central Highlands today to relieve about 1,600 American paratroopers caught with supplies of food, arms and medicine running down. But at midday Tuesday the GIs remained pinned on the jungle slope just under the fortress.

Britain's Devalued Pound Test Underway

LONDON (UPI)—Prime Minister Harold Wilson put the devalued pound on Britain's money market today for its first major test.

Financial experts predicted it would pass with powerful help from the United States and other major financial powers.

Political experts were forecasting a major reshuffle in Wilson's cabinet. The Labor government Saturday devalued the pound sterling from $2.80 to $2.50.

The Communist fire drove off fleets of rescue helicopters, damaging at least 10. One American helicopter got through, plucked out five wounded GIs and Maj. William Kelly of Chattanooga, Tenn., who said:

"There's not an officer in there without a scratch on him. In fact, there are not many people in there without a scratch."

Brig. Gen. Leo H. Schweiter, the quiet, bespectacled commander of the 173rd Airborne Brigade, looked at the hill battle and almost whispered, "My heart suffers for them."

In the air, U.S. jets hit the ed to take a nosedive to start with but recover later.

The expected cabinet shuffle, as the experts see it, would have James Callaghan, the present Chancellor of the Exchequer (comparable to the U.S. Treasury Secretary) resign to succeed George Brown as Foreign Secretary.

Wilson had the task of selling devaluation not only to a partly hostile Parliament, but to his own governing Labor party.

Leftwing laborites and the trade union wing of the party were known to be deeply concerned about the Prime Minister's warning that the cost of living would be going up and that a new austerity program was in the offing.

But nothing in the nature of a general revolt seemed likely among the Laborites. Few labor MPs would want to throw out the government because this would force a national parliamentary election in which they would have to risk their seats.

New Zealand announced today it would devalue its pound by 19.45 per cent to make it equal to Australia's at $1.12. Australia decided Monday not to devalue its dollar.

Hanoi-Haiphong area of North Vietnam in a massive 175 missions Monday—the most in a month, spokesmen said. But a Communist supersonic MIG21 shot down an Air Force F105 Thursday—the 300th U.S. plane lost over North Vietnam this year, an average of one a day.

Another American plane, an RF4 Phantom, was lost to unknown causes. It brought to 759 the number of American aircraft, including eight helicopters, lost over the Communist nation.

In South Vietnam, U.S. planes brought both hope and tragedy to the two battalions of the 173rd caught on the slopes just 100 yards below the Communist fortress, on Hill 875 the eye of the central highlands' battle.

U.S. spokesmen said giant B52 Stratofortresses ripped at positions of the 12,000 Communist troops now reported in the battle. They said the North Vietnamese invaders brought in two more regiments to battle some 16,000 American troops in the 20-day-old duel for the highlands.

But a 500 pound bomb from an Air Force F4C Phantom hit among the wounded paratroopers fighting on Hill 875, spokesmen said.

The blast killed 20 of the wounded, the spokesmen said. Medical officers reported all the GI medics on Hill 875 have been killed or wounded. They said the wounded Americans, some who fell in the first U.S. charge Sunday, were suffering from dehydration brought on by (See Paratroopers, Page 3)

Senate Parties Challenge Prediction

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson summoned his top military and diplomatic advisers to a breakfast meeting at the White House today to discuss the course of the war in Vietnam.

On hand for the meeting were Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the U.S. commander in Vietnam; Ellsworth Bunker, ambassador to Saigon, and deputy ambassador Robert W. Komer, head of the pacification program.

The President also invited vice president Hubert H. Humphrey, Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara, Gen. Earle Wheeler, chairman of

Congress Shows New Interest In LBJ Tax Increase

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Congress took President Johnson's tax increase off the shelf today after the Chief Executive promised to cut spending $1 for every $1 in new taxes. Its passage remained unlikely this year.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways & Means Committee, gave the administration another chance to argue for its 10 per cent income tax surcharge. He scheduled a hearing next Tuesday to hear the President's plans for reducing government outlays.

Mills rejected in advance the administration's latest argument, as outlined by White House press secretary George Christian, that a tax increase was even more imperative now because of Britain's devaluation of the pound.

"Whenever the going gets tough for a public economic policy proposal," Mills said, "its supporters call in the balance of payments and protecting the dollar and international monetary system."

"The fanciful notion that a tax increase of the sort proposed will have any significant effect on our balance of payments in the reasonably near future and that it might contribute to the strengthening of the pound is completely without support of fact," he said.

Although Mills appeared willing to hear again administration arguments for a tax hike, he said in a Hot-Springs, Ark. speech Monday that delays in proposing spending cuts had made it "impossible" to win approval of a tax bill this year.

The Ways & Means Committee shelved the 10 per cent tax increase on Oct. 3, pending agreement between Congress and the White House to cut spending by about the same amount to be raised by the proposed extra taxes. White House said Monday that Johnson now had met this condition.

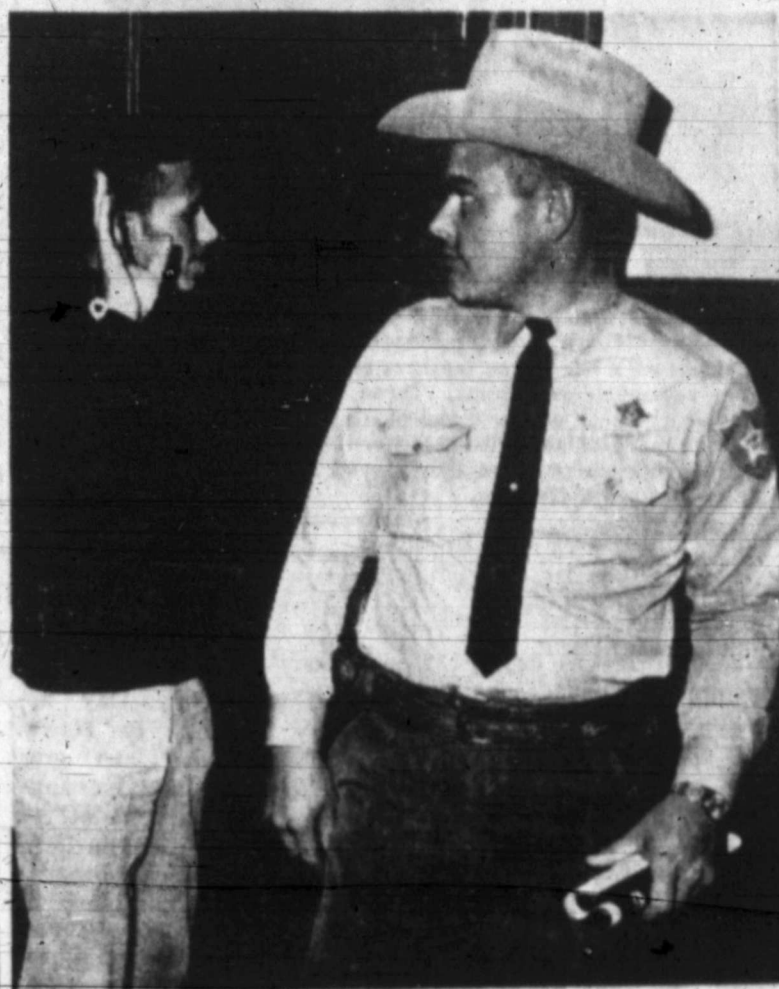

Although Mills did not reveal the administration's new economic plans, a member of his committee, Rep. James A. Burke, D-Mass., said Treasury Secretary Henry H. Fowler would tell the panel next week that $4 billion to $5 billion would be saved in the remainder of this fiscal year.

Mills has been pressing for a dollar spending reduction for every dollar in new tax revenue. The $4 billion to $5 billion estimate appeared to meet that test.

64 Persons Killed In Airliner Crash

UP, UP AND AWAY — William Benjamin Davis, found guilty of the Aug. 24 armed robbery of a McLean service station yesterday in 31st Judicial District Court and assessed a six-year prison sentence, is shown being escorted to the Gray County jail after the trial by Deputy Bill Board.

Second Robbery Suspect Draws Six-Year Sentence

An 11-man, one woman jury returned a verdict of guilty of armed robbery yesterday in the trial of William Benjamin Davis and assessed him a six-year sentence in the state prison.

The 31st Judicial District Court jury deliberated for 22 minutes before returning the verdict of guilty at 6 p.m. They deliberated another 35 minutes before deciding on the six-year assessment.

Davis, 24, a New Yorker who uses the alias Anthony Thomas Fiorello, was indicted with his companion James Lee Herring, 19, for the Aug. 24 robbery of a McLean service station.

The two were charged with robbing the McLean service station of $102.75 in the pre-dawn hours of Aug. 24 after trying up attendant Jerry Hilburn. They were apprehended by Amarillo Police an hour later.

A motion for separate trials for the two was granted Nov. 2 by 31st Judicial District Judge Grainger W. McIlhenny.

Herring was tried last week in the district court here. A 12-man jury found him guilty and assessed him a 10-year term in the state penitentiary.

The two Negro men have said that they were on their way to California to try out for singing jobs.

Under the Texas Criminal Code, Davis will have 10 days to appeal the sentence. Ordinarily, if a defendant does not appeal his sentence, formal assessment of sentence by a judge abides by the jury recommendation.

Harold Comer, a Pampa lawyer, served as counsel for the defendant. Judge Grainger W. McIlhenny presided.

Fate of Fliers

Cloaked in Cuba

MIAMI (UPI)—Silence cloaked the fate of two American fliers today after their Bimini-bound plane was hijacked by a mysterious passenger and forced down in Havana.

Federal Aviation Agency officials continued a skywatch for a twin-engine Piper Apache, piloted by J. Vinton Raymond of Pompano Beach and copilot Jeff White of Miami, which touched down at Havana airport at 2:06 p.m. Monday.

Though Cuban authorities earlier had assured officials the plane would be permitted to return to the United States, the FAA had heard no word from it early today.

Doctors and Nurses Work to Save Others

CINCINNATI (UPI)—Federal investigators today recovered the flight and tape recorders from a Trans World Airlines jet and hoped they would help solve the second air disaster at the greater Cincinnati airport in two years. Doctors and nurses worked to save the 18 survivors of a crash Monday night which killed 64 persons.

The four-engine Convair 880, carrying 75 passengers and seven crewmembers, crashed in an apple orchard minutes from touchdown. The plane was pressed into service when a sister ship that was to make the flight developed a faulty door.

The plane, flight 128, originated in Los Angeles and was flying nonstop to Cincinnati, then on to Pittsburgh and Boston.

It crashed during a light snow shortly before 8 p.m. CST on the farm of R. S. Wagner in Hebron, Ky., six miles south of Cincinnati across the Ohio river. The crash happened less than a mile from the spot where an American Airlines Boeing 727, also on a flight to Cincinnati, went down two years ago, killing 58 of the 60 persons aboard. The two crash sites are less than a mile apart.

Only two weeks ago a TWA Boeing 707 cracked up at Greater Cincinnati Airport when the takeoff was aborted. The 37 persons aboard escaped serious injury, but an elderly woman died later of complications.

Joseph O'Connell, chairman of the National Air Transportation Safety Board, defended the airport, saying it is "as good as any in the U.S. it's a better airport than most in terms of terrain and approaches."

"However," he added, "it seems to be accident prone. But it is relatively safe."

O'Connell was in Cincinnati when the Convair crashed. He was preparing for a hearing next month into the near-tragedy of two weeks ago.

At the crash site, Kentucky state troopers stood guard while bodies were removed and federal investigators gathered evidence. The investigators were to meet later today for a preliminary review of their findings.

The Convair's tape and flight recorder and the airport control tower's tape recorder were flown to Washington.

Fourteen of the survivors are in St. Elizabeth's Hospital at Covington. Three are in Boeth Hospital, also in Covington, and another is in General Hospital in Cincinnati.

But for a malfunctioning door, there might have been no crash. Capt. Charles L. Cochran, 45, a veteran of 14,000 air hours, was at the controls when a problem was found in one of the cabin doors of the four-engined jet Convair 880 that was to make the flight.

The 72 passengers and seven crewmembers transferred to another plane, also a Convair 880, and began their flight, 2 1/2 hours late. Less than six miles (See CRASH, Page 3)

U.S. Agains Opposes China's Admission to United Nations

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—For the 18th year in succession the United States today was spearheading the fight to deny Communist China admission to the United Nations.

Success was again predicted for the U.S. effort, but the margin of victory has grown more narrow in recent years.

Rep. L.H. Fountain, D-N.C., took temporary leadership of the U.S. delegation to deliver the main speech against admission of the Communists.

Communist bloc nations scheduled speakers to urge the expulsion of Chiang Kai-shek Nationalist Chinese regime, the official U.N. representative of China's 700 million people.

Both Peking and Nationalist China have rejected any stipulation which would permit both to sit in the United Nations, and the proposal was defeated last year by a wide margin.

Last year the General Assembly voted 57-46 with 11 abstentions against a resolution to oust Nationalist China.

The debate on the issue began Monday with the formal introduction by Cambodia of the ouster resolution. The Cambodian representative depicted Red China as a patient advocate of nuclear disarmament, and Formosa as a military dictatorship sustained only by U.S. might.

Th China issue took the spotlight from the Security Council's Middle East debate, recessed until Wednesday when a new Soviet peace proposal is due for consideration.

CLOTHES DO MAKE THE CHARACTER, as portrayed by the clothes chosen by Doreen Ackerman for the roles played on the CBS daytime drama, "The Secret Storm." Refined blazer and culotte (left) by Sporttempo are typical of Valerie Ames, played by Lori March, who always displays good taste with a touch of conservatism. Susan Dunbar, who in private life is Judy Lewis, Loretta Young's daughter, takes time out from her career to do

Paris-inspired, ostrich trimmed chignon dress for evening, while Melissa Tyson, portrayed by Angela Thornton, shows off a box of coq feathers on a matching peach crepe, one-shouldered dress. These are by Jeunesse. Houselook check of silver and black (right) are suited on this divided pastedress worn by Wendy Porter, a fashion-independent teen-ager played by Jill Masnik. This is an Arpeja creation.

Secret Storm Is a Fashion Treat

NEW YORK—Anyone who faithfully watches a serial on television begins to associate the players with the role they play. And although in real life these people may be nothing like the characters they portray, the costume for the program must also think of them as they come across in their roles. For the clothes they wear are an integral part of the way they come across to the audience. The wrong choice of clothes could even change the impression given when a line is spoken.

Anyone familiar with the characters on CBS' "The Secret Storm," knows they are people of means who possess refined good taste. They shop in their local department store, Tyrell's, which could easily be the best department store in any city. Doreen Ackerman, who has complete charge of selecting the costumes for the show, is surprised at the amount of mail that flows in, asking where garments seen on the show can be purchased. And she is more amazed that friends and relatives say that many of the characters are so sharply defined by their clothes.

"They don't realize that it's all preplanned with exactly that purpose in mind—that each day, I and not the characters, lay out what they will wear on the next show."

Doreen begins the task of costuming the show by covering the Seventh Avenue fashion market each season and selecting a basic wardrobe for each character, including accessories. Each personality is treated separately, so much so that each has her own closet in the wardrobe room. Doreen knows that she must dress characters, rather than actresses.

"My greatest pleasure," she said, "is watching their eyes light up when a new shipment of clothes comes in. Often they buy them for their own use."

Doreen's excellent background in acting at New York University, costume design at the Yale Graduate School of Drama and current co-ownership of Ackerman-Michaels, a firm which makes couture at home and evening wear, enables her to make the episode of fashion cohesive with real life in the selections she makes for the program.

Many times the clothes seen on this daytime drama show serve as an advance fashion source for viewers. For often the clothes worn have not yet reached the stores. It is a timely way to keep abreast of fashion trends from the young, swinging set to the more conservative group, as the age range on "The Secret Storm" is all-inclusive.

Whereas in the 1930s and '40s Hollywood was a prime source in education of the public to major fashion looks, via Dietrich, Crawford or Lombard, today fashion is a day-to-day happening and changes as often as the weather. And here it is projected right on the television screen as soon as it leaves top designers' salons. There is much more to this constant clothes selection than meets the eye. For instance, the fact that the show now appears in color presents new problems for Doreen.

Each actress has her own home, or set, which remains constant from day to day. And if one character has a green living room, her clothes as well as those of other players who enter her home must be in the greens, golds and browns. "A hot pink dress, as pretty as it may be in a green-room, claims Doreen, would look like a carnival color on the screen."

The selection of clothes for this show proves that drama and fashion have lots in common. And those who are at home during the day to watch can reap the bonus of a free lesson in what's au courant in design along with good entertainment.

Girl Scouts Switch Roles, Change Square to Swinger

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Woman's Editor
NEW YORK (UPI)—Don't call today's Girl Scout a square. Her world is much more than cookies and camping and crafts. She's "with it," she's keenly aware of the myriad of social and economic problems facing her community and her world. And she cares deeply about other people and what she can do for them.

The new label for the three million girls seven to 17 years of age is pinned on by none other than Mrs. Holton R. Price, Jr., the national president of the Girl Scouts of the U.S.A. "It's a myth that scouts are square," said Mrs. Price. "and I'm a great myth dispeller. We don't intend to change the image of scouting as a builder of character. But we do want people to know that today's scout is more deeply involved with problems around her than she was even 10 years ago. I've never seen such a desire for service."

"Today's girls know so much," read so much. Young people are more aware of the have-nots and intend to do something about it." Mrs. Price, during a business trip to New York, told of just one way today's scouts are "involved."

At the time of the Watts riot (in Los Angeles), she said, "there were several Girl Scout troops in the area. During the riots, the girls stayed with sister scouts outside Watts. When it was over, they all went back, helping to clean up, taking care of babies, and doing all the things that had to be done. Now this is a real example of breaking down walls between people."

Mrs. Price told of sitting in with a senior group in St. Louis to find what actually was on the girls' minds. Among issues disturbing them were dating, morals and sex, Diversity of religions (brought on in part by the "God is dead" discussion), their relations with adults ("the generation gap"), and civil rights.

Dear Abby by Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Last January my son went north to get a job. While he was there he phoned to say he had met a "wonderful" girl and they had been married. Naturally we were surprised, but he seemed happy, so we were happy, too.

A couple of months later he called to say that he and his wife were splitting up and he was going to join the army, his reason being that his wife was going to have a baby that was not his. He said that he knew nothing about her condition when he married her, but she admitted to having known it all along.

Well, this poor girl called us and said she had no money and nowhere to go and she couldn't go home, so we sent her money and told her to come stay with us until her baby is born.

She's here now, and, Abby, she is really a sweet girl. She plans to give the baby away when it comes. We wrote our son about what we had done, and he was very angry at us.

We keep writing, trying to explain, but he won't answer our letters. Even if it's not our son's baby, it's an innocent child. What is your advice? We can't turn this poor girl out. But will our son ever speak to us again?

DEAR MOTHER: If he does not, shame on him. HE found this girl, you didn't, and even though I don't condone her actions, she is a human being. She is also his wife, until they are legally divorced. I think you did the decent and admirable thing. And hopefully so will your son after he cools off and thinks about it for a while.

DEAR ABBY: Do blondes really have more fun? If so, why?

REDHEAD: Could it be that they're easier to find in the dark?

ENGAGED: I say you are engaged, and congratulations.

Stocks Strong With Comeback

NEW YORK (UPI) - The stock market made a strong comeback today following the wide spread decline Monday in reaction to devaluation of the British pound and a hike in the Federal Reserve Board discount rate.

Prices moved up along a broad front in active trading with the glamor stocks leading the way, but many blue chips also showed gains of a point or more.

Analysts said the stock market traditionally makes a strong rebound following any climactic selloff, but many felt traders were a little too exuberant and expected profit taking to trim gains by the end of the session.

According to some brokers, the strength reflected investor confidence in the government's attempt to keep the dollar stable even if it means a tax hike. If an excuse for profit taking is needed, however, analysts feel the hike in the prime interest rate by several banks will be sufficient.

Shortly before noon, the United Press International stock market indicator jumped 1.34 per cent with 1,350 issues crossing the tape. There were 985 advances and 206 declines.

Polaroid advanced 10 1/2 after a delayed opening. The company proposed a 2-for-1 stock split and increased the regular dividend.

Rails, airlines and aircrafts joined the retreat with gains ranging from large fractions to around 3 for the higher priced issues.

For, as Peter De Vries points out in one of his novels, "there are always two sides to every question, and it behooves any honest man to take them both."

The likelihood is that more people will become like my friend Willie Dowk, as I shall call him, who prides himself on being both a hawk and a dove.

Had a Chat I was talking with Willie the other evening about the possibility that Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., might offer himself as a "peace candidate" in Democratic presidential primaries in opposition to President Johnson.

"I hope he will," Willie said. "Does that mean you would vote for McCarthy for President?"

Purdue Looks Best of Cagers in Midwest

CHICAGO (UPI) — There should be new faces on the top rungs of Midwest college basketball this year with such old standbys as Michigan, Ohio State and Loyola grappling to post reasonable records. Looming as perhaps the best of an over-all good lot is Purdue, which kept most of last year's 500 bad club and added the prospect boomed as the top player last season, Rick Mount, plus a seven foot center, Chuck Davis, and a flashy guard, Tyrone Bedford.

But the Boilermakers, who haven't won a Big Ten title since 1940, could get tough competition down to the wire in the 14-game conference schedule from defending co-champion Indiana and challenging Wisconsin.

Good Irish Team Among the Independents, Notre Dame, with Bob Arzenz, Bob Whitmore and Dwight Murphy on hand again could be a contender for Top 10 honors even though the Irish haven't beaten their own freshmen in four starts. De Paul, should be improved with Bob Zoretich among three returnees and two sophomore stars in 6-7 Ken Warzynski and 6-3 Al Zetsche, and Loyola won't be bad with such aces as Corky Bell and Doug Wardlaw again available. The Big Ten could be a sea-saw. Purdue has such standouts as Herman Gilliam, Bill Keller and Roger Blalock back to steady the newcomers, but Indiana kept all conference forward Butch Joyner, play-making guard Vernon Payne, a giant center in Bill Debeer and has a crackerjack sophomore in Joe Cooke.

Wisconsin, only two games off the title pace last year, also could make a solid challenge with light losses and the return of some fancy veterans—Chuck Nagle, Joe Franklin, Mike Carlin and 7-foot Ena Hendrickson. In addition, sophomores Mel Reddick and Al Henry figure to help the starting unit. Iowa can build around Sam Williams, the third best scorer in the conference last year, and a high school All-America center, Joe Bergmañ, plus another 6-9 newcomer, Richard Jensen, may make the job simpler.

EAST SIDE, WEST SIDE: Two top candidates for All-American honors this season are UCAL's Gary Beban (top) and Larry Csonka of Syracuse. Quarterback Beban led the Bruins in a showdown match with USC for the Rose Bowl bid while Csonka has paced the Orangemen to a winning season. Southern Cal. won the right to the Roses.

Sooners, Buffs to Bowl

By United Press International The nation's bowl selection committee Monday filled at least one spot in each of the seven major post season classics and signed three of the nation's top 10 powers for the Orange and Sugar bowls.

Miami's 75,387-seat Orange Bowl will probably be the site of the top New Year's Day contest. The Orange Bowl Committee landed second-ranked Tennessee (7-1) and fifth-ranked Oklahoma (7-1), making that classic the only one which will pit two members of the top 10 against each other.

However, other members of the high-ranked teams were lining up fast for post-season appearances against lesser-rated opponents. New Orleans' Sugar Bowl will bring in seventh-ranked Wyoming (10-0) to face local favorite LSU (5-3-1) and the Cotton Bowl Committee kept the annual Dallas affair a prestige contest by landing the Deep South's finest, ninth-ranked Alabama (7-1-1) to face as yet unknown champion of the Southwest Conference.

Other Half Done The Rose Bowl Committee, which had half its works done for it last Saturday when top-ranked Southern California (9-1) became the West Coast entrant by knocking off UCLA, will have the other half done for it next Saturday when 13th ranked Minnesota (7-2) and 14th ranked Indiana (8-1) close out their seasons and finally decide the Big Ten representative.

West Texas State will play in the Junior Rose Bowl, battled in the 1939 game when Tennessee blanked Oklahoma 17-0 in the Sooners' first post-season appearance. Oklahoma, which has won five straight since losing 9-7 to State and 18th-ranked Florida.

Texas, also has two games left on its regular schedule. The Sooners meet Nebraska on Thanksgiving Day in an effort to clinch the Big Eight crown and close their season against arch-rival Oklahoma State on Dec. 2. Wyoming, the nation's only unbeaten, untied major college team will grace the Sugar Bowl, with a win over traditional Thanksgiving opponent Texas (6-3), but the Longhorns could tie the top four bowls after winning the top four bowls since 1935 and the 1951 Gator Bowl. So-So Record The 1951 Gator Bowl, Tech's (5-4) game with Arkansas Saturday and Texas Christian's two remaining games, includes a 7-6 loss to Alabama, previous Sugar Bowl appearances, dating back to a 3-2 loss to TCU in 1936.

Southern Cal. Tops

NEW YORK (UPI) — Southern California today began the formality of awaiting the final week's balloting after practically being assured of its second national championship Monday.

The Trojans, who finished their regular season at 9-1 with a hard fought 21-20 victory over UCLA, were named the nation's top college football team on 21 of the 34 ballots cast by the 35-member United Press International board of coaches. One coach was unavailable for voting.

Southern California was awarded 314 points to earn No. 1 ranking handsily over Tennessee, which remained second with seven first place votes and 277 points.

The Volunteers, now 7-1 with their only loss coming at the hands of UCLA in the opener for both teams, has little chance of catching the front-running Trojans, who assured themselves of a trip to the Rose Bowl with their triumph over UCLA. Doug Dickey's team meets Kentucky and Vanderbilt, neither of which could bring any prestige, in its final two games.

Purdue took advantage of UCLA's loss to move into third place ahead of the Bruins who fell to fourth after leading the nation last week. The Boilermakers were named No. 1 on five ballots and received 259 points to slip ahead of UCLA, which received 251 points, but failed to get a first place nod.

Oklahoma, which Monday accepted a bid to meet Tennessee in the Orange Bowl, continued its climb, gaining a first place vote and 144 points to capture the No. 5 ranking. The Sooners, now 7-1, face Nebraska on Thanksgiving Day and Oklahoma State the following week before tangling with second-ranked Tennessee in Miami.

ROYAL MOANING AGAIN

By United Press International Longhorn coach Darrell Royal says Texas "will be fighting for a share" of the Southwest Conference championship Thanksgiving Day, but his team would have to improve its offense to win.

Texas A&M, which Texas meets in Thursday's classic, "has the momentum going," Royal said.

Rice coach Bo Hagan gave the Owls a day off Monday, praising the defensive unit for its play against Texas A&M last Saturday. The Owls will play Texas Christian University Saturday at Fort Worth.

The Frogs, after last week's upset of Texas, had a short workout Monday.

Pampa Ninth Opens With Victory

Pampa Junior High Ninth, who opened their 1959-60 cage season on a successful note Monday, entertained Spearman ninth here this afternoon.

The Reapers ripped Memphis B, 76-29 and coach Claude Robertson played all 15 members of the traveling squad.

Pampa led 16-4, then forged to a 43-12 halftime lead and led 67-17 after three periods.

Mustang Jerry Devine suffered a severely bruised elbow last week against Arkansas, Southern Methodist trainer Eddie Lane said Monday.

Eddy Doesn't Let Knee Injury Bother His Career

DETROIT (UPI) — Nick Eddy, of the Notre Dame flash who received a big wad of dough to sign with the Detroit Lions, thinks the knee injury which kept him from the lineup all season may be the best break of his football career.

"I'll be in better shape next year," the former Irish All-America said. "My knee will be stronger than it ever has before."

Aggies Eyeing Bowl

Royal said there wasn't time for any hard work before the A&M date, and that the team would workout in sweatclothes through Wednesday.

Texas Tech's Red Raiders can grab a share of the crown if they beat Arkansas Saturday, and "We are really going to have to grab grass this week," said coach Frank Broyles.

Pampa on Road For Game Tonight

The Pampa Harvesters continued on the road tonight, as they invaded Childress for their third basketball game of the season.

Met Pitcher Seaver Is NL's Rookie of Year

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tom Seaver, a 16-game winner for a team which won only 61 games today became the first pitcher in 10 years and the first New York Met in history to be named the National League's rookie of the year.

Seaver Winner All the Way

NEW YORK (UPI) — Boy wonder Tom Seaver nearly did it all, as he personally steered on of his teams into the Rose Bowl but couldn't get the other one into the World Series.

Seaver Winner All the Way

Hughes' record of 16-4 was better than Seaver's 16-13, but there was one big difference. Hughes was pitching for the Cardinals and Seaver for the Mets and that's about the same difference there is between going to war with a popgun or with a 175-millimeter cannon.

Seaver attends Southern California and the way he got the Trojans into the Rose Bowl was by routing them there. For that he gets nothing.

But for winning 16 games last summer for the 10th place New York Mets he gets substantially more.

They interrupted the 24-year-old right-hander smack in the middle of his breakfast to give him the news and he didn't mind at all because they told him he had been named National League Rookie-of-the-Year by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Seaver set club records of 16 victories, 18 complete games answered. "I thought about 20, but I want to win 19 first. I'd like to win about 35 if you wanna know the truth."

The Pampa Daily News

A Watchful Newspaper
EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license, nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself. No more, no less. It is thus consistent with the Human Relations Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

GM Suit and Expediency

The Wall Street Journal has disclosed — and the Justice Department has grudgingly acknowledged — that an anti-trust complaint of some 140 pages lies fallow in department files until Mr. Johnson decides whether it is politically expedient to file it.

The burden of the allegations appears to be that General Motors is too big. It cannot be argued that GM sells all the cars, or, in the alternate, that the mere size of GM has driven all competitors out of business. These facts simply do not obtain.

But GM does have 52 per cent of the automobile business and mergers have been "horizontal" and well as "vertical" over the past 30 years. The most compelling and obvious fact is that nothing forces 52 per cent of the market on GM except it appears to make cars which, in the judgment of 52 percent of car-buyers, represents the best value in a free market.

The man who wishes to buy a Ford, Chrysler or American Motors product — to say nothing of the foreign brands — has only to hop down to the corner dealer and express an interest. The biggest of GM does not coerce him into buying a Chevy.

These are quite obvious facts. The only basis on which such a suit could be maintained would be on the premise that big is synonymous with evil. This shoddy piece of unreason has been discredited in the eyes of all but the most determinedly blind. One has only to imagine the price of a "cheap" car if, instead of being made by the millions, they were wrought in limited editions. A Mustang, for instance, sells for $8,000 in France because the tariff is set high enough to prevent mass-producing Ford from taking all the business away from the French.

Curiously, not even the largest business — with the exception of one which holds a government-enforced monopoly — is more than a paper dragon. The two most powerful forces in America today are exempt from anti-trust. Unions and the government itself. Consider, if you will, the case of General Motors with 52 percent of the car business last year. (This year it may be more or less, depending on the vagaries of the whimsical public.) What a priddling thing 52 per cent is compared with the 100 per cent control which the union exercises over all auto workers and the 100 per cent control which the government exercises over the rules of competition.

Those are the two great monopolists — the government and the unions. The stockholders of GM, to be brutal elect a management, which, like the kings of England, reign but do not rule. Walter Reuther sets the wages, the hours, the conditions of apprenticeship and seniority, the use of automated equipment, pension funds, fringe benefits of all kinds. The $750,000 a year president of GM doesn't have a tenth of the authority over his company that Walter Reuther does. Is the department considering an anti-trust suit against the union? Of course not. Unions are exempt.

We have approached a new sort of 100 per cent American fascism in the business world. Under the Mussolini and Hitlerian concept, fascism permitted the private ownership of basic facilities but the control was entirely in the government. In contradistinction to the competitive, and hated, Soviet concept of state ownership management.

In the United States, ownership of industry remains in the hands of the stockholders (they have pretty pieces of paper to prove it and trade for other pieces of paper) but control of industry is in the hands of a partnership of monopolists: the unions and the government. If it is politically expedient — and there are opinions both ways on this — Mr. Johnson may authorize the filing of the suit. It will go down as one of the classic blunders of the Great Society.

Straight From the Shoulder

Self-criticism may be a virtue — up to a point. But, when self-criticism leads to confusion and loss of confidence, it is hard to find much virtue in it. And what is true of individuals must also be true of nations.

Self-criticism, the habit of running down and discounting the principles and institutions of our Republic may account for our seemingly aimless drift in domestic and international affairs. So far as the struggle against communism is concerned, both at home and abroad, Harilee Branch, a leading business executive and an outspoken believer in the American system, declares, "We shall never persuade 'uncommitted' people to adopt American institutions for which we ourselves, display little enthusiasm or devotion; nor shall we influence others to reject socialism if we appear willing to foster and finance socialist institutions not only abroad, but in our own land. Let's face it: We shall win this struggle only if we succeed in preserving our basic social, political, and economic precepts; and we shall lose it, regardless of apparent diplomatic or military successes, if we end up with a governmental and economic system which is merely an imitation of the one we claim to resist."

Why Not Taxation Equality

As people brace themselves for a tax increase, quite logically there is renewed discussion of how to plug tax loopholes. The idea seems to be to placate voters, who must soon pay higher taxes, by conducting a campaign to tighten up the laws to prevent anyone escaping his share of the tax burden, which is all well and good. But, there is one glaring omission so far in all plans to plug tax loopholes: Nothing has been said about taxing government business enterprises that compete with taxpaying private citizens.

Most notable of these, of course, are the gigantic federal power projects. They not only escape taxes, but preempt a commercial service that would otherwise fall within the province of the taxpaying investor.

owned power companies which pay heavy taxes. This combination of tax favoritism and the destruction of lucrative sources of tax revenue has cost U. S. taxpayers billions of dollars. If our national legislators are serious about closing "tax loopholes," they should address their attention to the privileged public power projects.

Educational Competition

Bearing in mind the threatened mass strike of Florida school teachers if the Governor doesn't seek greatly enlarged funds for pay raises, the taxpayers should appreciate the danger that lies in the public school monopoly of education.

Americans, who have become aware of the menace posed by union monopolies in many areas of national life, generally do not realize that publicly-run schools form a monopoly in the education field in many parts of the country. Barron's Financial Weekly recently performed a public service by pointing out this monopolistic condition and citing the evils that result from it.

One of the reasons that a number of U. S. communities are having trouble with teacher strikes and boycotts is that the public school monopoly has been taken for granted. It is widely assumed that the present way of spending public funds for elementary and high school education is the only way to spend them. This is not the case, however. Practical alternatives exist, and simply await exploration by progressive communities.

In considering the public school monopoly, the meaning of the term should be understood in the specific situation. It means that in most American communities parents of moderate income don't have an option in choosing a school for their children. Either the children go to public school or they don't get an education. Church schools are few, except for parents with very good incomes.

It is no wonder, then, that the administrators and teachers in public schools — no matter how good and sincere they may be — feel that they enjoy a monopoly.

If there were only one company in the United States manufacturing automobiles, the administrators of that company understandably would have a high and mighty attitude toward the people who wanted to obtain automobiles. They would have a take-it-or-leave-it attitude. Basically, that is the trouble with the educational bureaucracy in this country. They believe that the public doesn't have any redress, and, as a matter of hard fact, it doesn't in most instances. If a parent isn't satisfied with public schooling, he can't get anything better without heavy financial sacrifice.

Yet this shouldn't be the case. The taxpayers should have options in schooling arrangements. Consider how much better American automobiles are because there is competition among manufacturers. Consider, too, how much better the public schools would be if other types of schools had more support from school patrons.

Barron's Financial Weekly, in discussing the need for competition in the elementary and high school education field, cited the possibility of public assistance to parents so that they could make their own choice of the schools they wanted their children to attend. In effect, the parents would receive a stated amount in public funds, and then would assign those school funds to the school of their choice.

This principle is a familiar and accepted one on the level of higher education. The G. I. Bill of Rights worked this way after World War II, and is working that way today for veterans of the Vietnam war. The veteran student has been financially assisted, but he has freedom of choice in the college he attends.

Several years ago, a few Southern states tried to enact similar legislation under the tuition grant program. Again, the idea was to give parents freedom of choice. The plan had little success at the time because of fierce national and pressure group opposition. The pressure for forced integration was very strong, and the states didn't have an adequate opportunity to make the case for tuition grants in a climate of calm and fairness.

Now, however, the time may be approaching for a fresh attempt to establish tuition scholarships as a basic principle of American education. As the education monopoly gets more and more out of hand, with teacher strikes and boycotts growing in number and frequency, the public may be ready to break up this monopoly.

Q'mon, Doc. Give Us—

INDIVIDUALISM — FOR ADULTS ONLY!

I know a great many people who call themselves "students of liberty." They've studied philosophy, history, economics and a good deal more. They think of themselves as individualists — independent, self-reliant types. But when it comes to their children, you'd think conformity and blind obedience to authority were exalted virtues!

One such self-proclaimed libertarian recently told me that he would not permit his six-year-old son to wear his hair long. I asked what reason he gave the boy. "I'm his father and I say no long hair; that is reason enough for me." That is what he said, this intellectual student of logic and I could stare at him in silent stupefaction.

But I know what I should have said: How do you reconcile your commitment to reason with your arbitrary ruling against long hair? Are you aware of the contradiction between your belief in independence and your refusal to let your son make a decision for himself? How do you expect the boy to learn self-responsibility when you won't let him act on his own judgment?

And I should have said: Perhaps if you let him make a harmless decision for himself and hair length qualifies as harmless — he'll be more amenable to your advice and influence when truly meaningful issues are at stake.

It's been a constant source of amazement throughout my life to observe the inhuman treatment of children by their parents. I'm referring to mental, not physical, cruelty. At the hands of their parents children suffer intimidation, accusations, irrationality, threats and injustice. If you think I'm exaggerating, here are a few examples.

"You don't appreciate all we do for you. We've sacrificed our own pleasures to give you things."
"If you don't do as we say, you can move out."
"You're lying."
"Can't you do anything right?"
"You kids are just no good."
"Tell me who did that or I'll punish all of you!"
"Don't talk to me."
"You're making a nervous wreck out of me!"
"People will say things to their children that they wouldn't dream of saying to their worst enemies. And then they wonder when the child responds in kind, what they did wrong."
"How many of us prepare ourselves for parenthood? How many have studied that enormously difficult and challenging job? You can attend a school to learn anything from Ancient Cuneiform to Oriental Flower Arranging. Every book store provides an endless variety of instructive literature, from Computer Programming to Self-Taught to Window-Box Marijuana-Growing. But we presume to be experts in the art and science of raising children."
The results, in terms of confused and unhappy young people, indicate that we're not

Mysterious Reference in Oswald 'Last Letter' To Cuban Consul's Recall Still Puzzling FBI

ROBERT ALLEN

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — Four years after the assassination of President Kennedy, the FBI is still investigating a mystery involving the contents of the last letter Lee Harvey Oswald wrote before the Dallas tragedy.

The correspondence, intercepted and read by the FBI before it arrived at its destination, was mailed to the Soviet Embassy here on November 12, 1963 — or 10 days before the assassination.

Written as a request for a Soviet visa, the letter contained a paragraph referring to the highly secret recall of a Cuban official in the Mexico City embassy days after Oswald had visited there and returned to Dallas.

The baffling question the FBI is still trying to answer is: How did Oswald learn about this official's unannounced recall?

The FBI has concluded the information would have had to come to Oswald from one of three sources:

(1) An informant in the Cuban Embassy in Mexico City who contacted Oswald after he returned to the U.S.; (2) the Central Intelligence Agency; or (3) the KGB, the Soviet secret police.

Significantly, the FBI inquiry ascertained that CIA and KGB operators in Mexico City learned of the official's recall at approximately the same time and only a week before Oswald wrote his letter, containing the following paragraph:

"Of course the Soviet Embassy was not at fault, they were, as I say unprepared, the Cuban Consul was guilty of a gross breach of regulations. I am glad he has since been replaced."

THE CIA'S REPORT — During its investigation of the Kennedy assassination, the Warren Commission dissected one inquiry to the CIA to determine where Oswald might have obtained the information. It produced negative results.

The CIA's memorandum to the commission, now declassified and on file in the National Archives, states:

"We surmise that the reference in Oswald's 9 November letter to a man who has since been replaced must refer to Cuban Consul Eusebio Azque, who left Mexico for Cuba on permanent transfer on 18 November, 1963, four days before the assassination."

Azque was scheduled to leave in October but did not leave until 18 November. We do not know who might have told Oswald that Azque was to be replaced."

After receiving this reply from the CIA, the Warren Commission's staff made no further inquiry on the Azque reference, but centered their probe on the circumstances under which the letter was prepared and later discovered.

THE COMMISSION'S FINDING — The commission's inquiry into the Oswald letter, most details of which were buried in the 26 volumes of testimony, revealed that Mrs. Ruth Paine, on whose typewriter the final draft was made, and Marina Oswald, knew of the letter and its contents before it was mailed.

Mrs. Paine testified Oswald typed the letter while spending the November 9 weekend at her residence with his wife. After observing the letter when Oswald was not around, Mrs. Paine said she copied it. The commission's record shows she turned the copy over to the FBI on November 23, the day after the assassination.

An FBI report on file in the National Archives, which has been recently declassified, notes that the agency started its investigation immediately on intercepting Oswald's letter after it was mailed on November 12 in Irving, Texas.

The Manion Forum

By MARILYN MANION

The Leader of the Band — American taxpayers will be happy to know that it cost them one million dollars to defend the Pentagon from an assault by a radical mob, and to clean up the mess left behind by the motley crew of demonstrators.

The million dollars is the last of the issues relating to the October 21 "march" on the Pentagon. But the huge expenditure represents the last straw to a lot of decent, patriotic and law-abiding Americans.

The issue raised by the protesters — aside from getting out of Vietnam — was "freedom of dissent." It was a false issue, hypocritically manufactured. Even before the march began, David Dellinger, the rally's sponsor, announced that his group planned to "engage in acts of civil disobedience which may very well entail action beyond the scope of the permit."

Other demonstrators proclaimed — well before the rally took place — that their intention was to disrupt the operations within the Pentagon; Dellinger at one point vowed that the marchers would "shut down the Pentagon."

The Rev. Daniel Lyons, S.J., chairman of the Free Pacific Association and author of many articles and books on Vietnam, raised some vital questions about the Pentagon march in telegrams read as follows:

"Like all thoughtful and patriotic Americans, we are sure that you are concerned with the deplorable incidents of rioting and outright sedition that took place during the anti Vietnam war demonstration in Washington on Oct. 21. . . ."

"We feel that the people of the United States are entitled to know whether this was an American demonstration or if it was sponsored by those who are furnishing arms to the North Vietnamese Communists and the Viet Cong in order to kill Americans."

"The United States should not be subject to pressure investigated, influenced and backed by our Communist enemy."

Certainly not all of the 25,000 protesters intended consciously to give aid to our Communist enemy. But despite the innocence of individual members of the mob, the end result of the affair was detrimental to the United States. Pravda observed that the United States Government "betrays fear of widespread opposition from its own people because it used troops to protect the Pentagon. The rally gave Pravda the perfect opening for such a comment. If the Pentagon had been left unprotected, and if it had been invaded by the mob, Pravda would have had an equally perfect opening to rejoice on the success of a revolution in America, and on the inability of the U.S. Government to protect itself. In other words, we were damned if we did and damned if we didn't. What sort of an American would place his nation's prestige in such a hopeless position?"

What sort of American? David Dellinger, the Chairman of the National Mobilization Committee To End The War In Vietnam — David Dellinger, who met with North Vietnamese Communists and Viet Cong leaders in Czechoslovakia last month. Who is, according to the House

Committee on Un-American Activities, "a self-proclaimed pacifist, a defender of Castro's regime in Cuba, a supporter of the Fair Play for Cuba Committee and similar groups. Last fall he made a world tour which included visits to Moscow, Peking and Hanoi. He visited the last two named Communist capitals despite the fact that the State Department had not validated his passport for travel to Red China or North Vietnam."

Such were the folks who planned to attack on the Pentagon. With citizens like them, who needs enemies?

Pull Up A Chair

By FRANK JAY MARKEY

Capt. Charles Boycott gave his name to a single word in the English language in an inglorious way. In 1881 he was a rent collector in Ireland for absentee English landlords who extorted exorbitant rents from the impoverished tenant farmers and evicted them when the rents were not paid. He soon became infamous for the cruel and inhuman manner in which he performed his duties. As a result, the Irish farmers isolated him. No man would render him any service in any way or take notice of him. Finally, he imported laborers to farm the fields, but the Irish made the situation so intolerable he returned to England defeated and ruined, leaving behind his name as a synonym for being ostracized. It was a fate he richly deserved.

Today's smile: A college student wrote to his parents telling them he was majoring in history and government, but added that he was dropping a course in political economy. It's a useless course," he wrote, "because no politician dares to economize these days."

Public interest in astronomy has grown tremendously in recent years, due in large part to the space programs. It's estimated there are more than 300 amateur astronomy clubs now active in the U. S. with more than 12,000 members. All of which means sales of telescopes have risen 30 per cent every year for the past few years. And, like the coin and stamp collectors and other hobbyists, the fledgling astronomers have their own monthly magazine, "Sky and Telescope" with a circulation of 40,000. In addition, places like the Hayden Planetarium in New York City are attracting record crowds of interested stargazers.

Thoughts while shaving: Ever hear of David Rice Atchison? Well, he was a U.S. Senator from Missouri, who once served as President of the U.S. for a single day. On Sunday, March 4, 1849, James Knox Polk believed he completed his term as chief executive when Congress adjourned at 6:30 a. m., and he so noted it in his diary. Vice President George M. Dallas had resigned as presiding officer of the Senate two days earlier and Senator Atchison had been elected president pro tempore of the Senate and held that office when Polk closed his term. Zachary Taylor's inauguration did not take place until noon on Monday, March 5, which legally made Atchison the nation's chief executive for a single day. Atchison noted it on his tombstone. . . . You never know what the public will like. Some of the educational TV stations around the country are luring audiences from the networks with a program called "The Toy That Grew Up." It's a full hour of old-time silent movies and features such hits of yesteryear as "The Big Parade" starring John Gilbert and "The Perils of Pauline," with Pearl White, the serial queen. Other stars on this program include William S. Hart, Tom Mix, Colleen Moore, Bessie Love and others who delighted your grandparents back in the good old days before the world changed. . . . The Boston (Mass.) HERALD TRAVELER headlined a story: "Letter Carriers Are Getting Cars in the Suburbs." Maybe that will put some zip into the zip code. Nothing else has.

Country Editor speaking: "The hangover you get after a night on the town makes you wish all those swallows would go to Capistrano, and stay there."

Wit and Whimsy

Joe — There was a story afloat down town today that Jones was embarrassed on account of the fall of May wheat.

Jim — You don't say; who is she?

Hal — Why don't you like girls?
Cal — They're too biased.

Hal — Biased?
Cal — Yes, bias this and bias that — until I'm busted.

chives here show Garrison's investigators recently combed the files for information about the Oswald letter and about how he learned of Consul Eusebio Azque's unannounced recall.

One witness who appeared in recent weeks before Garrison's grand jury probe of the Kennedy assassination, has reported to a government agency that he was quizzed extensively about Oswald's letter. Several questions, he said, sought information designed to link Oswald with several Cubans reputedly employed by the CIA. Senate Democratic Whip Russell Long, La., a close friend of the New Orleans district attorney, is saying privately, Garrison told him the "Oswald letter is a very important part of my investigation."

NEW YORK (UPI)—W.E. Hutton & Co. says that with the market now in a period of uncertainty, it is advising traders to "wait until the dust settles" before taking any action. It adds that price declines in Monday's session stemming from the devaluation of the pound and the discount rate increase by the Federal Reserve Board probably will be recouped in later sessions.

Walston & Co. says the stock market Monday behaved "normally" under the circumstances, since it uses any "excuse" in the news to do whatever it would have done anyway. The investment firm says that with the devaluation of Britain's currency now a fact, it sees a possible "better market" in the future.

Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith Inc. notes the market has been able to weather other "crisis" money situations. It points out that when Britain devalued the pound in 1949, the market took a dip but recovered. It also says an increase in the Federal Reserve discount rate two years ago was followed by a market decline, but that the market went back up the following day.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — We read the network press releases: —From ABC-TV: "There's nothing like real humility. Regis Philbin, announcer on the Joey Bishop show, was highly complimentary toward Bing Crosby's singing ability recently when the great crooner guested on the show. 'Bing is the only one I know who sings 'Pennies From Heaven' better than me,' Regis fearlessly admitted." —From NBC-TV: "Joe Lombardi, special effects man for the 'I Spy' series, claims one of the most unusual rifles in existence. It has a rectangular barrel which Joe had made for firing knives." —From CBS-TV: "I'm very lucky to have a job in show business," says Carol Burnett. "You don't see many want ads for actors or actresses." —From ABC-TV: "The writers who work on Joey Bishop's show learned recently that a comedian is a poor subject for a practical joke. 'The other day math, star quarterback and swinging bachelor, welcomes Lee Bailey and viewers to his plush East Side apartment for a good company' visit on Thursday, Nov. 23." —From NBC-TV: "Teddy Quinn, featured regular as Sandy on the 'Accidental Family' series, has written a song which his talent representatives consider good enough for marketing. Titled 'Too Many, Too Much,' it is described by eight-year-old Teddy as an "anti-protest song." —From CBS-TV: "Take it from Ark Linkletter: It's farther from the waltz to the twist than it is from Hollywood to Heidelberg." —From ABC-TV: "The writers who work on Joey Bishop's show learned recently that a comedian is a poor subject for a practical joke. WINDS UP VISIT COPENHAGEN (UPI) — United States stops bombing the north. "I have no doubt that the United States government is official visit to Denmark also aware of this fact," he Monday by stating the Vietnam said.

Look at this '68 "youngmobile" from Oldsmobile.

Wouldn't it look great in your driveway? This new Cutlass S has a way of making things look younger. Even driveways. That's because of all the young ideas we built into it. A bigger 350-cubic-inch V-8, for instance. (Or, if you prefer, an Action-Line 6.) And a torsion coil spring suspension that makes it easy to cut and turn in tight places. And you can order a whole carful of young-it-up accessories like bucket seats, stick-shift or stereo. But if you think Cutlass S is young all over, don't forget that it is Olds all over, too. Olds quality, Olds engineering and the new GM safety features are all standard.
