IN 92ND CONGRESS

Young Demos Gain Key Committee Assignments

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Reform-minded young Democrats, backed by the new House leadership, have gained key committee assignments as work continued today on organizing the 92nd Congress.

New Speaker Carl Albert took a direct role in the work on the "committee on committees" in expanding committee sizes to include young liberals on such key panels as appropriations and armed services.

The Republican counterpart of the committee on committees was organized Wednesday and planned its first meeting today to make panel assignments. Each party will hold a separate caucus of their full House membership to vote final approval of the individual committee actions.

The new trend does not mean liberals will gain voting majorities in those committees involved; but it represents a foot in the door for young members in their drive for a greater voice in the House.

The trend was most apparent in the Appropriations Committee, which already had three vacancies and was expanded to make three more.

Agnew: 77% Of People Favor Nixon's Revenue Sharing Project

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew says the President realizes he is going to have a rough time getting his $16 billion revenue sharing plan through Congress.

"But I think with the public sentiment running the way it is, about 77 per cent favorable according to the Gallup poll... I think we'll be able to bring the program about through persuading the Congress that it is the right thing to do," Agnew said.

The vice president stumped for the administration's revenue sharing proposal in appearances Wednesday at regional meetings of the National Association of Counties in Atlanta and Kansas City.

Agnew said one of the biggest obstacles toward getting the plan through Congress is House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Wilbur Mills, D-Ark. The bill must go through Mills' committee.

Agnew said Mills is a "very great power in these financial matters."

Mills claims Nixon's plan will lead to higher federal taxes, increase the federal debt, benefit wealthier cities and hurt the urban areas which need the money most.

"We have some very formidable opposition in Mr. Mills' Agnew said.

"But I'm hopeful that as we develop the program and discuss it and as public opinion becomes well known that we'll be able to convince Mr. Mills that this program is a workable one and a proper one for the country."

Agnew said most of the specifics on the revenue sharing plan will be made public in a few weeks.

"I can tell you that roughly 48 per cent of the money will be passed through mandatorily to the local governments and roughly 52 per cent on the average will be retained by the state governments," the vice president said.

Rogers Called About U.S. Role In Cambodia

Three Hospitalized Following Wreck

Three area residents were admitted to Highland General Hospital at 9:30 p.m. yesterday following a car-pickup collision on Highway 152, four miles west of Pampa.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell McConnell, both 55, of Pampa, were in a car which was in collision with a pickup driven by James Carroll, 22, of Skellytown.

The three accident victims were admitted to the hospital for treatment.

A hospital spokesman reported that the three victims were in good condition this morning.

Larry Dunham, Department of Public Safety patrolman, investigated the accident. No charges had been filed early today pending further investigation.

Senators Want To Know Exactly 'What's Going On'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee called Secretary of State William P. Rogers to a closed meeting today to find out what is going on in Cambodia, and whether U.S. military action there violates congressional restrictions voted last year.

"The purpose of this meeting is to find out what's going on out there," a committee spokesman said. "We know there have been Americans on the ground in Cambodia. We saw the pictures in the paper."

Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird gave his version of U.S. involvement in Cambodia at a closed meeting Wednesday with the Senate Armed Services Committee.

An amendment by Sens. John Sherman, Cooper, R-Ky., and Frank Church, D-Idaho, prohibits the use of ground combat forces or military advisers in Cambodia. Laird testified there had been no violation of either the language or the intent of the amendment.

Foreign Relations Committee members wanted specific information from Rogers about eyewitness reports that American servicemen were on the ground in Cambodia, citing pictures of soldiers dressed in civilian clothes to back up their charges.

When Laird was asked about the multi-clad servicemen, he said the American ambassador to Cambodia, Emory C. Swank, had requested the attire for members of a U.S. contingent delivering equipment to Phnom Penh.

Laird left the impression with reporters at an impromptu news conference in a Senate corridor that he was not advised of the civilian dress until after the mission was completed. He said he thought the men should have been in uniform.

Special Forces Operations In Viet Terminated

SAIGON (UPI) — The U.S. command today announced the closeout of all Special Forces operations in South Vietnam and said the Green Beret, symbol of the elite troopers, will disappear from the battlefields of Indochina.

The last major Green Beret installation in Vietnam, the 5th Special Forces headquarters at Nha Trang, ceased operations Jan. 15 after nearly a decade. Spokesmen did not specify when all the troops would be out of the country.

Military spokesmen also said Communist troops violated Wednesday's 24-hour Tet lunar new-year cease-fire 78 times, American casualties during the day-long stand-down were a low for a Vietnam cease-fire—one American killed and three wounded.

Mailman Says He Spent 3 Years As Special Agent For U.S. Army

HOUSTON (UPI) — A mailman said Wednesday he spent three years as an Army special intelligence agent gathering information on persons regarded as subversive by the federal government. These "subversives" included folk singer Pete Seeger, boxer Muhammad Ali and two members of the Texas Legislature.

Walter B. Birdwell of Humansville, Mo., said he was a member of the 112th Army Intelligence Corps from 1964 through 1967. He said he was stationed during these years in Austin, San Antonio and Houston.

Birdwell, who is now associated with the Mexican-American Youth Organization (MAYO) and sports a beard, appeared Wednesday with his attorney Mel S. Friedman.

"I dissuaded (Birdwell) from coming forward several months ago because he was under indictment for the school board for his connection in the school board riot," Friedman said.

Birdwell was present during a MAYO disruption at a school board meeting last year. The case was a felony malicious mischief case and was dismissed earlier this week.

Birdwell said during the time he worked for Army intelligence he gathered information on many local activists and two legislators — Sen. Barbara Jordan, D-Houston, and Rep. Curtis Graves, D-Houston. Both are Negroes.

"I would go to demonstrations, rallies and meetings, take notes on how many were there, what was said and the signs on the placards," Birdwell said. "I feel now it is very dangerous because they are keeping records on persons who are not dangerous. They can be very damaging to people seeking jobs at plants with government contracts."

Birdwell said he was also asked to investigate former heavyweight champ Muhammad Ali; Frank Converse of Houston, whom the Army thought was connected with the Ku Klux Klan; Houston defense lawyer Will Gray; Ben Levy, formerly an attorney with the American Civil Liberties Union; John Stanford of San Antonio, whom the Army thought was head of the Texas communist party; and Lee Otis Johnson, a militant Negro now serving a 30-year prison term for possessing a marijuana cigarette.

Birdwell also said the Army investigated Seeger. He said the notation on Seeger's file was "communist folk singer."

Birdwell said the Army ordered him to spy on many persons affiliated with the Students for a Democratic Society at the University of Texas. One of those persons was Gary Thayer, now a newsmen for Pacifica Radio in Houston and present at Birdwell's news conference.

"I don't know what action we can take at this time, but perhaps we can seek a federal court order for discovery of files to see if the Army is abusing congressional powers by tampering with civilian privileges," Friedman said.

"The law suit would ask the Army to show justification for keeping files on civilians," Friedman said. "Similar tactics of the Gestapo in Germany were used to interfere in people's personal lives."

But Friedman also said a suit might not be filed because Birdwell now works for the Post Office Department. He said Birdwell had reason to "fear reprisal."

"After all, he is a government employee," the attorney said.

Birdwell estimated there were between 2,000 and 3,000 index cards on persons in San Antonio including "a file kept on every member of the Unitarian Church."

He said there were only 80 to 90 files in Houston and most of the Austin material was kept in San Antonio at Ft. Sam Houston. The Houston files, he said, are on the sixth floor of the new federal court house building.

"Barbara Jordan had a file one half inch thick in 1967," Birdwell said.

"Those files are now four-years-old," Friedman said. "They have had three to four years to do a better job, make the files thicker."

Apollo 14 Flight Countdown Sails Without Hitch

By AL ROSSITER JR.
UPI Space Writer

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — The countdown sailed without a hitch past the midway point today and weathermen added to the wave of optimism by forecasting satisfactory conditions for Sunday afternoon's launch of Apollo 14 to the moon.

Partly cloudy skies and cool temperatures were predicted for the 3:23 p.m. EST blastoff with 12 mile-an-hour winds sweeping in off the ocean. Acceptable conditions also were forecast for ocean recovery areas.

Alan B. Shepard, Stuart A. Roosa and Edgar D. Mitchell inspected the monstrous 28-inch camera and other gear that will be stowed in their command ship cabin and then returned to spacecraft trainers to polish their lunar orbital flying skills.

Apollo 14's backup astronauts — Eugene A. Cernan, Ronald E. Evans and Joe Henry Engle — maintained the training pace set by the prime pilots and, for the first time, could step in at the eleventh hour and replace the prime pilots if necessary to meet the launch date.

"It's been theoretical in the past and it's a reality now," said a space agency official.

Donald K. Slayton, chief of the astronaut corps, explained that Cernan, Evans and Engle are "up to the same readiness" as Shepard, Roosa and Mitchell and could substitute as an entire crew if they had to.

$27 MILLION EXPECTED

Gray County's Farm Income Projected To Double By 1976

Gray County will play an important role in the newly-launched program of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service to increase Texas agricultural income more than a billion dollars by 1976.

Dr. John E. Henderson, director of the Extension Service, has announced a goal of $3.76 billion in total agricultural receipts in Texas by the end of the 1976 crop year, not including crop payments.

The goal was determined, according to Foster Whaley, Gray County agricultural agent, from projections made following a study by Extension Service specialists and individuals in the agriculture industry.

Whaley said today his findings and those of county producers and business men warrant a projection of Gray County agricultural income to be $27 million by 1976.

The county agent said this would double the county's average agricultural income for 1968-69 that totaled slightly less than $12 million.

Whaley stated the county's two commercial cattle feedlots and the new 1,000-head swine unit near Lefors will be the big factors in the increase for Gray County. Wheat and milo will be the other two major enterprises, he added.

Whaley said a committee of agricultural economists with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service studied past production records and made statewide projections for 1976 based on current trends and expected improvement in technology and marketing.

Projections on an individual county basis were made by a Program Building Committee made up of businessmen and producers. The expectations were then organized along county Extension district and economic area lines to give producers across the state something to shoot for, Whaley explained.

In addition annual goals were determined for the various agricultural commodity groups to allow a yearly measure of the programs success. Texas presently accounts for about five percent of the total national agricultural cash receipts. But, to achieve the goal of 3.76 in '76 the state must claim almost ten percent of the projected national increase in the coming year.

Extension specialists and county agricultural agents are scheduling meetings with producers throughout the state to help them with new achievements, advancements in technology, and marketing in their particular areas.

One of these meetings is scheduled at 7 p.m. today in the Show Barn at Recreation Park here in Pampa.

Three speakers are scheduled to discuss wheat and milo production, irrigation well development and the latest weed control practices in the Texas Panhandle.

Milwaukee Police Return To Work

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Policemen have returned to their beats after a sick call work stoppage which extended over six days. Many are unhappy about it.

"We're called pigs and we're treated like pigs," one said.

"The city didn't bargain in good faith and they lied about how much fringe benefits cops get," another complained.

"You can call it a dictatorship," a third said.

The work stoppage, which began Friday night, ended Wednesday after Walworth County Circuit Court Judge Ernst J. Watts signed an injunction ordering the 2,047 members of the Professional Policemen's Protective Association (PPPA) back to work.

Watts scheduled a court session for later today to determine if contract talks could be resumed.

The bank, which is one of the defendants in the suit, folded Monday.

Reports the next day revealed three state bank examiners were asked to resign recently because of personal loans they received through an officer of the bank.

Harris said Wednesday it "appears evident" state banking officials "have not met their responsibilities and have not completely scrutinized the activities of certain chartered banks in Texas."

Meanwhile Rep. Maurice Angly, R-Austin, called for the appointment of a House investigating committee to look into his charges the state treasurer gave the Sharpstown Bank "preferential treatment" in deposits of state funds.

Angly suggested investigators find out why the state treasurer had $4 million in non-interest-bearing accounts at the Sharpstown Bank and why state officials were granted large, unsecured loans.

Mutscher is one of the officials who received loans from Sharpstown to finance stock purchases in 1960.

Rep. Curtis Graves, D-Houston, was to present a resolution Wednesday demanding Mutscher and others involved in the stock deals give up their leadership posts. Graves postponed the action, however, and said he wanted more time for the public to "respond."

Rotary Speaker Tells Why Auto Insurance Is Up

The next time a Pampa Rotarian gets his automobile insurance statement, he should have a little better understanding of why it went up.

Wayne DeGrassi, a special agent of the Trinity Universal Insurance Co., was the luncheon speaker for the local service club Wednesday in Coronado Inn. DeGrassi is president of the West Texas Fieldmen's Association.

In a speech titled "Automobile Insurance," the insurance company spokesman explained the many areas affecting automobile insurance rates and how inflation has affected those areas in the past 10 to 20 years.

"We have cars, highways and licenses," said DeGrassi stating insurance companies had no control over these areas and were not asking to have control over them.

"Our companies do pay for losses from their use and actions though, he stated. In the past decade, DeGrassi stated, insurance companies have lost $2 billion in the automobile insurance area.

Donnie Jones, 2236 Aspen, reported to police yesterday that nearly $300 worth of tapes and a tape player had been stolen from his car sometime between 8:25 a.m. and 9:30 a.m. yesterday while the vehicle was parked at Pampa High School.

The tape player reported missing was valued at $80. A tape caddy worth $12 was taken as well as 22 tapes worth $200.

Car, Truck Tags Will Go On Sale In Skellytown

SKELLYTOWN (Spl)—Car and truck tags for 1971 will go on sale Feb. 1 in Skellytown at the residence of Mrs. Frank Hewitt, S. Main St. This is the same location where tags were available last year. The plates may be purchased between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. each day.

Motor vehicle owners began receiving the new computer-type registration cards last week from Austin. The renewal applications are arriving in long narrow envelopes marked for identification. The new type card may be presented at the office with the designated fee. This applies to vehicle owners with a title on file. Owners of newly purchased cars will be required to bring the title and registration receipt when applying for tags.

Venezuelan Ships Towed To Harbor In Galveston

GALVESTON (UPI)—Two Venezuelan ships that collided and locked together earlier this week 88 miles off the Texas Gulf Coast limped into Galveston Harbor Wednesday, escorted by four U.S. Coast Guard ships.

The crash Monday in heavy fog left them welded together, but choppy seas Wednesday wrenched them apart.

The more severely damaged Anzoategui was partially flooded, but it made it to shore without sinking. The 420-foot Roraima, which had rammed the other ship, was able to run under its own steam after the two ships separated.

The crash killed Rafael Salazar, 42, of Margarita, an island off the coast of Venezuela. Another crewman, Tereso Pena, 38, of Maiqueta, La Guaira, Venezuela, was injured and taken to Ben Taub Hospital in Houston.

The Roraima crashed three-fourths of the way through the Anzoategui almost head-on, leaving a 55-foot gash. Crewmen on the 382-foot Anzoategui abandoned ship, 20 going to the Roraima and 15 boarding a Norwegian ship.

Senate To Debate Registration Extension Bill

AUSTIN (UPI) — A bill to extend Sunday's voter registration deadline by one month appears headed for a quick and favorable decision.

The Senate was scheduled to debate the bill today. It has the backing of one state government leader who is complaining of the light registrations so far.

The deadline for registering to vote is Sunday. But if this bill, sponsored by Sen. Joe Bernal, D-San Antonio, passes the legislature and is signed by the governor, the deadline will be extended 28 days.

The Senate Privileges and Elections Committee approved Bernal's bill Wednesday sending it to the full Senate today for debate.

Secretary of State Martin Dies Jr. and AFL-CIO President Hank S. Brown testified in favor of the extension because it will permit more persons to vote. Dies said the registration figures so far this year are "unusually light."

The Senate passed a bill Wednesday to require county officials to sell copies of voter registration lists at costs. The proposal by Sen. Mike McKool, D-Dallas, prohibits counties from trying to pass on costs of actual voter registration to purchasers of the list. A University of Texas government professor testifying in favor of the bill said it will assist efforts to get more persons to participate in the political process.

The Senate also approved a bill by Sen. Jim Bates, D-Edinburg, to change the name of Pan American College to Pan American University. The bill now goes to the House.

Sen. Jack Hightower, D-Vernon, introduced a bill Wednesday to abolish "informal" common-law marriages.

Makeup Makes Role Changes Adventurous

Like fashion, makeup is part of your social role playing. You have clothes that are right for dinner at your mother-in-law's and others for dinner for two at a great restaurant. So why shouldn't you have different faces, too?

Like one for an eight o'clock class and another for a fantasy evening mood or for when you're feeling like an adventurer? That's why you need some of the prettiest new Fall beauty ideas and to learn how to adapt them.

Do think of yourself as a painter who knows her art and wouldn't dream of starting up on any unprepared surface, whether it's wood, plaster, canvas or skin. You have to prime it. A moisturizer does this for skin, helps makeup go on smoothly as well as protecting it from the environment and from losing moisture.

Do keep your eyebrows a shade or two paler than your hair so that your eyes and mouth can come forward. Dark heavy eyebrows are overpowering to the new makeup looks.

Do begin to get your eye accustomed to more color on the mouth. It's never a deep opaque color, the idea is sheer transparent color with depth. Think of lips wet with wine or the stain of fresh berry juice. Use lip gloss under or over these new colors to soften them. Gloss put on first will have the most color-softening effect.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Methods To Clean Up Chewing Gum Mess
By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — Please tell O. R., the non-American who is not used to chewing gum, to try rubbing the glove box of that new car, the carpet and shoe with ice cubes to remove the gum. (Polly's note—Carefully lift as much of the gum as possible with a dull knife and then hold the ice cube on the gum until it hardens. Then it should roll off with pressure from the fingers.) I have found this to be very effective.

When making anything with nylon net, try pinning it together with invisible hair pins.

A.M.S., a constant reader.

DEAR POLLY — O.R. could remove that chewing gum by scraping or pulling off as much as possible and then removing the rest with a rag dampened with cleaning fluid. Sponging or soaking with the cleaning fluid will soften the bulk if you do not wish to scrape. Lighter fluid also will work if no cleaning fluid is available.

MRS. F. W. B.

Polly's Problem
DEAR POLLY — We are newcomers to this part of Texas and are not familiar with mildew. We would like to know the best way to remove it from woodwork, walls, etc., and then how to prevent its return.

JEAN
DEAR POLLY — I used to find it hard to move a heavy basket of wash or other clumsy, bulky things until my husband took the motor out of an old lawn mower. Now I put whatever I have to move on the mower and it is no trouble to do what I have to do without waiting for my husband's help. It is very easy to push the mower wherever I want it and excellent for taking a wash

Contour boot trees shape the boot scene. They come in lightweight red plastic and keep boots standing upright, so they're not toppling over and creating a mild state of chaos in the closet. The trees—called Dunks Contour Boot Trees—are countoured to keep boots fresh, well-aired and wrinkle-free when not in use.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are in the carpet business. We do beautiful work and our prices are right. When so-called "friends" show us carpet they have installed in their homes, and they ask us what we think of it, what should we say? (They even have the nerve to tell us how much they paid for it.)

young mothers wouldn't want to be bothered with breast-feeding, but I don't mind because I think it's healthier for the baby. My husband doesn't appreciate it at all, in fact, I think he'd rather I put the baby on the bottle. He has as much as said so.

in pajama bottoms and my wife says she'd rather feel my hairy chest against her cheek than the collar of a mink coat.
—HAIRY AND HAPPY

Nine times out of 10, it is a poor job of installation, and they paid too much. I always tell them the truth. My husband says that I should never knock the competition, regardless, otherwise it will sound like sour grapes.

The problem is that when I feed the baby and my husband has some of his friends here he asks me to go into another room. I don't see why. There is nothing bad or sexy about a mother nursing her child. He says he doesn't like for me to feed the baby that way in front of his friends and I am hurt. Do you see anything wrong with it? Please settle this as I think he is wrong and he thinks I am.

DEAR ABBY: I think it was very considerate of that hairy husband to shave his chest for his wife. My husband is hairy as an ape and he refuses to do anything about it. We sleep spoon-fashion with me in front, and sometimes I just about go crazy when his big hairy chest heaves up and down and tickles my shoulders and back—in rhythm yet! I know just how that lady must have felt.
—TICKLED PINK

These same people never even let us give them an estimate! I say why should we consider their feelings if they don't consider ours? What do you think?

—NURSING MOTHER
DEAR NURSING MOTHER: Knowing how your husband feels about it, nurse the baby in private and keep the peace.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90060. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

—CARPET PEOPLE
DEAR PEOPLE: I think your husband is right. And the same goes for people in the jewelry business, furniture business, fur business, and every other kind of business.

DEAR ABBY: A while back you had a letter from a woman who made her husband shave his chest. She must be screwy. And any man who would let his wife talk him into it must be screwy, too.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-Agers Want to Know," send $1 to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90060.

DEAR ABBY: Our first baby is seven-weeks old, and I am breast-feeding her. A lot of

I have a very hairy chest which I wouldn't shave for any amount of money. I sleep only

French Bread For Apollo 14 Crew Makes Welcome Link With Home Cooking

NORWALK, Conn. (Sp) — It had to come sooner or later. A ham salad sandwich on the moon. Sliced ham on rye to start the trip skyward.

Three varieties of fresh bread white rye and cheese, will be eaten by the Apollo 14 astronauts on their nine-day moon mission beginning Sunday. These are the same varieties supplied the Apollo 13 crew.

Every slice of bread that went up on Apollo 13 was eaten, according to the NASA food technologists. Because of the water shortage and other problems on that nearly disastrous flight, many food packages were returned unopened. But Lovell, Swigert and Haise were able to make sandwiches using peanut butter, Jelly, Cheddar cheese (all in foil packets) or tuna, chicken and ham salad spreads in zip-top cans. Bread was truly an important part of their life support system.

It's no secret that much of the food prepared for consuming in space has not been eaten. Weight losses have been recorded on every American and Russian spaceflight to date. This has greatly concerned the Apollo nutritionists.

"Man and his eating habits are not easily changed," Dr. Malcolm Smith chief of food and nutrition, NASA Manned Spacecraft Center, told scientists at the Space Food Technology Conference in Florida more than a year ago. "Good nutrition begins with good food presented to the consumer in a familiar manner."

Food is one of the few comforting ties of the astronauts to the earthly atmosphere they have temporarily forsaken. As much as possible, they want it to be like food at home.

A long-standing problem of the space food program is that many of the dehydrated foods could not be served and eaten in a familiar manner. Frequently, their flavor, appearance and texture became monotonous after several days.

White rye and a special cheese bread were aboard the Apollo 13 spacecrafts. Alan Shepard, Stu Roosa and Ed Mitchell, the Apollo 14 crew, will have the same three kinds on their flight.

of flight. Techniques for packaging fresh, specially vacuum packed bread were developed at the Manned Spacecraft Center, and a major improvement in overall menu acceptance was possible. It then remained to determine only white bread and seedless rye. The third is a special Cheddar cheese bread especially developed to lend variety to the astronauts' meals.

The white bread chosen has a particularly chewy texture, hearty flavor and home baked left leg of each man's spacesuit. The sliced cold meats are standard varieties.

By the time the astronauts get ready to eat, a few hours after liftoff, the bread and fillings will be thawed . . . "instant sandwiches" requiring sandwiches before the first moon walk. As programmed, the sandwiches made by the astronauts during the flight will be open-face, while the frozen sandwiches will contain two slices of bread each.

Chicken, ham and tuna salad processed in a new flexible "can."

Mothers aren't the only ones who have trouble planning meals! Several new items will add other touches of home to the Apollo 14 dinners — diced peaches, mixed fruit, lemon pudding and vanilla pudding, all in zip-top cans. New dehydrated items include peach ambrosia and lobster bisque in flexible "spoon-bowl" packages.

We suspect the astronauts' taste for food may run more to charcoal broiled steaks and Caesar's salad. But as Charlie Brown must have told them, you can go a long way on a good peanut butter and jelly sandwich.

FRESH BREAD IN SPACE — Apollo 14 astronauts will have a choice of fresh white, rye or cheese bread for sandwiches they will make on their trip to the Moon. Single slices will be packaged in a partial vacuum to retain freshness. Sandwich fillings to be spread with a spoon include peanut butter and jelly, Cheddar cheese spread, tuna, ham or chicken salad.

quality. Although it was developed especially for toasting, it will not be toasted in space.

All breads will be baked in pans with lids for strict volume control. This will give the slices a square shape. All will be cut one-half inch thick.

The first food eaten in space on this mission will be frozen ham or ham-and-cheese on rye sandwiches carried onto the spacecraft in a pocket on the no preparation an important consideration during the first few tense hours of flight.

Later on in the mission, the space explorers can prepare their own sandwiches from individually packed slices of fresh bread and a choice of fillings.

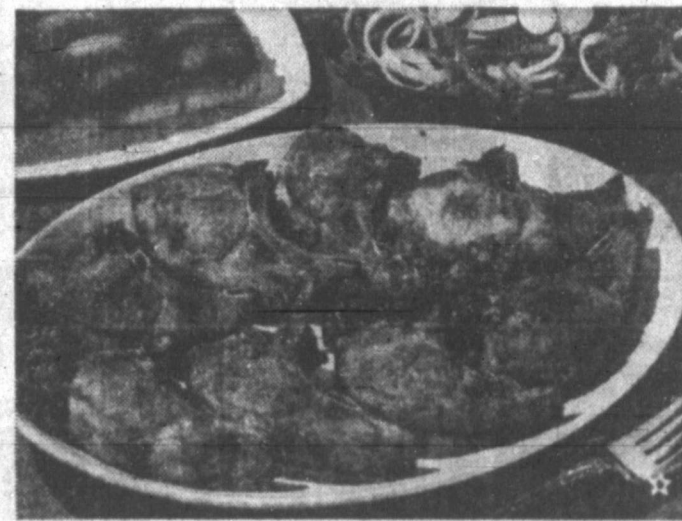

Twelve bread slices — four of each kind — will be available in the Command Module, and two slices of the rye will be in the Lunar Module for making fillings processed at hyperbaric pressures will be provided in aluminum zip-top cans. Peanut Butter, Cheddar cheese spread and jelly will be in foil packets in the snack pantry of the spacecraft for optional use. Tender Pork Chops Satisfy Appetites

THESE TENDER PORK CHOPS give double dining dividends as a savory stuffing is pocketed in each chop.

This is the era of the extra pork chop. Plentiful pork supplies permit us to be generous and provide second servings to satisfy hearty winter appetites.

Or take advantage of attractive pork prices by selecting thick chops with pockets. Not only does this provide dinners with double portions of delicious pork, but with stuffing as well. A savory bonus this will be when the pockets are filled with a blend of sausage and sweet potatoes.

Select rib chops, 1 to 1 1/2 inches thick for stuffing, advises Reba Staggs of the National Live Stock and Meat Board. Ask your meat retailer to cut pockets in chops from the rib side so they will close during cooking to seal in the stuffing.

This eliminates the need for skewers or stitches.

SWEET POTATO STUFFED PORK CHOPS

To prepare stuffing for 6 to 8 chops, cook 1/2 pound bulk pork sausage with 1/4 cup finely chopped onion and 1/2 cup chopped celery until lightly browned. Pour off drippings.

Drain 1 can (18 ounces) sweet potatoes and mash with 1/2 teaspoon salt.

Stir into sausage to blend and fill pocket of each chop with 1/4 cup of the mixture.

Brown chops in 2 tablespoons lard or drippings. Pour off drippings.

Season chops with 1 teaspoon salt and 1/2 teaspoon pepper.

Cover tightly and bake in moderate oven (350 F.) for 30 minutes. Uncover and bake 30 minutes longer or until done.

6 to 8 servings.

Host A Mothers' Coffee When School Bells Ring

THIS "Back-to-School" party isn't for students. It's for their moms.

A back-to-school coffee, planned for mid-morning on the day summertime helpers are returned to their rightful classrooms, MUST succeed. Mothers deserve a relaxing party — and the thoughtful hostess who honors them will be well schooled in accolades before noon.

Coffee, of course, will be the featured beverage, so brew plenty in your largest Party Perk. Serve a variety of fancy coffee accoutrements, such as whipped sweet cream, scalded milk kept hot on an electric trivet, and perhaps confectioners' sugar. Prepare coffee cakes and strudels a day ahead, ready to bake as guests begin arriving.

If your back-to-school gathering will include more than 3-4 friends, hiring a baby sitter to entertain your guests' pre-school children in the backyard would be especially thoughtful. (Room mothers could create enough goodwill to last all year by hostessing such a coffee.) In any case, set the party mood as extremely casual, so guests won't feel pressured to dress up on a hurried morn.

Fighters to Libya:
France has decided to go ahead with the speedy delivery of the 110 Mirage jet fighters to Libya though the Tripoli authorities now are openly hinting they do not consider as binding France's demands that the planes not be used outside of Libya, or, in other words, against Israel.

Hollywood Reports

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Despite recent expose-type books demolishing the mythological approach to sports heroes, the glorification of athletes actually seems to be increasing because of television and its business tieup, with leagues and teams. As a frank partner in athletic events is the sense that it wants them to be successful, video for the most part still is more interested in promoting sports than covering them with the tough impartiality of those with no stake in the proceedings. From a coldly commercial, very crass viewpoint, this attitude is paying off more and more handsomely for television. In the first place, many experts agree that video's live presentation of sports may be the best thing it does because these events are real, immediate and exciting.

In addition, whereas broadcasting has truly built up minor sports and leagues into enormously popular national institutions, the athletes who have been glorified now have become big television attractions in shows—and are thus, in a way, repaying video's business interest in them.

It used to be that show business personalities, many of whom are big sports buffs, used athletes as guests, and that was just about that. Nowadays, however, the ballplayers and other sports heroes are often larger celebrities, with the public—because of television. For the week ending Jan. 10, as an example, CBS-TV's "Super Comedy Bowl," an hour special with top entertainers and athletes, came in a potent fifth in the ratings.

As another example, NBC-TV's Feb. 3 "KRAFT Music Hall" features Don Rickles and a number of star athletes—among them, Alex Karras, Boog Powell, Joe Frazier, Tony Conigliaro, Victor Hadfield and Bill Russell, who is now retired from pro basketball's Boston Celtics. The show is titled "Locker-Room Follies."

Sports figures continue, of course, to get guest video roles. Lew Alcindor and Gail Goodrich do what comes naturally (portray basketball players) on the Feb. 13 episode of CBS-TV's private eye show, "Mannix." Bud Harrelson appears on Cavett's series Friday. And other upcoming Cavett guests include Johnny Bench next Monday and, on Feb. 9, Tom Seaver, Bob Griese and Gale Sayers, in a fashion show.

The syndicated video market is also fertile ground for sports idols. "Sports Challenge," for instance, is the title of a new quiz program in which two teams of famous athletes compete over questions based on film clips of memorable events in professional sports. The first show pits former Yankee greats Joe DiMaggio, Mickey Mantle and Tommy Henrich against ex-Dodger stars Duke Snider, Don Newcombe and Don Drysdale.

TV In Review

By RICK DUBROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "Alias Smith and Jones," television's first series to be influenced by the comedy-western movie "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid," had an amiable one-hour debut on ABC Thursday night.

A 90-minute preview of the new series was broadcast early this month on ABC's "Movie of the Week" and got a whopping rating with its tale of two notorious outlaws who decide to go straight because modern times and techniques are catching up with them.

As a series, though, "Alias Smith and Jones" is going to have much stiffer ratings competition because it is directly opposite NBC's Flip Wilson Show, a runaway hit in its freshman season.

The same two stars of the 90-minute preview are the headliners of the weekly version of "Alias Smith and Jones." They are Pete Duel, who once appeared in ABC's "Love on a Rooftop" series, and Ben Murphy, who bears a remarkable resemblance to Paul Newman, one of the stars of "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid."

In the debut of "Alias Smith and Jones" Thursday night, it was immediately established that the two outlaws have a promise of amnesty from a governor if they can stay out of trouble for a while. The most difficult part of this proposition for the easygoing, notorious pair is that they have to try to earn an honest living in the meantime.

The premier episode concerned their involvement with a rich rancher (Burl Ives) who hires them to retrieve a bust of Caesar which he says was stolen from him by a wealthy fellow across the border in Mexico (Cesar Romero). Ives, however, turns out to be a pretty smooth operator who tries to win back at cards what he pays Smith and Jones.

This first episode wasn't as good as the 90-minute outing, but for video western fans it was still a pleasant enough hour, particularly because of its humorous approach to what has usually been such a deadpan format. There was also another droll performance from the one and only Edward Andrews, whom I have previously suggested looks like a domesticated werewolf, and whose stock in trade is looking incomparably suspicious and untrustworthy. The man is a gem of an actor.

More Trouble:
Look for more trouble in Poland. Workers in the Baltic area, where riots flared last month, have learned they can win concessions by threatening strikes and slowdowns. Armed with this new power, they are carrying out the first real collective bargaining in the Soviet bloc. But no Communist government can afford to let this go on too long. Travelers from other areas of Poland report that workers there, too, are getting the idea. The honeymoon allowed the new regime of party chief Edward Gierek is expected to be short. Rehabilitation Stalin:
The Kremlin is preparing for the partial rehabilitation of Stalin at the forthcoming party congress in Moscow next month. East European diplomats hint that the move is intended to set the stage for a considerable tightening of the party's grip on the nation and on Russia's East European allies. The harder line is expected to make itself felt also in the sphere of foreign policy, especially in future Russo-American relations.
East-West Frictions:
Western Allied officials are predicting new East German interference with Berlin traffic at the end of this month. They say the Russians have let them know that the East Germans again will harass West German traffic to Berlin during the meeting of the West German Free Democratic party in Berlin Jan. 28-30. The Russians say such meetings are illegal.

Crazy World Of Washington

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon's revenue sharing proposals raise a basic question about the working of American democracy:

Can state and local governments spend tax money more wisely and efficiently than the federal government?

President Nixon thinks they can. Because they are closer to the grass roots, he says, states and localities ought to be more aware of the needs and more responsive to the demands of the people.

It's a cogent argument—in theory. But in actual practice, many state and city governments have proved to be incompetent managers of public money, and some have demonstrated a marked insensitivity to the needs of certain segments of the population such as the old, the poor and the non-white.

The centralization of power in Washington which has been going on steadily since 1933 began after state and city governments had failed utterly to cope with the human problems of the Great Depression.

As it has taken on more and more responsibilities, the federal government also has increasingly pre-empted the richest source of public revenue—the income tax.

Some of the money which is sucked into Washington by federal income taxes is now being returned to financially strapped states and cities through what are known to bureaucrats as "categorical grants." A categorical grant is one that can be spent only for a specific purpose. It comes, in short, with tight federal strings on it.

What President Nixon is proposing is elimination of some of these special purpose grants in favor of giving states and cities large blocks of money which they would have wide discretion in spending.

Nixon recognizes that many states and cities have rather poor performance records. But he contends that an alert citizenry can make state and local government more responsive, more efficient and more creative.

If the decision-making powers now concentrated in Washington are widely dispersed among state capitols and city halls, he says, every citizen will find

J. Austin, Bernice Hefley, Jo Beth Hyatt, Zelma Loter, DeWayne Alba, Teresa Martin, Cora Hyatt, Britt Roman, Doyle Pond, Duane Bradford and Cecil Denson.

Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Dyer and son, Bobby, of Houston, moved this week to Wheeler to make their home. They will be associated with his parents in the operation of the Dyer Restaurant.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Callan visited Thursday in Elk City with their granddaughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Page and children.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hefley and children of Oklahoma City, have moved to the home formerly occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wofford. Hefley is the son of Clifford and Pauline Hefley.

Mr. and Mrs. Lem Gaines spent the weekend in Pampa with their daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Hogan and children and Mr. and Mrs. David Swire.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Mason, Randy and Judy, who have made their home in Wheeler have moved to Amarillo to make their home. Another family moving from Wheeler is Mr. and Mrs. Gary Roman and family. Roman has been associated with the Canadian Production Credit Association. The Romans will be moving to Georgetown, Texas. Both of these families will be missed in Wheeler.

Mr. and Mrs. Mike Aderholt and little daughter spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Aderholt in the Briscoe Community.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Nelson who formerly lived on the Holland Ranch near Canadian have purchased the "Old Akin Place" and moved into it. They had the misfortune of a fire in the house as they were getting moved into it. We are glad to welcome the Nelson's to Wheeler to make their home.

Mrs. Vertie Copeland and Miss Cindy Smith were visitors in Shamrock Sunday afternoon with Miss Cherry Parker.

Mrs. Rena Sivage transacted business in Allison Wednesday afternoon.

Tax Collections Low

BATON ROUGE, La., (UPI)—State tax collections for the first six months of the 1970-71 fiscal year were $2.3 million below estimated collections, the Division of Administration said Friday.

Commissioner of Administration W. W. McDogall said, however, that the collections were $38.9 million over collections for the same six month period in the previous fiscal year.

Nothing
moves troops like
The Daily Bugle.

The sound of a powerful ad opens up people's eyes. And minds. It stirs them. Starts them marching in to buy your product. And often at less cost-per-thousand to you than any other person-to-person message.

(The Classified Section is one example. Remember how disappointed you were the day you called on that Want Ad, and found out the item had just been sold?)

Print bugles like that. Sharp and clear. Which is just the call to action you need when your adversary is public inertia. And it generally is. Newspapers. Magazines. Brochures. Mailings. These are all print. And they all work to muster the troops. Use them.

It'll be a monumental campaign, General.

Pandora's Box Opened

Fickleness in the matrimonial area is considered in most quarters as adequate reason for terminating the marriage contract. Too bad the same logic isn't commonly accepted when it comes to terminating the forced arrangement between governors and governed.

If zoning decrees, for example, were rigidly enforced, reasonable people would soon see their harmful, stagnating effect and demand their abolishment. So, in order to maintain the illusion of zoning while, at the same time, avoiding the ill-effects of rigid enforcement, the authorities resort to the granting of changes and variances literally by the thousands. But, by such fickle tricks, they hang themselves on the horns of a double dilemma.

That zoning, rigidly enforced would be harmful is not even questioned by zoning officials; how could they even argue the point when every change made or variance granted as a tacit admission of the fact? Yet, on each occasion that a zoning change is made or a variance is granted, it is a like admission that the person who thought he was being "protected" by the original zoning decree isn't being protected at all.

Plainly, whether rigidly enforced or loosely applied, zoning is a harmful, fraudulent, fickle, and capricious concept and should be abandoned forthwith.

The many so-called anti-pollution laws now being added to the books in bureaucratic profusion fall into the same category. It is too soon, of course, to assess their full harmful effect upon the economy, but, before the current mania runs its full course, it is safe to say that ill-considered, conflicting, and self-defeating "anti-pollution" laws will have added untold billions of dollars to the taxes and prices for goods and services the American people must pay. This was brought out in no uncertain way by an article in the Wall Street Journal.

"Pity Jim Carson," the article began. "He's Ohio Edison Co.'s chief environmental engineer. He used to be quite proud of the electrostatic precipitators his company's finished two years ago at its Newcastle, Pa., Power Plant. They took two years and $2,000,000 to build, and they removed 98 per cent of the soot and ash previously belched out by the plant's smokestacks, just as required by Pennsylvania Air Pollution Regulation No. 4.

"Then last year," the Journal continued, "along came Regulation No. 5, which required the plant to remove 99 per cent of the soot and ash. To eliminate that extra 1 per cent, Ohio Edison would have to junk the 98 per cent device and spend another $4,000,000 for a more efficient one."

Since no company can spend $6,000,000 without recouping it somehow if it is to avoid bankruptcy, it takes little imagination to grasp what Regulations Nos. 4 and 5 will do to the prices consumers must pay for power in the future. But that was just the beginning.

Oh, "we could do it," all right, "say, by 1975," said Mr. Carson, "but we know darned well that Pennsylvania will have sulfur emission regulations by then." And, the Journal pointed out quoting environmentalist Carson, "precipitators don't work very well when sulfur is removed from stack gases, so the sulfur standards could wipe out our investment in the 99 per cent equipment and force the company to buy a still more sophisticated system costing $8,000,000 to $15,000,000, depending on what the state rules turn out to be."

Thus far, we have only considered the confusion created in one plant by two government regulations. But, when it is realized that any potential polluter probably will have to contend with two agencies each (one for water, one for air) at city, county and state levels, plus a dozen federal agencies, it will be further realized, as the Journal went on to note, that trying to cure pollution by coercion and force has opened up "a Pandora's box of changing and conflicting laws, bureaucratic snarls and technical impossibilities that can stymie even the best-intentioned, best-funded efforts to control the environment."

NEA Openly Political

The National Education Association (NEA) has long enjoyed a preferential tax exempt status as an approved "non-political" "non-profit" organization. Actually, however, this has been something of a joke for years. For, in addition to maintaining in Washington, D.C. one of the most powerful lobbies in the country, the NEA has been up to its collective neck in politics for years. And its members, of course, are as profit motivated as anyone else, as the organization's repeated demands upon the taxpayers for higher salaries and increased benefits amply attest.

However, until recently, we don't recall NEA leadership ever admitting openly that the organization was a political action group, even to the point of endorsing and supporting specific candidates. Nevertheless, according to an article by Scripps-Howard Staff Writer William Steif Jan. 12, that is the course now being followed by the "nonpolitical" tax-exempt NEA as admitted, even bragged about, by its top echelon leaders.

With a 1,100,000 membership and an annual income of $25,000,000 from teacher dues, the organization must think that it now has enough clout to cease being coy.

The organization's executive secretary, Sam M. Lambert, backed by NEA President, Helen Bain was cited by Scripps-Howard's Steif as saying that it is "a distinct possibility" that the NEA will endorse a presidential candidate in 1972; a remark which Steif interpreted as a threat of political reprisal against Nixon unless he comes forth with more federal tax money for public schools.

Lambert was quoted by Steif as saying that the NEA now has an income of $25 million a year and that political action will have top priority in spending that money.

Just how "non-political" can one get?

Where large portions of teacher dues went during the 1970 elections in blatant political action was brought out when Mrs. Bain emphasized some of the major roles played by NEA affiliates that year; including, according to Steif:

The Ohio governorship campaign, in which the Ohio Education Association "openly backed" winner John J. Gilligan.

The Florida governorship campaign, in which teachers, Mrs. Bain said, unanimously opposed Gov. Claude Kirk, the loser.

The California vote for state school superintendent, of which Mrs. Bain said, "We're delighted Max Rafferty lost."

In addition, noted Steif, "At least 23 state associations set up campaign organizations last fall and about 100 local or regional NEA affiliates endorsed and worked for candidates. Estimates of how much they collected and spent for candidates ranged from $300,000 to $1 million. States where NEA affiliates were (politically) active included Colorado, New Mexico, Pennsylvania and Maryland.

Other tax-exempt organizations, with less effective lobbies, have lost that preferential status when they became involved in political action. It will be interesting to see if the "lag of the land" applies to the powerful NEA now that it has openly admitted to being a political action organization?

Pennsylvania Power Co. unit finished two years ago at its Newcastle, Pa., Power Plant. They took two years and $2,000,000 to build, and they removed 98 per cent of the soot and ash previously belched out by the plant's smokestacks, just as required by Pennsylvania Air Pollution Regulation No. 4.

The future of Florida depends very much on the quality of its political leadership. Officeholders can't create prosperity for the Sunshine State, but they have an important role in protecting the rights of private enterprise — the enterprise which has made Florida a comfortable state in which to live.

It is not unlikely that the Florida citrus industry will be the target of the type union organizing campaign that Cesar Chavez has conducted in California — a campaign characterized by nationwide boycotts and union roughstuff. Therefore, it is terribly important that the next governor, Reubin Askew, and the legislators at Tallahassee take a firm stand against union violence and intimidation. It is equally important, on the national level, that the new junior senator — Lawton Chiles — join the conservative coalition and not make common cause with the Fulbright-McGovern-Bayh group in the Senate.

Viewed overall, Florida's prospects are excellent. It has a more balanced economy than many states — an important fact at a time when huge wage settlements are producing strong inflationary currents and lessening the ability of industry to compete. Agribusiness is in a healthy condition in Central Florida. Miami continues to attract both the tourist and new industry dollar. Jacksonville was ahead of many other ports in grasping the importance of the container revolution in ocean commerce. It seems destined to be the leading container port in the South Atlantic.

If constructive tax and labor policies are maintained, the remaining years of the 1970's could be as bright for Florida as were the sixties.

Florida's Future
MIAMI, Fla. — From the rooftop terrace of a downtown office building, one gets a panoramic view of island-dotted Biscayne Bay and the towers of Miami Beach in the distance. The palm-edged islands and causeways and the new apartments one sees testify to the power of imagination and private enterprise.

Not many decades ago, this strip of Florida coast was palmetto jungle and mangrove swamp. Then Henry Morrison Flagler laid the tracks of the Florida East Coast Railroad to Biscayne Bay and a transformation began which is still continuing. Today, the old Spanish-style hotels and office buildings of the 1920's are giving way to modern skyscrapers. Within a few years, a 60-story bank building will rise on Biscayne Boulevard — the highest building in the Southeast.

From time to time, pessimists fear that the tourists will abandon the area for more exotic locales in the Caribbean. This isn't likely. Political unrest is increasing from the Bahamas to Trinidad. Black Power movements in Jamaica and elsewhere in the Caribbean make Florida all the more attractive.

Florida is a magnet to Americans living in frozen regions. The likelihood is that additional millions of people will move into the state in the next decade, lured by the warm sun and widening economic opportunity.

Orlando, in Central Florida, the site of a new Disneyland, will attract other millions as visitors. Indeed the Orlando region is likely to be the next Florida boom area. As one informed observer of Florida's economy pointed out to me, the state has everything that California possesses except mountains.

Actually, Florida is better off than California because it is free of the New Left kook population that threatens the peace of the great state on the Pacific Ocean. Whereas California's university system is disrupted by hippies, four-letter freaks and anarchist bombers, Florida's colleges and universities don't have this sick, dangerous element.

Part of the secret of Florida's success in recent years has been the high level of conservatism in the state. It has had outstanding spokesmen in the Congress, such as Sen. Spessard Holland, who is retiring from the Senate after a distinguished career.

It's A Long Way To The Spawning Ground

There Are Many Repairs Due In Legal Machinery

By DON OAKLEY
NEA Staff Writer

A psychologist suggests that we might revive the custom of putting a criminal in stocks or dunking him, or forcing him to make a public apology or wear a "scarlet letter" on his forehead as methods of preventing future crime.

"Some of these treatments are in many respects more humane than prison, and they might be more effective," says Dr. Barry F. Singer of California State College, writing in the California Law Review.

It is unlikely that we will ever see a return of the stocks or dunking stool, even if they did not violate the "cruel and unusual punishments" prohibition in the Bill of Rights. Neither public humiliation nor public execution have historically had much effect on the crime rate.

But as Singer further says, whatever the punishment, it should be fast and certain, for otherwise its effectiveness is largely lost.

He notes that experiments with animals have shown that the effectiveness of a punishment drops sharply within seconds after the act to be penalized. The same principle seems to apply to humans.

When society fails to stop crime, says Singer, it tends to increase prison sentences. But the more severe the sentence, the longer it is usually delayed in court and the less likely it is to be imposed at all.

A fast, short sentence is better than a delayed long one, he reasons. Moreover, by cutting prison terms, the money saved could be used to hire more judges, thus speeding court action.

This might work with misdemeanors and minor felonies. The theory loses its appeal, however, when we consider serious crimes. A fast, short sentence for a murderer would hardly seem a deterrent to other potential murderers.

And how fast can you be and still be certain? It is still better that 10 guilty men go free than that one innocent man be hastily and unjustly punished.

Yet "the law's delay" has reached scandalous proportions in this country. The time lapse between indictment, trial, sentencing, and final appeals can amount to several years.

As one example, the five persons accused of killing United Mine Workers official Joseph Yablonski and his wife and daughter on December 31, 1969, are still fighting extradition to Pennsylvania. Appeals and motions, motions on appeals and appeals on motions continue to string out this legal process.

Similarly, Charles Watson, one of the figures in the Sharon Tate murder case, fought extradition so long that the trial of the Manson "family" began without him. If and when Watson goes to trial, all the costs of the first trial in court time and taxpayers' expense will be duplicated.

Not only our pretrial processes but our courtroom procedures themselves seem designed not so much to determine guilt or innocence as to forestall as long as possible any kind of determination at all. The longest murder trial in British history lasted less than two months. In this country, we are lucky if a jury is selected in that time.

At the other extreme, of course, those without the money to hire smart lawyers often find that the law can act with dizzying speed.

Singer is both wrong and right. No punishments we can think of, new or old, will have much effect on the crime rate.

But surely some of the excessive, clogging delays that have brought our legal system into disrepute can be eliminated — delays that cannot be blamed on heavy case loads alone, though that is certainly a factor, nor on legal machinery that is antiquated, though in many respects it is, but that caused by failure to operate that machinery at its full efficiency and for its intended purpose — to punish the guilty and to protect the innocent.

For both the illness and the cure, responsibility rests primarily on those in charge of our legal system — judges and lawyers, but most of all on the judges.

Your Health

By Dr. Lawrence Lamb

Light Up, Smokers, But NOT in Hospital

Dear Dr. Lamb — I am recuperating from losing two lobes of my lungs. My questions and comments concern the permission granted in hospitals today to smokers who pollute the air we breathe. WHY? WHY on earth is it allowed in the patient's rooms, corridors and waiting rooms?

With my bronchiectasis, I've had troubles with fumes of smoking, bus and car fumes — all pollution, in fact. My husband paid extra for a private room so that I could avoid a smoking roommate and her visitors.

I am forced to stay in seclusion here recuperating because of all the smoking visitors and patients in the sitting room and at the sofa outside my door. Why are nonsmokers FORCED to put up with this in light of today's evidence about smoking and its effects?

Please don't feel I am a crusading fanatic against smokers — I'm not. It's just that I feel smokers are completely innocent or ignorant of nonsmokers' problems like mine and I feel that it's unfair in today's polluted world and it's time for a change.

Dear Reader — You have reason to be annoyed. Our bastions of health are really not the place for cigarettes. I don't think smokers really recognize that many nonsmokers with asthma, allergies and lung problems really cannot tolerate the fumes from their tobacco. This is a problem for patients forced to sit next to a smoker — as in airplanes. Since less than half the population now smoke, it would seem time to give the nonsmoker a break.

Dear Dr. Lamb — First I will say I am not biased as to integration. In fact, my own children attended integrated schools. This last year the schools where I live now were integrated and the children got along very well, but the little black children kept running their hands through the long blond straight hair of the white children. There was a rash of incidents of lice eggs found in the blond heads, much to the alarm of parents. Believe me, the affected children all came from homes where heads were shampooed regularly. The school at first admitted the blond hair attracted the little black children. Suddenly, it was proclaimed in the school that "black people never get lice ever." I am most interested. Could you please tell me if this is so? I have no intentions of making any pronouncements about it — I'm just interested in knowing.

An old grandmother Dear Reader — I don't think any cause — no matter how just — is best served by ignorance, particularly in our halls of learning. Germs, most diseases, and pests cannot tell the difference in the color of a person's skin — brown, black, yellow, red or white. Under the

Inside Washington

Health Plan Row Simmers

Between Nixon, Sen. Kennedy

Robert Allen

WASHINGTON — There are plenty of carry-over controversies, of course, including welfare reform and revenue sharing, but one of the major battles of the new Congress could result from the shaping of a national health plan.

An added attraction in that controversy could be a direct legislative confrontation between President Nixon and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., who, despite disclaimers, is still a possible Democratic challenger for President Nixon in the 1972 elections.

The background here is that President Nixon, in his recent televised talk with network newsmen, said that a health plan will be part of his program for the new Congress. He is expected to elaborate in his state-of-the-union message.

Kennedy, however, has already gone on record in support of specific national health insurance legislation. There are already indications that the senator's hopes and dreams, in this regard, are not those of the President.

Moreover, indications are that Kennedy will become the chairman of the Senate's Health Subcommittee when the new Congress gets down to organizing. The Finance Committee may have jurisdiction over its financing, but the Health Subcommittee will have a role in developing a health insurance program.

The Health Subcommittee was formerly headed by Sen. Lister Hill, D-Ala., who was "Mr. Health" for Congress over a period of years. Last year, with Hill in retirement, Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., was chairman of both the Health Subcommittee and the parent Labor and Public Welfare Committee, just as Hill had been in prior years.

Now informed sources are saying that, with Yarborough on the sidelines, as a result of his defeat in the Democratic primary, Kennedy is in a position to step in as Health Subcommittee Chairman.

TAXES PROPOSED — The mechanics of President Nixon's promised health plan will be disclosed in his messages to Congress. There have been some hints about its features, however.

The President's plan, according to advance reports, will incorporate, and not supplant, present health insurance plans such as Blue Cross and Blue Shield. Financing, according to advance reports, would be provided by imposing an additional tax (of perhaps 15 cents per package) on cigarettes.

Kennedy is sponsor of a couple of health insurance bills. Both would set up a wholly new organization and operation to guarantee health insurance to all residents of the United States.

One of the bills, which has Kennedy as its chief sponsor, would finance the new health plan through increased payroll taxes. It would, in effect, provide health benefits to all as a part of Social Security.

The other bill would finance health benefits as a charge against Treasury revenues. That one had Yarborough as its chief sponsor in the old Congress, and Kennedy joined as a co-sponsor.

If Kennedy is to be chairman of the Health Subcommittee, as now reported, he may decide he prefers Treasury financing, since a plan keyed to the Social Security system comes within the jurisdiction of the Finance Committee and not the Subcommittee on Health.

OLD CONTROVERSY — National Health Insurance is not, of course, a new Capitol controversy at all. New Deal and Fair Deal planners, in the Democratic Administrations of the 1940s, were committed to the plan and tried to sell it to Congress.

They were unsuccessful, however. National health insurance then (like the idea of a guaranteed wage now) provoked criticism from conservatives who questioned the role of government in any such grandiose undertaking.

National health insurance was attacked by the American Medical Association and other groups as "socialized medicine," and experience in other nations was cited to show that such plans were unworkable — or that they interfered in the traditional relationship between a patient and the physician of his choice.

Those fights were waged, of course, before the costs of hospitalization and medical services skyrocketed to their present levels.

Now the situation has changed. A Republican Administration is going to propose a national health plan and it appears that the major battle will be, not whether to initiate such a plan, but how it should be administered and financed.

How about Mississippi's Sen. John Stennis switching from Hawk to Dove?

Before we're too hard on our school-agers for their rejection of this war, look how it has scrambled our lawmakers!

At this moment there are men in the U.S. Senate who are among the founders of the United Nations, who supported any and all forms of foreign aid and intervention including the resolution which deepened our involvement in Indochina; now those men are saying we should get out, withdraw, come home, mind our own business.

Then there are the senators we used to call "isolationists" because they always wanted us to stay home and mind our own business; today some of them are advocating assorted degrees of continuing involvement in Indochina.

On intervention, Fulbright and Goldwater have switched sides. The dawn of this new year came up like thunder over the Potomac when John Stennis — prestigious chairman of the powerful Senate Armed Services Committee — said Vietnam never should have been any of our business and we should never make this mistake again; that we can't go running around rescuing every tottering nation. We can't and shouldn't try.

That's John Stennis' Southern Democrat? Conservative, right circumstances, anyone can get lice from anyone else who has lice.

Please send your questions and comments to Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D., in care of this paper. While Dr. Lamb cannot answer individual letters he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

Anything-for-the-flag John Stennis? Yes.

And it's not inconsistent. He's still putting our country's interests first.

Here is what the chairman of the Senate Armed Services says now:

"The Vietnam war was a 'civil war'; none of our business. He says the United States lacks the resources 'to aid every Asian nation any time it is confronted with a Communist threat both from within and without.'"

He says we must never send our troops to fight for nations which lack the unity and dedication to fight for themselves — and to the death, if necessary.

And Sen. Stennis says no President should be permitted to send our troops into combat anywhere without the prior and explicit consent of the Congress.

So indefensible is this Vietnam involvement that Sen. Stennis says the idea of an all volunteer army — as long as this warless war goes on — is a joke. Mention it to our troops, he says — they laugh.

Some of us, whose first and only allegiance is to our own country — nobody else's — moved over sooner from a win-the-war position to a get-out-of-Indochina position — some will later.

Just a few months ago when some senators tried to limit our President's prerogative in war-making, Sen. Stennis fought them every step of the way. Now he's on their side.

This is not inconsistent. He's still putting our country's interests first. He is not out of step. It's when the situation changes and you don't — that you're out of step.

And this is what this President will discover, sooner or — too late.

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Pearl Bailey arrived during the weekend with the debut of her new, one-hour ABC-TV variety series, and the only question is what in the world took the networks so long to give her a weekly show of her own.

The lady is simply terrific. And so was her Saturday night premiere, except for one minor bit with Andy Williams, who joined with Bing Crosby and Louis Armstrong to help get her off flying.

Television is a fickle medium, of course, and one never knows how a new show will do against competition, but this is a performer that ABC-TV should value and protect. Pearlite Mae is pur sunshine.

You can always tell when a real heavyweight arrives on the home screen. The lightweights work and fuss and go through their material and yet never give the feeling of being able to handle an hour. The heavyweights fill the hour before you know it.

Miss Bailey is such a 100 percent, fully accredited heavyweight that you had the feeling she could have gone another hour easily on Saturday night without even powdering her nose.

Saturday night, producer Bob Finkel and director Dean Whitmore gave Miss Bailey a chance to take command with a variety of her talents. She did a showstopping dance number, she clownned throughout the hour in her imitable regal con-woman manner, and among her songs were two that were just plain lovely in their poignance: "Make Me a Rainbow" and "Didn't We" (with Armstrong).

Satchmo and Crosby no longer have the voices they once did, but each is such a consummate showman — and Miss Bailey was so delightful — that her numbers with them were rich in the very special professionalism that many singers with better natural voices never achieve.

It's been said that likability single quality in determining what makes successful video performers, and that is probably true. If ABC-TV does right by Miss Bailey, it will profit, for there are few performers in show business as likable as Pearlite Mae, who let the sunshine in a long time ago.

JEANE DIXON Your Horoscope

THURSDAY, JAN. 28
Your birthday Thursday: A year begins of investment of time, energy, and concern in your successful adjustment to changing times. Create your own personal world as an island in the general culture. Emotional expression ranges in all directions.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Take a conservative approach to Thursday's conditions. Trying to help others only confuses their plans. Use care and courtesy in travel. Relax easily. TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Having patience while others dither gives you the chance to see the heart of the problem and set it straight later. Friends are not clear on what your views are.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Resist temptation to take sudden risks. Haste, changes of plans stir more confusion, cause a loss if you are not alert and keeping associates informed. CANCER (June 21-July 21): You can get an argument or at least a differing opinion on any direction. Thursday. Appeals to your sympathy are deeper than they appear on the surface; think about what you hear.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Tense people may distract you if you let them. This is a corner-turning day—the future doesn't follow the grooves of the recent past.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Make appointments early or wait until Friday. Practical considerations could keep you busy all day. Don't involve others in routine decision-making.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Associates tend to brood over what for you is past and finished. Follow an intuition further; check facts before doing much about it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You needn't invest with just anybody who comes along. Review your situation, resolve to make changes if you are not satisfied.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Depend mainly on your resources, what you know from personal research. The temptation is toward speculative ventures, but move a label for expediency.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Perseverance against contrary influences serves little. Pressing for definite answers brings vague responses. Let wait enough alone for now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Never mind just doing something—first get it settled what is to be done and why. Then all falls into order later in the day.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): If things are going moderately well, let this be sufficient. If not, allow for unseasoned conflicts, wait for inspiration.

Fink Coats?
EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI)—Fink coats may be in high fashion in a few years if Michigan State University scientists can work it out. A fink, the result of mating a ferret with a mink, would ideally have the lush fur of the mink and the calm disposition of the ferret, they say. "I don't know if the mink will tear the ferret apart in the mating process, but we're going to try it this spring," said Dr. Richard Aulerich, head of the university's mink research. "We'll probably tranquilize the mink in the natural mating or use artificial breeding."

Segura Isn't Resentful At Tennis' High Prices

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UPI)—Pancho Segura's reaction was perfectly normal when he picked up the newspaper and read where Rod Laver, with $60,000 already won playing tennis this month, was looking to pyramid it to 70 grand tonight against Arthur Ashe at Madison Square Garden.
"My father and mother made a mistake," laughed the congenial 49-year-old Segura. "They should've had me later."
Segura got a big $1,500 for beating Pancho Gonzalez for the world professional championship at Forest Hills 19 years ago. He even remembers the scores—6-2, 6-2, 6-2. He also remembers he made something like $18,000 that whole year.
"Money Helps Tennis"
But the always colorful little Ecuadorian, now teaching tennis at La Costa Country Club in La Costa, Calif., isn't resentful over the way prize money in tennis has skyrocketed along with most everything else from "his" day. He's all for it, in fact. He feels the increased prize money has to help tennis.

"It creates a much bigger interest in the game," Segura says. "A lot of boys who ordinarily might have gone for football or basketball now will go for tennis. In 10-15 years there'll be 30 or 40 outstanding players instead of only one or two as there are now."
If you remember Pancho Segura then you remember he was agile and clever on the court, a player who relied more on finesse than power, and one who was forever overshadowed by the Pancho Gonzalezes, Jack Kramers and Billy Talberts.
Record Experience
Still Segura considers that tennis is the greatest thing that ever happened to him—"I was born to be a tennis player"—and if you ask him how many matches he figures he has played in his life and how many of them he won he says:

"Oh my God! I imagine I've played 10,000 matches all over the world. I've been in practically every country except China and Turkey and when you ask how many of those matches I won I'd say at least 65 per cent."
That should be good enough to qualify Segura as a judge of today's players. He says the best among them "unquestionably" is Rod Laver.
"The fact he's left-handed gives him a big advantage. The key points of the game are played on the left-hand side of the court. Being left-handed he has a natural serve that can put you in the alley and on the defense from the start."
Two...of Segura's present pupils are Jimmy Connors of St. Louis, the top-ranked junior in the country, and his own 19-year-old son, Pancho, Jr. He says you'll hear from both.

U.S. Court Reserves Decision On Flood

NEW YORK (UPI)—The U.S. Second Circuit Court of Appeals reserved decision on baseball's reserve clause Wednesday after arguments over Curt Flood's suit to overturn the clause were heard for 90 minutes.
Presiding Judge Sterry R. Waterman, sitting with judges Leonard P. Moore and Wilfred Feinberg, listened to arguments by both sides and then announced: "We will reserve a decision on the reserve clause."
The three judges were listening to an appeal of the decision handed down Sept. 12 by Judge Irving Ben Cooper in favor of baseball.
Flood, who is represented by former U.S. Supreme Court Justice and Ambassador to the United Nations Arthur Goldberg, began the suit shortly after he was traded by the St. Louis Cardinals to the Philadelphia Phillies in late 1969. Flood asked Baseball Commissioner

Bowie Kuhn to be released from the provisions of the reserve clause so he could negotiate with other clubs with permission was denied.
Flood, who sat out the 1970 season, has since been traded to the Washington Senators and has signed a contract estimated at $110,000 to play with them in 1971. Both sides agreed Wednesday that Flood's decision to play this year will not prejudice his case in the appeal of Cooper's decision.
Regardless of how the appeals court rules, the decision will be appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court. Baseball has enjoyed immunity from federal antitrust laws since 1922.
In arguing "Flood's case," however, Goldberg contended that a "player is tied for life" under the reserve clause and added, "Flood wants to be a free man for which there is no substitute."

THE DATE has been set—March 8 in Madison Square Garden—and the countdown has begun for the biggest heavyweight championship fight in history. The principals, of course, are Muhammad Ali and Joe Frazier, each claiming the title. While waiting for the bell, Ali has three daughters to keep him company (above) and Frazier has his guitar and boxing gloves (left). Each will earn $2.5 million—win or lose.

Alcindor's One Game Shooting Slump Is Over With 22 Points

Low Alcindor's one-game shooting "slump" is over—and so is the Milwaukee Bucks' one-game losing "streak."
The 7-foot, 2-inch star was held to an 11-for-32 shooting performance by Willis Reed Tuesday night and the Bucks lost to the New York Knicks.

But Alcindor, whose shooting percentage in three previous games before meeting Reed was 720, was back on the beam with 22-for-31 and 710 Wednesday night as he led the Bucks to a 132-129 triumph over the Boston Celtics at Boston. Alcindor's shooting percentage is .630 for his last five games.

Celtics Scoring Balanced
Alcindor, who had game-high totals of 53 points, 14 rebounds and seven assists, also led the Bucks back from a five-point deficit with 1:38 left. He scored on a jump shot which gave the Bucks the lead at 130-129 and Bob Boozer tacked on two free throws to sew up the victory.
Alcindor's one-man effort offset balanced Celtic scoring in which Jo Jo White tallied 30 points, Steve Kuberski had 27 and John Havlicek added 26.
The Knicks blew a 21-point first-period lead and played erratically throughout before defeating the Atlanta Hawks, 118-108, at Atlanta. The Hawks outscored the Knicks, 37-15, in the second period to take a 52-51 halftime lead and stayed in the lead or close until they went cold in the final minutes.

Walt Frazier led the Knicks with 26 points and Dave DeBusschere had 25 while Walt Hazzard had 26 for the Hawks.

Warriors Winning Again
The San Francisco Warriors snapped a three-game losing streak when they beat the Detroit Pistons, 129-112, with the help of 34 points by Ron Williams and 30 by Nate Thurmond. Dave Bing had 35 points for the Pistons, who suffered their third straight loss.
Thirty-seven year old Johnny Green, who is challenging Alcindor for the National Basketball Association's field goal percentage lead, scored 35 points including the Cincinnati Royals' final point in a 115-113 victory over the Baltimore Bullets. Jack Marin had 26 points and Wes Unseld tallied 21 and had 26 rebounds for the Bullets.
The Cleveland Cavaliers, 5-44

after their first 49 games, scored their fourth victory in their last seven games when they beat the Portland Trail Blazers, 118-104. Walt Wesley, who sat out the first period, led the Cavs with 23 points. Geoff Petrie scored 29 for the Trail Blazers.

Randy Matson To Be Honored Feb. 1 In Civic Center

Randy Matson, World Athlete of 1970, will be honored in special ceremonies by TRACK AND FIELD NEWS, Monday night, Feb. 1.
The presentation will be made during the half-time of the game between the West Texas State University Buffaloes and Weber State. (Game time is 7:30).

Pee Wee Basketball Has A Busy Schedule For Tonight

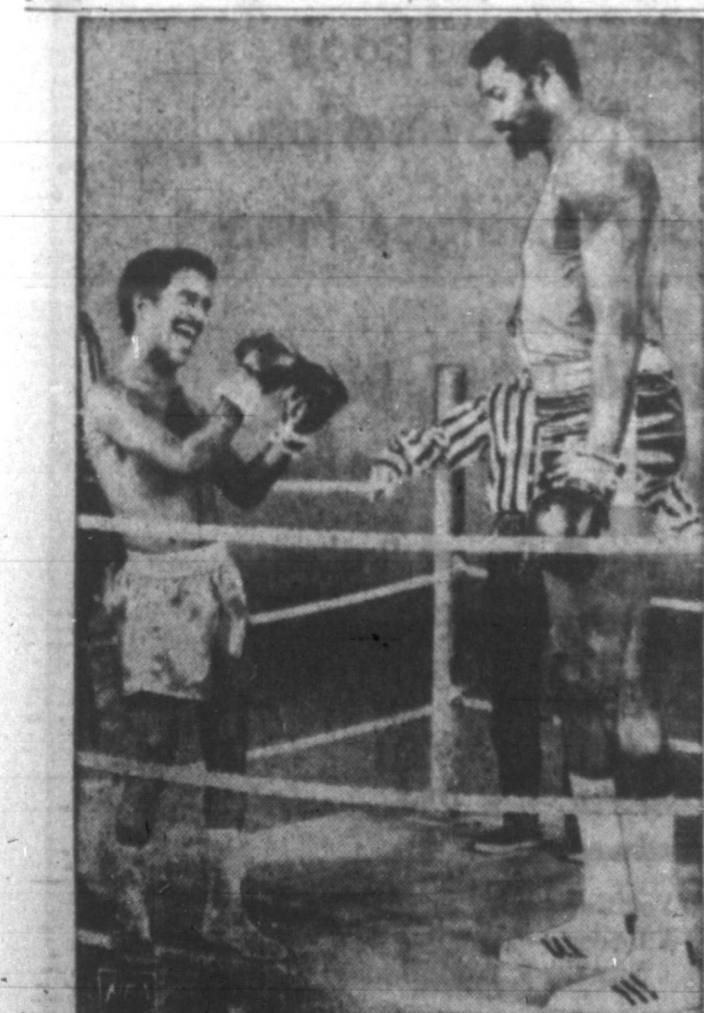

In Pee Wee Basketball, sponsored jointly by the Optimist and Kiwanis Clubs of Pampa, several teams will be playing tonight. In the sixth grade bracket Wilson will be at Baker, Horace Mann at Stephen F. Austin and Sam Houston at Travis. St. Vincent will be scheduling a practice session as will be Lamar Elementary.
In the fifth grade division play will be Baker at Woodrow Wilson, Stephen F. Austin will travel to Horace Mann and Travis at Sam Houston. Lamar will have a practice session.

Game times for the Pee Wee League Basketball teams are 6 p.m. The action is fast and somewhat furious in the midget madness but the chief concern of the project is that our growing youth develop good mental attitudes towards sportsmanship as well as good physical development.

Miami Girls Schedule Shamrock Play-Off Against Brisco Girls

The Miami girls will have a play-off game against the Brisco girls in Shamrock Friday at 7 p.m. Both teams are tied for league honors in Zone competition. In their last meeting the Miami team defeated the Brisco team in a close 39 to 38 victory.
High point girl for the Miami team is Sandy Dedmon with 17 points and Brisco's top score was Diane Zybach with 18 points.

In Boys basketball the Miami boys defeated the Brisco team in a convincing 64 to 32 win. High point man for the Miami team was Tim Fatheree with 13 points while Brisco's Joel Finsterwald was high with 9 points for the losers.

OF Advertising Start with an Audit

Advertising is a serious investment. Art, engraving, typography and copy are costly. All are planned carefully to attract readers who are prospects for the merchandise or service. No business can afford to waste any part of this investment in any medium that cannot guarantee definite circulation and readership. "Waste basket circulation" in post offices, and so called throw-aways that usually travel to the incinerator are of little or no value to the advertiser.

The Pampa Daily News is a completely Family Newspaper Delivered Daily paid for and Welcomed!

BUYING ON THIS BASIS IS SOUND!

Circulation studies made regularly by an independent organization—the Audit Bureau of Circulations—show advertisers exactly what they get in circulation and readership for their advertising investment.

For most subscribers the PAMPA NEWS is the family shopping guide, for it carries the advertising of practically all progressive Pampa stores, markets and services.

It is the ABC's of advertising

The Audit Bureau of Circulation (ABC) is a co-advertising agencies and publishers for the verification of circulation of newspaper members in operative, non-profit organization of advertisers.

The United States and Canada.

Quotes In The News

By United Press International

SAN FRANCISCO—Paul Halvonik, an attorney representing two men arrested for begging and obstructing a sidewalk while playing a Mozart duet.

"Certain groups are conspiring against good taste ... It's very hard to block a sidewalk with an oboe or a flute. With a sousaphone, maybe."

GLENSIDE, Pa.—Thomas McDermott, neighbor of Edward W. Pruyn, who apparently shot to death his wife and four of five children, wounding the fifth child, then turned a gun on himself.

"I never saw him excited, upset or emotional. I think his whole life was the children ... He didn't want to leave his family to face all this."

WASHINGTON—Senate Democratic Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, charging the Nixon administration has altered the spirit of legislation prohibiting the use of U.S. ground troops in Cambodia.

"(The administration) seems to indicate that what is being done in Cambodia is in accord with the Cooper-Church Amendment, which I think is contrary to the fact."
