Smith Offers Legislature Plan To Avoid New Taxes

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Gov. Preston Smith has offered the Texas Legislature a take-it-or-leave-it proposition to avoid new taxes this year.

"If the legislature doesn't buy my plan, then I think they must come forward with their own plan," Smith said.

The governor's bold and unique program involves a combination of deficit spending the issuing more than $300 million in revenue bonds. He unveiled the program Wednesday in a message to a joint session of the legislature.

Both Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes and House Speaker Gus Mutscher promised to give Smith's proposals full consideration. Barnes ordered hearings to begin immediately on a series of proposed constitutional amendments needed to implement Smith's program.

Mutscher, scheduled to announce his House committee assignments today, also indicated he will give the proposals immediate attention.

Basically, the governor proposes to avoid new taxes this year by:

—Issuing $450 million in "free public school" bonds to be paid off by revenue transferred from mineral royalties on state owned lands. All of those royalties currently go into the Permanent School Fund, which cannot be spent. But through a constitutional amendment a portion of that revenue could be spent by diverting it to the available school fund.

—Issuing $71 million in revenue bonds to finance construction for six new colleges and medical schools.

—$40 million in deficit spending to bail out the financially-strapped Welfare Department for the remainder of this fiscal year.

—Saving $300 million by financing the Welfare Department for only the first 10 months of fiscal 1972-73, then hoping the federal government can be convinced to take over all the state's welfare costs.

The governor's proposed $6.3 billion budget is $700 million smaller than the legislative budget board's spending plan, and will require $200 million less in new revenue.

Failure of voters to approve the amendment for issuance of the "free public school bonds," or failure of the federal government to take over all the welfare costs will require a special legislative session to come up with new state funds.

Most legislators said Smith's plan is attractive—but unrealistic. "I think we will approve the governor's program then have to have a special session to bail ourselves out because I don't think Congress is going to take over the entire welfare program," said Sen. Charles Wilson, D-Lufkin, who heads the Senate Committee on Constitutional Amendments.

Sen. William T. Moore, D-Bryan, called Smith's welfare plan "a can of worms."

"Congress isn't going to do that," Moore said. "It would be wonderful if they did, but I don't think they will."

There was also skepticism about the proposal to issue bonds to cover higher education costs.

"Passing and selling bonds to build buildings is one thing, but passing bonds to pay salaries is another," said Rep. Ben Atwell, D-Dallas, longtime chairman of the Revenue and Taxation Committee.

U.S. Asks Egypt To Extend Truce Expiring Feb. 5

By United Press International

Western diplomatic sources in Cairo said today the United States has urged Egypt to agree to extend the cease-fire with Israel beyond Feb. 5.

They said the American view was passed on to Egyptian diplomats both in Cairo and Washington as "an expression of hope" rather than a formal proposal. They said an extension would help U.N. mediator Gunnar V. Jarring in his mission of trying to reach some form of peace agreement by way of indirect negotiations between the Arabs and Israelis.

The sources said Egypt has not yet consented to extend the cease-fire, already prolonged for three months following the original 90-day stand-down which began Aug. 7, but was likely to do so.

The possibility for movement towards peace in the area was given a boost by a dramatic switch in Palestinian guerrilla policy. The guerrillas, who have steadfastly refused to participate in or back any attempt to negotiate an end to Middle Eastern problems, said they now would accept negotiations with the Arab nations to regain land lost to Israel in the 1967 war.

In a statement released in Amman, the central committee of the Palestinian Liberation Organization (PLO) described the harsh guerrilla position earlier taken against any such talks as "emotional."

An Israeli spokesman said that an explosion early today blew out part of the facade of a two-story house in the Israeli town of Meron, six miles south of the Israeli-Lebanese frontier. He said no one was hurt in the explosion.

Sen. Cooper Raps U.S. Widening Role In Cambodia War

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., said today the Nixon administration had violated a congressional ban by expanding operations in Cambodia. He said President Nixon should ask Congress for broader authority if he needed it.

Cooper was co-author with Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, of a law enacted in the waning days of the 91st Congress, and subsequently signed by Nixon, that prohibited use of U.S. funds for American ground troops or advisers in Cambodia.

Based on news reports from Cambodia of use of U.S. aircraft and airmen in support of South Vietnamese and Cambodian operations, or for carrying supplies, "I certainly think it is a violation of the spirit of the amendment," Cooper said.

Asked in an interview if it were possible to violate the spirit of a law without actually violating the law, Cooper replied, "I think you're correct on that. If you violate the spirit you have to violate the act itself."

VOLUNTEER FIREMEN — Fifteen members of the Volunteer Fire Department in Lefors answer a general alarm yesterday when Jack's Welding and Roustabout Service was totally damaged by fire. Paris Peace Talks Enter 100th Session

PARIS (UPI) — U.S. Ambassador David K. E. Bruce challenged the Communists at the 100th session of the Vietnam peace talks today to permit impartial inspection of their prison camps in South Vietnam.

Bruce said their refusal to allow such inspections, to provide any information, or permit mail to flow between the captured-Americans and their families leads to the conclusion that "you fear what would be revealed through such visits."

"There is perhaps nothing which so clearly demonstrates the hollowness of your side's claims to authority and responsibility in South Vietnam than this refusal to make the slightest effort to live up to legal and humanitarian standards recognized by civilized people everywhere," Bruce said.

Last week, the Communists refused to accept a list of American servicemen missing in Southeast Asia. Bruce told the Communists today "I will continue to make your disgraceful performance a part of the record of these meetings until you fulfill your obligations on the prisoner issue."

As for the weekly sessions, which began Jan. 25, 1969, Bruce said Hanoi and the Viet Cong had turned the meeting into a "parody of negotiation."

Hopes raised by President Nixon's Oct. 7 "peace initiative designed to end the fighting throughout Indochina and to end the impasse here" have been dashed by the Communists, he said.

Total Destruction Caused By Fire In Welding Service Shop At Lefors

All units of the Lefors Volunteer Fire Department answered a 10:30 a.m. alarm yesterday when a report of a fire involving Jack's Welding and Roustabout Service was called in by a passerby. The building was ablaze when firemen arrived. The building and equipment were listed as a total loss. Jack Thacker, the owner, could make no immediate estimate of the total damages.

Thacker's business has been in operation at the 511 E. Second St., location in Lefors for over 15 years.

Firemen concentrated fire-fighting efforts to prevent a large butane tank from exploding inside the building. One pickup was reported totally damaged in the blaze which consumed the steel reinforced building in less than an hour.

Large earth-moving machines, a ditch digger, welding equipment and other company vehicles in the shop yard were not damaged. Fear of exploding oxygen and propane tanks, prompted the 15 firemen responding to the alarm to concentrate on the tank storage area in the building.

Danger of the fire spreading was apparent during the first few minutes after the blaze was reported.

No one was in the shop when the blaze started. Firemen suspected faulty wiring of an extension cord as the cause for the blaze, Thacker said.

Dr. Malone's present three-year contract expires in July this year. When he was employed, trustees were to review the contract at the end of two years, but by mutual agreement, no action was taken at that time, according to board president Jimmy Thompson.

Welfare Plan Will Be Session's Center Issue

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield today predicted trouble for two of President Nixon's priority measures — welfare reform and revenue sharing — as the 92nd Congress opened.

The House and Senate were meeting at noon (EST) after the Senate selected its Republican and Democratic leaders for the coming two years. Indications were the present leadership would be re-elected on both sides.

In the House 434 members — 254 Democrats and 180 Republicans — were to take the oath of office. The Senate is split 55 to 45 in favor of the Democrats and 25 senators are to be sworn in.

Mansfield listed Social Security increases, the family assistance plan, revenue sharing and foreign policy among the dominant issues in the session.

"Social Security, no trouble; revenue sharing, trouble; family assistance planning, trouble," Mansfield told reporters.

Other issues sure to play a major role in the next two years are improved medical care, the draft, reduction of troop commitments overseas, trimming of defense and space budgets, and the future of the supersonic transport.

No Senate and House activity was planned until after Nixon's State of the Union speech Friday night and the organization of committees next week.

With the presidential election less than two years away, and a burgeoning crowd of Democratic candidates, the 92nd Congress is certain to be dominated by politics.

Asked about the possibility of a problem, Mansfield said, "I hope they do their campaigning outside the Senate chamber and their work inside and I anticipate that's what they'll do."

White House Probably Will Have More Strife With Steel Industry

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's first major confrontation with big business ended in an uneasy compromise but there probably is more strife ahead for the White House and the steel industry.

Nixon forced a partial rollback of a 12 per cent price increase posted by Bethlehem Steel Co. by threatening to relax the import quotas which shelter U.S. steelmakers from competition from lower-priced foreign steel.

But some of Nixon's top economic strategists still are wondering out loud whether the government should protect domestic steel companies from the price competition which textbooks say is the cornerstone of the free enterprise system.

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, relaying a position adopted by the cabinet committee on economic policy, said the effect of supporting high steel prices by limiting imports is to transfer the problem to the major steel-using industries.

He said if U.S. automakers, for instance, must pay inflated prices for their steel, they would be put at a disadvantage in competing with manufacturers in Germany and Japan.

All of this discussion is on a rather academic level so far. No one in the administration is saying that if American steelmakers cannot meet the foreign competition they should be permitted to go under. But that would certainly be one logical conclusion of the discussions now going on among Nixon's economic strategists.

A more likely outcome is for the administration to suggest — again backed up by the specter of relaxed import controls — that the steel industry do something to hold down its own costs.

The steel industry is scheduled to negotiate a new basic contract with the United Steelworkers union later this year. The administration may urge management to hold the line against a major pay increase.

John Dwyer, County Commissioner, Dies Following Stroke In McLean

John Emmitt Dwyer, 44, Commissioner for Precinct 4 in Gray County, died suddenly this morning four hours after suffering a stroke at his home in McLean.

He died in McLean Hospital where he was taken shortly after a stroke which occurred at 8 a.m.

that office during ceremonies conducted in Pampa Jan. 1.

County Judge Don Cain had only yesterday appointed Commissioner Dwyer to represent Gray County at a meeting of the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission which was scheduled to meet tonight in Wellington.

Dwyer was born in McLean March 31, 1926, and was a lifelong resident of that city.

Survivors include his wife, Mary Elizabeth and three children.

Funeral services are pending with Lamb Funeral Home in McLean.

Wage Boost Leads To Unemployment

HOUSTON (UPI) — Widespread wildcat strike by construction workers have boosted wages, but have also helped increase unemployment in this field to 11 per cent. This, according to Secretary of Labor J. D. Hodgson, is what is troubling labor leaders.

Hodgson, speaking at the final day of the convention of the National Association of Home Builders, called for wage negotiations to be handled on a regional basis rather than on a national basis.

Hodgson said the current method of piecemeal bargaining is not working.

"It is becoming clear this fragmentation, especially in certain geographical areas, brings with it many ills," he said Wednesday.

The labor secretary called for the construction industry — both management and labor — to agree on a new scheme.

"We think the cure may lie in getting the national unions and contractors together to expand the geographical scope of bargaining," Hodgson said. "We would like to see more regionalization in the bargaining structure."

He said union officials want to make it clear that this is not solely a wage issue, but a balance of wage, price and profit issues.

Hodgson said if construction accelerates as fast as he thinks, the 11 per cent jobless will be back on the job quickly, with more men needed.

"We foresee a 35 per cent increase in construction employment by 1970," the labor secretary said. "Statistics indicate construction employment in all occupations will increase by almost a million people by 1975 — about 20 per cent above the 1969 figure."

Cambodian troops broke through Red Encirclement

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Cambodian troops broke through Viet Cong and North Vietnamese encirclement today to recapture the last Communist-held segment of Cambodia's lifeline to the sea. Jubilant Cambodian soldiers raised their flag over Pich Nil Pass and danced on the shell-pocked Highway 4.

"Chhay! Chhay! (Hurray! Hurray!) the Cambodian soldiers shouted, scrambling to the roof of the summer palace of deposed Prince Norodom Sihanouk on the side of Pich Nil Mountain, waving the Cambodian flag triumphantly.

BY FOUR TO ONE VOTE Trustees Extend Malone's Contract

Pampa School Board voted four to one Wednesday to extend Supt. Dr. James F. Malone's contract for one year, until July, 1972, and set January, 1972, as the contract re-consideration date.

Dr. Malone's present three-year contract expires in July this year. When he was employed, trustees were to review the contract at the end of two years, but by mutual agreement, no action was taken at that time, according to board president Jimmy Thompson.

"For mutual benefit of the school district and Dr. Malone, this contract matter should be brought up and some action taken now," Thompson said.

When the board voted on Warren Hasse's motion to extend Dr. Malone's contract for one year, from July 1, 1971, to July 1, 1972, with January, 1972, as the reconsideration date, four trustees, Hasse, Bob Carmichael, John Gikas and Dr. R.M. Hampton, voted yes. Thompson voted no. There was no discussion on the motion.

"I am grateful for this vote of confidence," Dr. Malone said.

"As long as I am the superintendent of schools here in Pampa, I expect to continue to work for the improvement of education. Much has been accomplished with the cooperative effort of a dedicated school staff in the past two and one-half years. I assure you of the same team effort toward achieving our goals."

The 15-minute board meeting, one of the shortest on record for Pampa school trustees, is the first in a series of three sessions to consider faculty contracts. Principals' contracts are to be considered in February and teachers contracts in March.

Solons Like Smith's Unique Plan On Tax But Doubt It Will Work

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Gov. Preston Smith, who vetoed a tax bill two years ago because it provided money for only one year, has recommended a one-year tax bill himself this time, according to legislators who have taken time to study the governor's tax package.

Gov. Ben Barnes said the Smith proposals mean "a special session in 1972."

"The governor made a sound argument in favor of one-year financing," Barnes said. "I agree with him and that's why I'm for annual sessions and annual budgeting."

Smith did not advocate a one-year budget per se and is probably still against such a plan since he did veto a one-year bill during the last regular legislative session.

What Smith did come up with in his tax message to the joint legislative session Wednesday was a plan by which the state need not raise any new taxes for the next two years. But Smith's plan depends on two major acts and one of them the state has no control over.

Smith would have the state finance welfare programs only until July 1, 1972, and then turn the entire program over to the federal government. There is some question, however, about whether the federal government would accept it.

Sen. W. T. Moore, D-Bryan, said this part of the Smith plan is a "can of worms."

"Congress is not going to do it," Moore said. "It would be wonderful if they did, but I don't think they will."

Barnes didn't think the Republican administration in Washington would receive the proposal with open arms.

"President Nixon has grave economic problems of his own," Barnes said. "With a $16 billion deficit they do not have the money right now to take over the state's share of welfare. But I'm certainly for that and I plan to work hard for it."

The federal government would also find it difficult to assume the burden of Texas' welfare program without doing the same for the other 49 states.

"I think we will approve the governor's program then have to have a special session to bail ourselves out because I don't think Congress is going to take over the entire welfare program," said Sen. Charles Wilson, D-Lufkin.

The other part of Smith's plan calls for issuing $500 million in bonds to help finance public school needs and to build six higher educational institutions created by the last legislature.

House Speaker Gus Mutscher, who along with Barnes said they will give Smith's proposals a full run in the legislature, said he was "very impressed" by the governor's proposals.

"It presented some new ideas and showed a great deal of advance work on his part," Mutscher said. "We will give it a fair run in the House, I promise you."

Other reaction was varied.

Rep. Lane Denton, D-Waco: "It is an interesting way to get the legislature off the hook on tax bills, but I will have to take a close look at it before I can decide whether to support it."

Rep. Curtis Graves, D-Houston: "He's just avoiding the inevitable. We've gotta raise some taxes. How can he second guess and anticipate Congress taking over welfare when he can't even second guess the Texas Legislature?"

House Tax Committee Chairman Ben Atwell, D-Dallas: "Passing and selling bonds to build buildings is one thing. But passing bonds to pay salaries is another."

Sen. Moore: "I favor anything that keeps us from having to pass a tax bill. I don't believe the people of Texas are in a mood for a tax bill."

Rep. James Nugent, D-Kerrville: "If we won't accept the responsibility of passing a tax bill, then we shouldn't be passing spending legislation."

Rep. Ralph Wayne, D-Plainview: "I favor spending the permanent school money. It's like having $800 million in a savings account and starving to death because you can't transfer it to a checking account."

Sen. O. H. Harris, R-Dallas: "I'm not for deficit spending. It is just a quagmire to get into. The whole speech is just a government of crisis to crisis. He is handling the state's affairs like he handles his own personal affairs."

House Appropriations Committee Chairman W. S. Heatly, D-Paducah: "The governor has made a most courageous suggestion. It is unique, but it certainly deserves every consideration."

Nixon Puts Okay On Price's Bill

A bill introduced in October by Congressman Bob Price of Pampa to change staffing requirements for small hospitals has been signed into law by President Nixon.

Under previous regulations, hospitals could not collect payments from Medicare unless at least one registered nurse was on duty during each of the three 8-hour hospital shifts, Price explained. "This new law will make it possible for 50-bed and under hospitals to treat Medicare patients if they provide twenty-four hour nursing service by licensed vocational nurses when registered nurses are not on duty."

Price introduced the legislation on behalf of the many hospital administrators, doctors, nurses and concerned citizens throughout the 18th District in Texas who have been concerned about the problem.

TURNING THE WORLD upside down is David Camp's specialty. He not only can do it this way, but the medical world is topsy-turvy, thanks to a daring transplant operation. Bone marrow from his sister, Doreen, 10, was twice transplanted into David's body so that missing blood-forming cells might develop. Otherwise David, then a healthy baby with a hidden birth defect, was doomed. Eleven of his cousins had died before reaching their first birthdays.

VICTIM OF BONE DISEASE

Story Of David Camp's Survival Is Told In Film Named 'Decision'

EDITOR'S NOTE: January is March of Dimes Month. To help spread the word of the National Foundation, program chairman of the various clubs in Gray County are asked to schedule this 17-minute film, "Decision." It does not have to be January, but we hope in the near future. To arrange a date for a representative of the National Foundation to speak and show your group this film call: Emmett Saltzman, Gray County chairman, 669-2581.

form blood cells whose function is to fight disease. Unless something could be done, the boy would probably succumb to the first minor infection that overtook him.

Something was done. The story of David Camp's survival is told in a new 17-minute film, "Decision," produced by the National Foundation March of Dimes. The actors are the Camp family and pioneering medical scientists at the University of Minnesota who saved the lad's life. It is also the dramatic story of an authentic breakthrough in medical science: David Camp was given the first successful bone marrow transplant in history for a disease known to be inherited and, until now, invariably fatal.

Produced with the cooperation of the University of Minnesota Hospitals, the Meriden (Conn.) Hospital, and station WSTP-TV in Minneapolis-St. Paul, the educational film takes the audience behind the scenes in both the Camp home in Wallingford, Conn., and the hospitals. In the film, the family relive the time when they had to face the most appalling of tragedies — the possible death of a baby because of a birth defect. The ending is triumphant, thanks to modern research by dedicated men and to the courage of a steel plant worker, his wife and their 10-year-old daughter, Doreen.

The girl's bone marrow was twice transplanted to her baby brother.

"Several weeks after the second transplant," Dr. Richard N. Gatti recalls, "we were very encouraged and felt that we could now begin to think in terms of a normal life for David."

Dr. Robert A. Good, world-renowned immunologist at the University of Minnesota, developed the bone marrow transplant technique aided by Dimes grants.

Their optimism was justified. Today, David is a thriving, healthy boy, the first with this birth defect to live beyond his first birthday.

Directors Named By Rotary Club

Members of the Pampa Rotary Club recently voted for directors of their board. The results were announced yesterday at the group's noon meeting at Coronado Inn.

Re-elected to the board were: Rev. Sam Hulseley, Milo Carlson and Paul Payne. Newly-elected to the board were: John Reeve, Don Lytle, Otis Nace and Charles Zlomke. Bill Ledbetter, club president, is automatically a member of the board.

The board will meet and elect a club president to be installed at the end of Ledbetter's term.

The program yesterday was provided by the "Medicine Show" of Frank Phillips College, a singing group, James Dillard, president of FPC, spoke briefly about the college and introduced Mrs. Evelyn Hubbard Mrs. Hubbard, head of the Fine Arts Department, presented eight of her students to sing for the club.

Members of the Medicine Show are former graduates of Pampa, Borger and Phillips high schools currently enrolled at FPC.

Oilwell Servicing Group Schedules Meet In Perryton

PERRYTON—The Panhandle Tri-State Chapter of Association of Oilwell Servicing Contractors will hold their quarterly meeting in Perryton, at the Perryton Country Club at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 28.

T. J. Vickery, chapter secretary, announced that the meeting will be Ladies' Night, held in conjunction with the election of officers for the coming year.

The program will consist of the fine choral group from Booker, "The Bank Notes" and a program called "Magic Sulfate of Oil & Gas" detailing by-products of the industry.

Postal Strike In Britain Continues

LONDON (UPI) —The postal workers union, successful in bringing the nation's mails to a virtual standstill, appealed today to the world's postal unions to boycott British telephone and Telex calls.

The post office in Britain also controls telephone and Telex communications, but the strike has been only partially successful in those fields.

With the country's first postal and telecommunications walk-out in its second day, the state-run Post Office Corp. and the 230,000-member Union of Post Office Workers waited for each other to make the first move at ending the dispute.

The union wants a 15-20 per cent pay raise. The post office has offered 8 per cent.

The government's emergency committee decided Wednesday night to take a wait-and-see attitude on the strike, government sources said. They said there was no question at the moment of its stepping in with troops or transport to run postal services.

The government was hoping inconveniences caused by the strike would bring public pressure on union leaders to end the walkout—a tactic it found successful in ending the recent electrical-workers strike. It regards the union's demands as inflationary.

No talks were scheduled between the two sides.

Tom Jackson, general secretary of the postal union, said he had asked the Post, Telephone and Telegraph International, based in Brussels not to accept messages and calls relayed from Britain. He said some operators in the United States and Australia already have complied.

Area Officials Tour Pampa Hospital Wing

DALLAS (UPI)—An investigation of three banks named as a defendant in the suit.

Barnes said he had a $60,000 loan paid up at the Dallas Bank last July 1. "But he maintained he had no other involvements with banks or firms controlled by Frank W. Sharp of Houston, a central figure in the SEC's investigation."

The suit, filed in Dallas by the SEC, charges Gov. Preston Smith, his close associate Dr. Elmer Baum of Austin and other state officials shared in huge short-term profits from the quick turnover of stock in National Bankers Life Insurance Company.

The SEC charges the stock was manipulated by former Texas Attorney General Waggoner Carr, Houston financier Sharp, Austin businessman John Osorio and a number of other persons in order to enrich themselves and to influence 1969 legislation dealing with bank-deposit insurance.

Area Officials Tour Pampa Hospital Wing

For the monthly meeting Wednesday of Panhandle District of Texas Hospital Association, 24 area hospital administrators attended a program at Highland General Hospital and toured the hospital's new addition.

Claude Webster of Austin, director of the Shared Insurance Programs of the Texas Hospital Association, was guest speaker for the program which was directed by Wes Langham, administrator of Highland General Hospital.

Miss Dorothy Bloomer, assistant administrator of St. Anthony's Hospital in Amarillo, is chairman of the Panhandle district of 26 counties this year.

Lt. Governor Reported To Be Also Involved In Scheme Of Stock Fraud

DALLAS (UPI)—An investigation of three banks named as a defendant in the suit.

Barnes said he had a $60,000 loan paid up at the Dallas Bank last July 1. "But he maintained he had no other involvements with banks or firms controlled by Frank W. Sharp of Houston, a central figure in the SEC's investigation."

The suit, filed in Dallas by the SEC, charges Gov. Preston Smith, his close associate Dr. Elmer Baum of Austin and other state officials shared in huge short-term profits from the quick turnover of stock in National Bankers Life Insurance Company.

The SEC charges the stock was manipulated by former Texas Attorney General Waggoner Carr, Houston financier Sharp, Austin businessman John Osorio and a number of other persons in order to enrich themselves and to influence 1969 legislation dealing with bank-deposit insurance.

Governor Smith Denies Wrongdoing In Alleged Stock Manipulation Case

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Gov. Preston Smith, connected by the Securities and Exchange Commission with a fraudulent tax scheme, says "it's all right" if the legislature passes a code of ethics for state officials.

Smith also said Wednesday he did not think he was guilty of any conflict of interest in connection with the SEC suit and he did not believe the public's confidence in government has been altered by the stock fraud case.

The case charges Smith and his close associate Dr. Elmer C. Baum shared in huge short term profits from the quick turnover of stock in National Bankers Life Insurance Company.

The SEC further charges the stock was manipulated in order to enrich the manipulators and to influence 1969 legislation concerning bank-deposit insurance.

Smith said he saw no conflict of interest in sharing half of the $125,000 profit he made with Dr. Baum, chairman of the State Democratic Executive Committee and a member of the state banking board. Smith said he vetoed the bills the alleged stock manipulators wanted adopted.

Smith and Baum made the $125,000 profit about the same time Smith vetoed the bill and Baum went on the banking board. But they just purchased $275,000 worth of this stock a short time earlier, with money borrowed, without collateral, from the Sharpstown State Bank in Houston, one of the defendant banks. Baum handled the transaction for Smith although the governor co-signed for the loan.

"I think it's all right" if the legislature passes a code of ethics bill, Smith said.

"I doubt if it would be too effective," he said. "I have nothing against an ethics bill. It might create a better atmosphere."

Smith said in reality he never profited from the deal at all since the $125,000 was used to pay off debts from investments he said did not turn out so well.

Smith and Baum are partners in an investment venture. Baum does all the bookkeeping and investing for both.

Smith said he remembered co-signing the note and knew what it was going to be used for. "He (Baum) just said it was a good deal so I signed it," Smith said.

Smith was asked why Baum sold the stock on Sept. 12, less than two months after they bought it.

"My guess is that Dr. Baum needed some money to pay some bills in our account," Smith said. "We have been operating this account since 1962 and it is my guess that over this period we have suffered a net loss of about $50,000 and $60,000."

"We operate over the year and at the end of the year if we have anything in the account we split it," he said. "I can assure you that lately we haven't been splitting anything."

The governor was also asked if the alleged stock fraud may be grounds for a state investigation.

"It may be... I just don't know," he said. "A lot of this stuff came as a complete surprise to me. About all I know about it is what I read in the paper. I even thought Gov. Allen Shivers still owned National Bankers."

"I just know that my business actions are all right," the governor said. "I just don't know about this whole thing. I probably will pay more attention to my stock investments in the future."

Former Governor Said To Have Told SEC He Persuaded Smith To Veto Bill

DALLAS, Tex. (UPI) — It was learned Wednesday former Gov. Allen Shivers told the SEC he played an important part in persuading Gov. Smith to veto the banking bill only three weeks after Smith allowed the legislature to pass it.

Smith, who made a profit of between $62,500 and $125,000 on a quick sale of an insurance stock days before his veto, said he saw no conflict of interest in the transaction.

The SEC said other persons making a large profit in similar sales of National Bankers Life Stock in 1969 were House Speaker Gus F. Mutscher; Rep. W. S. "Bill" Heatly; D-Paducah; Rep. Tommy Shannon, D-Fort Worth; two of Mutscher's aides; and Dr. Baum, chairman of the State Democratic Executive Committee.

Shivers said in a Jan. 11 affidavit he asked Smith "three or four times" to veto the banking bill because it was "not needed" and would cost the banking community money. The former governor said he first learned of the bill a day or two after it passed the legislature and immediately called Smith and advised him to veto it.

Shivers said he was not aware of other efforts to influence Smith's actions on the bill.

Federal district Judge Sarah T. Hughes granted every single request contained in the SEC's application for a temporary restraining order against the defendants. Her order Tuesday halted all sales of unregistered stock in the defendant companies.

U. S. Attorney Eldon B. Mahon of Fort Worth said Wednesday his office was "watching the matter closely."

"We are certainly keeping right on top of this situation and are aware of what's going on but at this point, there's no action, we'll let the chips fall where they may," he said.

U.S. Attorney Anthony J. P. Farris in Houston said FBI agents are presenting testimony and evidence to a federal grand jury concerning the allegations in the SEC suit.

"I can't tell you what it is about while the investigation is in progress," Farris said. "But we won't be through this week."

The suit alleges federal securities laws were violated in furthering the scheme. If so, criminal charges could be filed against one or more of the defendants. At present, the case is a civic one.

Washington Window

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Senior Editor
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Lewis G. Robinson has been called a great many things in his lifetime, but he has never been accused of being an Uncle Tom.
He has been standing up for the rights of black people since he was a little boy growing up in Decatur, Ala.
He moved to Cleveland in his late teens and for many years has been the most widely admired and most frequently denounced black activist in the riot-scarred Hough section.
So he speaks with some authority when he says that the racism of Northern cities is in some respects even worse than that of the Deep South.
"There is more racial understanding in the South," says Robinson. The Southern white man, in many instances, obeyed segregation laws because he figured that's the way it is and he was not going to buck the tide, and he would tell you so. But he respected you as an individual.
"In the North, whites did not want to get to know a black man. They jumped us all together and spoke of black people as a whole. The Southern white always spoke more honestly when he spoke of blacks, because he had intimate knowledge of and respect for certain blacks. So he never spoke in generalities about the 'Negro community' in the way that Northern whites did.
Robinson does not gloss over the discrimination and outright cruelty which racism has inflicted and continues to inflict on Negroes in the South. But even at its worst, he says, racial antagonism in the South is tempered by the fact that blacks and whites know each other as individual human persons.
"Northerners are more hypocritical about it," he says. "In the South, they have segregated neighborhood schools, and it's the same, identical thing. Northerners say, 'Yes, you can move into a white neighborhood,' but if you do, they all pick up and move away from you."
These observations are from Robinson's newly published autobiography, "The Making of a Man."
Robinson is not a ranting rabble-rouser. He is a courageous, dedicated man who triumphed over enormous obstacles to earn a law degree, and then sacrificed the hope of a lucrative legal career to become a community organizer in a poverty-ridden urban ghetto.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—The recovery of profits in first half of this year will be better than the skeptical investor expects, according to the Argus Research Corp. The firm expects confidence to rise within the investment community as these factors become clearer. Although most of the recent advance has been centered around financially strong companies, Argus foresees a widening of interest developing and producing "attractive issues ... in virtually every type of business."
The market is tired after the two-month long steep rise. Indicator Digest warns. The newsletter says short term indicators are "negative" and feels a short term correction is "likely." However, it adds, the long-term outlook is "still decidedly bullish" and it urges investors to "lighten up positions to establish buying power at pullback prices."

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I usually agree with you, but not this time. You said, "The old lady must be off her rocker," because she wanted her married son to come to see her alone some time so just the two of them could talk without the daughter-in-law being present.

Did it ever occur to you that the mother and son might like to visit by themselves? I have three married sons and I rarely have a chance to talk to them alone. Their wives stick to them like glue every minute, and there are some things (strictly family matters) that I don't want to discuss in front of their wives.

Why can't daughters-in-law realize this and get lost once in a while when they visit their in-laws with their husbands?

PHILADELPHIAN DEAR PHILADELPHIAN: I fully understand that mothers (and fathers, too) may want to have a private word with their married children, but in the case you mentioned, the mother (in bidding good-bye to her son and his wife) loudly said to her son, so that both could hear, "Next time, come alone so we can talk!"

Now that wasn't very nice, was it? The lady had to be unbelievably unkind, incredibly insensitive, or she wasn't playing with a full deck.

DEAR ABBY: I am a single girl of 26 who has been in love with a married man of 60 for eight years. His wife pays no attention to him, but she refuses

Scouting Scoops

Approximately 350 Girl Scout professional workers affiliated with Girl Scout councils in a 10-state area participated recently in an all Professional Staff Meeting, at the University of Oklahoma Center for Continuing Education, Norman, Okla., according to Mrs. Richard Stowers, council president.

Attending from Quivira Council were Miss Celia Fowler, executive director, Mrs. T. M. Whiteley, district director, and Mrs. Jack Duke, district director from Borger.

The event theme "Four-Three-Two-One-Where?", had vast implications as delegates explored individual goals and objectives in relation to the council tasks in the decade of the 1970's.

Region V's geographic area includes the 10-state area of: Arkansas, Colorado, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas and Wyoming.

One program dealt with two issues, "Pot, Pills and Patrols", a session to gain new insights into causes of drug abuse and ways a Girl Scout Council might alleviate the problem.

A simultaneous session dealt with "effective Environmental Effort."

Six group sessions involved registrants in talking together to discuss problems and exchange practices.

Another session was entitled "Prediction, Pulsation and Propulsion . . . Where Do We Go From Here" and To The Year 2000. "Space Technology In The Future" was presented by Joseph P. Loftus, Jr., National Aeronautics and Space Administration, Houston. "As I See It," was presented by Mrs. Edward H. Tenison, Jr., Chairman, Region V, Dallas, and Miss Julie Carol Krum, Moingona Girl Scout Council, district adviser, Des Moines, Iowa.

A Standard First Aid Course will be offered for all Girl Scout adult volunteers on Jan. 25, 27, 29, and Feb. 2 and 4, from 7-9 p.m., at the North Fire Station. Ray Fisher will give the course and all interested adults may register by calling the Girl Scout office at 669-6862.

Girl Scout delegates to the Annual Council Meeting Jan. 30 are reminded to purchase their tickets by Friday. Adults interested in attending the dinner meeting at 7 p.m., at the First Methodist Church may also purchase their tickets at the Girl Scout office located on the second floor of City Hall. No tickets will be sold at the door.

Brownie Troop 44 toured the newspaper and learned about setting type, how the news comes in on the teletype, and how the paper is printed.

Mrs. Huey Prater, who lived in Amsterdam for nearly a year, shared home movies with Brownie Troop 29. The girls also had an opportunity to try on her wooden shoes, to see her doll collection, and to see Christmas ornaments from Germany.

Junior Troop 23, with Mrs. Robert Elliott as leader, began skating lessons Jan. 5.

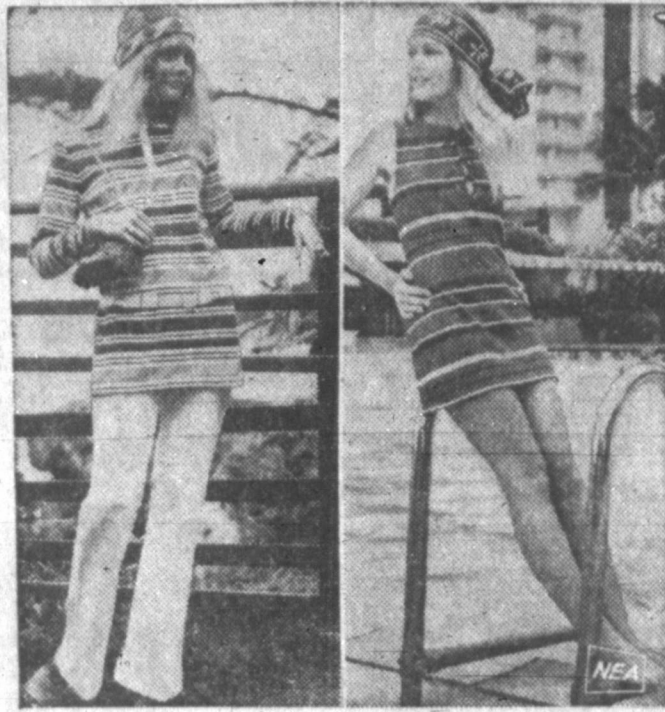

Junior Troop 71 began cooking lessons Jan. 13. The girls are learning to measure, break eggs, and read recipes, and are working on measuring charts. After their introduction to cooking, they prepared spaghetti and meat sauce and baked brownies under the supervision of Mrs. Henry Donahue. Mrs. Carl Lawyer is troop leader.

COMPANY SPECIALTY — Rice pudding takes on a new dimension when topped off with a crunchy, fruit and candy filled whipped cream. And, there's a tang of lemon in the rice pudding . . . guaranteed to add a final touch to this tempting dessert.

Create Family Favorites For Company

Traditional family foods are fun, often resulting in a lifetime of cherished memories. Why not share this fun with company, too?

Peach Brittle Rice Pudding was "created" by one family quite by accident, yet it has become their traditional way to serve rice pudding ever since.

Some peanut brittle candy was left over from the holiday season. Then a can of sliced peaches was opened by mistake. Rice pudding had been planned for dessert.

Rather than waste any of the goodies, they were added to whipped cream and used as a new topping for the rice pudding. The dessert became a conversation piece . . . a family tradition . . . one copied by friends and neighbors alike.

From a mother's point of view, this is a "good" dessert, since it utilizes the candy-sweet approach so popular with children, yet it provides nutrition — since it combines rice, eggs and milk. Also, rice is in plentiful supply — an economical ingredient.

Here's the recipe. Who knows it could become a tradition in your home, too.

PEACH BRITTLE RICE PUDDING
 3 cups cooked rice
 3 cups milk
 One-third cup sugar
 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
 3 eggs, beaten
 1 teaspoon vanilla
 1 can (1 lb. 13 oz.) sliced peaches, drained
 1 cup (½ pint) heavy cream, whipped
 ½ cup finely crushed peanut brittle
 ¼ teaspoon salt
 1 teaspoon lemon juice

Combine rice, milk, sugar, lemon rind and butter in medium saucepan. Cook and stir over medium heat until thick and creamy — about 20 minutes. Mix some of the rice mixture into the beaten eggs; stir all into the hot mixture and cook 1 minute longer. Add vanilla. Pour into large serving dish or individual serving dishes. Chill until ready to serve.

Drain peaches, reserving 10 of the slices for garnish. Then combine remaining peach slices with whipped cream, and finely crushed peanut brittle, salt and lemon juice. Spoon onto rice pudding. Garnish with reserved peach slices and pieces of peanut brittle. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Another family favorite that's perfect for company, too, is:

BEEF PIQUANT IN RICE RING
 2½ pounds boneless beef or lamb shoulder, cubed
 1½ teaspoons garlic salt
 ¼ teaspoon pepper
 2 Tbs. vegetable oil
 2 cups water
 1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
 1 package (½ oz.) spaghetti sauce mix
 2 green peppers, sliced
 Rice Ring
 Season meat with garlic salt and pepper. Brown on all sides in oil. Add water; cover and simmer 30 to 40 minutes or until tender. Stir in tomato sauce, spaghetti sauce mix and peppers. Continue cooking about 20 minutes. Serve in center of Rice Ring. Makes 8 servings.

RICE RINGS
 6 cups hot cooked rice
 2 cups hot seasoned green peas, drained
 One-third cup butter or margarine

Salt and pepper to taste. Combine all ingredients. Spoon into buttered 2-quart ring mold. Pack down tightly, pressing with back of spoon. Let stand two to three minutes before inverting onto heated serving dish.

Brussels Sprouts Brighten American Dinner Appetites

Brussels sprouts always is a bugaboo to pronounce. Fortunately, this Mediterranean favorite is much easier to cook and to eat.

American sprouts thrive along the California coast. They're at their best when lightly seasoned with herbs and served with grilled fish, meat or seafood.

Too often these little rose-like vegetables are overcooked and lose their crisp, crunchy appeal. Try Brussels Sprouts with Dill Hot or Brussels Sprouts alla Romano cold.

Hot or cold Brussels sprouts liven any dinner table.

BRUSSELS SPROUTS WITH DILL
 4 packages (10 ounces each) frozen Brussels sprouts
 One-third cup butter or margarine
 ½ cup white wine or chicken bouillon
 ¼ teaspoon salt
 1 tablespoon chopped fresh dill

Cook Brussels sprouts according to package directions; drain, if necessary. Melt butter in large skillet or chafing dish; stir in wine, salt and dill. Add Brussels sprouts and stir over low heat, 5 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

BRUSSELS SPROUTS ALLA ROMANO
 2 packages (10 ounces each) frozen Brussels sprouts
 Two-third cup olive or salad oil
 3 tablespoons wine

1 can (2 ounces) flat anchovies, drained and chopped
 Dash freshly ground black pepper
 Black ripe olives, for garnish

Cook Brussels sprouts according to package directions; drain, if necessary and place in large, shallow bowl; cool. Combine remaining ingredients, except olives, and pour over Brussels sprouts. Chill 2 hours, stirring occasionally; drain. Garnish with olives and serve with Herb Mayonnaise. Makes 6 servings.

HERB MAYONNAISE
 ¾ cup mayonnaise
 ¼ teaspoon tarragon
 1 clove garlic, crushed

1 tablespoon lemon juice
 Blend together all ingredients. Serve with chilled Brussels sprouts.

Business Today

By DEAN C. MILLER
UPI Business Editor
NEW YORK (UPI)—American industry now goes to school, literally, to improve its overseas image because of the growing importance of its foreign investments.

Latest Commerce Department figures put total U.S. assets overseas at $157.8 billion with industry's share of that investment a hefty $70.8 billion. The International Business Machines Corporation, considered the ultimate in U.S. business know-how, announced only a few days ago that 50.3 per cent of its total 1970 profits came from overseas earnings. That increase of almost 8 per cent from the previous year made foreign earnings king at IBM for the first time and was an indication of things to come.

Corporations with extensive foreign holdings turn to colleges and universities for advice on how to avoid the "Ugly American" tag. Many scour college campuses for management trainees with special foreign qualifications. Some send employees back to school to prepare them for critical overseas transfers.

Pioneer in such training schools has been the Thunderbird Graduate School of International Management near Phoenix. It has 6,000 graduates holding middle and top management slots from Moscow to Montivideo. Firms like Caterpillar, American Express and Union Carbide hire its graduates with only one purpose, to send them packing.

The Bernard Baruch College of the City University of New York has a program financed by the Commerce Department to prepare students for jobs in export departments of firms in international trade.

Last fall the University of Dallas established an international management program leading to a master of business administration degree. The course requires a candidate to go through an "externship" abroad for at least one semester with either a local national company or a foreign subsidiary of an American corporation. He would have to submit a thesis-like report dealing with that project, his work and his social experiences abroad.

American firms committed to the program include Texas Instruments, Honeywell Corp. and Republic National Bank. They will provide "externship" jobs starting sometime early

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—When it was disclosed a few weeks ago that the U.S. Navy was secretly working on a "surveillance and detection system using porpoises," most of us assumed the project had some sort of military significance.

Even a report that the porpoises were being taught to "distinguish between metals" failed to alert us to the true nature of the experiment.

Because the Pentagon was involved, we took it for granted that training marine mammals for underwater surveillance was a necessary step for national defense—like the TFX.

It was Dr. Smirnoff Deepthink of the Deepthink Institute for Applied Research and Storm Door Co. who finally revealed the connection between the Pentagon porpoise project and one of the nation's most vexing civilian problems.

At his laboratory this week, Dr. Deepthink unveiled a large glass tank of storm door panes and filled with sea water. Swimming about was a small but intelligent-looking porpoise.

"Gentlemen," Dr. Deepthink said proudly, "what you see before you is the nation's first practical yet foolproof airborne anti-hijacking system."

"I thought that was what it was, but I couldn't be sure," I said, for I was one of those present at the unveiling. "How does it work?"

"This porpoise," Dr. Deepthink explained, "has been trained in underwater surveillance and detection."

"A glass tank similar to the one you see here will be installed in an airport boarding lounge. As the passengers pass by to enter the lane, the porpoise will keep them under surveillance."

Foreign News Commentary

next year when the first class finishes resident academic studies and passes the Princeton foreign language examination in the language of the country involved.

It's all very important today's multi-national production world. With some U.S. businesses, like IBM, making more money from foreign holdings than domestic, the day probably will come when officers are picked from foreign rather than domestic offices. They're getting ready for that big day.

UPI Foreign News Analyst As Britain moves closer to membership in the European Common Market and creation of a single economic unit of 250 million people approaches reality, both the United States and the Soviet Union are giving increasing consideration to the effect this redrawing of the economic map of Europe will have upon them.

The Soviet Union never has favored the Common Market since it runs counter to the Soviets' preference for dealing with a Western Europe fragmented both economically and politically.

For years it sought to exploit French fears of a "revenge seeking" West Germany as the reef upon which to wreck the hope of European unity.

Within the last year it largely has abandoned that tactic, signing a non-aggression pact with the West Germans and holding out promises of vast trade opportunities in the hope of benefiting from German technical and economic aid and at the same time drawing the Germans away from their Common Market partners in the West.

Contrary to the Soviet view, the United States has always strongly supported the Common Market since its birth with the treaty of Rome in 1957, rating European unity above its economic cost to the United States. But, while retaining the same basic view, the United States has told the market countries it does not believe it should have to bear the costs of British entry.

For Britain the costs are expected to be high, estimated by a British White Paper at anywhere from $240 million to more than $2 billion annually. The United States wants to know just how Britain will foot the bill.

The United States also is worried about possible further trade discrimination, especially against U.S. agricultural sales to Europe which run to well over $1 billion annually.

In 1963, the United States and the Common Market crossed swords over levies against U.S. frozen chicken. That quarrel involved some $25 million, chicken feed indeed (to coin a metaphor) compared to today's larger issues.

The possibility of protectionist legislation in the United States, beginning with barriers against importation of foreign textiles and shoes, led instantly to threats of retaliation from Common Market nations which estimated the cost to them at $500 million.

They warned the United States that end results could be curbs against U.S. industrial activities in Europe.

The U.S. on its side has expressed "concern" to the Common Market countries over possible extension of preferential trading agreements to nine Commonwealth countries in Africa. It also wants talks on discrimination against American tobacco and citrus products.

In the larger picture, the United States also must consider the possibility that a unified market of 250 million people could become the world's most powerful trading bloc with interests not always coinciding with the United States'.

Inside Washington

By ARNOLD B. SAWISLAK
WASHINGTON (UPI)—When Daniel Patrick Moynihan went back to Harvard after two years at President Nixon's right hand, he delivered a short farewell that got primary attention as a Democrat's glowing tribute to his Republican boss.

But Moynihan said something else during that valedictory. It went like this:

"In a curious, persistent way our problem as a nation arises from a surplus of moral energy. Few peoples have displayed so intense a determination to define the most mundane affairs in terms of the most exalted principles, to see in any difficulty an ethical failing, to deem any success a form of temptation, and as if to ensure the perpetuation of the impulse, to take a painful pleasure in it all.

"Our great weakness is the habit of reducing the most complex issues to the most simplistic moralisms. About crime, about corruption. About liquor. About pot. About race horses. About the SST. Name race horses get into it?"

Difficult Drift
Getting the drift of what Moynihan says has been difficult more often than sometimes, so it might be best

In this case to approach the sentences above with questions rather than statements.

Is Moynihan warning Americans against trying to find good reasons for what we are doing? Is he saying a $4 billion federal subsidy for construction of a supersonic transport plane is a "mundane affair?"

What about the ethical component of American failures? Was Moynihan suggesting that the crime the nation has been unable to stem poses no ethical questions—whether in the nation's failure to build a society in which no man feels the need to steal or kill or in the acceptance of "human nature" with which some people accept the inevitability of violence and brutality?

And is there no temptation to arrogance in success? Does Moynihan mean Americans who have "made it" should adopt a posture of benign neglect toward those who have not? Or is he simply striking out at those who have suggested that the welfare program Moynihan helped shape is not quite a "success" when it offers a penniless family of four $2,400 a year to live on.

Simple Moralizing
And to whom was he talking when he called simple-moralizing an American weakness? Is there any chance that it was the President himself, who said "it is no longer enough to live and let live... now we must live and help live" in his 1970 State of the Union message and who said he would have no part of "forced integration" in his last news conference? Or was it those who cry such slogans as "power to the people" meaning "me" or "us" for "people?"

Finally, how in the world did race horses get into it?

It is not always possible to understand Moynihan's answers. In this case, it might have been helpful first to find out what were the questions.

WASHINGTON—Presidential Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, commenting on the use of U.S. aircraft in Cambodia: "I would not rule out the possibility of some U.S. aircraft ferrying supplies and some personnel (in Cambodia) but that has not taken place."

Television In Review

By RICK DUBROW
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Bing Crosby starred Tuesday night in a nifty horror tale of ABC-TV's "Movie of the Week"—a kindly old doctor who quietly does away with "troublemakers" to preserve a small town's outer perfection.

It's a pretty safe bet that this is another "Movie of the Week" that will get very big ratings. The popular series has done quite well with spooky tales and judicious use of oldtime stars—and Tuesday night's 90-minute story cleverly combined both factors.

The title of the program was "Dr. Cook's Garden," and the production was adapted from a play by the author of "Rosemary's Baby," Ira Levin. Art Wallace did the adaptation, and old pro Ted Post directed with a sure hand.

That Crosby is a very good actor is no surprise to anyone who has watched his movie work over the years. Like his old pal, Bob Hope, he tosses off with consummate skill—and ease—the kind of acting performances that many young film hopefuls make too much of a fuss over.

It is a skill that comes from a superbly natural sense of understatement, and no one who saw Crosby in the movie "The Country Girl" will easily forget his portrayal of Grace Kelley's pathetic husband, or his classic hangover scene as a human being at the end of his rope.

In "Dr. Cook's Garden" Tuesday, Crosby portrayed a physician who had literally appointed himself guardian angel of a beautiful little Vermont town—and, with no one aware of it, medically murdered anyone who threatened to blemish the town either by ill deeds or the kind of illness that would bring much long-ranged unhappiness. The moral of seeking such perfection was made clearly relevant to today's real problems.

This point, however, was not overdone. It was basically a spooky entertainment. And Crosby's comeuppance in the tale began when his young protegee returned from medical school, hoping to take over part of the old man's practice and ease his burden. The young man is rejected, however, by Crosby, who loves him like a son but wants to remain the private god of the town. The more the protegee (Frank Converse) stays on, the more he realizes what is happening—finally forcing matters out into the open.

Converse was very good. And Crosby's particular triumph was, with the aid of Wallace's astute script, in making the doctor's horrible views and acts somehow understandable as being an act of love for the town in his warped mind—and, at the same time, illustrating how such desperate grasping for "purity" in an imperfect world was linked directly with the thinking of, say, an Adolf Hitler.

Business Today

By DEAN C. MILLER
UPI BUSINESS EDITOR
NEW YORK (UPI)—Many businessmen seem to feel they must become more involved with politics and social problems if the transition from Vietnam to peace is to be successful and profitable.

This theme was heard often at a recent "dinner dialog" hosted in New York by the Businessmen's Educational Fund, Entitled "How Will the Economy React When Peace Breaks out?"

The dialog attracted 200 business leaders and graduate business students.

"If we still favor private initiative, it behooves us to address ourselves immediately to how we can take the leadership in rebuilding the nation (after Vietnam)," said Louis B. Lundborg, board chairman of the Bank of America, the nation's biggest.

Lundborg emphasized that such action should be taken in partnership with youth.

He was more worried about the business community's ability to accept and adjust to changes abroad in the land than its ability to ride out the transition.

Lundborg noted that slack will be taken up over the next five years by the $71 billion needed to clean up air and water, the $200 billion to meet housing needs, the $250 billion for training workers and the untold billions needed to rebuild the inner cities.

"The long-term outlook is exciting for people and companies willing to embrace change," said Virgil B. Day, vice president of Business Environment, the General Electric Co. "Society is demanding a peace dividend. Its values are changing and we'd better learn to change with them."

Howard Samuels, former Undersecretary of Commerce and chairman of New York's Off-Track Betting Corp., said American businessmen must "roll up their sleeves" and get involved with making political institutions responsive. "They're not today," said Samuels.

"Business executives must accept leadership, not just in the companies they work for, but in the society of which they are a part," said Courtney C. Brown, moderator of the dialog and Dean Emeritus of the Graduate School of Business at Columbia University. For one thing, Brown feels business has a responsibility to improve government as well as work with it.

Day seemed to sum up the feeling of his peers when he asked: "How do we take the myth of the military industrial complex and transfer it into the reality of the social industrial complex?"

Randy Matson Is Chosen World Athlete For 1970

Randy Matson, the young Pampan with international acclaim in track and field has been selected as the 1970 World Athlete of the Year in track and field. Only 25-years old and holder of the World Record for the shot put and Olympic champion, Matson was selected for the honors in a public announcement Wednesday afternoon at an Amarillo Chamber of Commerce meeting.

The award, presented by Track and Field News, was made via a long distance telephone call by Bert Nelson, president of the publishing company.

Balloting for the honor is world wide with the Track and Field News considered to be the ultimate authority on track and field internationally.

Matson, raised in Pampan and a graduate of Pampan High School, attended Texas A & M University, returned to the Panhandle to become executive secretary of the West Texas State University Buffalo Club. He had ranked in the top five places for the honor since 1966 and has served as a college and amateur athlete in track and field since that time.

In the international balloting for the 1970 honoree Matson received eight first place votes and 66 points out of a possible 100. His nearest competitor, Wolfgang Nordwig, an East German pole vaulter tallied three first place votes. Others in the top five honored were Kerry O'Brien of Australia, a long distance runner; Ni Chih-Chin, a Chinese high-jumper and Jean Claude Nallet, a French intermediate hurdles champion.

Bert Nelson will travel to the Panhandle to present Randy a plaque in Amarillo Feb. 1. At this time a game between West Texas State University and Weber State University of Utah will be played in Amarillo Civic Center Coliseum.

In addition to the world honor Matson was named United

During the news conference Wednesday Nelson stressed the only consideration used in the balloting is the statistical output of the individual performances and that more emphasis was placed on competitive records.

The current issue of Track and Field News will go on sale today with a full layout of the Pampan.

Randy Matson has broken his world record of 71 feet 5 1/2 inches several times but each time a technicality popped up, disqualifying the toss.

Matson will be competing in a San Francisco track meet Friday and in an Albuquerque meet Saturday night, his next two scheduled meets.

Matson, tall and shy, thrives on competition. After the Mexico games in 1969 he was seriously considering retirement but in 1970 he came back stronger than ever.

Track and Field News says in today's issue, "Matson's winning performance in the 1970 competition averaged 68-6.4, more than a foot better than anybody else reached in a single meet in 1970. In fact, nine of Randy's wins topped the second best man and his poorest effort of the year was headed only by the 67-5 push of East German Harmut Briesnick."

Matson has topped his event in the Track and Field balloting five of the last six years. He failed only in 1969 when he did not make an all-out effort following the Olympic triumph in Mexico. Only in 1967 did Matson have a better year and then he finished as runner-up to Jim Ryan in the Ballot. He is presently third in the T&FN balloting for athlete of the decade of the 60s.

Matson confirmed Wednesday that his eye is on the 1972 Olympics in Munich.

When he accepted the Buffalo Club job he also became an administrative assistant to WT athletic director Joe Kerbel who, along with Boyce Box, president of the Buff Club and Randy's father Charles and his brother Charles Jr. were, on hand for the ceremonies at the Chamber of Commerce conference room Wednesday.

His wife, in the magazine article authored by Nelson says, "He's a real good father and a real good husband, just a wonderful man." The Matson's have two children.

At 272 pounds, Matson says he is at his heaviest, but that he is having less trouble keeping his weight and he feels good. Maggard, who is now a track coach, says Matson has the opportunity to hit 73 feet and "make everybody chase it." He also thinks it likely Matson will leave the 16-pound shot a distance of 75 feet.

Matson told Nelson, "I enjoy working out more this year. It's more convenient here in Amarillo." Matson returns almost every week-end to his home town of Pampan and practices at Pampan High School.

Quoting Nelson's article, "Randy Matson's yesterday's already stamp him as one of the sport's all-time supermen. Today, Jan. 22, as this magazine is published and when he officially becomes world athlete of the year, he goes after still another world mark. Tomorrow? As they say, only time — and distance will tell."

UPI Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UPI)—Yogi Berra, Ralph Kiner and Early Wynn, three of the greatest stars of the 1940s and 1950s, are the most likely candidates to be voted into baseball's Hall of Fame today by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Jack Lang, secretary-treasurer of the BBWAA, will announce the results of this year's balloting at 11 a.m. EST. As many as 10 players could be named but the total is almost certain to be much lower inasmuch as players must be named on 75 per cent of the ballots to be elected.

Berra was eligible for the first time this year but Kiner and Wynn have been passed over by the writers' association in several elections. A player must be retired at least five years and not have finished his career prior to 1951 to be eligible in this election.

Berra, 45, was the American League's Most Valuable Player three times and played in a record 14 World Series as a star catcher for the New York Yankees from 1947 through 1963. He managed the Yankees to the 1964 American League pennant, then was fired after the Yankees lost a seven-game World Series to the St. Louis Cardinals. He made a handful of appearances for the New York Mets in 1965.

Berra hit 358 homers and had a .285 lifetime batting average. A squat, 5-foot, 8-inch, 190-pounder from St. Louis, he was regarded as one of the most dangerous clutch hitters of his time. Although awkward in his early seasons, he developed into an accomplished catcher.

Kiner, who played most of his career with the Pittsburgh Pirates, led the National League in homers in seven seasons, from 1946 through 1952, and hit a total of 369 during his 10-year career. He had his best seasons in 1947 when he hit 51 homers and batted .313 and in 1949 when he hit 54 homers and batted .310. His lifetime batting average, including two seasons with the Chicago Cubs and Cleveland Indians at the end of his career, was .279.

Wynn, 51, compiled a career record of 300-244 during a 23-year pitching career with the Washington Senators, Cleveland Indians and Chicago White Sox. He won 20 games in five seasons, with a top of 23 in 1952 and 1954 for the Indians and a 22-10 mark for the White Sox in 1959 which earned him the major leagues' Pitcher of the Year award.

Berra is now a coach with the Mets. Kiner is a radio-TV broadcaster for the Mets and Wynn is pitching coach for the Minnesota Twins.

Dave Meggyesy Talks Football, Not Violence

Dave Meggyesy

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
NEW YORK (NEA)—What turns people off about Dave Meggyesy right away is the way he looks. The hair strings down over his ears almost shoulder length and flops over his right eye, old Veronica Lake style. The beard hides classically handsome features. The shirt would go well in Oregon woods. Faded jeans and untanned boots complete the ensemble.

What turns them off even more is the thrust of what he says—that football, the plaything of middle America, is a microcosm of all that's wrong with society. Dave, of course, said it in a controversial book, "Out of Their League." And he continues to say it publicly to anybody who'll listen.

But the odd thing about Dave Meggyesy is that, although he spurned the sport in which he made his living for seven years, at the peak age of 29, he can't turn himself off completely from its appeal.

"It's something you've done all your life," he says now, "and there is that attachment in performance. To be candid about it, I have thought of playing again. There was a dead time between when I finished the book and began to have to relate to it. I began to think, 'Could I go back?' And, 'How could I go back?' Working it through in my mind."

Essentially serious, he'll twinkle a little smile to confess he has fudged and sneaked a look periodically at pro football games, in person and on television, and most recently the Super Bowl.

"Having played in the league," he says lightly, "you're always aware of other linebackers. You watch guys playing that same position. You think, 'Man, if I were traded, I could make that play.' Or that guy's good. I've come to appreciate Church Howley's play, for example." (Howley is the right linebacker, Dave's old position, for the Dallas Cowboys.)

And he also appreciates the mental gymnastics that can be a part of football.

Linebackers, you will bend over in this stance. Your keys will be thus and thus and thus. I found it frankly very easy to play. One of the factors in '68, when I had a good year, was not thinking.

"I got in this hassle with Voris in '69 when we're playing Minnesota. They were going down the field, running '17 slants on us. On goal line defenses we used to have an option 'slice' call. Larry Wilson, the safety, and I would reverse assignments. Larry would pinch inside, and I'd go across the field and take the lead back blocking. Larry filled in, and there'd be the ball carrier.

"Now it was third down on the 1-yard line. Larry and I turned to each other and said simultaneously, 'Let's slice it.' We made the play and they didn't score.

"The next Tuesday we thought we're really going to get a pat on the butt for thinking on our feet. Voris is running the film and stops it at that play. He says, 'What the hell is that?' He picks up the notebook dramatically, leafs through the goal line defenses and says, 'I don't find that in my notebook.'

"I said, 'It's a slice call.' "A slice call? I don't see any slice call."

"At that point, I'm intimidated by the whole scene. I look to Drulis and Wilson and they're not going to say anything. The whole point of it was we're being chewed out. And they said, 'Meggyesy, you think too much. Play the darn defense the way they're in the book.'

The significant point here is that when racial tension on the Cardinals was exposed a few years ago, Drulis was targeted as the chief culprit and apologized to the squad.

The defensive philosophy of the Cardinals changed in 1968, when Dick Voris joined the staff.

"Now we're going to play a 4-3 defense," mocks Meggyesy. "Linemen will stand with your feet this distance apart."

Arnold Palmer Is Attempting To Get An Early Tourney Win

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI)—Arnold Palmer, attempting to get an early tournament victory this year, tees off as the sentimental favorite today in the first round of the $125,000 Phoenix Open at the Arizona Country Club.

Palmer, who turned 41 last year, failed to win a tournament in 1970—the first time this has happened in his 16-year career as a pro.

He managed, however, to win more than $100,000 for the fifth consecutive year, finishing in the top five eight times and in the top ten 12 times.

He was second last week in the Crosby to young Tom Shaw, who is here to see if he can continue his winning streak. Palmer had planned to skip this one but decided he was playing so well he would be unwise to take a rest.

Others taking their shots on this par 35-36-71, 6,276-yard course include Billy Casper, Bob Lunn, Gene Littler (a three-time Phoenix winner) and defending champion Dale Douglass.

Palmer won this tournament in 1963. The last time he entered was in 1966.

George Allen Takes Five Former Assistants Along

WASHINGTON (UPI)—George Allen, new head coach of the Washington Redskins, today hired five of his former assistants at Los Angeles to join him in the same capacity.

Allen also retained Mike McCormick, Redskin assistant during the Bill Austin regime.

The five aides being brought from the Rams are offensive coaches Ted Marchbroda, Boyd Dowler and Marv Levy and defensive assistants Vern Torgeson and Joe Sullivan. Sullivan also was designated administrative assistant by Allen.

McCormick, a former all-pro offensive tackle with the Cleveland Browns, has now been an assistant under four Redskins coaches. He began with Otto Graham and then was kept on by the late Vince Lombardi and Austin, working with both the offensive and defensive units.

Cassius Clay To Fight Exhibition

DAYTON, Ohio (UPI)—Cassius Clay has cancelled his exhibition fight scheduled for Friday here, but promoters say the former heavyweight champion will fulfill his obligation after the March 8 title bout with Joe Frazier—whether he wins or not.

Between $20,000 and $25,000 worth of tickets to see Clay, who prefers to be known as Muhammad Ali, will have to be refunded.

Total Of 64 Players Will Appear On Ballots For 71 All-Star Game

NEW YORK (UPI)—A total of 64 players' names will be on the ballots which baseball fans will use to select the starting lineups in the 71 All-Star game, it was announced Wednesday by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Kuhn, in announcing that the fans will select the teams again, moved to avert another "Rico Carty incident" by expanding the list of names which will appear on the ballots.

Carty's name did not appear on the 1970 ballot although he was leading the National League in batting at the time of the voting and wound up winning the batting title with a .366 average. Carty made the team on the strength of write-in votes but Kuhn, who organized the computerized voting system, was criticized for the oversight. He pointed out that the ballots had to be made up before the season because of technical problems.

The 1971 ballot will have eight nominations for each of the infield and catching positions and 24 for the three outfield berths compared with last year's system of six for each of the four infield and catching positions and 18 for the three outfield berths. The write-in provision will be continued.

Kuhn announced that the Gillette Company will underwrite the preparation, distribution and tabulation of the ballots, which will be available at all major and minor league parks and in Gillette retail outlets. The All-Star game will be played Tuesday night, July 13, in Detroit.

WILLIAMS HONORED... ATLANTA (UPI)—Chicago Cubs' outfielder Billy Williams has been named "player of the year" by the Atlanta Braves 400 club, the team's booster organization.

CARDS' NEW CLOTHES... ST. LOUIS (UPI)—The St. Louis Cardinals announced Wednesday the team members will wear newly-designed baseball uniforms this year.

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capability.

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

Officials' Pay Examples

It's small wonder that the people who pay the bills are restive. The pay for the top politicians goes up and up, but the politicians seem to have no consideration for the rest of the folks who must pay the bills.

Just recently, President Nixon approved higher pensions for past presidents—and their widows, and increases for most federal workers. So-called blue collar workers, however, got no increase because a boost of them was called "inflationary."

Under the new pension law, former Presidents Lyndon Baines Johnson and Harry Truman will have their pensions boosted 140 per cent from $25,000 to $60,000 a year. Widows of former presidents will have their pensions doubled, from $10,000 to $20,000. Only Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower on is drawing a pension, since Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy, widow of John F. Kennedy, has become Mrs. Aristotle Onassis.

Mr. Nixon also signed into law a bill which creates a council of federal employe representatives and a council of "independent" citizens to recommend the size of annual pay increases. The President can accept, reject or change the recommendations, but if he rejects the increases they can be overruled by Congress. At the same time, he ordered increases of civilian employes averaging 5.96 per cent and of base pay for military personnel of 7.9 per cent.

Whether these increases for government employes are justified is impossible to determine. Theoretically they are to bring the government workers up to comparable pay in civilian industry. We suspect that little consideration is given to holiday and pension and other benefits which government employes enjoy.

However, Mr. Nixon, who says he is attempting to check inflation and rising costs, is not in much of a position to block the pay rises for employes of the national government. Neither are the members of Congress. Mr. Nixon accepted a $100,000 a year increase in pay for himself, and Congress got itself a 41 per cent increase for its members, also pushing cabinet members to $80,000 each.

This has led to virtually all other government officials at all levels pushing their salaries up. As we have said, those in government can hardly expect tax paying workers to restrain themselves in demanding wage increases, with the examples they have seen of already highly paid officialdom continuing to boost their own salaries, pensions and other benefits.

Better Get That License

Sometimes it would seem that reports of activities of the Wonderful Wizards of Washington must have come from the imaginative minds of fiction writers. But "truth (about the bureaucracy) is stranger," it seems from our corner.

Here is a brief from the Wall

Street Journal: 'Cartridge belts as a women's fashion accessory become a controversial fad. The Internal Revenue Service warns retailers that, technically, they could be arrested for selling ammunition without a license.'

Honest, that's what the WSJ said!

Mao Schools For Struggle

China's mainland universities are for struggles. So reports the Jan. 3 Free China Weekly, published in Taiwan. An article by L. Chen tells of the Hopei radio broadcast in December which announced enrolling of more than 4,000 students in 22 universities of the North China province of Hopei. They were selected from among workers and peasants. The reporter commented that this would sound as if the mainland colleges were reopening, but went on to show that they are instead training camps for Maoism.

Recapping Peiping's educational reforms since 1949, he listed: Stage 1, from 1949 to 1957, with Russians invited to assist and implement Soviet texts and Soviet practices. Stage 2, from 1958 to 1960, with the whole Red party running the schools, Soviet aid cut off and education integrated with politics and manual labor. Labor universities and agricultural universities were set up, but soon had to be closed. Stage 3, from 1961 to 1966, was for "adjustment" and "raising standards." Following a revisionist line, student manual work was cut down and the tendency was to develop scholars and scientists. Stage 4, the latest stage, brought the outbreak of the "cultural revolution." The policy, according to L. Chen, is "destruction first, construction later." The Stage 3 Revisionist line was repudiated and worker-peasant-soldier propaganda teams took the lead, turning "all mainland students into tools for Mao Tse-tung. Students served as Red Guards, then reportedly were taken to border regions for manual labor.

The article claimed that the Hopei students were selected under four principles. 1. Mass councils were to choose progressive elements of cultural revolution as college candidates. 2. Only those devoted to Mao thought were qualified. 3. Long-time party workers and those with background of class hatred could be nominees. 4. In the military only those who took active part in Mao study sessions were eligible. Chen said such "education" centers are "not institutes of learning," and students "are not going to college to pick up useful knowledge for the people. They are only supposed to perfect their class struggle skills."

The account of Hopei province is borne out in another item in the same weekly saying that Kwangtung province in December reopened "new style socialist universities" which "will have class struggle as their main teaching subject and will combine this study with scientific research practice and production to create successors of the cause of proletarian revolution."

Revolution and change are always necessary, inasmuch as individuals and nations must continually revolt and turn away from harming or enslaving others. Change from evil (hurt and bondage) to good (healing and liberty) is required daily, hourly. This is the great revolution which can never be accomplished by destruction, the opposite of the goal.

Class struggle will not cease by one class imposing itself and its will upon another. History has shown that the nearest to dissolving "class struggle" is the maximizing of freedom among men of good-will. Those who choose ill will toward men and power to a chosen class are not true revolutionaries, merely bullies. Freedom, rather than "class struggle," should be the main teaching subject in universities everywhere.

Of Vietnam Racial Strife Officer Reports Stories

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — An Army officer recently returned from Vietnam has some frightening stories to tell of racial hostility. Though the area today is rife with rumor and unchecked report, I offer these tales because this officer appears to be a reliable witness. Moreover, they take on interest in light of the killing of one white U.S. major and wounding of another in an argument between the two officers and several black enlisted men over minor disciplinary measures.

In the many reported incidents, suspicion is being leveled not at the overwhelming numbers of the black enlisted personnel but at a limited few supermilitants, some of whom are said to be linked with the Black Panthers.

The disciplinary issue is a complex. Military officials make the obvious point that in a slackening war, especially in places distant from even the reduced present combat, normal discipline can be expected to grow lax.

It seems worse than usual in Vietnam, partly because our home-front discontent with the war is felt there. Yet broken discipline and defiance of authority go beyond that war and beyond race. They reflect attitudes now deeply entrenched in this country among young and adults alike.

The returned Army man recites this episode: A young officer in Saigon piled into his jeep and sped off on an errand. When he turned right at a corner, he heard a strange thumping sound. Moments later he turned left and heard the sound again.

Curious and faintly alarmed he drove into a motor pool service station and said to an attendant:

"I think maybe I've got a rock in my gas tank. Will you check it?"

What the check disclosed was a handgrenade in the tank, with the pin pulled. It had not yet exploded because it was wrapped in cloth. As it rolled about and the cloth became soaked with fuel, it would finally have blown.

An immediate examination was made of all officers' vehicles in the Saigon-based Army motor pools. Five other cloth-wrapped grenades were found in gas tanks.

The tactic is an old Viet Cong trick. But the mood in Vietnam is such right now that nameless black enlisted men were instantly blamed.

The reason for these sharply directed suspicions is easy to come by. In Vietnam, the practice of "fragging" officers — tossing fragmenting grenades into their offices, messes or living quarters — has evidently become fairly commonplace. What evidence there is — men observed running from the scene, the Army grapevine, etc. — points to black soldiers.

I inquired of Pentagon officials and found candid acknowledgment that racial animosities — symbolized in assaults or lesser offenses by militant black enlisted men against white officers — are running high. The statement of military spokesmen in Vietnam that such animosities were not involved in the shooting of the two white majors near Quangtri is not to be taken seriously.

A weeks-long search has been on for an AWOL black warrant officer who is believed to be a leader in militant activity in and around Saigon. Army investigators reportedly have evidence that this missing man constantly holds secret meetings at which "fragging" incidents and other hostile acts against white Army leadership are planned.

The returned officer who reported the "grenade-in-tank" episode says what many are saying of the U.S. military in Vietnam and to some extent elsewhere — that discipline has almost collapsed.

The minor events seem to be endless. He told of an officer who challenged a black soldier for not saluting him. The man said he did not come to Vietnam to salute white officers. He used a scathing obscenity. When asked to give his name, rank and unit, he refused.

The challenging officer thereupon lost his temper and himself violated discipline: He struck the enlisted black full in the face, shattering four teeth. He was required to make apology.

Writing for the magazine "Army," retired Gen. Hamilton Howze says discipline generally is so bad in the military he doubts he could (even if 35 years younger) successfully command an Army Company today in battle situations "against a powerful and determined enemy."
