coby hid six hearts. One of the strangest things about it was that if the clubs had been divided three-three, or if Jacoby had held the seven of spades instead of the four-spot, the contract could have been made. With the clubs divided three-three, Halpin could have established his clubs, picked up the hearts, and then discarded spades on the clubs, losing only one spade trick. And he would have lost only one spade trick if Jacoby had had the seven instead of the four of spades. The loss of this match gave the eastern team consisting of George Rapee, Howard Schenken and Samuel Bayman of Atlanta the world championship team-of-four title. The Chicago team of Arthur Glatt, R. W. Halpin, Ralph Kemper, Jules Bank and Oswald Jacoby had to be satisfied with second place.

All bridge players talk about the peculiar things that happen in their game, whether it is in a little afternoon bridge club or in a world championship event. Perhaps one of the strangest hands ever played in a world championship match took place in Chicago last August.

Jacoby's bid of four no trump was the Blackwood bid asking Halpin to show aces. With one ace Halpin would have bid five diamonds. With two aces he was forced to bid five hearts—and Ja-

Texan Responsible for Safety Of Pilots Flying Off Carrier

By TEX EASLEY
Aboard the USS Philippine Sea—A Texan is the one man more directly responsible than any other individual for the safety of the pilots who operate from this modern 35,000-ton aircraft carrier.

He is Commander S. S. Searcy, Jr., 38, of San Antonio. He answers directly to the skipper, Capt. John L. Pratt.

His title is that of Air officer. Under him come the men who guide the planes for takeoffs and landings, service them and make any necessary repairs.

One of the highlights of these present training operations in the North Atlantic off the New England coast occurred recently when fighter planes and torpedo bombers flew 150 miles to sea from a Rhode Island base to land in total darkness.

A British Air mission official was on board to watch the latest development in American "Carrier Control Approach" operations. Like the Air Force "Ground Control Approach," the CEA can bring the aircraft in when visibility is at a minimum. And a carrier deck is a pretty small target.

It was a tense moment as the first plane approached, banked sharply and raced toward the stern of the Philippine Sea. Her flight deck is 870 feet long and 93 feet wide. She was plowing ahead through the waves at 32 miles per hour.

Seconds before the pilot made a sharp descending bank the faint landing lights that outline the deck switched on.

You held your breath as he roared down over the stern and cut his motor. The tires went whop, and the lines that stretch across the deck as a barrier caught a hook which hangs down from the tail.

Instantly the lights again were out.

And in a flash a dozen men leaped up on the deck from the catwalk which hangs over the sides of the ship, unfastened the line from the tail hook, and pushed the aircraft on up the deck out of the way.

All this took about 30 seconds. Down came the next plane. The third craft slipped and was waved off for another try.

The signals given by a man in a suit with a fluorescent lighting arrangement that make him appear like a grotesque neon sign. Probably the most impressive thing about all this landing and launching from a carrier, both day and night flights, is the team work.

And on this carrier it is due to the keen admiration the men have for Commander Searcy. Himself a pilot, he never gets ruffled and enlisted men under him say he is as friendly and democratic as they come.

Texas is well represented among the enlisted men of the Philippine Sea, too.

Up on an anti-aircraft station shortly before dusk, I encountered a young man who pointed to some leaping porpoises off the starboard side.

"I saw three of those in a pool in my man's yard once," he said. "That was down in my home-town in Texas."

He identified himself then as Charles Peters of Edinburg, and says he's going back to the Rio Grande Valley some day to live on duty in the same part of the ship with him were Frank Coon of Orange and Dail Dunlap of Rochester.

Earlier in the day on hanger deck I encountered Machinist Mate

Louis G. Di Iorio of Hempstead. He's been in the Navy 7 years and was aboard the carrier Enterprise when it was bombed in the Pacific.

F. J. Harrell of Dallas, electronics technician, and A. L. Simmons of Amarillo, engineer, also were aboard the carrier.

Noisy Jobs Given To Deaf Women

Four deaf and dumb girls are holding key jobs at a radio tube plant in Sunderland, England, because of their immunity to noise. Their job is to operate spray guns used to coat the tubes with a zinc screen.

The noise of the guns is like a

"perpetual tornado," according to Arthur Lowther, plant superintendent. "Girl operators with normal hearing complained the noise caused severe headaches."

A deaf girl was put on the job as an experiment. She did so well that three others were hired.

Paris Gendarmes To Get 'New Look'

Paris gendarmes will take on a "new look" this autumn when their time honored uniforms are changed to modern togs and the distinctive cloak and the military kept discarded. They will wear caps like their American col-

Detectives no longer will wear derby hats, thick soled high buttoned shoes and carry umbrellas as of yore. Hereafter, they will wear fedoras or caps, regulation oxfords and have raincoats.

THE LOVES OF CARMEN
By SOPHIE KERR
Copyright, 1938, MIA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Don Jose, young officer in a fashionable Spanish regiment, has just come to Seville from the countryside of Navarre. On his first day in the city, a gorgeous gypsy girl lures him with a kiss and disappears. Some days later she reappears, and he meets her again. And she greets her admirer as Carmen, but her glasses are all for Jose, shortly afterwards. Carmen gets into a street brawl with another woman and knives her. Jose, ordered to take her prisoner, has her escape. As a result, he gets extra guard duty and is confined to barracks for 30 days. On the last night of his extra duty, he is paraded to see Carmen at the best party at the colonel's house. She turns his questions aside, hints he meet her at the Lilies later in the night at the tavern. Jose discovers a drunk and grieving Andre also waiting for Carmen. Disgusted, he accuses her both love. An old gypsy woman tells Carmen the cards predict love and death.

THE fat gypsy woman danced on but the peg-legged man was pulled down and two young gypsy men took his place. The dance whirled faster and faster until the fat, infant-laden woman could no longer keep up. As she waddled from the fire-circle, the male dancers started another rhythm, provocative and alluring, their laughing faces turned to Carmen. They beckoned her to join them. Carmen shook her head as though to say their dancing was not good enough to lure her out from the crowd, her eyes darting meanwhile from face to face around the fire-circle. Suddenly she seemed to have found that which she sought and across her face went a slow, triumphant smile.

Slowly, Carmen rose. She stood up straight as an arrow. Don Jose, staring at her, he watched her make her way in rhythm towards the men dancers, never once looking in his direction. As she moved out, a great shout went up from the watching gypsies.

The dance went on, three figures

FALSETEETH That Loosen Need not Embarrass
Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled as just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just apply a little PASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Holds false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not "stain" or "check" (plate odor) (denture teeth). Get PASTEETH at any drug store.

Mockingbirds? Yes, You Hear Them in North

The mockingbird, traditionally associated with the South's magnolia and cypress, is moving northward. In recent years it has been reported in Southern Canada and has become well known in New England.

This extension of the range of the bird that has become almost a symbol of Dixie is reported by Alexander Sprunt Jr., ornithologist of Charleston, S. C., in a bulletin issued by the Smithsonian Institution.

The bulletin records that a pair of mockingbirds nested as far north as Central Alberta during the summer of 1928. This is the most northerly point from which the bird has been recorded on the continent.

Sprunt recalls the incident of the introduction of English nightingales to Lake Wales, Fla. They were confined in cages, but when the strangers had settled

Teachers Wanted To Take Census

The Census, the basis for determining the representation of the states in Congress, will be taken in April, 1950, Charles Sawyer, secretary of commerce, has announced.

Emphasizing that it always is difficult to get a staff of proper competence to do the job, Sawyer stated that the Census Bureau, which will direct the work, believes that better results would be obtained if the country's school teachers aided the bureau. The bureau always hires a staff of enumerators but the time for training them is sometimes insufficient, Sawyer said.

If the 600,000 teachers accept the job, the work will require about a week of full time service. They would receive the usual rates paid to enumerators, Sawyer said.

German Editor Calls Berlin Crux of European Problem

By FELMAN MORIN

AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

"If you give up Berlin, you give up Europe," the German said. "It is as simple as that."

He is a Berliner, a member of that group of newspapermen who have been in the United States studying American newspapers and their methods. Quite probably, his opinions are weighted on the side of American policy in Germany, since he lives under the protection of American arms, and practices his profession by virtue of an American license.

However, he is no yekman. He is quietly critical of some phases of American policy, but not as it relates to Berlin.

His reasoning, I think, is worth reporting, as a counterpoint to the arguments of many Americans who believe we have blundered terribly by clinging to our perilous toehold in Berlin.

The answer of the German editor:

"In the first place, if you get out of Berlin—suppose you withdraw to the Anglo-American zones of occupation in the West then you merely transfer the point of friction.

"You would still have a common border with the Russians. The incidents and the causes of tension would quickly begin to appear there. They would find excuses and reasons for interference in Bizonia, just as they have in Berlin—most probably over the administration of the Ruhr."

But, he said, a result of vastly greater consequence would accrue if the Americans pulled back.

He estimated that less than one percent of the German people, even those who live in the Russian zone, are Communist or even Communically inclined, at this point.

"Statistics, of course, would show a much higher proportion. But you must remember that, for a German living in the Russian area, it is much wiser to pay lip service to the Russians and their ideas than it is to openly speak one's mind.

There is a matter of ration card living quarters, and employment. It might even be the difference between life and death.

Throughout the rest of Germany, there are millions of other Germans who not only pin their hopes on the Western democracies but have put their lives on the line by taking jobs such as his—under the Western military governments.

"It is not difficult to picture the fate of those people if all Germany comes under Russian control."

To a lesser degree, he said, the same is true of all Western Europe. Again, he argued, it includes those "satellite" nations that are now in Russian hands.

Their resistance, he believes, will vary in direct ratio to the amount of resistance the United States, as a nation, presents. "As you hold your lines, they get bolder. If you retreat, they will retreat, morally and psychologically, with you."

In short, to one Berliner, the battle for Berlin is the battle for Europe. The actions of those Europeans who actively oppose Soviet encroachment, and of the enormously greater number who are simply watching and waiting, will be determined by what we do there, said the editor.

Truth Serum Urged For International Diplomatic Parleys

A University of Pennsylvania psychiatrist, Dr. Kenneth E. Appel, suggested at a scientific meeting in Washington recently that all foreign ministers attending international conferences be administered truth serum.

This procedure, he said, "would let us all know where we all stand. It would define and clarify issues and situations, and we could all act accordingly."

Dr. Appel, addressing a session of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, asserted that "schizophrenic education," or narrow instruction in specialties, is responsible for fear and unrest.

Among his other suggestions was one directed to parents that children be permitted to express their hatred of their parents. The result, he contends, will be to make the child "love you and the rest of the world."

The cougar or mountain lion is the fastest animal on the North American continent. His speed is 100 yards in three seconds. But his lungs are small and he tires quickly.

Berlin Is Divided Into Belligerent Communist, Anti-Communist Camps

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third and last of a series written by the Associated Press staff in Berlin to background and illuminate the Berlin crisis.)

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

BERLIN—The political battle for Berlin has divided this city into belligerent Communist and anti-Communist camps.

So sharp has this division become, as a result of recent Communist attempts to gain power by force, that Berlin virtually has become two cities—East and West.

It is a city with two rival currencies, two rival police forces, two rival trade union federations, two rival assembly chambers, and a sharply divided press.

The German population of 3,250,000 recognizes that it all boils down to East vs. West. Most of them have been bold enough in these months of the blockade to choose for the West, however precarious the West's geographic position may appear in this island city behind the iron curtain.

The Western two-thirds of Berlin—occupied by the United States, Britain and France—is the stronghold of the anti-Communist front of three political parties.

Its Eastern sector, occupied by the Russians, is under the political control of the minority Socialist Unity Party (Communist).

The anti-Communist won 80 percent of the votes in Berlin's first and only postwar election in October, 1946, and control the legally recognized German municipal government.

They are eager to face the electorate for a renewed mandate at any time, confident they can deal the Communists an even more smashing defeat in a fair ballot.

The Russian-backed Communists however, are opposing new elections. All their efforts in the past months of crisis have been directed toward overthrowing the elected government by pressure and seizing full political and economic control for themselves.

The Socialists, who led in the 1946 election with 48.7 percent of the total vote, formed a municipal government in which the Communists took a minority position consistent with their showing.

Thereupon the Communists, with Russian backing through the four-power allied Kommandatura, undertook what American authorities described as a "persistent ham-stringing operation."

When this failed to break the Socialist regime or undermine public confidence in it, the Communists tried a new tack—overthrow.

The force tactics in Berlin came to a head this summer, while the elected government was trying to administer the city two-thirds of which was crippled under the Russian blockade of land transport.

The Communists launched their assault with riotous demonstrations by "protesting workers" who stormed into the City Hall, located in the Soviet sector of the city, and took over the City Parliament's chambers. The Russian-controlled police refused to stop them.

Result: the elected Parliament could not meet in its places and organized Communist demonstrators, shouting for adoption of a Communist program which would place all Berlin under Red political and economic control.

The legal Parliament, after pleading in vain for Russian guarantees of protection for its meetings, fled to the British sector. Since then Communist members have boycotted all meetings.

The magistrat (executive branch of the city government), which had been in the City Hall in the Soviet sector, also is newly split. It has moved to the British sector after a sit-down strike by a Communist official who refused to accept his dismissal.

The Communists have whittled away its power in the Russian sector of the city. Several hundred non-Communist appointees in Eastern Berlin have already been ousted from their jobs and replaced by Communists.

Recently, Kurt Landberg, Christian Democratic leader in the City Parliament, called for outright formation of a separate Western Berlin government.

If it came to that, the Russians undoubtedly would sponsor a separate government, in name as well as fact, for Eastern Berlin. The nucleus for this already is at hand. It is the Communist-controlled, so-called "democratic bloc of Berlin," which now is meeting in the old city assembly chambers. This group, contacting only splinter elements of non-Communist parties, has been dismissed by anti-Communist leaders as "a propaganda organization with no public support."

Against these Communist force tactics the anti-Communist have publicly staged protests. The greatest of these was a mass meeting Sept. 9 which attracted approximately 250,000 people—the greatest gathering in postwar Germany. It was followed by rioting in which Russian soldiers and Soviet-controlled German police were attacked and stoned.

As hot as Berlin's political strife is its newspaper war.

This has developed to such a pitch that the Russians have banned Western-licensed German newspapers from their sector of the city and subjected to arrest any one caught reading them.

In reprisal, German newsmen of Western Berlin established a counter-boycott, refusing to sell Russian-licensed newspapers.

The Western-licensed newspapers—undisputedly the most popular in town with German readers—have anti-Communist editorial policies. But in their news columns they give space to both sides of the Berlin controversy and unhesitatingly criticize Western policies.

The Russian-controlled press, however, lays down a non-stop propaganda barrage against the West. This ranges from vitriolic attacks upon the European Recovery Program to libelous diatribes against American conduct in Berlin. The official Red Army organ, Taegliche Rundschau daily runs its reports on the American sector of the city under a standing headline: "Reports From the Gangster Sector."

The land area of the United States is 3,797,325 square miles.

Northern Sector Favored by Rain

AUSTIN—(AP)—Some progress was made in seeding of small grains in northern counties recently favored by rains, the United States Department of Agriculture reported.

Elsewhere in the North and West, where no rain fell, seeding was at a standstill, the USDA weekly crop and weather bulletin for the period ending Oct. 18 said.

Rains last weekend in Central Texas helped build up a surface moisture, but delayed harvesting operations. Cotton harvest made fast progress in the High Plains and in North Central and North-east Texas.

Commercial vegetables continued to make good progress and planting for the late season harvest was active in all areas.

Range feed continued short in most of the state. Showers in the Low Rolling Plains, along the Red River and in parts of East and Central Texas helped, but range conditions remained generally bad.

The name of a Massachusetts lake—Chaugogaugmangaug— is said to mean in Indian language, "You to your side, I fish on my side, nobody fish in middle."

American Cotton Growers Must Be More Efficient

LUBBOCK—(AP)—The only way that American cotton growers can compete with foreign cotton produced with cheap labor is to "use our labor as efficiently as humanly possible," E. D. White, assistant secretary of labor, asserted.

He recently returned from a tour of cotton growing areas in Asia and Africa and the major cotton consuming countries in Europe.

Farm wages in America are 12 times as high as in Egypt, he said, and an acre of cotton can be planted by hand in Egypt as cheaply "as we can here with the best of mechanized equipment."

"You may ask how American cotton growers compete with foreign cotton growers under such conditions," he continued. "The answer is—we cannot if we produce cotton by hand. That seems mean in Indian language, 'You to your side, I fish on my side, nobody fish in middle.'"

Farmers' Cut of Food Dollar Falls

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The farmer may get a slightly smaller share of the consumer's food dollar next year.

His cut, the Agriculture Department said, seems likely to average 20 cents, compared with 32 indicated for this year and the peak of 54 cents in 1945 and 1946.

The department said charges for marketing and processing farm products have reached new record highs and are expected to show little or no decline next year.

The department said retailers' profit margins for meat appear somewhat higher than pre-war on a cents-per-pound basis, but much lower percentage-wise because of the higher prices.

Cattle TB Has Become Serious

DENVER—(AP)—Tuberculosis in cattle has flared to a serious stage in some sections of the United States according to Dr. C. F. Clark, state veterinarian for Michigan.

He told delegates attending the U.S. Livestock Sanitary Association convention here that the "situation has become serious."

Roberts County Grass Ranges To Be Improved

A range survey has been completed on Bill O'Laughlin's ranch west of Miami, the Roberts County Soil Conservation District announced.

The survey shows the different range sites based on soils and the condition they are based on the kind of grasses and weeds growing on them.

This information will be furnished O'Laughlin in assisting him in working up a grazing system on his ranch land.

A display in the window of Reeves Pharmacy shows the different conditions of the ranges of Roberts County. The condition classes are based on the percentages of good grasses that originally grew on the site.

If 75 to 100 percent, good; 25 to 50 percent, fair and 0 to 25 percent, poor. The production in ewe.

In the female Holstein championship judging, Texas Magazine Homestead Bess, a two-year-old owned by Neale Farms, took the banner over the junior champion female, Ballack Ester Sovereign, exhibited by Thomas G. Ballack of Kansasville, Wis.

County Soil Conservation District can help work out a plan to improve the condition of the grasses by giving the better grasses a chance.

Longshoremen were originally called "along-shore-men" because they worked on the wharves of seaports where they loaded and unloaded vessels.

Girls Join WAF For Education

LACKLAND AIR FORCE BASE, Tex. —(AP)—Why are you joining the WAF?
 Answers to that question, put at random to girls who have signed up for three years' service with the newly-organized Women in the Air Force, indicate most of the recruits want education or technical training.
 Eighty-four girls from 33 states are here for the first WAF class. They'll go through an intensive 11 weeks of basic training.
 The first Wafs, most of them in their late teens and early twenties, began enrolling for the class Tuesday.

Rainmaker Says Lightning Danger Can Be Halted

SCHENECTADY, N. Y. —(AP)—Rainmaker Vincent Schaefer says it may be possible to prevent forest fires started by lightning—by eliminating lightning itself.
 Schaefer explains that highly-active cumulus clouds usually grow into lightning-producing thunderstorms. He suggests that by transforming such clouds into snow, lightning can be eliminated. Two years ago Schaefer, weather scientist at General Electric's research laboratory here, made rain and snow by seeding clouds with dry ice from an airplane.

 He said yesterday that clouds given the dry-ice treatment either would lose their moisture in the form of rain or snow or would become cirrus (snow) clouds, which do not produce lightning. In either event, he added, the conditions which cause lightning would no longer exist.

Next Year May Bring Repercussions From Mexican Labor Controversy

WASHINGTON —(AP)—Repercussions from the controversy over imported Mexican labor aren't expected to be felt in this country's sugar beet fields this year.
 What may happen next year is something no one knows as yet.
 Officials of the employment service said that all beet workers scheduled to be brought from Mexico this fall are already here and presumably at work.
 The total number was somewhat less than 1,000. Virtually all were sent to beet fields in the Rocky Mountain states — Utah, Colorado, Wyoming, Montana and Idaho. None went east of the Mississippi.
 The field laborers were brought in under an agreement entered into with Mexico last February.
 Monday the Mexican government accused this country of breaking the agreement through action of immigration officials in throwing open the border at El Paso, Tex., to unlimited numbers of workers forbidden by Mexico to leave that country.

Bliss Stamp

Logging Town Gets Memorial

A memorial that "couldn't be built" recently was dedicated in Drain, Ore., a tiny logging community of less than 1,000 inhabitants. This village, so small that every one thought it would be lucky to eke out funds for even a statue, has built a war memorial that cost more than $100,000. Without taxation, without borrowing, without any public funds, Drain and other small communities nearby have built one of the finest recreational centers in the Southwestern Oregon area. The materials alone cost $100,000. The cost of the completed project would have been far more if it hadn't been for hundreds of hours of donated labor. The "North Douglas County Living War Memorial" comprises a concrete tennis court, a baseball diamond with night floodlighting, and a $75,000 swimming pool and bathhouse. That's an ambitious project for a village of 1,000. "But we decided we had to build the best," explained James Whipple, president of the War Memorial Committee. "When you surrender your life for your country you are giving the best you have. It would be an insult to our dead to build anything which wasn't the best." The idea, which came to Drain during the war days, aroused tolerant amusement. People who heard about the plan said it was impossible. The residents of North Douglas County went right on saving money. The nucleus of their fund came from wartime scrap metal and paper drives. The rest they raised in many ways. They gave benefit shows. In the end, the fund was big enough not only to build the project, but to keep it going, too.

Oilmen Propose Indignation Meet

KILGORE (AP) East Texas oil men will meet here Friday in an "indignation meeting" on the oil price situation. H. F. Nichols of Tyler, vice president of the East Texas Oil Association, announced. Nichols said a protest is expected to be made over the failure of oil companies in general to meet the 35 cents per barrel increase in price of crude posted Sept. 28 by Phillips Petroleum Co.

Wedgeworth to Attend State CoF Meeting

E. O. Wedgeworth, manager of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, will attend meetings at Dallas and Fort Worth Friday and Saturday. Friday he will attend the board of directors meeting of the State Chamber of Commerce Managers Association at Fort Worth. Saturday morning he will go on to Dallas where he will meet with the Board of Directors of the Texas State Fair and Expositions Association.

During one of the biggest postwar amphibious landing maneuvers, at Aliso Canyon, Calif., Marines picked up a "Russian officer" without correct papers, and turned him over to the FBI. He turned out to be a San Diego reporter, John D'Alfonso, whose assignment was to test security precautions. The FBI office in San Diego let him off with a sharp scolding.

Can There Be Peace With Russia?—HST

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP)—Can there be peace with Russia?

That's the No. 1 problem of our time, President Truman told the American Legion at Miami. Then he said there's a "dark fog of distrust" between Russia and the West, and while it remains there's not much hope for settling disputes.

If we reached a point of talking real peace with Russia, a question would arise.

Could there be real peace with Russia so long as the Communist parties within this and other countries survived? They act as agents of Moscow now, and unless some agreement were reached with Russia about them, they'd certainly continue to act as Soviet agents, waiting for a revolution to take over. And Russia could hardly be expected to turn her back on those other Communist parties. Why?

Because that would leave Russia surrounded by capitalist states, without any hope that some day, through internal upheavals, Communists inside those other countries would come to power.

It would mean, in a way, abandoning hope for world communism. But the Communist leaders of Russia believe Western capitalism will collapse and there will be world communism. The live by that belief.

From the beginning Russia has distrusted the Western world because it looks upon communism and capitalism as mortal enemies. And Lenin, who set up communist in Russia, taught that capitalism can't be wiped out except by world revolution.

If the capitalistic democracies, through U.S. help, grow strong again in Western Europe—and particularly if they keep Western Germany under their wing—Russia knows they are always potential allies of the U.S. in any war with Russia.

And Russia, whose philosophy is to wipe out capitalism, fears the danger of war from strong capitalistic countries if a crisis arises in the future.

All this doesn't mean Russia wants to go to war now. Time is on her side, the Communists think.

They are banking on a world depression to set off collapses and revolutions and win for her easily what she might not be able to win in a shooting war now.

Meanwhile, within every country, the local Communist parties will be trying to push for revolution.

680,000 Lady Barflies in U. S.

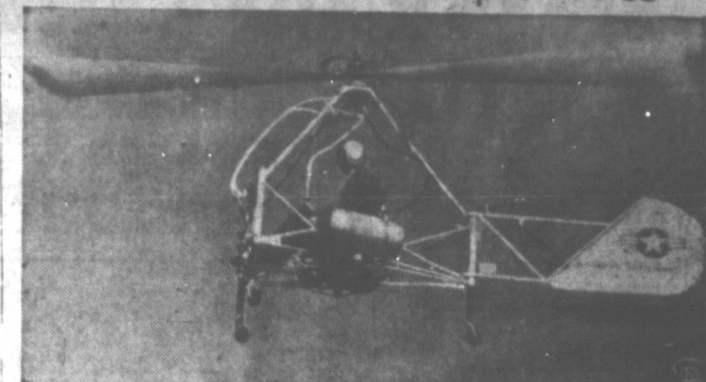

PORTLAND, Ore. — There are about 680,000 women in the U. S. who are alcoholics and problem drinkers, delegates to the Woman's Christian Temperance Union were told here.

Mary B. Ervin of Columbus, Ohio, a vice president of the national organization, said the figure was obtained from a report on patients in mental institutions which showed that 17.98 percent were women alcoholics.

The percent applied to the total of 3,750,000 chronic alcoholics in the United States, (according to a Yale University survey,) gave the 680,000 figure, Miss Ervin said.

The fact that a dove does not have a gall-bladder, which the ancients regarded as the seat of bitterness and had temper, led to its selection as a symbol of meekness and peace.

Texas Today

By DAVE CHEAVENS
AUSTIN (AP)—Norman Thomas is making his sixth campaign for the presidency, he knows in advance he hasn't a chance, but he still enjoys political stumping.

The airplane, he explained recently, has made it much easier to get around over the country. He can expound his theories as a long-time, dyed-in-the-wool socialist to many times more people now than he could in the old days of travel by train.

Thomas made his only Texas appearance of the 1948 campaign at the capital.

He arrived alone. Next day President Truman and his 18-car special loaded with political bigwigs, campaign workers, reporters, secret service men and others hit town. Thomas, tall, ruddy-faced and white-haired, was met at the airport by three members of the local branch of the Socialist Party which has a total membership of about a dozen.

Thomas was in sharp contrast with the four to five thousand persons, two bands, the mayor and the newly-elected congressman from this district who greeted President Truman at the M-K-T station early the next morning.

But the thing that surprised many was the big crowd Thomas drew at Woodridge Park in his night appearance. Policemen estimated it at from 1,500 to 2,000 persons. Most of them obviously were students at the University of Texas, or at the two Negro colleges here. Thomas spoke at the Negro schools — Tillotson and Samuel Houston—during the day, but he did not speak at the University of Texas. A rule barring political speeches on the campus kept him from it.

Thomas was given considerable enthusiastic applause and his wisecracks at Truman, Dewey and Wallace tickled the crowd. After he spoke for an hour, he answered questions for another 30 minutes.

He had remarked that in days past, his reception had not always been so friendly in Texas. There was a time, he said, when his socialistic theories were considered extremist; now, he said, many of the things he advocated 20 years ago are secure Democratic or Republican platform planks.

Civil Rights was one in particular. Thomas talked a lot about civil rights here. He said he did not want the fact that he chose a Southern city for his exposition of his views on the subject to be taken as a sign that racial discrimination and prejudice are sectional problems. These are international, he said, and Southerners today are the unfortunate inheritors of a racial problem dumped on their forebears by so-called "Christian" Europeans who brought Negro slaves to this country.

"God forgive them," he cried. Thomas' answer to the problem includes a mixture of law and brotherhood, and he emphasized the need of a fraternal attitude as much as a need of law in dealing with discrimination, racial or religious. He said the Socialist Party — unlike the Republicans, Democrats and Progressives—has no panacea for the problems of the South.

All it has to offer the South, Thomas said, is a type of government that will lead to "plenty, peace and freedom." This would entail public ownership of such natural resources as oil and a planned economy designed to wipe out inequalities that result in "boom and bust" cycles.

"There are literally millions of Americans who in their hearts agree with us," Thomas said. "They are kept from supporting us by misrepresentation, misunderstanding, inertia and some strange hopelessness. The know when they stop to think that we here have the resources, the machinery and the skill to conquer poverty and avert depression.

"They know that the price of using our modern technology is planning and that the question is for whom shall our experts and managers plan, for us under Democratic controls or for the profit of absentee owners, for peace or for war, for life or for death? They know how false and hollow is the insistence that freedom is tied up with a confused capitalism mis-called 'free enterprise' with its ghastly inequalities, its slums, its racial discrimination, its depressions, its haunting faces of tomorrow."

It's Not a Prank When There's Rank

HILLSBORO, Tex. — After being caught once by a practical joker, Recruiting Sgt. Ken Griffith decided he wasn't going to bite again—but the second time he got himself into hot water.

It all started when Griffith got a caller who identified himself as an Army officer and gave him some instructions.

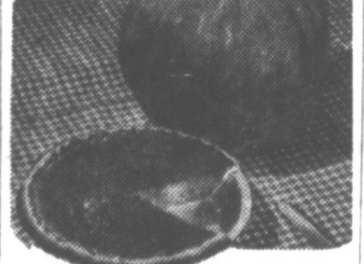

The caller turned out to be a joker.

Shortly afterward, a second caller identified himself as an Army officer. But Griffith wasn't to be fooled a second time.

He told the caller off and hung up. It turned out to be a lieutenant colonel.

Two Undefeated Teams Meet In Week's Standout HS Game

Australian Tag Bout Slated For Sportatorium Saturday

Sailor Parker, the ex-elite trainer with Ringling Brothers circus, will team up with Canada's Rod Fenton in an Australian tag team match at the Sportatorium Saturday night.

It will be the first such rowdy team match since early this summer.

Parker, a popular matman here last winter, has been absent from the local arena during most of this year. He returned the first week in this month when he won over Burger's Rex Mobley. The following week, he wrestled Sammy Kohlen to a one-hour draw with neither man winning a fall. Fenton, Parker's teammate, won over Dick Trout of Hollywood, Calif., who was making his first appearance here last week.

Fenton, who hails from Edmonton, Canada, is a speedy and rough grappler who has the reputation of being ready and willing to wallop his opponent with anything at hand, including the referee.

The other team will be made up of Mobley and Trout, who are preparing themselves for revenge against their former victorious opponents.

Prior to the team match, there will be two warmup bouts with Parker meeting Trout and Fenton meeting Mobley. Billy McEun, who has appeared here both as a wrestler and as a referee, is scheduled to referee Saturday's wrangle.

Sul Ross Players Travel Far; Have Best Texas Record

ALPINE.—(AP) Play football with Sul Ross College, a young man, and you'll get to see a lot of country in addition to being on an undefeated, untied team. Alpine is a far place from most any place where the Lobos can go to play a football game.

That's why Sul Ross athletic officials are a little dubious over chances of the Lobos maintaining their record as the best of a 59 Texas college team at this time. For instance, they will play at Kingsville next week against Texas A & I. That's 520 miles. Nov. 6 they journey to Alamosa, Colo., 725 miles away, to meet Adams State College.

But they've already been to Huntsville, Brownwood and Goodwell, Okla., which are pretty fair hops.

The Lobos have won five games, rolling up 197 points to 44. They are in the New Mexico Conference in which they won the championship last year.

Hande served in both world wars. In the first one he was supposed to be in the mounted service but never was on a horse and instead of shooting a rifle, he played in the band. In World War 2 he was in the Navy to direct its rifle training program, being commissioned with the rank of lieutenant commander. He never was on a ship.

Randle's program trained more than 2,000 sailors in the use of rifles and in addition he taught many Chinese to become snipers. "They took care of a lot of Japs," he says.

He rewrote the Navy Small Arms Manual and spelled out this branch of preparation.

An astounding discovery by Randle was the number of young men who had never had their arms and developing instructors was a big problem.

He has a big gun store in Dallas.

He declares it is amazing how many people can't handle a gun without shooting themselves. Yet he pointed to the fact that of 2,000,000 taught under his program during the last war, not one had an accident. "One shot himself on purpose," he comments, "but we knew it and he was court-martialed."

The National Girls Baseball League may do its spring training 1949.

Among other clubs that will train in South Texas are Dallas, Beaumont, San Antonio and Houston. They will be at New Braunfels, Cuero, San Antonio and Victoria respectively. Oklahoma City will be invited to Seguin. It is still open as to its training site.

Saginaw of the Central League is looking for a spot.

The South Texas Chamber of Commerce Spring Training Committee headed by Fred G. Gunn of Austin is pushing the program and is delighted with the response thus far, although not expecting a major league club to train in South Texas next spring. They all have commitments for 1949.

Sport Shots

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF AP Sports Editor

DALLAS.—(AP)—He isn't talking about a war but Thurman Randle, world's famous marksman, says there's going to be a lot more rifle shooting. Randle, who started firing at the age of seven and won all titles offered, predicts that the game will receive a great impetus from the new program of the National Rifle Association aimed at bringing competition to the masses.

This new program of the N.R.A. was announced at a meeting in Dallas last week. It was a joint effort of the Dallas area rifle clubs, the Texas and Oklahoma rifle clubs, and the National Rifle Association.

The Dallas area rifle clubs, which are the Dallas Rifle Club, the Fort Worth Rifle Club, and the El Paso Rifle Club, are the only ones in the Dallas area.

No man ever did more with a rifle than Randle who has been on 17 international teams, won the national title four times, the international once and has won more trophies than he can count.

He has a house full of them, including a gold medal from one Adolph Hitler. The gold peeped off like everything else Hitler ever had anything to do with.

He won that, along with a huge silver bowl, in an international competition in 1937 at Nuernberg, Germany.

Hande served in both world wars. In the first one he was supposed to be in the mounted service but never was on a horse and instead of shooting a rifle, he played in the band. In World War 2 he was in the Navy to direct its rifle training program, being commissioned with the rank of lieutenant commander. He never was on a ship.

Plainview Contest May End Year of Revengeful Planning

By GENE GARRISON News Sports Editor

One of the rare occasions in football history when past records will not be forgotten will occur tomorrow night in Harvester Park when the Pampa Harvesters open their 1948 District play against a hopeful band of Bulldogs from Plainview.

When such teams as these clash in such a conflict, usually all past records are forgotten and they play only for the present and the future. But tomorrow night the story will be decidedly different.

Should the Harvesters triumph in Friday's fracas, they will culminate a year of revengeful planning, centering around Coach W. C. O. Harris' Bulldogs. One of the oddities of football came about between the two teams when they met on Oct. 24, 1947 in Plainview, and the result was the Harvesters' burning desire for revenge.

Led by powerful Carl Mayes, the Harvesters jumped on the Bulldogs for an early 19-0 lead last year, and held it for almost four quarters. BUT, with only four minutes to go, the Plainview lads started tossing passes left and right, catching them right and left, and finally wound up with a 20-19 victory. This not only lit the fuse, but fanned the spark until it exploded with all the fury of an angry band of schoolboy athletes.

The locals will be in virtually top shape for the "B" day game, and so will the visitors. In fact, the Harvesters task will be much easier said than done. Coach Cook has been considerably weakened since that time by injuries and scholastic rulings.

The Guerrillas now have a 500 record with two wins and two losses. They opened the season by falling to a superior Wheeler team 12-0, then downed Plainview, 16-13, nudged Burger 7-6, and lost last week to Childress, 13-6.

Hugh Gracy, hard running halfback, and Quarterback Dick Cook have been the two big guns in the Guerrilla backfield. Gracy is a dependable ground gainer while Cook gets most of his yardage via the airways.

On the line, Co-Captains Bob McPherson and Eddie Marlow have been outstanding, playing at end and guard, respectively.

The probable starting Guerrilla line-up: LE—Bob McPherson 150 160 170 180 190 200 210 220 230 240 250 260 270 280 290 300 310 320 330 340 350 360 370 380 390 400 410 420 430 440 450 460 470 480 490 500

Doak Walker May Set Scoring Mark In SW Conference

DALLAS.—(AP)—About the only thing Doak Walker hasn't done with a football is blow it up. Some of these days they may call on him for that and what'll you bet he can't do it?

Right now he's busily engaged in setting a new scoring record in the Southwest Conference. The Southern Methodist All-America has made 53 points in four games and has six to go. The record is 125 set by Joel Hunt at Texas A & M in 1927. At Doak's present pace he will have over 150 when the season ends.

If ever there was a more versatile football player, they don't remember him in the Southwest.

Walker is a runner (he's gained 191 yards on 42 carries); passer (he's completed eight out of 14 for 78 yards and two touchdowns); punt returner (he's taken four back for 106 yards); pass receiver (he has caught seven for 228 yards and three touchdowns); kickoff returner (he has taken two back for 68 yards); defensive player (he has saved a flock of touchdowns with jarring tackles and has intercepted three passes and run them back 75 yards); blocker (he's the best at this on the Southern Methodist squad); punter (he leads the Southwest Conference with an average of 37.2 yards on nine boots).

Can you think of anything else? Doak isn't working as much this season as last or he would have more impressive figures. He's gone over 45 minutes was against Missouri. He played 58 in that one because SMU needed him all the time trying to keep from being defeated.

There's really nothing much new can be said about Walker, the nation's magazine pin-up boy. Lester Jordan, publicity man at SMU, was asked for an angle. "It's worse than trying to find an angle to a straight line," quoth Jordan. "I can't think of any and if you do please let me know."

But regardless of whether there's anything new, it does seem that some kind of story ought to be written on a football player like that.

TIME AND THE MAN Aft'e driving his cows home one evening, a Maine farmer announced triumphantly, "It's here at last." "What's here, Dad?" his son asked. "A white quartz boulder I found in the far pasture. It's a beauty, and I wanted it here at the house. But it's so heavy I could barely move it. So every night, as I started the cattle home, I turned the boulder once in this direction. Now it's here." "How long has it taken you?" his son asked. "Over two years." —Reader's Digest

SHAKESPEARE WAS WRONG A yellow convertible with a New York license plate screeched to a stop in a small Vermont town. "Hey, Bub!" called the flashily dressed driver, to a native standing at the curb. "Which way to Canada?"

Deliberately the townsman sauntered over to the car, coolly looked the occupant up and down. "Tell you what you do," he drawled. "You go find a Vermonteer who likes to be called 'Bub,' and ask him."

Georgia Tech Leading in Grid Defense

NEW YORK.—(AP)—By holding Auburn to a net gain of 65 yards last Saturday, unbeaten Georgia Tech became the defensive stand-out among the nation's collegiate gridiron powers, the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau announced today.

The Yellowjackets, who yielded 69 yards through the air but threw Auburn for a loss of four yards on the ground, moved up from third place in the bureau's defensive rankings as North Carolina State dropped from first to fourth while losing to North Carolina.

These States Will Elect Senators and Governors

Map shows the states holding senatorial and gubernatorial elections this year. The letter in the state indicates the party affiliation of the incumbent—R for Republican, D for Democrat. In Montana and West Virginia, a senator and governor of different parties are now in office. Five states have neither senatorial nor gubernatorial contests, and one, Maine, has already held its election.

Former U.S. Communist Exposes American Party

By RELMAN MORIN
 AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

A man who once "was the most devoted Communist in the United States" has written a book about communism.

It may poison your dreams, if it does not prevent you from sleeping entirely. Nevertheless, it is an important book because of the man who wrote it, and because, in many respects, it is like a key to a secret cipher. It will help you to decide the strange, unpredictable, and often contradictory tactics of the Communists.

The book is called "The Whole of Their Lives" (Charles Scribner's Sons). The author is Benjamin Gitlow.

Gitlow was the head of the American Communist Party in 1929.

He made three trips to the Soviet Union on official business of the party. He knew Josef Stalin personally. He rose to this eminence because, for many years, he was a whole-souled believer in the movement and more important, because he had character and brains.

For the same reason, he says, he is no longer in a Communist.

Gitlow disagreed with and defied Stalin on a matter of principle the is one of the few men who lived to write the story of it and he says that caused him to break with the entire movement.

Therefore he would appear to be what a newspaper reporter call "a reliable source" on the question of communism. Let's see what he has to say about it.

Question 1—Do you doubt that American Communists and their fellow travelers get direct orders from Moscow? On page 204, describing the birth of the American Communist Party in 1919, Gitlow says, "Stalin took over the American Communist Party lock, stock and barrel, in the middle of May, 1922, by a series of decrees promulgated by him and read by Molotov."

HOLLYWOOD MAY FILM HOME LIFE

By ERSKINE JOHNSON

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Hollywood's front page publicity—all had—the Johnston office talking about filming a documentary based on Hollywood's happy home life. Well, there's plenty of it. . . . I can't get ova Judy Canova. She's come down from the hills to be a city slicker. She's wearing glamour dresses instead of pantaloons and a new look coiffure instead of pig-tails. "My fans," Judy explains, "didn't think I was sophisticated." Now that he's a five-morning-a-week radio quizmaster, Kay Kyser has lifted the lid on the top secret of his career. He rose to a million-dollar-a-year band leader without ever singing or playing an instrument with his orchestra.

George Burns and Gracie Allen are raising their son in his mother's tradition. Fourteen-year-old Ronnie is writing a piece for his school paper titled, "Ten Ways to Bring Up Your Parents." . . . Beethoven is writing a new symphony and a new film making, records, personal appearances, and the singing spot on Bob Hope's airshow, Doris Day has so many irons in the fire they are calling her Public Energy Number 1.

Since CBS bought Amos 'n' Andy lock, stock and burnt cork for $3,000,000, Ed Gardner has offered himself for sale along with Duffy's Tavern. So far, reports Ed, the only action he has had was from a hospital which offered $30 for his body.

PHONY SOMETHING

Now I've heard everything department: The swank Copa Club at the Beverly Wilshire installed a microphone in the pool so you can have music when you're swimming under water. Paul, the manager, calls it "swim-phony under the stars." Or sink-phony? . . . Twenty years ago Maurice Tourneur, now 74 years old, directed "Tribby" for Jesse Lasky. Now his son, Jacques Tourneur, has been offered the job of directing a remake of the same film. The producer, of course, is the same Jesse Lasky.

More Hollywood housecleaning: M-G-M is selling 243 stories and 135 plays purchased during the lush war years but never brought to the screen. Estimated profit: $1,000,000.

Ajan Ladd will be starred at Paramount in a semi-documentary, "Dead Letter." The story deals with the work of the men who protect the U. S. mails from criminals. . . . Carol Ann Beery joins papa Wallace Beery before the cameras in "Big Jack-Horner." She just turned 18 and at Beery's insistence completed high school prior to embarking on a career. . . . Marsha Hunt replaces Frances Langford and teams with Don Ameche for "The Bickersons" on the Edgar Bergen airshow.

LARRY GETS FREEDOM

Larry Parks got $750 a week under his new deal with Columbia. But he works for the studio only 17 weeks a year. It's the same salary he received before suing the studio. At the time he said he didn't want more money — just freedom.

Bill Demarest will repeat his role of Al Johnson's manager in "Olson Sings Again." . . . The color pictures of the Olympic Games, made in England by J. Arthur Rank, have been cut from two hours to 35 minutes for showings in the U. S. The film flopped, was sentenced in absentia Tuesday to life imprisonment. The court charged her with torturing Jews who served as slave laborers for Heydrich.

Despondent Boy Killed by Friend

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Thoughts of suicide came to Hugh Mellon, 16, when his family scolded him for taking a girl to see a football game at Ann Arbor, Mich., police said.

So he invited a 10-year-old friend to his home Monday night to see his new .22 caliber rifle. Then he urged the boy to point it at him and pull the trigger, detectives said.

At first the boy refused, saying he had never told never to point a gun, the detectives added. But Hugh assured him it was empty so he complied.

The bullet entered Hugh's head and killed him.

Police reported a note was found that said: "One half hour after I write this I will die."

Business With Spain Proposed

HEIDELBERG, Germany — (AP) — Stars and Stripes quotes Rep. Olin E. Teague (D-Tex.) as saying the United States can do business with Spain despite her form of government.

Teague and six other representatives arrived here for talks with Lt. Gen. Clarence R. Huebner and other officers of the European command. They are winding up a tour of Europe.

Stars and Stripes, the U. S. Army newspaper, reported Teague said Spain's "intense opposition" to communism is well known.

The Texan added that Spanish industry is lagging and anything done to help Spain's recovery would help the recovery of Europe. He said the United States could sell plenty of cotton to Spain to help her idling spinning mills.

Refinery to Build Two Texas City Units

PITTSBURGH — (AP) — Rust Engineering Co. said it has contracted to design and erect two crude oil topping units for Petrol Refining Inc. at Texas City, Texas.

The new units will have a combined daily capacity of 50,000 barrels. Equipment now located at Petrol's Beaumont, Tex., plant recently purchased from the War Assets Administration will be used in the new units.

'Hangman's' Widow Sentenced for Cruelty

Labor Board Rule Protects Workers' Concerted Action

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON —(AP)— A couple of men, or a dozen or a hundred, can tell the boss they don't like the way he runs his business.

And he can't fire them for it, if the company's business crosses state lines.

But — it's all right only so long as two or more do that. If one man by himself tries it, the boss can — if he wants to — bounce him on the spot. Why?

The reason was made pretty clear this week in a case that went up to the Supreme Court.

Ten salesmen in the Chicago branch office of the Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Co. got sore.

The cashier was leaving, the fourth cashier in a couple of years to leave.

So each time a new cashier was hired it slowed them down.

They agreed to tell the boss in a letter how they felt, with two of them writing it and all ten signing it.

The boss found out about the upcoming letter and fired the two men who were going to write it.

The salesmen were not members of a union. They were just ten employees who wanted to tell the boss what they thought.

Since they were not union members, what could the two fired men do?

They went to the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB)—the government agency which carries out the Wagner and Taft-Hartley labor laws and interprets them when some question of meaning arises.

The NLRB decided the boss had no right to fire the men, that under the law he had engaged in an unfair labor practice. Why?

Because the law says "employees shall have the right to... engage in concerted activities for the purpose of... mutual aid or protection."

And the law says any boss who interferes with that right of employees under the law commits an unfair labor practice.

So the NLRB ordered the boss to give the men their jobs back and pay them for any earnings lost while they were out of a job.

The insurance company refused. And the NLRB went to the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals to make the company obey. The court upheld the NLRB. Then the case went to the highest and last appeal: to the U. S. Supreme Court.

On Monday the Supreme Court said it would not review the case. Which means: the verdict of the NLRB and circuit court stands. The men have to be rehired.

But note something: the key phrase in the law covering such a case is "concerted activities," which means action by two or more employees.

Since one employe by himself can't take "concerted" action, if one employe makes a complaint or suggestion to the boss, the boss can fire him.

The NLRB has ruled the same way in other cases like the one explained here—and has been upheld by circuit courts—but this is the first case to reach the Supreme Court.

Former War Prisoner Is Back in U.S.

By HAL BOYLE

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Five years ago next month Hans-Norbert Finkel came to the United States as a German war prisoner.

He had been captured in Tunisia with Field Marshal Rommel's Afrika Korps.

Finkel, now 28, is back in America again. This time he is a guest under different circumstances. He is one of 15 German editors and publishers attending a seminar of the American Press Institute at Columbia University.

These visitors from Europe's uneasy fulcrum attended a couple of news conferences here. They were impressed by the informality and freedom with which reporters questioned government officials, and said such conferences would have been impossible in Germany under Hitler. They also said some nice things about America. But guests usually say nice things. Since Finkel, now political editor of Dena, American-licensed German news agency, had looked at the United States from both sides of the table, I asked him what he found most disappointing in this country.

"This spirit of superficiality," he said, "and I don't mean just politically."

"Here if you get an idea, you try to do something with it fast — give it a practical application. You say, 'let's try it.'"

"In Germany we try first to find the theory underlying the idea. The German is bound to ask, 'what lies behind it?' And this is true of all Europeans."

Finkel said he thought one sign of superficiality here was the way the average American read his newspaper.

"There are usually four possibilities," he smiled. "The reader will look first for the comics, the baseball results, the weather forecasts or glance at the headlines. Only the fifth man will first read the news stories."

"The German has a different approach to his newspaper. He looks to it first for advice, education and information. Our papers are much more influential politically than those here. The German reader has to feel that what his paper says is right."

The visiting editors seemed generally to feel that their papers were more accurate in the details of reporting than American newspapers.

I thought afterward what an odd conversation it had been. Our talk was at a luncheon. Four years ago Finkel was a war prisoner in the American Midwest, and I was with the U. S. First Army trying to reach and cross the Rhine to link up with the Russian forces. It was a reunion the fighting men hoped would bring peace forever.

How can you ever put the jigsaw puzzle of the world into one harmonious pattern when they keep changing the way the pieces fit together?

Few Buyers Take Federal Lands

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The Interior Department said about 50 Texas and Oklahoma residents in loose a chance to buy federal land along the Texas-Oklahoma border at $1.25 an acre.

Acting Secretary C. Girard Davidson said land holders were advised of the sale almost a year ago. Although the offer expires Nov. 14, he said, "very few" have accepted it.

Davidson said that if the land is not sold by Nov. 14 it will be opened to claims by other persons under the general public land laws.

Settlement of a 100-year-old dispute over the Texas-Oklahoma boundary line disclosed that about 9000 acres of federal land in a strip 156 miles long and 600 feet wide lies within the fields or fences of adjoining Texas and Oklahoma land owners.

The land is along the Cimarron

And What Is a Sniphoclug?

This is a sniphoclug. What you don't know what a sniphoclug is? Simple—a sniphoclug is hippopotamus spelled sideways. And this picture is a sideways view of a hungry hippo at Whipsnade Zoo, England. Turn it around and see.

CABOT

giving the highest number of votes for the office of governor, as declared by the speaker, died, then the person having the highest number of votes for the office of lieutenant governor shall act as governor until after the next general election. It is further provided that in the event the person with the highest number of votes for the office of governor as declared by the speaker, shall become disabled, or fail to qualify, then the lieutenant governor shall act as governor until a person has qualified for the office of governor, or until after the next general election. Any succession to the governorship not otherwise provided for by law, provided however, that any person succeeding to the office of governor shall be qualified as otherwise provided in this Constitution, and shall during the entire term to which he may be elected, be under all the restrictions and limitations imposed in this Constitution on the governor.

Should this amendment be adopted by the electorate, it would mean simply that a Lieutenant Governor should be elected to that office, would be Texas' next governor if Governor Beauford H. Jester (also re-elected) should die or otherwise be unable to serve, and would avoid any possible claim or demand on the part of his opposition at the general election, or opposition in the primaries, to the office. This was virtually the case last year in Georgia when Herman Talbot declared himself the rightful party to the governorship of the state following the death of his father, Governor-elect Eugene Talbot. Texas' present Constitution provides for the succession to the governorship by the lieutenant governor if the governor should die while in office, but mentions nothing about the succession should the governor-elect die before his inauguration. This amendment will, if passed, dispel any question on the matter should a similar situation ever arise. The amendment in itself is non-partisan in nature, but is simply a clarification of who will be governor if the governor-elect dies before being sworn into office.

On the ballot the wording of the proposed amendment is: "For, or against, the Constitutional amendment exempting $3,000 of the assessed taxable value of all resident homesteads from all state taxes."

Known as Sections 1-b and 1-c of Article VIII the law will read on the statute books as: "Sec. 1-b; Three Thousand Dollars ($3,000) of the assessed taxable value of all residence homesteads as now defined by law shall be exempt from all taxation for all state purposes."

Section 2; Provided, however, the terms of this resolution shall apply to all the tax remission counties which will have the 30-cent ad valorem tax levied by the state. If the amendment is passed, it will mean that all taxpayers in tax remission counties will have the benefits of a $3,000 homestead exemption. If this and the companion amendment are passed, those counties having tax remissions shall continue to levy the 30-cent state tax in those counties until all outstanding bonds are paid off.

The raw material, initially a petroleum derivative, will be supplied by tanker. From 40 to 80 persons will be employed in operation.

Engineering and construction of the plant will be by British concerns under the direction and advice of a staff of technicians from the American company. Every effort will be made to place the plant in production before the end of 1950, it was said. Steel availability will have much to do with the construction timetable.

The formation of Cabot Carbon, Ltd., climaxes more than two years of preliminary effort and investigation leading to the production of carbon black in United Kingdom for the first time.

Common field crows are among the most intelligent of all birds, yet in historical records the word crow is synonymous with "despicable character."
