British Ambassador Kidnaped Today By Uruguayan Leftists

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (UPI) — Left-wing Tupamaros terrorists kidnaped British Ambassador Geoffrey Jackson today in a sensational early morning commando operation. Eyewitnesses said they stopped his black Rolls-Royce, beat three bodyguards into submission with clubs and made off with the ambassador. Both a high Uruguayan source and the British Foreign Office in London confirmed the kidnaping — the latest in a series of sensational exploits by the terrorists against the Uruguayan government headed by President Jorge Pacheco Areco. The same group already is holding U.S. agricultural adviser Claude L. Fly, 65, who was kidnaped Aug. 7, and Brazilian Consul Aloysio Dias Comide, who was abducted July 31. In a contest of wits with Pacheco Areco, who has refused to release political prisoners as ransom, the terrorists killed U.S. police adviser Dan A. Mitrione, who was abducted at the same time as Fly. Jackson, 55, has been ambassador to Uruguay since July, 1969. He has held several other posts in Latin America, as well as serving in the Middle East and Europe. An eyewitness who saw the early morning kidnaping said the terrorists killed the ambassador has been kidnaped. Other witnesses told of the

Cold Wave Is Causing Gas, Power Shortages In State

PASADENA, Calif. — Technicians are disabled by giant 210-foot diameter antenna dish at the Goldstone station in California's Mojave desert. Tricone feed system at center of dish allows for quick change from spacecraft tracking operations to radar and radio astronomy use and vice versa. Weak signals from Mariner 6 and 7 on the other side of the Sun 250 million miles away were picked up and amplified by this antenna, allowing Jet Propulsion Laboratory scientists to detect the effect of the Sun's gravity on the signals in a test of part of Einstein's theory of relativity.

Five U.S. Paratroopers Killed By Communist Unit

SAIGON (UPI) — The U.S. command said today a Communist unit overran an American paratrooper patrol and killed five of its members in a clash that produced the heaviest U.S. casualties of the new year. U.S. sources call a "deteriorating" military situation in Cambodia were expected to be the main topics of weekend conferences between Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird and the American and Vietnamese commands in Saigon. Laird visited the U.S. B52 base at U-Tapao, Thailand, today before coming to South Vietnam. Military sources said the reconnaissance patrol of the U.S. 173rd Airborne Brigade apparently was ambushed in rice paddy country 295 miles northeast of Saigon Thursday. Another airborne unit found the bodies of the slain GIs after clashing with a larger Communist force. They said radio contact with the first group was lost suddenly some hours earlier. These were the heaviest American casualties since Dec. 31, when five American sailors were killed in an ambush of their boat on a canal deep in the Mekong Delta. Two other Americans were killed and another wounded in fighting 80 miles north-northwest of Saigon Thursday and another GI died when a U.S. UH1 Huey helicopter was shot down 50 miles east-southeast of Saigon.

Part Of Pampa's One-Way Streets Is Effective Now

Pampa Police Chief Jim Conner today issued a warning to Pampa motorists concerning newly designated one-way streets in the city. Police will patrol the areas closely during the next few weeks, enforcing the new routes of travel and "Stop" signs. The one-way travel direction is now in effect for motorists traveling east on Brown St. The "y" located just west of the Barnes St. intersection is closed to eastbound traffic on the north side. Motorists must continue to the traffic signal before making a left (north) turn from Brown. Motorists traveling south on Starkweather however, may make a right turn onto Brown Street. "One-way" signs have been installed and police will be patrolling the area. Chief Conner advised that warnings will be made for a short period of time, followed by citations for travel in the wrong direction on a one-way street.

Panhandle Residents Asked To Save Gas

By United Press International
The current cold wave gripping the state in a seige of snow, sleet and freezing rain, is causing havoc on the state's highways and is creating a serious shortage in the power supply. The cold weather caused a blackout southeast of Houston Thursday afternoon and, for many areas, into the evening. Residents of Perryton and Booker in the Texas Panhandle are being asked to use less gas for heating because of a shortage. A spokesman for the Houston Lighting and Power Company blamed the blackout, which hit the Manned Spacecraft Center and endangered the schedule of eve. 6.s leading the flight of Apollo 14, on ice forming on electrical wires causing the voltage to be reduced. "When the wind reaches a certain velocity the water on the lines turns to ice," Lloyd Pierson said. "When the lines slap together it causes the voltage to drop." Many areas of industrial and residential Pasadena, southeast of Houston, were blacked out all afternoon and much of Thursday evening. "I guess I'll have to open up the back door to keep things from spilling in the refrigerator," said Barbara Seagraves, a Pasadena housewife. All the refineries and chemical plants along the Houston Ship Channel were blacked out. Most of them permitted employees to leave work early in hopes of easing a crush of traffic accidents on icy roads. Emergency generators powered facilities at the Space Center until normal electricity was restored. "I know the geographic boundaries but have no way of knowing how many people were affected by the blackout," Pierson said. The cold has caused a drain on the supply of natural gas in the Panhandle and one gas company supplying Perryton and Booker has been unable to meet the demand. The company had asked residents and businesses to use only 70 per cent of their normal gas supply. "We're asking residents and businessmen to lower their thermostats as much as they can overnight, perhaps to 50 degrees," said Perryton City Manager J. B. Wigham. Snow fell for the fourth consecutive day in West Texas and three inches piled up on U.S. 180 near the Guadalupe Pass. El Paso had had over 100 straight hours of sub-freezing temperatures breaking the "Sun City's" previous high of 91 straight hours set in January, 1962. Schools remained closed in El Paso, the Big Bend area and in much of the Panhandle. The first snow of winter fell in East Texas Thursday. Center recorded 1.5 inches of snow and

Russian Cultural Building In Washington Hit By Bomb

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A bomb shattered windows and damaged a metal door at the Russian diplomatic mission cultural building in Washington's pre-dawn hours early today. Moments later, a woman telephoned news agencies and said: "This is a sample of things to come. Let our people go. Never again." "Never again" is the slogan of the Jewish Defense League, a militant organization that has been protesting treatment of Jews in the Soviet Union. A few hours after the Washington blast, four blocks from the Soviet Embassy, a man telephoned UPI's New York office and said the bombing was the start of a "coordinated drive" against the Soviets that would spread to 22 American cities. The callers did not specifically identify themselves or who they represented. Washington police said a pipe bomb was placed against a courtyard at the rear of the Russian cultural building, which also houses the information office of Soviet Life magazine. It is a slick publication in English distributed in this country by the Russians as part of an agreement whereby a Russian-language U.S. magazine, "Amerika," is permitted in the Soviet Union. Police said there were no injuries and most of the damage occurred across the alley at a building owned by the American Psychiatric Association. The time was 4:24 a.m. EST. Soon afterward came a call into UPI's Washington office with a similar message reported by at least one other news agency. The New York caller also concluded his message by saying: "Never again!"

Federal Reserve Makes 3rd Cut In Interest Rate For Loans To Banks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Reserve Board has made the third cut in less than two months in the interest rate it charges for loans to commercial banks, apparently in an effort to pump more money into the stagnant economy. The board of governors of the "Fed" approved the latest cut Thursday, reducing the discount rate from 5 1/2% to 5% per cent. The reduction, like the two that preceded it, was modest. The board dropped the rate from 6 to 5 1/2 per cent on Nov. 10 and to 5 1/4 per cent on Nov. 30. In its two-paragraph announcement, the Fed said, "The move was in recognition of further declines that have taken place in short term interest rates." It followed by one day a 1/4 per cent cut in the prime interest rate which most banks charge for short-term loans to

B52 Bomber With Nine Men Crashes Into Lake Michigan

CHARLEVOIX, Mich. (UPI) — A B52 bomber carrying nine men on a practice bombing run crashed into Lake Michigan with a fireball explosion that looked "just like the sun had been turned on." By early today only two life jackets, some debris and spilled fuel had been found in the 33-degree water of Little Traverse Bay. Authorities said they expected the wreckage to wash up on the southeast shore of the bay. A ground search would be conducted there. The eight-engine jet was on an unarmed, practice bombing run when it crashed Thursday evening. Strategic Air Command headquarters near Omaha, Neb., said the plane was assigned to the 9th Bomb Wing at Westover Air Force Base, Mass. Heavy snowfall which reduced visibility to near zero Thursday night hampered search operations by the U.S. Coast Guard and the Air Force. However, the Coast Guard said the snow ceased around midnight and more debris was being picked up. SAC said the plane plunged into the lake about six nautical miles from the Bay Shore Air Force radar site. Residents of the area said they had seen an explosion prior to the crash. Mrs. Joan Smith, Charlevoix, was driving near the crash site when she said she saw "a light flashing." "It was frightening," she said. "We just didn't know what was happening. It was so bright — just like the sun had been turned on."

Discussion On New Farm Bill Set Up By Price

Congressman Bob Price of Pampa said today he has scheduled an appointment Jan. 11 with Secretary of Agriculture Clifford Hardin and Assistant Secretary Clarence Palmy to discuss department rules and regulation under the new Farm Bill. "I am particularly interested in three subjects which have been brought to my attention by farmers in the Panhandle," Price said. These include: livestock grazing on diverted acre designation of barley as a feed grain and requirements that land eligible for set-aside must have produced a crop for harvest in one of the past three years. "Those within the Department of Agriculture who formulate these rules and regulations cannot be expected to know all of the ramifications of each action they take. Consequently, I am hopeful that Secretary Hardin will modify these particular regulations after we explain the effect they will have on farmers in our area," the Panhandle Congressman added. Several members of Price's 60-man 18th District Agriculture Advisory Committee will also attend the meeting.

HUD Is Planning Suburb Strategy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., says Housing Secretary George Romney is unwilling to launch an impartial investigation of reports real estate speculators are using the federal "low-income home ownership program to take advantage of poor people. Patman, chairman of the House Banking Committee, wrote Romney Thursday saying he is forwarding a committee staff investigation of such abuses to the General Accounting Office, the congressional agency responsible for watching government spending. Patman said Romney's Wednesday news conference "made it plain that you do not feel that there is a serious national problem."

No Immediate Danger Of Gas Shortage Here

James McCoy, local manager of Pioneer Natural Gas Co., said this forenoon there is no immediate danger of a gas shortage in Pampa area. "There is no trouble here," McCoy said, "and the only possibility would be if there should be some kind of equipment failure." With the forecast for warmer weather, he said that was not anticipated. McCoy said there had been some isolated gas failures in individual businesses because of extreme cold but service had been restored as soon as they were reported to the gas company. "There has been no curtailment of gas service in Pioneer's West Texas system," McCoy added, "and none is expected."

Penalty For Drug Crime Suggested

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A special study commission on federal criminal law has concluded marijuana offenses should be treated like traffic violations, handguns should be outlawed and capital punishment should be abolished. The recommendations are included in a report by the 12-member National Commission on Reform of Federal Criminal Laws prepared for submission to Congress and President Nixon today. Congress created the commission to study means of streamlining federal codes to conform to recent Supreme Court decisions. The commission is headed by Edmund G. "Pat" Brown, the former governor of California, who said the code would make simple possession of marijuana a misdemeanor, subject to a fine.

State Solons Promise Reforms On Voting Laws At 62nd Session

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Government leaders do not appear alarmed the state's system of voter registration has been declared unconstitutional. House and Senate leaders are promising reforms in the law will come from the next legislative session.

Secretary of State Martin Dies Jr., the state's chief election officer, said the federal court decision merely does away with a system already inefficient, expensive and susceptible to fraud. Senate leader Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes and House Speaker Gus Mutscher predicted new voting laws would be passed in the legislative session which begins Tuesday.

A federal court in Houston ruled Thursday the state's method of registering voters is unconstitutional and has denied a million residents the right to vote in the 1968 presidential elections.

The Texas voter registration laws provide for residents of the state to register between Oct. 1 and Jan. 31 for elections which are held the following March through February. The federal court decision found this early registration worked hardships on voters and specifically disenfranchised more than a million voters each year.

The court's decision also recommended the legislature establish a permanent voter registration system.

"We will retain jurisdiction of this case and afford the Texas Legislature the full opportunity to correct what we have found and held to be constitutional deficiencies," the court said.

Barnes said he supports a plank in the state Democratic platform recommending automatic re-registration for Texans who vote in presidential elections.

"I'm going to put the Senate Committee on privileges and elections to work immediately after we convene on coming up with another bill," Barnes said. Mutscher said he will instruct the House Election Code Committee to coordinate its efforts with the attorney general's office. He said he already anticipated the legislature would revise election codes.

"The decision by the federal courts declaring annual voter registration unconstitutional lends added urgency to these revisions," Mutscher said. "Whatever the final decision in this case might be, I am sure our legislature will abide by it, and move to satisfy the requirements of our federal courts."

Dies said the court's decision calls for essentially the same changes recommended by a House interim committee, headed by Rep. J. W. Stroud, D-Dallas, which has been studying voter problems.

"This is in line with what I recommended to Rep. Jim Stroud's House committee," Dies said. "And that committee has recommended the same thing to the legislature. The annual registration system is inefficient, expensive and is more susceptible to fraud. I'm sure the legislature will come up with a much tighter and more workable system."

Dies said, however, the committee's recommendations to establish a system in which Texans could re-register by voting should not be called a permanent system.

"It isn't permanent," he said. "The list is purged constantly and kept current at all times. I don't foresee any big problems," Dies said. "I think the legislature will come up with a much more workable system than we have now."

Water Authority To Elect 1971 Officers Monday

Election of officers for the coming year will be among top items on the agenda when directors of the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority meet in regular monthly session at 10 a.m. Monday in Plainview.

Current officers are George W. Finger of Borger, president; Ray Renner of Lamesa, vice president, and A.W. Empe of Amarillo, secretary. John C. Williams, Amarillo, is the authority's general manager.

Attending Monday's session from Pampa will be Fred Thompson and Clinton Evans, local members of the CRMWA board of directors. City Manager Mack Wofford also plans to attend the meeting.

Probably the hottest item on the agenda will be discussion of accounting methods for the authority's distribution of operation and maintenance costs.

Pampa, Amarillo and Borger are protesting a recent resolution which they claim inequitably increased their costs.

The City of Lubbock has asked the CRMWA board to resolve the controversy. Other items on the Monday agenda will include approval of financial statements, report of the committee on Recreation, Water Quality and Pollution Control, report of the Power Sub-committee, and National Park Service Report.

President's Sharing Plan Might Reach $2.5 Billion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The revenue sharing plan President Nixon will propose soon after Congress convenes Jan. 21 will be "in the range" of $2.5 billion, administration officials are saying.

One official, who emphasized the plan still is subject to change, said the figure for no-strings-attached grants to states and cities might be substantially higher than $2.5 billion — but only if other grants for specific purposes were reduced to free extra cash.

Nixon submitted a plan to the last Congress calling for $500 million in the first year. The bill died without even a committee hearing.

Nixon said in his televised interview Monday night that the new revenue sharing plan would go far beyond the earlier one. He also said revenue sharing and welfare reform would be at the top of the

Plano Police Tracking Down Killer Of 19-Year-Old Girl

PLANO, Tex. (UPI) — Plano police, trying to find the killer who stabbed 19-year-old Myrtle Ann Etheridge and dumped the body in a creek, are questioning numerous boy friends.

"Everybody liked her... she had lots of friends," assistant Police Chief Alton Kimzey said. Investigators were reported to be working on two special leads, neither of which was described. Plano police were checking one lead while Texas Rangers ran down the other.

The body of Miss Etheridge, a Texas Instruments worker laid off in October, was found Tuesday in a creek at Plano, about four miles from the apartment in which she lived. Miss Etheridge was wearing

Tate Murder Trial Enters What Expected To Be Its Final Week

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Tate-LaBianca murder trial entered what was expected to be its final week today after seven long and stormy months.

Charles Manson's attorney, Irving Kanarek, assured the court he would conclude his final arguments by the end of the day. One other defense attorney was scheduled to give a summation.

Deputy District Attorney Vincent Bugliosi said he would speak in rebuttal for two and one-half days next week with the case going to the seven-man, five-woman jury next Thursday or Friday.

Kanarek droned through an eighth day of summation Thursday. The stocky lawyer had managed to shoot a number of holes in the state case, particularly with regard to the prosecution thesis of a conspiracy led by Manson. Bugliosi admits Manson is not said to actually have committed any of the seven slayings.

If Manson or any of the three female codefendants are convicted, the same jury will hear the "penalty phase" of the trial deciding on punishment. It could be either life imprisonment or death in the gas chamber.

Kanarek charged that state witness Linda Kasabian fled from Charles Manson's "family" not because she was afraid of him but because she had participated in the seven Tate-LaBianca murders.

Kanarek told the jury that the key state witness was not only in the Sharon Tate home but also probably was the one who tied up Leno LaBianca and his wife, Rosemary, before their deaths. Kanarek hammered again and again at the same theme that Mrs. Kasabian testified against Manson and the three female codefendants because the prosecution was giving her immunity from being tried herself if she told the story the state wanted.

Mrs. Kasabian had testified that she went to the Tate home with Charles "Tex" Watson, Susan Atkins and Patricia Krenwinkel but stood outside during the killings. She said she did not even approach the LaBianca home.

Kanarek argued that she not only entered the LaBianca house but bound the man and wife with her leather thongs, then ran away from the Sphan ranch, home of the cult, several days later with Watson.

Police Receive Vandalism Report

A report of vandalism to a vehicle was made to local police yesterday by Bill Nabors, spokesman for Bob's Electric, Amarillo Highway West.

Nabors told officers that a company owned vehicle had sustained a broken windshield when parked at the home of an employee, Danny Mooney, 601 N. Banks, sometime between 7:30 p.m. Wednesday and 7:30 a.m. Thursday. Mooney reported that sometime during the night he and his wife were awakened by the sound of car doors being slammed, followed by a loud noise. A check of the pick-up revealed that rocks had been thrown through the window.

Company Commander Called As Defense Witness In Calley Case

FT. McPHERSON, Ga. (UPI) — Capt. Ernest L. Medina, the commander of the U. S. army company involved in the alleged My Lai massacre, has been called as a defense witness in the court-martial of one of his former soldiers.

The army was expected to wind up its case against Sgt. Charles E. Hutto today and the defense was to begin presenting the first of its 30 witnesses.

There was no immediate word on when Medina would testify or if he definitely would appear. Medina currently is involved in a hearing at this Third Army headquarters to determine if he should be court-martialed for the incident in which several hundred Vietnamese civilians were killed in a 1963 sweep through My Lai.

Hutto, 22, of Tallulah, La., is charged with intent to commit murder or assault by firing at not less than six of the villagers. If convicted, he faces up to 20 years in prison.

Among the first prosecution witnesses were Tommy Lee Moss, Spartanburg, S.C., who testified before the military court Thursday that Medina told his troops the attack was to be a chance to get round up about 45 villagers, some of whom were standing in a "praying position."

He said Medina told them the men, women and children in My Lai "were as much V.C. (Viet Cong) as the others and they would be killed."

Moss saw Hutto, he said, with about four or five other GIs at My Lai on March 16, 1968.

Only A Few Thousand GI's Will Remain In Vietnam Past May 1

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Only a few thousand American combat troops will remain in Vietnam past May 1—and those in a restricted role—according to present top-level withdrawal plans, Nixon administration sources said Thursday.

Continuing troop withdrawals this winter and in early spring will complete President Nixon's plan for turning over the U.S. ground combat role to the South Vietnamese, the sources said.

Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird mentioned the May 1 goal for the first time publicly during an informal news conference on arrival at Bangkok, Thailand on the second leg of a round-the-world trip. He goes on to Saigon and top-level conferences on Friday.

Laird said most U.S. troops "with combat responsibility" will be withdrawn by May 1. Those that remain, Washington sources said, will be used as advisers with South Vietnamese units or will be kept in a reserve status to cope with any emergency situations posing a threat to the security of other American personnel.

During an interview by four television network representatives Monday, Nixon spoke only in general terms of a continued measured withdrawal. In Paris on Tuesday, Laird mentioned a mid-summer goal of ending U.S. combat responsibilities. This and his reference to May 1 represented the first move by the administration toward a scheduled withdrawal timetable.

There was some speculation the timing might also be designed to head off new student protests about the war, which reportedly are planned for the spring months.

Ninety-Three American Servicemen In Viet Die From Drugs Last Year

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. officials have disclosed that an improved reporting and diagnostic system shows the number of drug deaths among American GIs in Vietnam is up to 70 per cent higher than previously thought.

A total of 93 American servicemen died from drugs in the first 11 months of 1970, according to figures supplied by military spokesmen who said actual figures for drug deaths could even be higher.

The total included both deaths whose cause was determined by autopsy and a larger number attributed to narcotics and drugs after a clinical diagnosis system took effect in August.

These figures showed 19 drug deaths were established by autopsy between January and August of last year and none by clinical diagnosis where no autopsy was performed.

In August the new system of clinical diagnosis went into effect and the number of drug deaths reported through that system shot up to 57 for the four months ended in November. Seventeen more drug deaths were reported by autopsy in the same period, showing that the clinical reporting system in cases where no autopsies were performed had reported drug deaths at a 70 per cent higher rate.

Census Indicates Wintering Birds In Low Numbers Except For Ducks And Blackbirds

By JAMES M. THOMPSON

Despite adverse weather conditions, successful bird counts were held at Lake Meredith on December 30 and 31. Nine observers got out in the wind and dust on the 30th to count the eastern end of the lake. They totaled 54 species and 1,036,810 individuals. One million of those birds were Redwinged Blackbirds roosting in the cattails of the Canadian River behind the town of Sanford.

Plum Creek and Bates Canyon to Rosita Flats. The higher count of species, 67 kinds, comes from the greater variety of habitat, especially wooded canyons like McBride. The lower numbers of individuals (1,947) are a result of little lake surface in the count area for ducks and a lack of cattail marsh habitat for blackbird roosts.

The interesting thing shown by the count on the 31st is the effect of rivers on bird distribution. The Canadian River is literally a highway for birds, both coming from the east and west. For instance, 7 Carolina Chickadees and one Red-bellied Woodpecker, eastern species, were seen. The Carolina Chickadees also nest along the Canadian River above Lake Meredith, but the Woodpecker is probably a winter visitor.

Another 30,000 individuals were ducks, mostly observed flying to feeding grounds. It was too rough to put boats on the lake to count the estimated 135,000 ducks and 10,000 geese which were present earlier in the week.

All of the bird species seen were ones to be expected at this time of year around the lake. It seems that wintering birds are in low numbers, except for the ducks and blackbirds. The lack of grass seeds and ground cover caused by the dry summer probably accounts for the low numbers of sparrows and juncos. Perhaps a scarcity of mice, which also feed on wild grass seed, is the reason for so few hawks.

On Dec. 31, seven observers had better weather conditions for censusing the west end of Sanford Recreation Area from Carolina Chickadees have not been reported from Palo Duro Canyon, but the Golden-fronted Woodpecker which is related to the Red-bellied Woodpecker is common there. Just the few miles of treeless high plains between the two areas serves as an effective barrier to bird movements, especially when the birds depend closely on trees for their food.

Television In Review

By RICK DA BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Susan Hampshire, who was aptly labeled the first sex symbol of educational television for her performance in "The Forsythe Saga," returns Sunday in a colorful new series on the noncommercial network.

She stars with John Neville in another historical drama, "The First Churchills," which will run for 12 episodes of an hour each on the coast-topcast noncommercial hookup, known as the Public Broadcast Service.

These 12 episodes are only the start of a 39-week series known as "Masterpiece Theatre"—dramas produced by the British Broadcasting Corp., now making their debut in America.

Future original dramas on the "Masterpiece Theatre" will include a four-part telling of Henry James' novel "The Spoils of Poynton," as well as plays based on Tolstoy's "Resurrection," Dostoevski's "The Possessed," Balzac's "Pere Goriot" and Thackeray's "Vanity Fair" (with Miss Hampshire as Becky Sharp). The series, it should be noted, is made possible by a grant from the Mobil Oil Corp.

"The First Churchills," introduced by host Alistair Cooke, is set in the 17th and 18th centuries. The premiere crowds much pagentry into the small home screen—depicting, in color, the court life around King Charles II, the bawdy womanizing going on, the military crises and, above all, the first meeting of the young soldier John Churchill and his innocent, saucy bride-to-be, Sarah Jennings (Miss Hampshire).

Through the 12 episodes, Miss Hampshire, as narrator, guides viewers through the sometimes complicated political maneuvering. When we first see her, she portrays a 16-year-old lady-in-waiting. At the end, she is seen

If the resumed Mideast peace talks are to produce results, a compelling factor must be the enormous cost of continuing the war.

Between the two chief belligerents, the United Arab Republic has lost its entire annual revenue of $228 million from the Suez Canal and has been able to make it up only through subsidies from the wealthy Saudi Arab oil producing states of Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and Libya.

The Israelis now are exploiting their captured Sinai oil properties. Egypt has had to bear the costs of moving hundreds of thousands of people away from the embattled banks of the Suez and it must deal with a burgeoning population which has increased more than 60 per cent in less than 20 years.

On the other side, Israeli military costs have multiplied four times since the 1917 war and Israelis now are the most heavily taxed people in the world.

Nonetheless, it is significant that both have been able to press forward with industrial expansion, although at a pace considerably slower than if peace had prevailed.

With Soviet President Nikolai Podgorny on hand to observe results of the Soviet Union's most expensive single project, the U.A.R. on Jan. 15 observes completion of the billion dollar, Soviet-financed Aswan dam, Egypt's great hope for the future.

It is a symbol of Soviet dominance over the military, industrial and technical life of the U.A.R., beginning in 1956 with withdrawal of U.S. support for the Aswan project.

The first major deal between the U.A.R. and the East European Communist bloc came in 1955, with U.A.R. purchase of $350 million in arms.

Just as Israel depends upon the United States and the countries of Western Europe to finance its war and industrial expansion efforts, the U.A.R. could not have made it without Soviet aid and aid from other Communist countries.

Federal Reserve Nonsense

If a quack "doctor" could first convince a cancer victim that he had an itch instead of cancer, the quack's prescribed treatment, calculated to cure the itch, but ignoring the cancer, would sound quite plausible; nevertheless, the patient, devastated by the untreated disease, would steadily worsen.

The analogy is apropos with respect to the national government's bungling attempts at "curing" the cancer of monetary inflation. Unwilling to admit what inflation is—an increase of the money supply, a supply which is controlled by the national government—and thus, brand the government itself as the culprit, the Nixon administration, like every administration before it beginning with that of FDR, continues to aggravate the cancer of inflation by pumping more money into the economy while attributing the cause to everybody and everything except the government itself.

To the uninitiated, fooled by the government's propaganda and evasion of its responsibility to reduce government spending and cease diluting the money supply, the Nixon treatment of the "itch" sounds plausible. Nevertheless, the cancer of monetary inflation spreads unchecked.

A classic example of the Nixon administration's utter refusal to face up to reality was provided in a recent speech made by Arthur F. Burns, the head of the Federal Reserve System.

Going along, obediently, with the administration's refusal to admit that it is the government, itself, that is the inflation culprit, Burns made 11 suggestions (as reported in the Dec. 21 issue of the U.S. News & World Report) as "things the government could do to slow inflation." Listed in the order suggested by Burns, these 11 "things" follow:

"1. Allow more foreign oil and other products to enter the U.S. through larger import quotas." (In itself a good suggestion things being what they are; except that it has no bearing on monetary inflation and implies, falsely, that the government should be meddling with the marts of trade.)

"2. Step up enforcement of the antitrust laws." (Which means, in plain words, more badgering of business and, thus, inhibited production and higher prices.)

"3. Train more workers for skilled jobs."

"4. Set up local productivity councils to seek ways to improve business efficiency." (As in the Soviet Union, one must suppose.)

"5. Rush completion of a nationwide hookup of 'job banks'—computers that will let workers all over the country know where jobs are open."

"6. Increase tax write-offs for business investment, so that companies will have more incentive to modernize facilities."

"7. Suspend the Davis-Bacon Act so that contractors could bid for federal contracts on the basis of lower pay scales in construction." (Instead of suspending, why not repeal the admitted harmful act and be done with it? Or, better yet, cease inflation-creating federal construction and spending and get the government out of a area where it has no business in the first place?)

"8. Modify the minimum wage so that employers will find it less expensive to hire teenagers." (Again, not modification, but repeal is indicated.)

"9. Establish national building codes to break down barriers to the use of modern methods and materials in the building industry." (That would indicate the repeal of legislation favoring unions; which, next to the government itself, are the greatest barrier to the use of modern methods and materials in the building industry.)

"10. Provide for compulsory arbitration of wage disputes in 'vital' industries." (If there is one thing this country does not need, it is more compulsion.)

"11. Set up a high-level board to review price and wage increases and to recommend change."

Significantly, although we have reason to believe that Burns knows better, the head of the administration-controlled Federal Reserve System fails utterly to mention the only way to begin a cure of monetary inflation—the drastic cutting back of government spending upon which monetary inflation feeds. To the contrary, every suggestion made by the "Fed" head, with the possible exceptions of numbers 1, 6, and 8, are calculated to intensify governmental activity and spending; which, in turn, would call for an increase of overt taxation or, that being politically inexpedient, further recourse to the crudest tax of all—inflationary dilution of the money supply.

We are reminded at this point of an observation made by Tom Paine in his Age of Reason: "It is impossible to calculate the moral mischief, if I may so express it, that mental lying has produced in society. When a man has so far corrupted and prostituted the chastity of his mind, as to subscribe his professional belief to things he does not believe, he has prepared himself for the commission of every other crime."

That is what political government, with its bestowal of heady power over others, does to normally morally acting men.

Dependency Not A Right

One of the great political, socially corrupting forces is the economic fact of welfare—the simple truth that many local governments are going broke in trying to meet welfare costs despite unprecedented new local, state and federal financing.

Another problem is created by court decisions that encourage welfare recipients to shop among states for the greatest assistance benefits. Further, pressures are apparent on all sides as students, hippies, strikers and even some well paid welfare workers themselves tap tax dollars as a source of income.

Those diligent officials who try to correct abuses soon find that some of their greatest resistance comes from the entrenched welfare bureaucracy itself. Finally, the biennial quest for political issues always finds welfare a fertile field.

All of these and many other forces have converted to support the so-called "Family

DEATH PENALTY FOR ESCAPE PLANS

In communist Russia, simply planning to escape from the so-called "worker's paradise" is considered treason, punishable by the death penalty. Without getting near an airplane to carry out their escape plans, 11 citizens were arrested and hauled into court. Nine of the 11 were Jews and two of the Jews were sentenced to death while the nine remaining defendants were sentenced to labor camps.

Literally millions of political prisoners have died in Soviet labor camps for such crimes as planning to escape from Russia or even lesser offenses, so perhaps those being executed may have easier deaths than those facing the horror of the labor camps. If it is not too late, Jews around the world at last are being aroused to the dangers of communism.

Contrast the fest trials, and death penalties, in communist lands for simply planning to escape with the permissiveness in non-communist nations. In non-communist lands, actual hijacking of planes has become frequent but penalties and punishment have been weak. Also, revolutionaries are allowed to teach overthrow of the government by force and permitted to encourage students to murder their own parents.

Leftists, while urging a Marxist world, have virtually eliminated the death penalty in free nations such as the U.S., Canada and Britain, but these leftists seldom can bring themselves to criticize any non-communist regime for long, no matter how many bloody executions it perpetrates. In the U.S., when revolutionary criminals actually come to trial, on rare occasions, they are glorified by national media and allowed to make a farce of judicial procedures. Trials drag on for months with the taxpayer footing the bill. Yet, the foolish attack the U.S. as being too repressive, while praising and "building bridges" to communism.

Question Box

QUESTION: Since millions of Americans are trying to live on fixed incomes how are we supposed to cope with the constant rise in prices?

ANSWER: It is one of the greatest tragedies of the day, that persons on fixed incomes are the victims of inflation and the resulting higher prices.

While there are people in government who advocate a small amount of inflation for "growth," they do not seem to realize that persons on fixed incomes, such as savings accounts and fixed-dollar pensions are being victimized by the fact that their incomes do not buy as much as previously. They are in effect being taxed to pay for the fictitious economic growth. Inflation has been called the most cruel tax of all.

There is little that these victims can do to counteract the erosion of buying power of their dollars. They are not like workers who have union contracts providing for higher pay based on increases in the cost of living index. Nor are they like some other workers and government officials who are able to get increases to offset their losses.

Other than to further reduce their own living costs by doing without some of the things they need and desire, there is little chance for those on fixed income. Perhaps the only thing those on fixed incomes can do is to recognize the true cause of their predicament, which is government spending. Once they recognize the cause, they then may be able to help resist increased spending by governments at all levels and attempt to influence a genuine reduction in government spending. Until those in power in government at all levels come to recognize that their spending practices are hurting people who have been productive and have saved and invested for their own futures, there is little hope to be offered these unfortunate.

QUESTION: The airplane industry is especially depressed, and highly trained people accustomed to a good living are the principal victims. The U.S. Senate's opposition to the supersonic transport (SST) in 1970 was an ominous development. For the first time in this country, there was tremendous opposition—to an advanced technological development. American can't afford much of that type opposition—doubt about the need for industry—and remain the world's richest country. The anti-technology mood that emerged in 1970 could mean the loss of untold numbers of jobs in future.

Nineteen seventy was a disturbing year for another reason. It was a period of failure insofar as the war on inflation is concerned. Though American goods face a difficult competitive situation at home and abroad, the cost of many U.S. products soared because of huge wage settlements.

Many Americans are weary and heartsick at the spread of inflation, which erodes earnings, but there wasn't any evidence in 1970 of a real public demand for action against the root cause of inflation. Labor union leaders exercised their monopolistic powers in 1970 without any fear of a backlash. Though some plants had to be shut down and working hours were curtailed in several industries, union leaders continued to insist on sharp wage hikes—and thus drove up the cost of goods and services.

Not all America's troubles in 1970 were economic in character. A lack of inner discipline was apparent in other areas of the national life. Communism gained a new foothold in this hemisphere when a Marxist was elected president of Chile—and the U.S. did nothing. Nineteen seventy was a year of bombings

SENSING THE NEWS

Outlook For Year Ahead

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN
ATLANTA, GA.—The Atlanta airport, the crossroads of the South, is an appropriate spot from which to survey the year ahead and to look to the year ahead. A cross-section of the regional — indeed the national — population moves through this vast air terminal each day — businessmen, servicemen, on leave, hippies, young mothers with children — a complete sample.

The news media reported economic troubles — high prices combined with rising unemployment in 1970 — but there's no special concern apparent in the talk of the travelers. Major flights are booked to capacity. Terminal restaurants are jammed. Though the country is experiencing difficulties, there's no widespread atmosphere of gloom.

Here and there, depression and the gloom are real, however, as in the airframe industry. My college-age son recently told me of hitching a ride with a former aeronautical engineer at the Lockheed plant in Georgia. Until last year, when Lockheed ran into trouble, this man earned $25,000.00 a year. Now he is a traveling salesman, earning less than half his previous salary.

The airframe industry is especially depressed, and highly trained people accustomed to a good living are the principal victims. The U.S. Senate's opposition to the supersonic transport (SST) in 1970 was an ominous development. For the first time in this country, there was tremendous opposition — to an advanced technological development. American can't afford much of that type opposition — doubt about the need for industry — and remain the world's richest country. The anti-technology mood that emerged in 1970 could mean the loss of untold numbers of jobs in future.

Nineteen seventy was a disturbing year for another reason. It was a period of failure insofar as the war on inflation is concerned. Though American goods face a difficult competitive situation at home and abroad, the cost of many U.S. products soared because of huge wage settlements.

Many Americans are weary and heartsick at the spread of inflation, which erodes earnings, but there wasn't any evidence in 1970 of a real public demand for action against the root cause of inflation. Labor union leaders exercised their monopolistic powers in 1970 without any fear of a backlash. Though some plants had to be shut down and working hours were curtailed in several industries, union leaders continued to insist on sharp wage hikes — and thus drove up the cost of goods and services.

Not all America's troubles in 1970 were economic in character. A lack of inner discipline was apparent in other areas of the national life. Communism gained a new foothold in this hemisphere when a Marxist was elected president of Chile — and the U.S. did nothing. Nineteen seventy was a year of bombings

Your Health

By Dr. Lawrence Lamb

Exercise, but Cautiously, With a Rheumatic Heart

Dear Dr. Lamb—To my surprise I have been told I have rheumatic heart disease and that the mitral and aortic valves of my heart had been damaged. For the rest of my life, I'm to take injectable penicillin once a month. I feel good and would like to be a very active 29-year-old but have been told not to outdo anyone physically. I'm baffled regarding a concrete exercise program. What about jogging? Must I stop when my heart pounds hard? Also, in the long run, does penicillin damage the body in any way?

Dear Reader—Many people have no knowledge they have had rheumatic fever and may first learn they have rheumatic heart disease during a routine examination. You are a lucky woman since your heart function must be pretty good if you can still be as active as you sound and have not had any symptoms. The valve disease will cause the heart to work under a burden during exercise. How much trouble this will cause depends upon how badly your valves are damaged. Only your doctor can tell you this on the basis of your examination.

I am fairly certain, however, that you can keep up a good walking program. That will be beneficial for your general health. The load at any one time surely won't be too great. Develop symptoms like shortness of breath or excessive heart pounding, you should see your doctor.

The penicillin is to prevent you from having further damage to the valves in your heart and you should take it or some other medicine for the same purpose regularly. Penicillin won't harm you unless you are sensitive to it and if that were the case you would already know it.

I imagine that Prime Minister Indira Gandhi sort of feels like the little old lady who didn't know the difference between Vaseline and putty — all her window-lights fell out!

The Supreme Coa't of India passed a new law that reinstated all former Maharajas to their former princely rank. This means they will pay some 6.4 million in privy purses. Boy! That's a heap classy privy!

I suppose it's alright if that is what India wants to do with its money. But it ain't alright if that's what they want to do with our money.

We are handing out millions of geets to India in foreign aid and have been doing so for years. Now, I hope we will stop giving them money to support their privy.

Why should we throw away the taxpayer's money for three Maharajas to lay around on silk pillows? We've got enough chair-warmers, sitting around catching flies, right here.

They have 278 of them in India — we've got four million. They have paid ex-rulers and their descendants 130 million. We have paid Welfarites and their descendants billions — and we ain't done yet.

In India they are called Princes. In America they're called Paupers. But they both make out equally well when it comes to the final shake-down.

WASHINGTON—As Vietnamization goes forward, and the Nixon doctrine is applied in helping other nations, top Administration aides could well take another look at the so-called Besson Report.

That voluminous pentagon report, while it is addressed to the war's logistic problems, would seem to have implications for future U.S. policies in Vietnam and elsewhere.

The report, on "Logistic Support in the Vietnam Area," was prepared at the direction of Deputy Defense Secretary David Packard by the Joint Logistics Review Board, under the Chairmanship of Gen. Frank S. Besson Jr., U.S. Army. Supported by several hundred pages of supplements and monographs, the report makes 255 separate recommendations, some of them very technical.

In the usual sense, the report has never been publicized by the Pentagon. Newsmen were simply given access to the mass of documents weeks ago and, rather hurriedly, wrote accounts based on the extensive text.

Generally, the report concludes that "U.S. forces committed to conflict have never been better supplied than those in Southeast Asia." It then proceeds to criticize specific top-level decisions which affected Vietnam logistics problems.

Since those criticisms can be read (and correctly) as applying to former President Lyndon B. Johnson, former Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, and their top aides, the report has generally been summarized in news accounts on that limited basis.

BROADER MEANING —The report has broader application, however. In terms of lessons learned, it has meaning for U.S. policy-makers and administrators in the future.

In its discussion of foreign assistance, for example, the report says that: "In view of the ongoing Vietnamization program and the state policy of meeting threats to the security of the free world through enhanced programs of military assistance, rather than through direct military intervention by U.S. forces, it is apparent that future planning must include carefully considered and coordinated programs for logistic support of allied forces."

Planning for Vietnam was not so coordinated, the report says: "It reports that the decision to continue the foreign aid program, under AID, in addition to the expanding military program with its civil affairs activities, resulted in the continued existence of a second major U.S. logistic system in a country that did not have the facilities to support a single system."

The report suggests that foreign aid activities should be coordinated with other plans, including military contingency plans, at "the interdepartmental level" even if troops are not deployed in a given area. It says the National Security Council should make the necessary policy decisions.

With respect to Vietnam, itself, the report notes that many facilities and supplies have already been turned over to South Vietnam under the Vietnamization program and that additional assets are available for transfer to civil or military authorities.

"There is a continuing need for coordination between the Agency for International Development and the Department of Defense in determining the distribution of available assets and providing for long-term support of the assets turned over to the Vietnamese," the report declares.

RESERVE CALL-UP — In one important respect, present Pentagon Policy meets the report's criticism of policy as it was applied during the Vietnam build-up. The report stressed the logistic problems created by the Johnson Administration's decision not to call up military reserve forces.

VIEWPOINT

Realism And Economics

By JESSE HELMS

On three occasions during the past few weeks, we took heed of repeated exhortations to "listen" to the young people who have been protesting their country's involvement in fighting communism in Southeast Asia. It wasn't, we confess, easy; but we listened — to declarations that "this war is immoral," that the United States is the "aggressor" in Asia, that there would be "peace" if we pulled out, that "The Establishment" is controlled by "war-mongers" in America.

Bit somewhere, in each conversation, there came that inevitable time when a line had to be drawn in simple fairness to America; between fact and fantasy, between realism and youthful emotionalism. The young people are fairly persuasive — at least to themselves — in their condemnation of their country — until their logic is questioned. Then the dialogue becomes either sullenly hostile or completely silent; no in-between — when the photograph recording of clichés has run out, it is through.

A simple inquiry was put to the young people: Their declarations against killing are not difficult to accept in general — no rational man can contemplate with relish the act of taking the life of another. But why, the young people were asked, has there been no protest march, no outcry, no petitions, no "peace retreat" to condemn the wholesale murders by the communists? Not even a whisper of resentment concerning the brutal treatment of American prisoners of war?

Suppose — it was said to each of the three groups — you were to go out into the streets for a protest, for a change, against the brutality of Hanoi? The response came quickly — a thin smile, an unbelieving shake of the head.

The question was stated, then, another way: Would you be satisfied if both the communists and the United States pulled out of North Vietnam? Would that not result in a certain peace?

One young man thought for a moment, then responded: "You have a point."

It so happens that it's not merely our point — it is the official position of the United States, which has repeatedly offered to withdraw our troops if only the communists would do the same, and cease their hostilities, their atrocities, against the people of South Vietnam who do not want to live under communist domination.

This is where the dialogue always ended. The bridge of communication collapsed. One young lady, for example, frankly acknowledged that she thinks that all of Vietnam ought to be under communist control. "I think," she mused, "that it would be beneficial." Beneficial to whom? She did not say.

It does no good to offer in evidence to these young people the certified eyewitness intelligence reports from our troops in Vietnam — the reports detailing the brutal murders and atrocities committed by the communists. A daily log is kept of the scores of innocent civilians murdered by the Vietcong — a woman, for example, given a two-minute "trial" in the middle of a street, and then decapitated on the spot; entire families wiped out because they have dared to oppose communism.

These daily reports are available to all of the major news media. They are virtually ignored. The emphasis of the news media is concentrated instead upon reports harmful to the United States. All American fighting men are implicitly portrayed in the worst possible light.

Who is most responsible for the attitude of the young people who parade in the streets and condemn their country? It is apparent that they have not been exposed to all of the truth, that they want to believe only the worst concerning their country. There's something sad — depressingly sad — about it. Even if it does, as we often tell each other, involve only a "minority."

CUT YOUR OWN TAXES: 7

Sickness Has Compensation

By RAY DE CRANE
 Enterprise Publications
 Sickness last year may be a blessing in disguise when it comes time to complete your income tax return. It opens the door for many tax-saving opportunities.

To get any benefit, you must have been paid by your employer during this period of enforced absence because of either sickness or injury. If you were sick and out of work and your pay stopped, don't bother reading on. You will have no tax break, and you will really get sick reading how others can benefit from this.

So let's assume you were sick, or hurt, and had to stay away from work. During this time, your pay continued. Here is how you compute what Internal Revenue, fancifully calls the "sick-pay exclusion":

The rules go in two parts. Like most tax rules, they sound frighteningly complicated only if you try to gulp it all at once. Instead, take it a small bite at a time.

A 30-day waiting period. After that, you exclude full pay or $100 a week, whichever is smaller.

For periods of less than a full week, the daily exclusion would be actual daily pay or $20, whichever is smaller, if you work a five-day week. Daily rate for a six-day or a seven-day week would be proportionately smaller.

There are separate rules for those who receive 75 per cent or less of normal pay. For them, the waiting period is only seven calendar days. After they receive a weekly exclusion of $75, or the actual weekly payment if it is less than $75. Should the person in this category spend at least one day in the hospital at any time during his period of absence, the exclusion begins from the very first day of the absence from work, without a waiting period.

Whether hospitalized or not, the under-75-per-cent employee has his exclusion stepped up to the weekly maximum of $100, or actual pay if less, after the first 30 calendar days.

Count the consecutive days exactly. Then, after that, base the exclusion on the actual number of working days missed.

Either complete Form 2440, available from IRS, and attach it to your return, or prepare your own attachment worked out in the way outlined above. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

MILITARY PERSUASION

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A student wrote to Sen. Robert W. Packwood, R-Ore., asking: begging, even pleading, for an appointment to the U.S. Military Academy at West Point.

"I am aware of the many tests and interviews needed that I have missed and the many others already appointed, but sir, in America if you want something bad enough and are willing to work, scratch and toil for it as I am, I hope there is a way."

The young man's grades were not the best, but Packwood was so impressed by the letter's tone he sent him a telegram saying he would be nominated to West Point.

Back came the reply: "I decline the nomination. Thank you."

Washington Window

By FRANK ELEAZER
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — The state of Virginia has reluctantly agreed it can tell a lie about George Washington's birth. Also Stonewall Jackson's — and even Robert E. Lee's.

So you can see that the new federal "Monday holiday" law is catching on.

The law took effect the first of the year and in most places, including his home state, we can forget about reversing Feb. 22 as the birth date of our first President and celebrate this event appropriately on "the third Monday in February."

That means Feb. 15 this year. And although the great day will move around from year to year, never again will it fall on Feb. 22.

annual whopper about Washington's birthday, we will hereafter extol Memorial Day on the last Monday in May, instead of May 30; Labor Day (as usual) will be the first Monday in September; Columbus Day will be noted on the second Monday in October; and Veterans Day (formerly Armistice Day) will be moved from Nov. 11 to the fourth Monday in October.

Christmas will continue to fall on Dec. 25. So far, we are assured of that.

Also, New Year's Day, in spite of all, will continue to be celebrated on Jan. 1. Thanksgiving still will be celebrated on the fourth Thursday in November.

Joins in Spirit
 Up to now, Lee and Jackson have been unaccountably overlooked as far as federal holidays are concerned. BUT Virginia, in the spirit of the new "Monday holiday" law, will memorialize Lee (born Jan. 19) and Jackson (born Jan. 21) jointly on the 18th — which is reasonably close to both birthdays and, more importantly, also a Monday.

The "Monday holiday" law was passed by Congress more than two years ago, to take effect in 1971. It switches three of eight existing government holidays each year to Mondays and creates a ninth, Columbus Day. Also to be commemorated on Monday, it will fall on the second one in October.

The law applies only to federal agencies and employees and the District of Columbia, and of course the mailman, who won't bring you even a bill between Friday and Tuesday. But many state legislatures, like Virginia's, have acted to bring local jubiliations in line.

Five Three-Day Holidays
 The result is that in most places, for most people, there will now be at least five three-day holiday weekends each year.

And as for the Fourth of July, there wasn't a thing they could do about that.

DEAR ABBY: We have a darling one-year-old adopted baby. We have been advised by our case worker to apply now for our second child as the waiting list for adopted babies is longer than it has ever been because of the new liberal abortion laws.

We don't want to add to the problems of those women who are carrying an unwanted child, and maybe we're asking a lot to have them consider this, but if a woman is undecided as to which route to take, maybe knowing that there are a lot of married couples who would like to give an unborn child a home, would help in making her decision.

We love our little one and would certainly like to have another through the only way open to us. Adoption. Thank God for it.

LOVES CHILDREN
DEAR LOVES: If you truly love children, there are plenty available. They are not all new born, and they are not all white, but they are all beautiful, and in need of love and a good home.

DEAR ABBY: Do you think it looks nice for a college girl to ride in a car for several hundred miles with five college boys?

The girl is our daughter and she says it would save her quite a lot of money if she made her trips to college and back home for weekends and holidays with the boys. They are all nice hometown boys, but Abby, one girl with five boys.

We realize it would be a saving for her to travel by car with the boys, but if her character and morals were questioned it wouldn't be worth the few dollars saved. I suppose I am old-fashioned in some of my beliefs, but where there is a good reason for it, I refuse to accept change. What is your opinion?

A MOTHER
DEAR MOTHER: If the boys are "nice," I see no reason why your daughter should not ride with them. And if anyone questions her character, I would question theirs. (No one looks behind the door unless he himself has hidden there.)

CONFIDENTIAL TO MY READERS: If you know a boy (from ten to 21 years old) in whose future you have an interest, give him the book, "The Gonf" by Red Rudensky. He will find the book so fascinating that he may not get his homework done until he's finished it. But his teachers won't mind, and neither will his parents, because if they read it — and I wish they would, they will realize that there is a lesson there that is every bit as important as math or history.

An excerpt from "The Gonf":
"Nobody paid much attention to me unless I swiped something. I started at 14. Then the chase began. I spent over 35 years in dozens of different prisons. (I escaped 10 times.) Believe me, I am not very proud of it. How can you be proud of a lousy life like that?"

"I am legally out now, a Square John over 70, and I want to tell every boy I know that there is not one lot of glamor in a career of crime, even for the so-called big-time operators. It's not at all like the movies play it up, or like the crud you see on TV. I have known many big shot criminals (Al Capone was my cellmate at Atlanta, Ga.) and I haven't found a single one who wouldn't have traded everything he possessed, for 30 days of freedom and peace of mind, if not for himself, for his family."

Don't lock yourself up like I did!

Ailing Windows Need First Aid With Decorative Fabric Shades

If neglected windows are what's ailing your decor, there's a new remedy on the market that offers prompt relief.

It's a do-it-yourself shade laminating kit that puts window wizardry at your fingertips. Designed to make it easy to manufacture your own decorative fabric shades, the kit or supplies a major color point in tone and texture.

To determine yardage needed, add six inches to the height of the window opening and one inch to the width of the shade.

Before beginning the laminating process, install mounting brackets at window.

Cut roller to size and cap it, fabric center top and bottom with tailor's chalk. Set aside. Cut adhesive shade cloth .18" longer than your window height and 2" wider than the finished shade. From this cut piece, cut 2" and 8" strips for slat and roller attachments and set aside.

(2.) Now place shade cloth

(4.) To trim shade to proper width, center your pre-cut roller at top of shade. Mark a line on the fabric one-fourth of an inch from the inside of each end of metal caps on the roller. (Measurements must be accurate. If shade is to roll properly.) Use a yardstick to draw vertical lines down each LAMINATING—To make decorative cotton window shades, iron fabric to Tontine adhesive shade cloth. Work from center to outer edges and use liner paper as pressing cloth. Leave 2-inch strip at top of shade cloth for later use in attaching shade to roller.

TRIMMING—After ironing fabric to shade cloth, mark side edges for cutting. Use shade roller as guide and mark line on fabric 1/4" from the inside of metal caps on each end of roller. Draw vertical lines with tailor's chalk down each side of shade to outline width. Cut along these lines for finished edges.

SLAT POCKET—Fold 1 1/2" strip at bottom shade over to the back and press hem edge. Place 2" Tontine strip adhesive-side down on folded edge of hem line and press lightly. Insert slat laying lower edge flush with inside fold of hem. Press firmly along upper edge of slat. Allow shade to cool and then trim.

ATTACHING ROLLER—Press lower edge of 8" Tontine strip adhesive-side down on bare strip at top of shade. Let cool and trim. Then lightly press upper edge of strip to blue line on roller. Wind Tontine over roller surface, constantly pressing until you reach end of adhesive. Now your shade is ready to hang.

includes adhesive shade cloth, roller, slat, pull, mounting brackets, and screws.

If you can iron, measure, and cut reasonably well, you'll have shades fit to be hung in a few hours' time.

In selecting a fabric to iron onto the adhesive shade cloth, choose a firm woven cotton for best results. Pick one that matches or contrasts with walls, repeats a chair or couch cover, then insert into brackets to be sure it fits properly. Set roller aside for later use when trimming shade to exact width.

For a clean-lined look, make "reverse roll" shades—with the roller side facing towards the window. Here's how:

(1.) Square off one end of your fabric so the edge is straight and even. Press with a dry iron to remove any wrinkles or creases, and mark adhesive-side up on a large flat surface, like a floor or table. Remove liner paper and save for use as a pressing cloth.

Measure down 2" from top of adhesive shade cloth and draw a line across the entire width. Mark center.

(3.) Place squared edge of fabric on this marked line, aligning center marks at top and bottom and securing corners. Set iron at temperature suited to your fabric, and press fabric onto shade cloth—working from center to edges with a slow, even pressure. Use liner paper as a pressing cloth and check frequently to be sure you're not ironing any wrinkles into the fabric. (If wrinkles do appear, pull the fabric loose and re-iron.) Allow shade to cool to room temperature for a secure bond.

side of the shade, outlining the width. Be sure vertical lines are the same distance apart at top, center, and bottom of shade. Use sharp scissors to cut along these lines for the finished shade edges.

(5.) For the slat pocket, fold a 1 1/2" strip at bottom of shade over to the back. Now lightly press the 2" strip of shade cloth you cut off earlier (adhesive side down) to the folded-back strip. (One inch will extend beyond each side edge and a small margin above hem edge.) Insert slat with its lower edge flush to inside fold of hem and press firmly along upper edge of slat. Allow to cool and then trim.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Shrill Whistle Blast Stops Obscene Calls
By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—My daughter received some obscene telephone calls. A policeman told her to buy herself a good shrill whistle and place it beside the telephone. When one of the calls came, he told her to hold on to herself a minute until she calmed down, then blow the whistle into the telephone and give it a long blast. That will probably end the calls from that obnoxious person.

Polly's Problem
DEAR POLLY—I want to know how to care for an expensive off-white damask divan. I wonder if any of the readers have had any experience with the foambacked throws that are advertised. My experience with foam rubber is that it threads as it dries out. I do not want these gritty little pieces between my cushions. I want the fabric to show through any cover I use and my husband and I both dislike plastic. I thought about a slip cover but the divan is such an odd shape the cover would have to be custom-made and I need to go a less expensive route.

DEAR POLLY—I put about two cups of water in a plastic bag, tie the top in a knot and place it in my freezer. When my children fall or get a bump I have an instant ice pack all ready. Wrap in a small towel and it is ready. Replace in the freezer and it's ready for the next time.

DEAR POLLY—I always pushed up the sleeves to my sweater but they would not stay above the elbows as I wanted. I solved this by sewing three rounds of elastic thread, about one-half-inch apart, around the cuffs. A small running stitch was made on the inside of each cuff, pulling a little to make it snug. This thread is very fine, gives easily when stitched and holds securely. My sleeves now stay up.

DEAR POLLY—To remove marks left by adhesive on many surfaces I use butter or oil. Just rub a little into the adhesive and it should come right off. This also works on car windows.

HIGH FASHION SHADES—A new boon to do-it-yourselfers is a shade laminating kit that provides first aid for ailing windows. Here it's used to create cotton fabric shades that match curtains and wallpaper. The kit includes Tontine adhesive shade cloth, roller, slat, pull, mounting brackets and screws. It's by Stauffer Chemical Company.

SALVATION ARMY

CAPT. SULLIVAN

HE LEFT US THE WORD LOVE: I Corinthians 13: 1, 2, 3, 13

Though I speak with the tongues of men and of angels, and have not love, I am become as sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal.

And though I have the gift of prophecy, and understand all mysteries, and all knowledge; and though I have all faith, so that I could remove mountains, and have not love, I am nothing.

And though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and though I give my body to be burned, and have not love, it profiteth me nothing. And now abideth faith, hope, love, these three, but the greatest of these is love.

WHAT IS BEYOND LOVE...?

The answer is nothing. Love bears all things, believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things. Love never ends.

HIS PROMISE TO ANSWER OUR NEEDS. Mark 11:22-24

And Jesus answering saith unto them, Have faith in God.

For verily I say unto you, That whosoever shall say unto this mountain, Be thou removed, and be thou cast into the sea; and shall not doubt in his heart, but shall believe that those things which he saith shall come to pass; he shall have whatsoever he saith.

Therefore I say unto you, What things so ever ye desire, when ye pray, believe that ye receive them, and ye shall have them.

AND NOT DOUBT IN OUR HEARTS:

God knows our needs before we make our supplications, and when we receive His answers they are more wonderful than we would have known to ask for.

TV In Review

By RICK DuBROW
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "The Great American Dream Machine," an ambitious 90-minute series looking at U.S. society through a combination of documentary and theatrical devices, bowed in Wednesday night on the noncommercial television network.
It is a big week for the noncommercial stations, known as the Public Broadcast Service. On Tuesday, the acclaimed "Hollywood Television Theatre" returned with a successful play, "Big Fish, Little Fish." Wednesday night came "The Great American Dream Machine."
And Sunday night, "Masterpiece Theatre" will arrive on CBS — a 39-week series of original dramas produced by the British Broadcasting Corp., with the opener kicking off a 12-part tale, "The First Churchills," set in the 17th and 18th centuries and starring Susan Hampshire of "The Forsyte Saga."
Unlike much of noncommercial video, "The Great American Dream Machine" avoided being too esoteric. The program succumbed to educational television's tendency to overindulge itself when it thinks it has something clever, but by and large the showmanship prevailed, and the points were made.
Columnist Nicholas von Hoffman had a strong segment in which he neatly dissected nonsensical, sex-oriented medical advertisements and commented on what many feel is the vast overprescription of drugs, which are also sold like detergents. And actor Marshall Efron, as a chief with a wild, understated sense of humor, illustrated how to make a factory-made pie — with all the listed ingredients, some of which turned out to be pointedly questionable.
There were two other outstanding sketches. In one Linda Lavin and Rob Liebman brought freshness and masterful skill to that tired old subject of satire — magazines about true romance and true confessions. They acted out a typical tale, with its cheap dreams, values and clichés. The other sketch, also enacted with high skill, concerned two lonely people and their conversation on a park bench — a girl, and a fellow who collects autographs and speaks in the clichés of critics (Richard Castellano).

Dave Meggysy Never Is Going To Get It Done

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UPI)—Dave Meggysy never is going to get it done.

No, by himself anyway. But he has himself a pretty fair start and even though he wanders off base now and then, he makes a lot of good sense and cannot or should not be dismissed as another one of those football flaks.

The first question you may ask is who is Dave Meggysy? Dave Meggysy is a 29-year-old free spirit with 14 years of football experience. Four of those were spent at Syracuse University and seven more years were spent with the St. Louis Cardinals' football team.

Game Became Dehumanizing
Meggysy was offered a $35,000 contract by the Cardinals this past season and given every assurance he would be their starting right linebacker but he told them they didn't have enough money ever to get him back on a football field again.

He told them he was all through with football, a game he once loved.

Why?
It was too dehumanizing. Dave Meggysy went further than that. He sat down and wrote a book calling it "Out of Their League."

In the book, excerpts of which have appeared in Look magazine, he makes certain admissions and charges.

He admits to having tried drugs and charges that the use of amphetamines and barbiturates among pro football players is widespread.

"American War Game"
He figures football in this country isn't anything at all like it started out to be. It's too commercial and too violent now.

"For some people their big day of the week is Sunday when they can tune in on pro football," he says. "Twelve hundred men get out there every week, beat the living hell out of each other, and 25 million plug into it. Why? It's America's war game. Middle America's theater. If it's theater, why does it have to be militaristic? You know how things are today. Woody Hayes' hero is George Patton."

Meggysy talks about many ills in both college and professional football and says the NCAA apparently condones these ills by the head-in-the-sand posture it adopts.

He claims his disillusionment with football started while he was at Syracuse.

Confidence Through Beatings
"I found out I was being used and that the game did not build the character I was told it did," he says. "I was paid under the table but I can say I wasn't paid enough. I think the salaries (of college players) should be 10 times what they are. Rex Kern of Ohio State said it: college athletes, football players are getting paid about 25 cents an hour. You can figure it out for yourself. When a university goes to a bowl game it's clearing about a quarter million dollars plus the visibility it gets and the alumni feeding money in. This is what big-time football is in this country."

When anybody asks Dave Meggysy specifically what he means when he talks about football being dehumanizing he says:

"Basically an athlete needs to develop a certain degree of confidence and exhibit that confidence. The way he does this on the football field is by beating on another person.

When I was a linebacker the one way I could ascertain a degree of confidence would be to beat on somebody, to defeat somebody physically over and over again. That's a very dehumanizing process. I think human beings have a greater capacity than to respond in a situation in that manner."

That's one point I'd never question Dave Meggysy on.

NCAA Has Proposed Scholarship Limits

HOUSTON (UPI)—A plan to limit scholarships for football players to 30 a year per college and those for basketball players to six annually will be discussed when the 65th annual NCAA Convention opens Monday.

The delegates will also discuss a proposal to base the amount of athletic scholarships on the needs of the recipients.

The proposals are the result of a year's research by William J. Flynn, athletic director of Boston College, and his committee on financial aid.

The proposals by the committee to limit scholarships would restrict the size of football squads to 150 and basketball squads to 30 over a five-year period.

Flynn says this would save college money and stop stockpiling of players. It would also force recruiters to be more selective, he said, and would keep them from taking marginal students.

The committee said its proposals would also give players sitting on the bench at big schools a chance to play on smaller ones.

The convention will also study proposals to use the family income of the athlete as a guide for fixing the amount of the grant. Higher income families would be required to contribute more toward paying for the student's education, with the scholarship taking care of the difference.

NCAA Executive Director Walter Byers said Thursday the proposals cannot be enacted at this year's convention, but the NCAA's governing body could call a special convention next spring to adopt them.

Landry Admits Cowboys Needs More Consistency

DALLAS (UPI)—Tom Landry admits his Dallas Cowboys could be better with a more consistent passing attack, but swears that the team which will face Baltimore in the Super Bowl in Miami Jan. 17 approaches one of his long time goals.

"This team is about where I wanted it to be," Landry said today. "We rely on what I wanted to rely on—namely, the big running game and defense."

"We had always hoped we would reach the point that we didn't have to rely on the big play to win games. But, you use what you have and build around it."

"That's why we relied on finesse in past years. We just didn't have the personnel to run the ball down anyone's throat. Now, I think we have that—and defense to go with it."

The past two weeks have proven his point, emphatically.

as the Cowboys used the tremendous running of rookie Duane Thomas and veteran fullback Walt Garrison to control the ball, eat up precious time and keep the ball away from the enemy's fire power.

The club, which bounced back from a 5-4 record to win the Eastern Division title with five straight victories, used that momentum to forge 5-0 and 17-10 National Conference playoff victories over potent Detroit and San Francisco.

The defense, during that drive, had a string of 24 consecutive quarters without giving up a touchdown—a streak broken on a John Brodie-to-Dick Wither pass in the Forty-Niner game.

Thomas, of course, has been the key figure offensively with most of his 803 regular season yards coming during the streak and turning in 135 yards against the Lions and 143 against the Forty Niners.

Garrison, who picked up 507 yards over the season, contributed 72 yards against Detroit and 77 against San Francisco and caught five passes, one of them for the winning TD in the title game.

Meanwhile, Craig Morton, who had hit 13 of 17 passes for 349 yards and five touchdowns in the Cowboys' season windup against the Houston Oilers, hit only 11 of 40 for 139 yards combined against the Lions and Forty Niners.

He's been hampered by shoulder, elbow and hand injuries and now is missing all of this week's precious practice because of a strep throat.

"We've got to hit 30 per cent of our passes—some way," Landry says of the forthcoming battle with the Colts. "It will be very difficult if we stay in the 30 per cent level of the past two weeks."

Harvesters Host Phillips In Harvester Fieldhouse Tonight

The hustling Pampa Harvesters will be playing host to Phillips tonight in Harvester Fieldhouse at 8:00 p.m. The Harvesters will be playing the Phillips Jr. Varsity at 6:00 p.m.

The Harvesters are looking more like a team every game. At the outset of the year they seemed a little disorganized but training and coaching has brought the team to a high playing peak of quality and perfection.

Coach Robert McPherson should be commended on his guidance of the Pampa team, especially after losing a heartbreaker to Monterey in the final ten seconds of play Tuesday night.

In that game a technical foul called against a player on the Harvester bench made the difference in the 69 to 68 loss. The Harvesters are out to average the loss tonight and the action should be fast and furious.

Manager's Decision To Fine Player Helps Team To Win

By United Press International
Vince Boryla's decisive action has helped the Utah Stars widen their lead in the American Basketball Association's Western Division.

Boryla, the Stars' general manager, fined Donnie Freeman, the club's second leading scorer, $1,000 Thursday for "conduct detrimental to the club." Boryla's steps came after the Stars lost to Indiana Wednesday night in a game in which Freeman did not play because of what he said was the flu.

The Stars stormed back from a 13-point first half deficit Thursday night to beat the Texas Choppers 114-107. The victory boosted the Stars' lead over idle Indiana to 1½ games.

Willie Wise led the Stars' scoring attack with 24 points and Zelmo Beatty added 21 for Utah. Joe Hamilton was high man for Texas with 24.

In the only other action, the Floridians stopped the Virginia Squires 118-113 and the Pittsburgh Condors ripped the Denver Rockets 131-116.

Mack Calvin, the ABA's leading scorer, poured in 33 points in leading the Floridians over Virginia, the Eastern Division leader, in a foul-filled game.

The game was marked by three double fouls, two technicals and 68 personal fouls. Larry Brown of Virginia and Larry Jones of the Floridians were ejected for fighting.

Charlie Scott led the Squires' attack with 28 points.

John Brisker had 41 points to boost the Condors over Denver. Pittsburgh scored 47 points in the last period to turn the game into a rout.

the feet-footed Tolan, who led the majors in stolen bases last year with 37, was playing a benefit game in Frankfort, Ky., with other members of the Reds, including Johnny Bench and Pete Rose, when he injured the tendon in his right heel Wednesday night.

He underwent surgery Thursday and was placed in a full leg cast which he will keep on for four weeks.

Nick Skorich Stepped Into New Position

CLEVELAND (UPI)—Nick Skorich has stepped into a role only two men before him have taken on—head coach of the Cleveland Browns—and he said he intends to be here "a long time."

"I intend to be here 10 years," said Skorich, a former head coach with the Philadelphia Eagles from 1961-3 who has served under retiring Browns coach Blanton Collier the last seven years.

Skorich, 49, was picked to be Collier's successor Thursday in a move that apparently was savored by Collier, Skorich and the front office.

Mississippi Is Tops In College Cage Scoring

NEW YORK (UPI)—The state of Mississippi controls the college basketball scoring races in both university and college divisions.

University of Mississippi sophomore Johnny Neumann leads the major college scorers and now, according to weekly statistics released Thursday, Jethu Brabham of Mississippi College continues to set the pace for the college division.

Brabham is averaging 35.9 points per game, one of five college players in his division to surpass the 30 level. Dwight Lamar of Southwest Louisiana trails Brabham with a 32.4 mark. Dick Fugua of Oral Roberts shows 31.4. Gregg Northington of Alabama State has 31.3 and Travis Grant of Kentucky State just makes the group with 30.0.

Lester Jordan of Rhode Island College is the sharpest in field goal percentage with a .788 mark and Elmore Smith of Kentucky State is the top rebounder with a 24.1. and Don Aronold of West Florida is best from the foul line with a .940 mark.

North Makes Plans Public For Battle Against South

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI)—The favored North today made public its battle plan for Saturday's Senior Bowl football game: The Yankees plan to attack by air and figure the Rebels will do the same.

"We won't be surprised if the South puts the ball in the air and so will we," said North coach Lou Saban of the Denver Broncos.

"I'm rather impressed with our squad. We've got two great quarterbacks (Don Pastorini of Santa Clara and Lynn Dickey of Kansas State)," added Saban. "They can really throw the ball."

South coach Jeb Ewbank of the New York Jets wasn't sure. He was concerned about his starting quarterback, Scott Hunter of Alabama.

"Hunter has a knot on his shoulder," Ewbank explained. "He's not throwing like he used to. He will have to throw better than he is now to make it in the pros. If I was going to draft him, I'd have an orthopedic man look at it."

Cool, clear weather is forecast for Saturday's 1 p.m. CST kickoff. A sellout crowd of 41,000 is expected for the nationally televised (NBC) contest.

Jim Ryun, America's Greatest Distance Runner, Ends Retirement

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Jim Ryun, America's greatest middle distance runner, announced today he is ending an 18-month retirement on Jan. 22 to compete in the mile at the San Francisco Examiner All-American Games.

The former Kansas Comet, who currently holds the world records for 800 yards, 1,500 meters and the mile, was to make his announcement official at a noon news conference.

Ryun, now married, stepped off the track midway through the running of the mile in the 1969 AAU outdoor championships at Miami, claiming he was exhausted. He never ran again until last June when he started some workouts at home.

Slimmed down from 190 to 160 pounds, Ryun ran a time trial mile in 4:04.4 last month and that more than anything else was responsible for his decision to make a comeback.

It was in the All-American games of 1963 that Ryun gained national prominence when he recovered from an early spill to finish second to Gerry Lindgren in the high school two-mile run. Lindgren clocked 9:00.0 that night for a mark that still stands.

The 1966 and 1967 seasons were Ryun's greatest. First he took the 800-yard record held by Peter Snell down two-tenths of a second to 1:44.9. Then he lowered his mile record to 3:51.1 at the 1967 AAU championships at Bakersfield, Calif., and finally added the 1,500-meter record to his collection by chipping 2.3 seconds off the old mark with a 3:33.1 performance in the U.S. Commonwealth meet at Los Angeles.

Brothers Are Assaulting NHL All-Star Nominations

NEW YORK (UPI)—Brothers Bobby and Dennis Hull led a record Chicago assault on National Hockey League All-Star nominations as eight members of the Black Hawks were among the 12 players named today to the West Division team.

The Black Hawks, who were expected to dominate the younger West Division after winning the regular season title in the East last year, were shut out only in the voting for right wing. The St. Louis Blues, who dominated the West during their first three years of existence prior to the arrival of Chicago, placed three men on the squad and the Pittsburgh

Penguins had the only other representative.

Another eight players will be selected by West coach Scotty Bowman, now the general manager of the Blues, to complete the team for the 24th annual All-Star game at Boston Garden on Tuesday night, Jan. 19.

Bobby Hull, who needs only 12 more goals to surpass Maurice Richard's figure of 544 and thus become the second-highest goal scorer in NHL history, was the only unanimous choice to the West team with a perfect 105 points in the voting, conducted among 21 members of the NHL Writers' Association.

American Bowl Is Facing Many Problems, Including The Weather

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI)—Nebraska coach Bob Devaney and Miami coach Fran Curci battled time and the elements today to try to put together the opposing teams for the American Bowl football game Sunday.

Players for the all-star game did not begin arriving here until Tuesday and drills have been hampered by the weather.

The offensive units of the two teams got together for the first practice Wednesday but some players had yet to arrive.

Thursday the teams were chased inside by day-long rain and the defensive units got together for the first time.

Both Devaney and Curci hoped for clearing weather for today's sessions. The coaches will send the teams through full-scale workouts Saturday.

Kickoff for the game is 2 p.m. Est. Game officials said

MIAMI (UPI)—Baltimore Colts' Coach Don McCafferty scheduled workouts today and Saturday for his American Football Conference Champions as the Colts prepare to meet the Dallas Cowboys Jan. 17 in the Super Bowl.

"I thought we had a pretty good ball club, but I never thought we'd be here," said McCafferty, who took over the Colts early last year.

The Colts arrived Thursday night and went from the airport to their country club-style living quarters at the Miami Lakes Inn northeast of the city.

The team will take Sunday off and begin a week of normal pre-game practice Monday. The Colts will work out at Biscayne College, except for sessions Wednesday and Thursday to test the Orange Bowl's artificial turf.

"We're happy to be here and I hope we have a good game against the Dallas Cowboys," said McCafferty.

Quarterback Johnny Unitas said he saw the match with Dallas as "a tough football game."

Unitas was asked if he thought his front four could get to Dallas Quarterback Craig Morton. "I think so," Unitas replied. "They've been improving the last three or four ballgames, and if we continue to play the type football we have been playing in the last four ballgames we have a good chance to beat them."

The Cowboys are scheduled to arrive Sunday.

Bragan Is Still Manipulating Texas And Southern Baseball

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI)—Bobby Bragan, who used to manipulate pitchers and players as a catcher and major league manager, is still in the manipulating business, trying to solve a dilemma involving the Texas and Southern baseball leagues.

Bragan, a very persuasive fellow during his playing career, may be just the man to pull off a settlement between the two Class AA circuits which currently have unworkable seven-city memberships and covet one of the franchises in the other league.

"We are in a stalemate now, but I have a proposal before directors of both leagues which calls for a combined Texas-Southern (or Southern-Texas) League with three divisions instead of the usual two," Bragan said.

The proposal, for which Bragan already has had a 142-game schedule drawn, calls for six of the seven Southern teams (Montgomery, Charlotte, Asheville, Savannah, Columbus and Jacksonville) to form the Eastern Division; Dallas-Fort Worth, Little Rock and Memphis of the Texas loop along with Birmingham of the Southern in the Central Division; and San Antonio, Amarillo, El Paso and Albuquerque of the Texas to make up the Western Division.

"To cut the travel down," Bragan said, "the West and East teams would play no farther from home than in the Central Division, which would have interdivision games with both sections."

"Mileage, which generally was figured to be the big barrier to such a merger, will range from a maximum 13,000 miles a season for the Dallas-Fort Worth franchise to 8,000 miles for Columbus—and that compares favorably with what Texas League teams did last year."

"In 1970, the Texas teams traveled 59,000 miles, or about 12,000 to 15,000 each," Bragan said.

East teams would play 22 games against each other and eight each against Central teams; Central teams would play 18 games each within the division, eight against the East and 10 against the West, while West Texas would play 34 within the area and 10 against the Central.

"The matter is in the hands of the directors of the two leagues and we should know something within 10 days to two weeks," Bragan said.

"It's strictly in the proposal stage, but at least we're trying to do something. I've had favorable reaction from a majority of our Texas League operators and from several in the Southern."

SWC Conference Is Led By Phillips, Fees And Lowry

DALLAS (UPI)—Gene Phillips of SMU, Eugene Kennedy of TCU, Pat Fees of Baylor and Greg Lowry of Texas Tech boast the individual leadership performances in Southwest Conference basketball play.

Phillips is one of five players averaging better than 20 points per game and seems in good shape to defend his scoring title of a year ago as he operates at a 25.8-point per game pace.

Kennedy is waging a torrid battle with Baylor's William Chatmon for rebound honors, but Kennedy holds a 14.9 to 14.6 edge and Texas' Lynn Howden isn't far behind at 13.5.

Fees has hit 64.8 per cent of his 54 shots from the floor, but among the big shooters Kennedy has fired 147 times and hit 87 for a very creditable 57.1 per cent. Rick Duplantix of Texas A&M ranks second with 29.49 per cent, while Aggie teammate Steve Niles is fourth with 54.96-56.3.

Lowry, who also is the national leader, has hit 52 of 66 free throws for a 92.9 percentage, followed by Bobby Phillips of SMU (37-42-86.1), Tom Stanton of Baylor (27-31-87.1) and Billy Black of Texas (60-71-84.5).

Gene Knolle of Texas Tech is Phillips' closest challenger in the scoring race with a 23.8-point average. Chatmon is third at 22.4, Kennedy fourth at 20.9, and Tom Myer of Rice is fifth at 20.3.

UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The peroxidized blonde waves fell softly around her face, framing arched penciled eyebrows, a false mole and cupid bow mouth above a shapely body clad in a semi-see-through gown.

Shades of Jean Harlow! Underneath it all was bouncy Debbie Reynolds playing her first thoroughgoing drama, that of a soiled dove of the 30s.

No Nudity, Though Debbie—good old Tammy—say it isn't so!

It is so," said Debbie falling into the characterization of a woman who has loved but lost and wound up with an illegitimate baby.

"For the first time in my life I have the opportunity to act—and to act my age. It's been four years since I made a movie. I turned down offers because they wanted nudity or lovemaking."

Well, what's so puritanical about a would-be folies girl in the old days having a child out of wedlock?

"The woman I play, Adelle, lives in a dream world," Debbie said. "But there is no explicit sex or anything like that in the picture."

Finally Beyond Foolishness Debbie costars with Shelley Winters in "What's the Matter with Helen?" a title Miss Reynolds finds revolting.

Even the title, however, is a minor matter, Debbie Reynolds has spent 20 years attempting, with little or no success, to prove that she is a capable dramatic actress. But producers look at her and see Tammy or a high school baton twirler or a not-too-bright ingenue.

She is a little old for that sort of foolishness.

"When you want something very badly over a number of years, and work and train and study for it," she said, "you feel as if you've reached some sort of goal when you finally achieve it.

"This is a sustained dramatic part. The kind I've searched for a good many years. Hopefully it will lead to more of the same."

INSPECTING ANTARCTIC
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department plans to send a six-man inspection team to the South Pole Jan. 16 to tour international research stations, including some operated by the Soviet Union.

Officials said the tour was planned to prevent the inspection provisions of the International Antarctic Treaty from lapsing. Previous U.S. inspections were made in 1964 and 1967.

AKRON, Ohio — A city councilman after the Soap and Detergent Association filed suit against an Akron ordinance, similar to one in Chicago, barring detergents with phosphates:

"The soap and detergent industry apparently feels they have a better chance of breaking the ordinance here, since Akron is a smaller city."

PONDERING THE IMPONDERABLES is part of a politician's job. The higher the office, the more each word must be weighed in view of the significance attached to it. Here, President Nixon, Defense Secretary Melvin Laird and Secretary of State William Rogers strike thoughtful poses before explaining administration policies.

Missionary To Brazil Will Address First Presbyterian

Rev. John Miller will preach at both the 8:30 and 11 a.m. services at First Presbyterian Sunday, and will be available for questions and answers in the West Room from 9:30 to 10:45 a.m.

The Rev. Miller, Presbyterian missionary in Brazil, who was appointed in 1949 by the former Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A. and assigned to Brazil, is currently stationed at "A Igreja Presbiteriana de Alvorada" (The Church of the Dawn) in Brasilia, Brazil. Prior to his 1964-65 furlough Mr. Miller was stationed at Formosa, where he was engaged in evangelistic work in seven countries, traveling by jeep and mule-back. He and his wife, in cooperation with Brazilian pastors, who are members of the Presbytery of Brasilia, worked with three evangelical elementary schools.

Born in Kansas City, Mo., Mr. Miller grew up in Amarillo, where he completed high school work. He attended Trinity University in San Antonio, and was graduated in 1945. For the next two years he studied at Princeton Theological Seminary, Princeton, N.J. He then accepted a position under the Presbyterian Board of National Missions for work in a community church in Fort Worth. In August 1947, he was married to Jean Everheart of Kerens. In September 1948, he resumed his theological studies, having transferred from Princeton to McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago, where he was graduated in 1949.

After a year of language study in Capinas, Mr. and Mrs. Miller began work in Formosa, where the Church met in their home, as did an Evangelical School. From 1950 until 1962 Mr. Miller was pastor of the church in Formosa, which grew steadily. At the time of the organization of the Presbytery of Brasilia, this church called a Brazilian pastor and was turned over by the Mission to the new Presbytery.

Hollywood In Review

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—There aren't enough movies being made to satisfy the maw of television, and many recent films are a bit raunchy for the home set, so NBC is shifting gears again.

As of Jan. 11 and Monday nights thereafter the network will beam only "NBC World Premiere" movies.

That is to say, the movies will not be reruns but brand new two-hour flicks filmed at Universal, 20th Century-Fox, Warner Bros. and Screen Gems. Future deals are being made with Paramount and MGM.

Can't Cut The Violence
Stanley Robertson, director of motion pictures for television at the network, explains: "We can't buy many pictures being made for theatrical release today because of sex and violence."

"What good would it do for us to buy something like 'Midnight Cowboy' or 'The Wild Bunch' and then cut out all the scenes which might be offensive to home viewers?"

"Much of the sex and violence in movies are based on story points. If you remove them, you emasculate the purpose of the picture."

When the networks first began paying out huge sums for old movies, bidding was fierce and prices high. When it appeared there wouldn't be sufficient oldies to go around NBC began farming out two-hour movie projects to the studios—mostly Universal.

"It Took Courage"
The network beamed eight the first season. The following year the total was dropped to four. Ratings proved that the innovation was catching on so NBC aired 14 in the third season, and 15 this year.

"Sometimes the studios came to us with a property they believe would make a good world premiere," Robertson said.

"But in most cases we'll go to a studio with a property we want them to develop. In either case, we show the picture the first two times on television. Thereafter it reverts to the studio."

According to Robertson these two-hour television movies cost from $750,000 to more than $1 million.

"Economically it took courage to put up money to get into this movie concept for television. And we use adult themes without being explicit," Robertson said.

"Everything was legal. There was a six-foot fence and signs warning of the dog, but 3-year-olds can't read."

NEW YORK—Aina Abolins, 20, a Latvian woman who has been told that she, her mother and sister will have to return to Canada and not be granted asylum in the United States.
"Unless we get political asylum, they'll send three bodies back to Manitoba."

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market once again has adopted the principal of "hope," Wright Investors' Service says. The service says 1970 "skepticism will be replaced by 1971 'enthusiasm and it predicts the market will continue onwards and upwards to end the year by knocking at the door of the old 1966 high (Dow Jones Industrial Average 955)."

Favorable economic forecasts are providing a good environment for the market but the wise investor should be on guard "against excessive optimism" Bache & Co. says. The company expects the market to start the year "on a good note" but it cautions quarterly gains may "show a somewhat slower rate of advance as the year wears on (and) the market may retrace some of its gain by the turn of the first quarter."

The consensus has suggested that the current advance would "get into trouble" somewhere in the 840-860 level on the Dow and W. E. Hutton & Co. agrees. The company says "a less bullish nearby expectation should be entertained by traders." The firm says the Dow could slide back to around the 800 level before the end of February but adds "such a setback as we see it would be healthy rather than disastrous." Although 1971 will not be a boom year, the recovery in profits and spreading investor confidence should make this year "an enjoyable one for investors," according to the Indicator Digest. However, the newsletter says the "recent binge makes it highly probable that a short-term hangover will materialize early in the new year."

WASHINGTON—Former Gov. Edmund G. Brown of California, who headed a commission that has recommended reducing penalties for marijuana violators:

"We weren't ready to legalize it and have it sold like cigarettes, but we did recognize that many people, particularly the young, are using it."

Income Tax Answers

Editor's Note: This column of questions and answers on Federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published by The News as a public service to taxpayers.

Q) Can a child born before the end of the year be claimed as a dependent for the whole year?

A) Yes, as long as the dependency tests are met for the balance of the tax year in which the child was born.

Q) I didn't have a job when we moved here. Does that mean I won't be able to deduct my moving costs?

A) You may be able to deduct your moving expenses if you meet certain requirements. In fact, anyone moving to accept a new job as well as someone transferred to a new location by his present employer may qualify.

Q) I didn't pay any estimated tax this year and now I find I'm way underwithheld. What should I do?

A) File an estimated tax declaration, Form 1040ES, as soon as possible and pay whatever should have been paid by this date. This will reduce the penalty for underpayment of estimated tax. Form 1040ES and instructions may be obtained from any IRS office.

Q) What's the deadline for reporting the social security tax I withheld for my cleaning woman?

A) February 1 is the due date for the Employer's Quarterly Tax Return for Household Employees for October, November and December.

Q) If someone dies during the year, does an income tax return have to be filed if there was any income or earnings?

A) Yes, the same general tax filing requirements apply to taxpayers who are deceased. There are special provisions, however. For details, send a post card to your local IRS office and ask for a copy of Publication 559, Federal Tax Guide for Survivors, Executors, and Administrators. It's free.
