coalition of radicals, activists and liberals attempted to take over the city government today

Retiring Mayor Wallace Johnson warned that the radical group "in one swoop could make the first revolutionary government in America.'

In addition to seeking control of the City Council, the "April Coalition" backs a ballot proposition that would create three autonomous police departments for whites, students and blacks-along lines conceived by Black Panther leader Bobby Seale, who is on trial for murder and conspiracy.

Because of Berkeley's reputation as the birthplace of the campus revolution, today's election drew the attention of other communities across the nation: 'After eight years as mayor,

I've learned that Berkeley is a barometer for the nation,' Johnson soid.

The coalition must win all four seats open on the nine-man council and fill a fifth seat vacated in the mayor's race in platform calls for city-operated day care centers, tax reforms aimed at the wealthy, and loweest housing. Gov. Ronald Reagan has taken the coalition seriously enough to remark, "It can happen here. Candidates for mayor include darkhorse Larry Melton, alias The Rabbit, 22, a former member of Charles Manson's 'Family." Melton says he is running "to vindicate Charlie

Manson. The front runners are two black councilmen, Wilmont Sweeney and Warren Widener: Sweeney, born in Texas, is against the police plan. Widener, 32, had not favored it but is far enough to the left of his rival to gain the endorsement of Democratic Rep. Ron Dellmus of Berkeley who has been in the forefront of the the lowering of the voting age to 18 in Federal elections, and perhaps soon in state elections, young people no longer have the luxury of criticizing government policies without being partly responsible for these policies, according to Congressman Bob Price.

Speaking recently at Student Senate Week activities at Amarillo College, Price challenged his audience, "to lay your opinions on the line now that you will have the chance to influence the political process directly rather than indirectly.'

The Panhandle representative urged the students to study all of the issues facing the Nation today ranging from draft reform to the war in Vietnam to revenue sharing - and then to share their views on these issues with "All of this places a considerable burden on you, the new voters. For too many people, the business of governing a city, a state, and the Nation has been of small concern. You can make one of three basic choices: do nothing; join the rebellion and become the changes you want by becoming involved in governmental affairs at all levels,"

The solutions of the problems facing the United States today will be shaped by decisions of commitment and the acts of leadership that concerned citizens and national policy makers engage in during the next few years," he added.
